Ana Scandalous ignominious disgraceful, disreputable, shameful (see corresponding nouns at DISGRACE)

Ant Illustrious. — Con Glorious *splendid sublime infamy. Ignominy shame, *disgrace dishonor, disrepute opprobrium, obloquy, odium, scandal umiliation

e, repute

fancy, because of its more familiar general senses, is seldom used in this denotation outside of legal documents and court reports, it is there, however the preferable term when reference is made to the condition or infancy and minority in their legal senses, but it is to be distinguished from them in its acquired connotations and by its greater susceptibility to literary and figurative use. Very often, nonage suggests immaturity not infrequently it suggests adolescence and its weaknesses and is thought of, by an etymological confusion as the opposite of dotage, or senility 'Nations outgrow their spiritual nonage' (F. W Farrar) 'Three million such people as can read the Globe with interest are as yet in too crude a state of nonage to deserve any regard' (Emerson)

Con. *Age majority verb at STUNT)

Con. Sensible, prudent, sane, judicious, *wise *rational reasonable they denote either the way in which a disease is transmitted or acquired, or the disease itself (though less disease, as the infection (or contagion) spread from town to town. 'Manila the only large city until recent years where an imported infection has been eradicated' (V Heiser) Infection and contagion (technical contagium) are interchangeable when they denote the matter producing a contagious disease, such as a germ laden secretion or a virus, as the air of a sickroom is charged with contagion There is even a strong possibility that the infection [of smallpox] may be carried through the air (V Heiser) Figuratively, these words are not as close in their meanings as infectious and contagious because infection rarely loses the implication of corruption so strong in infect, as, the ignorant are susceptible to the infection of false propaganda, everyone felt the contagion of her merriment infectious. 1 Infectious, contagious, communicable, catching, when applied to diseases are distinguishable in nd analogous microorganisms) that produce destroy or injure tissues. Contagious designates *) indicates place of treatment of each group.

that type of infectious disease caused by receiving living germs directly from a person afflicted with it or by contact with a secretion of his or some object he has touched The tendency to use infectious more narrowly and only but it implies even more the dangers of contact

Of these four terms infectious, contagious, and catching are used figuratively The fine distinctions exhibited in their technical senses are not carried over into the extended senses with the result that they are nearly exact synonyms meaning rapidly imparted to others, as contagious (or infectious) enthusiasm, What a bad temper! I hope it's not catching 'Fear is exceedingly infectious children catch it from their elders even when their elders are not aware of having shown it (B Russell)

Ana Toxic, mephitic, pestilent, pestilential, virulent, *poisonous

2 Infectious, infective agree in denoting that infects or tends to infect. Infectious, however, is more often restricted to the technical and figurative senses expounded in the preceding article Infective, an older word than infectious, was for a time displaced by it, but it has recently been revived especially in pathology where it is applied chiefly to matter and means potentially infectious as, an infective secretion an infective indelicate indecent inept, maladroit, gauche, *awkward Ant Felicitous. — Con. Happy apt appropriate fitting (see FIT adj) apposite, apropos, germane pertinent, *relevant Infer. 1 Infer, deduce, conclude, judge, gather come into comparison when they mean to arrive at by reason mental formulations derived by reasoning are even more precisely fixed in careful usage. Infer implies the

In strict logical use, it means to derive an inference from a general principle; that is to make a deduction as opposed to an induction (see DEDUCTION 3) This distinction an important one to logicians and philosophers is nearly lost in general use where deduce and deduction imply inferences of any kind 'Then the diets [of polished and of unpolished rice] were reversed. The sick dies, what he produces as a means continues to the end of time We cannot deny this but we can deny the consequences deduced from it' (B Russell) Conclude is often loosely employed as an equivalent of deduce in its general sense Strictly, it means to draw the inference that is the necessary consequence of preceding propositions whether these propositions be the premises of a syllogism or the members of a series of previously drawn inferences constituting an unbroken chain of reasoning A conclusion is therefore either the third proposition of a syllogism or the final, summarizing proposition in a rational process. In general use conclude and conclusion

Judge and judgment, as here compared are nearly guess.

2 Infer, imply are not always as strictly distinguished means to draw a conclusion from facts evidence premises statements or the like by deductive or inductive for in precise English only that which gives the ground for or permits an inference or which leads to a given conclusion can rightly be the subject as 'This doth infer the zeal I had to see him (Shak) Consider first that great Or bright infers not excellence (Milton), ' Matters were by no means so far advanced between the young people as Henchard s jealous grief inferred (Hardy) Many good writers of the present prefer imply to infer in this particular sense inference 1 Deduction conclusion judgment See under INFER

2 Inference illation, ratiocination come into comparison when they denote the process of arriving at conclusions from data or premises Inference in colloquial use often extended process or the passing by steps from one inference to another In present use it often carries the humorous connotation of tediousness or of logic chopping The same distinctions in implications are observable in the corresponding adjectives inferential, illative, and ratiocinative

Ana Deduction conclusion judgment (see under INFER 1) reasoning thinking speculation cogitation (see corresponding verbs at THINK) surmise conjecture (see under CONJECTURE v)

Con Intuition understanding (see REASON) assumption presumption presupposition (see under PRESUPPOSE)

3 *Implication

inferential Illative ratiocinative See under INFERENCE 2

Ana Hypothetical putative conjectural supposititious *supposed *theoretical speculative academic *implicit constructive virtual

Con *Explicit express definite categorical intuitive *instinctive proved demonstrated tried tested (see PROVE) infernal Infernal chthonian hellish, Hadean Tartarean Stygian agree in meaning of or characteristic of the abode of the dead Infernal, which is derived from a Latin word meaning subterranean in its strictest sense denotes of or characteristic of the underworld or regions inhabited by the earth gods and spirits of the dead Through confusion of pagan conceptions of the underworld with Jewish and Christian conceptions of hell as the abode of devils and a place of torment for the souls of the damned infernal has acquired connotations of horror torturing fiends and unendurable suffering abhorred fiend in the infernal regions is sent to torment me (Scott) Hellish comes close to the current meaning

(Shelley) Hadean Tartarean, and Stygian are used in poetry in place of infernal sometimes without any reference to the conception of Hades Tartarus and the Styx in classic mythology Very frequently Hadean is a

Ana *Fiendish devilish diabolical demoniacal damnable accursed cursed *execrable nefarious flagitious iniquitous villainous *vicious

Ant Supernal

infertile *Sterile barren impotent unfruitful

Ana *Dry arid impoverished exhausted, drained depleted (see DEPLETE)

Ant Fertile — Con Fecund fruitful prolific (see FERTILE) producing or productive bearing yielding (see corresponding verbs at BEAR) reproducing propagating breeding generating (see GENERATE) infest Infest, overrun beset come into comparison only when they are used in reference to disagreeable or noxious things and mean to make trouble because of their

ing) nevertheless the term is always derogatory "To poison vermin that infest his plants (Cowper) The idle rich who at present infest the older universities (B Russell) Overrun as here compared is often interchangeable with infest especially in the passive Usually it retains the implications of its literal sense and is therefore the precise word when the idea of running or spreading is to be conveyed, as the cellar is overrun with mice the garden is overrun with weeds Beset which in its primary sense denotes to set or stud has now more frequently the meaning to trouble through frequency and persistence and often connotes assailing or attacking as he was beset by enemies on every side She hurried at his words beset with fears (Keats)

abate

infidel Unbeliever *atheist freethinker agnostic deist

Ana Heathen *pagan paynim infinite Infinite, eternal, sempiternal boundless ... in meaning having and to his attributes in such applications it implies immeasurability or an incapacity for being estimated in extent duration or in any conceivable respect as numerals) is infinite (i e no one can set a limit number that can be indicated) an infinite decimal is one that cannot be brought to a termination such as a repeating (or recurring) decimal or a circulating decimal The total number of stars is supposed even by those who reject the idea of infinite extension to run into thousands of millions (Inge) In general and looser use infinite usually implies not only exceeding greatness or vastness but indefiniteness or seeming endlessness of extent as Chinese landscape [painting] is certainly pre-eminent in suggesting infinite horizons the look of ... so is not for ...) Eternal in ... each group its earliest and still prevailing sense implies neither beginning nor end in time it is therefore applied chiefly to God in the sense of being uncaused or uncreated and unending as The eternal God is thy refuge (Deuteronomy xxx i 27) Eternal Providence (Milton) It is also sometimes applied to things especially to those regarded as abstractions which are creations of the human and therefore finite mind for which no beginning is known or under present conditions is discoverable and for which no end can be foreseen or predicted as, to argue that matter is eternal the idea that the world is eternal is now seldom, if ever advanced If space is infinite and time eternal Mark murmured I am in infinity and I am in eternity (C Mackenzie) In some thinking eternal applies to that which is independent of or capable of being thought of without reference to human and finite concepts such as those of time and space as to think of heaven as a state rather than a place—a state too which is eternal in a deeper sense than that of unending time-succession (Inge) Equally common is the use of eternal in the sense of endless or everlasting (see EVERLASTING) when it applies to things which have a known or an acknowledged beginning in time as to enter into eternal life those dying unrepentant will suffer eternal punishment for their sins In nonreligious contexts this sense is frequent in hyperbolical or humorous use (as the staircase door opened with its eternal creak —Bennett) but it also applies to that which though it changes in appearance form or method never dies out as The tragedy of The Changeling [i.e. of the not naturally bad but irresponsible and undeveloped nature caught in the consequences of its own action] is an eternal tragedy (T S Eliot) Macaulay who has a special affinity for the eternal schoolboy (Inge) Sempiternal a bookish word is in origin at least an intensive of eternal with somewhat greater emphasis upon the continuity of the thing so described (as, All truth is from the sempiternal source Of Light Divine —Cowper he did not really believe that infinity was infinite or that the eternal was also sempiternal —Shaw) but as is often the case with intensives it is now chiefly a hyperbolical term (as, Dull dinners with the sempiternal saddle of mutton —J Jekyll) Boundless, except in recent scientific and mathematical use where it and infinite are employed as contrasted terms implies little more than an apparent lack of restrictions or bounds, or a capacity for extending expanding or increasing indefinitely it often applies to something which so far exceeds in range measure or amount what is usual for a thing of its kind that it staggers the human mind, as boundless wealth boundless impudence My bounty is as boundless as the sea (Shak) A boundless command of the rhetoric in which the vulgar express hatred and contempt (Macaulay) When that which drew from out the boundless deep Turns again home (Tennyson) In current mathematical and scientific usage boundless refers to a space (as represented by a closed curved line, or a spherical surface etc and without regard to its calculable extension or area) which has the property of permitting an object starting from any point in the space and proceeding by one mathematical law to return to the same point without being interrupted thus in the Einsteinian conception, physical space is boundless but not infinite since a ray of light assumed to travel along a curve rather than a straight line can conceivably return to its starting point after an estimated 500 billion years Illimitable also stresses a lack of bounds or limits, and may be used in place of boundless (as, an illimitable appetite —L Stephen) but it is often applied specifically to that (such as a distance) which can usually be measured in extent but which in the instance noted exceeds the capacity of human ingenuity or of any human instrument for measurement or determination of extent as, The heavens illimitable height (Spenser) the illimitable distances between the earth and some of the stars Uncircumscribed implies the lack of a determinable limit in any conceivable direction it applies to anything that extends or expands or seems to extend or expand in all directions in the manner of radii from the center of a circle as uncircumscribed freedom So arbitrary and uncircumscribed a Power (Charles I of England)

Ant Finite —Con Circumscribed limited restricted (see LIMIT v) *dependent conditional contingent relative adjective

infirm Feeble decrepit *weak frail fragile

Ana Debilitated disabled crippled (see WEAKEN) *sick ill

Ant Hale —Con *Strong sturdy stalwart stout *healthy robust sound infix *Implant inculcate instill inseminate

Ana *Set settle fix establish firm *enter introduce admit ingrain inoculate *infuse imbue inflame Fire kindle enkindle *light ignite

Ana *Inform inspire animate incense infuriate enrage (see ANGER v) exasperate provoke aggravate nettle *irritate

Ant Extinguish (a fire a passion) inflate Distend swell *expand amplify dilate.

Ana Enlarge *increase augment magnify aggrandize *exalt

Ant Deflate —Con *Contract compress shrink condense constrict inflated Inflated flatulent tumid turgid are here considered not only in their literal senses but also, and chiefly in their secondary senses especially as applied to persons their temperaments their language and their style Literally all agree in meaning filled with something insubstantial such as air or gas Inflated implies expansion by the introduction of air or gas or something equally lacking in substance to the point where the walls are stretched taut or tension is evident as an inflated tire, an inflated balloon. In its extended use inflated implies a stretching or expanding often by artificial or questionable means to a point not justified by reality or truth thus currency is said to be inflated when the amount in circulation far exceeds the amount normally necessary to meet the demands of trade and commerce one's ego is said to be inflated when one is puffed up with self-confidence and pride not warranted by one's ability or achievements a style may be described as inflated when it is far more pretentious or imposing than its subject matter warrants Flatulent in literal use is applied chiefly to persons or their organs affected by a condition (flatulence) where wind or gases generating in the alimentary canal cause distention of stomach or bowels In its extended use flatulent usually implies emptiness with the appearance of fullness or a lack of pith or substance as Flatulent with fumes of self applause (Young) A score or two of poems each more feeble and more flatulent than the last (Swinburne)

To this day he [Emerson] is the victim of gross misrepresentation by enthusiasts who read into him all sorts of flatulent bombast (Mencken) Tumid implies noticeable enlargement by swelling or bloating especially as a result of a morbid or abnormal condition as my thighs grow very tumid' (Johnson) So high as heaved the tumid hills [at the command of the Creator] so low Down sunk a hollow bottom broad and measured or restrained and perfectly in keeping with the thought The turgid speech And stately tone of moralists who boast As if l ke him of fabulous renown They were each An Orpheus and omnipotent in song (Cowper) The effects already show in French arch tecture—which is grow ng repulsive—and in French prose—which is growing turgid (Belloc) Ana Bombastic grandiloquent magniloquent aureate flowery * *showy nouns at Ant Pit

(Shelley)

terse succinct laconic inflection or inflexion Inflection (or inflexion), intonation accent are comparable when they designate a particular manner of employing the tones of the voice in speech Inflection implies change in pitch or tone it often suggests a variation expressive of emotion or sentiment and usually a momentary mood as it was not her words but her inflection that hurt. A slight write for the actors reckon upon their intonations their gestures (Quiller-Couch) That pecul ar and pleasant intonation that marks the speech of the Hebridean (W Black) In some languages (as Chinese) called tone languages fixed pitch or intonation distinguishes the various meanings of single words In a more specific sense intonation often (as intone always) implies reciting or speaking a psalm prayer or the like in a singing voice usually in monotone Intonation of that majestic iambic [Greek] verse whose measure would

Ant Flexible — Con *Elastic resil ent, supple, springy pliable pliant *plastic malleable duct le fluid *liquid 2 Inflexible Inexorable, obdurate, adamant adamantine come into comparison when they mean not to be moved from or changed in one s predeterm ned course or purpose All are appl cable to persons dec s ons, laws, and principles otherwise they vary in their applications. Inflexible usually implies firmly established principles rigidly adhered to, sometimes it connotes resolute steadfastness sometimes slavish conform ty ordains that the human race shall perish of fail u stops working (Shaw) It is also often appl ed to that which exists or happens of necessity or which cannot be avoided or evaded as the inexorable l mitations of

Ana *Rigid str ct rigorous stringent headstrong *unruly, ungovernable relentless, unrelenting *grim stubborn dogged stiff necked mul sh tible. — Con *Elastic resil ent expansive uoyant amenable tractable docile b ddable ENT)
n Influence authority prestige weight credit come into comparison when they mean power when the word impl es the effect or effects wh ch o person or thing insensibly has on another or the ascendancy which one person or thing similarly acqu res over another as every close friend has some influen e in shaping one s character or personality, he was not the like or to any of his writings or utterances that had the power to compel belief or to win acceptance In such cases the word usually imputed great learning great wisdom divine inspiration or the like to the person or his work By turning over authorities I have made familiar To me the blest infusions That dwell in vegetives in metals stones (Shak) In modern use authority is still applied to the person book or the like that is able to gain such credence or to inspire belief in its authoritativeness as do not cite this historian he is not an authority An economist should form an independent judgment on currency questions but an ordinary mortal had better follow authority (B Russell) From this use mainly but also from its other sense (see POWER 3) authority has come to be applied also to the power resident in any person or thing that is able because of his or its inherent qualities to win the devotion or allegiance of men and to gain (rather than exact) their obedience and belief as a book of manifest authority That personal authority [of Augustus] which far more than any legal or constitutional device was the true secret of his later power (Buchan) A doctrine that has acquired authority in our own time (S Alexander) "Some of the new philosophies undermine the authority of science as some of the older systems undermined the authority of religion (Inge) Prestige, in contrast with authority implies the power to gain ascendancy over the minds of men and to command their admiration for distinguished and superior performance or for conspicuous excellence in its kind Nothing more affects the prestige of a power than its dramatic and rapid defeat in the field (Belloc) Augustus sought to make of it [the Roman Senate] a true colleague and in every way to enhance its prestige (Buchan) "The almost magical prestige that had belonged to the original humanists (A Huxley) Weight denotes measurable influence especially in determining the acts of others as persons whose judgments have weight on the decisions of others Mrs. Hawthorne's authoritative air was beginning to have some weight with him (Arch Marshall) She seemed scarcely of any weight beyond a man's need of her youth and her gift of making men comfortable (E M Roberts) Credit (as here compared see also BELIEF 1) denotes influence that arises from one's reputation for inspiring confidence or admiration, or the like Buckingham resolved to employ all his credit in order to prevent the marriage (Hume) As it [the ballet] declined as an art so also it declined in credit and in popularity it became scarcely respectable even to admire dancing" (H Ellis)

Ana Driving or drive impelling or impulsion actuation (see corresponding verbs at MOVE) *power control dominion sway authority ascendancy *supremacy dominance (see corresponding adjective DOMINANT) influence, v *Affect sway impress touch strike

Ana *Move actuate drive impel stimulate, *provoke excite *stir arouse rouse *incline dispose predispose bias.

inform, v 1 Inform animate inspire, fire are synonyms when they mean to infuse into (a person or thing) a spirit a principle an idea a passion or the like, that gives (him or it) effective power or an urge to action or activity Sometimes especially in the last three words the idea of driving or actuating is so strong that it becomes their common denotation and the idea of infusion is merely a common connotation. To inform is to endow with a form or formative principle But in its philosophical earlier sense inform implies a concept of form as that element in a thing which makes it what it is generically or specifically (a man a tree a horse) as distinguished from the matter in which the form is embodied, in modern literary use it suggests a concept of form as the active principle of a thing or the spirit or quality that gives it its peculiar essential and often abiding character The inspiration of religion passed on to inform and subtly to perfume an art [Buddhist art] nominally concerned with the aspects of earth and sky wild creatures and wild flowers (Binyon) Everything that is made from without and by dead rules, and does not spring from within through some spirit informing it (Wilde) That which makes Chartres Cathedral the Song of Roland the Arthurian Legends great art and unique is the peculiar spiritual impulse which informed the time (R. A Cram) To animate is to endow with a soul or a principle of life or an impulse to action. Although animate is often used where inform is also possible it suggests far more than inform vitality and living energy as religion which is animated by faith and hope (Johnson) When that which is affected is a person or when motivation of action or transiency of impulse is to be implied animate is the required word as he was animated (not informed) with love for all men when the community is animated with anger against some heinous offence (S Alexander) his hatred of restraint animated his resistance to authority To inspire is to communicate to a person as if by breathing in power or energy in excess of that which he believes to be his own In its strictest sense the word usually implies both the operation of a supernatural power or of some inexplicable agency and an effect such as a spiritual illumination or a quickening of intellectual or imaginative activity or an exaltation of feeling Great artists know or believe that they are inspired from something outside themselves (S Alexander) That sublimated language used by the finest minds in their inspired moments (Hudson) We climb the mountains for their views and the sense of grandeur they inspire (Jefferies) In looser use inspire often implies indirect rather than inexplicable influence methods or source as in imparting knowledge arousing a feeling or the like, as teachers should inspire their pupils to work hard today's editorial on the mayor's policy was certainly inspired (that is, it does not represent the editor's views but those of someone in power) To fire is to animate or inspire so powerfully that one is inflamed with passion ardor enthusiasm or the like. Patient of constitutional control One step beyond the boundary of the laws Fires him at once in Freedom's glorious cause (Cowper) O how they fire the heart devout (Burns)

Ana *Infuse inoculate imbue leaven instill *implant inculcate inseminate enlighten *illuminate inflame fire enkindle kindle (see LIGHT v) endue endow (see DOWER)

Con Stultify atrophy *stunt.

2 Inform acquaint apprise advise notify, advertise agree in meaning to make one aware or cognizant of something One informs a person of something when one imparts knowledge of any sort but particularly of occurrences or of facts necessary to the understanding of a situation as to inform a person of his success in a competition the radio announcer informed his audience of the accident ten minutes after it happened Fyne told her that I was fully informed" (Conrad) Also one informs oneself (of on upon how why etc.) when by study or investigation one gathers the pertinent facts as, to inform oneself why the expedition was a failure He must inform himself upon Miss Mary Ferris's condition, if he would make himself pleasing to the family" (Deland) Inform in a more restricted use also carries the implication of talebearing or accusation. I shall not inform upon you It is not my business (Wilde) One acquaints a person with something when by introducing him to the experience of it or by imparting information concerning it one makes him familiar with it as In the first meeting of the class the teacher acquainted his pupils with the program of study Familiarity is even more strongly impl ed in the participial adjective acquainted than in the finite verb A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief (Isaiah liii 3) One apprises a person of something when by a message or sign one communicates something which is of interest or importance to him as to apprise one s employers of in public sentiment Oftentimes there is a suggestion of forewarning or counsel as the passengers were advised of the risk before the vessel left New York One notifies a person of something when one sends a notice or formal communication concerning a thing requiring his attention as to notify students of a change in the date of opening college the court clerk promised to notify the witnesses when to appear In commercial use advise is used in preference to notify when information is given by letter telegram cable or the like as please advise us when the shipment is made One advertises a person of or concerning something when one gives him information by way of warning or of formal notification This sense of ad ertise once common is now obsolescent Let me now add a short hint on the subject of another [event] of which we have been advertised by the same authority (Austen)

Ana *Communicate impart *teach instruct school discipline educate train *warn forewarn caution information Lore learning *knowledge science erudition scholarship

Ana *News tidings intelligence advice infraction *Breach violation transgression infringement trespass contravention Ana *Offense sin crime vice scandal slip lapse faux pas *error

Ant Observance

infrequent Infrequent uncommon scarce, rare occasional, sporadic are not close synonyms but they come into comparison because they agree in mean ng appearing happening or met with so seldom as to attract attention or to create a shortage That is infrequent which does not occur often especially within a given period of time or which does not recur except at very wide intervals of time or of space as tornadoes are

Santa Fé communication with that region was so infrequent that news traveled to Santa Fé from Europe more quickly than from Pike s Peak (Cather) That is uncommon wh ch does not occur or is not found ordinarily and which therefore is singular exceptional or extraordinary as smallpox is now uncommon in most parts of the United States In certain country d stricts scarce a bad harvest makes wheat scarce highly skilled mechanics are now scarce That is rare (as here compared see also CHOICE THIN) of which but few examples specimens or instances are found also the term often carries the implications of uncommon such as exceptional or extraordinary character as rare postage stamps rare books and first editions A perfect union of wit and judgment is one of the rarest th ngs in the world (Burke) Great men are scarce (to use the book guests he received in his grim old house (E Wharton) That is occasional which happens or is met with merely now and then Occasional more than any of the preceding terms implies irregularity or nonconformity to any rule barb that by its unexpectedness d d the more damage (Lucas) That is sporadic which has no cont nuous existence or continuity in its manifestat ons and wh ch torical facts by no means parallel, human sm has been sporadic but Christianity continuous (T S Eliot)

Ana *Exceptional s ngular unique *strange *irregular anomalous unnatural

Ant Frequent — Con *Usual customary accustomed ordinary *common familiar infringe Encroach trench entrench *trespass invade

Ana *Intrude obtrude butt in interlope violate break transgress (see corresponding nouns at BREACH) infringement *Breach infraction violation, trespass transgression contravention

Ana Encroachment invading or invas on entrenchment (see corresponding verbs at TRESPASS) intruding or intrusion obtruding or obtrusion (see corresponding verbs at INTRUDE) infuriate Enrage incense *anger madden.

Ana Provoke roil exasperate aggravate (see IRRITATE) outrage insult affront *offend infuse Infuse, suffuse imbue ingrain (or engrain inoculate leaven are here compared as meaning to introduce one thing into another so as to change or affect it heaven When I Under my burthen groan'd (Shak) He infused his own intrepid spirit into the troops (Gibbon) Unfortunately Okio [a Japanese temperament to infuse a infused with the skies incandescent sickly illum w ll in fact each group or nature that no part is left untouched or unaffected unlike infuse which it otherwise closely resembles imbue takes as its object the person or thing affected object (or when the verb is passive as its subject) the of a gentleman s code was deeply ingrained in him (E Wharton) The feeling is so deeply engrained in human nature (Max Müller) Inoculate (literally to introduce a disease germ virus or the like so that it an introduction of an idea an emotion a taste or the like by highly surreptitious or artificial means, in order to achieve a desired end less often it also implies a glories the splendours which veil it [religion] would melt like unsubstantial wreaths of smoke (A C Benson)

Ana. Impregnate saturate impenetrate *permeate pervade *inform inspire animate fire instill inculcate *implant inseminate infix.

ingeminate *Repeat iterate rei ingenious Cunning *clever adr

Ana Inventing or inventive creati ering (see corresponding verbs at i feat handy deft skillful adept ficient.

☞ Do not confuse ingenious with ingenuous *Natural simple n artless.

Ana Open, *frank candid plain *childlike childish *straightforward aboveboard *sincere unfeigned

Ant Disingenuous cunning — Con Stealthy covert furtive surreptitious underhand (see SECRET) wily artful crafty tricky foxy *sly

☞ Do not confuse ingenuous with ingenious ingrain or engrain *Infuse suffuse imbue inoculate leaven

Ana Impregnate saturate *permeate pervade interpenetrate impenetrate instill infix inculcate *implant inseminate incorporate embody (see IDENTIFY) ingrained *Inherent constitutional essential intrinsic

Ana Confirmed *inveterate deep-seated deep-rooted d implanted inseminated (see IMPLANT) lated (see INFUSE) *superficial external outward *outer de extraneous, *extrinsic alien foreign

*Disarming insinuating insinuative ious *subservient servile fawning n Constituent component *element ctor

Ana *item detail particular

Con Compound composite amalgam *mixture admixture blend Ingress *Entrance entry entree access.

Inhabitant, denizen, resident, citizen are ed as meaning one whose home or dwelling definite location Of these terms inhabitant specifically to a naturalized alien (as Charles [I] seemed ambitious of making English denizens of every man of genius in Europe —I D Israeli) Even when substituted in literary use for inhabitant denizen retains

Ana analogous words. Ant an matters? In reference to a country resident is preferred to inhabitant as a designation of an alien living in that country for a time and regarded as subject to certain taxes An al en actually present in the United States country) applies to a resident of a city or town especially to one of full age who enjoys the right to vote and other privileges as to call a mass meeting of citizens to protest the proposed legislation.

inherent. Inherent ingrained, intrinsic, essential constitutional come into comparison as meaning being a indestructible qualities of the human mind

[Arabs] to the cond tion of static lethargy in which they now find themselves (A Huxley) That is ingrained (originally dyed a fast red now technically dyed in the fiber or yarn as distinguished from the woven fabric) which is wrought into the very fiber or

tions or conditions that affect its usefulness value significance or the like as "When the subject has no intrinsic dignity it must necessarily owe its attractions to artificial embellishments (Johnson) A fine big bird he [the turkey-cock] is but there is no intrinsic beauty about him (Jefferies) The knowledge of geographical facts is useful but without intrinsic intellectual value (B Russell) That is essential (see also ESSENTIAL 2 NEEDFUL) which is an element of a thing s essence and therefore indissolubly involved in its very nature or body or m ... given ... by nature as a cons ... infirmity, his vigor is constitutional thoughtful ones will assure you that happiness and unhappiness are constitutional and have nothing to do with money (Shaw)

Ana *Innate inborn inbred congenital *inner inward internal natural typical normal *regular integrated or integral (see correspond ng verb INTEGRATE)

Ant Adventitious — Con *Accidental fortuitous incidental extraneous foreign alien *extrinsic and then transmitted by inheritance in succeeding generations (Darwin) Heredity may be used in place of inheritance but more often it designates the biological law in accordance with which such transmission takes place as These two heredity and environment are the master influences of the organic world (H Drummond) inherited. Hereditary inborn inbred *innate, congenital

Ana Transmitted conveyed (see CARRY) generated, engendered bred (see GENERATE) Con Acquired gained obtained gotten (see GET) inhibit 1 *Forbid prohibit interdict ban enjoin

Ana *Prevent preclude obviate avert ward off debar rule out, *exclude *hinder impede obstruct, block bar

Ant Allow — Con *Let permit suffer leave

2 *Restrain curb check snaffle bridle.

Ana *Suppress repress *prevent forestall *arrest, check

...ate (sense 2) activate (sense 2)

Savage barbarous, *fierce truculent, ...ruel fell

...ess ruthless (see affirmative nouns at PITY) ... malignant *malicious despiteous merciless, relentless unrelenting implacable *grim *fiendish diabolical devilish

Ant Humane — Con Benevolent humanitarian, *charitable altruistic, philanthropic compassionate, *tender

Nefarious flagitious *vicious villainous, ... he nous *out ... rreligious ... *moral eth cal initiate, v 1 *Begin commence start inaugurate.

Ana *Found establish organize institute

Ant Consummate — Con Effect fulfill, execute, accompl sh achieve *perform *enforce implement.

2 Initiate, induct inaugurate, install (or instal), invest agree in meaning to put one through the processes ... regarded as essent al to doctrination in its mysteries or mysterious pseudo-mysterious) rites or ceremonies in the introduction of new members as to initiate the newly elected members of a college fraternity to initiate young people in the elements of physical science (T H Huxley) to initiate a new reporter into the secrets of successful news gathering Induct may often be used in place of initiate especially when introduction under guidance is also implied as to induct a person into a new position or into the duties of a new post on. But induct as well as inaugurate, install, and invest may imply a formal or ceremonious endowing of a person with the powers and prerogatives of an office or post as to induct the new governor of a colony Induct is used technically of clergymen who are put in possession of a ... who are established in ... as to ... group.

president of the university Install etymologically implies an establishing in a stall or seat, in both literal and figurative use it implies induction into an office associated with a seat as to install the officers of a society to install a canon of a cathedral to install a bishop as the archbishop of his new diocese The term also may be used in reference to persons who are formally or comfortably seated (as, to install the guest of honor in the most comfortable of their chairs to install the tottering old lady in a chair by the fireside), it is also the only one of these terms which may be used (in the meaning here discussed) in reference to things as well as to persons (as to install new machinery in a fac light fixt

see CLOTH

other ins

powers of ... implies a ceremony shall)

Ana introduce admit, *enter

Con *Eject oust expel dismiss *exclude eliminate disbar blackball shut out divest *strip initiative Referendum *mandate plebiscite injunction *Command order bidding behest mandate dictate.

Ana. Instruction direction charging or charge (see corresponding verbs at COMMAND) warning (see WARN) precept rule, regulation, *law statute ordinance canon.

injure Injure, harm, hurt, damage, impair, mar, spoil agree in meaning to affect someone or something so as to rob it of soundness strength or perfection or to reduce its value usefulness, or effectiveness Injure, in its earliest and still not uncommon sense implies the doing of an injustice or the wronging of another as by robbing him of his good name of a rightful possession or the like In this sense it often suggests intent or knowledge on the part of one that injures as, "When have I injured thee? when done thee wrong? (Shak) I would not injure him so much as to suppose the truth of it possible (Austen) In later use the verb came to imply the infliction not of injustice but of anything detrimental to one's appearance health success comfort, or the like as a bullet injured his eye Is it best for you to injure your prospects for such a voluptuous, idle woman as that?" (Hardy) Industrialism has been very injurious to art may it not have injured religion also?" (Inge) Harm often carries a stronger implication of inflicting annoyance pain suffering or loss than injure as the

... it's damnable to have to hurt the people we love (R Macaulay) a limitless desire to hurt and humiliate (H G Wells) Damage implies an injury that results in lowered value or involves loss in effectiveness attractiveness, efficiency or the like as, his automobile was damaged in a collision the frost damaged the late crops her fair skin little damaged by time" (R. Macaulay) "Whatever psycho-analysts may say the parental instinct is essentially different from the sex instinct and is damaged by the intrusion of emotions appropriate to sex (B Russell) Impair, the strength of a good argument, his value as a candidate has been impaired by his hysterical attacks on his opponent) or a weakening as of a function or power of functioning (as his eye was injured and his vision impaired) Kindness that left an impression on my heart not yet impaired" (De Quincey) Religion always a principle of energy in this new people is no way worn out or impaired (Burke) Mar implies the infliction of Dickinson) Spoil, as here compared (see also DECAY INDULGE) carries a stronger implication of ruin than mar for it suggests the operation of something that not

... the obvious punishment is banishment (B Russell)

Ana *Deface disfigure, disfeature *deform distort contort *afflict, torture torment *maim cripple mutilate mangle batter *abuse ill treat maltreat outrage mistreat misuse

Ant Aid. — Con. *Help assist *benefit profit avail bestead preserve conserve *save injury. 1 Injury, hurt, damage, harm, mischief are here or causes a partial or entire loss of something of value as, an injury to one's eyes to one's feelings, to one's reputation to forgive an injury an injury to a tree to a watch. The very essence of civil liberty consists in the right of every individual to claim the protection of laws whenever he receives an injury (Ch. Just Marshall) Hurt applies literally to a physical injury such as a wound a lesion a contusion or the like that results from a hit a stab or other blow as Get him to bed and let his hurt be look'd to" (Shak) Figuratively hurt applies chiefly to an act or result that involves pain suffering or loss thus, a person whose rights as an heir have been violated may be said to suffer an injury but not a hurt a person whose reputation has been damaged by a false rumor has suffered both an injury to his busi honour loss of time travail expense off" (Shak) Harm (usually without an able to any evil that is or may be suffered or sustained claim that the Divine revelation has been supplanted or even added to but that it has been amplified —C Mackenzie) or to the person or thing which serves as a cause of harm vexation or the like (as This power [of erecting such buildings as one pleases on ones own property] may we presume be restrained if exercised so as to produce a public mischief —Ch Just Marshall) Ana *Distress suffering agony misery *pain pang violation transgression trespass infringement (see BREACH) detriment (see corresponding adjective at PERNICIOUS) *evil ill bale 2 Wrong tort *injustice grievance Ana See those at INJURY 1 injustice Injustice, injury, wrong, tort grievance are comparable though not strictly synonymous, terms when they denote an act that inflicts undeserved dam against injustice because he was a lover of justice —Bliss Perry) Injury, in this sense chiefly a legal term applies to any injustice to a person for which the law allows an action to recover compensation or specific property or both thus a person whose payment for services is wrongfully withheld suffers an injury in the

which are punishable according to the criminal code But in general use wrong differs little from injustice except in carrying a stronger connotation of flagrancy or of seriousness as to endure wrongs from their oppressors over a long period we are steel to the very back Yet wrung with wrongs more than our backs can bear (Shak) Tort is now almost exclusively a legal term referable to any injury (as defined in law) except a breach of contract it therefore always suggests a civil proceeding as to bring an action in tort to get a judgment for tort Grievance which is a general rather than a legal term applies to any circumstance or condition that in the opinion of those affected constitutes a wrong or that in a lighter sense gives one just grounds for complaint as They sent to the King a statement of their grievances (T Keighlley) In an early state of society any kind of taxation is apt to be looked on as a grievance (Freeman) Ana Damage hurt harm mischief *injury infringement trespass transgression violation, infraction *breach unfairness inequitableness (see affirmative adjectives at FAIR) Con *Justice equity innate. Innate inborn, inbred congenital, hereditary, inherited are not always synonymous terms but they often used without distinction But innate (opposed to acquired) is frequently synonymous in a broad sense with inherent essential or constitutional not only be-as a result of its constitution and are therefore found wherever a mind exists) but because it may apply to elements or qualities, such as virtues or defects which arise out of the very nature or character of a thing that has no life and therefore literally no birth (as the innate defect of this plan the innate tendency of a dictatorship to overreach itself) I do not believe that a sense of justice is innate but I have been astonished to see how quickly it can be created (B Russell) On the other natural as an inbred love of freedom of superiority those inbred sentiments which are the true supporters of all liberal and manly morals" (Burke) Congenital, in current English applies chiefly to something which dates from the birth of the person animal or plant concerned as, congenital hip disease congenital blindness congenital deafness "the theory that what was acquired habit in the ancestor may be congenital and hereditary are regarded as synonyms are however clearly distinguishable for congenital implies acquirement (as of a disease or an organic the skin the color of one s hair or of one s eyes is h tary

Ana Constitutional *inherent intrinsic essential ingrained *instinctive intuitive natural typical *regular normal *native indigenous Ant Acquired — Con *Accidental adventitious incidental fortuitous assumed affected feigned simulated (see ASSUME) cultivated fostered nurtured (see NURSE)

Inner Inner inward, Inside, interior internal intestine (or intestinal) are here compared as adjectives meaning being or placed within something Although in many cases interchangeable they are more or less restricted in their applications and therefore clearly distinguished in their implications. Inner and less frequently inward may be used when spatial relations are implied but inner often applies to that which is farther within or nearer the center (as "[He] thrust them into the inner prison"—Acts xvi 24 an inner room the inner bark of a tree) and inward often applies to that which is hidden within (as the inward organs of the body the inward part of an apple is the core) or to that which moves to a point within (as inward mails the inward curve of a scroll) Both words apply also to that which is mental or spiritual frequently with the added implication of something intimate secret, or inaccessible as, "the sense By which thy inner nature was apprised Of outward shows" (Shelley) the inner life the Inner Light (in Quaker doctrine a divine and guiding presence in the soul of each person) "Though our outward man perish yet the inward man is renewed day by day" (2 Corinthians iv 16) "that inward eye Which is the bliss of solitude" (Wordsworth) Inside is used chiefly of spatial relations (as, an inside seat the inside track) but it may be used with reference to persons who are so placed in their work or who have such contacts that they may be said to be figuratively inside a place or group (thus, inside work implies a contrast with field or road work inside knowledge of a negotiation implies participation to some extent in that negotiation so, inside employees to have inside information of what is going on in a club) Interior and internal commonly suggest more abstract or technical less intimate relations than inner and inward Interior frequently implies contrast with the exterior or outer limits of the thing itself thus the interior features of a country are by implication opposed to those of the coast or boundaries interior decoration (as a profession) deals with the decoration and furnishing of the inside of a house or other building rather than with its outside one's interior life is one's life as expressed in thoughts and aspirations rather than in outward activities. Internal implies contrast with that which lies beyond or outside of the outer limits of a thing thus internal evidence of a poem's authorship is gained from a study of the poem itself rather than from outside sources the internal affairs of a country are its domestic as opposed to its foreign affairs (but cf secretary of the interior a cabinet official who has charge of internal affairs) internal medicine is that branch of medicine dealing with the diagnosis and treatment of diseases affecting the inward organs such as the heart lungs, stomach liver etc Intestine (or the rarer intestinal) as here compared is a close synonym of internal applicable in current use only to that which may otherwise be described as domestic or civil (as opposed to foreign) with however the connotation of an evil or mischievous or sinister nature as intestine difficulties in France were largely responsible for the defeat of that country in 1940 an intestine or intestinal (i e a civil) war

Ana Central middle focal nuclear (see corresponding nouns at CENTER) intimate close *familiar intrinsic constitutional essential *inherent *instinctive intuitive deep-seated deep-rooted (see INVETERATE)

Ant Outer — Con Outward outside exterior external (see OUTER) innuendo *Insinuation

Ana. Hinting or hint intimation suggestion (see corresponding verbs at SUGGEST) *implication, inference allusion (see corresponding verb at REFER) inoculate *Infuse, imbue ingrain leaven suffuse

Ana Impregnate saturate, interpenetrate impenetrate *permeate pervade introduce admit *enter instill inculcate, infix, inseminate, *implant inordinate *Excessive immoderate exorbitant, extreme extravagant

Ana *Irrational unreasonable *supererogatory wanton uncalled for gratuitous *superfluous surplus extra.

Ant Ordinate (rare) temperate — Con. *Moderate restrained curbed checked inhibited (see RESTRAIN) *due rightful, condign *fair just equitable inquest. Investigation, probe *inquiry inquisition research.

Ana Examination, inspection, scrutiny audit (see under SCRUTINIZE) questioning interrogation catechizing examining (see corresponding verbs at ASK) inquire or enquire Query question *ask, interrogate speer catechize quiz examine Con Reply *answer respond rejoin retort inquiry or enquiry Inquiry (or enquiry), inquisition, investigation inquest probe research are here compared as meaning a search for truth knowledge or information Inquiry is the most general of these terms applicable to any such search regardless of the means (questioning observation experimentation etc) used or of the end in view as, a letter of inquiry to address an inquiry to the proper authorities to make inquiries about a sick friend "The passion for pure knowledge is to be gratified only through the scientific method of inquiry" (C W Eliot) "the True which is the goal of all scientific and all philosophical inquiry" (Inge) "a primitive but effective police inquiry" (T S Eliot) Inquisition ordinarily carries heightened implications of searchingness and of penetration far below the surface to uncover what is concealed or withheld as to be subjected to an inquisition into one's motives "the nicest inquisition of the microscope" (Burke) The term, however is chiefly applied to a judicial inquiry aiming to unearth facts or conditions to support suspicions, charges or the like often, because it is applied historically both to a body of ecclesiastical (or sometimes, civil) officials engaged in ferreting out heretics or heresy especially in the late Middle Ages and in the Reformation period and to methods of inquiry pursued by such a body (as for example the Spanish Inquisition) the term not only in its specific sense but even in its general sense connotes relentless pursuit of a clue or of a suspect and sometimes merciless and ruthless persecution "When, as becomes a man who would prepare For such an arduous work, I through myself Make rigorous inquisition the report Is often cheering" (Wordsworth) "What shall I do? Cenci must find me here and I must bear The imperious inquisition of his looks As to what brought me hither" (Shelley) Investigation applies to an inquiry which has for its aim the uncovering of the facts and the establishment of the truth In very precise use it implies a systematic tracking down of something that one hopes to discover or needs to know if true as an investigation of the causes of the prolonged depression the bank never employs a clerk or teller without an investigation of his habits and record senatorial committees of investigation Inquest is now used rarely even in a poetic or rhetorical context in place of inquiry or inquisition for it is commonly a legal term applying to an investigation by a jury and judge and specifically to one conducted by a coroner and jury in order to determine the cause of a death when there is good ground for suspecting other than natural causes as when the rumors of murder became rife the body was exhumed and an inquest held Consequently in general use the term usually applies to an investigation that has some of the characteristics of a coroner's inquest such as the determination of the grounds for an accusation or suspicion as, "Remember ing this [Ben Jonson s creative power] we turn to Mr Gregory Smith s objection—that Jonson s characters lack the third d mension have no l fe out of the theatri cal ex stence in which they appear—and demand an inquest (T S Eliot) Probe, wh ch is chiefly an Amer can sm in th s sense appl es to an invest gation that searches deeply and extens vely with the intent to detect study especially of actual cond tions or of primary sources of information In precise use, it is restricted to inquiries or investigations carried on by scientists, historians and other scholars especially for the sake of uncover ng new kno vledge of getting at the facts when these are not kno vn or of d scovering laws of nature the popular tendency to use it for any study lead ng to the writ ng of a résumé of facts or laws already known is consequently decried Research has sho vn and practice has establ shed the futil ty of the charge that it was a usurpation when this Court undertook to declare an Act of Congress unconstitutional (Justice Holmes) Scient sts who had done d stinctive work in leprosy la d down a set of principles for the guidance of leprosy research (V Heiser)

Ana Question ng interrogat on catechiz ng (see ASK) examination inspect on scrutiny aud t (see under SCRUTINIZE) grilling (see AFFLICT) inquisition Inquest *inquiry probe investigation research Ana See those at INQUIRY inquisitive *Curious prying snoopy nosy

Ana *Impert nent intrusive meddlesome interfering meddling intermeddling (see MEDDLE)

Ant Incurious — Con *Indifferent unconcerned aloof detached un nterested *dis nterested TRESPASS) *entrance entry ingress.

insane Insane mad crazy crazed demented deranged lunatic maniac (or maniacal) wood non compos mentis are here compared ch efly in their general or such unsoundness of m n l that one does not recognize one s o vn cond t on or is not responsible for one s actions as to be adjudged insane after a per od of observat on In more general use insane impl es utter folly or irra t onal ty the person (or more often the act or utterance) so described is by impl cat on governed by bl nd passion senselessness or the l ke as Day after day he would seek his dear m stress, pour insane hopes suppl

(etymologically broken or shattered) often, especially in its oldest sense suggests a breakdown especially a complete mental breakdown such as may result from illness emotion such as anxiety grief joy desire exc tement or the like as the lady in the gallery is half crazy w h anxiety for St. George (Shaw) Somebody had shot a squirrel and he took on about it as though he had lost a child I said then he was crazy (S Anderson) As appl ed to things such as schemes projects notions, or the like grief he seems crazed of late Demented and deranged are less colloquial than the preced ng words and less deter oration of the mental powers (as there was now no doubt that the s ck man was demented) derang d (cf derangement under ABERRATION 2) suggest ng a loss of mental balance or a state of mental d sorder resulting from a functional disturbance of the brain or nervous system (as he was temporar ly deranged by the shock Lunatic is usually far wider in its range of appl cation inferior dramatic poet to write poetry when he has a lunatic character to speak it because he is less tied down to relevance and ord nary sense (T S Eliot) Maniac comes closer to mad for it commonly (but not compos mentis (Latin for not sound of mind) is a legal term which specifies a state but does not define the particular cond tion or kind of mental unsoundness It espec ally in its shortened form non compos s often used colloqu ally w th s m lar indefin teness

Ana *Irrational unreasonable d stracted bewildered (see PUZZLE v)

Ant Sane — Con Sens ble jud cious, *wise sap ent, prudent insanity Insanity lunacy psychosis mania dementia lasting S nce in law a person s san ty or insan ty is an issue when he is charged with a crime or when he tantamount to proof of his inability to act rationally and to understand the nature of his act and its natural consequences in affecting his rights obligations and liabilities In general use insanity is commonly distinguished from mental deficiency and from neuroses and is applied chiefly to disorders involving loss of mind or mental derangement Lunacy, a term derived from the adjective lunatic still carries some suggestion of the implication inherent in the earliest meaning of lunatic —that of recurring periods dependent on changes of the moon. In popular use it often applies to a form of insanity that comes occasionally and manifests itself in madness and fury the term therefore often implies spells of lucidity as, The terms of our estate may not endure Hazard so near us as doth hourly grow Out of his lunacies" (Shak) ' It's the tangle of good and badness It's the lunacy linked with sanity Makes up and mocks humanity! (A Stringer) In Great Britain lunacy was originally and still is to a certain extent used in place of insanity in law and in practically the same sense as that given for insanity as, a lunacy commission Psychosis is the psychiatric term for any mental disease It is preferred to insanity because of its lack of legal connotations, and to lunacy because of legal and popular connotations Mania is now used in medicine and psychiatry for one of the spells of excitement or mental derangement that characterize certain mental diseases (for fuller treatment see MANIA 2) Dementia is also a technical term of psychiatry implying a sharp contrast with mental deficiency and applicable to any condition or disease that outwardly manifests a marked mental deterioration It therefore covers practically all mental diseases that involve organic deterioration not only those manifesting themselves in spells of excitement but those manifesting themselves in apathy depression flightiness split personality (schizophrenia) and the like

Ana Alienation derangement *aberration frenzy delirium, *mania hysteria.

Ant Sanity

inscrutable *Mysterious, arcane

Ana Profound abysmal *deep baffling balking thwarting frustrating foiling (see FRUSTRATE) hidden concealed secreted (see HIDE) enigmatic cryptic dark *obscure vague mystifying perplexing puzzling (see PUZZLE v)

Con Obvious plain clear manifest *evident patent inseminate *Implant inculcate instill infix

Ana *Introduce interject insinuate, insert impregnate interpenetrate impenetrate saturate *permeate pervade *scatter *distribute dispense

Ant Uproot — Con Eradicate deracinate extirpate *exterminate wipe out insensate Besotted *fond infatuated

Ana Fatuous asinine foolish silly (see SIMPLE) *stupid dense crass dull dumb *irrational, unreasonable

Con Sensible sane judicious *wise prudent sapient sage *rational reasonable *intelligent quick witted knowing alert insensible 1 Insensible, insensitive impassible anesthetic (or anaesthetic) agree in meaning unresponsive to stimuli or to external influences. Insensible usually implies total unresponsiveness and therefore unawareness or unconsciousness, caused by any of a number of things, such as blunted powers of sensation obtuseness of mind apathy or complete absorption in something else as insensible to fatigue to pleasure and to pain (Macaulay) so engrossed in his work that he was insensible of the flight of time Vulgar constitutions insensible of a thousand things that fret and gall delicate people (Berkeley) ' This Court can be insensible neither to the magnitude nor delicacy of this question (Ch Just Marshall) Insensitive, on the other hand implies sluggishness in response or less than normal susceptibility, more specifically it suggests dullness rather than acuteness of sensation or perception thickness rather than thinness of skin callousness rather than sympathy or compassion as, an ear insensitive to changes of pitch, he was insensitive to all kinds of discourtesy' (Joyce) insensitive to the misery of others Their genius for prose is a possession which involves an incapacity for poetry an insensitiveness to what is intimately poetic (Brownell) Impassible, in its historic and precise sense implies absence of response because of incapacity for feeling or suffering Originally derived from theology where it was applied chiefly to the resurrected body united to its soul after the Last Judgment the word is now rarely used except as confused with impassive or in reference to persons who by discipline have conquered the normal human susceptibility to pain or suffering (as, the Hindu striving for Nirvana renders himself impassible) or in reference to things in contrast with persons (or creatures) thought of as beings who through necessity of nature suffer pain or are susceptible to injury The language of strategy and politics is designed to make it appear as though wars were not fought by individuals .but either by impersonal and therefore wholly non moral and impassible forces or else by personified abstractions (A Huxley) Anesthetic implies a deadening of the mind or senses (literally by chloroform ether or the like, figuratively by any agency having a similar effect) and usually an induced rather than a natural insensitiveness The intelligentsia neither as anaesthetic to ideas as the plutocracy on the one hand nor as much the slaves of emotion as the proletariat on the other (Mencken)

Ana Obtuse *dull blunt *impassive apathetic phlegmatic stolid stoic *hardened indurated callous engrossed absorbed *intent rapt

Ant Sensible (to or of something) — Con Conscious *aware, cognizant alive, awake impressed affected influenced touched (see AFFECT)

2 *Imperceptible impalpable intangible inappreciable imponderable

Ana Tenuous rare slight slender (see THIN adj) attenuated extenuated diluted rarefied (see THIN v) *subtle subtile

Ant Sensible palpable — Con *Perceptible tangible appreciable ponderable insensitive *Insensible, impassible anesthetic

Ana *Hardened indurated callous *indifferent unconcerned aloof incurious *impassive stoic apathetic phlegmatic stolid

Ant Sensitive — Con Susceptible subject prone open exposed *liable allergic hypersensitive (see corresponding nouns at SUSCEPTIBILITY) responsive *tender compassionate insert, v *Introduce interpolate intercalate insinuate interpose interject.

Ana *Intrude obtrude, interlope infix instill inculcate *implant *enter admit

Ant Abstract extract — Con Disengage *detach prescind withdraw *remove draw inside, adj Interior internal intestine *inner inward

Ant Outside — Con Exterior external *outer outward insight Penetration acumen clairvoyance divination *discernment discrimination perception.

Ana Intuition understanding *reason comprehension apprehension (see under APPREHEND) appreciation understanding (see corresponding verbs at UNDERSTAND) perspicaciousness, sagacity, shrewdness (see corresponding adjectives at SHREWD) Ant Obtuseness

insinuate. 1 *Introduce, insert, interject, interpolate, intercalate, interpose Ana. *Infuse, inoculate, imbue, leaven instill, inseminate, inculcate, infix, *implant 2 Intimate hint, *suggest, imply Ana Allude, advert, *refer impute, *ascribe Con Voice, utter, *express vent, air, broach declare, *assert, affirm, aver, avouch, avow insinuating, insinuative. *Disarming ingratiating Ana Winning gaining (see GET) oily unctuous, soapy sleek, *fulsome blandishing wheedling, cajoling (see COAX) politic, bland, diplomatic, smooth, *suave he ever been a spy himself? No, he scorned the base remarks; in both cases the term definitely implies a inane come into comparison when they mean devoid of qualities which give spirit character or substance to a indifferent You have so much animation which is exactly what Miss Andrews wants for I must confess there is something amazingly insipid about her" (Austen) Happiness is a wine of the rarest vintage and seems insipid to a vulgar taste" (L P Smith) 'The insipid veracity with which Crabbe used to report some ment, flat as the lees and dregs of wine' (Lowes) That is jejune which is so devoid of substance or nutritive quality that it cannot satisfy the appetite (as the jejune diet of the very poor), the word is occasionally used with

(C Mackenzie) 'Naturalism is not science but a jejune and self-contradictory philosophy' (Inge) That is banal which is so commonplace or so trite that it lacks all freshness or power to stimulate or appeal and strikes one as flat or jejune It often also carries one or more of various connotations such as vulgarity, tastelessness, pedestrianism, triviality, or platitudinism 'A simple person marvelously protected from vulgarity and the banal' (T. E Brown) 'Just the sort of banality you know, one does come out with' (Arnold) 'Mark found

(a somewhat colloquial term) in which the essential or characteristic qualities are so weak or diluted that it strikes one as extremely insipid or vapid, as weak and

Ant. Sapid zestful — Con. *Pungent, piquant, po...

...ROVOKE).

...olent. Arrogant overbearing supercilious, disdainful haughty lordly See PROUD Ana. Domineering *masterful imperious peremptory imperative pompous pretentious ostentatious (see SHOWY) *dictatorial magisterial scornful, contemptuous (see corresponding nouns under DESPISE, *) Ant. Deferential — Con. Submissive (see TAME) courteous polite, *civil

...olvency Insolvency bankruptcy, receivership ... they are not ... designate one ... stitution, or a realizable assets as the estate was legally declared insolvent unless the members pay their dues immediately the organization faces insolvency Bankruptcy is the state of an insolvent person or business that is bankrupt, that is in the position of having his or its property administered under the law for the benefit of the creditors Originally bankruptcy was a state into which a trader who committed or was suspected of committing fraudulent acts was forced on cred tors who wished use and as a r Britain and the the nineteenth insolvent person that of another are to treat all c discharge of the like bankruptcy

of a person or bu it may or may not imply insolvency but it always implies that the property is subject to litigation. Such property may be the estate of an incompetent or the assets of a business being liquidated of a partnership being d ssolved or of a corporation undergo ng reorganization but it is perhaps more commonly the assets of a business which finds itself not necessarily insolvent but in a state of serious financial embarrassment Failure (a popular term) is commonly appl ed to the discontinuance of a business brought about by insolvency or bankruptcy suspension (also a popular term) to the temporary discontinuance of a business brought about by its insolvency or by its being under receivership

Ant Solvency

inspect *Scrutinize examine scan audit

Ana Survey view observe notice (see SEE) probe penetrate (see ENTER) inquire interrogate question speer catechize (see ASK) inspection Examination scrutiny scanning aud t See under SCRUTINIZE v

Ana Investigation probe inquest *inquiry inquisition research surveillance *oversight supervision.

inspiration Inspiration enthusiasm afflatus fury, furor (or furore) frenzy (or phrenzy), especially when qual fied by divine or poetic come into comparison as the commonest terms in English designating the involuntary element in the arts of expression for which the artist holds a power outside himself responsible The words are often vaguely used even by good writers and their mean ngs have been so affected by the dominating theology philosophy or opinion of the age that it is almost imposs ble to fix them Inspiration, in discriminat ng use wh ch respects its etymology and its historical development implies a preternatural enl ghtening and quickening of the mind and connotes, especially when used by religious persons a supernatural influence such as the Holy Sp r t Among such men there remains a bel ef in what is vaguely called inspiration They know by hard experience that there are days when their ideas flow freely and clearly and days when they are dammed up damnably (Mencken) Oftentimes from its use in connection with the authorship of the Scriptures inspirat on implies supernatural or supranatural communication of knowledge Has the highest aspect of Greek relig on ever been better expressed than by Wordsworth himself to whom it came by inspiration and not from books? (Inge) Enthusiasm a word derived from Greek which is etymolog cally the equivalent of the Latin word inspiration was used in the sense here considered chiefly from the Renaissance to the eighteenth century It characteristically implies an infusion of the divine power which quently it preachers, e new religion their metho acquired co
even lunacy
real feeling and Enthusiasm a false one (Shaftesbury) Afflatus, now a bookish word in most precise use applies to the inspiring influence rather than to the process or its effects. The artists and poets who but once in their lives had known the divine afflatus and touched the high level of the best" (H James) In loose use it as the preceding terms often names a quality rather than an influence or an operation There must be the inspiration the enthusiasm the afflatus the glow and they are here in S dney s tractate" (Saintsbury) Fury, furor, and frenzy all emphasize the emotional excitement that attends artistic creation and the tendency of the artist to be carried out of himself Fury and furor found most often in the phrases poetic fury or furor (especially the Latin furor poeticus) and divine fury do not except in loose or humorous use imply extreme ag tation they characteristically connote profound ecstasy induced by the poet s vision (or sometimes, conception) They are so beloved of the Gods, that whatsoever they write proceeds of a divine fury (Sidney) By turns they felt the glowing Mind Disturb d del ghted rais d refin d Filled with Fury rapt inspir d (Collins) Frenzy usually impl es agitation rather than rapture and stresses the imaginative or inventive element in creation more than any of the others. Sometimes it does not even connote an extraneous influence. The poet s eye in a fine frenzy rolling Doth glance from heaven to earth from earth to heaven (Shak)

Ana Enlightenment illumination (see corresponding verbs at ILLUMINATE) *ecstasy rapture transport *revelation, vision apocalypse prophecy inspire Animate *inform fire

Ana Enlighten *illuminate quicken stimulate excite galvanize *provoke activate energize *vitalize endue endow (see DOWER) in spite of *Notwithstanding despite.

install Induct inaugurate invest *initiate instance, n Instance, case, illustration, example sample, specimen agree in meaning a concrete thing which has or manifests the qualities, characters or nature of the type the class the group or the like Instance applies to any individual (person or thing) brought forth in support or disproof of a general statement (as He [T H Green] claims that great men have been determinative of the course of things in so far as their work was the vehicle of larger forces. His instance is Napoleon —S Alexander) or as a means of indicating the character of a genus species, or the like (as this novel is a good instance of his best work) Case (etymologically a happen ng or occurrence) as here considered applies only to an act situation, condition event or the like that shows the occurrence or the existence of something which is being considered studied investigated or dealt with as a whole or in general or that exhibits it in actual operation as to cite cases of br bes given as payments for services never performed students of the effects of poverty now base their conclusions on cases actually investigated there has been no case of malaria in this section for three years the professor cited the case of the Jukes family as an instance of the relation of heredity to crime immorality disease and pauperism Illustration applies only to an instance or a case adduced or cited as a means of throwing light upon what has been explained or discussed in general terms, as, to give several illustrations of the use of a word in a particular sense, Matthew Arnold used Milton's lines 'which cost Ceres all that pain To seek her through the world' as an illustration of poetry of the highest (Byron); it is impossible to study a writer without examples of his work. A sample (etymologically from the same original as example) is a part of a thing itself, designed to show the quality of the whole 'When I deal in wine, cloth, or cheese, I will give samples, but of verse never" (Cowper) A specimen is commonly representative of a class of things rather than of an individual object; but sample and specimen are often used without distinction, as a collection of geological or botanical specimens, "The subjects being so various no single passage can in all respects be a specimen of the book at large" (Cowper)

Ana. Proof, *reason, ground. *evidence· particular, *item, detail instant, n Instant, moment, minute, second, flash, trice, jiffy, twinkling, twinkle, split second come into comparison when they mean a particular point of time usually, but not invariably, one of almost imperceptible duration Instant and moment are often used interchangeably in this sense (as, the instant [or moment] he comes let me know) but instant carries so much stronger a suggestion of infinitely small duration that it is better fitted than moment for contexts that imply urgency, extreme transiency inconceivable swiftness or the like, as come this instant, he was not an instant too soon, it passed in an instant Moment, on the other hand is particularly serviceable when the word or the context carries the implication of a definitely apprehended even fractional part of a second, usually one tenth of a second as the stop watch showed Smith the winner of the race by a split second) is a recently adopted phrase which heightens the implication of brevity as expressed by second as 'Mr Moon stood for one split second astonished' (Chesterton) nstantly, immediately *directly

, at once anon right away tely, instantaneously *directly
, at once, anon, right away

instigate. *Incite abet, foment

Ana *Activate actuate motivate *suggest, hint, insinuate. plan, plot. scheme (see under PLAN n) instill or instil. Inculcate, *implant, inseminate infix

Ana. *Infuse, inoculate, imbue, ingrain leaven impregnate, *permeate, saturate, pervade impenetrate, interpenetrate instinct. Intuition (see under INSTINCTIVE)

Ana. Incitement, impetus, *stimulus impulse spring *motive bent, turn, faculty, aptitude, knack *gift instinctive. 1 Instinctive, intuitive are here compared because, in ordinary usage, they are frequently employed as close synonyms meaning having or manifesting the power to reach a conclusion or to apprehend truth without reasoning Instinctive (for correct senses, see SPONTANEOUS, 1) is applicable only to something which seems to involve knowledge, conclusions, judgments, etc, that come quickly, when that thing is associated (Lecky), "the intuitive concepts of space and time which we derive from individual experience" (Jeans), His intuitive faculties were constantly cultivated at the expense of the rational process of the mind' (C Mackenzie) But neither term is correctly applied to that which is known by clever guessing conjecture or through a 'hunch"

Ana. *Innate, inborn, congenital constitutional rained
d mechanical habitual deliberate

*Found establish organize commence start, initiate inaugurate ENTER)

Ant. Abrogate. — Con. End terminate, conclude college, lycée scipline school orm, acquaint eer *practice

of each group

2 Direct enjoin bid *command order charge Ana *Prescribe assign define instrument 1 *Means instrumentality agency ... channel

r fashion ent para

3 *Paper document.

instrumentality. *Means agency instrument medium organ vehicle channel.
Ana *Work labor toil *effort exertion trouble often it specifically suggests contempt of court by a bold intractable.

Con. *Obedient, amenable docile tractable biddable submissive subdued *tame ffront, outrage *offend iliate humble debase degrade *abase jeer gird gibe fleer sneer mock, taunt cule — Con Gratify *please respect esteem under REGARD n)

*Affront indignity se vituperation invective obloquy dis ime ignominy opprobrium *disgrace superciliousness disdainfulness (see corre-djectives at PROUD) contempt despite in (see under DESPISE) mpliment, flattery adulation *honor eisance deference reverence.

insure *Ens

tach entire *perfect. ss, faultless, *impeccable complete *consummate finished ve. — Con Impaired damaged injured marred (see INJURE) vitiated corrupted or corrupt (see corresponding verbs under DEBASE) entertain the proposals for peace aroused the factious spirit of the parliament factious fury" (Burke) Flor

Ant. Tangible — Con Palpable *perceptible, sensible, appreciable, ponderable *material, physical, corporeal integrant, n Component, *element, constituent, ingredient, factor integrate, v Integrate, articulate, concatenate are synonyms only in their extended senses where they mean

United States into a single people, in perception distinctness of the things combined (usually parts luced it on

date

concentrate *compact fuse, blend, merge, coalesce (see MIX) organize, systematize (see ORDER)

Ant. Disintegrate — Con Crumble decompose (see DECAY) dissipate, disperse *scatter, *analyze, resolve break down.

integrated. Articulated concatenated See under INTEGRATE v

Ana Unified consolidated concentrated (see COMPACT v) fused blended coalesced merged (see MIX) whole, entire, intact *perfect organized systematized (see ORDER, v)

Ant. Disintegrated

y, *honesty, honor.

rightness, justness, conscientiousness scrupu or scrupulosity (see corresponding adjectives at rectitude virtue, *goodness morality mind, soul psyche, brain brains intell atic fleshly animal animalistic sensual

1 Brain, brains, *mind intellect soul psyche, wit, wits.

applied to persons it is chiefly used to characterize and smart have a colloquial rather than a literary flavor of mind or in liveliness of talk or manner "I began life (

ity and smart, pertness facetiousness, or sometimes trickery or duplicity, as, a smart aleck, given to making smart retorts, 'I am Hector's father, as this bright

tion than any of the preceding terms of the possession of the knowledge that is necessary or useful under the circumstances but it also carries a strong connotation of mental alertness and of ability to deal competently with situations as they arise as My master , was suggests an opposition to qualities that characterize one whose mind works more slowly or cautiously, as a

Brooks)

Ana. *Sharp, keen acute *shrewd sagacious, perspicacious astute cunning ingenious adroit *clever

Ant. Unintelligent. — Con Foolish idiotic imbecilic moronic (see corresponding nouns at FOOL) *stupid dull dense crass dumb *irrational, unreasonable intend. Intend, mean, design, propose, purpose come into comparison when they signify to have in mind as an aim, end or function Intend implies that the mind is directed to some definite accomplishment or to the

"mob'] occurs in our writings it intends persons without virtue or sense, in all stations" (Fielding) This sense of intend is now more often carried by mean signify or denote (see MEAN, 2) On the other hand mean still often carries a denotation close to that of the usual sense of

dan) 'He shouldn't have done it, of course, but he was thoughtless. And he meant to pay the money back' (Deland) Design (as here compared see under PLAN, n) usually stresses forethought and deliberation in arriving at an intention on the other hand it carries no suggestion of probable or improbable success as, 'the American Propose implies a declaration of one's intention or a setting it clearly before oneself or others It therefore usually connotes clear definition or open avowal, as what do you propose to do when your funds run out?' I propose to describe the circumstances under which Richelieu worked when he produced and realised the centralised nation of to-day (Belloc), 'The child was occasionally connoting clearer definition in one's own mind, as, he who has so little knowledge of human nature as to seek sky (L. P Smith) intense silence an intense fr endship The intense clear star sown vault of heaven (Arnold) work so intense that it takes the last inch out of the

when a man testation of abundant energy is to be suggested or where the ardency v olence or driving force of the thing so described are to be connoted Jealousy is cruel as the grave the coals thereof are coals of fire wh ch hath a most vehement flame (Song of Solomon viii 6) He cursed himself l ke a less scrupulous Job as a vehement man will do when he loses self respect tl e last mental prop under poverty (Hardy) The most vehement scorn of cowardly compromise w th things base (J R Lowell) The temper of monists has been so vehement as almost at times to be convulsive he ghtened intens fied enhanced aggravated (see INTENSIFY) *impassioned ardent fervent fervid perfervid pass onate

Ant Subdued (colors lights emotions etc)

intensify Intensify, aggravate he ghten enhance agree in mean ng to increase markedly in degree or measure Intensify impl es a deepen ng or strengtl en ng of a thing or especially of its characteristic qual ty until it is not ceably or abnormally deep or strong as a clear ing above the ord nary the trite the commonplace and a consequent increase in sharpness and poignancy effect of his scenes by rap d ty of the action and he enhances his d alogue by the add t on of witty repartee [Vital ty] heightens pleasures and dim nishes pa ns tige and d gnity' (Buchan)

Ana Accentuate emphas ze stress accent (see corresponding nouns at EMPHASIS) magnify aggrandize *exalt

Ant Temper attemper m tigate allay abate (sense 2) — Con *Moderate qualify alleviate, lighten *relieve reduce lessen d min sh *decrease

Intent, adj Intent engrossed absorbed rapt agree in pleasure or intent upon gain (Spectator) "the wise author intent on getting at truth (Quiller-Couch) Those who make poetry are intent and rightly on moulding it in living forms (Lowes) Engrossed implies monopolization of one s attention e ther by a driving purpose or emotion or an eager interest or by the force or urgency of circumstances beyond one s control as the dramatist engrossed in his creative job (C. E. Montague) alike when one s mind is deeply engrossed in congen al work as well as when one is busy and distracted (A C Benson) These constitut onal changes were pushed through during and after the war by a group of busybod es who were not too much engrossed by the agony of the r country to conduct a raging agitation in all parts of England (Inge) Absorbed often d ffers l ttle from engrossed in th s sense but in very precise use breathless intent tongue clenched between teeth (R. Macaulay) Rapt implies both extreme intentness and tracted

*Intention purpose des gn aim end object, goal

Ana *Will vol tion conation determ nat on *decision

Ant Accident. — Con *Chance hap, luck, fortune hazard intention Intention intent purpose design aim end, make someth ng Intention ho vever often den o es more than what one has in mind to do or to bring about. She had not had an intention or a thought of going home (Dickens) Sir Hell is paved with good intentions (Johnson) She had divined the intent on beh nd her mother s tolerance (Joyce) Intent except in the phrase to all intents and purposes" is chiefly legal even in general use it suggests clearer formulation and greater deliberateness than intention To tell a lie with intent to deceive was a serious offence (H Ellis) Behind my look you saw such unmistakable intent (Millay) Purpose implies more settled determination or more resolution than intention as, to have a purpose in life The missionary was here for a purpose and he pressed his po nt (Cather) "There lie youth and l—hood ar is not al plan for details ach evec pected b designs (Hudson) Should ou me here [he] would discover my name and perhaps my designs to the rest of the family (Goldsmith) Aim, the trans t onal word of this group of synonyms implies a clear definition of that which one hopes to effect and a direction of one s efforts or energ es to its attainment thus one who prone best of h s no to h mark may faith

stead u t of her aims' (J R Green) The last four words of this group like aim imply that what one does is affected by what one hopes to accomplish or attain End stresses the determination of what one does by the effect one aims to produce or by the condition one hopes to attain it usually connotes, therefore the subord nation of the activity (the means) In every work regard the writer s End Since none can compass more than they intend (Pope) The final end of Government is not to exert restraint but to do good (R Choate) Vis on should be a by product of an activity not its end' (Day Lewis) Object often equals end but careful writers usually prefer it when the end is determined by a wish or a need rather than by principle or logical necess ty thus one s object in writing is to earn money but one s end is the edification of the reader, the object of a satire may be to discredit a person but the end of satire is usually to expose follies or vices Objective strongly impl es attainab l ty it is chiefly appl ed to an end that is concrete and can be achieved as easily as a dest nation is reached by travel as the immed ate objective of this project is flood control its ultimate objective is the conservation of water power Goal often evokes the image of one running a race usually it implies struggle and endurance of hardships and cessation of effort at attainment "The Good which is the goal of all moral endeavour' (Inge) In the average man s mind life sure is a goal to strive for (C C Furnas) Life is real! Life is earnest! And the grave is not its goal (Longfellow)

Ana *Plan design scheme project desiring or desire wishing or wish (see corresponding verbs at DESIRE) intentional *Voluntary del berate willful willing

Ana Intended meant purposed proposed (see INTEND) considered premed tated advised stud ed designed *deliberate Ant Instinctive — Con *Accidental casual fortuitous inadvertent thoughtless *careless, heedless.

intercalate Interpolate insert *introduce interpose interject insinuate intercede Mediate intervene *interpose interfere.

Ana Plead petition sue pray (see under PRAYER) interchange, v *Exchange bandy swap.

Ana Trade barter (see SELL) transpose *reverse intercourse Intercourse commerce, traffic, dealings communication communion commune conversation converse, correspondence are here compared as meaning the connection establ shed between persons or peoples through any medium that permits interchange such as of information of opinions of ideas of goods or the like Intercourse, the commonest term of this group usually means little more than this and requires a qualifying adjective to indicate the things interchanged or the medium permitting interchange as business intercourse trade intercourse spiritual intercourse sexual intercourse social intercourse In ordinary use when employed without qual fication intercourse means social intercourse or the normal interchange of ideas, opinions news, civilities and the like between one person or group and another with whom (or which) there are more or less intimate relations as "They had no intercourse but what the commonest civil ty required Once so much to each other! Now nothing! (Austen); the truth was he could not be happy for long without human intercourse" (Cather), the keen and animated intercourse with its exchange of disputable convictions (A Repplier) Commerce which etymologically implies the interchange of goods by buying from and selling to each other (for this sense see BUSINESS, 3) also is used in the more general sense of intercourse as Commerce with the world has made him wiser' (Macaulay) In current use the word tends to be restricted in its application to intercourse through the spirit or mind that involves an interchange of ideas, influences, and the like, without a necessary interchange of words (as our repair thither [i e , to the churches] is especially for commerce to be had between God and us —Hooker, How is poetry born in us? There is I think some commerce between the outer and an inner being —G W Russell) or in an evil sense to ill cit sexual intercourse (as What say ye to S r Lancelot ? That commerce with the Queen is it whisper d in the corner? —Tennyson) Traffic (as here considered see also BUSINESS 3 & 4) is now somewhat rare in the sense of intercourse but it is still used when connotations derived from the other senses are to be suggested such as the interchange of goods especially of tangible or material goods or a rapid passing to and from the persons or things concerned The latter [the Stoic] believed in a World Soul immanent in man the former [the Epicurean] held that there was no traffic between the human and the divine (Buchan) Th s fl ppant traffic with Clara (D H Lawrence) Dealings is a more homely and a more suggestive term than intercourse for it usually implies a closer connection such as one with more familiarity or less formality or one having for its object mutual or personal gain as, they said they would have no dealings with the new neighbors they suspected that he was having dealings with the enemy Being a woman is a terribly d fficult trade since it cons sts principally of dealings with men (Conrad) Communication is less general than any of the preceding terms because it implies intercourse based upon an interchange of words (spoken written cabled or the like) or mean ngful s gnals of some sort as, there has been no communication w th the island since the storm communication even with the r nearest neighbors was impossible when they were snowbound the men in prison had communication with each other only by tapp ng on the wall the enemy has broken off all communication between his prisoners and the outside world Communion, or the poetic form commune usually impl es intercourse between those who are close in love or sympathy or in mutual understanding both terms often suggest rather than imply spiritual intercourse or the absence of words as the consummation of communion with God coincides with the final resolution of the sense of estrangement course and converse has a poetic sense in which it approaches communion or commune (as 'With nature here high converse hold'—Shenstone) In current use however both terms usually imply a free and often lively oral interchange of opinions comments news or the like between two or more persons conversation often applies specifically to the act of interchanging opinions, etc in talk and converse to the ideas, gossip etc. involved in such conversation as the conversation went on briskly for an hour all useful exchange of converse in our daily life (Quiller Couch) Correspondence implies clude *restrain curb check snaffle Ant Sanction — Con *Let allow permit interfere 1 *Interpose intervene mediate intercede Ana Impede obstruct block *hinder bar 2 *Meddle intermeddle tamper Ana *Intrude interlope, butt in obtrude molest incommode discommode *inconvenience trouble thwart foil balk baffle *frustrate nal extraneous foreign *extrinsic.

interject *Introduce interpolate interpose insert intercalate insinuate.
Ana *Throw (in) cast (in) toss (in) obtrude *intrude interlope butt in comment *remark animadvert interlope *Intrude butt in obtrude Ana *Trespass encroach invade entrench infringe interfere *interpose intervene intermeddle. *Meddle interfere tamper Ana *Intrude obtrude butt in interlope entrench encroach *trespass invade molest (see INCONVENIENCE) interminable Unceasing never-ending *everlasting endless Ana Perpetual *lasting perdurable permanent incessant *continual continuous constant eternal *infinite Con *Intermittent periodic stopped discontinued (see STOP) ended terminated closed finished completed (see CLOSE v) intermit Suspend stay *defer postpone Ana Interrupt *arrest check *stop discontinue abate reduce lessen *decrease Con *Continue persist *repeat iterate reiterate intermittent Intermittent recurrent periodic alternate come into comparison when they mean recurring or reappearing more or less regularly but in interrupted sequence That is intermittent which from time to time is omitted or disappears but always returns as an inter

the poetic self and the rest of the man' (Day Lewis) That is recurrent which returns or has the habit of returning after omission or disappearance In contrast, intermittent stresses breaks in continuity and recurrent stresses repetition as intermittent attacks of appendicitis recurrent attacks of appendicitis an intermittent noise a recurrent noise That is periodic which is known to be recurrent at more or less fixed intervals over a long period of time and which therefore can be fairly accurately forecast as periodic epidemics periodic appearances of a comet That is alternate which is both intermittent and recurrent each in turn with something else When applied to two contrasted or different things alternate implies a succession of one after the other as alternate smiles and tears alternate work and play alternate stripes of orange and green When applied to things of the same kind or description that follow each other in serial order alternate means every other one as the class meets on alternate days of the week beginning Tuesday the alternate stripes are narrow and white Ana Interrupted checked arrested (see ARREST v) *fitful spasmodic sporadic occasional *infrequent discontinuing or discontinuous stopping quitting (see corresponding verbs at STOP) Ant Incessant continual — Con Continuous, constant perpetual (see CONTINUAL) *everlasting unceasing never-ending interminable intern, v *Imprison immure incarcerate jail.

Ana Confine circumscribe restrict *limit *restrain curb check snaffle fetter manacle shackle *hamper Con Release liberate *free internal Interior intestine *inner inward inside Ana Intrinsic constitutional *inherent essential Ant External — Con Exterior *outer outward outside extraneous *extrinsic foreign alien internuncio Nuncio legate *ambassador minister e penetrate *permeate

Ana See those at IMPENETRATE interpolate Insert intercalate *introduce insinuate interpose interject Ana *Enter introduce admit *intrude interlope *add superadd annex append Con Delete dele expunge *erase cancel interpose 1 Interject *introduce insert insinuate interpolate intercalate Ana *Throw (in) toss (in) cast (in) *intrude obtrude *push (in) shove (in) thrust (in) 2 Interpose interfere, intervene, mediate intercede come into comparison because they all basically mean to come or to go between two persons two things or a person and thing Interpose (as here considered see also INTRODUCE 2) may be used in place of any of the succeeding words largely because it carries no further implications except as these are derived from the context but it is now used intransitively chiefly in reference to persons as I listened to this dispute and at length interposed once more on the old man's side" (Hudson) Our host interposed and forbade the experiment pleading at the same time for a change of subject (Shaw) Interfere (as here compared see also MEDDLE) implies a getting in the way of a person or thing as by crossing his or its path or more often by creating a condition that hinders his movement activity view or the like or its free operation or full effectiveness as, Parliament interfered to protect employers against their labourers (Froude) the atmospheric disturbance "wooden group.

kenns) Intervene may be used with reference to anything that interposes itself or is interposed between things as in space or time (as, There still intervenes a narrow space between the last house of London and the ancient Forest Hall —Jefferies a long period intervened between the declaration of war and the beginning of hostilities), or between persons (as, to intervene between two persons engaged in a fight to intervene between the warring groups with a plea for conciliation) or between a person and his interests work or the like (as the trained self-consciousness which intervenes between the poet a moods and his poetry —Day Lewis) Mediate often specifically implies intervention between those who are hostile antagonistic or otherwise opposed to each other for the sake of reconciling them or settling their difficulties mediate usually implies as intervene may or may not imply an interest in both sides or freedom from bias toward either side as, in Christian belief Christ mediates between God and the sinner Bacon attempted to mediate between his friend [the earl of Essex] and the Queen (Macaulay) Philosophy tries to mediate between them [religion science art] and the task has so far been beyond its powers' (Inge) But mediate may also be used abstractly in reference to something that lies between extremes or contradictories and effects either their union or a transition between them, as The problem of mediating between the two terms [that is the shapely and the vital as the dual elements of beauty] is one that may be solved in innumerable ways (Babbitt) Intercede implies intervention on another's (usually an offender's) behalf and the use of one's good offices in imploring mercy or forgiveness for him from the one who has been injured or offended as For each at utter need — True comrade and true foeman— Madonna intercede! (Kipling) the Duchess of Aiguillon interceded for Marie de Médicis with Richelieu

Ana *Intrude butt in interlope *meddle inter meddle interrupt (see ARREST) interpret Elucidate construe *explain expound explicate

Ana Illustrate *exemplify gloss *annotate comment commentate (see REMARK v)

Con Distort contort *deform *misrepresent *mistake confuse confound interrogate Question catechize quiz examine *ask query inquire speer

Con *Answer reply, respond rejoin retort interrupt *Arrest check

Ana Suspend stay intermit *defer postpone *intrude obtrude interlope butt in interfere *interpose intervene interstice *Aperture orifice intervene *Interpose mediate intercede interfere

Ana *Separate part, divide sever *intrude interlope butt in obtrude intestine, intestinal Internal *inner interior inside

Ant Foreign — Con External *outer exterior outside outward extraneous alien *extrinsic intimate v *Suggest imply hint insinuate

Ana *Indicate betoken attest bespeak allude advert *refer Con *Express voice utter vent air declare, *assert affirm aver avouch *suppress repress conceal *hide intimate, adj *Familiar close confidential chummy thick

Ana *Nearest next devoted fond affectionate *loving *secret privy friendly neighborly (see AMICABLE) companionable convivial *social hospitable co-operative

Con Formal, conventional ceremonious *ceremonial *distant remote intimate, n *Friend confidant acquaintance Ana Comrade companion, crony pal, chum buddy *associate

Ant Stranger, outsider

intimidate Intimidate, cow, bulldoze, bully, browbeat agree in meaning to frighten one into submission or obedience Intimidate etymologically implies a making timid or fearful but in current use it often suggests a display of force or the use of coercive measures as the cause of the fear and consequent submission as, he would not be intimidated by vociferous public opposition to his plans A musket was, therefore fired over them but they seemed rather to be provoked than intimidated' (Capt Cook) He wasn't lazy he wasn't a fool and he meant to be honest but he was intimidated by that miserable sort of departmental life (Cather) Cow implies reduction to a state where the spirit is broken or all courage is lost, as The lash of that woman had cowed that helpless, gentle, noble spirit (Thackeray) One night he rescued a young leveret from a stoat who seemed inclined to give him battle for its prey until he cowed and defeated it with the glare of his electric torch (H G Wells) Bulldoze, an American colloquialism (used originally of the intimidation of Negro voters in Louisiana) implies the use of terroristic methods, such as threatening displaying one's power and the like in asserting one's will or authority over others. If he [President Hayes] has strength of character and tact the bulldozers cannot subdue him If he gives up Mr Evarts the bulldozers will subdue his cabinet (N Y Herald) Bully implies intimidation through overbearing swaggering threats or insults but in schoolboy use it usually suggests bulldozing of small boys by those who are larger or more aggressive as suppose the cabman bullies you for double fare (Shaw) I know what you're going to call me but I am not to be bullied by words (L P Smith) Browbeat implies a cowing through arrogant scornful contemptuous or insolent treatment as He browbeat the informers against us and treated their evidence with little favour (Fielding) Who saw my old kind parents too much trustful Cheated brow-beaten stripped and starved cast out Into the kennel (Browning)

Ana Terrorize terrify *frighten hector hound ride chevy *bait badger coerce *force compel constrain oblige

Con *Coax wheedle cajole blandish persuade prevail on, or upon *induce intonation *Inflection accent intoxicated *Drunk drunken inebriate inebriated tipsy tight

Ana Fuddled befuddled confused bemuddled muddled (see CONFUSE) maudlin *sentimental Con. *Sober temperate.

intractable *Unruly ungovernable refractory recalcitrant willful headstrong

Ana Obstreperous boisterous (see VOCIFEROUS) contumacious rebellious, factious, *insubordinate froward perverse *contrary wayward balky Ant Tractable — Con *Obedient docile biddable amenable *tame submissive subdued *compliant acquiescent.

intrench Variant of ENTRENCH intrepid Dauntless undaunted valiant valorous doughty bold audacious *brave courageous

Ana Daring venturous venturesome *adventurous temerarious daredevil mettlesome, high-spirited *spirited fiery plucky gritty (see corresponding nouns at FORTITUDE) Con *Cowardly pusillanimous craven poltroon dastardly timorous *timid *fearful apprehensive afraid intricate. Complicated involved *complex, knotty Ana Perplexing puzzling mystifying bewildering (see PUZZLE, v) tortuous, anfractuous (see WINDING) difficult *hard, arduous.

Con *Easy simple light smooth facile effortless obvious plain clear patent *evident, manifest.

intrigue, n 1 Conspiracy, machination, *plot, com plot cabal frame-up Ana Scheme design *plan stratagem, maneuver, ruse, artifice *trick feint.
2 Liaison affair affaire *amour intrinsic. *Inherent ingrained constitutional essential Ana *Inner inward internal interior, inside intestine *innate inborn inbred congenital natural normal typical *regular Ant Extrinsic. — Con *Outer outward external outside exterior adventitious *accidental incidental added annexed appended superadded (see ADD) extraneous alien foreign (see EXTRINSIC) introduce 1 *Enter admit.

Ana *Bring (in) induct install inaugurate (see INITIATE) instill inculcate infix, *implant inseminate *infuse inoculate imbue bringing forward of someone or something not already in company with the other persons or things but it also suggests as the aim of such an act the placing of the person or thing in the midst of that group or collection so as to form a part of it as to introduce a new subject thus to insert lace in a garment is to put it between two pieces of the material which forms the garment, to insert leaves in a book is to put leaves (usually additional the fissures of near by rocks slowly but surely they in sinuated themselves through the crowd to the edge of the obstacle obstruction cause of delay or the like as, I ask leave to break the order of my argument and to ourselves a barrier more impenetrable than the Greek language (T S Eliot) Of all of these words, interject carries the strongest implication of abrupt or forced *eject oust evict eliminate *exclude.

introduction. Introduction, prologue induction, prelude, overture, preface, foreword, prolegomenon proem, exordium, preamble, prolusion, protasis avant propos come into comparison as denoting something that serves as a preliminary or as an antecedent to an extended treatment development discussion or presentation as giving a hint of the author s purposes or methods ... attempting to attract the aud tors attention to or interand sometimes in place of introduction (as "That which he takes for the second argument is no argument but an induction to those that follow —Milton) Prelude ... in its general to structural changes. "That was the prelude to a stormy afternoon (H G Wells) As a technical term in music, prelude applies sometimes to an opening voluntary in a religious service but more often and more specifically to an introductory piece forming a section or a movement especially of a fugue or a suite but sometimes of an oratorio or of an opera, and serving usually to introduce the theme or chief subject of the work. In this sense prelude applies sometimes to works (not always musical works) which have something of the character of an introductory section or movement but are so constructed that they have intrinsic and independent value as, Debussy's Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun [Prélude à l après-midi d un faune] Wordsworth s poem The Prelude Overture (etymologically, an opening) as here compared (see also OVERTURE, 1) applies to an elaborate orchestral preliminary to an extended musical work such as an opera or oratorio sometimes but not always serving the functions of a prelude as Wagner s Overture to Tannhäuser Most of the great overtures though composed as preliminary pieces have independent musical value In ecclesiastical use preface still applies to the prayer of exhortation to thanksgiving and of divine praise which opens the important part of a solemn Eucharistic service (such as the canon of the Mass) where the consecration of the bread and wine occurs In its more common general sense preface applies specifically to a short discourse which is distinct from the literary work which follows (a treatise a novel a poem or collection of poems or the like) which is written usually by the author but sometimes by an editor or a friend, and which has for its main purpose either to put the reader into the right frame of mind for the understanding or appreciation of the work he is about to read or to supply him with information that may be necessary to his proper understanding or use of it When however a work is preceded by both a preface and an introduction, preface is usually applied to the introductory discourse written and often also signed by the author editor or the like, and introduction to the one which is definitely informative rather than personal in its character and usually carries no signature In extended use preface may apply to anything which serves as an introduction or prelude such as an introductory work on or a more or less tentative treatment of a subject (as Walter Lippmann s book entitled A Preface to Morals') or to an act or speech or series of acts or speeches, which has no other purpose than to prepare the way for what is to follow They walked in the rose garden Do you read Utopias? said Mr Direck cutting any preface in the English manner (H G Wells) We fight for lost causes because we know that our defeat and dismay may be the preface to our successor s victory (T S Eliot) Foreword is now often used in place of preface to a book especially by those who wish to suggest simplicity and brevity of treatment in contrast to the profundity and prolixity associated with some historic prefaces. Prolegomenon (often in plural form prolegomena) applies either to a preface of a learned work such as one presenting a philosophy a new scientific theory or an exposition of theological doctrine (as, his Prolegomenon to the Polyglot Bible —Evelyn) or now somewhat more often to a preface in the extended sense of an introductory work (as, Thomas Hill Green s Prolegomena to Ethics) Proem is a bookish or literary rather than a technical term applying usually to the commencement of a discourse, especially to a formal commencement such as the invocation to a muse in a poem, or to the introductory remarks in a spoken discourse which serve to bring the speaker into touch with his audience I seye that first with heigh style be endyteth Er [ere] he the body of his tale he wryteth A proheme [proem] (Chaucer) Exordium, a technical term of rhetoric applies to a formal beginning especially of an oration but sometimes of a written exposition or argument in which the speaker or writer makes an approach to his subject by remarks intended to awaken the interest of his auditors or readers and to pave the way for their understanding of what he is to say or for their acceptance of his conclusions Preamble applies to a formal introduction, often only an introductory paragraph as in a statute a constitution a treaty a deed or a set of resolutions, which states the grounds purposes, or the like of that which follows. Because of its etymological suggestion of ambling before the term lends itself to humorous use as a designation of a long monotonous preface Now dame This [The Wife of Bath s prologue"] is a long preamble of a tale (Chaucer) Prolusion is a now rare synonym of prologue distinctively it applies to a short literary work (now often called preface or prolegomena) which sets forth briefly ideas which the author may or may not intend to amplify later as, 'My treatise was intended but for a prolusion (Evelyn) Protasis, a now rare highly technical term once much used by rhetoricians dealing with the drama applies to that part of a play which serves as an introduction to the body of the play (the epitasis) or in modern terms as the exposition (see EXPOSITION 2) Avant-propos, a French phrase not yet naturalized in English is also rare but is sometimes used by those who prefer it to proem for a few introductory remarks or to preface or foreword as a more informal or more ingratiating term intrude. Intrude, obtrude, interlope, butt in agree in meaning to thrust oneself or something in without invitation or authorization Intrude both transitively and intransitively carries a strong implication of forcing someone or something in without leave without right or against the will of others it often connotes rudeness officiousness or invasion of another s property time or the like as, Enow of such as for their bellies sake Creep and intrude and climb into the fold! (Milton) Sir said I I am afraid that I intrude upon you It is benevolent to allow me to sit and hear you (Boswell) This court always had disavowed the right to intrude its judgment upon questions of policy or morals (Justice Holmes) Obtrude (now chiefly but not exclusively a transitive verb) suggests even more strongly than intrude the impropriety the boldness or the futility of the act or the disagreeableness of the offense as The former obtrudes his attention it is so pointed, that it always confuses me, and so public that it attracts general notice (Burney) I intended plain prose but a rhyme obtruded itself and I became poetical (Cowper) ' The first sin against style as against good manners is to obtrude or exploit personality (Quiller-Couch) Interlope (etymologically a back formation from the more common agent noun interloper) originally implied the action of an unauthorized trader who trespassed on the rights or charters of others in this way obtaining advantages or profits belonging rightfully to another In more recent use both verb and noun imply an interposition of oneself in a place or position which has an injurious effect on one or both of the persons or things concerned as, he regarded her new acquaintance as an interloping rival for her hand the independent stores charged the chain stores with interloping Butt in, originally American slang implies an abrupt or offensive intrusion suggestive of the manner in which a horned animal attacks its enemy In this sense, the term usually suggests absence of ceremony or of a sense of propriety or of any other sign of good breeding as I ve not gone there or written or anything yet because I didn t want to butt in (R Macaulay)

Ana *Trespass invade encroach entrench infringe interject interpose insinuate interpolate intercalate *introduce interfere intervene *interpose *meddle intermeddle interfere tamper

Ant Stand off — Con Withdraw, retire (see GO) retreat *recede intrusive *Impertinent officious, meddlesome obtrusive pragmatical modest coy *shy intrust Variant of ENTRUST intuition 1 Understanding *reason

Ana Intellect soul *mind clairvoyance insight divination acumen *discernment

Ant Ratiocination — Con *Inference illation

2 Instinct (see under INSTINCTIVE) intuitive *Instinctive

Ana Immediate *direct

Ant Ratiocinative — Con Inferential illative (see under INFERENCE) inunct Anoint, lubricate *oil grease cream pomade pomatum inure *Harden season acclimatize acclimate

Ana Accustom *habituate familiarize *adapt adjust accommodate drill exercise *practice train school discipline (see TEACH)

Con Enervate emasculate (see UNNERVE) debilitate enfeeble, *weaken.

invade. Encroach *trespass trench entrench infringe

Ana *Intrude obtrude butt in interlope *enter penetrate pierce probe *permeate pervade interpenetrate impenetrate invalidate *Nullify negate annul abrogate

Ana Negative counteract *neutralize void avoid vacate quash *annul

Ant Validate — Con *Enforce implement administer *execute invaluable Priceless precious valuable dear *costly expensive

Ant Worthless

invasion Invasion incursion raid, irruption inroad come into comparison not only as military terms but also in their extended senses and as meaning an entrance effected by force or strategy Invasion strictly implies entrance upon another s territory with hostile intentions such as conquest plunder or use as a base of operations as the Roman invasion of Britain the German invasion unexpectedness or haste than invasion it often also suggests an immediate end and a quick withdrawal when now more often of air forces) may or may not suggest more preparation more strategy and more fury is frigerator) Irruption applies to any incursion that implies or suggests a breaking in or similar acts of violence as an irruption of Goths into Gaul an irruption of schoolboys into a garden Inroad was applied originally to an incursion or raid made by armed horsemen into the territory of another race or nation as Aggressive war as distinguished from mere plundering inroads" (Freeman) The term is now applicable to any invasion that involves encroachment or trespass with injurious

Ana Aggression *attack offense offensive pass

*breac

obtruc

INTRU

corresponding verbs at TRESPASS) invective *Abuse vituperation obloquy scurrility billingsgate

Ana Vilifying or vilification maligning calumniation traducing (see corresponding verbs at MALIGN) animadversion stricture aspersion reflection inveigle Decoy entice *lure tempt seduce

Ana Snare ensnare trap entrap (see CATCH) beguile mislead delude *deceive betray cajole wheedle h *coax.

Invent create, discover are not genuinely mous terms but they are frequently confused in se of to bring into being something new Invent logically to come upon or find) in earlier times l fabrication of something new through the exer the imagination it therefore was used chiefly in spiration as to invent a device for stopping a car quickly the cotton gin was invented by Eli Whitney in 93 Socrates was in just as good a position as Benjamin Franklin to invent the stove which goes by the latter's name (J W Krutch) However invent often stresses the finding as well as the bringing into being of something new or hitherto unknown as the result of mental effort [Love as conceived by Plato] was not invented but interpreted by Plato (G L Dickinson) 'She was tired of inventing means for making the days and nights pleasant and capriciously variable for others' (Van Vechten) Create stresses a causing of something to exist it not only implies previous nonexistence but it often suggests an evoking of something into being out of or as if out of nothing as by fiat by an act of the will by inspiration, or the like, as God created the world the poet creates beauty, the law creates rights the king created an earldom for his favorite To this strange force within him to this power that created his works of art, there was nothing to do but submit (A Huxley) I do not believe that a sense of justice is innate but I have been astonished to see how quickly it can be created (B Russell) Discover, as here compared (see also DISCOVER 2 REVEAL) presupposes the pre-existence of something and lack of knowledge of it the term therefore implies the finding of that thing often as the result of mental or physical effort as by exploration investigation experiment and the like as, Columbus discovered America William Harvey discovered the circulation of the blood Hence in precise use one invents processes or ways of doing something as well as instruments tools implements or machines, but one discovers things which exist but have not yet been known such as lands stars, natural laws and the like. Newton invented the differential and the integral calculus and discovered the laws of motion (Karl K. Darrow)

Ana Fabricate fashion form shape forge *make imagine, conceive envision (see THINK) design project plan plot scheme (see under PLAN n) produce, turn out (see BEAR) inventory, n *List register schedule catalogue table roll roster rota canon invert, v Transpose *reverse

Ana Upset, *overturn overset, capsize interchange *exchange derange disarrange (see DISORDER v) invest 1 Vest robe apparel array *clothe attire dress

2 Induct install inaugurate *initiate

Ana. Endue endow (see DOWER) consecrate (see DEVOTE)

Ant Divest, strip (of robes insignia power etc) unfrock investigation Probe inquest inquisition, *inquiry research Ana Inspection, examination scrutiny audit (see under SCRUTINIZE) surveying or survey observing or observation (see corresponding verbs at SEE) inveterate Inveterate confirmed chronic deep-seated deep-rooted come into comparison as meaning so firmly established or settled that change is almost impossible Inveterate (etymologically become old) applies especially to that which has persisted so long and so obstinately that it has become a fixed habit or an almost inalterable custom of tradition as the growing infirmities of age manifest themselves in nothing more strongly than in an inveterate dislike of interruption (Lamb) The Nonconformist Conscience [and] its inveterate feud against everything that people mean by the word beauty'" (Day Lewis) When applied to a person the term implies the formation of an ineradicable habit, attitude or the like as, an inveterate smoker, 'an inveterate and formidable foe (Peacock) Confirmed applies chiefly to that which h[illegible] firmer w[illegible] attempt[illegible] confirmed[illegible] dered hir[illegible] as a natu[illegible] confirmed[illegible] ation) Like inveterate it may also apply to a person who is such as he is described in the noun by the strengthening or crystallization of a taste a vice or virtue an attitude or the like (as a confirmed bachelor a confirmed drunkard a confirmed invalid a confirmed optimist 'I am a confirmed wanderer —Disraeli) Chronic also implies long duration but it applies either to diseases, habits, conditions, and the like which persist without marked interruption in spite of attempts to alleviate or to cure them or to the persons who are afflicted or affected by such diseases habits, or the like as, his chronic state of mental restlessness (G Eliot) chronic bronchitis hysterical with failure and repeated disappointment and chronic poverty' (A Huxley). The working scientist must steer a middle course between chronic indecision and precipitant judgment (Eddington), a chronic fault finder Deep-seated and deep-rooted in their figurative senses emphasize rather the extent to which something has entered into the structure or texture of the thing (a person's body or mind a people's nature or the like) in which it becomes fixed or embedded, as the old dependent chaotic haphazard pioneer instinct of his [Mark Twain's] childhood [was] so deep seated that he slipped back into the boy he had been before (Van W Brooks), a deep-rooted reverence for truth (J Morley)

Ana Habituated accustomed addicted (see HABITUATE) habitual customary *usual *hardened indurated settled set fixed established (see SET) inbred *innate persisting or persistent enduring abiding (see corresponding verbs at CONTINUE) invidious Distasteful obnoxious *repugnant repellent abhorrent

Ana *Hateful odious abominable detestable *offensive loathsome revolting repulsive

Con Agreeable gratifying grateful pleasing *pleasant attractive alluring fascinating (see under ATTRACT) enticing tempting seducing or seductive (see corresponding verbs at LURE) invincible. Invincible, unconquerable, indomitable, impregnable, inexpugnable, unassailable invulnerable come into comparison as meaning proof against attack or assault A person or thing is invincible or unconquerable that presents insuperable difficulties to his or its being overcome resisted displaced or the like invincible however usually implies a quality or character in the person or thing which makes him or it actually or seemingly incapable of being vanquished unconquerable implies rather the fact of having successfully resisted all attempts at subdual or mastery as invincible ignorance the armed forces police and military form a large permanent body wholly subject to that which governs a weapon which renders that which governs almost invincible' (Belloc) He made plan after plan but each one was discarded because he saw it would encounter invincible selfishness or invincible self-sacrifice (Deland) The story of a noble mind wrestling with unconquerable Fate (I D Israeli) the iron face of those men of empire and unconquerable will those Caesars and Napoleons (L P Smith) A person a will a mind or the like is indomitable that stubbornly and determinedly resists all attempts to gain mastery over him or it or endures seemingly insuperable difficulties with fortitude until they are overcome, as, indomitable courage an indomitable will, indomitable energy, ' Founding colonies . or exploring in crazy pinnaces the fierce latitudes of the polar seas—they are the same indomitable reason (such as a weakness or a defect) for attacking or impugning, as castles were often built at the tops of craggy mountains in the hope that they might be inex- duable (see corresponding verbs at CONQUER) inviolable. Inviolate *sacred, sacrosanct

(see CONTAMINATE)

invite. Invite, bid, solicit, court, woo come into com parison only when they mean to request or encourage a person or a thing to come to or to fall in with one's plans or desires. Invite in its ordinary and usual sense spend the night in one's home, to invite an audience to express their opinions In this sense the word usually implies providing an opening for those who otherwise might hesitate to go or do or give without such a request Consequently in its extended sense invite implies providing an opening by any of various means such as a seductive manner or a challenging statement or policy, that serves as an encouragement or temptation to another to do that to which he feels he has been called, as.

of as at a feast, a marriage or other great occasion the noun bid for invitation is, however now not uncommon in colloquial use "Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not what is put forward by one person as true open to the aloof, seeming to avoid notice rather than to court it" (Arnold), ' so long as a scientific textbook is obsolete in a decade or less, to poetize science is to court mortality" (Lowes) Woo literally implies amorous courting

Ana. *Ask, request, solicit *lure tempt entice inveigle excite *provoke, stimulate pute disgrace to the circumstances or situation, but usually implies complication or entangling and often suggests extreme embarrassment, as to become involved in debt, the war may not end until every nation is uncomfortable for him to return to live in that . . ." (S Anderson) Implicate usually, but not invariably implies a disgraceful connection or one that casts a reflection on a person's reputation, it may even imply definite proof of association with a crime; as, the detectives discovered that an uncle of the child was implicated in its kidnaping they were unable to implicate any of the suspected political leaders in the conspiracy to defraud the city

Ana Ensnare entrap, snare, trap (see CATCH)· connect, . . . embarrass fetter

disembarrass

ly, implicate

subsume

Ana Comprise, *compose, constitute import *mean, signify, denote bespeak, attest, betoken. *indicate argue, prove

Con Eliminate *exclude rule out debar involved Intricate complicated knotty *complex

Ana Confused muddled bemuddled (see CONFUSE) perplexing puzzling bewildering mystifying (see PUZZLE) difficult *hard arduous Con Simple *easy facile invulnerable Impregnable inexpugnable unassailable *invincible unconquerable indomitable

Ant Vulnerable

inward *Inner interior internal inside intestine

Ana Inbred *innate inborn ingrained *inherent intrinsic constitutional *intimate *familiar objective sensible *material heartfelt unfeigned *sincere impalpable *imperceptible

Ant Outward — Con *Outer exterior external outside extraneous *extrinsic foreign alien spiritual (see corresponding noun at SOUL) iota Jot tittle whit *particle bit mite smitch smidgen atom irascible Irascible choleric splenetic testy techy (or tetchy) touchy cranky cross come into comparison as meaning easily angered or enraged Irascible implies the possession of a fiery or inflammable temper or a disposition to be incensed on the slightest provocation as an English plebeian coarse proud irascible imperious (Carlyle) a peppery and irascible old gentleman Choleric implies excitability of temper unreasonableness in anger and usually an impatient and uniformly irritable frame of mind as That in the captain's but a choleric word Which in the soldier is flat blasphemy (Shak) Where melancholic men abandon effort men of the choleric type take to kicking and smashing (H G Wells) Splenetic implies a similar temperament but one especially given to moroseness and fits of spleen which exhibit themselves in angry sullen or intensely peevish moods, words or acts as "More peevish cross and splenetic than dog distract or monkey sick (Butler 1612 1680) That splenetic temper which seems to grudge brightness to the flames of hell (Landor) he was not splenetic nay be proved in the offending volume he could be civil courteous chivalrous (Meredith) Testy implies irascibility occasioned by small annoyances such as being thwarted compelled to wait or the like as men who are imperious by nature are inclined to grow more and more testy with age The testy major was in fume To find no hunter standing waiting (Masefield) Techy (or now more frequently its derivative touchy) suggests readiness to take offense it often connotes undue irritability or over sensitiveness as He is techy and impatient of contradiction sore with wounded pride (Hazl) I am not touchy under criticism (Stevenson) Cranky and cross are the most common of these terms in colloquial use both often meaning little more than difficult to please In precise use however cranky carries a strong implication of the possession of set notions fixed ideas or unvarying standards which predispose one to anger or a show of temper when others in their speech conduct requests work and the like do not conform to them as a cranky critic a cranky employer a cranky teacher Cross on the other hand implies a being out of sorts owing to any of numerous causes or conditions it also implies irascibility or irritability but only for the duration of one's mood as Sometimes when I am cross and cannot sleep I engage in angry contests with the Opinions I object to (L P Smith) the attempts to persuade the Intelligent Woman that she is having a glorious treat when she is in fact being bored and tired out and sent home cross and miserable (Shaw)

Ana *Irritable fractious, snappish waspish huffy querulous, petulant peevish *impatient restive jumpy jittery nervous crabbed surly (see SULLEN)

Con Good natured *amiable complaisant obliging *calm placid serene tranquil irate *Angry wrathful mad indignant acrimonious

Ana Provoked exasperated nettled irritated (see IRRITATE) incensed infuriated enraged (see ANGER v)

Con Good humored good tempered good natured (see corresponding noun phrases at GOOD NATURE): *forbearing tolerant, clement lenient indulgent, merciful.

ire Rage fury *anger indignation wrath

Ana *Passion temper humor *mood irenic irenical or eirenic eirenical *Pacific peaceable peaceful, pacifist pacifistic

Ana Conciliating or conciliatory placating or placatory propitiating or propitiatory (see corresponding verbs at PACIFY) iridescent Opalescent opaline *prismatic.

Ant Acrimonious

irk Vex, *annoy bother

Ana Perturb disturb upset *discompose discommode incommode trouble *inconvenience molest fret chafe (see ABRADE) irksome Irksome tiresome wearisome tedious humdrum agree in meaning burdensome because trying or boring or both A person or thing is irksome that inspires distaste reluctance or impatience because of its demand for effort not made easy by interest as Mr Collins was neither sensible nor agreeable his society was irksome (Austen) The difficulty of grasping abstract statements made learning very irksome to me (Symonds) Why is it that the study of the past seems irksome to the new generation? (Grandgent) A person or thing is tiresome that is dull and unenlivening and therefore is either intensely boring or soon productive of fatigue as It is tiresome to be funny for a whole evening (Scott) The second curate was Chator who was so good as sometimes to be nearly tiresome (C Mackenzie) We think of rain as tiresome and uncomfortable (Binyon) The importunity of the little boys was tiresome when one wanted to be alone (A Huxley) A person or especially a thing is wearisome that exhausts one's strength or patience through long continued or constant call for effort exertion attention and the like or for tiresome uniformity of character as These high wild hills and rough uneven ways Draws out our miles, and make them wearisome (Shak) the same wearisome round of stereotyped habits (Wilde) The acquisition of exact knowledge is apt to be wearisome but it is essential to every kind of excellence (B Russell) A person or thing is tedious that is tiresomely monotonous slow or prolix as Life is as tedious as a twice-told tale Vexing the dull ear of a drowsy man (Shak) The prose of the writer who can deliberately make his own personal cadences monotonously audible all the time grows wearisome it affects us as a tedious manner (H Ellis) A person or thing is humdrum that is continuously commonplace in character or goes on without variety or variation in a monotonous routine often the implication of wearisomeness is obscure or lost as A plain, humdrum domestic life with eight hundred a year and a small house full of babies (Trollope) They regarded their adversaries as humdrum people slaves to routine enemies to light (Arnold) For music so far from showing a humdrum and homekeeping spirit has kept pace with the other arts in its restless striving away from its own centre toward that doubtful periphery where it is on the point of passing over into something else (Babbitt)

Ana Dull *stupid fatiguing, exhausting fagging tiring (see TIRE v)

Ant. Absorbing engrossing ironical, ironic. Satirical *sarcastic, sardonic.

Ana. Biting, cutting, *incisive, trenchant *caustic, mordant, mordacious scathing irony. *Wit, satire sarcasm humor, repartee irrational Irrational, unreasonable are here compared as meaning not governed or guided by reason Both terms have been used and very occasionally are still used in the sense of not having the power to reason, as irrational during the course of his fever), but, more often, it suggests a lack of control or guidance by the reason or direct conflict with reason s dictates it therefore comes close to absurd, illogical, foolish preposterous senseless or fantastic, as to be governed by an irrational fear, irrational beliefs, an irrational policy, ' his temperamental impulse to energetic practical action .and the

Ana Absurd preposterous *foolish silly fatuous asinine *simple crazy, demented mad *insane

Ant Rational — Con. Reasonable (see RATIONAL) *wise, judicious sage, sapient, prudent, sane sensible *logical irregular. Irregular, anomalous, unnatural come into comparison when they mean outside the sphere of that which conforms to or is explainable by, law, rule, custom, or the like Irregular implies failure to conform to a rule, a law a pattern, especially to one imposed for the sake of uniformity in method practice, or conduct, thus an irregular marriage is one that does not conform to the regulations of church or state, an irregular verse does not correspond to an accepted metrical pattern for its type, guerilla warfare is called irregular because it does not accord with the practice of civilized nations or conventional military theory, irregular conduct may or may not be morally reprehensible but it defies the code or standard of the community or class. Anomalous stresses lack of conformity to what might be expected of a thing (sometimes a person) because of the class or type to which it belongs, the laws which govern its existence, the environment in which it is found and the like Sometimes, it specifically implies inconsistency or a conflict of principles, as acts so anomalous in such startling contradiction to all our usual ways and accepted notions of life and its value (L P Smith) sometimes it specifi essential to a thing of its kind, as, ' the position of the [Roman] Senate [which had been deprived of its powers by the triumvirate] was no less anomalous and impotent" (Buchan) sometimes it suggests a contradiction between the professed aims or intentions of a person or institution and the conditions in which that person or institution exists or finds himself (itself) at a given time, as President Wilson found himself in an anomalous position when congress rejected his proposal that the United States enter the League of Nations Unnatural is the strongest of these words in its implication of censure especially when it implies a violation of natural law or of principles accepted by all civilized men as based on reason and essential to the well being of society In such cases it often specifically connotes moral perversion (as an unnatural practice), or abnormal indifference or cruelty (as, an unnatural parent) Sometimes, the word merely means contrary to what is received as natural, either because it most common of the negative forms of religious aversion" (Carlyle), ' Irreligious men whose short prospects are filled with earth, and sense and mortal life (Berkeley) Unreligious commonly implies nothing more than lack of religion it therefore usually applies to men their utterances, works etc , and suggests absence of religion or of religious training or religious ideas as If unreligious, let him be at once, Among ten thousand innocents enrolled A pupil (Wordsworth), The popular poetry became unreligious in some parts irreligious (Milman) Nonreligious applies not so much to persons as to institutions activities projects themes for art etc that are outside the sphere or province of that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly" (Psalms i 1), 'And if the righteous scarcely be saved where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear? (I Peter iv 18) that ungodly custom of swearing (Sir C. Wren) Godless, though usually closer to unreligious than to irreligious, commonly implies atheism or in some cases

Ant Religious — Con Pious *devout

irritable Irritable, fractious, peevish, snappish waspish petulant, pettish huffy, huffish, fretful, querulous apply to persons or to their moods or dispositions in the sense of manifesting impatience or anger without due or sufficient cause Irritable impl es extreme excitability of temperament often owing to a physical or nervous condition that makes one exceedingly easy to annoy or difficult to please as Mental work brings on an irritable and nervous disgust (Arnold), Byron growing irritable and fat in the enervating climate of Italy (L. P Smith) Fractious carries a stronger implication of willfulness or of ungovernableness than irritable and although it also impl es extreme excitability it suggests even greater loss of self-control the term is often applied to animals as well as to persons as the teacher found the children unduly fractious that day an extremely fractious horse Peevish implies childish irritability and a tendency to give expression to petty complaints or ill humored trivial criticisms as. The town like a peevish child knows not what it desires (Field ng) He [Gray] thought that Pope had a good heart in spite of h s peevish temper (N Nicholls) I have heard some London wits rather peevish at Macaulay s superiority complain that he occupied too much of the talk (Thackeray) Snappish impl es irritability sometimes peevishness that manifests itself in sharp cutting questions, comments or the like that discourage conversation or sociability as an extremely unlikable snappish old fellow the cook found her mistress snappish that morning Waspish stresses testiness rather than irritabil ty but it impl es a readiness to sting or hurt others without warrant or without sufficient warrant as beware of h [illegible] waspish temper her comments [illegible] they are [illegible] nature his neph [illegible] pe u ant remarks [illegible] ss to appear at the d nner table that day (Meredith) Pettish implies sulky or childish ill humor as of one who is slighted or offended as a pettish ejaculation (V Hawthorne), Chivalry is a thing which must be courteously and generously conceded and must never be pettishly claimed (A C Benson) Huffy (or now less often huffish) also impl es a tendency to take offense w thout due cause but it suggests more of a display of injured pride than pettish as when he is reproved he is huffy for the rest of the day To return a huffish answer (Dickens) Fretful implies irritability or peevishness that manifests itself in complaints or in a complaining tone of voice, as a fretful ch ld his fretfulness that afternoon disturbed the whole family Querulous impl es a profound and often hab tual discontent that manifests itself in wh ning complaints or in fretfulness of temper it often also suggests petulance as her querulous and never-ending complaints (Gaskell) the man himself grew old and querulous and hysterical with failure and repeated disappointment and chronic poverty (A Huxley)

Ana Cranky cross testy touchy techy choleric splenetic *irascible

Ant Easygo ng — Con *Amiable good-natured complaisant obliging genial sociable affable cord al *grac ous.

irritate Irritate exasperate nettle, provoke aggravate, roil (or rile) peeve agree in meaning to excite a feeling of angry annoyance in a person That wh ch irritates is something which greatly displeases or offends and evokes a display of feeling ranging from momentary impatience to an outburst of rage The chatter[illegible] rude joker [illegible] intensity [illegible] plane [illegible] Lawrence) That whic[illegible] arouses bitter or intense irritation as at something unendurable the word however sometimes expresses nothing more than keen vexation or annoyance When we turn from Owen s work to Eliot s we turn from anger to exasperation from wounds to nerves from the love of living to the will to die (Day Lewis) 'Though she could exasperate she could never offend (H G Wells) That which nettles irritates sharply but momentarily and stings or piques more than angers That which provokes awakens strong annoyance or vexation or (esp in the form provoking) teases or tantalizes [This] must be very provoking to the dign ty of some d ssent ng doctors and to nettle them still the more you in a manner impose upon them the necess ty of being silent" (Cowper) He is provoked with me for not talking more (Burney) Aggravate as equivalent to provoke has not been accepted by careful writers and is rarely used by them except when it is needed for color or as indicating the quality of the speaker It is aggravating to have you talking about so small a business (Shaw) That which roils (or colloquially riles) is that which disturbs one s serenity or peace and agitates as well as angers That his friends should believe it was what roiled him exceedingly (R. North) That which peeves (a colloquial word) excites fretfulness or a tendency to be easily irritated as he is easily peeved after a restless night

Ana *Annoy vex irk bother incense *anger madden, enrage infuriate *offend affront fret chafe (see ABRADE)

Con [illegible] pease mollify conciliate propitiate placate [illegible] ratify *please, gladden delight.

[illegible] Incurs on raid *invasion inroad.

[illegible] *Sol tude seclusion

Ana Loneliness solitariness loneness desolateness or desolation (see corresponding adjectives at ALONE) issue n Outcome upshot sequel *effect consequence result event aftereffect aftermath

Ana Ending or end term nation concluding or conclusion closing (see corresponding verbs at CLOSE)

Con *Cause antecedent determinant incept on, *origin source root issue, v Emanate proceed flow derive orig nate *spring arise rise stem

Ana Emerge *appear loom item Item, detail particular come into comparison as meaning one of the separate and distinct things which constitute a whole Item applies mainly to each th ng that is put down in a list, as of things needed things to be done things to be seen etc or in an account a record or an inventory sometimes the term applies to the actual thing as apart from the list as the bill has ten items each separate item of income (J A Hobson) The dog too went the most noble-looking item in the beggarly assets [of an estate] (Conrad) Detail (as here compared see also PART) appl es to each separate thing which enters into the bu lding or construction of something such as a house a painting a narrative or enters into the performance of a task or job the pursu t of a career the living of a life or the like often in this sense detail is contrasted with structure outline design and the like as while labouring indefatigably in the details of domestic life on a farm her outlook was large (H Ellis) "Alike in its large outl nes and its small deta ls Chinese life is always the art of balancing an aesthetic temperament and guarding against its ex cesses (H Ellis) Oftentimes, the singular form in this sense is used as a collective noun as The poet s chief aim is to communicate not the exact detail of an experience but its tone and rhythm (Day Lewis) to formulate a plan (or report an incident) in detail Particular often implies a relation to something general or often preferred to item and detail when it stresses small ness and the singleness and concreteness of each item or detail thus in law a b ll of particulars is a statement of the items of a plaintiff s cla m or a defendant s counter claim so I do not care to go into the particulars of the

Ana *Thing object article constituent component *element integrant factor itemized Detailed particularized *circumstantial m nute particular Ant Summarized

iterate *Repeat reiterate ingeminate itinerant adj Itinerant peripatetic ambulatory ambu lant nomadic vagrant agree in meaning hav ng no fixed tage itinerant preachers have over those who are stationary the latter cannot well improve their delivery of a sermon by so many rehearsals (Franklin) Peripa tetic was first used in reference to the followers of Ar stotle and the Aristotel an ph losophy because Aristotle gave instruction to h s d sciples while walk g being constantly on the go as a very peripat c young lady Ambulatory and the less common ambulant sometimes but not al vays retain their etymologica impl cation of walking in such cases, they are close synonyms of pedestrian as, a mbulatory exercise an ambulatory journey More often, however they imply as pedestrian does not ability to move about (thus, an ambulatory or ambulant pat ent is one not confined to bed or to his home) or when applied to th ngs, a lack of fixity not only in station (as an ambulatory school or reg on to another thus the Bedouins are a nomadic tribe found in the deserts of Arabia Syria and North bers of vagrant boys during the depression. adventure of listening to Gallaher's stories and of sharing for a brief space Gallaher s vagrant life" (Joyce)

Ana Wandering rov ng rambl ng straying roaming ranging (see WANDER) moving shifting (see MOVE, v)

J

jabber Jabber chatter *chat gab patter prate prattle babble gabble gibber agitation disturbance upsetting or upset (see corre spond ng verbs at DISCOMPOSE) vernacular patois lingo, cant, argot h (see LANGUAGE) abracadabra.

*journey trip tour voyage cruise pall cloy

Ant Refresh. — Con *Renew restore rejuvenate jail or gaol v Incarcerate *imprison immure intern

Ana Confine circumscribe restrict *limit shackle manacle fetter (see HAMPER)

Con Release liberate, *free

jam n *Pred cament plight fix, dilemma quandary scrape, pickle

Ana *Difficulty vicissitude pinch strait exigency (see JUNCTURE) jape n *Jest joke quip witticism wisecrack crack, exped tion p lgrimage jaunty *Debonair perky cocky chipper

Ana Sprightly *lively animated spruce dapper dash ng natty (see STYLISH)

Ant Staid demure

jaw v Upbraid *scold rate berate tonguelash, bawl out wig rail revile, vituperate.

Ana. Censure denounce, reprobate reprehend *crit cize, blame, condemn *reprove reproach, chide, reprimand rebuke jealous *Envious.

spond ng nouns at *watchful lly

ach group

jejune *Insipid vapid flat wishy washy inane banal Ana *Thin slight, slim tenuous arid *dry attenuated extenuated diluted thinned (see THIN v) *meager skimpy exiguous.
Con Lavish *profuse lush luxuriant prodigal exuberant nutritious nourishing sustaining (see corresponding nouns at FOOD) jeopardous Perilous, *dangerous hazardous, risky precarious Ana Chancy happy go-lucky hit-or miss haphazard *random Con Safe *secure defended protected shielded guarded safeguarded (see DEFEND) jeopardy Peril hazard risk, *danger Ana Threatening or threat menacing or menace (see corresponding verbs at THREATEN) exposure (see EXPOSITION) liability susceptibility sensitiveness openness (see corresponding adjectives at LIABLE) *chance accident hap Con Security safety (see corresponding adjectives at SAFE) immunity *exemption jest, n 1 Jest, joke, jape, quip, witticism wisecrack, crack gag come into comparison when they mean a remark a comment a story or sometimes an act intended to evoke laughter Jest now seldom retains its older implication of taunting jeering or other ill natured raillery (as Might he but set the rabble in a roar He cared not with what jest —Cowper) Although it still may imply raillery it carries a stronger connotation of lightness or sportiveness and suggests banter persiflage or the like as genial table-talk Or deep dispute and graceful jest (Tennyson) Joke applies not only to something that is said but quite as often to an act or incident that is intended to excite uproarious laughter as to play a joke (usually a practical joke) upon a friend When applied to a remark comment or story it usually suggests a sportive sally designed to promote good humor without wounding the feelings of its object as, He takes his chirping pint and cracks his joke (Pope) We shall have our little jokes like other people (Gray) Jape a word that had become obsolete before Spenser's and Shakespeare's time was revived by Lamb and others early in the nineteenth century and still occurs occasionally In earliest use it denoted a diverting or amusing story or anecdote (as Thomas that jape is not worth a mite —Chaucer) In its more modern use it comes nearer to jest or joke as the coy giggle of the young lady to whom he has imparted his latest merry jape (Besant) Quip applies especially to a quick neatly turned jest flung off in banter raillery or sarcasm as Quips and Cranks and wanton Wiles And Laughter holding both his sides (Milton) The whole conversation is a hailstorm of short stories quips and retorts (Lever) Witticism is the polite or bookish term wisecrack or crack the slang term for an especially clever or witty retort to a question, comment on a situation or the like There was a current witticism that you called her [a frequently divorced and remarried woman] Eudora because it was the only one of her names of the continuity of which you felt at all certain (M Austin) He has a merry tongue which articulates scientific problems with what the contemporaries of his younger days called witticisms His present contemporaries call them cracks (Time) Wise-crack dialogue of the wonderful American variety That guy's so crooked the tears run down his back was one remark (Daily Express) Gag (literally something thrust into the mouth to prevent an outcry) was originally theatrical slang for an interpolated joke or witticism or sometimes trick, or other amusing piece of business (as the performance was lengthened by the numerous gags of the comedian), in current use however it applies also to any joke witticism or the like forming a part of the script or text (as to hire an author to write the gags for the radio program) or to any amusing remark anecdote trick or the like intended to make its subject appear ridiculous or ludicrous.

Ana *Badinage persiflage raillery bantering or banter chaffing or chaff rallying or rally jollying or jolly (see corresponding verbs at BANTER) twitting or twit ridiculing or ridicule deriding or derision (see corresponding verbs at RIDICULE) 2 *Fun sport game play Ana Diversion entertainment amusement (see under AMUSE): joviality merriment (see corresponding adjectives at MERRY) — Con Seriousness earnestness soberness gravity (see corresponding adjectives at SERIOUS) jester. *Fool clown antic buffoon zany merry andrew pantaloon harlequin comedian comic stooge jewel Gem, *stone jib or gib, v Balk shy boggle stickle stick strain, *demur scruple.

jibe[1] or gibe *Agree harmonize accord conform square comport tally correspond jibe[2] Variant of gibe under SCOFF jiffy *Instant moment minute second flash trice twinkling twinkle split second jittery Jumpy nervous *impatient unquiet restless restive uneasy fidgety skittish feverish hectic Ana Unnerved unmanned (see UNNERVE) perturbed agitated disquieted upset discomposed (see DISCOMPOSE) Con Collected composed *cool imperturbable nonchalant serene placid *calm tranquil job 1 *Task, duty chare chore stint assignment Ana Office *function duty province business, concern, *affair matter thing 2 *Position, situation post place berth billet, capacity Ana *Work employment occupation pursuit métier business, calling *trade craft, handicraft art profession jocose. Jocular facetious humorous, *witty Ana. Waggish, sportive *playful roguish comic comical *laughable ludicrous, droll funny *merry jolly jovial jocund blithe.

Con *Serious earnest grave sober solemn sedate staid jocular Jocose humorous facetious *witty Ana Jovial jolly *merry *playful sportive funny droll comic comical *laughable ludicrous ridiculous Con Grave earnest solemn *serious.

jocund Blithe *merry jolly jovial.
Ana Joyful joyous cheerful lighthearted happy *glad mirthful hilarious gleeful (see corresponding nouns at MIRTH) sportive *playful, mischievous wanton Con Gloomy morose glum *sullen saturnine dour sedate grave solemn staid *serious join Join combine unite, connect, link associate relate agree in meaning to attach or fasten one thing to another or several things to each other or to become so attached or fastened Join presupposes prior separation or detachment and therefore implies a bringing or a coming together into contact or conjunction or sometimes an adding of one thing to another as to join two pieces of wood by dovetailing them to join skirt lengths by seams to join hands to join a man and woman in matrimony to join battle (that is to come together in conflict), where the Mohawk River joins the Hudson, the opponents of the proposal decided to join forces Join is the specific term when one becomes a member of a group or enters into the company of others as an equal, meal called 'brunch', to combine the training of the mind with the training of the body,' a gift for combining for fusing into a single phrase, two or more diverse impressions (T S Eliot), "With this quality of temperance was combined in Socrates a rare measure of independence and moral courage' (G L Dickinson) Unite may carry the basic implications of either join or combine but it differs from each in stressing the oneness of that which results and the loss of signs of separation or division, thus to unite two pieces of wood suggests not so much the way in which they are brought together as the fact that they comprise a new unit, one may combine the dry ingredients of a cake but they will not become united until some liquid is added 'Our peace will like a broken limb united, Grow stronger for the breaking' (Shak) 'When the ripe colours soften and unite And sweetly melt into just shade and light (Pope) "In France the whole people saw at once what was upon them, the single word patrie was enough to unite them in a common enthusiasm and stern determination' (Inge) Connect implies a loose or, at least, an obvious attachment of things to each other and the preservation not only of each thing's identity but also of the evidence of its physical or logical separateness, in this way it is distinguishable from join when physical attachment is implied thus a wall is built up of bricks joined (not connected) together by cement a chain is made by connecting a succession of steel links Often but evidence of their separateness) and yet to avoid its common connotations of a weak or severable attachment thus to link a person with a crime is, by implication, to father's conviction that they were too lowly to associate with me, when it was so clear that I was too poor to associate with them, may have had some sort of imaginary validity for him, but for me it was snobbish

"Every gesture and inflection of voice associated by tradition with the part" (Shaw) "A fir tree is not a flower, and yet it is associated in my mind with primroses" (Jefferies). Relate implies a connection, or an attempt to show a connection, between two or more persons or things In reference to persons it implies a connection through a common ancestor or through marriage (see KINSHIP) as, John and James are remotely or to persons

dents of his play in their true relations to each
'He suffers from an incapacity to relate them [i.e. poetic ideas] with any scheme of values (Day Lewis)

Ana Conjoin *unite, combine, co-operate concur articulate concatenate, *integrate attach affix *fasten knit *weave *tie bind

Ant Disjoin part. — Con. *Separate sever sunder disengage disentangle, untangle disembarrass RICATE)

*Carpenter, cabinetmaker framer

Joint, articulation, suture are comprehensive enoting a place or part where two things are r the mechanism by which they are united. Joint ost inclusive of these terms and is commonly used nce both to anatomical and mechanical struc ecifically it applies to any junction of two bones or cartilages in a vertebrate's body or to the part of the as, the knee aches in every names a con pieces so that or fit closely of union (as a nes forming a tal joint) The such as a bent iles (an elbow of each group joint) or a layer of some plastic substance … bricks, stones, pieces of c … a cement joint) Articul-

… but to the entire structure and its function It is the preferable but not always the required word when the mechanism of a joint or the elements entering into its formation are under consideration as ball and socket structure of a movable articulation various articulations are supported by ligaments the synovial membrane reduces friction at an articulation The word may also

… ence to the adjustment of the teeth and to the way in which their surfaces come together when the jaws are closed normally (as an orthodontist corrects faults in the articulation of the teeth) or to the process by which artificial teeth are shaped and arranged so that they move upon each other properly and naturally as badly constructed dentures without proper articulation Suture etymologically denotes a seam it is used therefore of any

… suture Suture is used in surgery of a seam especially of one whereby two edges of an incision are brought together so that they may ultimately unite joke, n *Jest jape quip witticism wisecrack crack gag

Ana *Prank caper antic monkeyshine dido *trick ruse wile travesty parody burlesque *caricature raillery *badinage persiflage jocoseness, jocularity facetiousness, wittiness humorousness (see corresponding adjectives at WITTY) *wit humor repartee, sarcasm jollity Hilarity glee *mirth

Ana Merriment joviality jocundity blitheness (see corresponding adjectives at MERRY) sport disport play frolic rollick gambol romp (see under PLAY v) diversion amusement recreation entertainment (see under AMUSE) *fun jest sport game play

Con Gloom dejection depression melancholy *sadness solemnity gravity seriousness earnestness staidness, sedateness (see corresponding adjectives at SERIOUS) jolly …

… sprightly

Con Solemn grave sedate staid *serious earnest lugubrious doleful dolorous *melancholy rueful morose gloomy glum *sullen dour saturnine jolly, v *Banter chaff rally quiz kid rag guy rib josh

Ana Blandish cajole (see COAX) deride, *ridicule twit rally mock taunt jolt, n Jar shock *impact impingement collision clash concussion percussion.

… aking or shake rocking or rock convulsing or … n (see corresponding verbs at SHAKE)

… Bard minstrel scop gleeman, troubadour minnesinger, scald *poet versifier rhymer poetaster

… Banter chaff rally quiz kid rag guy rib

… le iota *particle bit mite smitch smidgen

… Journal, periodical, newspaper, magazine, … can come into comparison as denoting a publication which appears regularly at stated times Strictly a journal is a publication which is issued daily and gives an account of the events transactions etc of the pre-

… three months and called itself a journal (C Mackenzie) Periodical is the strictly correct term for any publication appearing at regular intervals it applies chiefly to weeklies, biweeklies monthlies and quarterlies as the periodicals are assembled in a special room of the library Newspaper is the usual term for a sheet or group of sheets providing the news of the day and issued usually six or seven days of the week it is called a journal only in formal speech or writing although those whose profession is writing for newspapers are often termed journalists and although the language and style believed to be typical of the newspaper is commonly called journalese Magazine (etymologically storehouse) applies chiefly to a periodical often an illustrated periodical which offers a number of miscellaneous articles fiction poetry discussions of live questions descriptive sketches and the like Review applies to a periodical that specializes in critical writings or in articles commenting on the important events and the significant questions of the day Organ which specifically means a … particular principles, doctrines accomplishments aspirations or the like authoritatively as Science is the official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science journey, n Journey voyage, tour, trip jaunt, excursion, cruise expedition pilgrimage come into comparison as meaning travel or a passage from one place to another Journey is the most comprehensive term in literary or more formal colloquial use it now carries no specific implications of length or shortness of farness or nearness of destination of a specific object or purpose or of the mode of transportation as to plan a journey to California to wish one a happy journey home the journey to Italy will not take more than two months. For the Son of man is as a man taking a far journey who left his house and gave authority to his servants (Mark xiii 34) Voyage was once almost as comprehensive a term as journey but in current use it always implies a journey of

… as well as those which make voyages between Europe and America (Ch Just Marshall) Tour applies only to a journey which follows a circuitous course from place to place usually the term implies that the journey ends when one reaches one's starting point as to set out on a *pleasure, enjoyment, delectation, fruition beatitude, *happiness felicity *ecstasy transport elation exultation (see corresponding ELATED) (as emotion) misery (as a state of mind) (in concrete sense) ous, cheerful happy, *glad lighthearted jocund, *merry, jolly *elated elate buoyant, effervescent, expansive (see ELASTIC) — Con. *Despondent, despairing desperate hopeless. depressed, weighed (down) (see OPPRESS). ful, happy, *glad, cheerful lighthearted. jocund *merry exultant, *elated elate ecstatic, transported (see corresponding ECSTASY)

again its .welco from any jaunt' setting out or forth), as here compared, applies to a short trip, especially one taken for recreation or as a relief from the routine of daily life, as, "The rural neighbourhood of Sneyd where they had been making an afternoon excursion" (Bennett) Excursion is the preferred term, especially in railroad and steamship use, for a round trip at reduced rates to any point of interest, such as a resort, or an exposition or a metropolis When the excursion involves a voyage of some days or weeks and, often a sight seeing tour with frequent stops during which the participants use the ship as their living quarters cruise is the preferred term, as a Mediterranean cruise, the steamship lines are featuring winter cruises through the Caribbean Sea, their yacht is off with a party on a cruise Expedition, in current use especially implies the movement of troops especially into a foreign country to wage war (as Caesar wrote a history of his expedition into Gaul) or applies to the body of troops so moved also called expeditionary force (as, the young in questions of justice merit taste, skill performance, or the like Judge implies the assumption or the possession both of superior knowledge experience, or wisdom and of the power to determine the truth by weighing critically and impartially the merits of the case "It doth appear you are a worthy judge, You know the law your exposition Hath been most sound" (Shak) "A man who is no judge of law may be a good judge of poetry or eloquence, or of the merits of a painting" (Dryden) Arbiter stresses authoritativeness of decision and is applied to one whether or not a professed judge whose sent of mankind" which certain moralists make referee and Governor appointed as arbitrators two persons recommended by the striking miners two recommended by the mineowners and one person selected by both sides. Referee and umpire are employed chiefly in courts of law and in sports but they have some literary use In American legal use referee is applied to an attorney at law appointed either to determine a case or to report on it to the court which he serves as an officer. It is therefore clearly distinguished from arbitrator in the United States. This distinction is not commonly observed in England. Umpire on the other hand, is applied to the person selected to make a final decision when arbitrators have making decisions on plays, and the like. In most sports today either one term or the other is used: thus, these officials in baseball, cricket, tennis are designated umpires; the officials in boxing, basketball, ice hockey are designated referees. In American football, however, both terms are used: the term referee being applied to the official whose decision is final but who is especially judge of matters connected with the progress of the ball, as distinguished from the umpire, who is, in general, judge of the acts of the players.

judge, v. 1 Judge, adjudge, adjudicate, arbitrate agree in meaning to pass a decision upon something in dispute or controversy. All of these words imply the existence of a competent legal tribunal or of its equivalent. Judge is now more often used intransitively in the sense in which it is here considered: it implies mainly the investigation of evidence on both sides, a comparison of the merits of each case, and a decision as to where the truth lies: as, the court must judge between the claimants. Adjudge stresses decision by a court either at the end of a trial or during a legal process: as, the evidence was adjudged inadmissible; the court adjudged the will void; to be adjudged bankrupt; the prize was adjudged to the captor. Adjudicate, on the other hand, stresses formal deliberate determination of an issue by or as by a court: as, the court proceeded to adjudicate the rights and interests of the parties. "To obtain an adjudication of the supreme court of the United States on the validity of any such rights" (Ch. Just. Marshall). "It is useless to reargue a seemingly adjudicated case" (Lowes). Arbitrate implies deliberate determination of a matter in dispute by one or more persons who constitute an extralegal tribunal that may or may not be legally recognized and who are chosen by both sides to the controversy: as, the strikers and the employers finally agreed on a group of three men to arbitrate their differences. The decision reached through arbitration is not binding unless it is assented to by both parties or is confirmed by a competent court. On the other hand, the decision reached by an adjudication is binding unless it is reversed by a higher court.

Ana. Determine, *decide, settle, rule.

2 Conclude, deduce, *infer, gather.

Ana. *Prove, demonstrate, try, test.

judgment. 1 Conclusion, deduction, inference. See under INFER.

Ana. Decision, determination, ruling (see corresponding verbs at DECIDE): *opinion, conviction, persuasion, view, belief.

2 *Sense, wisdom, gumption.

Ana. Intelligence, wit, wits, brains, brain: *mind: sagaciousness or sagacity, perspicaciousness or perspicacity, shrewdness, astuteness (see corresponding adjectives at SHREWD): acumen, *discernment, insight, penetration: *prudence, discretion.

judicial. Judicial, judiciary, juridical (or juridic), juristic (or juristical) come into comparison because of verbal confusion and because all imply some connection with courts of law. Judicial, by far the most common of these adjectives both in legal and in general use, often implies a direct reference to the courts of justice, the judge who presides over a court of justice, or the judges who form such a court: as, a judicial decision; a judicial duty; a judicial proceeding. The term is also used in distinction from executive, legislative, etc., when applied to that one of the powers, departments, or functions of the government which is associated with that court (in the United States, the Supreme Court) which gives definitive decisions on questions of law or interprets the constitution or basic law: as, the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the government. When used in an extended sense, as applied especially to a type of mind, of mental activity, of manner, etc., the term suggests likeness to that of a judge, as in detachment or fair-mindedness, or appropriateness to a judge or court of justice, as in orderliness and seriousness of procedure: as, "To a strictly judicial mind... the quality of age or of novelty would carry no necessary implication of value" (Grandgent). Judiciary is sometimes used in place of judicial, especially when applied to a department or function of the government: "I like the organization of the government into Legislative, Judiciary and Executive" (Jefferson). In most use, however, it suggests reference to the courts in general and to the administration of justice as a whole: thus, a judicial act is an act involving the exercise of the power vested in a judge or court to hear and determine controversies or to determine a question of right or obligation; a judiciary act is a legislative act respecting the establishment or reform of the courts; a judicial question is one that requires settlement by a judge or court; a judiciary question is one that concerns the jurisdiction or powers of a court or the courts or the administration of justice by the courts. Judiciary is the only one of these terms now used as a substantive; so used, it is a collective noun for judges as a class or for courts of justice. It may also be used in opposition to legislature and executive (as a noun). The last two words, juridical and juristic, imply a connection with the law, especially as it is administered in the courts, rather than with the judges or those who settle questions of law. Often these terms come close to legal in meaning, but in learned use (they seldom occur elsewhere) they are more restricted in significance. Both terms, but especially juridical, imply a reference to the law as it appears to learned lawyers and judges—that is, as a highly complex and involved body of principles, statutes, decisions, precedents, and the like, requiring vast knowledge, skill in interpretation, and a keen logical mind in those who put it to use; therefore, the term often means characteristic of, determinable by, or useful to a person with such knowledge and skill: as, juridical reasoning; juridical evidence. "Not Peace to depend on the juridical determination of perplexing questions" (Burke). "Foreigners in Turkey: Their Juridical Status" (title of a book by Philip Marshall Brown). Juristic implies rather a reference to the science of law: as, "[Justice] Holmes had struck in 1905 in his dissent in Lochner v. N. Y. the high pitch of American juristic thought" —The New Republic. It is, however, more often used in another sense in describing a legal person (a juristic—less often a juridical—person) that is a corporation, body, or state which is recognized by the law as a subject of rights and duties in the same manner as a human being.

☞ Do not confuse judicial with judicious.

judiciary. *Judicial, juridical, juristic.

judicious. *Wise, sage, sapient, prudent, sensible, sane.

Ana. *Rational, reasonable: just, *fair, equitable, dispassionate, objective: sagacious, perspicacious, astute, *shrewd: discreet, prudent (see under PRUDENCE).

Ant. Injudicious: asinine. — Con. *Foolish, silly, absurd, preposterous: *stupid, dull, dumb, crass, dense: rash, reckless, foolhardy (see ADVENTUROUS).

jumble, n. *Confusion, disorder, chaos, disarray, clutter, pie, snarl, muddle.

jumpy. Jittery, nervous, restless, uneasy, fidgety: *impatient, unquiet, restive, skittish, feverish, hectic.

Ant. Steady.

juncture. Juncture, pass, exigency, emergency, contingency, pinch, strait, straits, crisis agree in denoting a critical or crucial time or state of affairs in the life of a person or institution, the history of a country, or the carries a stronger implication of the state of affairs pass to which destiny had brought her, had said that she unforeseen character of the juncture; the term may or may not imply that what constitutes an emergency has juncture occurs in personal affairs or is not as severe or or fettered is be by some given or implied set of circum the matter to a crisis He said, after all the boy had a right to choose' (M. Austin); "this crisis will be ... nted if the Church has the faith and courage and ... e all, the common honesty, to face it candidly ...)

. *State posture situation condition status *predicament, plight, quandary

v. Scrap, *discard cast, shed molt, exuviate ... h

. Faction ring, cabal bloc *combination combine, party.

, *set

Juristic, *judicial judiciary

... ver, authority, control, command sway, ...

Ana Limits bounds confines (see singular nouns at LIMIT) *range scope compass reach circuit, ambit, periphery (see CIRCUMFERENCE) province office *function duty domain territory, province *field.

Juridical *judicial judiciary

... ight, honorable, conscientious, ... rtuous, righteous *moral ethical ... ndable, tried trustworthy ... ous, oblique corrupt perverted (see under DEBASE) *base low

... mpartial, unbiased, dispassionate uncolored objective

Ana Detached, disinterested, aloof (see INDIFFERENT)

... ghtful condign *rational reasonable

... njust

because he was a lover of justice ... quality of mind which exhibits adherence to this ideal (as Nothing escaped the kind eyes the far seeing love ... that calm justice which ...

justice its subtle gradations . has all the qualities of the finest Velasquez —H Ellis), or to the treatment accorded one who has transgressed a law—divine law natural law the law of a state etc —or who seeks relief rather than with what is merely legal It is in ...

abstract justice might not be dealt out according to the any principle of equity justify 1 Vindicate defend *maintain assert Ana *Prove demonstrate *support uphold, back.

Con *Disprove refute confute

2 Account for rationalize *explain

Ana *Excuse condone *exculpate exonerate absolve acquit vindicate extenuate gloze gloss, whitewash *palliate

Con Incriminate indict arraign *accuse condemn denounce blame (see CRITICIZE)

3 Justify, warrant are here compared as meaning to afford as evidence a circumstance a situation a state of says that more men are killed by overwork than the importance of this world justifies (Kipling), no consid-

(V Hesse)

Ana Allow permit (see LET) sanction (see APPROVE) *authorize juvenile *Youthful puerile boyish virgin virginal maiden

Ana *Immature unmatured unfledged callow green crude (see RUDE)

Ant Adult senile — Con *Mature matured full fledged

*Adjacent adjoining contiguous abutting terminous near nigh.

K

keen, adj 1 *Sharp acute

Ana Piercing penetrating, probing (see ENTER) *pungent poignant piquant cutting biting *incisive trenchant.

Ant Blunt — Con *Dull obtuse

2 *Eager avid agog a tiptoe athirst anxious

Ana Ardent fervent fervid perfervid (see IMPASSIONED) *intense, vehement fired inflamed enkindled (see LIGHT v)

Con Apathetic *impassive stolid, phlegmatic unintererested *disinterested listless, *languid unconcerned incurious, *indifferent keen, v Wail weep *cry whimper blubber

Ana Lament bewail bemoan (see DEPLORE) mourn sorrow *grieve keep, v 1 Keep observe celebrate solemnize, commemorate come into comparison only when they mean to pay proper attention or honor to something prescribed obligatory or demanded by one's nationality religion rank or the like They are however not close synonyms except in smaller groups because they vary widely in their range of reference or application Keep and observe are closely synonymous terms especially when they honors when these ideas are definitely to be suggested. observe is the precise term even though keep would otherwise be possible as few persons observe (better than keep) the Sabbath in the manner of the early Puritans they observe (better than keep) Passover (or Lent) with the utmost strictness he observes (not keeps) the letter of the law the veterans of the World War observe Memorial Day Celebrate and solemnize are also close synonyms because they may take as their objects not only a day a season or an occasion which for religious political or other significant reasons is observed with pomp and ceremony but also a ceremony or rite (usually a religious ceremony or rite) that is marked with unusual dignity and splendor Celebrate, however except in certain occasion suggests greater formality and gravity in observance and greater dignity and splendor of ceremony than celebrate ' This blessed day Ever in France shall be kept festival To solemnize this day the glorious sun Stays in his course" (Shak). "We solemnize this sorrowing natal day To prove our loyal truth" (Burns) Commemorate in strict use always implies remembrance, as here compared, it also suggests observances that tend to call to mind what the day, the season, the ceremony, or whatever is celebrated, stands for, thus, one celebrates Christmas by religious ceremonies that commemorate the birth of Christ, the people of the United States commemorate the birth of their independence on the 4th of July; the French people commemorate the fall of the Bastille on the 14th of July.

Ana analog

2 Sometimes keep back. Keep, keep back, retain, detain, withhold, reserve, hold back, as here compared, agree in meaning not to let go from one's possession, custody, or control Keep is the most general of these terms often carrying no further implications, as, keep back, implies a delay in letting go from one's possession back) the advice he longed to give Sometimes keep and withhold are widely different in meaning, thus to with- the fund intact"—Bennett, to reserve one's judgment) the truth in giving testimony

Ana *Save preserve conserve hold *have.

enjoy, possess, own control direct, manage *conduct

Ant. Relinquish — Con. *Discard, cast, junk refuse reject, repudiate spurn (see DECLINE v)· surrender abandon, resign, yield (see RELINQUISH) keep, n *Living, livelihood, subsistence, sustenance maintenance, support, bread ken, n Purview, *range, reach, scope, compass, sweep gamut, radius horizon, orbit.

Ana. *Field, sphere, province, domain· view, sight (see LOOK, n, 1) kibitzer. Onlooker, looker-on bystander *spectator observer, beholder, witness eyewitness.

kick, v *Object, protest, remonstrate expostulate

Ana. *Oppose, combat, resist, withstand *crit cize denounce, condemn· objurgate, *execrate curse damn ematize

Rally, chaff, *banter, rag guy rib josh jolly

Tease, plague, pester, harry, *worry kidnap. *Abduct.

kidney. Kind, sort, *type, nature description character stripe, ilk.

kill, v Kill, slay, murder, assassinate, dispatch means of death or the conditions attending the pu to death Also the object of the action may be not only story (that is prevented its publication) ' He believed that time that the League of Nations was going to kill war, that the Labour Party were going to kill industrial inequity" (R Macaulay) Slay implies killing by force or in wantonness, it is rare in spoken English but it often love again and the great love she now was slaying (R Macaulay) Murder definitely implies a motive and often premeditation and imputes to the act a criminal character it is the exact word to use in reference to one person killing another either in passion or in cold blood, as, Macbeth murdered Duncan Thomas à Becket archbishop of Canterbury, was murdered in his own cathedral It is sometimes used in place of kill as more expressive or in place of slay as more brutally treachery and often by an agent (somet appointed agent) or hireling of an opposition It usually suggests an attempt to get rid of a person who is believed (often fanatically) to be an obstacle to the safety of a tyrant the welfare of a people the liberty of a nation or the success of a design as Marat was assassinated by Charlotte Corday at least two attempts were made to assassinate William of Orange the assassination of President Lincoln Dispatch also suggests an attempt to get rid of a person by killing him but it is far more colorless than assassinate It nearly always implies taking direct means of killing as by shooting or stabbing and so sometimes connotes expedition or speed in killing or in ending suffering Edmund I think is gone In pity of his misery to dispatch His [Gloucester's] nighted life (Shak) And the company shall stone them with stones, and dispatch them with their swords (Ezekiel xxiii. 47) Oftentimes however it is merely a euphemism for any of the terms of this group when quick killing or a sudden end is implied Meanwhile Hercules has (contrary to the usual belief that Seneca [the dramatist] murders all his victims in full view of the audience) despatched Lycus off-stage (T S Eliot) Execute is the term for putting to death one who has been condemned to such a fate by a legal or military process or sometimes by summary action of a group as to execute the convicted assassin by hanging kind, n *Type sort, nature description character stripe kidney kind, adj Kind kindly benign, benignant agree in meaning having or exhibiting a nature that is gentle considerate and inclined to benevolent or beneficent actions As here compared they are chiefly but not exclusively applied to persons and to their acts and utterances Kind and kindly both imply possession of qualities appropriate to man as a rational sensitive and social being such as interest in others welfare sympathy humaneness and the like The two words are often used interchangeably without loss as, a kind (or kindly) person. Nevertheless especially in current usage they tend to be distinguished kind implying reference to a disposition to be sympathetic and helpful and kindly to the expression of a benevolent sympathetic or helpful nature mood or impulse thus he has a kind (better than kindly) heart he takes a kindly (not kind) interest in ambitious boys be kind (not kindly) to animals the kindly (better than kind) ministrations of a nurse a severe but kind (or kindly if the emphasis is on his acts rather than his nature) teacher kindly words of advice The kindest man The best-condition d and unwearied spirit In doing courtesies (Shak) Ring in the valiant man and free The larger heart the kindlier hand! (Tennyson) Benign (see also FAVORABLE) and benignant stress mildness serenity and mercifulness more than do kind and kindly they also often imply graciousness and therefore are more frequently applied to superiors than to equals when they are used to describe persons their acts, utterances policies or the like as a benign master The meek, benign and lacerated face [of the crucified Jesus] (Wordsworth) the benign rule of a benevolent despot a benignant influence Strange peace and rest fell on me from the presence Of a benignant Spirit standing near (E R Sill)

Ana Benevolent, *charitable humane altruistic, philanthropic humanitarian sympathetic, warm warmhearted responsive *tender compassionate clement lenient indulgent, merciful *forbearing tolerant *amiable good natured complaisant obliging

Ant Unkind — Con Cruel inhuman *fierce savage fell harsh *rough *grim implacable unrelenting merciless kindle Enkindle ignite fire, inflame *light.

Ana. *Blaze, flame flare glow *provoke excite stimulate arouse rouse *stir *incite foment instigate Ant Smother, stifle.

kindly Benign benignant *kind

Ana *Gracious cordial genial affable sociable *amiable good natured complaisant obliging friendly neighborly (see AMICABLE) considerate *thoughtful attentive.

Ant Unkindly acrid (of temper attitudes comments etc) — Con. Malevolent, malign *malicious spiteful.

kindred. *Related cognate allied affiliated Ant Alien.

kingly Kingly, regal, royal, queenly, imperial, princely come into comparison as meaning of, relating to or befitting one who occupies a throne Kingly (derived from Old English) regal (derived from Latin) and royal (derived from Old French) are often interchanged especially when used in reference to a monarch who is called king (as the kingly regal or royal power) but usage shows a preference for kingly when the reference is to the personal or ideal character of a king to his feelings, disposition aims, actions or the like (as kingly courtesy kingly condescension Leave kingly backs to cope with kingly cares —Cowper) for regal when the reference is to the king s office or the state or pomp which accompanies the exercise of his powers (as regal ceremonies regal interchanges of courtesies regal functions) and for royal when the reference is to persons or things associated with the king either as a person or as a monarch but not necessarily involving magnificence or display (as, the royal family royal rank the royal residences royal domains a royal society is one under the patronage of the king or members of his family) Figuratively kingly carries the strongest implication of dignity and nobility (as kingly pride kingly qualities) regal of magnificence or majestic character (as, a regal feast regal trees — Lytton) royal of superlative excellence (as a royal welcome to have had a royal time royal entertainment) Queenly is used in place of kingly when the reference is directly to a person who is the female sovereign (in place of a king) or is the consort of a king as queenly courtesy queenly prerogatives. But when the reference is to the office the family of the queen or to anything to which regal and royal are normally applied the latter adjectives are used without reference to the sex of the sovereign Imperial suggests reference to a monarch who is called emperor or empress as His Imperial Majesty an imperial court the imperial power In extended use the term commonly implies a more awe-inspiring quality than kingly (as imperial pride imperial condescension) and more pomp and grandeur than regal or royal (as imperial banquets imperial palaces) Princely implies reference to one who is called a prince in any sense but especially to one who is so called as the monarch of a principality or as the heir to a royal throne or as a male member of the immediate royal family as the representative of the princely power' (S Austin) Among the princely houses of Western Europe (Freeman) In its extended use princely often carries a strong implication of sumptuousness (as two princely temples, rich with painting and many-colored marble —Macaulay) or of opulence or munificence (as, he had been told to spend his princely allowance in a princely manner and to return home with a gallery of masterpieces — E Wharton) kinship Kinship, affinity consanguinity cognation agnation, enation are here compared only in their technical senses. All designate family relationship Kinship is the most general denoting relationship either by blood or by marriage it also is the richest in connotations.

usually suggesting closeness in feeling and in interests Affinity refers to connection by marriage, consanguinity, to connection by blood Cognation is equivalent to consanguinity but is rarely used today, agnation implies relationship either, as in Civil law exclusively through males or as in English and Scots law, through one s father; enation implies relationship on one's mother's side knack. Bent, turn, *gift, faculty, aptitude, genius, talent Ana. *Ability, capacity capability aptness readiness quickness (see corresponding adjectives at QUICK) facility, dexterity, ease, *readiness Ant Ineptitude

knit, v *Weave crochet, braid plait tat Ana. *Join, connect, link unite knotty. Intricate involved, complicated *complex knowing Alert bright, smart, *intelligent, clever, quick-witted, brilliant Ana. *Shrewd astute, perspicacious, sagacious *watchful vigilant, alert discerning observing or observant perceiving or perceptive (see corresponding verbs at SEE) Con. Obtuse, *dull, blunt dense, crass, *stupid knowledge. Knowledge, science, learning, erudition,

[illegible]

ence from such facts or accepted on good grounds as

[illegible]

lated knowledge' (J W Krutch) Science (see also ART, 3) was often in the past and is still occasionally employed as a close synonym of knowledge, as ' All this new science that men lere [teach] (Chaucer) In current use it commonly applies only to the (or a) body of systematized knowledge dealing with facts gathered over a long period and by numerous persons as a result of observation and experiment and with the general truths or laws, derived by inference from such facts The term usually connotes more exactness and more rigorous testing of conclusions than knowledge does and therefore

[illegible]

but it is more often employed in reference to those who devote themselves to the study of languages, literature,

[illegible]

cation of the possession of profound or recondite or bookish knowledge than does learning but often the terms are employed as if they were equivalent in meaning, as, "I arrived at Oxford with a stock of erudition that might have puzzled a doctor (Gibbon), it does not seem to me fitting ..that one layman, with no special erudition in that subject, should publicly express his views" (T S Eliot) Scholarship implies the possession

[illegible]

scholarship (H Ellis) Information may or may not apply to knowledge gained by haphazard methods for the term carries no specific implication regarding the

[illegible]

in essays It is the business of a university to impart solid knowledge" (F Harrison) 'The theme-writing high school student could scarcely be sent there [to Hawthorne s 'Scarlet Letter] for information regarding the manners and dress and interiors of Puritan society' (Cather) "What we need [in understanding Dante s mind] is not information but knowledge the first step to knowledge is to recognize the differences between his form of thought and feeling and ours" (T S Eliot) Lore is sometimes used in poetry in place ... but more often in current English it applies ... of special or out-of the-way knowledge ... a particular subject (such as plant life the habits of birds etc) possessed by an individual ... anecdotal

[illegible]

...orance

*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

L

labor or labour, n 1 *Work, toil travail swink drudgery grind Ana *Effort exertion pains trouble endeavor striving struggle (see under ATTEMPT v) Con *Rest repose relaxation leisure ease recreation, diversion amusement entertainment (see under AMUSE) inactivity idleness inertness or inertia passiveness (see corresponding adjectives at INACTIVE) 2 Travail *childbirth parturition delivery accouchement laborer. Workingman workman *worker craftsman handicraftsman, mechanic, artisan operative hand roustabout.

labyrinth Labyrinth maze come into comparison when they mean an exceedingly tortuous path or course or a highly complicated arrangement of paths or courses (literal or figurative) which it is difficult or impossible to follow without a means of guidance Labyrinth was originally applied to an enclosure of intricate design constructed by Daedalus for Minos, King of Crete for confining the Minotaur from which Theseus was able to escape because he was guided by a clew or ball of thread provided by Ariadne the king s daughter In its extended use the term implies structural intricacy, the result of many divergences from a straight course or of many convolutions. It is therefore applied to the bony and membranous part of the internal ear to portions of the cortex of the kidney and to other anatomical structures manifesting a s milar complexity as well as to any h ghly complicated arrangement or design in which involved paths, l nes grooves and the like are resorted to for an artistic or utilitarian end as, arranged plantations w th dry and pleasant walks and labyrinths and artificial echoes (L. P Smith), by means of a labyrinth of channels, it was found possible to avoid the flooding of the lowlands. In purely figurative use, labyrinth often suggests almost hopeless involvement or extreme difficulty in escaping as, he was trying to find his way through the labyrinth of passion through which he was wandering (Hlside) Maze suggests not confusing convolutions but a confusing and bewildering network it implies so many poss bilities or so many false leads that one is bewildered or constantly baffled or frustrated by finding oneself in a blind alley or at a dead end as the maze at Hampton Court the older sect on of the city was a maze of streets lost in the mazes of philosophy the maze of educative forces that have made the child what it is (H Suzzallo) lack, n Lack absence privation defect want. All of these words except absence often imply deficiency or a falling short but in their abstract senses in which they are here compared they denote the fact or the state of being without something expressed or implied Because of th s dual and confus ng use, lack usually requires qualification to express total ty as he shows an e tire lack of courtesy complete lack of rest for three days Absence however is unequ vocal it is therefore usually preferred in careful discourse. Mark s inward d scontent not so much d scontent as absence of content for it was rather a sp ritual emptiness (C Mackenzie) Absolute l berty is absence of restraint (H Adams) Privation (as here compared see also POVERTY) is chiefly in philosoph cal use it is there employed in defining a word a concept or an dea expressing a negative state or qual ty in terms of its opposite or positive word concept, or idea. Privation therefore suggests the absence of all the marks attributes or characters implied in the positive as cold is the privation of heat darkness is the privation of light Defect, like lack sometimes connotes inadequacy as here compared it (and often its derivative defective) impl es the absence in something either of characters al en to its nature or of a quality or an element necessary to its completeness or perfection Either sex alone Is half itself and in true marriage each fulfills Defect in each (Tennyson) Be mine the privilege to supplement defect Give dumbness voice (Browning) Want impl es either the absence of something essential or indispensable or a deficiency in the supply as For want of a na l the shoe is lost for want of a shoe the horse is lost, for want of a horse the rider is lost (Herbert) The battle was over and but for want of fresh troops the Afghans would have been wiped off the earth (Kipling) this want of foresight and care (Ch Just Taney) the poet s want of taste (Quiller Couch) Want also is applicable to a need that is felt or apprehended by the person or persons concerned and so often comes closer to desire or wish than to need as it is difficult to sat sfy all his wants he has few wants Ana *Need necessity exigency deficiency (see corresponding adjective DEFICIENT) exhaustion impoverishment draining depletion (see corresponding verbs at DEPLETE) Con Sufficiency adequacy competence (see corresponding adjectives at SUFFICIENT) abundance ampleness copiousness plentifulness plenteousness or plenty (see corresponding adjectives at PLENTIFUL) *excess superfluity surplus lack, v Lack want, need, require are here compared as meaning to be without something especially something essent al or greatly to be des red Lack may imply either an absence of that something or a shortage in the supply or amount as to lack a knowledge of French the house lacks a back stairway the army lacked tanks and air planes as well as rifles they are not lacking in food or comforts Good counsellors lack no cl ents (Shak) Several establishments lacked tenants (Bennett) Want frequently but not invariably adds to lack the impl cation of pressing desire or of urgent necess ty The sense here cons dered is not always clearly distinguishable from the sense (of want) as discriminated at DESIRE For th s reason need is often preferred when a clear connotation of urgent necessity is desirable thus he cannot get the rest l e needs (rather than wants) like an angry hive of bees That want their leader (Shak) the house wants pa nting those children want manners Need usually throws the emphasis on urgent necessity rather than on absence or shortage though both implications are commonly found as that fam ly needs food and clothing the country needs the services and support of every citizen the letter needs no reply but it would be courteous to acknowledge it That woman needs a lesson Gideon. She s a public nuisance (R Macaulay) Require (as here compared see also DEMAND) differs from need usually in he ghtening the implication of urgent necessity (as Great acts require great means of enterprise —Milton the Doctor required a few days of complete rest —Dickens) and sometimes in suggesting the im portunity of urgent desire or craving (as, Surely it does not require a palace to be happy with Mary —Irving) Con. *Have, hold possess, own enjoy lackadaisical Listless spiritless, enervated *languid languishing languorous.

Ana *Indifferent unconcerned incurious indolent slothful fainéant *lazy inert *inactive passive supine idle *sentimental romantic enervated emasculated (see UNNERVE) Con Energetic strenuous *vigorous lusty dynamic live *active laconic Succinct terse *concise summary pithy compendious Ana Curt brusque (see BLUFF) *brief short Ant Verbose. — Con *Wordy prolix diffuse loquacious *talkative voluble garrulous lacuscular Lacustrine *aquatic fluvial fluviatile marine oceanic thalassic neritic pelagic abyssal bathysmal bathybic.

lacustrine, lacustrian Lacuscular *aquatic, fluvial fluviatile marine oceanic thalassic neritic pelagic, abyssal bathysmal bathybic.

lade, v *Dip bail scoop ladle spoon dish lading Freight cargo *load burden ladle, v Scoop spoon dish *dip lade bail lady Woman *female ladylike. Feminine womanly womanlike *female womanish effeminate Ana *Gentle genteel dainty fastidious finical particular *nice fashionable modish smart chic *stylish *decorous proper seemly comme il faut demure lag Loiter, dawdle dally dillydally *delay procrastinate Ana Slow slacken retard *delay tarry linger wait *stay Con Hurry hasten *speed quicken accelerate lager. *Beer bock ale stout porter laggard, adj Dilatory *slow leisurely deliberate.

Ana Dawdling dallying dillydallying loitering delaying procrastinating (see DELAY) *lethargic sluggish comatose phlegmatic apathetic *impassive Ant Prompt quick — Con Alert wide awake vigilant *watchful *fast swift rapid fleet speedy expeditious lambent Beaming beamy luminous *bright brilliant radiant lustrous effulgent refulgent lucent Ana Gleaming glistening shimmering glimmering (see FLASH v) lament, v *Deplore bewail bemoan Ana Weep keen wail *cry *grieve mourn sorrow Ant Exult rejoice

lampoon, n *Libel skit, squib pasquinade land, v *Alight light perch roost Ana Arrive *come *reach gain achieve attain landing field *Airport airdrome airfield flying field lane. Byway alley alleyway roadway *road street highway highroad avenue boulevard terrace, drive parkway thoroughfare language 1 Language, dialect, tongue speech, idiom are here compared only as denoting a body or system of words and phrases used by a people a nation or group of nations or other considerable community Among philologists, the distinctions in meaning of some of these terms are still a matter of controversy it is not the purpose of this article to enter into those debates but to indicate the meanings that these terms have acquired through usage Language may be employed as a general term for any medium of communication whether it utilizes a body of words or sounds gestures facial expressions, and the like as the inarticulate language of a baby However in the specific sense here considered the term refers to a body of words that by long use (commonly over a widespread territory) has become the means whereby the ideas or feelings of the individual members of that community are communicated or expressed, specifically the term suggests more or less fixity in meaning in pronunciation in methods of combining words or of making compounds and the like it usually but not invariably connotes the existence of a standard determined by the usage of the best writers and speakers as, German is the language of Prussians, Bavarians, Saxons Austrians some Swiss, and various other peoples dead languages such as Latin and ancient Greek [illegible]

[illegible] (see also DIALECT 1) is purely a technical term used by philologists in place of language to denote specifically one of a number of languages which retain obvious signs of [illegible]

[illegible] has not continuously denoted the spoken language in fact tongue differs from language chiefly in its being applicable to a dialect a patois an argot (for these terms, see DIALECT 1) as well as to the fixed or standard form as The language her [Sarah O Jewett s] people speak [illegible]

[illegible] aspiration (F D Roosevelt) On the other hand speech, with rare exceptions always means spoken language or tongue or as in modern technical use the language (under consideration) as it is spoken as, People of [illegible] ... There are at least two [illegible]

[illegible] The histories of all our former wars are transmitted to us in our vernacular idiom (Addison) On the spot I read the classics of the Tuscan idiom (Gibbon) In current use idiom applies to the private or peculiar [illegible] literary school, or [illegible]

[illegible] argot patter slang

2 Language vocabulary phraseology phrasing diction style are associated rather than synonymous terms when they are used as meaning oral or written expression or a quality of such expression that is dependent on the variety or arrangement or expressiveness of words. Language as here considered may apply to any form of verbal expression with reference to the words employed I ...

... to their

... or to any of the qualities which speech or writing may derive from the choice and arrangement of words, as the plain language of Quakers he avoided harsh language in dealing with his children Language grave and majestic but of vague and uncertain import (Macaulay) When I read Shakespeare I am struck with wonder That such trivial people should muse and thunder In such lovely language (D H Lawrence) Vocabulary, when used in reference to verbal expression calls attention only to the extent or variety of the writer s or speaker's stock of words or to the sources from which such a stock is derived as, the range of his vocabulary of vituperation was unsurpassed Little has changed [in modern as distinguished from medieval discussion of fundamental problems] except the vocabulary and the method (H Adams) In the vocabulary of the English Bible sixty per cent [of the words] are native (G P Marsh) people with a dignity of port an amplitude of back, an emphasis of vocabulary (L P Smith) Phraseology or phrasing is sometimes used in place of vocabulary when the reader's attention is called especially to its idiomatic or peculiar character (as eccentricities of phraseology [or phrasing]) but in very precise use phraseology in particular stresses the grouping (often the conventional grouping) of words as much as their choice as, one can say in the phraseology of the sentimentalist that one loves nature the phraseology rather than the vocabulary of Donne offers difficulty to the inexperienced reader Men according to their habits and professions, have a phraseology of their own (Burke) the gaudiness and inane phraseology of many modern writers (Wordsworth) Diction calls attention to the choice and arrangement of words with reference to their expression of ideas or emotions The term is used commonly of the considered language of poetry literary prose oratory or the like and it usually therefore implies selection or arrangement with reference to such ends as impressiveness elegance and beauty of sound as, In the sure and flawless perfection of his [Milton s] rhythm and diction he is as admirable as Vergil or Dante (Arnold) He was in a high fever while he was writing and the blood and thunder magazine diction he adopted did not calm him (Kipling) The Romantic movement in England destroyed the convention of a special ized poetic diction (Day Lewis) In current use diction often applies not only to this quality as shown in orations or public addresses, but to a vocal quality evident in delivery as in acting singing or speaking which implies effectiveness in elocution, correct pronunciation of words and pleasant enunciation Though this sense is often questioned it is used by some good writers as Notice the diction of French acting It is the sense and not the sentiment of the verse or prose that is savored by the actor ... audience (Brownell) Style ...

... or emotions or ... in words as distinct from or as distinguishable from the thoughts, emotions etc. expressed It is sometimes thought of as a structure and diction peculiar to an age or a literary type and found in each representative work of that time and type as, the Renaissance epic style is based upon that of Vergil a poem writte... though ...

and dic...
acterist...
and hei...
exciteme...
as to adc... he believ... a certain absolute and unique manner of expressing a thing in all its intensity and color' (Pater) "His [Addison s] style with its free unaffected movement its clear distinctness its graceful transitions its delicate harmon... ateness of tone ... of Adc...
As tec... touch ... of hum... languic...
cal lis ... meaning lacking ... when applied to things the appearance of it Languid usually implies an unwillingness or an inability to exert oneself owing to fatigue exhaustion, or physical weakness as the long illness had left her languid and in drooping spirits the intense heat made everyone too languid for play, Archer was struck by something languid and inelastic in her attitude and wondered if the deadly monotony of their lives had laid its weight on her also (E Wharton) Languishing has been much affected in its meaning, especially in its connotations by its frequent application to ladies to lovers or to expressions and acts of love and the like in sentimental novels and poems particularly of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries For this reason the term now seldom suggests its once common implication of actual physical weakness such as that which results from a long or severe illness as, He was now in so languishing a state that his death seemed to be very near' (Bp Burnet) Rather it connotes either the appearance of delicacy or of indolence especially of delicacy or indolence once associated with high breeding or the appearance of faintness as though one were swooning under the stress of emotion or longing as languishing Spanish beauties a languishing gaze a languishing embrace Languorous, like languishing now seldom implies debility arising from illness or disease (as To wile the length from languorous hours and draw The sting from pain —Tennyson) for it far more often carries a suggestion of languidness and delicacy acquired through soft living through shrinking from exertion or through sentimentalism or overindulgence in tender or amorous emotions as a languorous gait languorous black eyes Miss Mitchell [in Gone with the Wind] sought out rich words with which to re-create the languorous stilling beauty of the Old South (Springfield [Mass] Republican) Lackadaisical on the other hand has followed the reverse order in its change of meaning Once the term carried the present meaning of languishing but with a stronger connotation of insipid sentimentality (as, His [Byron s] utter contempt of all the affectations of literature from the school magisterial style to the lackadaisical —Scott) it now far more often implies a carefree or indifferent attitude that either forbids exertion or makes for futile piddling or halfhearted and indolent efforts as The sheep on the ... asleep and chewed ...
Ou...
pres...
the ...
Rep... weak... physical ... implies either a lack grown thin white and listless within the past two months He was struck by her listless attitude she sat there as if she had nothing else to do (E Wharton) Spiritless implies the loss or the absence of the animation qualities or powers essential to the vigorous exercise of the will and the intellect Often, but not necessarily it sickly hab ts of the literary class (Emerson)

Ana *Lethargic sluggish comatose stuporous torpid phlegmatic apathetic *impassive inert *inactive supine

Ant Vivacious chipper

languishing *Languid languorous listless lackadaisical spiritless enervated

Ana Weakened enfeebled debilitated (see WEAKEN) indolent fainéant (see LAZY) inert *inactive supine *sentimental romantic pining longing yearning (see LONG v)

Ant Thriving flourishing unaffected — Con Robust *healthy sound hale *vigorous energetic lusty *natural artless unsophisticated naïve languor *Lethargy lassitude stupor torpor torpidity

Ana Exhaustion fatigue weariness (see corresponding verbs at TIRE) ennui doldrums *tedium depression blues, dumps vapors (see SADNESS)

Ant Alacrity — Con *Celerity legerity quickness promptness readiness (see corresponding adjectives at QUICK) zest gusto (see TASTE) languorous Languishing *languid listless lackadaisical spiritless enervated

Ana Leisurely laggard *slow dilatory indolent slothful fainéant (see LAZY) passive inert *inactive supine relaxed slack lax *loose pampered indulged (see INDULGE)

Ant Vigorous (of persons moods etc) strenuous (of times seasons etc) lank, lanky Gaunt rawboned *lean spare angular scrawny skinny

Ana *Thin slim slender slight attenuated extenuated (see THIN v)

Ant Burly — Con Husky brawny *muscular sinewy plump portly rotund chubby *fleshy stout lapse, n 1 Slip *error mistake blunder faux pas bull howler boner bloomer floater

Ana *Offense sin, vice crime *fault failing frailty foible transgression *breach violation trespass

2 Relapse backsliding recidivation recidivism See under LAPSE v

Ana *Deterioration decline declension decadence degeneration devolution retrograding or retrogradation, receding or recession (see corresponding verbs at RECEDE) retrogressiveness or retrogression regressiveness or regression (see corresponding adjectives at BACKWARD)

Con Advance progress (see under ADVANCE, v) *development, evolution.

lapse v Lapse, relapse, backslide, recidivate and their ... nding nouns, lapse, relapse, backsliding, recidi... nd recidivism are comparable when they mean ... ack into a state or condition from which one has raised oneself or has been raised or the act or state of one who has so fallen back As distinguished from decline degenerate deteriorate and the like these verbs do not effected but not irreparable return to the earlier bad or lower state or condition Both lapse and relapse etymologically imply a sliding or slipping but they are suggests merely a sudden failure of the memory or the influence of habit or tradition or the pressure of an overwhelming emotion as it is easy for the person who has acquired good manners by effort to lapse into old ways culpability is strongly implied the word st ll in comparison to the other terms in the group often connotes extenuating circumstances it is therefore the fitting choice when the context indicates such circumstances as he constantly fought his tendency to lapse into easy-lapse may not condemn the man wholly for it (S Alex men of science They have relapsed into pre-scien...

synonym they are restricted in their reference to ... and relig ous lapses They therefore often suggest recreancy or apostasy and the abandonment of a faith or of principles once professed Turn O backsliding children, saith the Lord (Jeremiah iii 14) Did not I backslide into intemperance and folly (Marryat) Recidivate and recidivation are now rarely if ever used for relapse and reformed criminals and therefore stresses reve...

former state rather than a failure to continue in the direction of reformation as the statistics of recidivism among discharged prisoners are a matter of much concern to penologists

Ana Revert *return slip *slide deteriorate degenerate decline (see corresponding nouns at DETERIORATION) *descend *recede retrograde Con. Progress *advance develop *mature.

larcener. Thief robber burglar See under THEFT larceny. *Theft robbery burglary lard. Suet tallow *adipose marrow large Large, big great agree in meaning above the average of its kind in magnitude especially physical magnitude Large however is preferred when the dimensions, or extent, or capacity or quantity or amount is being considered as a large lot a large hall a large basket a large meal a large allowance Big on the other hand is preferred when the emphasis is on bulk or mass or weight or volume as a big book a big pile the box is too big to carry a big voice A large man is by implication a man who is tall and broad a big man (physically) one who is bulky and heavy As applied to material objects great has been practically displaced by large or big Where great is used to denote physical magnitude it now regularly connotes some impression (as of wonder surprise amusement annoyance) associated with the size as, a large (or big) dog cf a great dog (i.e. a dog whose size is imposing terrifying disconcerting etc) a large (or big) head cf the great head that seemed so weighted down with thought and study (The Nation) their classical profiles their large black eyes (Byron) [She] on the trembling man with great eyes gazed (W Morris) Great alone in literary or good colloquial English expresses degree as great kindness haste great heat Figuratively great suggests eminence distinction or supremacy large suggests breadth comprehensiveness generosity big carries over the implication of mass or bulk but often suggests impressiveness or importance rather than solidity or great worth, as a great cathedral symphony a great general large tolerance discretion that large utterance of the early gods (Keats) I don t know any paper which takes a larger and more reasonable view of the war' (H Ellis) the big men of the city big talk There is something in [Daniel] Webster that reminds me of Victor Hugo There is the same confusion of what is big with what is great (J R Lowell)

Ana Vast immense *enormous huge mammoth colossal gigantic tremendous prodigious monumental stupendous *monstrous inordinate *excessive exorbitant extreme immoderate extravagant.

Ant Small — Con Little diminutive tiny wee minute (see SMALL) slight slender slim *thin largess or largesse Boon, *gift present gratuity favor fairing

Ana Benefaction *donation contribution grant subvention (see APPROPRIATION) lascivious Lewd *licentious libertine lustful libidinous, lecherous, wanton.

Ana *Immoral unmoral amoral sensual *carnal fleshly animal animalistic obscene gross *coarse

Con. *Chaste pure modest decent virtuous *moral lassitude Languor *lethargy stupor torpor torpidity

Ana Exhaustion weariness fatigue (see corresponding verbs at TIRE) ennui doldrums *tedium dumps vapors blues depression (see SADNESS) impotence powerlessness (see corresponding adjectives at POWERLESS)

Ant Vigor — Con. Energy strength might force *power last, adj Last latest final terminal concluding, eventual, ultimate, extreme come into comparison when they mean following all the others usually in time or order but sometimes in importance That is last which comes at the end of a series, especially of things of the same kind or class the term usually implies that no more will follow or have followed (as the last page of a book their last child is now ten years of age the last leaf on a tree) but it may imply that the thing so qualified is or was the most recent or is the closest or nearest with respect to the present or a given time or period (as his last book, their last visit to us was in December) In this latter sense latest is usually preferred as less ambiguous thus, his latest book is clearer than his last book since the latter wording might suggest the author s ensuing death, the latest (or last) train on Sunday leaves at 11 45 so the latest (better than last) number of a current magazine the latest (better than last) news is that all is well That is final which definitely closes a series or process not only because it is the last in order of individuals or details (as, the final day of school the final float in the procession the final event on a program) but because it is decisive conclusive or the like (as the judges decision on all questions in this contest is final the final answer to a question a final decree of divorce I think he settles many questions on which a final verdict is what we now want —FitzGerald) or has the power of deciding or settling absolutely (as this court [the Supreme Court of the United States] is not the final authority concerning the laws of New York —Justice Holmes) That is terminal which comes at the end of something and marks the limit of its extension its growth or its completion as a series or process as the terminal point of a railroad the terminal bud of a plant the terminal syllable of a word That is concluding which brings something (such as a speech a book a program a celebration) to an end or which marks its finish as the concluding address was delivered by the chairman As the concluding words were uttered (Macaulay) That is eventual which is bound to follow as the final effect of causes already in operation or of causes that will be operative if a given or understood contingency occurs as The silent decay and eventual overthrow of her natural defences' (Gladstone) It is his object to point out the necessity for a deliberate and purposive art of eugenics if we would prevent the eventual shipwreck of civilisation (H Ellis) That is ultimate, as here compared (see also ULTIMATE 2) which is the last final or terminal event element or the like in a series or process (as the ultimate extinction of Herculaneum in August 79 A D was the work of Vesuvius —Lucas the ultimate stage in a process of descent —H Ellis) or is the final outcome or end to which a person or thing is moving or working (as the ultimate effect of a drug " When I think of the earth s refrigeration and the ultimate collapse of our Solar System —L P Smith) or is the most remote as in time (either past or future time) or most important in scale of values (as, the ultimate effect of a war that word comes into English from French but its ultimate source is Sanskrit ultimate issues primal springs —Kipling) Extreme is now rarely synonymous with last except in the phrase Extreme Unction (i e the Sacrament administered to the dying) it comes close to ultimate in such phrases as he has reached the extreme limit of his strength

Ant First.

last, v Endure *continue abide persist

Ana Survive outlast *outlive remain *stay

Ant Fleet

lasting Lasting, permanent, perdurable, durable stable, perpetual come into comparison as meaning enduring for so long as to seem fixed or established Lasting usually implies long continuance with no end in sight in this sense, it may be equivalent to everlasting (as Who sings His soul and body to their lasting rest —Shak to the great and lasting injury of the spiritual life —Inge) More often however, it does not imply endlessness but rather a surprising capacity to continue indefinitely (as matter too soft a lasting mark to bear —Pope The anger of slow mild loving people has a lasting quality that mere bad tempered folk cannot understand —Deland) Permanent applies chiefly to mind (Inge) Perdurable carries even a stronger impli cation than lasting often carries of endlessness of existence but the term is so rarely applied to anything thought of as eternal that it suggests endless or appar ently endless existence from the point of view of human remembrance or human history, as 'Leaving a name perdurable on earth (Southey), Our l terature is going to be our most perdurable claim on man s remembrance (Quiller Couch) Durable commonly implies power of

Perpetual (as here compared see also CONTINUAL) often chiefly in stress ng an uninterrupted course and in being appl ed to anything thought of as consecutive or con tinuous rather than as being l mited to a term thus one says a permanent (not perpetual) position a permanent tinuing (see correspond ng verbs at CONTINUE) *ever lasting endless unceas ng never-ending *continual continuous, incessant, perennial eternal sempiternal (see INFINITE)

Ant Fleeting — Con Fugitive passing evanescent transitory *transient short lived late 1 *Tardy behindhand overdue

Ana Delayed retarded detained (see DELAY)

Ant Early punctual prompt. — Con Timely *seasonable opportune well timed

2 Departed deceased defunct *dead lifeless, inanimate latent Latent, dormant, quiescent, potential abeyant

Quiescent emphasizes the cessation of action rather than the presence of energy 'With the increase of their wealth they sank into quiescent Tories (Meredith) Sometimes it connotes immobility 'If only we could persuade ourselves to remain quiescent when we are happy! (Jefferies) Potential is applied to that which does not now exist but which is bound to exist if the present process of coming into being is not arrested It [an infant] must from the very first be viewed seriously as a potential adult (B Russell) Abeyant (more often, predicatively in abeyance) always implies a suspension of activity or active existence In Mr Brooke the hereditary strain of Puritan energy was clearly in abeyance (G Eliot) It usually connotes expectancy of revival Noth ng seemed left of the former Lewis Raycie save a lurking and abeyant fear of Mr Raycie senior (E Wharton)

Ana Hidden concealed (see HIDE v) *inactive inert idle unripe unmatured unfledged *immature

Ant Patent — Con *Active operative live dynamic ... ed energized (see VITALIZE)

... ast, terminal concluding eventual

... oth *foam spume scum yeast

... psalm canticle antiphon, anthem

... ogize *praise acclaim

... ggrandize *exalt worship adore

... reverence *commend applaud

... Con *Decry depreciate d sparage ... condemn denounce blame *criticize reprobate reprehend *execrate curse damn anathematize ... urgate.

Laughable, ludicrous ridiculous comic, ... comical risible, droll funny come into com parison as meaning provoking or evoking laughter or mirth Laughable is the general term for whatever is fit to provoke laughter as modern aud ences do not find Shylock a laughable character a laughable inc dent [Mrs Kemble] would have contributed magn ficen ... peculiant ...

best public school teachers in the last century were hot tempered men whose disciplinary performances were ludicrous (Inge) Ridiculous applies to that which ex cites derision because of extreme absurdity fool shness, ... Good manners at the ... haviour of ... (Shak) ... en shop walkers [are] all recognized as fair sport for the facet ... But it s only the curate that bothers about trying not to be ridiculous (C Mackenzie) In current Engl sh, comic and comical are becoming d stinct in implications ... still to a certa n spirit of comedy especially of the literary form which aims to present life in a way that does not leave a painful impression and that does evoke smiles or laughter especially thoughtful laughter or amused reflection as With minds easy detached a great deal of their theology—the amativeness of Zeus for example—must needs seem comic (Quiller Couch), I quite agree with Juke that it is comic to see poor little nonentities like Frank Potter caught in it [Christianity] tangled up in it and trying to get free and carry on as though it wasn t there (R. Macaulay) Comical applies not so much to the character of that which induces laughter as to the impression it produces upon the observer commonly the term suggests unrestrained laughter as its effect. The abrupt transition of her features from assured pride to ludicrous astonishment and alarm was comical enough to have sent into wild uncharitable laughter any creature less humane than Constance (Bennett) Farcical is often used interchangeably with comical but it is ordinarily the preferred term when that which creates amusement is like farce (the dramatic form) dependent upon extravagance nonsense practical jokes burlesque or the like for the effect it produces as Boys are like monkeys the gravest actors of farcical nonsense that the world possesses (Meredith) Risible which is increasingly rare in this sense applies only to that which evokes amusement of any sort or degree as risible manners risible blunders in speech Droll and funny usually impute odd ty or strangeness to that which makes a thing risible or laughable but droll ordinarily carries a stronger impl cation of unfamiliarity quaint ness absurd ty or intentional (though often sly) humorousness (as Thackeray s names though often ludicrous are always happy and often inimitably droll —Athenaeum) and funny of queerness or curiousness (as the night mail set me down at Marwar Junction where a funny little happy go-lucky native-managed railway runs to Jodhpore —Kipling) Funny is however the ordinary colloqu al term interchangeable with any other word of the group The strangest of all was a portra t of Samuel Povey as an infant in arms Sophia checked an impulse to laugh at it But when Constance said Isn t it funny? she did allow herself to laugh (Bennett)

Ana Amus ng d verting enterta ning (see AMUSE) humorous, *witty facetious, jocular jocose

Con Solemn *serious, grave ted ous tiresome wear some humdrum *irksome pathetic po gnant touching affect ng *moving impress ve lavish *Profuse prod gal luxuriant lush exuberant.

Ana *Liberal bount ful generous munificent hand some sumptuous opulent *luxurious *excessive inord nate extravagant.

Ant Sparing —Con *Meager scanty scant economical frugal thrifty (see SPARING) provident prudent, discreet (see under PRUDENCE) *stingy niggardly parsimonious penurious miserly

law 1 Law rule, regulation precept statute ordinance, canon are often used interchangeably but with loss of precision They all designate a principle laid down or accepted as governing conduct action or procedure Law rule and precept are also used as collect ve nouns to denote a body of laws rules or precepts as to obey the law to work by rule to teach by precept. Law and precept are often used abstractly "The world demanded peace and law not liberties and priv leges (Buchan) "The poet s bus ness is not with precepts (Lowes) Law primarily implies imposition by a sovere gn authority and the obligation of obed ence on the part of those governed There was no law save that of the strongest (Kipling) In more restricted use however it impl es a will to maintain peace and justice in the community or group governed and the expression of that will in concrete injunctions or prohibitions. Laws may be written or unwritten when the latter they indicate derivation from estabi shed custom when the former they commonly indicate enactment by a legislative body or power as, the laws of New York State The Ten Commandments were politically useless until an elaborate set of laws . had been provided to give effect to them (Shaw) In extended use law may be applied to any principle of guidance that forms part of a code accepted as binding as, respect for the confidences of patients is a law in medical practice Rule, in contrast with law suggests closer relation to individual conduct and method or a desire for order and discipline in the group Sometimes it implies restriction whether prescribed or self imposed for the sake of an immediate end such as unity in action, uniformity in procedure or conformity to a standard of practice as the rules of a game, the rules of a school the rules of good writing Sometimes rule does not imply prohibition but suggests a positive way of thinking or acting in order to get desired or concrete results as the rule of three a rule of thumb Regulation often equals rule but in discriminating use it connotes prescription by authority for the control or management of an organization or system as military regulations regulations respecting interstate commerce factory regulations Precept, like law usually implies generality and lack of detail in the statement and an authoritative origin like rule however it implies closer reference to individual conduct than to government. He really was the one child to whom the 'spare the-rod precept d d not apply (Deland) In modern use precept is applied to that which is enjoined by teaching it often suggests counsel or advice and is commonly opposed in its abstract use to practice or example "By precept and by practice he proclaimed the lofty solitude of the individual soul (H Ellis) Statute ordinance and canon all come under the description of law A statute is a written law formally enacted by a legislative body An ordinance, in American usage is a local law especially one enacted by a municipal government. In strict British usage it is a law that is not an act of Parliament Historically ord nance has been appl ed to laws promulgated without the assent of one of the three powers (the Crown the House of Lords, the House of Commons) whose assent is necessary to such an act at present it is appl ed to any law or regulation enacted by a lesser body than Parl ament A canon, in strict use is a law of a church, bind ng upon all of its members. In extended use canon is appl ed to such laws of ethics of society of criticism and the l ke as have the sanction of accepted authority and are enforced by one s moral social or artistic conscience Are we witness ng a violent reaction against accepted canons of decency in life" (Grandgent)

Ana Mandate dictate *command

2 *Principle axiom fundamental, theorem

Ana Necessity exigency (see NEED n)

Ant Chance

3 *Hypothes s theory

4 Statute act *bill lawful Lawful, legal, legitimate licit are synonyms only when they mean permitted sanctioned or recognized by law or the law Lawful differs from all the others in implying a reference to law of any sort, such as divine law natural law or the law of the land or such as civil law common law or canon law Consequently the term often comes close in meaning to allowable or permissible (as All things are lawful unto me but all th ngs are not expedient' —1 Corinthians vi 12) or (now less often) to justific which nc Crown

Pope
rightful (as the lawful heir, a lawful prize the lawful sovereign) Legal implies a reference to the law as it but the adjective impl es not merely recognition by law

(see corresponding verbs at JUSTIFY) Ant Unlawful — Con Iniquitous nefarious flagitious (see VICIOUS) lawlessness *Anarchy chaos Ana *Discord strife dissension contention conflict variance *confusion disorder Ant Discipline order lawsuit *suit action cause case lawyer Lawyer, counselor barrister counsel, advocate attorney, solicitor, proctor, procurator Lawyer is the general term designating any person versed in the principles of law and authorized to practice law in the courts who accepts court cases and gives advice on legal problems

Other powers vary with the law of the state or country Attorney (more fully attorney at law) is now often used in the United States as equivalent to lawyer Strictly however it names a legal agent who acts for a client as in conveying property settling wills or defending or prosecuting a case in court as the attorney for the executors of the will the State s attorney In England the term attorney has been supplanted by solicitor with however emphasis on the transaction of legal business for a client and the preparation of cases for trial. A solicitor may conduct cases only in a few minor courts. Proctor once restricted in application to an attorney ocate in countries whose legal system is based on man law (Fr procureur) as solicitor is to barrister in gland It is also used of an attorney authorized to ictice in courts of canon law

1 Relaxed *loose slack ia *Limp floppy flabby flaccid it Rigid (sense 2) — Con *Firm solid hard tense taut *tight *elastic resilient springy gorous strait *narrow conscientious scrupu iest *upright

*Physic aperient purgative cathartic purge Secular temporal *profane lazy Lazy, indolent, slothful, fainéant are here compared chiefly as applied to persons their powers movements and the like but also in some degree to things All agree in meaning not easily aroused to action or activity Lazy (opposed to industrious) especially when applied to persons suggests a disinclination or aversion

The stretching indolent ease that the flesh and the excessive slowness when speed is essential as As the

tance (Scott) Fainéant (the earliest English use of which was in allusion to the Merovingian kings from the French phrase rois fainéants) was a popular term among good writers in the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries but now occurs infrequently except in the original use It implies both a slothful temper and a disposition to remain idle in spite of pressure or urgency as the fainéant aristocrat and apathetic dullard (M Pattison)

Ana Inert idle *inactive supine passive torpid comatose sluggish *lethargic *languid languorous lackadaisical listless slack remiss lax *negligent neglectful lead, v *Guide pilot engineer steer

Ana *Conduct direct manage control *set fix, establish *command order direct *induce persuade leader Head *chief chieftain commander, captain master Ant Follower — Con Disciple adherent henchman satellite partisan (see FOLLOWER) leading, adj *Chief principal main foremost capital

Ana Governing ruling (see GOVERN) conducting directing managing controlling (see CONDUCT v) prominent outstanding (see NOTICEABLE) eminent distinguished (see FAMOUS) pre-eminent *supreme superlative.

Ant Subordinate

league *Alliance coalition fusion, confederacy confederation federation leal Loyal true *faithful, constant stanch steadfast resolute

Ant False

lean, v *Slant, slope incline

Ana Bend *curve *turn deflect divert sheer *tip tilt cant careen list heel lean, adj Lean spare lank, lanky, gaunt rawboned angular scrawny (or scranny) skinny agree in meaning thin because of absence of superfluous flesh Lean stresses often connotes overwork or undernourishment Her bony visage—gaunt and deadly wan (Wordsworth) as Sudden retirement of the angular female in oxydated bombazine (Holmes) Scrawny (or scranny) and skinny imply extreme thinness without any suggestion of awkwardness but with a connotation of deficiency of vitality Scrawny is common in the United States but scranny is dialectal in England and in Scotland as a scrawny dog skinny children.

Ana Slender slim *thin slight cadaverous wasted pinched *haggard

Ant Fleshy — Con Brawny *muscular sinewy burly husky stout *strong sturdy stalwart plump portly rotund fat obese corpulent (see FLESHY) leaning n Leaning propensity, proclivity, penchant, flair come into comparison when they mean a strong instinct or liking for something (sometimes someone) that drives or leads one to it One has a leaning to or toward something when one definitely inclines to attach political party One has a propensity to toward or for something when one has an innate or inherent and often uncontrollable longing for it or is driven to it by a natural appetite as, to study the propensities of a group of children a propensity to drink such vehement to it not only by natural inclination but also by habitual indulgence in it or by the peculiarities of one's constitution or temperament as, kleptomania is a proclivity to steal to curb a proclivity to lying Proclivity often implies a tendency toward evil when it power of discernment and the ability to distinguish the genuine from the counterfeit the valuable from the valueless, and the like as a collector with a flair for the faculty *gift Ant Distaste — Con *Antipathy aversion repugnance abhorrence repellency or repulsion (see corresponding adjectives at REPUGNANT) learn. Ascertain *discover determine unearth. learned Learned scholarly, erudite, polymathic come implies wide-ranging encycloped c knowledge rather than accurate and extensive knowledge within the limits *recondite, abstruse esoteric.

Con Illiterate unlettered uneducated, unlearned untutored *ignorant learning. Erudition scholarship *knowledge science information, lore Ana *Culture cultivation, breeding refinement enlightenment (see corresponding verb at ILLUMINATE) letters, the humanities *literature, belles-lettres. lease, v Let charter *hire rent leave, n *Permission, sufferance Ana Consenting or consent assenting or assent (see corresponding verbs at ASSENT) sanctioning or sanction, endorsement approval (see corresponding verbs at APPROVE) authorization (see corresponding verb at AUTHORIZE) Con Refusing or refusal rejecting or rejection (see corresponding verbs at DECLINE) forbidding or forbiddance prohibition interdiction (see corresponding inquish resign surrender abandon.

*abandon desert *forgo, forbear eschew *neglect ignore forget, omit *grant concede vouchsafe relegate *commit, confide entrust 2 Depart quit *go withdraw retire scram clear out.
Ana *Escape flee fly abscond decamp Con *Come arrive *appear emerge loom.
3 *Let allow permit suffer leaven *Infuse imbue inoculate ingrain suffuse. mper qualify attemper *moderate *inform. inspire pervade *permeate impregnate vivify enliven *quicken Remains *remainder residue residuum t balance remnant agments pieces portions (see singular nouns scrappings or scraps verbs at DISCARD) stful lewd wanton robate profligate arangue allocution

nt toady lickspittle

ve advanced

*Money cash currency specie coin.

bassador nuncio internuncio minister th saga.

*Traditional,
tful dubious questionable imagined HINK) invented created (see INVENT) al — Con Actual *real, true genuine a fide *authentic 2 Mythical apocryphal fabulous *fictitious Ana Ant, & Con See those at LEGENDARY 1 legerity Celerity alacrity Ana Nimbleness agility briskness spryness (see corresponding adjectives at AGILE) swiftness fleetness, rapidity (see corresponding adjectives at FAST) dexterity ease *readiness facility dispatch expedition, speed (see HASTE) Ant Deliberateness sluggishness. legion Host army *multitude legitimate Legal *lawful licit Ana Justified or justifiable warranted or warrantable (see corresponding verbs at JUSTIFY) *valid sound, cogent recognized acknowledged (see ACKNOWLEDGE) customary *usual *regular normal typical natural Ant Illegitimate arbitrary (powers means etc) leisure Relaxation *rest repose ease comfort Ant Toil — Con *Work, labor travail swink grind, drudgery leisurely Deliberate *slow dilatory laggard Ana Relaxed slack lax (see LOOSE) slackened re delayed (see DELAY) easy *comfortable restful ul Ant Hurried abrupt. — Con Hasty speedy quick, *fast rapid *precipitate headlong impetuous tmotiv or leitmotif Motive theme *subject atter subject matter argument topic, text.

*Extend elongate prolong protract.
Ana *Increase, augment *expand amplify, distend Ant Shorten. — Con Abridge abbreviate curtail (see HORTEN) ency, lenience Clemency mercifulness, forbearance tolerance indulgence See under FORBEARING Ana Lenity clemency *mercy charity grace kindliness, benignity benignancy kindness (see corresponding at KIND) compassionateness tenderness (see corresponding adjectives at TENDER) enient 1 *Soft gentle mild bland balmy Ana Assuaging alleviating relieving (see RELIEVE) emollient demulcent (see corresponding nouns at BALM) grateful agreeable welcome gratifying pleasing *pleasant.
Ant Caustic (in literal and figurative senses) — Con Harsh *rough 2 *Indulgent, merciful clement forbearing tolerant.
Ana Forgiving excusing condoning pardoning (see EXCUSE v) kindly benign benignant (see KIND) compassionate *tender indulging pampering humoring, spoiling mollycoddling (see INDULGE) lax (see NEGLIGENT) Ant Stern exacting — Con *Rigid rigorous, stringent *severe austere lenity Clemency *mercy charity grace Ana Leniency indulgence clemency mercifulness forbearance tolerance (see under FORBEARING) benignity benignancy kindliness kindness (see corresponding adjectives at KIND) compassionateness or compassion tenderness (see corresponding adjectives at TENDER) benevolence humaneness charitableness (see corresponding adjectives at CHARITABLE) laxity (see corresponding adjective at NEGLIGENT) Ant Severity — Con Strictness rigorousness rigidity stringency (see corresponding adjectives at RIGID) sternness austerity (see corresponding adjectives at SEVERE) leprechaun *Fairy faery fay elf sprite pixy gnome dwarf goblin brownie puck nix, shee banshee less, adj Less lesser, smaller fewer approach each other in meaning but are not synonyms and are rarely interchangeable Less the comparative of little means not as much especially in degree value or amount its opposite is usually more it applies chiefly to collective nouns or nouns denoting a mass or abstract whole as, the moon yields less light than the sun John has less money than James please make less noise humility has less appeal to men of today than other virtues books whose value is less than half the value of this one Lesser a word formed by adding the comparative suffix -er to the comparative form less means not as great as important or as significant as that with which the thing so qualified is compared and implies opposition to greater or major as God made the lesser light to rule the night (Genesis 1 16) James is a lesser person than John in the public estimation humility is not in Christian ethics regarded as a lesser virtue lesser breaches of the law (Locke) In the biological sciences especially in the names of species lesser implies that the species so designated is distinguished from a very similar one carrying the same name only by its comparative smallness of size as the lesser celandine the lesser snipe Smaller, the comparative of small means not as large as that with which the thing so qualified is compared in size dimensions quantity or the like as the smaller of two rooms give her the smaller table for it will take up less room she likes less sugar (or a smaller quantity of sugar) for her tea than you are giving her Fewer, the comparative of few means not as many and implies a difference in number of individuals or units the term therefore always modifies a plural noun as he has fewer pupils than he had last year give her fewer lumps of sugar, no fewer [persons] than fifty were present Ant More
lessen *Decrease diminish reduce abate dwindle Ana. *Shorten curtail retrench abridge abbreviate shrink, *contract lighten, mitigate alleviate (see RELIEVE) *thin dilute attenuate lesser. Smaller *less fewer Ant Major
let 1 Lease rent *hire charter 2 Let, allow, permit suffer, leave agree in denoting to refrain from preventing or to fail to prevent or to indicate an intention not to prevent Let allow permit though frequently used with little distinction of meaning are capable of careful discrimination Let is the most informal it is always followed by an expressed or elliptical complementary infinitive whereas allow and permit may take an object noun of action as her mother wouldn't let her go she didn't go because her mother wouldn't let her we do not allow (or permit) gambling Sometimes let implies failure to prevent through awkwardness inadvertence negligence inaction etc as the third baseman let the ball roll between his feet "this dismal sketch of the future of countries that let them selves become dependent on the labor of other countries (Shaw) and sometimes it implies failure to prevent through lack of power or authority to do so as Are you going to let him insult you like that? Allow and permit imply power or authority to prohibit or prevent if that had been deemed the better alternative But allow may imply little more than forbearance of prohibition whereas permit implies express signification of willingness or acquiescence as nothing is permitted everything is allowed the sentinel allowed the strangers to advance several paces before he stopped them the sentinel permitted the strangers to pass when they had given the countersign To suffer (now somewhat bookish in this sense) is often a mere synonym for allow in the narrowest implication of that word as Suffer little children to come unto me (Luke xviii 16) but it may imply indifference or reluctance as "The eagle suffers little birds to sing (Shak) Why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded? (I Corinthians vi 7) Leave (as here compared see also GO 1 RELINQUISH) may be used with the implication of letting allowing or permitting only when the object as naming the person affected is followed by an infinitive in the active voice or as naming the thing permitted is followed by an infinitive in the passive voice In such use leave always carries a comparatively stronger implication of noninterference often it also suggests the departure of the person who might interfere as to leave the young people to follow their own devices to leave the choice of games to be settled by the guests the defendant's attorney left him free to tell his story as he wished "We must leave the children to settle their affairs for themselves" (R. Macaulay) When leave implies interference and is followed by an infinitive without to the use in this sense is regarded as questionable or even as illiterate as leave him be leave him go Ana Sanction, endorse *approve accredit certify *authorize license commission.
Con *Forbid prohibit interdict enjoin ban inhibit *hinder impede obstruct block bar thwart *frustrate foil circumvent lethal *Deadly fatal mortal

Ana Destroying or destructive (see corresponding verb at DESTROY) killing slaying (see KILL) *pernicious baneful noxious *poisonous virulent venomous toxic

Con Salutary wholesome hygienic *healthful renewing restoring or restorative (see corresponding verbs at RENEW) lethargic Lethargic, sluggish, torpid stuporous, comatose come into comparison when they mean being by constitution or condition physically and often mentally inert or inactive Lethargic usually implies a constitutional but sometimes a temporary or morbid (i e induced by disease) state of sleepiness or drowsiness that makes for slowness in reactions responses or sluggish because England has been so prosperous and comfortable (H G Wells) Torpid suggests the loss of power of feeling and of exertion literally it impl es the porous also impl es marked unresponsiveness but it suggests a mind and heart dulled by drugs disease or the like rather than in a frozen or benumbed state The term is chiefly used in reference to psychopathological conditions as, melancholia that manifests itself in a lethargy, as

(Emerson)

Ana Inert idle *inactive supine passive phlegmatic stol d *impassive apathetic *languid languorous, lackadaisical l stless *slow d latory laggard

Ant Energetic vigorous — Con Alert quick witted *intell gent *quick ready prompt apt responsive ness that hangs upon me:

death (Pope) Gradually however the term has come to imply an inertia resulting from soft l v ng from an enervating climate from amorous emotion or the like Radiant with ardour divine Beacons of Hope por implies a state of heaviness when the mind is deadened as by extreme drows ness intoxication, narcotic po soning the coma of illness or the l ke the term may imply any state from a dreamy trancelike condition to almost complete unconsciousness as there is something almost narcotic in much med aeval poetry, one is lulled into a pleas ng stupor (Lowes) the sort of animal like stupor in which his father [a confirmed drunkard and idler] had lived (S Anderson) Torpor tion or the extreme sluggishness and inertness of some forms of insanity torpidity, however probably more often appl es to a physical cond tion (as the torp d ty of a person s liver the torpidity induced by the extreme cold) and torpor to a mental state Causes now acting ... the mind and ... luce it to a ... A death ... intellectual

Ana Sluggishness comatoseness (see corresponding adjectives at LETHARGIC) indolence slothfulness or sloth laziness (see correspond ng adjectives at LAZY) inertness or inertia inactivity idleness, passiveness, supineness (see corresponding adjectives at INACTIVE) apathy phlegm impassivity (see under IMPASSIVE)

Ant Vigor — Con Quickness, read ness promptness, aptness (see correspond ng adjectives at QUICK) alertness quick wittedness (see corresponding adjectives at INTELLIGENT) letter, n Letter, epistle, missive, note, message ... memorandum come ... n or otherwise ... telegraph ... y term for any ... sent by any ... of each group means of transmission but especially by mail to a person a company a body or the like regardless of whether it deals with with aff from her belligerei or (Le ents Ep historical counsel s in the N Corinthia

called by their authors (as open letters in poetry so Arbuthnot) or humorously or sarcastically (as "Samuel s letter was merely the amiable epistle of a son in law anxious to be a little more than correct — Bennett) Missive is now usually a high flown term for a sealed personal letter especially one containing private information or expressions of love as Scarce had Ripton plunged his head into the missive than he gave way to violent transports (Meredith) Note applies to a very short letter or other communication that is brief and pointed the term is applicable to any such communication whether it is formal or informal as, to send a note of condolence to write a note of thanks for a a formal co another as of the Latin differs from a not only to a but to one phot cabl mot
citize
Re will not have this man to reign over us message after him saying (Luke xix 14) In official especially governmental, use message applies to a formal communication from the head of the state such as one sent by the president of the United States to Congress, or by a governor to the law-making body of the state as President Wilson broke tradition by delivering his messages to Congress personally Dispatch applies to any message especially any brief message that is sent posthaste as by telegraph cable or radiotelegraph the term is often used specifically for any message sent by such means of transmission as to send a dispatch asking a hotel to reserve a room In more technical language dispatch applies to the telegraphed messages sent by an authorized correspondent to a newspaper or news association it also specifically applies to any important official message often one in cipher sent by (or to) the government to (or by) a diplomatic, military or naval officer in its service Report (for fuller discussion of this sense see ACCOUNT 3) applies particularly to a communication sent by a diplomat or similar official to his own government but the term is also applicable to any official communication giving a detailed statement of facts proceedings, or recommendations as, the committee on foreign affairs is ready to make a report to congress the school sends a monthly report of each student s work to his parents Memorandum, as here compared is used chiefly in business for an informal communication sent to an executive or employee, conveying instructions, directions, or the like 2 In plural form letters "Literature belles lettres the human ties.

level, adj Level flat, plat, plane, plain, even, smooth flush come into comparison chiefly as applied to surfaces and as meaning having a surface such as that of a perfectly calm lake or sea with That is lies on a horizon the prair of grou cable t plane with its with o equality of parts or of one thing with another, so that there are no manifest fluctuations irregularities, differences or the like thus to speak in a level voice is to speak without the variations in pitch or voice volume that indicate imperfect self-control, to keep a level head is to keep free from distracting excitement to attempt no work that is not level with one s capacities is to avoid work above one s powers or skill. That is flat (see also INSIPID] or in limited dialectal use plat, which is marked by the absence of noticeable curvatures prominences or depressions whether it lies in a horizontal plane or not as, there is no flat ground hereabouts the flat face of a cliff the sides of a pyramid are all flat But flat may apply to anything that lies directly upon or against a flat surface as flat feet lay the map flat on the table the chairs have their backs flat against the wall here he is, flat on the ground In applies
because direct pure doubt or for difference in (as a flat question a belief that is complete or the like failure) or to that which is fixed or absolutely exact (as to ask a flat price he ran the race in a flat ten seconds) That is plane (the geometrical and scientific term) or plain (the original but now rare sense of this word) which is flat and usually level Plain applies chiefly but not exclusively to the ground as "The crooked shall be made straight and the rough places plain (Isaiah xl 4) "I recovered some strength so as to be able to walk a little on plain ground (J Wesley) Plane on the other hand more often applies to angles curves figures (such as triangles, rectangles pentagons etc.) all points of which lie in the same real or imaginary surface (called a plane) so that if any two points be taken within the boundary lines of the angle curve, or figure the straight line joining them lies wholly with n that surface thus plane geometry which deals with plane angles curves and figures, is distinguished from solid geometry the plane sides of a crystal or of a cut and polished emerald Even (see also STEADY) implies a uniformity of all the points not only of a plane surface but also of a line so that the surface a flatness or levelness, or the lines straightness, is observable as, he trimmed the top of the hedge to make it even the hem of your skirt is not even the frigate was on an even keel (Marryat) Smooth implies perfect evenness of surface as though polished rolled planed or otherwise freed even from the slightest traces of roughness or unevenness as the smooth surface of a rubbed and polished table a smooth lawn The tall bamboo and the long moss threw farther shadows over the smooth bayou (Stark Young) Flush applies to a surface or to a line that is in the same horizontal or vertical plane or forms a continuous surface or line with another surface or line as the front of the house is flush with the front boundary line the river s surface is now flush with that of its banks a flush panel in the ordinary printed page all lines are flush except those in

Ana analogous words. Ant antonyms. Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1 titles or headings or those that are indented for paragraphing

Ana Parallel, uniform like, alike, akin, identical, *similar *same, equivalent equal

Con. Undulating fluctuating swaying (see SWING, v) varying changing (see CHANGE v) level, v Point, train, *direct, aim lay levitate. *Rise, arise, ascend, mount, soar, tower rocket, surge Ant. Gravitate, sink.

levity. *Lightness, light-mindedness, frivolity, flippancy, volatility, flightiness

Ana Foolishness or folly, silliness, absurdity (see corresponding adjectives at FOOLISH)· gaiety, liveliness, sprightliness vivaciousness or vivacity (see corresponding adjectives at LIVELY) levy, n *Tax, assessment rate, excise, impost, customs, duty, toll, tariff, tribute tithe teind cess lewd. Lustful lascivious, libidinous lecherous, wanton *licentious, libertine

Ana. *Immoral, unmoral, amoral gross *coarse, obscene indecent, indelicate (see INDECOROUS).

Ant. Chaste — Con. Decent, pure, modest (see CHASTE) *moral, virtuous continent, temperate (see SOBER) lexicon. *Dictionary, wordbook glossary, onomasticon, gazetteer, synonymicon liability. *Debt, indebtedness, obligation, debit, arrear, arrearage

Ant. Asset (or plural assets) liable. 1 Amenable answerable, *responsible accountable

(sometimes of) and mean being by nature or situation in a position where something stated or implied may happen Liable (as here considered see also APT 2 RESPONSIBLE) is used particularly when the thing one incurs or may incur is the result of one s obligation to authority of one s state in life or of submission to protection or of resistance, as the left flank was fully exposed to the attack of the enemy, the children were exposed to scarlet fever Subject and prone (see also PRONE, 2) both suggest greater likelihood of incurring or suffering than liable and even less resistance than exposed Etymologically, both connote the position of being under the sway or control of a superior power but other have stood permanently weak, open to invasion and subject to continual interference' (Belloc), 'Both were

(R. Aldington). 'Ultimately 32 per cent of those liable to military service joined the forces (Inge) Open, literally not closed covered or obstructed as here considered suggests lack of barriers or ease of access, as, 'To-night, with his mind open to all impressions of romance' (Arch Marshall), 'another modern tendency in education somewhat more open to question—I

(J A Hobson), Our painters are prone to acquiesce in the colours of nature as they find them rather than to use colours expressive of the mood evoked in themselves' (Binyon) Susceptible carries a stronger implication than any of the preceding terms with the exception of prone of something in the person s or thing s nature character constitution or temperament that makes him or it under the stress of emotion] is not the rhythm of her complexion and the birth of pink cheeks grown more sensitive to the sun s rays' (Hardy) was extremely sensitive to neglect to disagreeable impressions, to want of intelligence in her surroundings (H Adams), The eye is much more sensitive to light than the hand of the balance to weight (Karl K. Darrow) Incident is not exactly a synonym of the pre ceding terms for it applies not to the person or thing that is itself liable or open, but to the thing to which a person or another thing is liable or open Often the term means little more than belonging or pertaining to a person or thing as a subordinate feature or as a necessary or usual accompaniment, thus old persons are subject to hardening of the arteries, but hardening of the arteries is incident to old age life is subject to change but change is incident to life a malady Most incident to maids' (Shak) For I have no doubt that the disease of self consciousness is incident to intelligent youth (A C Benson) " The fact that the statute may bear hard upon some individuals is no greater infirmity than is incident to all law (Justice Holmes)

Ant Exempt immune.

3 Likely *apt.

liaison Intrigue *amour affair affaire libel, n Libel skit squib lampoon, pasquinade (or now rare pasquin pasquil) are here compared as meaning a public and often satirical presentation of faults or weaknesses especially those of an individual. Libel is now the correct legal term for any statement or representation (such as a cartoon) published or circulated without just cause or excuse which tends to expose a person to public contempt hatred or ridicule in earlier and now only historical use the term applies specifically to a leaflet or handbill publicly circulated or posted in a public place and containing a scurrilous attack, especially on an individual as, cheap senseless libels were scattered about the city (Clarendon) Skit appl es to an amusing satire (originally a comment or remark now often a dramatic sketch or story that may be more humorous or ironical than satirical) of no very great weight or seriousness the term seldom connotes mal ce bitterness, or abusiveness, but it often suggests the infliction of a sting as He did not deserve your skit about his Finsbury Circus gentility' (FitzGerald) the first of the one-act plays was a skit more or less obviously dealing w th the prime min ster s attempt to forestall war Squib (originally and still literally a kind of fire cracker) as here compared applies to any short and clever often more or less malicious piece of satirical writing that makes its point with a sharp thrust and evokes laughter or amusement as No one was more faithful to his early friends particularly if they could write a squib (Disraeli) Lampoon (etymologically a drinking song) suggests even more virulence and abusiveness than libel and a coarser humor than skit or squib as, a lust to misapply Make satire a lampoon and fiction lie (Pope) On his master at Twyford he had already exercised his poetry in a lampoon (Johnson) Pasquinade was originally applied to one of the anonymous lampoons attached to a mutilated statue called Pasquin or Pasquino in Rome on St Mark s day the term now is preferred to lampoon when similar circumstances (such as anonymity public posting extreme scurrility) are implied as The white walls of the barracks were covered with pasquinades leveled at Cortez (Prescott)

Ana Scurrility invective vituperation, *abuse burlesque travesty (see CARICATURE, n) libel v Defame slander *malign, traduce asperse vilify calumniate

Ana Revile vituperate (see SCOLD) *decry disparage derogate from detract from caricature travesty burlesque (see under CARICATURE n)

liberal, adj 1 Liberal generous bountiful munificent handsome come into comparison when they are applied to a person or to his deeds utterances or the like and mean showing or revealing a spirit of giving freely and without stint Liberal suggests openhandedness or lack of closeness, meanness or the like, in the giver and largeness in the thing that is given as, to make a liberal provision for a son at college a liberal offer for a house, liberal in praise The magazines like the newspapers were liberal with their space but again the results were terribly meagre (V Heiser) Generous usually emphasizes some positive quality of heart or mind that prompts the giver or the gift such as warmhearted readiness to give forgetfulness of self or magnanimity more than the size or importance of the gift as to make a generous provision for one s servants in one s will to reject a friend s generous offer of assistance " a generous view of humanity' (A C Benson) " Mark Twain s boys not manly enough nor brave enough to do a generous action where there was a chance that it could get them into trouble? (Van W Brooks) Bountiful suggests lavish or unremitting generosity in providing or giving He is a worthy gentleman as bountiful As mines of India" (Shak) Lady Bountiful (Farquhar) The Governor of all Himself to all So bountiful (Cowper) Munificent stresses splendid or princely liberality as a munificent endowment If riches increase let thy mind hold pace with them and think it not enough to be liberal but munificent (Browne) Handsome as here ... not applicable to a ... but it is ofte ... tion of astor ... offer a rem ... King and otl ... e have arranged that they shall h... handsome incomes (Shaw) They figured on the boards of all the old-establ shed charities gave handsomely to thriving institutions" (E Wharton) On the other hand it is often a close synonym of generous especially when applied to an act or deed that evokes admiration for its unexpected magnanimity or gracious ness Through this handsome conduct of the dean the dispute was amicably settled (J H Monk) I should like you to think of our house as your home Tony This was handsome if it was meant and there seemed no reason why it shouldn t be (Arch Marshall)

Ana Lavish prodigal *profuse exuberant benevolent philanthropic *charitable

Ant Close (sense 5) — Con *Stingy niggardly closefisted tight tightfisted penurious miserly parsimonious *meager scanty

2 Liberal progressive, advanced, radical left are used more or less loosely to mean the opposite of conservative in opinions, views and policies The secondary implications of all these words (with the possible except on of progressive) are often determined by the bias of the persons who use them they may therefore carry connotations of extreme disparagement or of strong approval Liberal impl es emancipation from that which b nds the mind or will and connotes either indifference to tradition convention dogmas, or laws or the rejection of one or more of these It therefore may suggest tolerance and broad mindedness on the one hand or unorthodoxy laxness, or even lawlessness, on the other as a liberal Chr stian a liberal Democrat liberal liquor legislation Some people who themselves hold liberal views are willing that their children shall first acquire conventional morals (B Russell) Progressive is commonly a relative term because it usually implies a comparison with those that are reactionary or backward Mentally so progressive that they were agitating for schools and the vote (V Heiser) It implies therefore a willingness to forsake past methods or beliefs, but it seldom suggests the espousal of extreme pol cies as a progressive business man a progressive pol tical party progressive ideas in education Advanced on the other hand is usually applied to men or ideas that are or are believed to be ahead of their time It therefore often implies extreme liberalism or progressiveness and distinctively connotes mental daring Sometimes however it strongly implies adventurousness or foolhardiness and impracticality Dr Ashmore the new Rector of St Matthew s had been chosen because he was very advanced his sermons were cons dered bold in thought and novel in language (E Wharton) Radical often is employed in place of

Amer can Revolution the French Revolution the revolutionary movements of 1848 have slowly but profoundly affected men s des res and their demands upon government (Frankfurter) Left is used chiefly in politics to des gnate a person party view or policy that is liberal or radical In current use it commonly connotes ex tremeness and often is preferred to radical since so many hitherto radical ideas have been generally accepted

Ana Tolerant *forbearing indulgent lenient

Ant Authoritarian — Con Strict *narrow strict stringent *rigid rigorous dogmatic doctrinaire *dictatorial oracular liberate Release *free emancipate manumit deliver discharge enfranchise affranchise

Ana Disengage *detach *extricate disentangle untangle disencumber disembarrass *rescue redeem ransom deliver

Con *Imprison incarcerate immure intern confine circumscribe restrict *limit *tie bind ensnare snare entrap trap (see CATCH) libertine *Licentious lewd wanton lustful lascivious libidinous, lecherous

Ana Debauched corrupted or corrupt (see under DEBASE) *abandoned dissolute profligate reprobate *immoral unmoral amoral

Ant Strait laced — Con *Moral, virtuous ethical continent *sober temperate *chaste decent liberty *Freedom license

Ana Independence autonomy (see under FREE adj) *exemption immunity liberation emancipation, enfranchisement delivery (see corresponding verbs at FREE) scope *range compass sweep

Ant Restraint — Con Constraint compulsion duress, coercion (see FORCE n) confinement restriction limitation circumscription (see corresponding verbs at LIMIT) libidinous Lecherous lustful lascivious lewd wanton libertine *licentious.

Ana Sensual animalistic animal *carnal *immoral gross obscene *coarse dissolute *abandoned profligate reprobate.

library *Museum archives treasury thesaurus gallery license or licence, n Liberty *freedom

Ana *Exemption immunity looseness, laxity slackness relaxedness or relaxation (see corresponding adjectives at LOOSE) privilege prerogative (see RIGHT)

Ant Decorum. — Con *Obligation duty decency propriety (see DECORUM) restraint constraint compulsion (see FORCE) continence *temperance sobriety license or licence, v *Authorize commission accredit

Ana Permit *let allow suffer *approve endorse sanction certify empower *enable Ant Ban — Con Interdict inhibit, enjoin prohibit *forbid *restrain curb check.

licentious Licentious, libertine, lewd wanton, lustful, lascivious, libidinous lecherous are here compared as meaning given to or indicative of immorality in sex relations, or unchaste habits Licentious literally given to license or lack of restraint is now chiefly used in a sense implying disregard of the restraints imposed by any law or custom enforcing chastity the term stresses looseness of life and of habits rather than the imperiousness of one s desires as licentious living licentious morals a spectre at their licentious feasts (Dickens) Libertine implications of sensuality dissoluteness, and unconcern seen in the company of lewd women lewd songs lewd actions in public. Wanton (see also PLAYFUL SUPEREROGATORY) implies moral irresponsibility or a disposition of a life manifesting an indifference to moral restraints it often suggests freedom from restraint comparable to that of animals thereby connoting lightness incapacity for faithfulness or seriousness or a generally unmoral attitude as Let us walk honestly as in the day not in man. Lascivious like lewd definitely suggests sensua but it carries a clearer implication of an inclination to lustfulness or of a capacity for inciting lust as las ivious suggests a complete surrender to one s sexua (as A lewd youth advances by degrees into a libidinous old man —Addison) lecherous clearly implies debauched depraved corrupted or corrupt (see under DEBASE) lax *loose relaxed *immoral, unmoral amoral

Ant Continent — Con *Chaste decent pure *moral, virtuous strict *rigid austere ascetic, *severe licit *Lawful legitimate legal

Ana Permitted allowed (see LET) sanctioned approved (see APPROVE) authorized licensed (see AUTHORIZE) regulated (see ADJUST)

Ant Illicit — Con Forbidden prohibited interdicted inhibited banned (see FORBID) lick v Beat defeat *conquer vanquish subdue subjugate reduce overcome surmount overthrow rout lickspittle, lickspit. *Parasite sycophant toady hanger-on leech sponge favorite.

lie n Lie, falsehood, untruth, fib, misrepresentation, story come into comparison when they mean a statement or declaration that does not conform to the truth. Lie is usually felt to be a term of extreme opprobrium because it implies a flat and unquestioned contradiction of the truth and an intent to deceive or mislead. Seldom, except in the expression white lie (that is, an untrue statement that is harmless or is insignificant in its content) does the term involve no implication of moral censure. "You told a lie, an odious damned lie" (Shak.) "People ... don't send for him [the minister] every time they make a slight moral slip—tell a lie, for instance, or smuggle a silk dress through the custom house" (Holmes). Falsehood is not only less censorious than lie but it is also wider in its range of application. The term may or may not imply sinfulness or criminality, for it applies not only to lies of any degree but to fictions such as literary fictions, polite fictions, some legal fictions, and the like. Like lie, the term implies known nonconformity to the truth, but unlike lie it does not invariably suggest a desire to pass off as true that which is known to be untrue. "'Tis not enough your counsel still be true; Blunt truths more mischief than nice falsehoods do" (Pope). "Mr. Bulstrode shrank from the direct falsehood of denying true statements" (G. Eliot). "Falsehoods which we spurn to-day Were the truths of long ago" (Whittier). Untruth is often euphemistic for lie or falsehood and carries the same implications, as, "'How do those Signal people find out things?' 'I don't know,' said Mr. Critchlow. This was an untruth. Mr. Critchlow had himself given the information" (Bennett). Sometimes, however, untruth may apply to an untrue statement made as a result of ignorance or a misconception of the truth, as, so far as he knew he had never told an untruth; little children with vivid imaginations seldom know the difference between a truth and an untruth. Fib is a colloquial, often childishly colloquial, term for an untruth or for a trivial falsehood; it is often applied to one told to save one's own or another's face. "Not that I couldn't tell a downright fib if I had to ... but a lie is to me just as silly a performance when it is about marriage or work as about the law of gravitation" (M. Austin). Misrepresentation applies to a misleading (usually an intentionally or deliberately misleading) statement which gives an impression that is contrary to the truth; the term implies glossing over defects or weaknesses as in something offered for sale, or placing the emphasis upon details that high light a character, an occurrence, or a train of events rather than on those that in reality marked it, as, he claimed that the advertisement was a misrepresentation. "... our guides deceived us with misrepresentations" (Addison); the biography is full of misrepresentations. Story is a colloquialism used chiefly by children or in conversation with children in place of any of the preceding terms, especially falsehood, untruth, and fib.

Ana Prevarication, equivocation, fibbing or fib (see corresponding verbs at LIE): mendaciousness or mendacity, untruthfulness, dishonesty, deceitfulness (see corresponding adjectives at DISHONEST) lie v Lie, prevaricate, equivocate, palter, fib agree in meaning to tell an untruth directly or indirectly. Lie is the straightforward word imputing dishonesty to the speaker, as, "I shall tell him to his face that he lies." "He lies, and he knows he lies" (Johnson). Prevaricate (etymologically, to walk crookedly or deviate from a straight course) is often used in place of lie as a more formal term. In strict use, however, it implies evasion of the truth, as by quibbling, dodging the real point, or confusing the issue, as, "Thou dost prevaricate ... thou wouldst sophistically imply both are unlawful" (Butler 1612–1680). "He could prevaricate no longer, and confessing to the gambling, told her the truth" (Hardy). "'Even if it was so, which I don't say it is'—Don't prevaricate,' said Mr. Lorry" (Dickens). Equivocate implies saying one thing and meaning another; it usually suggests the use of words that carry more than one sense in the hope that the sense which gives the incorrect impression may be the one accepted by the hearer, as, "You equivocate. For real, as you now the word expound, From solid substance dwindles to a sound" (Dryden). "By equivocating, hesitating, and giving ambiguous answers, she effected her purpose" (H. Martineau). Palter implies a playing fast and loose not only in statements but in dealings; it often specifically implies prevarication, equivocation, or the making of promises one does not intend to keep, as, "And be these juggling fiends no more believ'd, That palter with us in a double sense" (Shak.). "Caroline, don't go back—don't palter with us—abide by your own words" (Edgeworth). "If you palter or double in your answers, I will have thee hung alive in an iron chain" (Scott). Fib (see also LIE, n.) may be used as a euphemism for lie, but it more often implies the telling of an untruth that is trivial either in matter or in significance, as, she was given to fibbing about her admirers; the child fibs when he thinks he can gain his end.

Ant Truth — Con Veracity, verity, verisimilitude (see TRUTH)

Ana *Deceive, delude, mislead, beguile lifeless Inanimate, *dead, defunct, deceased, departed, late

Ana Inert, *inactive, passive: *stiff, rigid, stark, wooden, inflexible: torpid (see LETHARGIC)

Ant Living. — Con Alive, quick, animate, animated, vital (see LIVING): *active, operative, dynamic, live lift, v 1 Lift, raise, rear, elevate, hoist, heave, boost are here compared as meaning (literally or figuratively) to move from a lower to a higher place or position. Lift often carries an implication of effort exerted to overcome the resistance of weight (as, to lift a large stone; to lift a pail of water from the ground; to lift a child to one's shoulders) but it may be used more or less figuratively of anything that rises high by natural or artificial means or processes (as, the mountains lift their peaks in the air; "High lifted up were many lofty towers" —Spenser) or of anything immaterial that rises or is made to rise as if in spirit, in feeling, in aspiration, or the like (as, "Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul" —Psalms lxxxvi. 4; the news lifted a weight from his mind; "One memory of the green corn, fresh beneath the sun and wind, will lift up the heart from the clods" —Jefferies). Raise may or may not suggest less effort than lift, but it carries a stronger implication of bringing something to the vertical or other high position for which it is fitted by nature, by function, or the like; thus, to raise a pole is to set it on end but to lift a pole is to pick it up from the ground; to raise a flag is to cause it to rise to the top of a flagstaff but to lift a flag is to hold it up high enough so that everyone can see it. So, in figurative use, one who gives the care and attention necessary to their production and growth is said to raise crops; one who collects the constituent elements and gathers them together is said to raise a fund or to raise an army. "The most wholehearted attempt ever made to raise the individual to his highest power" (Day Lewis). Rear is often used in place of raise, especially in literary English (as, the mast we rear —Pope the May pole was reared"—Irving), and it is the preferred term (except in certain sections, especially the southern United States) when reference is to the bringing up of children (as to bear five children and to rear three of them cf born and raised in South Carolina) Also as an intransitive verb it means to raise itself or in the case of a horse to raise its forelegs (as, The storm clouds reared on high —Millay horses rearing and prancing —S Anderson) Elevate may be used in place of lift or raise in their literal senses but only push or other help from below (or in extended use by

Ant Lower — Con Reduce lessen diminish *decrease *abase debase degrade demean, humble humiliate *depress, weigh (down on or upon) oppress

2 Purloin filch *steal pilfer pinch snitch swipe cop light, v [1] 1 Light, kindle enkindle, ignite, fire inflame come into comparison in both their literal and figurative senses because they agree in meaning to set something burning or on fire Light (see also ILLUMINATE) when it takes as its subject the agent or agency usually implies as the end of the action illumination (as she lighted the lamps) or heating (as, he will light a fire in the fireplace) or smoking (as he lit his cigar) or the like Kindle and now rarely enkindle often but by no means always connote difficulty or slowness in setting combustible materials (wood straw vegetation and the like) afire or aflame it is therefore the preferred word when that which is to burn requires special preparation or does not at once burst into flame as, using kerosene to kindle the damp wood a carelessly thrown match kindled one of the worst forest fires in the state's history bonfires were kindled on the top of every hill Ignite is not only much more common in technical than in popular use but it combustion as to ignite the charge in the cylinder of an internal-combustion engine or the charge of powder in a

All of these words are used figuratively as well as literally Light, as here compared is purely a figure of interest can be kindled by a master who really loves and believes in his subject —Inge In her heart new life was enkindled' —Kingsley) Ignite implies a stirring up into activity (as flames That low desire ignites and feeds —J G Holland) Fire and inflame imply an inspiring with strong passion ardent desire ned as it is today —A Huxley) *illuminate illumine illume enlighten ght land perch roost asy simple facile effortless smooth

Ana Slight (see THIN) trivial trifling *petty puny

Ant Heavy arduous burdensome — Con Difficult *hard *onerous oppressive exacting rigorous, stringent (see RIGID) lighten, v [1] *Illuminate illumine illume light enlighten illustrate

Ant Darken

lighten, v [2] Alleviate mitigate *relieve assuage allay

Ana Lessen reduce diminish *decrease abate *moderate temper attemper qualify attenuate, extenuate *thin dilute

Con *Intensify aggravate heighten *increase augment magnify aggrandize (see EXALT) oppress, weigh (down on or upon), *depress.

lighthearted. Cheerful happy *glad joyful, joyous

Ana Buoyant resilient volatile effervescent expansive (see ELASTIC) blithe jocund *merry jolly high spirited *spirited gay sprightly vivacious, *lively Ant Despondent. — Con Sad depressed dejected, melancholy (see corresponding nouns at SADNESS) morose glum gloomy *sullen.

lightness, light-mindedness Lightness light-mindedness levity, frivolity, flippancy volatility ere compared only as denoting the or attitude of one who is irresponsibly t especially when seriousness is ex- as here compared implies a general seriousness in character mood conduct m may further imply instability (as ss about the feminine mind—a touch t) or freedom from care (as "Archer tes place of treatment of each group looked at her perplexedly wondering if it were lightness or dissimulation that enabled her to touch so easily on the past —E. Wharton) or indifference to the seriousness of a situation (as treating with lightness what is matter of life and death —Arnold) Light-mindedness, even more than lightness suggests a temperamental lack of seriousness or stability as, society women are often unjustly accused of light-mindedness Levity usually suggests more specifically trifling or unseasonable gaiety as, her [Queen Elizabeth's] levity her frivolous laughter her unwomanly jests (J R Green); Molière and his audience were accustomed to regard conjugal infidelity with levity when it did not touch themselves (S Alexander) Frivolity adds to lightness the implication of empty or idle speech or conduct, the term often carries a strong connotation of triviality or of pettiness (as the extraordinary frivolity of much which passes for religious interest —Inge) but its most frequent implication is that of such indulgence in meaningless gaieties that serious employments are disregarded (as gay without frivolity —Arnold people whose idleness and frivolity and extravagance set a most corrupting moral example —Shaw) Flippancy is especially unbecoming levity or pertness in speaking of or in dealing with serious or sacred things as, [Tennyson] was always reverent—hating all levity or flippancy in thought or language about divine things (Duke of Argyll) One hardly knows which is the more appalling the abjectness of the credulity [of those who believe in a First Cause] or the flippancy of the scepticism [of those who disbelieve in one] (Shaw) Volatility implies such lightness or fickleness of disposition as precludes long or serious dwelling upon any one idea or plan as Volatility of character evinces no capabilities for great affections (Shelley) Flightiness may imply extreme volatility often with a suggestion of loss of mental balance (as his flightiness has been noticeable since his severe illness) but it often suggests extreme capriciousness or a gay whimsicality characteristic of one who is not long contented with what he has or does as, every employer suspected her of flightiness after a few days trial.

Ana Buoyancy resiliency elasticity effervescence expansiveness (see corresponding adjectives at ELASTIC) gaiety liveliness vivaciousness or vivacity (see corresponding adjectives at LIVELY) lightheartedness cheerfulness (see corresponding adjectives at GLAD)

Ant Seriousness — Con Graveness or gravity earnestness soberness, sedateness staidness (see corresponding adjectives at SERIOUS) like adj *Similar alike identical, akin analogous comparable parallel homogeneous, uniform

Ana Equivalent equal *same selfsame identical cognate allied *related

Ant Unlike — Con *Different diverse divergent disparate various dissimilar distinct (see corresponding nouns at DISSIMILARITY) discrepant discordant *inconsonant inconsistent

like, v Like love enjoy relish fancy dote (or doat) on or upon are here compared as meaning to be so attracted to a person or thing as to regard him or it with favor Like (opposed to dislike) the most general and especially when unqualified the most colorless of these words means merely to regard with distinct favor or without the slightest aversion Therefore it is chiefly used in reference to persons or things that are pleasing but evoke no great warmth of feeling or urgency of desire. Love (opposed to hate) implies not only strong liking but ardent attachment and is therefore used with reference to persons or things that arouse the deeper or higher emotions as to like one's neighbors to love one's family, to like the country to love one's country I like a church I like a cowl I love a prophet of the soul (Emerson) The habitual use of love for like with reference to trivial objects (as I love ice cream) is a vulgarism but love is often used for like in humorous hyperbole as old Sarah Battle loved a good game of whist (Lamb) Enjoy (opposed to loathe or abhor) implies a liking or loving that awakens keen delight (sometimes sensuous, sometimes intellectual delight but often a mingling of the two) and deep satisfaction, as even if she had unconsciously liked it [life in Paris] she had never enjoyed it (Bennett) We had written our first stories together and together enjoyed the first sweets of success (R Macaulay) No one but Molny and the Bishop had ever seemed to enjoy the beautiful site of that building —perhaps no one ever would But these two had spent many an hour admiring it (Cather) It is this specific quality the power of enjoying things without being reduced to the need of possessing them which differentiates the aesthetic instinct from other instincts" (H Ellis) Relish implies a liking or sometimes, an enjoyment that arises because the thing relished meets one's approval, satisfies one's taste or gives one personal gratification except in negative expressions this verb is slightly archaic in its flavor as his fine taste taught him to relish the beauties of Virgil and Cicero (Hallam) concerts of classical music which she did not particularly relish (Shaw) Fancy (see also THINK 1) implies a liking for something that corresponds to one's imaginative conception (sometimes one's ideal) of what it should be (as I never yet beheld that special face Which I could fancy more than any other —Shak He should have yachts horses, whatever he fancied' —Meredith they did not fancy having their demands for a better wage scale confused by the talk of anarchists and socialists —S Anderson) or for something that appeals to one's taste one's eye or the like especially at the moment (as while she was ill she fancied only the most delicate of foods) Dote on or upon implies an infatuation or a foolish excessive liking as You dote on her that cares not for your love (Shak) It is, however often used colloquially in hyperbole as she said she doted on vanilla caramels

Ana Prefer *choose select elect admire esteem respect regard (see under REGARD n) *approve endorse appreciate comprehend *understand

Ant Dislike — Con *Hate abhor detest abominate loathe *despise, contemn scorn disdain.

likely, 1 *Probable possible

Ana Credible believable colorable *plausible reasonable *rational.

Ant Unlikely — Con *Doubtful dubious questionable problematic *certain inevitable necessary

2 *Apt liable

likeness Likeness similarity, resemblance similitude, analogy, affinity are synonymous terms when they denote agreement or correspondence (or an instance of agreement or correspondence) in details of appearance in qualities etc. brought out by a comparison of two or more things Likeness commonly implies closer correspondence than similarity, which often applies to things which are merely somewhat alike Yes, I should have known you anywhere from your likeness to your father' (Arch Marshall) Certain insects escape danger by their similarity to plants (J Lubbock) Resemblance suggests especially similarity in appearance or in superficial or external qualities. It would be as difficult to discover any resemblance between the two situations as between the appearance of the persons concerned" (E Wharton) Similitude, which is now somewhat infrequent in this sense and widely regarded as bookish is occas onally preferred to likeness or simi larity when an abstract term is desired The law which reconciles similitude and dissimilitude the harmony of contrast (H Reed) Analogy, in careful use always causes will produce similar effects or that what is true in one order of existence must be true in another Three principal types [of ants] offering a curious analogy to the hunting pastoral and agricultural stages in the h story of human development ' (J Lubbock) Such implications of a relationship such as natural kinship temperamental sympathy similar experience or his torical influence which is responsible for the likeness ' In Keats there are phrases and paradoxes that have surprising affinities with Taoist thought (Binyon) His face had a curious affinity to the faces of old sailors or fishermen who have lived a s mple practical life in the light of an overmastering tradition (Gals worthy)

Ana Equivalence equality sameness identicalness or identity (see corresponding adjectives at SAME) agreement conformity correspondence (see corresponding verbs at AGREE) analogousness comparableness homogeneousness or homogeneity uniformity parallel ism (see corresponding adjectives at SIMILAR)

Ant Unlikeness —Con *Dissimilarity difference

at springy

Con *St ff inflexible r g d tense stark wooden limit, n Limit bound confine, end, term, bourn (or bourne) are comparable when they mean an actual or imaginary line beyond which a thing does not or cannot extend Limit is the most inclusive of these terms because cally implied these l m ts are by implication two in number so the limits of a room are usually its four the fisherman s catch is determined by the state game laws for each of the most desirable kinds of fish to live with n the limits of one s income to determine the continuous and forms a circle or only one side the same is true of a bounding surface that forms a sphere is within the bounds of the earth to beat the bounds (an annual but now almost obsolete English ceremony of surveying the boundaries of a parish and marking them at certain points by beating with boughs) the western confines of China within the confines of our subject The distinctions between these two words are not always apparent Not without exceptions however bound usual y indicates a point of view from w th n and sug pared see also END 2, INTENTION) appl es usually to one of the two uttermost limits or extremes of a th ng this use is chiefly found in idiomatic phrases (as to travel to the ends of the earth) but it occurs also in reference to either extreme in an ascending or descending scale or appl es to a limit in space such as a boundary l ne ... as in their course They came to the field s bourn —Cowper) or to a limit set as an end goal or destinat on (a prescience of some bourn incalculably d stant per haps to which we are all moving —Hudson)

Ana Limitation restriction circumscript on conf ment (see corresponding verbs at LIMIT) *border margin verge edge rim brim brink *boundary border march frontier limit, v Limit, restrict, circumscribe confine come into comparison when they mean to set or prescr be the laws to limit the speed of automobiles on h g way limit the acreage planted with potatoes to limit a day on these sacred constitution of a thing (as he found that smal own l e limited his opportun ties the poor so l l m ted the ... about as desirable by thus, a restricted district in a city zoning law is a clearly outlined territory within which only buildings of a certain kind and often of a certain valuation can be erected; so, to restrict the powers of a court, to restrict the freedom of the press, to restrict one's diet on orders from one's physician. "The Bureau was dismembered, its staff dispersed, and its appropriations for research restricted almost to the vanishing point" (V. Heiser). Circumscribe differs from restrict in that its implication of an encircling or enclosing boundary is always clear; consequently, it is often preferred to restrict when the idea of being kept within too small an extent or range is to be stressed (as, "People ... think that the emotional range and the realistic truth of drama is limited and circumscribed by verse"—T. S. Eliot) or when there is the intent to suggest a distinct, complete, but limited whole and its apartness from all that surrounds it (as, "to undertake here to inquire into the degree of its necessity would be to pass the line which circumscribes the judicial department"—Ch. Just. Marshall; "The world to which they belonged and for which they worked was strictly circumscribed and complete within itself"—Binyon). Confine may imply limitation, restriction, or circumscription, but it usually emphasizes the bounds which must not or cannot be passed; consequently, it often suggests severe restraint or restraints and carries connotations such as those of cramping, fettering, hampering, bottling up, and the like, which are seldom even hinted at in the other words. "Now I am cabin'd, cribb'd, confin'd, bound in To saucy doubts and fears" (Shak.). "The distinction between a government with limited and unlimited powers is abolished, if those limits do not confine the persons on whom they are imposed" (Ch. Just. Marshall). "It is not desirable to confine knowledge to whatever can be put into a useful shape for examinations, drawing rooms, or the still more pretentious modes of publicity" (T. S. Eliot). "We are confined to our senses for perceiving the world" (Karl K. Darrow).

Ana Define, *prescribe, assign: *restrain, curb, check.

Ant Widen. — Con *Expand, swell, distend: enlarge, *increase: *extend, lengthen, prolong, protract.

limp. Limp, floppy, flaccid, flabby, flimsy, sleazy (or sleezy) agree in meaning wanting firmness in texture, substance, or structure and therefore unable to keep its shape or in shape. Limp applies to that which is devoid of the necessary stiffness or firmness to keep it from drooping or losing its original sturdiness or freshness: as, collars limp with perspiration; organdy becomes limp when there is excess of humidity; the intense heat has made him limp. "[Punch's] body was dangling in a most uncomfortable position, all loose and limp and shapeless" (Dickens). Floppy applies to that which sags, or hangs limply: as, a dog with floppy ears; a floppy veil falls from her hat. Flaccid implies a loss or want of elasticity or resilience and therefore an incapacity to return to its original shape or condition or to keep a desired shape; the term in literal use applies chiefly but not exclusively to flesh and other living tissues: as, flaccid muscles; a flaccid stem. "Now in swift collapse he was as flaccid as a sick hound and as disgusting as an aged drunkard" (Bennett). In figurative use the term implies lack of force or energy or substance: as, "the style is ... worthless, slipshod, flaccid" (Wilde); "our flaccid culture" (T. S. Eliot). Flabby applies to that which is so soft that it yields readily to the touch or is easily shaken: as, flabby flesh or muscles; flabby cheeks. In figurative use the term implies the loss or lack of that which keeps a thing up or in good sound condition; it often carries suggestions of spinelessness, spiritlessness, lethargy, or the like: as, "the flabby pseudo-religions in which the modern world is so prolific" (J. W. Krutch); "a few subjects thoroughly taught are infinitely better than a large number of subjects flabbily taught" (A. C. Benson). Flimsy applies to that which by its looseness of structure or insubstantiality of texture cannot hold up under use or strain: as, cheesecloth is flimsy; flimsy paper such as is often used for typewritten copies; "a wooden seat put together with nails—a flimsy contrivance" (Jefferies). In extended use the term applies to anything that is so frail or slight as to be without value or endurance: as, a flimsy excuse; a flimsy moral code. Sleazy applies chiefly to flimsy fabrics, but it often differs from flimsy in carrying a suggestion of fraud or of carelessness in its manufacture: as, sleazy calicoes; sleazy silks. In its somewhat rare extended use, the term often emphasizes absence of proper care more than the quality of the work: as, "You shall not conceal the sleezy, fraudulent, rotten hours you have slipped into the piece" (Emerson).

Ana *Loose, slack, relaxed, lax: limber, *supple.

Con *Stiff, rigid, inflexible, stark, wooden, tense: *firm, hard, solid: brittle, crisp (see FRAGILE).

limpid. *Clear, transparent, translucent, lucid, pellucid, diaphanous.

Ana *Pure, sheer: lucid, perspicuous, *clear.

Ant Turbid. — Con Muddy, roiled, roily (see TURBID): *obscure, vague, dark: opaque, murky, dusky (see DARK).

line, v. Line, align (or aline), range, array agree in meaning to arrange in a line or in lines. Line, or more often line up, implies setting in single file or in parallel rows: as, to line up prisoners for identification; to line up troops for inspection. Align stresses the bringing of points or parts that should be in a straight line into correct adjustment or into correspondence: as, to align the lenses of a telescope; to align the front and rear wheels of an automobile; to align type in printing. Range stresses orderly or correct disposition, sometimes merely in straight or parallel lines, but more often with the added implication of separation into groups or classes according to some plan or design. "Oaken benches ranged in seemly rows" (Wordsworth). "Thus useful arms in magazines we place, All rang'd in order, and dispos'd with grace" (Pope). Array implies actual formation in order, especially battle order, and therefore suggests full equipment and readiness for action. "There is a great Field-Marshal, my friend, who arrays our battalions; Let us to Providence trust, and abide and work in our stations" (Clough).

Figuratively, these words also come into comparison. Line up stresses organization for unity or singleness of effort: as, to line up the opponents of a measure to achieve its defeat; to line up public opinion in favor of a proposal. Align is commonly used reflexively in its figurative sense and implies falling into line or into a line-up: as, at the beginning of the World War France, England, and Belgium aligned themselves with Serbia. "So long as the symptoms [of disease] failed to align themselves with any known disorder, they were supposed to be amenable to neighbourly advice" (M. Austen). Range in precise use implies putting or falling into a group, such as a class, a party, a rank, or a category: it may suggest alignment, but more often it connotes partisanship or alliance, or, when used of things, susceptibility of classification. Consequently, it is followed not only by with but by under, against, around, and the like. "'Tis better to be lowly born, And range with humble livers in content" (Shak.). "The friends, my enemies, All ranged against me" (Browning). Array in its figurative sense retains its implication of orderly formation; it sometimes also suggests arrangement in logical or chronological order or as parts of a design 'These doubts will be arrayed before their minds (F W Farrar) More often however it stresses the impressive or imposing character of an opposition and is followed by against as several of the best legal minds were arrayed against the prosecution.

Ana Marshal arrange *order Con Derange disarrange *disorder disturb disperse, dissipate *scatter lineage. *Ancestry pedigree linger Tarry, wait *stay remain abide Ana *Delay procrastinate loiter dawdle dally, dilly dally lag Con Hurry, hasten precipitate quicken accelerate *speed lingo *Dialect vernacular patois jargon cant argot patter slang link, v Connect relate associate *join combine unite Ana Concatenate articulate *integrate *tie bind Ant Sunder — Con *Separate part sever divorce liquefy Liquefy, deliquesce melt fuse, dissolve, thaw reference to fungi and similar vegetation which show heat the term commonly suggests a softening a loss of shape and a running consistency as butter melts when not stored in a cool place to melt wax or maple sugar In its frequent extended use melt is applied to masses that are gradually dispersed or grow thinner or more tenuous and finally disappear (as the crowd gradually melted away —Dickens mountains beyond mountains melting away into remote sky —Binyon) or to persons their emotions or the like that grow softer gentler or more tender (as one whose subdued eyes Albeit unused to the melting mood Drop tears as fast as the Arabian trees Their medicinal gum —Shak in Romeo and Juliet the profounder dramatist shows his lovers silver which had been fused in a ladle was allowed to solidify (J Tyndall) When however the union or

Dissolve carries, as the other terms do not a strong implication of the disintegration of the solid into its smallest component parts as here compared it implies the reduction of a solid to a liquid state by immersing it in another liquid called a solvent which has the power to reduce it to particles so fine that the solvent and the particles unite and form or seem to form a homogeneous liquid as dissolve salt in warm water alcohol is frequently used in pharmacy to dissolve drugs silver that dissolves in nitric acid is called silver nitrate In its extended use dissolve differs little from melt except pageant faded Leave not a rack behind —Shak) or in its suggestion of the use of something comparable to a solvent (as Her heart dissolved in pity for him"—Bennett relief caused her to dissolve in tears) Thaw is used only in reference to something that is frozen, as ice or snow or in extended use to something equally stiff or rigid such as a cold heart a cold disposition or extreme

ify vaporize

Liquid, fluid come into comparison both as meaning composed of particles that move flowingly and change their relative position y perceptible break in their continuity and as nouns denoting any substance composed of such particles Both terms (of either part of speech) imply an opposition to solid but liquid is the more restricted in its application for the term implies the flow characteristic of water and refers only to substances which like water have a definite volume but no definite form except such as is given by their container and as is readily lost when there is an upset an overflow or the like as, water fresh milk various wines beers and liquors and all which unlike liquids has no independent volume or shape as fluid air gas is an aeriform fluid fluid blood fluid oils Fluid is often preferred to liquid when the fluid or indefinite such as humanity or even the League of Nations (S Alexander), Emotion formless, chaotic fluid in itself (Lowes) In London all values and all meanings were fluid (R Macaulay) Liquid on the other hand often implies an opposition to harshness (as liquid tones thy liquid notes that close the eye of day" circles where both terms are used fluid implies ing and therefore applies to money or funds that are not permanently invested or that are constantly in circulation (as, the fluid gold of international trade liquid implies a quality or condition of assets that are in the form of money or are easily convertible into money and applies not only to cash on hand but to securities properties and the like as liquid assets liquid securities

Ant Solid vaporous liquid, n Fluid (see under LIQUID adj) Ant Solid vapor lissome or lissom Lithesome lithe *supple Ana & Con ... list, n
roster
they ... names or of items written down or printed as a memorandum a record, or a source of information, but because of wide differences in their range of application they are not always interchangeable List is now the most comprehensive ... most widely appl... im cal obj
gro ... to guests a price list an engagement list Table is also widely applicable but it distinctively implies arrangement in an orde... as st the pe... the informat gests prese...

on is and ten tim and is plete l
catalog ... ogue of the slain the author ... owed the example of the greatest ancient poets (Addison) The term is now used more often of an informative descriptive list of all the books in a library or of those issued by a publisher or sold by a bookseller or of all the works of art in a museum or of all the courses given in a university or college or the like Because business educational and art catalog... contain other inform...

... such as a will
... atute or the like

(see also PROGRAM) is applied to a timetable as of trains, ...

... in which are entered from time to time names or items of a specific character together with pertinent details for the sake of maintaining a record as a register of births a register of marriages a register of ... Since however these ... but also a list suggests an off... entries as ...

Lloyd's Register of British and Foreign Shipping which ...

up and on which ...
to any list esp...
who belong to ...
England, design...
roll includes th... military body ... counted for on ... students belong... day in order to ... which is chiefly ... ous very a military term applies strictly to a table containing a roll of officers and men or sometimes of units, and specifying the order of their rotation in duties, their special assignments and the like You may know the White Hussars by their side which is greater than that of all the Cavalry Regiments on the roster (Kipling) Rota is much rarer than roster its close synonym but it occasionally occurs in Great Britain especially in reference to schoolboys. The senior fag who kept the rota (T Hughes) Canon (etymologically a rule or model) applies only to a list or catalogue now chiefly of writings but ... persons that confo... ga acc
Sh ... ist of the plays and poems which scholars have accepted as written by Shakespeare himself a canonized saint is one whose name is entered in a canon or list of persons recognized as saints by the Roman Catholic Church Inventory is a catalogue of the goods chattels and sometimes real estate (usually with their estimated worth) found in a person's or a corporation's possession at a given time such as at the person's death or at the time of a stocktaking as the merchant makes an inventory of his stock annually on January n *tip tilt cant

*slant slope
*hear hearken attend List hark *hear hearken, attend Spiritless *languid languishing languorous is cal enervated apathetic, *impassive phlegmatic heedless less *careless inert *inactive passive supine Ant Eager — Con Avid keen anxious agog (see ...ER) alert *watchful vigilant *vigorous energetic *quick, prompt ready *Arena circus ring cockpit, court field gridiron pond rink
...ature n Literature belles lettres the humanities, letters are not strictly speaking synonymous terms for they are rarely interchangeable in idiomatic English Nevertheless they come into comparison both when they denote a branch of learning or culture concerned primarily with writings that endure or are likely to endure used comprehensively of the body of writings on a restricted in its reference to literary productions that are read or studied (or are capable of being read or studied) but especially as referring to the activities interests, and progress of man chiefly as they are recorded in the languages and literature of the past In a somewhat narrower application the term often designates Greek and Latin (in Scottish universities, Latin only) languages would I have you neglect the humanities I could wish that every one of you could enjoy in the originals Homer and Virgil and Dante and Rabelais, and Goethe (F Pollock) Letters is chiefly, but not exclusively, found in certain idiomatic phrases where it denotes the pursuit or profession of those who produce literature or are learned in the humanities, as, a man of letters in the republic of letters (that is in the body nourish letters (Belloc) elegant (see corresponding nouns at ELEGANCE slender, *thin *meager, scanty, scrimpy, skimpy Ant. Big — Con *Large, great abundant, ample, plenteous *Shore, coast, beach, strand, bank, ...

Ritual, rite, ceremony, ceremonial, form...
1 Exist, *be, subsist.

efficient.
Ant. Inactive, inert dormant (as a volcano) defunct (as an institution, journal or the like) livelihood. *Living subsistence, sustenance maintenance support keep bread handicraft, art profession ... stipend fee, emolument animated, vivacious, sprightly ... keenly alive Lively suggests especially briskness alertness or energy, as, they spent an hour in lively talk about their respective travels ...

tried to meet the gay challenge in her eyes and to reply cleverly to the droll word of greeting on her lips (Cather) "Johnson was in high spirits talked with great animation and success" (Boswell) Vivacious and (esp) sprightly suggest greater lightness of spirits or quickness of wit; they are used most commonly of manner or language "The stuff has sparkle whatever he [Stevenson] means to convey at the time is ... vivaciously put, the wordage is always witty and gay and independent, looking forward to pleasure ...

Con Brilliant *bright, luminous, lustrous not as here compared close synonyms but they come into comparison because they agree in denoting the means especially the amount of money or goods required to keep one fed housed clothed and the like Living is the general term for this sense although it now occurs chiefly in specific idiomatic phrases as, he works hard but he does not earn a living for himself and his family I am quite pleased to make my living by what I write but the attempt to write for my living would be hopeless (H Ellis) Livelihood, once not clearly distinguishable from living in current use often applies either to the trade profession craft, or other form of work by means of which one earns his living (as, Let each man practise one art which is to be his livelihood' —Jowett often the work one does as a diversion in one's youth turns out to be one s livelihood) or the wages salary or income derived from such work (as to earn an honest livelihood, Though I must slave for livelihood' —F P Adams) Subsistence was also once used as a close synonym of living but in the course of time the term has acquired d stinguishing implications so that it now especially in sociological and economic language specifically denotes means sufficient merely to maintain life or to enable one to subs st and implies an amount of money or supply of goods that provides a person or his family with absolute necessities only such as the simplest type of home and just enough to eat and wear, as, persons on rel ef are provided only with subsistence This sense is found chiefly in two-word phrases such as subsistence wage a term frequently contrasted with living wage which implies means whereby adequate food clothes living quarters etc are provided (as if the owners will not pay subsistence wages the nation must —Shaw) subsistence level (as a large proportion of British workers near subsistence level —The Nation) subsistence rate (as, beyond the bare subsistence rate —J A Hobson) subsistence homestead a small home with a plot of arable ground provided by the government of the United States at a very low rental to a destitute family that has no other means of support Sustenance etymologically implies a sustaining of life It is often used in place of living when the emphas s is upon the food that is necessary not only to one s existence but to one s well being as he was able to wring only a bare sustenance from his farm But it is also often used to imply all the necessaries of life, as It was the fur trade which gave early sustenance and vitality to the great Canadian provinces (Irving) Maintenance as here compared is more variable in its meanings than the oth r terms but most often it denotes either the amount necessary for one s board lodgings clothes and the like or as in income tax reports, the amount equivalent to the cost of one s board lodgings laundry and the like when they form part of one s emolument for services, thus a husband who has been divorced by his wife is usually requ red by the court to provide maintenance for her and their children Enough to give him books and a moderate maintainance (Cibber) how much of this income represents your maintenance? Support, which in general applies to anything or to anyone that provides a means by which a person or thing is kept up or kept from fall ng, in the sense here considered applies not only to the amount of money that provides maintenance for others, but to the person who provides the means by which others are maintained as his earnings are (or he is) the sole support of his fam ly they look for their support to him Keep is a colloquial term often used in place of maintenance or sustenance (food) and applicable not only to men but to animals such as horses dogs and cows as, the new hired man is not worth his keep the keep of a horse is almost equal in cost to that of a man. Bread, or bread and butter, often takes the place of living or sustenance partly as a result of the use of the former in the Lord s Prayer (Give us this day our daily bread) but also because the terms denote the simplest necessities of life, as to make one s bread by one s pen, to earn one s bread and butter by intense toil living, adj Living, alive, quick, animate animated, vital agree in meaning endowed with or manifesting life In their primary senses where life means that character or quality which is peculiar to things that are capable of growth, reproduction, and often, motion and which is lost by death they come very close to each other Living and alive are opposed to dead and therefore are applied to organic bodies which have l fe as distinguished from those from which life has departed they are distinguishable chiefly by the fact that alive follows the noun it modifies either directly or as a predicative adjective as among living men among men still alive all living things all things which are alive Quick (now archaic in this sense) is sometimes opposed to inanimate and sometimes to dead it is applied chiefly to things which have life because it is their nature as distinguished from those incapable of life, thus the old English phrase ' quick goods is practically equal to the modern livestock a quick fence ' is the modern hedge made up of living plants instead of stakes or stones, quick wood is the opposite of dead wood and therefore signifies the parts of a shrub through which sap still circulates Animate is opposed to inanimate and is applied to living organic bodies in contrast to dead organic bodies or especially to inorganic bodies having no capacity for life, as the lowest orders of animate things Animated is opposed to lifeless or inert and is applied to that which once devoid of life becomes alive as it is difficult to find out when in the course of evolution inanimate matter became animated Vital is opposed to mechanical and is appl ed chiefly to power force energy motion or the like which results naturally from life in distinction from that power force etc which results from purely physical or chemical causes as vital functions a vital as opposed to a mechanistic principle

When these words are applied to things which have not life in the sense defined they form other groupings. All however stress qualities suggestive of life Living usually suggests continued or continuous existence with no diminution of activity efficacy or the like as a living language a living principle a living force Alive and vital are very close in their emphasis on abundance of vigor on capacity for development or on powers of endurance both are applicable to persons as well as to things His gigantic gusto his del ght in toil and struggle, his superb aliveness (Mencken) The provisions of the Constitution are organic living institutions Their significance is vital not formal it is to be gathered by cons dering their origin and the line of their growth (Justice Holmes) Alive and animated often imply the presence of living things in great numbers as the stream is alive with trout as animated as water under a microscope" (Hardy) Animated as here compared (see also LIVELY) usually stresses endowment with qualities suggestive of life especially motion as animated pictures an animated doll Perhaps no people has ever been stirred by a great idea till that idea was animated and made memorable by finding its right expression in rhythmical phrase (Binyon) Quick often and animate less rarely imply newness freshness, fluidity or responsiveness The quick green Of every new leaf on the oldest tree (J Freeman) Thine own heart, quick and enamoured of love and of light" (Binyon)

Ana Existing being subs sting (see BE) *active live operative dynamic.
Ant Lifeless — Con *Dead defunct, deceased departed inanimate load, n Load burden, freight, cargo, lading are comparable when they mean that which is carried conveyed or transported from one place to another as in a cart car or vessel Load is the most comprehensive of these terms being referable also to that which is carried by man or horse as on the back or in bags as the peddler carries a heavy load the truckman will deliver a load of wood tomorrow a ship*load* of grain Load is also applicable to the quantity or amount carried as by a wagon a truck or by a freight car thus in England a wagon load (with some local exceptions) is forty bushels of wheat or e ghty bushels of oats Burden (etymologically that which is borne) is now used in the sense here considered only in idiomatic phrases as a ship of 100 tons burden carries a load of 100 tons a beast of burden is an distance transit as by ship railway train motor truck or the like as the wrecked truck spilled its freight over the road a freight train (that is a train all of whose cars carry freight) Cargo applies specifically to the freight carried by a ship in current use it frequently is preferred to freight when a vessel is the carrier although often general use the term is often used humorously of persons whether carried by boat or by train Before a train could get to any villadom with a cargo of season ticket holders it would have to circle about this woodland (H G Wells) Lading (now chiefly poetic except in the commercial phrase bill of lading) applies either to fre ght or to a cargo load, v *Adulterate weight sophisticate doctor deacon loath or loth *Disincl ned indisposed averse hesitant reluctant Ana *Adverse averse *antipathetic unsympathetic averse Ant Anxious — Con *Eager keen avid desiring or desirous wishing wanting (see corresponding verbs at DESIRE) loathe Abominate detest abhor *hate Ana *Despise contemn scorn disdain refuse reject spurn, repudiate *decline *recoil shrink flinch blench quail Ant Dote on — Con *Like love relish fancy enjoy *desire crave wish want covet loathing Abhorrence detestation abomination hate hatred See under HATE t Ana. Aversion *antipathy repugnance repellency or repulsion, distaste (see corresponding adjectives at REPUGNANT) Ant Tolerance

loathsome *Offensive repuls ve repugnant revolting Ana Abominable abhorrent detestable odious *hateful repellent *repugnant d stasteful obnoxious invidious.
Ant Engaging inviting — Con Attractive alluring charming enchanting fascinating bewitching (see under ATTRACT) lobby, n Foyer anteroom antechamber vestibule *entry entryway hall narthex locality. Locality, district, vicinage vicinity neighborhood (or neighbourhood) come into comparison as denoting a more or less definitely circumscribed place or region especially from the point of view of those who live in it Locality applies to a region of undefined boundaries but it usually suggests an area round a center such as the place where the speaker or writer lives (as he

District usually appl es to a locality that has clearly defined boundaries determined by the nat on, sta e instance more pertinent sense district is often appl ed to a locality with reference to some of its most obv ous or clearly defined characteristics rather than to the exact vicinage The term has come to apply somewhat more vaguely to the territory near to the speaker s or wr ter there are no ponds in this vicinity the wealthy business men of New York usually have their homes in t knows it and its inhabitants rather well as, there is one of that name in this neighborhood neighborhood parties she is on good terms with the entire neighborhood However with a growing tendency of the people of o country to think of those inhabiting near by countries neighbors the term is often less restricted in its applic tion than formerly as the country must ... against the establishment of hostile bases in its neighborhood Ana Region *area zone belt tract section, sect (see PART) territory *field bailiw ck province sphe domain locomotion *Motion movement move stir locum tenens *Substitute supply alternate understudy pinch hitter double stand in locution *Phrase collocation idiom expression.

lodge, v 1 House board *harbor shelter en ertain Ana *Receive take accept admit accommod.t *contain hold 2 *Reside live dwell sojourn stay put up stop lodgings *Room chambers, quarters d ggings, d apartment flat, tenement lofty *High tall Ana Elevated raised l fted (see LIFT) magnified, aggrandized (see EXALT) imposing stately august majestic (see GRAND) sublime glorious superb (see SPLENDID) Con Lowly *humble modest.

loggia Gallery *balcony veranda, piazza porch, portico stoop logical Logical, analytical (or analytic), subtle (or subtile) are here considered only as applied to persons their minds their mental hab ts or processes, and as meaning having or showing skill in thinking or reasoning They are often used interchangeably or without clear distinction but there are grounds in good usage for employing them with precision. Logical may imply the power to think according to the rules of logic and therefore in an orderly fashion more often however it suggests the power to impress others that clearness of thought soundness of reasoning and fr underlie one s a and the like intu tive tempe could not find — Montague) Analytical stresses the power to simpl fy either that wh ch is complex or complicated as by separating it into its constituent parts, or that which is chaotic or con fused by organization that shows the relation of the details to each other and the whole In somet mes ter use cla — the power to cre vent. The early e ghteenth century had arrived at an over-analytical dryness of mind (Babbitt) His [Noah Webster s] mind was analytical rather than constructive (H E Scudder) Subtle (see also SUBTLE 2) stresses the power to penetrate below the surface and to perceive fine distinctions and delicate almost imperceptible relations. Often its use as of he e

of di
of
m fac — pre ation the most su — speculations of modern science (Justice Holmes) Ana Cogent *valid sound telling convincing *clear lucid, perspicuous *rational reasonable inferential illative ratiocinative (see under INFERENCE) Ant Illogical. — Con Intuitive *instinctive *irrational unreasonable fallacious, sophistical casuistical (see under FALLACY) loiter Dawdle lag dally procrastinate, *delay dillydally Ana Tarry linger wait (see STAY) Con Hasten hurry (see SPEED v) lollop, v *Skip bound hop curvet lope ricochet lone 1 Lonely lonesome *alone forlorn lorn solitary desolate 2 *Single sole, unique, solitary separate particular lonely Lonesome, lone *alone solitary forlorn lorn, desolate Ana Abandoned deserted forsaken (see ABANDON) secluded isolated (see correspond ng nouns at SOLITUDE) Con Teeming swarming (see TEEM) frequented haunted (see FREQUENT) *social gregarious convivial lonesome Lonely lone *alone solitary forlorn, lorn desolate Ana & Con See those at LONELY long v Long yearn hanker pine hunger, thirst come into comparison as meaning to have a strong and urgent desire for something One longs (with for or an infinitive) when one wishes for something with one s whole heart or with great earnestness and in some cases strives to gain it so far as l es within one s power, often howeve the word is used wl en the de

...
... e world s praises (... ne yearns (with for, after towards, to or an infinitive) when one regards or desires something with eager, restless, often tender or passionate longing as But Enoch yearn d to see her face again (Tennyson), Then with teeming heart I yearned O Angel of the Schools, towards Christ with thee! (W H Mallock) She gazed into his faded blue eyes as if yearning to be understood (Conrad) One hankers (for or after something) when one is possessed with or made uneasy by a desire because of the urgency of a phys cal appetite (as to hanker for strawberries, peaches and other fresh fruits in the winter time), or because of a passion such as greed lust, amb tion covetousness of the l ke (as She still hankered with a natural hankering after her money —Trollope [Octavian s] hankering from the start after the office of tribune —Buchan) or because it is sometimes only for the time being beyond one s reach or one s powers (as to wean your minds from hankering after false Germanic standards —Quiller Couch Too long a siege of the f sets us hanker (with grows — gives onesel — ng for it as, We look before and after And pine for what is not (Shelley) Temple was wise enough
...
— mil
— liqu d or drink as, to hunger f — fresh vegetables to thirst for cool fresh water In their extended senses, one hungers or thirsts (with for after or an infinitive) when one longs for something with the full force of one s being or works or struggles with all one s powers for something which will satisfy a compelling craving espec all — as My so — d are they w — for they st — hungered for a new er — which to expand her new powers (H Ellis) But thirst and hunger may suggest a driving desire for that which will satisfy one s greed revenge etc as to hunger for wealth or for power to thirst for blood to thirst to begin the combat Ana Crave *desire wish want, covet pant aspire, *aim longanimity. *Patience long-suffering forbearance resignation.

Ana *Fortitude sand grit pluck backbone endurance toleration or tolerance (see corresponding verbs at BEAR) submissiveness (see corresponding adjective at TAME) long suffering long sufferance *Patience, resignat on forbearance Ana Submissiveness subduedness (see correspond ng adjectives at TAME) meekness humbleness or humility lowl ness (see corresponding adjectives at HUMBLE) *fortitude grit endurance toleration (see corresponding verbs at BEAR)

Con Impatience restiveness uneasiness (see corresponding adjectives at IMPATIENT) irksomeness wearisomeness tediousness (see corresponding adjectives at IRKSOME) *tedium boredom ennui look, v 1 *See watch

Ana *Gaze gape stare glare peer *scrutinize scan inspect examine 2 *Seem appear

Ana *Indicate betoken bespeak *show, manifest evidence evince demonstrate 3 Also look for. *Expect hope await

Ana *Foresee foreknow anticipate divine look, n 1 Look sight, view, glance, glimpse peep, peek, coup d oeil are here compared as meaning both the act of seeing something and the thing that is seen Look (see also APPEARANCE) implies the direction of one s eyes to a thing or the use of one s power of vision as let me have a look at the patient One dying look he upward cast (Scott) he did not vouchsafe her one kind look When applied to the thing seen the impression produced tends to be stressed as judging by the look of his rash he has scarlet fever The look of his face as he spoke was by no means pleasant (Trollope) Sight, on the other hand so strongly implies reference to the object that is seen that it suggests reception of an image by the visual powers or presentation to the sense of sight rather than a conscious use of that sense Thus when the term denotes the act (sometimes the power) of seeing one takes a look at something which catches his sight one has far sight who sees things at a great distance The litter is set down stage in full sight of the audience (Millay) at first sight he seems unkempt When the term denotes the thing that is seen qualifying words or phrases ...

View, as here compared especially when it denotes the act of seeing was once used in place of look when a careful looking over or inspection was implied (as Surveying Nature with too nice a view —Dryden) but this sense prevails in current use only when the term implies the exercise of the mental rather than the physical vision or an attempt to comprehend something beyond the range of the physical vision as bring the buried ages back to view (Gray) The scientific view of the world is not indifferent to quality or value It seeks to find law harmony uniformity in nature (Inge) More often when seeing through the eyes is suggested view takes the place of sight in either sense with how ...

view Glance, in what is probably the earliest of its senses denotes something which is seen as a sudden ...

fate (Stirling) It is in this sense that a glance from the eye is often to be interpreted especially in older writings (as, Dart not scornful glances from those eyes, To wound thy lord —Shak) but the transition in sense from the flash that is seen to the quick look that is given to a thing (the chief modern sense) is not clearly marked 'Lift our heads to heaven And never more abase our sight so low As to vouchsafe one glance unto the ground (Shak) A glance satisfied him of the hopelessness of the struggle (J R Green) Glimpse (which is etymologically akin to glimmer and glitter) also in an early (but not necessarily its earliest) sense applied to something seen as a flash or a gleam, as No dear glimpse of the stars lovely face Strikes through the solid darkness of the place (Cowley) a glimpse of the moon showed the dark and huge tower (Scott) This sense is now rare except in poetry for the word in current usage com...

cealed or what can be only furtively watched as through a hole or a crevice through half shut eyes, or the like as to take a peep (or peek) through a keyhole When however they denote something which is seen by ...

entering the garden (Gray) The coup d œil of the Brussels opera house did not strike Mrs O Dowd as being so fine as the theatre in Fishamble Street Dublin (Thackeray)

Ana Gazing or gaze staring or stare (see GAZE) scrutiny inspection examination (see under SCRUTINIZE)

2 *Appearance aspect semblance

Ana *Bearing demeanor mien manner *posture attitude pose *face countenance visage physiognomy looker-on Onlooker beholder *spectator observer witness eyewitness bystander kibitzer loom, v Emerge *appear

Ant Vanish

loose, adj Loose relaxed, slack, lax are here compared as meaning not tightly bound held restrained or the like Loose is the widest of these terms in its range of application It is referable for example to persons or things that are free from a usual or a temporary restraint whether that restraint be a rope a bond a fetter a prison or the like or a rule a principle (especially a moral principle) or a law having for its object the order discipline or well being of the group and the individuals which compose it as we found the boat loose after the storm the bull is loose in the field finally he worked his hand loose some sheets of this book are loose loose thinking (i e thinking unrestrained by concern for logic or accuracy) loose talk (i e talk that pays scant attention to the truth of its statements) loose principles, loose habits loose living (i e principles, habits, living which are definitely immoral because opposed to or ungoverned by moral or ethical principles) Loose is also applicable to that which is not firmly or tightly held by attached to connected with or fitted to that which supports or guides or that which it is intended to cover as to drive with loose reins a loose belt a loose coat loose joints a loose sense of a word loose skin Often the word applies to a substance fabric or the like the particles or filaments of which are not close or compact in arrangement as loose soil a loose weave or texture Relaxed implies a loss of some tightness, tension, strictness or rigidity rather than a freedom from restraint of any kind or even a considerable departure from discipline fitness firmness etc not only does it never suggest wildness, lawlessness, or immorality but it rarely if ever suggests anything worse than an easing up a mitigation, an alleviation of strain or a softening as, relaxed discipline a relaxed enforcement of law relaxed nerves Augustus during these months was periods of lessened activity and to the periods or seasons n t-or miss, happy go-lucky *random haphazard *neglgent, remiss lax, slack *careless, heedless thoughtless Ant Tight strict — Con Taut tense (see TIGHT) *rigid stringent, rigorous precise exact *correct lope, v 1 *Skip bound hop curvet lollop ricochet 2 Trot pace single-foot walk, gallop run canter rack amble See under TROT n lope, n *Trot pace single-foot walk, gallop run canter rack amble loppy *Limp flabby flaccid flimsy sleazy Ana *Loose relaxed lax slack Con *Firm hard *stiff inflexible rigid tense stark taut *tight, tense. loquacious Garrulous voluble *talkativ Ana Fluent *vocal articulate glib eloq loquacity, loquaciousness Garrulit talkativeness See under TALKATIVE Ana Chattering or chatter chatting or or gab prating jabbering (see correspon CHAT) fluency articulateness glibness vo corresponding adjectives at VOCAL) *re facility Con Taciturnity reservedness or reserve reticence silence lord

Ana
Ana

magisterial authoritarian imperious, domineering *masterful Con Meek modest *humble lowly submissive *tame subdued: gentle mild (see SOFT) abject *mean Lord's Day. *Sunday Sabbath lore *Knowledge science learning erudition scholarship information.
Forlorn, lonely, lonesome lone *alone solitary solate See those at FORLORN Destiny portion, *fate doom Fortune luck hap *chance hazard ariant of LOATH Variant of LOWER
*Boor churl clown clodhopper bumpkin Con *Gentleman patrician aristocrat.

Green) Amiable (here compared only as applied to fault—an undue tolerance for indeterminate enthusiasms and vapid emotionalism (Babbitt) love, n *Attachment affection Ana Devotion piety *fidelity allegiance loyalty adoration worship idolatry (see corresponding verbs at ADORE delicate dainty rare (see CHOICE) Ant Unlovely plain heart He must love somebody (Austen) His [Augustus s] affectionate care for his people was winning him love (Buchan) Devoted emphas zes attentiveness somet mes implying l ttle more than ass duousness often connotes foolish tenderness A loving husband is a very amiable character A fond one I think is not so (J Wesley) Her preoccupation with petty th ngs of no importance whatever was worthy of the finest trad tions of fond motherhood (Bennett) When fond (of) and devoted (to) imply a strong pred lection or add ction they are not often clearly d stinguished However one is fond of the theater who welcomes every opportunity to see a play one is devoted to the theater who spends much of his time in see ng plays or in efforts to further the devel opment of the drama One may be fond of the country and yet not go there often but if one is devoted to it one prefers to spend most of one s time there Doting implies

Ana Amorous amatory *erotic *enamored infatuated attentive considerate *thoughtful *impass oned pass onate ardent fervent leal true constant *faithful Ant Unloving — Con *Ind fferent unconcerned aloof detached *cold chilly frigid *faithless false low *Base vile

Ana Abject ignoble *mean sord d *coarse vulgar gross obscene ribald *crooked devious oblique Con Decent seemly proper *decorous comme il faut noble *moral ethical lofty *h gh lower or lour, v Glower *frown scowl gloom Ana Glare stare peer (see GAZE) lowly Meek *humble modest Ana Subm ssive subdued *tame retiring withdrawing (see GO) reverential deferential obeisant (see corresponding nouns at HONOR) Ant Pompous — Con Pretentious ostentatious *showy arrogant lordly overbearing haughty *proud loyal *Faithful leal true constant stanch steadfast resolute Ant D sloyal — Con False *faithless perfid ous traitorous treacherous d saffected alienated estranged (see ESTRANGE) rebellious mut nous sed tious *insubordinate factious contumacious falsity perfidiousness or perfidy treacherousness or treachery traitorousness (see corresponding adjectives at FAITHLESS) lubricate Grease *oil anoint, inunct cream pomade pomatum lucent *Bright brilliant rad ant luminous lustrous effulgent refulgent beaming beamy lambent Ana Glowing blazing flaming (see BLAZE v) *splen d d resplendent glorious.

lucid 1 Pellucid *clear transparent translucent diaphanous, limpid Ana Luminous *bright brilliant lucent Con Murky gloomy opaque darkling dusky *dark *turb d muddy 2 *Clear perspicuous Ana Distinct plain manifest *evident Ant Obscure vague dark — Con Enigmatic cryptic ambiguous equivocal (see OBSCURE) luck Fortune hap accident hazard *chance Ana Break chance occasion *opportunity lot, n destiny *fate

Lucky, fortunate happy, providential come into ...rison when they mean meeting with or producing ...rable outcome or an unforeseen or unpred ctable success Lucky implies that the person or persons in volved have been favored by chance and that the success has not been the result of merit or merits as a lucky player some lucky hit wh ich took with everybody (Locke), Said he was a lucky fellow not to be sent to school (Meredith) it was a lucky day for him when he met the girl who later became his wife Fortunate al comb n ng the meaning of lucky or fortunate w th that of its more common sense of be ng blessed or made glad brings to l ght something that proves a treasure so, giving them patience under their suffer ngs, and a happy issue out of all their affl ct ons (Bk of Com Prayer) Chem sts have been more happy in finding experiments than the causes of them (R Boyle) Providential often carries an impl cation of good fortune resulting from the help or interference of Providence as, a providential escape they declared that the delay the s sters had made no remark that the ... m ght not hear (Bennett) Ana *Favorable benign auspicious prop tious advantageous *beneficial prof table happy fel citous meet (see FIT) Ant Unlucky — Con *Sinister baleful malefic malign ludicrous *Laughable ridiculous com c comica- farcical risible droll funny Ana Absurd preposterous *foolish silly grotesque bizarre antic *fantastic amusing d vert ng entertaining (see AMUSE) Con Lugubrious doleful dolorous *melancholy solemn grave *serious luggage *Baggage impedimenta lugubrious Doleful dolorous *melancholy rueful plaintive Ana Depressing oppressing or oppressive (see corresponding verbs at DEPRESS) sorrowful woeful (see corresponding nouns at SORROW) gloomy saturnine dour morose glum *sullen

Ant Joyous facetious — Con *Merry, blithe jocund jolly jovial cheerful *glad joyful luminous *Bright brilliant radiant lustrous effulgent lucent refulgent beaming beamy lambent

Ana Glowing blazing flaming (see BLAZE v) gleaming glittering flashing scintillating shimmering (see FLASH v) resplendent, glorious *splendid

Con Dim, dusky obscure murky gloomy *dark lunacy *Insanity psychosis, mania dementia

Ana. Alienation derangement *aberration *mania delirium frenzy hysteria lunatic, adj *Insane mad crazy crazed demented deranged maniac wood non compos mentis lure, n Lure bait, decoy, snare, trap come into comparison when they denote something that leads one literally and originally an animal figuratively a person unwittingly or inveigles such an animal or person into a particular place or situation especially one from which it or he cannot easily escape Lure (originally a device carrying raw meat and resembling a bird which was employed by falconers in training young hawks for hunting) in extended use suggests something that always attracts and often deceives yet does not necessarily lead one into evil or into danger How many [men] have with a smile made small account Of beauty and her lures on worthier things intent! (Milton) In current extended use the connotation of deception is growing increasingly rare and that of drawing power or seductiveness is being heightened as. "What is this lure this attraction that cricket exercises (Lucas) how can they resist the lure of so adventurous so enchanting an invitation? (L P Smith) "the lure of the simple life (Buchan) Bait (literally a morsel of food tempting to a fish or by extension any animal so placed that if the fish or animal bites it finds itself hooked netted or otherwise caught) in extended use is applied to something often in itself something relatively insignificant which is held out as a temptation or as a suggestion of an inviting prospect in the hope (or with the result) of inveigling another into a desired act position, or situation as, shop windows filled with baits to shoppers in spite of her shyness, the girl's beauty was sufficient bait to attract many suitors But to quote Seneca is not criticism It is merely to offer baits to a possible reader (T S Eliot) Decoy (originally a pond or pool with a net-covered channel into which ducks or other wild fowl were enticed but now in literal use a wild fowl or the likeness of one which is used to lure other wild fowl into shooting range or into a net) in extended use is applied chiefly to a person but sometimes to a thing that leads one to go somewhere or to do something that exposes one to the danger of being detected in crime of being swindled or robbed of being found in compromising or in merely unpleasant circumstances or of being used to further another person's ends as marked bills sent through the mails as decoys were found in the pocket of one postal employee pretty young girls were the unconscious decoys by means of which she assembled numbers of men at her receptions the troops were led into ambush by a decoy Snare (literally a string with a running noose or a similar inconspicuous device in which a foot or the head of a bird or small animal may be caught and by which it is more and more firmly held the harder the victim tries to extricate itself) in extended use is applicable to any danger one may run into accidentally or unexpectedly or through lack of caution or wariness and from which once involved one cannot easily extricate oneself " The path to bliss abounds with many a snare (Cowper) " Thou [God] knowest the snares on every hand Guide Thou their steps alway (Burns) Trial by jury itself instead of being a security to persons who are accused will be a delusion a mockery and a snare (Baron Denman) Oftentimes the word implies malevolence or trickery on the part of another who is responsible for the danger This use is commonly a figurative extension of the literal sense She meant to weave me a snare To entangle me when we met To have her lion roll in a silken net And fawn at a victor's feet (Tennyson) Trap (literally a device that shuts with a spring for capturing game or destructive animals either fatally injuring the animal or causing its mutilation if it escapes) in extended use is like snare applied to that which is a danger to the unwary or incautious The two words are often used interchangeably as though they were indistinguishable in meaning however trap is preferred to snare when disastrous effects or deliberate setting for the purposes of capture or trickery beyond detection are implied thus, the army feared a trap (not a snare) but rather than retreat they advanced into it a trap (not a snare) for speedsters knowing the examiner's methods he was certain that there would be a trap set for him but he could discover none Thou laid'st a trap to take my life (Shak) lure v Lure, entice, inveigle, decoy, tempt, seduce agree in denoting to draw one into danger evil a false position or the like, by exerting an attracting influence or by practicing deception. Lure implies a strong or irresistible and usually a baleful attraction. Good wine lures back the winebibber (Arnold) " It was not money that lured the adolescent husbandman to the cities but the gay life (Mencken) To entice is to lure artfully and adroitly She appeared to be playing with the bird possibly amusing herself by trying to entice it on to her hand (Hudson) To inveigle is to entice by beguiling and cajoling Many of them are inveigled to enlist by drink or by bounty money (A Tucker) To decoy is to entrap or lead into danger by artifice especially by false appearances as a small body of troops decoyed the enemy into action while the main body lay in ambush. To tempt is to exert an attraction so strong that one is inclined to act in defiance of one's conscience or better judgment I am forbidden tea I mustn't drink it. She looked at the cup tremendously tempted She longed for tea An occasional transgression could not harm her (Bennett) To seduce is to lead astray usually by overcoming scruples from rectitude propriety or duty The hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder (Poe) That quaintness into which your admiration of Tacitus sometimes seduced you (Gibbon)

Ana Ensnare snare entrap trap, capture *catch bag bewitch fascinate, allure captivate take *attract blandish, wheedle cajole (see COAX)

Ant Revolt repel

lurid *Ghastly grisly gruesome macabre grim

Ana Livid *pale pallid wan, ashy ashen *sinister malign, baleful, malefic.

lurk v Lurk couch, skulk (or sculk) slink sneak do not carry a common denotation but they come into comparison because the major implication of each word is furtive action intended to escape the attention of others To lurk is to lie in wait as in an ambush the term sometimes implies only a place of concealment (as his faithful Tom with his young master's mare was lurking in a plantation of firs —Meredith) but it often also suggests an evil intention or quiet stealthy movements or a readiness to spring upon a victim (as There ugly treasons lurk —Shak in the corners of the old building shadows lurked —S Anderson the latent scepticism which lurks behind all faith —H Adams) To couch (now archaic in this sense) is to hide oneself from view for any reason but sometimes like skulk is usually to move furtively but sometimes to lurk it carries a stronger impl cation than any of the preced ng words either of a s n ster intention or of cow ardice or fear as [Adulterers] skulking in corners (Shak) Gaming and Grub-street skulk behind the King (Pope) Disdainful Anger pallid Fear And Shame that sculks behind (Gray) to come home late and skulk to bed To slink is to move stealthily or slyly that are lacking in straightforwardness or are defin tely underhand as he sneaked out of the house after his parents had gone to bed meanly to sneak out of d ffi culties into which they had proudly strutted (Burke)

Ana *Hide conceal secrete ambush waylay *surprise

Con *Appear emerge loom luscious Del cious delectable *delightful

Ana Sap d saporous flavorsome toothsome *palatable appetizing grateful gratifying pleasing *pleasant

Ant Austere tasteless lush Luxuriant *profuse lavish prodigal exuberant

Ana Abounding or abundant teem ng swarming superabounding or superabundant (see corresponding verbs at TEEM) sumptuous opulent *luxurious lust Concupiscence *desire appetite appetence passion urge yen

Ana *Cupidity greed avarice rapacity yearning longing hankering thirsting or th rst hungering or hunger (see corresponding verbs at LONG) craving coveting (see DESIRE v) gusto zest *taste luster or lustre satiny luster of the finest pearls the soft luster of rubbed and waxed mahogany Cut a piece of lead or of zinc and observe the lustre of its fresh surface (T H Huxley) The sun shining on her hair gave it a metall c lustre (Watts Dunto is often more loosely used to ir

(see BRIGHT 1) as The sun mon lustre (Dickens) Sheen gleaming than luster and s iridescence it is applicable to brightly finished metals (as was like stars on the sea — shining surface such as satin some alpacas and the like (as the sheen of h s poplin and velvet —Cather) leaves —Stark Young) Gloss carries a stronger through being given a bright finish as by polishing dress ng or the like (as only very hard woods can be given a gloss that lasts more than a few days the gloss on this chintz will wash off) Consequently in extended use gloss often implies spec ousness plaus b lity extraneousness or the like as Beauty is but a shining gloss (Shak) National claims can always be given the gloss of moral sanction (Times Lit Sup) Glaze applies particularly to a glassl ke coating which provides a glossy surface on earthenware or porcelain but it is also applicable to other sim lar coatings such as one made on cooked meats by pouring over them broth bo led until it forms a gelatinous paste or on p es rolls and the like by various substances such as beaten egg or s rup or on flat paint by the use of an enamel or on the ground by rain that freezes on the smooth surface of roads walks and the like as some chinas have an espec ally beautiful glaze the br ght glaze of the cand ed sweet potatoes to apply a fresh glaze to the surface of an old car the glaze on the sidewalks is very bad this morn ng Although glaze (or glazed frost) is the technical meteorological term for a coating of freezing rain glare is common in general use The latter term also applies to any surface coating or sheet of clear ice

(see corresponding adjectives at BRIGHT)

lustful Lascivious libidinous lecherous wanton lewd *l centious libertine

Ana *Carnal fleshly sensual, animal animalistic *immoral unmoral amoral

Con Pure modest decent *chaste *moral, virtuous lustration *Purification ablution purgat on catharsis lustre Variant of LUSTER lustrous Lum nous radiant brilliant *bright effulgent refulgent beaming beamy lambent lucent

Ana Pol shed burn shed shin ng (see POLISH) glorious ndent *splendid glow ng blaz ng flaming (see v)

*Vigorous energetic strenuous nervous Robust sound *healthy hale stout sturdy ng stalwart husky brawny *muscular sinewy ic

Ant Effete — Con *Sick ill *weak infirm feeble decrepit luxuriant. Lush exuberant *profuse lavish prodigal *rank rampant

Ana Self indulging or self indulgent

(see pr mitive verbs at INDULGE) languorous *severe

ing nouns to compared

of each group

when they are appl ed to things and mean ostentatiously or obviously rich and magnificent That is luxurious (as here cons dered se e also SENSUOUS) which is exceed ngly choice and costly as her luxurious sable coat the luxuri ous appointments of their drawing room Luxurious wines luxurious table l nens. That is sumptuous which is extravagantly r ch sp lend d gorgeous, luxurious or most beautiful and sumpt ious city of Europe (H Ellis) "the too sumpt ious note of the entertainment (M Aus t n) for the most sumpt ious masques in England Italian managers eng neers and artists were over (T S Eliot) Th uty of the

ample rolling opulent beauty Georgian somehow with a suggestion of full bottomed wigs and old port. A trifle oppressive to live with per haps (Jan Struther)

Ana Ostentatious pretentious, pompous, *showy magnificent, stately impos ng majestic *grand *costly expens ve valuable precious

Con Frugal thrifty economical *sparing *meager scant skimpy scrimpy spare exiguous not confuse luxurious with luxuriant

*Amenity pleasance

Ana *Pleasure joy del gl t agreeableness, gratifica t on gratefulness (see correspond ng adjectives at PLEASANT)

Ant Hardsh p — Con *D fficulty rigor vicissitude

College gymnasium *academy seminary insti

Mendacious, untruthful *d shonest, deceitful *False wrong deceptive *misleading delusive delusory

Ant Truthtelling — Con Honest just *upright conscient ous, scrupulous honorable true *real actual cand d *frank open plain *reliable dependable trustworthy

M

macabre

Ana H

DISMAY)

macaror

coxcomb

machination Intrigue conspiracy *plot complot cabal frame-up

Ana *Trick ruse stratagem maneuver artifice feint, wile machine Machine engine apparatus appliance are here compared as denot ng a device (particularly a device involving a more or less complicated mechanism) for do ng work that exceeds human capacity or that can be accompl shed by human power only with a comparative waste of time and effort Machine and engine in their early use in English were applied to any contrivance that evidenced human ingenu ty but machine usually sug gested a marvel of construct on and engine a device that exerted force Although the words were occasionally applied to the same th ngs they diverged in meaning when machine came to denote specifically a vehicle and machine is a construction the parts of which are so formed and so connected with each other that it can be set n motion and made to accompl sh shaping or fabricating mater machine) ho sting (an eleva

Ana analogous words An print ng press) and the like An eng ne is a mach ne also but in its specific sense a machine which turns one form of physical force into another and more usable form such as pressure on a piston or torque on a crank shaft thus, a turbine of a vessel is an engine the motor of an automobile or a motorboat is usually a gasol ne engine Engine is sometimes appl ed to the machine which comb nes both the power-developing and the working un ts as a railway engine a fire engine In extended and figurative use machine is usually appl ed to something that is like a machine as in organization (complexity of parts a specific function for each part abil ty to move or act only in obedience to an external force or a prime mover as a political machine) or in its automatism (as in short I have no feelings I am a mere machine —Dickens) In extended use engine is Never had the press been turned into an engine of such pol tical importance (Prescott) Apparatus as ap pl ed to a thing rather than to a collect on of things (see EQUIPMENT) is the most general and the least specific in its implications of any of these words Like the other words it denotes a more or less complicated mechanism for effecting a given kind of work but the parts may be either numerous or very few they may be adjusted to each other e ther crudely or delicately as a rad o re ce ving apparatus the boy rigged up an apparatus cons sting of an alarm clock and pulleys for clos ng his bedroom windo vs on winter mornings a machine is an apparatus for applying mechanical power people in

of appliance whether the power is supplied by hand gas electricity heat or the like

Ana Contrivance *device contraption gadget *im aphernalia

y agency medium vehicle organ channel agent *machine engine apparatus appliance *device contrivance contraption gadget *implement tool instrument, utensil appliance macrocosm Cosmos universe world *earth mad 1 *Insane crazy crazed demented deranged lunatic maniac wood non compos mentis

Ana Frenzied hysterical delirious (see corresponding nouns at MANIA) *irrational unreasonable

2 *Angry irate wrathful indignant acrimonious.

Ana Maddened incensed infuriated enraged (see ANGER v) inflamed fired enkindled (see LIGHT v)

Con Collected composed *cool nonchalant imperturbable madden *Anger incense enrage infuriate

Ana Vex *annoy irk exasperate provoke roil aggravate *irritate

Con *Pacify placate mollify appease propitiate conciliate assuage allay mitigate, *relieve.

magazine 1 *Armory arsenal

2 *Journal periodical review organ newspaper magic, n Magic sorcery, witchcraft, witchery, ardry, alchemy, thaumaturgy are allied rather t term magic Magic literally designates an or the body of arts whose practitioners natural or occult powers, as in calling spirits to their power to call forth an image an emotion a response or the l ke from or as if from a void His magic was not far to seek. —He was so human! Where er He met a stranger there he left a friend (J R Lowell) The faint significance of [certain] words for a common dullard or their evocative magic for a Keats Montague) Less often it is applied to an art or at transcending the natural or explainable But speare s magic could not copied be Within that circle none durst walk but he (Dryden) Sorcery is the form of magic practiced by those who use incantations and charms and cast spells in order to work their ends

And sorcerers of talent misappl ed (Wordsworth) Witchcraft, witchery, wizardry, in their primary senses, suggest powers derived from evil spirits or the use of human beings as the instruments for the accomplishment of Satanic ends, the only d fference being that the first two are chiefly applied to the work of women and the last to that of men Figuratively however they vary in implications Witchcraft is sometimes indist ngu shable from sorcery but it more often suggests gu le rather than enchantment and wiles rather than spells. There is something more than witchcraft in them [women] That masters ev n the wisest of us all (Rowe) Witchery o the other hand seldom impl es either sorcery or g le power to enchant and in modern use usually connotes abnormal skill talent or creative power in the person who exerts such an influence as the wizardry of a Kreisler That white-winged legion through whom we those who write verse are unendowed with the assim lating alchemy of genius (Lowes) Thaumaturgy which is literally appl ed to the art of all wonder workers tious *showy

dest — Con *Mean, abject ignoble sordid trivial *petty paltry *humble meek lowly

*Exalt aggrandize

tol *praise laud acclaim eulogize enlarge *increase augment *expand ampl fy d stend, swell inflate dilate

Ant Minimize belittle — Con *Decry deprecate detract from derogate from reduce lessen d minish *decrease *contract shrink deflate magnitude Volume *size extent d mens ons, area

Ana Amplitude *expanse stretch spread mass volume maiden, adj *Youthful, juvenile virgin, virginal puerile boyish

Ant Experienced

maim Maim, cripple, mutilate, batter, mangle come into comparison wh en they mean to injure the body (or the object) so severely as to leave permanent or long lasting effects. Maim impl es the loss of a limb or of a member or the destruction of its usefulness by an accident the del berate act of oneself or another or the like as thousands were killed in the three days battle but tens of thousands were maimed automobiles maim large numbers of persons every year blinded legless armless and other maimed men were carried from the wreck Cripple (as here compared see also WEAKEN) is more restricted than maim because strictly it impl es the loss of or the deprivation of the use of a leg or arm or part of one as, he is crippled as a result of an amputation following blood poisoning crippled by a congenital hip disease Mutilate (for specific sense of this word see STERILIZE 1) impl es the cutting off or removal of a part essential to completeness, not only of a person but also of a thing and to his or its perfection beauty, entirety fulfillment of function or the like as, like a company of dolls a cruel child has mutilated snapping a foot off here tearing out a leg here (Jefferies) Windows dark ened by time and mutilated by wilful injury (H Adams), The last twelve pages of this codex have been mutilated by a [burning] brand which fell upon the book destroying many lines of the text (Modern Language Notes) Batter and mangle do not suggest loss of limb member or part but they do suggest injuries which excess vely disfigure the person or thing Batter impl es a pounding (l teral or figurative) that bruises deeply de forms or mutilates as he emerged from the fight battered and dazed The first time he made a helmet he tested its capacity for resisting blows and battered it out of shape (B Russell) [the captain s unworldliness] must have appealed straight to that bruised and battered young soul (Conrad) Mangle on the other hand implies a tearing or hacking and a covering (literally or figura tively) with deep wounds or lacerations as Mangled w th ghastly wounds through plate and ma l (Milton) reckless people who have disregarded the warnings and been mangled by sharks (V Heiser)

Ana Mar spo l damage *injure *deface disfigure main adj Principal lead ng *chief foremost capital

Ana Cardinal vital *essential fundamental prime *primary primal

Con. *Subordinate secondary dependent subject collateral maintain Maintain assert defend vindicate justify come into comparison when they mean to uphold as true right just valid or worthy of notice or acceptance in the face of opposition or indifference Maintain always impl es a firmness of conviction When this impl cation is the only one maintain usually means to argue in the spirit of one who does not admit any weakness in one s contention The artisan for example ranks no doubt lower than the professional man but no one maintains that he is a different kind of being (G L Dickinson) There is a Philosophic Doctrine— I know that many serious people believe it—which maintains that all men, in spite of appearances and pretensions live al ke for Pleasure (L P Smith) Often however the term additionally implies persistency or insistency in upholding in defiance of all oppos tion Before th s Court ought to intervene the case should be of serious magnitude clearly and fully proved and the principle to be appl ed should be one wh ch the Court is prepared deliberately to maintain against all considerations on the other side (Justice Holmes) Assert (see also ASSERT 1) so strongly implies a determination to make others ac cept or recognize that which one puts forward as the truth or as a claim or as a right or the l ke that it often suggests aggressiveness or obtrusiveness The provision of the constitution never has been understood to em brace other contracts than those which confer rights which may be asserted in a court of justice (Ch Just Marshall) But assert does not always imply the use of argument to force conviction or recognition Any one can feel the sustained dignity of the sculptor s work which is asserted with all the emphasis he could put into it (H Adams) On the whole New Zealand was lavish with money and attention and used force only to assert her sovereignty (V Heiser) Defend impl es a main taining in the face of attack with the intention of demon strating the truth rightness etc., of what is questioned thus one defends a thes s who as a cand date for a high degree submits himself to examiners who assail the weak or dubious points of his argument The inde pendence of the Supreme Court of the United States should be defended at all costs (Lippmann) Defend in this sense does not imply as it so often implies in its more common sense (see DEFEND 1) that the defender is in a weak or dubious position however it seldom sug gests as much aggressiveness as does assert and often connotes the aim of an apolog st I have not adopted my faith in order to defend my views of conduct (T S Eliot) Vindicate as here compared (see also EXCULPATE) implies an attempt usually a successful attempt at defense or assertion It presupposes that whatever is being defended or asserted has been or is capable of being challenged questioned denied contemned or the like When the emphasis is on defense then argument or something which has the force of argument is usually impl ed and an aim not only to make one s point but to confute and confound one s opponents is often con noted Writers who vindicated our hered tary House of Lords against a certain Parliament Act (Quiller Couch) We find him [Mark Twa n] vindicating frantically vindicating causes which he was constrained to con sider just (Van W Brooks) When the emphasis is upon assertion vindicate usually implies an effort to resist triumphantly the force of encroachment or interference or to overwhelm those who deny or doubt not so much by argument as by appropriate action. Arise and v ndicate Thy Glory free thy people from their yoke! (Milton) The doctrine of Apostolical Succession which is not held in this form by any other Church in Christen dom gave them the weapon which they wanted vindi cating aga nst Rome their title to be Catholic priests" (Inge) What was it that stood in his way? His unfortu nate timidity! He wished to vindicate himself in some way to assert his manhood (Joyce) Justify (as here compared see also EXPLAIN 2 JUSTIFY 3) impl es that the thing concerned can no longer be opposed or ignored because it has been conclusively shown to be true valid proper or the like by irrefutable arguments or on inescapable grounds such as its consequences its suc cessful operation, or the like. If the Germans are to justify the high claims they make for Lessing as a critic they must rest them on other grounds than his intellec tual originality (Babbitt) Fate pers sts in justifying the harsh generalizations of Puritan morals (Bennett) It isn t by the materials you use that your claim to originality will stand justified or condemned it is solely by the thing you do with them (Lowes)

Ana Affirm aver protest avow declare avouch (see ASSERT) *contend fight battle war pers st *perse vere maintenance Sustenance support. *l ving livelihood subsistence keep bread majestic Stately august noble magnificent imposing *grand grand ose.

Con *Oppose combat resist withstand *deny gainsay contradict, traverse.

Ana Lofty *high sublime superb glorious *splend d resplendent monumental tremendous (see MONSTROUS) *except onal

Con. *Mean abject, sordid ignoble lowly, *humble, modest, meek *ordinary, common major-domo. Seneschal, *steward, reeve bailiff, agent, factor oeconomus majority. *Age

Ant. Minority — Con *Infancy, nonage make, v Make, form, shape, fashion, fabricate, manufacture, forge are synonymous in so far as they mean to cause something to come into being or existence This is

[illegible]

character is partly formed by training Shape, though often interchangeable with form is much more restricted in its application because it characteristically connotes an external agent or agency literally or figuratively impressing a particular form upon something as by molding, beating carving cutting, or the like, as the

[illegible]

compared, means to form but it implies an intelligent

[illegible]

miscellaneous suggestions Fabricate stresses a making that unites many parts or materials into a whole it usually connotes either a making according to a standardized pattern (as to fabricate doors, windows and a making or inventing of something false as by the exercise of the imagination "The particulars of that genealogy embellished with every detail that memory had handed down or fancy fabricated" (Stevenson) "His feats of legerdemain sounded so improbable that many people considered his experiences fabricated" (V Heiser) Manufacture emphasizes the making of something (usually something objective) by labor originally by hand but now more often by machinery The term is now applied to any making in which raw materials are used and a definite process or series of processes is followed as to manufacture wool or cloth or utensils or machines or automobiles In extended use manufacture often is preferred to any of the preceding words when laboriousness or the knowledge of the mechanics of a process rather than skill or ingenuity is connoted as to manufacture paintings by the dozen "manufactured sensations" (Brownell) Forge literally suggests the operation of a blacksmith or other smith who heats metal and beats or hammers it into shape as to forge a horseshoe to forge a chain In its extended sense it carries a strong implication of devising concocting or the like by physical or mental effort so as to give the appearance of truth or reality, as "The proud have forged a lie against me but I will keep thy precepts with my whole heart"

[illegible]

[illegible]

especially by imitating the handwriting of an ori[illegible] of a supposed maker, thus one forges a documen[illegible] as a will, deed, check, or the like, by making i[illegible]

[illegible]

of accomplish a[illegible]

*Pretense preter[illegible]

[illegible]thor are here con[illegible]

[illegible]

maker a maker of men a maker of phrases a ma[illegible] poems suggests the use of persons words, ideas, a[illegible] like as instruments by which one brings somethin[illegible] existence through one s own labor or effort. "The [illegible] his and he made it and his hands formed the dry [illegible] O come, let us worship and bow down let us kne[illegible] fore the Lord our maker (Psalms xcv 5-6) Creat[illegible] the other hand, seldom suggests either literally or fi[illegible]tively the use or handling of materials, its ic[illegible]

[illegible]

term is used therefore, rather than maker whe[illegible]

[illegible]

source, but the one responsible for a person [illegible]

[illegible]

to a writer (see WRITER) but also to a founder [illegible]tor an initiator, or anyone who brings something i[illegible] existence as, "the policy of which he was princip[illegible] the author" (Belloc) "the gay and bewitching [illegible] quette Célimène who is the author of all Alceste's woes (S Alexander) makeshift Shift expedient *resource resort stopgap substitute surrogate Ana *Device contrivance contraption gadget *means instrument agency instrumentality maladroit Clumsy gauche inept *awkward Ant Adroit — Con *Dexterous, deft feat handy *clever cunning ingenious skilled skillful expert adept *proficient politic diplomatic, bland smooth (see SUAVE) malady Ailment affection, *disease complaint distemper male, adj Male, masculine, manly, manlike mannish manful, virile agree in meaning of characteristic of or like a male of the species especially of the human species. Male (opposed to female) applies to animals and plants as well as to human beings, and always indicates sex as a male tiger' (Shak) a male tree (Gilbert White) male children (Joshua xvii 2) a male choir Masculine (opposed to feminine) is used to distinguish grammatical gender (as, masculine nouns and pronouns) but it applies most frequently to physical and mental characteristics (such as vigor strength size etc.) which belong to men rather than to women as he was a big active masculine creature (Deland) the masculine character lying behind the lofty idealism of Sung painting' (Binyon) His poetry is masculine plain concentrated and energetic (Landor) In antiquity the virtues that were most admired were those which are distinctively masculine Courage self-assertion magnanimity and above all patriotism (Lecky) The use of masculine instead of male in such phrases as 'the masculine part of the audience' is not regarded with approval Manly (often opposed to boyish childish) commonly suggests the finer qualities of a man especially courage frankness, independence or the physical characters and skills which come with maturity it is applicable not only to men but to boys (as a manly boy) as, His big manly voice Turning again toward childish treble (Shak) What more manly exercise than hunting? (Walton) It was amusing to watch the manly coolness with which the announcement was taken (Meredith) Manlike is more apt to suggest character istically masculine qualities or especially foibles as manlike bluntness From long association with men she had learnt a manlike reticence (H S Scott) Oftentimes manlike suggests reference to man in the more general sense of the word and therefore means little more than human or like human beings as hairy manlike creatures such as some apes Man-like is it to fall into sin God like is it all sin to leave (Longfellow transl from von Logau) Mannish (often contrasted with womanish or effeminate) applies chiefly to women, their dress gait manners or the like when they suggest masculinity rather than femininity as A woman impudent and mannish grown' (Shak) a mannish costume But sometimes mannish (as opposed to childish) applies to boys or youths who affect the airs and manners of a mature man as Why must every thing smack of man and mannish? Is the world all grown up? (Lamb) Manful differs from manly chiefly in its greater stress on sturdiness and resoluteness as a manful struggle a manful effort to gain self-control Virile (a stronger word than masculine and opposed to puerile or in specific sense to impotent) suggests qualities belonging to fully developed manhood such as aggressiveness, masterfulness forcefulness and in a specific sense procreativeness It differs from manly and manful in being applied only to mature men or sometimes in its general sense to mature women (since it often suggests character rather than sex) as, more virile than his brothers (Galsworthy) virile controversialists (Inge) a virile style Ye chiefly virile both to think and feel Deep-chested Chapman and firm footed Ben' (J R Lowell) Ant Female — Con Feminine womanly womanlike womanish ladylike (see FEMALE) malediction *Curse imprecation malison anathema Ant Benediction. — Con *Blessing benison malefic. Malign baleful *sinister malevolence Ill will malignity *malice, spite despite spleen grudge Ana Animosity rancor animus antipathy antagonism *enmity hostility hate hatred detestation abhorrence abomination (see under HATE v) Ant Benevolence — Con Benignity benignancy kindliness kindness (see corresponding adjectives at KIND) good will, *favor countenance malevolent Malignant malign, *malicious, spiteful despiteful despiteous Ana *Sinister baleful malign malefic Ant Benevolent — Con Benign benignant, *kind kindly *charitable humane altruistic, humanitarian philanthropic malice Malice, malevolence, ill will, spite, despite, malignity, spleen, grudge come into comparison when they denote a feeling or a state of mind which leads one to desire that another or others should suffer pain or injury Malice usually implies a deep-seated and often an unjustified or unexplainable desire it frequently carries an implication of an innate pleasure in doing evil in inflicting injury in seeing others suffer, or in wanton destruction as With malice toward none with charity for all let us bind up the nation's wounds (Lincoln) there are people in the world with that degree of malice in them that they can't bear to allow a good man his merits (Shaw), Man with his usual monkey like malice took pleasure in pulling down what he had built up (H Adams) Often however in current use it implies mischievousness or impishness rather than a hardened vindictive nature She was clever witty brilliant and sparkling beyond most of her kind but possessed of many devils of malice and mischievousness (Kipling) In law malice applies to the state of mind of one who willfully commits wrong, as in full deliberation (as, malice aforethought or malice prepense) or out of hatred and a desire to inflict injury on another (as malice in fact) or out of the depravity of one's nature (as implied malice) Malevolence and the more common ill will usually imply a state of mind or a feeling arising out of hatred enmity resentment or the like neither term carries so strong an implication of an inherently evil or vicious nature as does malice but neither term necessarily suggests less evil or injuriousness in the acts motivated by them Let those who have betrayed him by their adulation insult him with their malevolence (Burke) Irritable suspicious and aggressive constantly regarding himself as the victim of other people's malevolence (H Ellis) "Catherine could not believe it possible that any injury or any misfortune could provoke such ill-will against a person not supposed to be connected with it (Austen) Spite implies active malevolence or ill will colored especially by envy or meanness of spirit as contemporary spites do not harm true genius (A Lang) One feels that the style [of certain satires] has generated the hate It is, indeed a little shabby a little insignificant not really hate at all but spite (Day Lewis) Despite (see also under DESPISE) differs from spite chiefly in carrying a strong implication of wounded pride or of contempt or disdain Because thou implies one or more of these states of mind but it stresses more than any of the preceding terms the intensity of the passion and its driving force as he could not escape the malignity of his enemy he is cruel with usually suggests either latent spite or malice and the wish to harm in an outburst of wrath, as the old man vented his spleen on any child at play who unwittingly impeded his progress It requ res an infinitely smaller psychic effort to expel one s spleen in a verbal joke than in a practical joke or a murder (Van W Brooks) Grudge applies to cherished ill will against an individual which seeks satisfaction it usually suggests deep resentment for some real or fancied slight or affront and

(Bennett) He held no grudge against any of the people who had misused him (Cather)

Ana Malignancy malignity maliciousness spitefulness (see corresponding adjectives at MALICIOUS) venom bane *poison animos ty, animus, rancor antipathy *enmity

Ant Charity — Con *Mercy grace clemency lenity benignity benignancy kindness kindl ness (see corresponding adjectives at KIND) *favor good will countenance malicious Malicious, malevolent, malignant, malign, spiteful, despiteful, despiteous, dispiteous come into comparison when they mean disposed as a person to do or to inflict evil or as an act prompted by such a (Kipling) One might certainly have supposed that rage (L P Smith) malignant diphtheria a malignant tumor or growth A person or thing is malign (see also SINISTER) that harbors violent enmity or ill will or and despiteful imply a deep-seated mal ce or malevolence provoked especially by a desire to get even w h others for real or fancied offenses Spiteful however dispiteous, though they imply despitefulness stress mercilessness or lack of all pity or desire to ease the ills of one s victims as "Spurring so hot with rage dispiteous" (Spenser), "The proud dispiteous rich man" (W Morris)

Ana *Poisonous venomous virulent tox c *pernicious noxious baneful deleterious, detrimental *envious jealous wanton gratu tous, uncalled for *supererogatory malign, adj 1 Malignant *mal cious malevolent spiteful despiteful despiteous.

Ana Inimical, hostile rancorous antipathetic antagonistic (see corresponding nouns at ENMITY) venomous, virulent *poisonous toxic

Ant Benign — Con Benignant, kindly *kind

2 *Sinister baleful malefic

Ana Threatening menacing (see THREATEN) baneful noxious, *pernicious, deleterious d sastrous, cataclysmic, calamitous (see corresponding nouns at DISASTER)

Ant Benign — Con *Favorable ausp cious propitious fortunate *lucky providential happy they commonly suggest hatred violent pr bigotry or some other equally bl nding passion as the motive Malign however although it always carries the implication that the person group race or the like affected is the victim of l es does not necessar ly impute deliberate lying to the speaker or writer as the most stresses the resulting ignominy more than mu as to believe that the Engl sh queen called Bloody Mary has been traduced by historians. "If I am Traduced by ignorant tongues Tis but the fate of place and the rough brake That virtue must go through" (Shak) "Fear of this witch of the East [Cleopatra] shamelessly traduced by Octavian s agents, hag rode the popular suggests an intent to detract from one's reputation or to lower one in popular esteem by direct accusations or more often, by subtler methods such as innuendo or spreading reports as to cause a run on a bank by aspersing its credit to asperse the family of the opposing candidate in an election. There were foul tongues to asperse a Douglas (Scott) Vilify implies open methods and an intent to blacken one's good name and to render it ignominious It usually suggests direct accusation coupled with violent abuse and scurrilous name-calling "With a malignant insanity we oppose the measures, and ungratefully vilify the persons, of those whose sole object is our own peace and prosperity" (Burke) "The soldier of to-day should not be blamed for falling back He should be shot or hanged afterward but he should not be vilified in newspapers (Kipling) Calumniate imputes malice to the speaker or writer and falsity to his aspersions or accusations, and usually implies that his false and malicious statements have seriously damaged the good name of his victim as, the verdict of history is that Benedict Arnold was not calumniated but was justly charged with treason Calumniating and ridiculing the Church which he had deserted (Macaulay) Defame slander and libel are found both in general and in legal use but their strict legal definitions are more or less affecting their literary meanings All imply calumniation, but they differ from calumniate mainly in their emphasis on the positive damaging effect of the lies Defame both in legal and in literary use suggests an actual injury to one's good name or a definite loss of repute or reputation. Defaming and defacing till she left Not even Lancelot brave nor Galahad clean (Tennyson) Captain Basil Hall was publicly accused of being an agent of the British government on a special mission to blacken and defame this country (Van W Brooks) To slander, in strict legal use, is to defame orally in general use it is not so narrowly employed but covers both written and printed as well as oral calumniation. It also more strongly than defame or calumniate connotes positive suffering on the part of the victim Slander'd to death by villains, That dare as well answer a man indeed As I dare take a serpent by the tongue (Shak) And she to be coming and slandering me, the base little liar! But the tongue is a fire as you know my dear, the tongue is a fire (Tennyson) Libel is chiefly a legal term in general use its implications are much the same It implies the printing or writing of that which defames a person or his reputation and the publication or circulation of such printed or written matter as, Grub Street hacks who made their living by libeling famous men to libel a politician by a caricature malignant. Malign, malevolent, *malicious spiteful despiteful despiteous.

Ana Detract from *decry disparage depreciate derogate from vituperate revile (see SCOLD) defile pollute (see CONTAMINATE)

Ant Defend — Con Vindicate, justify *maintain extol eulogize *praise.

Ana Virulent, venomous (see POISONOUS) *envious jealous baneful noxious, *pernicious diabolical devilish, *fiendish Ant Benignant. — Con Benign, *kind kindly benevolent, *charitable, altruistic, humane.

malignity *Malice, malevolence ill will spite despite spleen grudge.

Ana Rancor animus, animosity *enmity hostility malignancy maliciousness spitefulness (see corresponding adjectives at MALICIOUS) hatred *hate vindictiveness, revengefulness vengefulness (see corresponding adjectives at VINDICTIVE)

Ant Benignity — Con Benignancy kindliness kindness (see corresponding adjectives at KIND) malison Malediction *curse imprecation anathema

Ant Benison. — Con *Blessing benediction.

mall *Avenue, alley allee.

malleable *Plastic, pliable pliant ductile adaptable Ana Tractable amenable (see OBEDIENT)

Ant Refractory — Con Intractable recalcitrant ungovernable *unruly malodorous Malodorous stinking, fetid (or foetid), noisome, putrid, rank, rancid, fusty, musty come into comparison when they mean emitting an unpleasant smell Malodorous is the general term which is referable to any smell of this character from one that is manifestly unpleasant to one that is distinctly offensive as malodorous flowers, malodorous foods such as certain cheeses or sauerkraut may be agreeable to the taste Stinking the colloquial and vulgar term and fetid the literary, technical, and often, in colloquial use the preferable term describe an odor or a thing that emits an odor which is peculiarly offensive the former more obviously suggests disgusting foulness than the latter as a stinking dungeon, a stinking outhouse a fetid weed he detected at once a fetid odour not very strong but highly disagreeable (Cather) Noisome, which in an earlier and now rare sense means noxious is applicable chiefly to that which emits a poisonously or unwholesomely offensive odor; as Four sewers emptied into these twenty five acres of swamp and morass—stagnant noisome and crawling with huge snakes (V Heiser) Putrid is applicable in literal use only to organic matter in such a state of decomposition that it is loathsomely malodorous as a bloated putrid noisome carcass (Burke) Rank (as here considered see also RANK 1 FLAGRANT) applies to an odor or to a thing which emits an odor that is exceedingly strong and unpleasing yet not necessarily loathsome as, the rank smell of a sunflower the air is rank with the odor of the flowers of the ailanthus, or tree of heaven O my offence is rank it smells to heaven (Shak) Rancid usually suggests an offensive taste as well as an offensive smell (it may suggest merely one or the other) that is indicative of a loss of freshness in current use it applies chiefly to oil butter and similar substances that have undergone a chemical change or some decomposition as, rancid bacon the odor of rancid perspiration Fusty and musty both suggest lack of ventilation and sunlight but of the two words fusty carries the stronger implication of prolonged uncleanliness or of an accumulation of dust and of dirt and musty the stronger implication of mold ness of age or of the effects of darkness or dampness as the ill ventilated schoolroom full of boys smelt fusty (H Ellis) the musty odor of a damp cellar There was an acrid musty smell the raw air was close with breathing (R Macaulay)

Ant Odorous. — Con Fragrant aromatic redolent (see ODOROUS) maltreat Mistreat, ill treat misuse *abuse outrage

Ana See those at ILL-TREAT

mammoth Colossal gigantic giant gigantean, elephantine titanic herculean, *enormous immense huge vast, Cyclopean Antaean Gargantuan Brobdingnagian

Ana *Monstrous monumental stupendous tremendous prodigious ponderous, weighty cumbrous cumbersome (see HEAVY) manacle, v *Hamper trammel clog fetter shackle hog tie.

Ana *Hinder impede obstruct bar block *tie bind *restrain, inhibit, curb check, snaffle manage. 1 *Conduct, control, direct.

Ana *Govern

2 suppressed infinitive), as how can you manage, or contrive or afford to live so comfortably on your salary?, he could not manage, or contrive or afford (to take) a vacation this year In such contexts manage implies discovery of ways and means (these latter often being understood or inferred), such as the necessary funds the necessary permission the necessary time, as you can manage to get along contrive adds to manage the implication of ingenuity or of scheming, as she contrives to run a home on a small budget afford, originally equivalent to manage now is more often equal to manage to bear the expense of or manage to spare the money for, as he can afford (to buy) an automobile Afford in this sense takes can as an auxiliary, the other words often do not mandate, n 1 Dictate, *command, order, injunction bidding behest Ana Charging or charge, direction, instruction (see corresponding verbs at COMMAND) sanctioning or sanction, endorsement, approval (see corresponding verbs at APPROVE) not only to their representatives in a legislature but also to those who hold the executive power, or in an extended sense to those who represent them in any way or who by the nature of their office or duties are necessarily responsive to the will of the people, as the president of the United States re-elected by an enormous majority declared that he had a mandate from the people to continue his policies ' It would almost seem as if the present school of fiction is to borrow a phrase from French politics, exhausting its mandate (J M Carthy), ' Obviously I have no mandate to speak for any one but myself" (J W Krutch) Initiative (usually the initiative) often denotes a right but when it denotes a procedure, it implies recognition of the right of a group of voters or more often of a clearly defined number of voters to propose a new measure or a constitutional amendment to a legislature In Switzerland where the initiative or right to originate legislation is vested in the people, a demand by 50 000 voters sends a proposed constitutional with initiative (as in the right of initiative and referendum) applies to the practice adopted by the Swiss and by some states and cities in the United States of sending measures that have been considered by or proposed to the legislative body to the voters for approval or rejection or for an expression of their wishes Plebiscite strictly applies to a vote of the people (now usually by proposed merger with either of two nations or the manful. Virile, mannish, manlike manly masc *male.

Ana. Sturdy, stout, tenacious stalwart, tough *str resolute steadfast, stanch (see FAITHFUL) intr bold *brave mangle. Batter, mutilate, *maim cripple Ana *Injure, damage, mar, impair *deface disfig *deform, contort, distort mania 1 *Insanity, lunacy, psychosis dementia Ana. Alienation derangement, *aberration Ant Lucidity

2 Mania, delirium, frenzy (or, now rare phren hysteria are here compared as meaning a state of min which the person concerned loses control over his e tions nerves or mental processes Mania (see INSANITY) definitely implies madness or insanity speech, and of movement through violent excitemen excessive emotion, as ' [George III] suffered a th extreme restlessness, as "a raging fever accompan which they tore in a frenzy —Dickens ' Her intens which would leave no emotion on a normal plane ir tated the youth into a frenzy' —D H Lawrence "Pa wholly has got to the acme of its frenzy wi ways by panic madness'—Carlyle) Hysteria app strictly to a functional nervous disorder not caused her lower limbs proved to be the result of hyst ordinary nontechnical language hysteria implies extrem may not show its

Ana Depression dejection, melancholia melancholy (see SADNESS) *ecstasy transport excitement provocation (see corresponding verbs at PROVOKE) maniac, maniacal *Insane mad crazy crazed demented deranged, lunatic wood non compos mentis Ana *Irrational unreasonable Con *Rational reasonable manifest, adj *Evident patent distinct obvious apparent palpable plain clear Ana Revealed disclosed divulged told (see REVEAL) shown evidenced evinced (see SHOW v) conspicuous, *noticeable prominent Ant Latent constructive (see IMPLICIT) — Con *Obscure vague, enigmatic cryptic, dark *implicit virtual manifest, v *Show evidence evince demonstrate Ana Exhibit display expose (see SHOW v) *express vent utter voice *reveal discover disclose divulge Ant Suggest — Con Adumbrate shadow (see SUGGEST) manifold Multifold *many several, sundry various divers numerous multifarious Ana Diverse divergent disparate *different various manikin Midget, *dwarf pygmy homunculus runt Ant Giant

manipulate *Handle wield swing ply Ana Flourish brandish *swing wave thrash manlike Mannish manful virile manly masculine *male Con Womanlike feminine womanish ladylike effeminate womanly *female manly, Manlike manful virile masculine mannish *male.

Ana *Mature matured grown-up adult full fledged sturdy *strong stout stalwart Ant Unmanly — Con Effeminate womanish feminine *female dastardly *cowardly boyish puerile juvenile *youthful manna *Ambrosia, nectar amrita manner 1 *Method mode way fashion system Ana Custom usage use wont consuetude practice *habit habitude 2 Mien demeanor *bearing deportment carriage port presence front Ana Etiquette propriety *decorum decency dignity *form usage convention convenance *tact address poise savoir faire mannerism *Pose air affectation Ana *Eccentricity idiosyncrasy peculiarity singularity oddness queerness (see corresponding adjectives at STRANGE) mannish Manlike virile masculine *male manful manly Ant Womanish — Con Womanlike ladylike feminine effeminate *female manoeuvre Variant of MANEUVER manufacture Fabricate forge *make form shape fashion.

Ana Produce turn out yield (see BEAR) manumit Emancipate enfranchise affranchise deliver discharge *free release liberate Ant Enslave

many Many several sundry various, divers numerous manifold multifold multifarious come into comparison when they mean consisting of a large number or comprising a large group Many as here compared implies a likeness between the individuals or units as in class category kind or sort except that it vaguely implies more than a few the term gives no explicit suggestion as to how large the number is as many persons many teachers, many novels many sources of information Several (etymologically separate) as here compared (see also DISTINCT 1) is almost as vague as many in its implication of number In law the term is construed as meaning more than one thus the several counts of an indictment may be two or more counts. In more general use, it is usually construed as meaning at least three as, the journey will take several days they saw several strangers on the road there are several reasons why you should not go In highly discriminating use the term means both more than a few and different each from the other In such use several is often preceded by a possessive adjective, as her several thoughts as signalled by the changes on her face (Hardy) they [the delegates charged with the ratification of the Constitution of the United States] assembled in their several states (Ch Just Marshall) Sundry (now somewhat archaic except in humorous use) also implies an indefinite number but it carries regularly a stronger implication of the difference of each from the others than does several as, there are several (not sundry) eggs left there are sundry (more explicit than several) aspects of the problem that have not been considered he appealed to all and sundry persons [i.e. to persons collectively and as individuals] to make the campaign for funds a success she differed in sundry important features (Quiller Couch) Various (see also DIFFERENT) is often used loosely as meaning an indefinite number with a more or less attenuated implication of difference in identity of each from each this use is often but not universally disapproved as various [many would be better here if no implication of severalty is intended] persons spoke to me about it Divers also has come to imply a vague number often meaning little more than many or several thereby losing its original strong implication of difference among the individuals (cf diverse under DIFFERENT) as he told his story to divers persons "God who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets (Hebrews i 1) Numerous may qualify plural nouns or singular nouns that designate a collection or assembly of units or individuals In each case the term implies the existence of a noticeably large number of units or individuals sometimes in fact it connotes a crowding or thronging as every President has numerous letters from numerous persons I have contracted a numerous acquaintance among the best sort of people (Steele) The commoners who had been summoned formed a numerous assembly (Macaulay) Manifold (etymologically having many folds or laps) usually implies numerousness (or more than twofold threefold fourfold etc) when it is applied to a singular noun (either a collective noun or one designating an abstraction) it suggests both numerousness and diversity in its forms features qualities, characters, applications aspects or the like as He hated the Puritan sects with a manifold hatred theological and political hereditary and personal (Macaulay) when it is applied as now happens more frequently to a plural noun it stresses not only their numerousness but their variety as to acknowledge and confess our manifold sins and wickedness (Book of Common Prayer) your manifold attractions (Austen) to the Chinese painters this world of nature seemed [an] effective way of shadowing forth the manifold moods of man (Binyon) the strength of the dramatic lies in its manifold implications (Day Lewis) Multifold is sometimes used interchangeably with manifold but not wisely since it carries especially in precise use an implication of repeated duplication that is usually lacking in manifold as a

Ant. Few

many-sided. *Versatile all round map, n & v *Chart, graph

Ana *Plan plot, scheme design *sketch outline diagram mar, v *Injure damage hurt, harm impair, spoil

Ana. *Deface disfigure *deform contort, distort gnarl warp *ruin wreck

Con Embellish decorate, *adorn beautify, ornament *mend repair patch amend, revise reform, *correct, rectify emend marauder. *Brigand bandit, highwayman, footpad

Ana Ravager, pillager, sacker, despoiler (see corresponding verbs at RAVAGE) robber, plunderer, thief looter (see corresponding verbs at ROB) march, n *Boundary border, frontier margin. *Border, verge edge, rim brim brink

Ana. Bound end term, bourn confine *limit penumbra (see SHADE) marine, adj 1 Oceanic, thalassic, neritic, pelagic abyssal bathysmal bathybic, *aquatic, lacustrine lacuscular fluvial fluviatile

2 Marine, maritime, nautical, naval are not synonymous terms but they are so interrelated that their proper choice is sometimes a cause of confusion Marine and barometer, a marine chronometer), or deals with the sea or with vessels that ply the sea or other large body

Edward Island, the Maritime Alps maritime states or and marine are sometimes used interchangeably, especially in reference to law, insurance, and the like relationship to sailors or seamen or the sailing of ships or boats is distinctly implied, as, nautical pursuits such as yachting, nautical skill, a man of nautical interests is never satisfied until he owns some sort of sailboat, nautical clothes, 'No one rows very few sail Brighton ..is the least nautical of seaside places (Jefferies) Nautical is usually the preferred term when as composed not only of ships, but of men supplies, and armaments, at times, only from the context can a reader be sure whether ship or naval force is referred to as naval stores a naval architect, a naval engagement the Naval Academy at Annapolis, naval officers, he belongs to the naval reserve mariner. Mariner, sailor, seaman, tar, gob, matlow (properly matelot), bluejacket, rating come into comparison as denoting a person engaged in sailing or whose work in any way contributes to the accomplishment of the vessel's voyage, whether that work be concerned with the vessel's navigation or not thus, a ship's master, officers, engineers, stewards, and the like, are in this sense mariners Mariner is not so common in colloquial use as many of the preceding terms but it is very common in literary especially poetic, use as 'Ye mariners of England That guard our native seas' (Campbell) Sailor still so strongly retains its original one who in strict language is called a seaman, one of the navigating force (sometimes including, sometimes excluding officers) employed on a vessel Both in British and in American use, the term seaman alone is not applied to apprentices for the term suggests skill and craft in operation and guidance of a vessel In technical British use however, the word is not used in reference to navigating officers or to pilots Tar is a familiar often hymeneal.

maritime. *Marine, nautical, naval.

mark ... note token badge

2 *Character symbol sign note Ana *Device, contrivance.

marketable. *Vendible purchasable salable marriage. Marriage, matrimony, wedlock, wedding nuptials spousal (or spousals), espousals (or espousal) are not always synonymous nouns but they are closely allied because they all refer directly or indirectly to the act or acts by which a man and woman become husband and wife or to the state of being husband and wife. Marriage is the common term both in literary and colloquial use it may apply to the rite or ceremony (as, many were present at their marriage a civil marriage) but it more often applies to the legal or spiritual relation which is entered upon (as, to be joined in marriage to annul a marriage) to the state of being married (as, theirs was a long and happy marriage) or to the institution as an abstraction (as, Nor does he dishonour marriage that praises virginity —Donne) In extended use the term is applicable to any similarly close and intimate union as, 'Let me not to the marriage of true minds Admit impediments (Shak) the same sort of poetic effect as the Romantics obtained by the marriage of fertile words (Day Lewis) Matrimony is the preferred term in religious and sometimes in legal use, in the Roman Catholic and the Eastern (including Orthodox and Uniat) churches and in the use of many members of the Anglican Communion it designates one of the seven sacraments. The term therefore is used with historical correctness in place of marriage only when a religious ceremony or sanction is implied as to be joined in bonds of holy matrimony In general the term is applicable to the relationship which exists between husband and wife and not (although there are literary exceptions) to the ceremony or the state of marriage So prays the Church to consecrate a vow The which would endless matrimony make (Wordsworth) Wedlock, a term now chiefly in legal or literary use applies especially to marriage as a legally sanctioned relationship or state thus children born out of wedlock are children of parents who are not married The sacred academy of man's life Is holy wedlock in a happy wife (Quarles) Grave authors say and witty poets sing That honest wedlock is a glorious thing (Pope) Wedding is the common term both in colloquial and literary use for the ceremony that marks a marriage and the festivities that accompany it as a thousand invitations to the wedding were sent out Nuptials is a more rhetorical and grand ose term than wedding it also carries a stronger implication of an elaborate religious ceremony I don t object to married priests, but I do strongly object to their nuptials when a priest like Moxon-Hughes indulges in an immense artistic wedding I feel there is something undignified and almost unpleasant about it (C Mackenzie) Spousal or more often spousals, is an archaic term which stresses the making of the vows of marriage rather than the performance of a ceremony it is frequently in extended use applied to the mating of birds, beasts etc as till the amorous bird of night Sung spousal and bid haste the evening star (Milton) with the morrow the Church blessed the spousals (Symonds) Espousals (or its somewhat archaic singular espousal) as here compared (see also ENGAGEMENT 1) differs little from spousals (or spousal) except in its extended application In the latter use it commonly implies a spiritual union especially one that is dependent upon a vow or pledge, as Let every act of worship be Like our espousals, Lord to thee (J Wesley) marrow *Adipose suet tallow lard marshal, v *Order arrange organize systematize, methodize Ana Array range, align *line Con Derange disarrange *disorder, disorganize, unsettle disturb *scatter, disperse dissipate martial. Martial, warlike, military come into comparison not as close synonyms but because they carry as their basic meaning belonging to suitable to or characteristic of war Martial distinctively implies reference to war in general and to its essential and fundamental characteristics it often specifically suggests the pomp and circumstance of war as, martial music, standing in martial array, "the keen martial temper of the Yamato race (Binyon) Warlike, as a rule, implies reference to war as a reality its actual causes, its actual methods its actual effects it therefore applies more often to feelings acts activities, etc., that lead to or accompany real war than to those which suggest its thrilling or stirring qualities thus a warlike temper suggests bellicosity or readiness to fight to the bitter end whereas a martial temper suggests dauntlessness, spiritedness and an eagerness for war so warlike preparations a warlike race tales of warlike feats' (Wordsworth), 'Then peals the warlike thunder of the drum' (Scott) Military suggests war as fought by trained armies under the guidance of trained leaders It often implies the conduct of war on land rather than on sea (being then opposed to naval) and suggests clashing forces strategic movements, and the like often however it refers to war in general especially as it has been carried on since armaments have been employed as, a military expedition military tactics "Military glory—that attractive rainbow that rises in showers of blood (Lincoln) Ana *Belligerent bellicose pugnacious *aggressive, militant *spirited high spirited mettlesome masculine. *Male, virile manful manly manlike mannish.

Ana *Vigorous energetic lusty strenuous robust *healthy sound Ant Feminine — Con Womanly, ladylike womanlike womanish *female mask, n Portrait photograph *image simulacrum effigy statue icon mask, v *Disguise cloak dissemble Ana Conceal *hide secrete screen protect, shield defend guard safeguard Con Discover divulge disclose *reveal expose exhibit display flaunt *show mass, n 1 *Bulk volume Ana *Aggregate aggregation conglomerate conglomeration *sum amount total aggregate whole 2 Heap pile stack, shock cock bank See under HEAP v Ana Accumulation hoarding or hoard amassment (see corresponding verbs at ACCUMULATE) mass, v *Heap pile stack shock cock, bank Ana *Gather collect assemble congregate *accumulate amass, hoard merge blend fuse coalesce (see MIX) consolidate *compact unify concentrate massacre, n Massacre, slaughter, butchery carnage pogrom are comparable only when they mean great or a great and often wanton, killing of human beings Massacre implies promiscuous and wholesale slaying especially of those who are not prepared to defend themselves and can make little or no resistance as, the Indian massacre of the inhabitants of Deerfield Mass. in 1704 The tyrannous and bloody deed is done The most arch act of piteous massacre That ever yet this land was guilty of (Shak) Slaughter, originally and still a butcher's term for the killing of animals used as food as here compared suggests extensive and ruthless killing whether the scene of that killing be a battle a massacre a horrible accident or the like The chief cut his way through the enemy with great slaughter (Irving) countries as the pogroms at Gomel and Kishinev in Russia in 1903

Ana Assassination murdering or murder slaying killing (see corresponding verbs at KILL) massive Massive, massy, bulky, monumental, substantial are synonyms when they mean impressively large and heavy Massive distinctively stresses solidity and strength of construction and usually implies an imposing appearance as Its ceilings heavy with massive beams (Dickens), I am sure that the Lord Mayor is glad to see again its [the Mansion House s] sombre and massive yet welcoming façade when he returns home from any jaunt (Lucas) a man whose massive shoulders and determined cast of features ought to have convinced him that such an enterprise was nothing short of desperate (Shaw) Massy, now a literary word carries a stronger implication of ponderosity than massive but it still usually also implies solidity rather than weight and the excessive amount of space occupied rather than solidity or strength of construction as, a bulky parcel nevertheless the word may still connote these underemphasized qualities as a bulky report Monumental as here compared also implies greatness of size but it distinctively suggests an imposing massiveness Me Goddess bring To archèd walks of twilight groves And shadows brown Of pine or monumental oak (Milton) The monumental fourpost bed has been taken down (Daily Telegraph) "Miss Dyas was a tall red haired woman of monumental build (E Wharton) Substantial stresses solidity and strength of construction as much as massive but it homes and substantial relatives of some sort or other on whom we could fall back (Galsworthy)

Ana *Heavy weighty ponderous solid hard *firm immense *enormous huge gigantic, colossal massy. *Massive bulky monumental substantial

Ana Ponderous hefty cumbrous cumbersome emptory, imperative are here compared only as they apply to persons their acts utterances demands and the like and mean governed by or manifesting a strong tendency to impose one s will on another One is masterful to take fire at his ardour (A Huxley) One is domineering who tries to enforce his will or to make a show of his power by an overbearing or insolently tyrannical manner as [He] was violent arbitrary domineering (Mrs H Ward), They are not courageous, only quarrelsome not determined only obstinate not masterful only domineering (Shaw) a domineering lady and her abject suitor One is imperious who by temperament or by position is fitted to command or who assumes the air or manner of such a person the term implies more arrogance than masterful and less insolence than domineering as this ancient despot—this imperious old Louis XIV in a black front and a cap and ribbon say of a man that he has a great deal of character we generally mean that he has disciplined his temperament his disposition into strict obedience to the behests of duty, that he has clear and peremptory ideas about right and wrong (Brownell) One is imperative who is peremptory or whose actions or words are peremptory owing to the urgency of the situation rather than because of one s temperament as, Go back! cried the old man with an imperative jerk of the head (M Wilkins) the doctor had imperatively commanded rest (Bennett)

Ana Magisterial magistral *dictatorial authoritarian authoritative oracular dogmatic doctrinaire arbitrary *absolute despotic tyrannical

☞ Do not confuse masterful with masterly match, v Match rival equal approach touch are often used interchangeably especially in negative constructions, when they mean to come up to or nearly up to the level or standard of something else One thing matches another when it proves to be its mate (rather ede (Austen) 'No other measure of our work equals the sight of the product put to its full uses" (H Suzzallo) One thing approaches another when it comes so close to it that it nearly equals or matches it and the difference though apparent is not important. An adult reader with trained habits of concentration will absorb the contents of a book with a speed and retentiveness which no ch ld can approach' (C W Eliot) An unlettered speaker may startle you with his power of giving to the spoken word an urgent aptness that approaches the vivid instancy of an involuntary cry (C E Montague) One thing touches another thing when the former approaches the very high plane or level reached by the latter as not another woman there to touch her (W J Locke) Yeats, the last in the aristocratic tradition of poets none of us can touch his later work He stands a lesson to us in integrity demanding from us a complete subject on to the poetry that occupies us (Day Lewis)

Ana Correspond harmonize, *agree conform square, accord

Con Differ from *differ with vary *change alter, modify matelot Variant of MATLOW material, adj 1 Material physical, corporeal phenomenal, sensible, objective are here compared as meaning belong ng to or having a relation to th ngs that belong to the world of actuality or of things apparent to the senses Material applies to anything that is formed of matter or that relates to things formed of matter it often impl es an opposition to spiritual but it may imply an ant thesis to ideal formal (i e of or pertaining to form as d stinguished from matter) intangible impalpable and the like as material objects one s material possessions to believe in no other world than the material world busy with material affa rs (Conrad) an appet te for material pleasures (A C Benson) The society of Shakespeare and Raleigh and Sir Philip Sydney would not console them [modern men] for the absence of bath rooms motor-cars and other material com forts of which that age was ignorant (B Russell) These poor Christians are not thrifty like our country people at home [France] they have no veneration for property no sense of material values (Cather) Physical (as here compared see also BODILY) differs from material chiefly in suggesting an opposition to psychical mental metaphysical imaginary and less often spiritual It appl es espec ally to things perceived by the senses or capable of be ng dealt with in the same manner as ob jects of sense and it usually impl es a contrast to things knowable only through thought or intuition or built up by the mind or imag nation thus the material objects and the physical objects within one s reach may be exactly the same objects but material suggests the r substantial nature and physical suggests the r susceptibility of perception and identification or what is more important in science of being we ghed measured or the like In scient fic use physical is also applicable to things which are not objects but forces actions motions, etc wh ch are operative in nature or in mechanics and wh ch can be measured or calculated or put to use even though strictly speaking they cannot be handled as the physical propert es of light the physical effect of radiation a physical explanation of a miracle Every thing physical a measurable by weight motion and resistance (De Q uincey) With the advent of Einstein s relat vity theory it was necessary for the first time to recognize that the physical world differed from the ideal [i e, mentally constructed] world conceived in terms of everyday experience (transl from W Heisenberg) Corporeal (as here compared see also BODILY) applies to that which not only has physical existence but also is tangible or can be described as a body, thus, energy in itself has no corporeal existence though it is a physical power found usually in corporeal things. In a monistic sense the mind may be regarded as a living growing structure even though it lacks corporeal tangibility (Science) Phenomenal implies a relation to that which is known or knowable through the senses and experience as distinguished from that wh ch is knowable only through thought or intuition because it is beyond per ception by the senses the term is chiefly used in philosophy and science when there is an intent to mark the line between that which is actually perceived and that wh ch has been ascertained by the reason has been accepted by faith or is theoretical hypothetical or the l ke as phenomenal reality is often specifically called actuality Phenomenal nature is reduced to an array of events in the four-dimensional continuum (Jeans) Sensible, the psychologist s and often the layman s, term for that which is known or knowable through sense experience, is sometimes opposed to intelligible (i e knowable through mental processes) it is therefore a general term comprehending visible audible tangible palpable and the l ke as there is no sensible movement of the earth to claim sensible evidence of the immortality of the soul Is this a dagger which I see before me The handle toward my hand? Come let me clutch thee Art thou not sensible To feel ng as to sight? or art thou but A dagger of the mind a false creation (Shak) Objective impl es the same kind of existence as phenomenal and sensible but it stresses the apartness of the thing known through the senses from the person who perceives it through his senses the term therefore im pl es not only material existence but an existence which exactly corresponds to the image in the mind of the perce ver as The ancient Hebrew saw the rainbow as an objective structure set in the heavens for all men to behold (Jeans) acosmism the theory which den es the objective existence of the world or universe (Inge)

Ana *Carnal fleshly sensual an mal animal stic actual true *real tangible *perceptible appreciable palpable

Ant Immaterial

2 *Relevant germane pertinent apposite applicable apropos.

Ana Important signif cant consequential momentous (see correspond ng nouns at IMPORTANCE) vital card nal *essential fundamental materialize Externalize object fy substantiate incarnate embody actualize *realize hypostatize reify matériel or material *Equipment apparatus machinery paraphernalia outfit tackle gear maternal Motherly *parental paternal fatherly matlow or matelot, *Mariner sailor seaman tar gob bluejacket rating matrimonial Matrimonial marital, conjugal connubial, nuptial hymeneal agree in meaning of relating to, or characteristic of marriage Matrimonial is the most general term applicable to that which has to do both with matrimony and with marriage in any of its senses (see MARRIAGE) as, matrimonial vows matrimonial advances the matrimonial state matrimonial rites matrimonial bliss Marital though in strict use it impl es reference to the husband and his part in marriage (as marital rights marital authority) is often used interchangeably with matrimonial (as marital vows the marital relationship marital bl ss) Conjugal and connubial are frequently used interchangeably More strictly conjugal connotes reference to the persons who are married (as They flaunt their conjugal felicity in one s face —Wilde I count it my good fortune that vaunt (Shelley)

Ant Immaterial

matrimony *Marriage wedlock wedding nuptials spousal espousals.

matter. 1 *Affair bus ness concern thing

2 *Subject subject matter argument topic text theme motive leitmotiv matter-of-fact *Prosaic prosy

Ana Stolid phlegmatic *impassive and *dry *downright forthright

Con Fanciful *imaginary fantastic chimerical quixotic visionary ideal transcendent transcendental (see ABSTRACT adj) romantic *sentimental mature, adj Mature, matured, ripe, mellow, adult, grown up full fledged are terms that are not often interchangeable yet are comparable because they bear the same underlying meaning fully developed Mamatured which implies the completion of a course process or period thus a matured plan is a fully thought out plan a matured wine is one that has been allowed to age properly a matured note is one that has reached the date when payment is due Ripe though it implies maturity stresses readiness for use or enjoyment In its literal sense it is applied chiefly to fruits ready for eating to grains or vegetables ready for harvesting to seeds ready for planting Figuratively it often connotes merely readiness or fully preparedness for action activity of use Ripe for exploits and mighty enterprises (Shak) To be careful in teaching history not to obtrude aspects which are interesting to us until the child is ripe for them (B Russell) Sometimes however

Mellow stresses either the agreeable qualities associated with ripe or slightly overripe fruits, such as softness, tenderness, sweetness, or the loss of their opposites the signs of immaturity hardness harshness, or bitterness as, a mellow cheese a mellow wine The more mellow and cheerful outlook of his [Horace s] second book [of satires] (Buchan) The last three words are applied chiefly to persons their acts, minds etc and only by extension to inanimate things Adult is the equivalent of mature in its merely physical implications and in its reference to animals, it presupposes however a clear line of demarcation, especially when used of human beings An adult person physiologically is one that has passed beyond adolescence in law he is one that has attained full age or his majority In extended use adult implies the attainment of that point in development where the weaknesses of immaturity or of imperfection are surmounted The difference [between Romanticism and Classicism] seems to me rather the difference between the complete and mature, v Mature, develop ripen age come into comparison when they are used in reference to living growing things or to anything with latent capacity for betterment and mean to come or cause to come to the state of being fit for use enjoyment or the like When employed with reference to living things or their specific characters mature stresses fullness of growth and tend ripen emphasizes the approach to or the attainment of the peak of perfection as the fruits are now sufficiently mant latent nebulous or the like as by bringing it into open view as develop (T S Eliot) one ripens that which is susceptible of improvement enrichment or enhancement a given time or subjected to influences favorable to its development as to ripen cheese by allowing it to stand or by processing it friendship often ripens into love [minds that] have not leisure to grow wise cannot ripen properly (S M Crothers) one ages that which in its fresh or new state lacks a quality or qualities that fit it for use or enjoyment as to age wine by keeping it matured *Mature ripe mellow adult grown up full fledged

Ana Completed finished (see CLOSE v) *deliberate considered advised designed studied premeditated.

Ant Unmatured premature — Con Crude green callow *rude rough raw *youthful juvenile puerile boyish childish *childlike.

maudlin Mawkish *sentimental romantic soppy mushy slushy

Ana Confused muddled fuddled addled bemuddled befuddled (see CONFUSE) embarrassed rattled fazed discomfited disconcerted (see EMBARRASS) mawkish Maudlin *sentimental romantic soppy mushy slushy

Ana Flat vapid jejune *insipid banal inane maxim *Saying saw adage proverb motto epigram aphorism apothegm.

may. *Can maze *Labyrinth.

meager or meagre Meager (or meagre), scanty, scant, skimpy, scrimpy, exiguous spare, sparse come into comparison as meaning so small as in amount number or size as to fall short of what is normal necessary or desirable Meager stresses thinness as applied to persons or animals it suggests emaciation (as, strange straining eyes and meagre form —G Eliot "The meagre condition of his horse —Scott) but as applied to things in general it implies the absence of elements qualities, or numbers necessary to a thing's richness substance potency or the like as a meager diet a simplicity of diction which reflects a meagre and barren stock [of words] (Lowes) The magazines like the newspapers were liberal with their space but again the results were terribly meagre (V Heiser) An outline in itself is meagre truly but it does not necessarily suggest a meagre thing (H James) Scanty emphasizes insufficiency in amount quantity extent or the like as, a scanty supply of food for the winter The book is not like some biographical essays with scanty material stuffed out with appreciation and conjecture (T S Eliot) "Such a scanty portion of light was admitted that it was difficult, on first coming in to see anything (Dickens) Scant differs from scanty in suggesting a falling short, as in amount or quantity of that which is desired or is desirable rather than in that which is necessary or essential as the work of those hours was miserably scant (Hardy) they were held in scant esteem (Grandgent) scant foliage (Cather) Skimpy and scrimpy, both colloquial words, imply niggardliness as the reason for a thing's insufficiency in size amount numbers or the like but skimpy suggests stinginess that robs a thing of its proper measure size or amount (as skimpy curtains a skimpy allowance) and scrimpy usually connotes an enforced thrift or the influence of meager resources (as their meals are pretty scrimpy these days scrimpy portions of food) Exiguous stresses a smallness in size amount extent capacity or the like that is more or less inherent in the thing under consideration and makes it compare unfavorably with other things of its kind as "brains too exiguous to hold more than half an idea at a time (Amer Speech) building ships to supplement his exiguous navy (Buchan) a much larger dominion than the exiguous Dalnada (Times Lit Sup) Spare (as here compared see also LEAN SUPERFLUOUS) implies merely a falling short of that which is sufficient unlike scanty and meager it seldom suggests resulting loss or hardship as the powerful frame attenuated by spare living (Dickens), spare vegetation a spare diet In the phrase spareribs (of pork) the term suggests meagerness of meat the phrase applies therefore to ribs trimmed of most of their meat Sparse stresses a lack of normal or desirable thickness or density the term may or may not suggest insufficiency or inadequacy in numbers or in quantity but it always connotes a thin scattering of the units as the sparse population of the mountainous district sparse grey locks (Conrad) the sound of their sparse talk and laughter was blown over the walls to the ears of Harbinger (Galsworthy) Now and then she scattered with regretful sparseness some seeds and crumbs from her parcels (M Wilkins)

Ana *Thin, slender slim slight tenuous rare thinned attenuated extenuated diluted (see THIN v) jejune flat *insipid inane penurious. *stingy parsimonious.

Ant Ample copious.

mean, v 1 *Intend design propose purpose

Ana Wish want *desire *aim aspire pant

2 Mean denote signify import are synonymous terms when used in the sense of to convey to the mind a definite idea or interpretation. Not only words or phrases can be said to mean denote signify or import something but also anything which admits of interpretation or of being intellectually appraised such as a poem or an essay or an act of Congress or such as the behavior of one person to another or a set of circumstances. These words are commonly employed without distinction but precision in their use is often possible and desirable In their general applications (excluding for the moment their reference to words and phrases) mean is the most common it is often far more expressive or poignant than the others when used to connote not only interpretation but also evaluation or appraisal. That old vague hurt of discovery that he had never meant so much to David as David to him (M Austin) He can have no idea of what it means to be the daughter of Mr de Barral (Conrad) Denote, in its widest application is distinguished from the others by its taking for its subject things that serve as outward marks or visible indications signify by its taking for its subject things of a symbolic or representative character, as, his somber expression denoted (better than signified) a worried mind the scales in the hands of the figure of Justice signify impartiality the Eucharistic rite signifies one thing to Protestants and another to Catholics Signify often suggests distinctiveness or importance as events which signify little at the time of occurrence often attain significance when the history of that period is written does it signify nothing to you that your father has failed in health recently? Import frequently conveys its etymological implication of carrying in, i e in this sense into the mind (as, new ideas import little to those not intellectually fitted to receive them) but it frequently comes close to signify (as, What this imported I could ill divine —Words worth)

In their special use in reference to the interpretation of the content of a term these words are not always distinguishable Mean, however is capable of implying reference to the term's full content that is to the idea or relation between ideas which it conveys to the mind and the suggestions which it evokes as, only a philosophically minded person can grasp what beauty and truth mean in Keats's lines Beauty is truth truth beauty —that is all Ye know on earth and all ye need to know Signify can as mean cannot suggest symbolic relationship between the term and the idea it conveys as the phrase bread and butter signifies the material needs of life Denote (see also DENOTE 2) is even more technical for it implies a logical definition in which the idea named or expressed by a term is clearly marked out and its application or range of application accurately determined as, decoration denotes one of three ideas the act of adorning or a thing used in adorning or the results achieved by one who adorns Import though used with decreasing frequency in relation to terms, is precise in its implications A term imports not what it denotes or bears as a definition but any or all of the implications involved in its interpretation. Does it [the word necessary] always import an absolute physical necessity ? (Ch Just Marshall)

Ana *Carry convey bear transmit *denote connote define assign *prescribe *suggest imply, intimate hint mean, adj 1 Mean, ignoble, abject, sordid come into comparison when applied to persons their behavior or the cond tions in which they live All then mean so low as to be out of keeping with human dignity or just standards of human life or character Mean and ignoble originally implied low birth the former being applied to persons of the lowest social classes the latter to persons below the rank of nobles Mean usually suggests repellent antisocial characteristics such as malevolence or cupidity It almost invariably connotes small minded ness Those who are tempted by the flesh have usually nothing to fear from avarice or the meaner vices Those who spend their lives battling against meanness in any form are usually immune to the flesh (C Mackenzie) comes close to mean except that it seldom connotes converted distort and debase and make ignoble parodies of his teaching (A Huxley) Abject in its most inclusive sense means little more than extremely low in station or (G L Dickinson)

Ana *Base low vile *contemptible despicable sorry scurvy cheap beggarly pitiable mean, adj 2 Average median par See AVERAGE n

Ant Extreme

mean, n 1 *Average median norm par

2 In plural form means Means instrument instrumentality, agent, agency, medium organ, vehicle channel agree in denoting a person or thing through or by wh ch work is performed or an end is effected Means (construed as either plural or singular) is the most general of these words it may be appl ed not only to persons and to concrete things such as implements tools, and mach nes but also to their actions or operations it may also be applied to methods policies devices and the l ke as to find ways and means to attain one s ambitions the means does not justify the end The habit of regarding the labouring class as a mere means to the maintenance of the rest (G L Dickinson) The means that a portrait painter should employ to ind cate the inner nature and the circumstances of his sitter (Binyon) Instrument is commonly applied to persons who merely carry out another s will or intention, often as tools sometimes as dupes 'He turned on me suspecting perhaps that I only wished to make an instrument of him (Hudson) If they [judges] were to be used as the instruments and the knowing instruments for violating what they swear to support (Ch Just Marshall) When applied to concrete things, instrument often derives connotations from its musical sense such as susceptibility to manipulation responsiveness to touch or use etc He knew his brain was now a very uncertain instrument sometimes quite good sometimes a weary fount of half formed ideas (H G Wells) Instrumentality is interchangeable with means but not with instrument because its chief impl cation is effective action by or effective use of the instrument as veyed from one person or thing to another or g t objective form as air is the medium through which sound and light waves are transmitted language is the medium through which a person communicates his effectively) that which is to be revealed through it as the play was an excellent vehicle for the genius of Booth We must find a new form of verse which shall be as satisfactory a vehicle for us as blank verse was for the Elizabethans (T S Eliot) A channel is a medium that or through which charity

Ana *Method mode manner way fashion, system machinery apparatus *equipment paraphernalia

3 In plural form means Resources, assets effects *possessions belongings

Ana *Money cash currency riches, wealthiness, affluence, opulence (see correspond ng adjectives at RICH) meander Stray roam ramble *wander rove range prowl gad gallivant traipse meaning Meaning, sense acceptation signification significance import come into comparison when they denote the idea which a word a passage a facial expression an action situation or the like conveys to the mind or less often is intended to convey to the mind Meaning the general term may be used interchangeably with any other of the terms here considered it is not only applicable to language and to express ons or gestures but also to symbols works of art or other things that require interpretation, as, a d ctionary gives the meanings of words if 'human and the words formed from it can have an exact meaning that meaning must refer to those qualities, characteristics and powers which d s t nguish the human being (J W Krut h) Understand a plain man in h s plain meaning (Shak) Sense, as here compared denotes e ther the meaning or more often one of the specific or particular meanings of a word or phrase or sometimes of an allegory (as, some words have as many as twenty five senses the literal and figurative senses of Pilgrim s Progress Virtue in the noble sense by Greeks and Romans understood —Swift) or more abstractly intell gible or apprehens ble meaning (as [She] speaks things That carry but half sense —Shak In the first authentic edition the words I beheve ran and a table of green fields, which has no sense"—Newman) Acceptation (see also ACCEPTANCE) differs from sense (as denoting a meaning of a term) ch efly in its stress upon the actual use of that sense or upon its acceptance by a large number of writers and speakers as It is necessary first to consider the different acceptations of the word Knowledge (Locke) [Philosophy] in its common acceptation signifies, the search after wisdom (Fielding) Signification and significance as here compared (see signify under MEAN v 2 significance under IMPORTANCE) are often used interchangeably in sp te of the fact that they are carefully differentiated in their meanings Signification (a noun derived ultimately from the same stem as signify) appl es specifically to the establ shed mean ng of a term a symbol a character or the like, or to an established sense of a word it usually implies that when th s term or this symbol or this character is used that such and such an idea is evoked in the m nd of informed persons as, the significations of the characters which serve as Roman numerals to know the signification of each type of halo a book alleged to give the significations of dreams I find it very interest ng to know the signification of names, and had written to ask him whether Jerusalem meant the v s on of peace or the foundation of peace (Arnold) The counsel for the appellee would limit it [the term commerce] to traffic to buying and selling or the nterchange of commod ties and do not admit that it comprehends navigation This would restrict a general term applicable to many objects to one of its significations' (Ch Just Marshall) Significance on the other hand applies specifically to the covert as distinguished from the established or the ostensible meaning of something it may from its other sense (see IMPORTANCE) carry a connotat on of weight or moment (a connotation now rarely if ever found in signification) as his language is so grandiose that one wonders if his speeches have any significance no one knows for a certainty the significance of some early Christian symbols For the mathematically illiterate like myself these things [Kelv n s demonstrations] are mere scribblings, w thout significance (A Huxley) "Explain ng all the minute happenings of the ranch as though each of them had a special joyous significance (M Austin) Import (see also IMPORTANCE) like significance may imply momentousness but in contrast with that term and l ke signification it denotes the idea or the impression conveyed or to be conveyed to the mind by the medium of words passages, or the like as the plain import of the words [of the Constitut on] seems to be that in one class of cases its [the Supreme Court s] jurisd ction is original and not appellate in the other it is appellate and not original" (Ch Just Marshall) [He] spoke words in her ear that had an awful import to her (Meredith), h m gathered the import of the next few sentences (Kipling)

Ana. Suggestion implication intimation, hinting or hint (see corresponding verbs at SUGGEST) denotation connotation (see under DENOTE) meaningful Significant pregnant sententious *expressive eloquent

Ana Important consequential momentous, we ghty (see corresponding nouns at IMPORTANCE)

Ant Meaningless.

measly Paltry trifling trivial puny *petty picayunish p cayune

Ana *Contempt ble despicable sorry scurvy cheap beggarly *stingy parsimonious penurious miserly curmudgeonly mechanic Workman, workingman artisan *worker operative hand laborer craftsman handicraftsman roustabout mechanical Automatic instinctive impulsive *spontaneous

Ana Stereotyped hackneyed *trite dull *stupid dense crass dumb

Con. Vital cardinal *essential fundamental *spirited high spirited, mettlesome fiery spunky gingery meddle Meddle interfere, intermeddle tamper come into comparison when they mean to busy or concern oneself with someone or something officiously impertinently or the like One meddles with or in that which is not one s concern or which is strictly the affair or the responsibility of another or of others the term usually suggests the interposition of oneself without right or without permission or authorizat on as It would be better if government meddled no farther with trade than to protect it (Franklin) His enemies accused him of meddling in matters which did not belong to him (Newman) it is inexpedient to meddle with questions of state in a land where men are highly paid to work them out for you (Kipling) One or sometimes one s act, interferes (see also INTERPOSE 2) with someone or someth ng or in something when one meddles (intent onally or unintentionally) in such a way as to hinder frustrate molest, or otherwise affect seriously and usually injuriously as to interfere in a dispute a physician is not interfering with nature, any more than an architect is interfering with nature when he directs the building of a house (Karl K Darrow) One intermeddles with or in something when one meddles impertinently and officiously and in such a way as to interfere as, The board of control had no right whatsoever to intermeddle in the business (Burke) One tampers with someone or something when one seeks to make unwarranted alterations to perform meddlesome experiments, or otherwise to exert an improper influence the term may or may not suggest corruption or clandestine operation as, Provided the farmer said nobody had been tampering with any of his witnesses (Meredith) 'the door had not been tampered with (Wilde) "Money and sex are forces too unruly for our reason they can only be controlled by taboos with which we tamper at our peril (L P Smith)

Ana *Intrude obtrude interlope butt in *interpose interfere intervene molest discommode incommode trouble inconvenience meddlesome *Impertinent intrusive obtrusive officious pragmatical

Ana Interfering meddling intermeddling tampering (see MEDDLE) prying snoopy nosy inquisitive *curious median, adj Average mean par See under AVERAGE n medicament. Medicine *remedy cure specific physic.

medicinal, n *Drug pharmaceutical biological simple.

medicine *Remedy, cure medicament, specific physic mediocre *Medium middling second rate moderate average, fair indifferent

Ana Poor wrong *bad *common, ordinary vulgar meditate *Ponder muse ruminate

Ana Contemplate *consider study weigh revolve reflect reason speculate deliberate *think cogitate examine inspect, scrutinize meditative Contemplative speculative *thoughtful reflective pensive meaning midway or about midway between the extremes of a scale of measurement or evaluation Medium usually presupposes use of a scale of measurement or gradation it may be an instrument such as a meter or gauge or it may be a mental power of measuring or gauging attained by experience as a boy of medium middling sometimes occurs as a designation for the second of three grades or as a description of quality of describes it as mediocre gives ground for the inference that it would mediocre talent (L. P Smith) Second rate etymologically implies a ranking midway between that which is regarded as first equipment etc and not to excellence Frequently wealth a man of moderate ability a moderate wind to attain moderate success an infusion of moderate strength I was a moderate scholar and a competent athlete is an average June day where can we find the average man? Actually however the term is applied to that

n) *common ordinary vulgar popular meed n Guerdon prize award reward *premium y bonus

Recompensing or recompense remuneration al satisfaction (see corresponding verbs at PAY)

Modest *humble lowly

Gentle mild (see SOFT) subdued submissive *compliant acquiescent resigned *forbearing nt lenient patient long suffering (see corresponding nouns at PATIENCE)

Ant Arrogant — Con. *Proud lordly overbearing gh-spirited mettlesome unruly is, *insubordinate ll answer

*match touch gratify *please

Ant Disappoint

ate fitting conformed equitable

each group

Ant Unmeet

melancholia Melancholy *sadness, depression dejection gloom blues dumps vapors melancholic, adj Melancholic, melancholy, atrabilious (or atrabiliar), hypochondriac (or hypochondriacal) agree in meaning gloomy or depressed especially as a manifestation of one's temperament or state of health Melancholic melancholy and atrabilious all once implied the presence or excess of black bile one of the humors which in the Middle Ages and the Renaissance were supposed to determine a man's temperament and physical constitution In modern use they are distinguished in meaning Melancholic describes a person who is afflicted with or inclined to melancholia Mr Britling in these moods did not perhaps experience the grey and hopeless desolations of the melancholic but he saw a world that bristled with misfortune and error' (H G Wells) Melancholy, on the other hand describes a person, or the mood disposition acts or utterances of a person who is excessively sad or detached in spirit and usually averse to that which is cheerful or gay They say you are a melancholy fellow' I am so I do love it better than laughing (Shak) Prince tis a melancholy lay! For youth for life we both regret! How fair they seem how far away (A Lang) Atrabilious preserves the implication of a morbid physical condition more strongly than the preceding words often in modern use it suggests the morose or choleric disposition of the dyspeptic or the predilection for gloom of those who have been subjected to severe strain Neither were those [Puritan settlers of New England] plump rosy gilled Englishmen that came hither but a hard-faced atrabilious earnest-eyed race' (J R Lowell) Of nervous atrabiliar constitution (J Morley) Hypochondriac comes close to atrabilious in its suggestion of constitutional gloominess but in modern use it also implies a morbid anxiety about one's state of health There was a pleasurable illumination in your eye occasionally a soft excitement in your aspect which told of no bitter bilious, hypochondriac brooding (C Brontë)

Ana *Despondent despairing hopeless forlorn desperate pessimistic misanthropic *cynical, misogynic melancholy, n *Sadness melancholia dejection gloom depression blues dumps, vapors

Ana Miserableness or misery wretchedness (see corresponding adjectives at MISERABLE) despondency despair hopelessness forlornness desperation (see under DESPONDENT) *tedium boredom ennui doldrums

Ant Exhilaration — Con. Joy delight *pleasure enjoyment delectation fruition hopefulness optimism (see corresponding adjectives at HOPEFUL) melancholy, adj 1 *Melancholic atrabilious, hypochondriac.

Ana Morose gloomy glum *sullen dour saturnine depressed oppressed weighed down (see DEPRESS) *despondent despairing hopeless, forlorn desperate

2 Melancholy dolorous doleful, lugubrious rueful plaintive come into comparison when they mean expressing or exciting sorrow or mourning All of these words have to a greater or less extent weakened from their original meaning and are often used with a half humorous connotation. Melancholy in earlier use stressed a quality that inspired pensiveness or sad reflection or awakened mournful thoughts or recollections which were not only not necessarily painful or disagreeable, but often agreeable, especially to the poetic or thoughtful mind Sweet bird that shunn'st the noise of folly Most musical most melancholy! (Milton) The tender images we love to trace Steal from each year a melancholy grace (S Rogers) In current use the term frequently applies to that which expresses or excites dejection or depression as "his melancholy old house on the hill (Deland), that melancholy problem of a money-earning occupation which lay so heavily on my thoughts (H Ellis) Dolorous in nonderogatory use implies sorrow associated with severe physical or mental suffering as crushed in and bruised pain Implacable and many a dolorous groan ere they could wind Out of such prison (Milton) In current use the term describes that which is lamentable in its gloom or dismalness, or is exaggeratedly dismal as. That dolorous aspect of human nature which in comedy is best portrayed by Molière (T S Eliot) I dare say you were exceedingly sorry for what you had done Indeed Sir dolorously moaned Berry I were and am (Meredith) Doleful and lugubrious are also frequently applied to that which is exaggeratedly dismal or dreary, but doleful connotes (now humorously) a weight of woe (as. a doleful and lackadaisical air, a doleful ditty) and lugubrious an undue and often an affected heaviness or solemnity (as They have been crucifying Othello into an opera The music good but lugubrious —Byron Dark funereal barges like my own had flitted by and the gondoliers had warned each other at every turning with hoarse lugubrious cries —Howells) Rueful implies self pity or regret but in current use it often suggests a quizzical attitude as the woebegone heroes eyed each other with rueful countenances (Irving) The deacon looked at his manuscript ruefully It reads like a Sunday School essay he muttered (C Mackenzie) Plaintive applies chiefly to tones sounds utterances rhythms and the like that suggest complaint or mourning or that excite pity or compassion, as the plaintive cries of a child She sang plaintively the wounded aggrieved hurt notes of the nightingale (Hewlett) In poetic use however the term often suggests little more than pensive melancholy or expression in a minor key as Perhaps the plaintive numbers flow For old unhappy far-off things (Wordsworth)

Ana Pathetic poignant *moving touching hopeless forlorn despairing (see DESPONDENT) pensive reflective *thoughtful discomposing disquieting perturbing disturbing (see DISCOMPOSE)

Con Happy *glad cheerful joyous joyful lighthearted *lively vivacious, gay melee Fracas row *brawl broil rumpus scrap

Ana Altercation *quarrel wrangle squabble *confusion disorder mellow Ripe matured *mature adult grown up full fledged

Ana *Tender warm sympathetic responsive warm hearted

Ant Unmellow green — Con Raw crude callow *rude rough melodramatic Histrionic theatrical dramaturgic *dramatic

Ana. *Showy pretentious ostentatious *sentimental romantic, maudlin mawkish melody Melody air tune agree in denoting a clearly distinguishable and often easily remembered succession of rhythmically ordered tones. Melody stresses the sweetness or beauty of sound produced by such an arrangement of tones. Sweetest melodies Are those that are by distance made more sweet, (Wordsworth) It also commonly suggests expressiveness or moving power and a carefully wrought pattern Nerve-dissolving melody (Tennyson) "Tis a rich sobbing melody with reliefs Full and majestic (Keats) Technically as applied to complex musical structure melody always implies a contrast to harmony It designates that kind of musical beauty produced by a continuous series of tones in one or more of the voice parts, in distinction from that produced by simultaneously sounded tones in all the voice parts Strictly air is applied to the dominating melody usually carried by the upper voice or voices in a choral a part song or the like Loosely however, air is often applied to any easily remembered success on of tones which identifies a simple musical composition such as a song a ballad or a waltz and which is more commonly and more precisely called tune, as to hum the tune (or the air) of the Blue Danube Tune is also applied to the musical setting of a ballad psalm lyric and the like (as a hymn tune) and to any simple composition whether unison or harmonized (as a dance tune) melt *Liquefy deliquesce dissolve thaw fuse member *Part portion piece detail division section segment sector fraction fragment parcel

Ana *Element component constituent integrant branch limb *shoot bough memorandum *Letter epistle missive note message dispatch report memory. Memory, remembrance, recollection, reminiscence, mind souvenir are not synonyms in all of their senses but they are comparable terms since all involve the ideas of remembering and of being remembered has been learned (words ideas skills etc) and to affected by the remembrance of certain passages between them (Arch Marshall) Remembrance also denotes but now less often than formerly the state or fact of being remembered or kept in the memory of a person or group of persons as, to hold one in fond remembrance moments that live again in remembrance (W W the time the term therefore often but far from always, implies an effort to remember as, he said he must have time for recollection if he was to give an accurate account of what happened that day Half a word fixed upon or near the spot is worth a cartload of recollection (Gray) his uneasiness grew by the recollection of the forty tons of dynamite in the body of the Perndale not the sort of cargo one thinks of with equanimity in connexion with a threatened collision (Conrad) But recollection is quite as often used of that which is remembered especially as the result of conscious effort, as You ask me to put down a few recollections of your father (Lecky) ... indeed is my recollection of our halts before shaded homesteads our protracted and usually successful parleys with lean housewives hungry for conversation" (Grandgent) Reminiscence is more colored in its meaning by philosophical and psychological theories (particu spection than any of the other terms Like remembrance

he his origin? can he ascend By reminiscence to his earliest date? —Cowper) I believe that as we lose our powers of memory we may increase the power of reminiscence that is of recalling what we want in small quantities for a short time (Jowett) The term is often used however in place of recollection in the concrete from the past in conversation or in writing by an aging or aged person (as to enjoy the reminiscences of the old veterans) or is a phrase a passage a thought a custom or the like that is so like one found in an earlier writer

... imitation or

... that which

... of a memory

Ana *Mind intellect soul intelligence brains, ... remembering minding recalling reminding (see REMEMBER) awareness consciousness cognizance (see corresponding adjectives at AWARE) ... intimidate cow ... FORETELL) ... remodel come ... make something that has been injured or damaged once again fit for use Mend, which is etymologically a shortened form of ... faults or defects archaic English one speaks of mending one ...

(or ways) of mending one's health of mending a person's reputation or one uses the old proverb "the least said the soonest mended" In ordinary English on the other hand one mends a garment when one sews up rents, darns holes or puts pieces under worn spots one mends a fountain pen when one puts in a new ink sac, provides a new pen point or the like, so to mend a broken dish or toy, to mend a rug to mend a stone wall the break in his leg never was properly mended Repair may often be used in place of mend in the sense of making whole or sound again (as, to mend [or repair] a stone wall) but it is usually preferred to mend when complete success is implied and when the thing that is restored to wholeness or soundness is a complex thing that has been partly destroyed, or extensively damaged or has suffered dilapidation debilitation, exhaustion, or the like as to repair a bicycle or automobile to repair the badly burned house before moving back into it it will cost a huge sum to repair the bridge food is necessary to repair the tissues of the body "there are few moral wrecks which may not be to all seeming completely repaired in this world" (C W Eliot) "if economic havoc and maladjustment attributable to the Great War were repaired" (J A Hobson) Patch implies a mending of a hole rent breach or weak spot by the insertion or application of a piece of the same or similar material the term sometimes but far from always, implies obvious, hurried careless or clumsy mending or a repairing that merely serves a temporary purpose as, to patch trousers to patch a plastered wall to patch shoes to patch a damaged lawn to patch an inner tube In extended use patch or frequently patch up implies a making of something out of a great number of pieces fragments odds and ends (as to patch a quilt to patch up an account of a battle from stray bits of information to patch up a code of rules for the guidance of a society) or a settling of something that causes disturbance (as to patch up a quarrel) or a restoring something which has been broken or disrupted in a way suggestive of patching (as to patch up a friendship) In current use especially in industry and business rebuild, which normally means to build again something which has been razed or ruined is often preferred to repair because it implies a thoroughgoing repairing with addition of new parts when necessary that makes a thing like new as a rebuilt typewriter or automobile Remodel implies repairing with some changes often extensive changes in structure or design as to remodel an old house to remodel a dress

Ana. *Improve better ameliorate help emend remedy redress, *correct rectify reform *renew restore renovate rejuvenate refurbish fix, *adjust regulate mendacious *Dishonest lying untruthful deceitful

Ana *False wrong prevaricating equivocating paltering fibbing (see LIE v)

Ant Veracious — Con *Reliable dependable trustworthy honest *upright just scrupulous conscientious honorable menial Servile slavish *subservient obsequious.

Ana Abject *mean sordid ignoble *base low vile groveling floundering wallowing (see WALLOW) menstruum. *Solvent dissolvent resolvent alkahest mental Mental, intellectual psychic, psychical intelligent, cerebral agree in meaning of relating to or characteristic of that sum total of powers or functions called variously (and in the senses discriminated at MIND 2) mind intellect soul (or psyche) or brain In general mental applies directly to that which has to do with the mind as a real (though often immaterial) or as a purely theoretical entity as, one's mental life a mental state mental diseases mental processes mental science Intellectual differs from mental not only in its reference to the intellect, and therefore to the higher powers of the mind such as the comprehension of the abstract or difficult and the ability to reason but also because it is directly applicable to persons their utterances acts and qualities (thus one says an intellectual [not a mental] person) and because it often carries an implied contrast to emotional moral imaginative and the like as "a miracle of intellectual delicacy like Dr Newman's" (Arnold) "No abstract, intellectual plan of life" (Browning), "The knowledge of geographical facts is useful but without intrinsic intellectual value" (B Russell) "It was only on her intellectual side that Elizabeth touched the England of her day All its moral aspects were simply dead to her" (J R Green) "Part of the value of science is intellectual It would be a dull mind that could see the rich variety of natural phenomena without wondering how they are inter-related" (Jeans) Psychic and psychical imply a reference to the soul or psyche, usually but not invariably in their psychological senses often therefore they differ from mental in not suggesting a physical basis such as the brain or the nerves thus, a mental disease is sometimes, but only in nontechnical language distinguished from a psychic disease in that the former implies a cause which is organic and the latter a cause which cannot be related to the body but which seems to proceed from wrong ideas or attitudes the term psychical research applies to investigations of phenomena that seem contrary to physical laws and suggest mental activity apart from the body "You keep talking about maladies of the mind and soul I don't accept the idea of psychic diseases analogous to mental diseases" (C Mackenzie) "The humorist was a type that pioneer society required in order to maintain its psychic equilibrium" (Van W Brooks) Intelligent as here compared (see also INTELLIGENT 2) is applicable to any person who is endowed with an intellect or reveals intelligence as men are intelligent beings the most intelligent of his pupils. The term is also applicable to an animal that reveals sagacity or other qualities suggestive of intelligence as, an intelligent spaniel Cerebral implies a reference to brain (either as a physical organ or as mind or intellect) or brains It is often used in current English when the physical basis of the mental life is stressed or when the particular qualities implied by brains are to be suggested thus the cerebral awakening of a child is a phrase more suggestive of brain activity than mental awakening cerebral music implies the need of definite intellectual activity if the music is to be understood mephitic or mephitical Toxic, *poisonous, venomous virulent pestilent, pestilential, miasmatic

Ana *Offensive loathsome revolting repulsive repugnant fetid noisome putrid *malodorous noxious *pernicious baneful.

mercantile *Commercial.

mercenary, adj Mercenary, hireling, hack, hackney, venal are not close synonyms but they are comparable because when they are applied to persons their acts their services or products or the like they agree in meaning actuated or motivated chiefly by a desire for profit Mercenary stresses self interest (often self seeking) as the guiding motive it therefore usually (except when applied to soldiers who serve a foreign power for a wage) applies to persons services etc that should be prompted by altruism or by noble aims or should be characterized by unselfishness or self forgetfulness as, "the faithful service of the heart so rendered and so free from any mercenary taint" (Dickens) "She had nothing sordid or mercenary in fact she never thought of money (G Eliot) If a writer s attitude toward his characters and his scene is as vulgar as a showman s as mercenary as an auctioneer s vulgar and meretricious will his product for ever remain (Cather) Hireling suggests the attitude of one who serves for the wage involved or is guided by servile motives the term usually especially in its more common opprobrious use impl es a motive no higher than that of the reward prom ised or foreseen as the factious and hireling historians of all ages (Raleigh d 1618) some hireling senators implies previous failure as in a profession a low order of ability or of performance willingness to drudge and indifference to the nature of the work required as a hack writer a hack attorney the hack moralist of the pulpit or the press (J Morley) some starved hackny son neteer (Pope) the hackney libellers of the faction (R North) Venal implies purchasability The term often connotes the use of bribery and in the sense here con sidered it nearly always carries a strong implication of corruption or of corruptibility it is of all these terms the most opprobrious as venal politicians venal voters the venal sale of political offices a venal arrangement whereby certain contractors are favored bartering his venal wit for sums of gold (Dryden)

Ana Vendible purchasable abject *mean sordid ignoble *covetous greedy acquisitive grasping avaricious debased corrupt corrupted depraved (see under DEBASE)

merciful Clement *forbearing tolerant lenient indulgent

Ana Compassionate *tender benignant benign *kind kindly forgiving pardoning condoning (see EXCUSE v)

Ant Merciless — Con *Grim implacable relentless, unrelenting cruel fell inhuman *fierce mercifulness Clemency forbearance tolerance leniency indulgence See under FORBEARING

Ana *Mercy clemency len ty charity grace com passion comm seration *pity ruth

Con Severeness or severity sternness (see corresponding adjectives at SEVERE) rigorousness or rigor rigidity strictness stringency (see corresponding adjectives at RIGID) merciless Implacable relentless unrelenting *grim

Ana Pitiless ruthless compassionless (see affirmative nouns at PITY) wanton uncalled for gratuitous (see SUPEREROGATORY) cruel fell *fierce inexorable obdurate *inflex ble adamant adamantine

Ant Merciful — Con Clement *forbearing tolerant lenient indulgent mercurial *Inconstant fickle capricious unstable

Ana Volatile effervescent buoyant expansive *elastic resilient *changeable changeful variable protean mutable mobile, *movable *clever adroit cunning ingenious.

Ant Saturnine

mercy. Mercy, charity, grace, clemency lenity are here compared as meaning either the d sposition to show compassion or kindness in one s treatment of others especially of those who offend one and who are in one s power to punish or rebuke or an instance in wh ch this d sposition is manifested Mercy impl es compassion so then show likest God s When mercy seasons justice" (Shak) Which now of these three [the priest the Levite the Samaritan] was neighbour unto h m that fell among the thieves? And he said He that shewed mercy on him (Luke x 36 37) Charity fundamentally implies a disposition to love all men as brothers in more modern use it stresses benevolence and good w ll espe cially as it reveals itself not only in giving generously (for this sense see CHARITY 2) but in broad understand ing of others and in kindly tolerance as with mal ce toward none with charity for all (Lincoln) 'To know the literature of another language enlarges aesthetic charity (J R Lowell) It is far commoner at the Benson) Grace, as here compared impl es a benignant attitude toward those who are dependent on one and a d sposition to bestow favors or to make concess ons to them In its theological sense in reference to the sp r tu l assistance given men by God the word st ll lives in its general application it now tends to be somewhat minister justice or to punish offenses. Clemency is in its far greater emphasis on lack of severity effect we meant (Jefferson)

Ana Compassion ruth *pity commiseration merci fulness clemency forbearance tolerance leniency indulgence (see under FORBEARING)

Con Vengeance revenge retribution reprisal *retal a tion punishment chastening chastisement d sc pl ning or discipl ne correction castigation (see corresponding verbs at PUNISH) mere boy (i e in no sense an adolescent or ma began to rain—not a mere hill shower but a good tepid monsoonish downpour (Kipling) Is mere living without reference to any intrinsic values a thing of any worth? (Inge) There is scarcely any mere paint in the Sistine Madonna but there is plenty of paint (C E Montague) Bare is stronger and frequently suggests that the thing just escapes falling short of what it actually is as mere civility (that is civility and nothing more) bare civility (that is civility that just escapes being incivil ty) to be elected by a bare majority a bare subsistence wage (Shaw) meretricious *Gaudy tawdry garish flashy vulgar *coarse merge Blend fuse coalesce amalgamate commingle mingle *mix Ana Consolidate concentrate *compact unify *unite combine conjoin *integrate concatenate articulate merger *Consolidation amalgamation meridian Culmination, zenith apogee *summit, peak, pinnacle climax apex acme merit, n 1 *Due desert Ana Meed reward guerdon (see PREMIUM) *worth value earning(s) gaining(s) winning(s) (see corresponding verbs at GET) 2 *Excellence virtue perfection Ant Fault defect

and free She spends a happy time with little care (Shelley) Jocund (once poetical but now increasingly common in literary prose) heightens the implication of gladness and usually also connotes exhilaration of spirits or elation as, A poet could not but be gay In such a jocund company' (Wordsworth) He was in that jocund new married mood (M Austin) Jovial connotes especially good fellowship or conviviality Those jovial meetings of company where the warmth of a social temper is discovered with least reserve (Shenstone) Gunga Dass was a jovial full stomached portly government servant with a marvelous capacity for making bad puns (Kipling) Jolly often suggests higher spirits than jovial and an even more manifest attempt to keep others laughing as by jesting bantering playing tricks and the like Whiles the jolly Briton laughs [at the lovelorn Frenchman] from a free lungs" (Shak) Haste thee nymph and bring with thee Jest and youthful jollity Quips and cranks and wanton wiles (Milton) Ana Gay vivacious, *lively sprightly animated joyful joyous cheerful *glad happy lighthearted mirthful, gleeful hilarious (see corresponding nouns at MIRTH) merry andrew *Fool jester clown antic buffoon zany pantaloon harlequin comedian comic stooge mesa *Mountain mount peak alp volcano message Missive note *letter epistle dispatch report memorandum metachronism *Anachronism parachronism prochronism metamorphose *Transform transmute convert transmogrify transfigure Ana *Change vary alter modify develop *mature age ripen metamorphosis Transformation transm... conversion transmogrification transfigurat... under TRANSFORM Ana *Change mutation alternation, perm... vicissitude change variation alteration modification (see under CHANGE v) metaphor Simile *analogy metaphrase *Translation version paraphrase construe. meter or metre *Rhythm cadence method Method mode, manner, way, fashion system are here compared as denoting the means taken or the plan or procedure followed in doing a given kind of work or in achieving a given end Method may denote either an abstraction or a concrete procedure but in both cases it implies orderly logical and effective arrangement as of one's ideas for an exposition or an argument or of the orderly or logical arrangement rather it denotes an order or course pursued as the result of custom tradition personal preference or the like as "The duty of itself being resolved on, the mode of doing it may easily be found (Jer Taylor) an author's peculiar mode of expression the French mode of life The reasons given do not seem very plausible to our modes of thought (Binyon) Manner (see also BEARING) is often used in place of mode where the reference is to a personal or peculiar course or procedure or to a method whether pursued by a number of persons ...

... his personality has suggested to me an entirely new manner in art (Wilde) Way (see also WAY 1) may be used in place of any of the

Lewis) Sally used to answer Robert's letters sadly and patiently and with no reproaches—that was Sally's way (Deland) Fashion, as here compared differs from way not so much in denotation as in connotation derived in part from its commoner sense of style or vogue (see FASHION 2) The term therefore often often as easily apply to the scheme as to the actual way of doing something as The mind can scarcely conceive abstraction however meaning orderliness or plan in arrangement or procedure system is often preferred to method as, housekeeping without system he follows no system in his reading

Ana *Process procedure proceeding classification alphabetization (see corresponding verbs at ASSORT) disposition *disposal methodical, methodic. *Orderly systematic regular nouns at CONFUSION)

methodize Systematize organize *order arrange marshal

Ana Regulate *adjust *set settle fix establish meticulous *Careful scrupulous punctilious punctual

Ana Fastidious finical particular fussy pernickety *nice accurate exact precise *correct.

métier Business pursuit calling occupation employment *work.

Ana *Trade craft handcraft art profession *work labor toil travail *vocation avocation.

metonymy Metonymy, synecdoche designate two closely related figures of speech in which the name of one

(1) the use of the sign for the thing signified as in the pen (which is the instrument of a writer and the sign e, an article written or typed on paper) ng

n Archbishop primate *bishop age spirit resolution tenacity de backbone sand grit pluck guts *nerve hardihood temerity audacity gallantry valor *heroism

*Spirited high spirited spunky fiery eous bold audacious intrepid *brave passionate ardent fervent restive stless skittish miasmatical, miasmal, miasmic oxic venomous virulent pestilent pestilential mephitic

Ana Contagious *infectious catching noxious pernicious baneful deleterious.

microbe *Germ bacterium bacillus virus pathogen microscopic Minute *small little diminutive miniature petite wee tiny teeny weeny middle, n *Center midst core hub omphalos focus nucleus heart

*Medium mediocre second rate moderate ur indifferent

Manikin pygmy *dwarf homunculus runt

*Middle *center core hub omphalos focus nucleus heart mien Demeanor deportment *bearing manner carriage port presence front

Ana Air or airs *pose, affectation mannerism aspect. *appearance semblance look might, n Strength energy, *power force puissance arm

Ana *Forbearing tolerant clement merciful lenient indulgent delicate dainty exquisite *choice temperate *moderate *calm serene tranquil placid sh fierce

Environment setting *background mise backdrop

*Aggressive assertive self-assertive pushing

Ana Bellicose pugnacious contentious *belligerent combating opposing antagonizing or antagonistic (see corresponding verbs at OPPOSE) fighting warring g battling (see CONTEND) acific pacifist pacifistic peaceful, peaceable nt resigned compliant

*Martial warlike

*Actor player performer, mummer Thespian itor trouper

*Copy imitate ape mock.

y impersonate personate *act counterfeit simulate sham pretend *assume.

n 1 *Memory remembrance recollection iscence souvenir

nd intellect, soul psyche, brain, brains intelli wit wits are here compared as meaning that sum d stinct entity)

s on of hu

physical organism but it is also in other senses contrasted with heart as the seat of the feelings and with soul as the immortal spirit of man or with soul as equivalent to heart but in all cases despite a difference in stress on certain qualities, it denotes a complex of powers of which man is conscious and which includes the perceiving the remembering the thinking and less often the feeling and willing powers or functions. When all these powers are implied the opposition to body is clear (as a sound mind in a sound body to keep the body in strength and vigour so that it may be able to obey and execute the orders of the mind" —Locke) when the capacity for understanding and reasoning is stressed the contrast with heart or soul is implied (as The mind must have its share in deciding these important matters not merely the emotions and desires —R. Macaulay) when the exercise of the powers that operate through physical organs (such as the eye the ear the brain the nerves) is suggested a distinction from soul as spirit is often connoted (as, it is a man's own fault it is from want of use if his mind grows torpid in old age" —Johnson Insanity is often the logic of an accurate mind overtaxed —Holmes And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind and with all thy strength this is the first commandment —Mark xii 30) Mind also is usually the preferred term when the reference is to an individual's mental qualities as he has a very good mind The mind of Julius [Caesar] so far as we can read it was the mind of a dreamer joined to the temperament of a soldier (Buchan) Intellect and mind are often used interchangeably by many persons however in psychology and in philosophy intellect rather than mind has been the usual technical term for the knowing and thinking powers and functions (or the entity they suggest) In spite of numerous variations in definitions and a fundamental difference of opinion between schools of thought as to whether the power of intuition or the power to reason is the distinguishing property of intellect the term has in all but loose nontechnical use denoted that entity (or in many psychologies, that faculty of the mind or soul) by which a person attains knowledge, whether through comprehension of that which is taught or through processes of thought whereby the mind moves from that which was previously known to conclusions that represent new knowledge In many psychologies this faculty of the mind is distinguished from two other faculties —those of feeling and of will We can trace in the romanticism of nineteenth-century France this tendency toward a hypertrophy of sensation and an atrophy of ideas toward a correspondingly expanding sensorium and a diminishing intellect (Babbitt) The emotionalist steeps himself or herself in luxurious feeling and pathetic imagination which make no severe call upon either the will or the intellect (Inge) Soul as here compared (see also SOUL, 2) is still used in some psychologies (but not in those that reject not only the theory of faculties but also any other theory that presupposes the existence of an immaterial entity) as the inclusive term for the immaterial entity which is the seat of man's mental, emotional and volitional life and which therefore is the prime object of psychological study as, I thought of my inner existence that consciousness which is called the soul (Jefferies) The term is now seldom used strictly in this sense, being confused not only with the conceptions of soul as spirit and as heart but with several other ideas that are the result mainly of varying theologies and philosophies Some modern psychologists and some writers and speakers prefer psyche to soul as less susceptible to the addition of extraneous connotations some psychologists prefer psyche as a name for the life of the individual which comprehends not only all the powers and activities attributed by others to the entity called the soul but also the subconscious life as well the term however is not universally accepted by schools which deny the existence of the soul as an entity I would write psyche always instead of soul, to avoid meanings which have become attached to the word soul but it is awkward to do so (Jefferies) Brain or especially in colloquial use brains always suggests a reference to the brain as the physical seat of the life of the mind or intellect however either term is often preferred to intellect (sometimes to mind) as denoting the powers (usually clearly manifested powers) of comprehension and of independent (sometimes creative) thought as, a brain that quickly grasps abstruse ideas Have I ever even felt inclined to write anything, until my emotions had been unduly excited my brain immoderately stirred my senses unusually quickened or my spirit extravagantly roused?" (Galsworthy) "They could more than make up for the cost of complying with the very moderate requirements of the Acts by putting a little more brains into their work" (Shaw) It requires brains and education to follow the argument [of Aquinas that the existence of God is demonstrable] (Inge) Intelligence is distinguished from intellect with which it is often confused by being in general applied to a concrete or individual exhibition of the powers ascribed to the intellect rather than to an abstraction designated as intellect or mind as men are animals endowed with intellect (not intelligence) the intelligence (i e the extent to which a man is able to use his intellect) of individuals is now measured by psychologists he has grown rapidly in intelligence (not intellect) it had turned capable men into mere machines doing their work without intelligence (Shaw) In current use intelligence often applies specifically to an ability to deal with a new or trying situation competently to achieve one's ends in spite of difficulties or the like as, the situation demands the exercise of great intelligence He thinks the war could have been prevented with a little intelligence (R Macaulay) Wit (see also WIT 2) and wits are often merely homely or colloquial equivalents of mind as to lose one's wits he is dull in wit Usually however the term carries a stronger implication of an inborn power or of native capacity than mind which often suggests training and development it therefore may imply ability to use the senses quickly and readily strong common sense or intelligence that is the result of the active use of these as, the untutored natural wit of savages (Shaw) Doctor Stirling arrived in less than ten minutes Dick Povey had had the wit to look for him at the Federation meeting (Bennett) "Every one had to be a jack-of-all trades every one had to live by his wits (Van W Brooks)

Ana *Power function faculty *reason, intuition understanding wisdom judgment *sense gumption mind, v 1 *Remember, recollect, recall remind reminisce bethink.

2 *Tend attend, watch.

Con *Neglect, ignore disregard forget slight mingle *Mix, commingle blend merge coalesce amalgamate fuse.

Ana *Compose comprise consist of constitute *join combine unite connect consolidate *compact, unify concentrate.

miniature, adj Minute diminutive, *small little, wee tiny teeny weeny minimize Depreciate *decry belittle disparage derogate from detract from

Ant. Magnify — Con Aggrandize, *exalt· extol, eulogize, acclaim, laud, *praise minister. Envoy, *ambassador, legate, nuncio internuncio minnesinger. Troubadour, trouvère, scald jongleur, gleeman, scop, minstrel, bard, *poet versifier, rhymer, rhymester, poetaster minority. *Infancy, nonage Ant. Majority — Con *Age minstrel. Bard, scop, gleeman, jongleur, troubadour, trouvère, minnesinger, scald *poet, versifier, rhymer, rhymester, poetaster minute, n *Instant, moment, second, flash, trice, jiffy, twinkling twinkle, split second minute, adj 1 *Small, little, diminutive, miniature, wee tiny, teeny, weeny 2 *Circumstantial, particular, particularized, detailed itemized Ana Meticulous, scrupulous, *careful, punctilious precise, accurate, exact right, nice, *correct Con General, *universal *abstract, ideal comprehending or comprehensive, including or inclusive, embracing or embracive (see corresponding verbs at INCLUDE).

minx. *Wench, hussy, baggage miraculous. *Supernatural, supranatural, preternatural superhuman mirage. Hallucination, *delusion, illusion mirror, n *Model, example, pattern, exemplar paradigm, ideal, beau ideal standard mirth. Mirth, glee, jollity, hilarity come into comparison when they mean the mood or temper of a person or a group of persons manifesting joy or high spirits in laughter play, or the like Mirth often implies lightness of heart and a love of gaiety, it may, however imply great amusement or cause for laughter, as "Darcy was

(Thomson) Glee may be used in reference to a group who takes more or less malicious delight in another's misfortunes or predicaments as in great glee over his friend's embarrassment ghoulish glee Charles Critch low came to the funeral full of calm sardonic glee Though fabulously senile he had preserved and even improved his faculty for enjoying a catastrophe' (Bennett) Jollity in the sense here considered on the other hand usually implies mirth in a group especially a merrymaking group Distinctively however it connotes exuberance and lack of constraint and may imply revelry exhilaration of spirits as by wine pleasurable excitement, or the like "Wine gives not light, gay ideal hilarity but tumultuous, noisy, clamorous merriment' (Johnson) ' Through all the works of Chaucer there reigns a cheerfulness a manly hilarity" (Coleridge) Until around 1800 it carried none of the implications of boisterousness or vulgar excess of spirits it now so frequently stresses as, "coarse and vulgar hilarity' (Thackeray), the hilarity of a New Year's Eve celebration Ana Cheerfulness or cheer, lightheartedness joyfulness, gladness, happiness (see corresponding adjectives at GLAD) joy, *pleasure, delight· merriment, blitheness, jocundity, joviality (see corresponding adjectives at MERRY) Con. *Sadness, depression, dejection melancholy blues, dumps, vapors *tedium, boredom ennui misanthropic, misanthropical. Pessimistic, misogynic, *cynical Ant. Philanthropic. — Con. Benevolent, humane humanitarian, *charitable, altruistic.

miscarriage. *Abortion.

miscellaneous. Miscellaneous, assorted, heterogene-

ASSORT) and the derivative noun assortment, also imply a mixture, but not a haphazard one, they carry the implications of a selection including every available kind or variety or involving consideration of every taste or every need, as a box of assorted candies a basket of assorted fruits, a skein of assorted wools, a carefully assorted group, a case containing an assortment of tools Heterogeneous is applicable chiefly to masses, groups and the like, the individuals or the elements of which are necessarily in proximity or close relationship to each other, it suggests not only variety or diversity in the individuals or the elements but also absence of uniformity or unity and little (if any) evidence of fusion, as the task of transforming a heterogeneous selection of mankind into a homogeneous nation (B Russell) the family is heterogeneous enough to make quite a good party in itself (R. Macaulay), the heterogeneous structure of granite Motley, literally varicolored in the extended sense here considered adds to heterogeneous the suggestion of discordance in the individuals or elements or their striking contrast to each other, as a motley crew, a motley gathering from all sections of the city 'One would enquire from whence this motley style Did first our Roman purity defile' (Dryden) 'How motley are the qualities that go to make up a human being' (Maugham) Promiscuous may suggest haphazardness or the appearance of it, but it usually implies selection that is ... that results in point of view of the speaker or writer For this reason promiscuous is applicable to acts, emotions and the like that affect or include in their scope a number of persons or things in such use it stresses not only lack of discrimination but lack of restriction within bounds set by prudence good sense sound morals, or the l ke thus, ex sexual intercou

Ana Various ... disparate *different multifarious mu itold *man fold divers sundry *many

Con *Similar alike, like identical homogeneous, uniform mischance *Misfortune, adversity

Ana *Accident, casualty mishap *disaster, calamity catastrophe cataclysm mischief. *Injury hurt damage harm

Ana. Perniciousness detrimentalness or detriment deleteriousness, noxiousness, banefulness or bane (see correspond ng adjectives at PERNICIOUS) *evil ill bale impairment marring spoil ng (see corresponding verbs at INJURE) mischievous Wanton roguish wagg sh imp sh *playful frolicsome sportive

Ana Annoy ng bothering or bothersome vexing or vexatious irking or irksome (see corresponding verbs at ANNOY) naughty *bad evil ill wicked tricky foxy artful *sly mise *Contract, bargain compact pact treaty entente convention cartel covenant concordat indenture.

mise en scène *Background setting environment mil eu backdrop miserable, adj Miserable, wretched come into comparison because both adjectives are used to describe anything that is deplorably or contemptibly bad or mean such as a person s state of health or of mind a state of affa rs a human being with reference to ... cond tion or character or an ... of its kind or miserable ... acute distress o any novelist to ... as ever miserable crazed aspect shattered and made drunk by horror —Dickens) A thing is miserable when it is exceedingly mean or paltry and provocative only of misery in the person affected or of extreme contempt in the observer as a miserable cold a miserable dinner a miserable pun (Meredith) the squalor of mean and miserable streets (Binyon) A person is wretched who is extremely unhappy or abjectly despondent because of want grief oppression, affl ction anxiety or the like a thing that pertains closely to the happiness of a perso if it produces such dejection or mental suff cruel death! To those you are more kind wretched mortals left behind (Waller) unhappy lot to be made more wretched by the only miserly. Penurious curmudgeonly parsimonious, niggardly, tight tightfisted *stingy close closefisted cheeseparing penny pinching

Ant Comfortable

Ana Avaricious, greedy *covetous, grasping *mean sordid abject ignoble Con Bountiful munificent *liberal generous benevolent *charitable altruistic misery. *Distress suffering agony dolor passion

Ana Adversity *misfortune affl ction vis tation *trial tribulation melancholy dejection *sadness, depression.

Ant Felicity blessedness — Con *Happiness beatitude bliss comfort ease repose (see REST) misfortune Misfortune, mischance, adversity agree in denoting bad luck or adverse fortune They are not always synonymous in their specific denotations how mischance only may designate the incident or the conjunction of events that is the cause of a change in fortune but only misfortune and adversity may be used to denote

I am bo ... with C ... mischa ... adversity son)

Ana *Disaster calam ty catastrophe cataclysm ... ibulation cross

Fel city bliss comfort, ease *apprehension. DISTRUST ...) suspicion doubt, skepticism *uncertainty *fear alarm dread fright mishap *Accident casualty

Ana *Misfortune mischance *disaster calamity *deceive betray double-

Ana Entice inveigle *lure tempt seduce *dupe gull ... ax bamboozle

Misleading deceptive delusive, delusory ... ding having an appearance or character that ... ray or into error Misleading is the general ... ble to anyth ng which, intentionally or otherwise leads one a vay from the right course or direct on as in action conduct or the apprehens on of truth and therefore into confusion or error, as, a

Deceptive applies chiefly but not exclusively to things that by their aspect or appearance give a false impression the term may or may not imply the intention to deceive as deceptive solemnity deceptive words a deceptive show of wealth or power Delusive and the less common delusory carry a stronger implication than deceptive carries of mocking or cheating as well as m s-leading as delusive hopes delusory promises it is important for this Court [the Supreme Court of the United States] to avoid extracting from the very general language of the Fourteenth Amendment a system of delusive exactness (Justice Holmes)

Ana Fallacious casuistical, sophistical (see under FALLACY) *false wrong confounding bewildering d stracting perplexing puzzling (see PUZZLE v)

misogynic, misogynical, misogynous Misanthropic pessimistic *cynical

Con Benevolent *charitable altruistic misplace Misplace mislay agree in meaning to put in the wrong place Misplace may imply a putting of a not be (as my confidence in him was misplaced she is suffering from misplaced affections) The globe and sceptre in such hands misplaced (Cowper) Mislay usually implies a misplacing (in the first sense) but stresses a forgetfulness of the place in which the thing has been put it therefore often means to lose through misplacing as to mislay a book or an umbrella

Ana Displace (see REPLACE) derange disarrange *disorder misrepresent Misrepresent belie agree in meaning to represent in a manner that is contrary to truth Misrepresent, however commonly implies intent and therefore takes a person or his utterance as its subject when used in the active vo ce it often carries a suggestion of de liberate fals fication or injustice but it may suggest bias or prejudice as to misrepresent a statement or the value of an article the account misrepresents not only look a manner or the like as his brusque manner belied his real kindness of heart You are an Englishman unless your phys ognomy belies you (Kingsley)

Ana *Disguise dissemble cloak mask simulate counterfeit feign *assume misrepresentation *Lie falsehood untruth fib story

Ana Dishonesty deceitfulness mendaciousness or mendacity (see corresponding adjectives at DISHONEST) sophistication doctoring deaconing loading weighting adulteration (see correspond ng verbs at ADULTERATE) sophistry casu stry (see FALLACY) missionary, n Missionary apostle evangelist revivalist, as here compared denote a person whose work it is to make converts especially to Christianity Missionary and apostle both etymologically imply a being sent and are used to designate one who comes from outside usually in response to a commission but somet mes in answer to a call Missionary in its more common application denotes either a man or woman clerical or lay who is extended use apostle often denotes a m ssionary to the heathen who is the first to bring Christianity into a country or to a people, as John Eliot Apostle of the Indians St Augustine Apostle of the English Apostle also is used of a person who initiates a great reform o preaches a new doctrine often one of a polit cal or intellectual as well as of a moral character as Richard Cobden has been called the Apostle of Free Trade We inevitably think of Rousseau as the great apostle of the original and the spontaneous" (Babbitt) Missionary in a frequent but less widespread use is applied to an ordained preacher who comes from without a parish to stir up religious fervor among the parishioners and to convert backsliders or the unregenerate In some churches a preacher whose aims are s m lar is called an evangelist, but the latter term often suggests in distinction from missionary autonomous act on or lack of a commission from a superior authority and action as independent of any one church congregation, or denomination John Wesley the humanist enjoyed preaching in such a pleasant place to such pleasant people while John Wesley the Evangelist was performing a stern moral duty (S M Crothers) Revivalist stresses the aim of reviving faith and often connotes sensational methods of exciting religious fervor, otherwise its implications are s milar to those of evangelist as, Billy Sunday was an outstanding American revivalist missive *Letter epistle note message, dispatch report memorandum mist, n *Haze fog smog brume the rest of us to mistake gush for vigour (Day Lewis) One confuses one thing with another when one fails to d stinguish two things that have similar ties or common characteristics or to observe their lines of demarcation as Very possibly some of the cases confuse the principles that govern jurisd ction with those that govern merits (Justice Holmes) far too intellectually keen to confuse moral problems with purely aesthet c problems" (H Ellis) One confounds things or one thing with words for this reason it is often preferred when the differences are more or less obvious to a clearheaded or intell gent person Sir Austin expostulated contradicted himself confounded his principles made nonsense of all his theories (Meredith) Courage must not be confounded with brutality Brutality is pleasure in forcing one s will upon other people courage is indifference to personal misfortunes (B Russell) The temptation to confound accumulated knowledge and experience with intrins c progress is almost irresistible (Inge) muddle bemuddle *confuse

mize

*Error slip lapse blunder faux pas, bull er bloomer floater Ana Confus on confounding mistaking (see corresponding verbs at MISTAKE) inadvertence (see corresponding adjective at CARELESS) neglecting or neglect omitting or omission disregarding slighting or slight (see corresponding verbs at NEGLECT) mistreat Maltreat ill-treat misuse *abuse outrage Ana See those at ILL-TREAT

mistrust n 1 Suspicion skepticism doubt, *uncertainty dubiety dubiosity Ana Misgiving presentiment foreboding *apprehension Ant Trust assurance — Con Confidence faith reliance dependence (see TRUST) *certainty certitude conviction 2 Distrust (see under DISTRUST v) mistrust, v *Distrust Ana Apprehend anticipate *foresee alarm *frighten scare appall *dismay Con *Rely trust depend confide entrust relegate *commit.

misuse, v *Abuse mistreat maltreat ill-treat outrage Ana Hurt *injure harm damage impair mar spoil pervert *debase corrupt Ant Respect — Con Esteem regard (see under REGARD n) cherish treasure prize *appreciate mite *Bit particle smitch smidgen whit atom iota jot tittle.

mitigate Allay *relieve alleviate lighten, assuage Ana Temper attemper *moderate abate reduce lessen diminish *decrease *palliate extenuate Ant Intensify — Con Aggravate heighten enhance (see INTENSIFY) *increase augment.

mix Mix mingle commingle blend, merge coalesce amalgamate, fuse are synonymous terms when they are used of two or more things and denote to combine or become combined with resulting diffusion or interpenetration of particles parts elements or the like Mix the most comprehensive of these terms may or may not imply loss of identities but even when the elements are distinguishable it suggests a homogeneous character in the product as, to mix salt and pepper or wine and water to mix colors in painting to mix the ingredients of a cake oil and water do not mix So far as they differ mingle rather than mix implies that the constituent elements are distinguished in the product as mingled sensations the evil strangely mingled with the good (Babbitt) Mingling as no other school of dramatists has done the oratorical the conversational the elaborate and the simple (T S Eliot) Commingle suggests a more intimate and often a harmonious union Commingled with the gloom of imminent war The shadow of His loss drew like eclipse Darkening the world (Tennyson) Blend originally was the equivalent of mix or mingle A Tale that blends their glory with their shame (Pope) In current use it implies a mixing of harmonious or compatible things a union so intimate as to obscure the individuality of the component parts and a sharing of their qualities by the resultant product as, blended teas What delicious blending of thought and diction! (T E Brown) Offshore where sea and skyline blend In rain (Kipling) Merge still more distinctly implies the loss in the whole of the constituent elements, or the complete absorption of one element in another as to merge the private in the general good

Archer often wondered how after forty years of the closest conjugality two such merged identities ever separated themselves enough for anything as controversial as a talking-over (E Wharton) Coalesce suggests a natural affinity for each other in the things merging and a resulting organic unity All these descriptive details do not coalesce for us into the distinct image of a living woman (Babbitt) It is only gradually [for the infant learning how to perceive] through the formation of habits by association, that touch and sight and smell and hearing coalesce in the notion of an object (B Russell) Amalgamate in very careful use implies a tendency to merge or draw together largely as a result of contact or association it therefore suggests an effective or harmonious union rather than a complete merger with loss of identity The Indian race , formed no part of the colonial communities and never amalgamated with them (Ch Just Toney) [Rome's] policy of conciliating and amalgamating conquered nations (A Repplier) Fuse stresses even more than blend and merge the loss of identity of each of the component elements and more than coalesce the indissolubility of their union In very precise use it implies a powerful cause which operates like heat melting and bringing into one mass disparate substances. The Scotch nation nobles and commons ministers and people wonder fully fused together by fiery enthusiasm (G Smith)

Truth at white heat—the truth of terror and mystery and baleful beauty fused into one flaming impression (Lowes)

Ana. *Join, combine unite Con. *Separate part divide, sever sunder mixture Mixture, admixture, blend, compound, composite, amalgam agree in denoting a product formed by the combination of two or more things Mixture is the most inclusive and most widely applicable term it has however many specific applications thus, a fabric made by interweaving yarns of different colors is a mixture a tobacco in which several varieties are combined to give a particular flavor or quality is a smoking mixture The word often implies miscellaneousness as, society' in a small town is very much of a mixture Admixture adds to mixture the suggestion of the alien character of one or more of the constituent elements as a racial stock that is an admixture prosaic verse is an offensive admixture to lovers of pure poetry Blend, on the contrary adds to mixture the implication of thorough mingling of (usually but not invariably) similar or congruous elements or ingredients Like admixture it implies that the product is not pure or simple but unlike it it usually suggests harmony or complete integration A curious blend of humility and irony (T S Eliot) ' Unorthodox was the blend of executive responsibility legislative power and financial control (Buchan) Blend is used in commerce as a name for mixed whiskies wines teas, coffees etc to indicate that a new product has been formed that combines the flavors or the like of several varieties of the same thing and that the products contain no other substance than whisky wine etc. Compound usually implies the union of two or more distinguishable or analyzable parts elements or ingredients It was not fear it was not ardour —it was a compound of both (Scott) Rare compound of oddity frolic and fun (Goldsmith) In its technical senses compound is definitely restricted in application In chemistry a compound is a distinct substance formed by a union of two or more elements united in definite proportions by weight and with the same internal arrangement thus water is a compound of oxygen and hydrogen As applied to words a compound is a word or its equivalent which is formed of distinct parts but has a distinct sense often not inferable from the meanings of its component parts A compound may be written solid (as, blackboard) or hyphenated (as long-distance) or be composed of separate words (as all right) Composite is often interchangeable with compound in the general sense of the latter, but there is a tendency to prefer the former when the constituent parts are artificially or fortuitously combined thus the American people is a composite of many races the English language is a composite of Anglo-Saxon Norman French and Celtic and other languages An amalgam is literally a mixture made by adding mercury to a metal

(T S Eliot)

Ana Joining combining uniting (see JOIN) moan, v Groan *sigh sob

Ana Mourn *grieve sorrow bemoan bewail lament *deplore moan, n Groan sigh sob See under SIGH v

Ana Crying or cry wailing or wail (see corresponding verbs at CRY) lamenting or lament bemoaning bewailing (see corresponding verbs at DEPLORE) mob, n *Crowd throng press crush rout horde.

Ana *Multitude army host legion mobile *Movable motile motive Ana Fluid *liquid *changeable changeful protean variable *inconstant unstable mercurial fickle capricious mock, v 1 Taunt deride *ridicule twit rally

Ant Immobile

Ana Flout *scoff jeer gird gibe *caricature parody travesty burlesque

2 *Copy imitate mimic ape

Ana Counterfeit feign affect simulate *assume mode, n [1] 1 *State condition, situation, posture status estate

2 *Method manner way fashion system

Ana Trend drift *tendency tenor current procedure *process mode, n [2] *Fashion style vogue fad rage craze dernier cri, cry model, n Model example, pattern, exemplar, paradigm ideal beau ideal (or beau idéal), standard, mirror come into comparison when they denote something set or held before one for guidance or imitation in one s conduct or endeavor Model applies to any person or thing set before one for imitation by oneself or another the term may suggest nothing more as art students painting however the term applies to a person or thing that is eminently (sometimes, pre-eminently) worthy of imitation as, there is no poet in any tongue who stands so firmly [as Dante] as a model for all poets (T S person or the act or the conduct for some good reason (such as the person s being in a position of authority or his conduct being in the limelight or his act being widely known) is one that is likely to be imitated behavior a teacher s conduct should never give a bad example to his pupils. Sometimes, however example applies to that which is not to be imitated but which serves rather as a warning as to make an example of an offender (i e by punishing him conspicuously) "Let it profit thee to have heard By terrible example the reward Of disobedience (Milton) Example is also used in a highly abstract sense in antithesis to precept then implying the setting of an example usually but not necessarily a good example, as, children learn more quickly by example than by precept, the mistake of thinking that all can be done by precept when example is no less potent a force (A C Benson) Pattern in its earliest and to an extent still current English senses applies either to the divine archetype (see PROTOTYPE) of a thing or to a carefully worked-out design or plan (such as an architect s drawing) to be use now are made by machinery and are copies of an original pattern (Jevons) In the sense in which the word is here considered (see also FIGURE 2) pattern now usually applies to that which is actually worthy of imitation or is accepted as such it often differs from model in suggesting a more clearly worked out design or a fuller presentation of details or in connoting fixity or compelling power, as A housewife in bed at table a slattern For all an example for no one a pattern (Swift) Somewhere there must have been men and women working out our situation successfully but to pattern than to example because it usually applies to that which is set before one as worthy of imitation and is therefore inherently good as Christ is the (Latimer) technical term in grammar paradigm designates an example of a conjugation or declension showing a word inflection each group phrase now naturalized in English correctly meaning "ideal beauty but often incorrectly translated as the beautiful or perfect ideal is interchanged with ideal in this particular sense as the beau ideal of young English manhood (M E Braddon) Frequently however, ideal is almost indistinguishable from standard when it applies not to a person or object that serves as a pattern or exemplar but to anything such as a rule a practice, an aim an established level of excellence or the like, by which one seeks to maintain a high quality in a product or of performance as 'The ideal of general cultivation has been one of the standards in education (C W Eliot) [Accuracy] is still a noble and inspiring ideal It is the morality of the intellect it prescribes what it ought to strive for (P B Ballard) Each generation has its own ideals and its own standards of judgment (S M Crothers) But standard is interchangeable with ideal only when it applies to that which is the test of perfection or of human perfection (for other sense see STANDARD 2) as the very art incommensurable with any standard except that of pure beauty—I refer of course to the art of music (G L Dickinson) With the spread of impressionistic literature has lost standards and discipline and at the same time virility and seriousness' (Babbitt) Mirror, now archaic in this sense was once used frequently in literary or complimentary speech for a person (rarely a thing) upon which others could look as a model or pattern of perfection the term sometimes implying a reflection of celestial perfections as call him bounteous Buckingham The mirror of all courtesy (Shak) Mirror of grace and Majesty divine" (Spenser)

Ana Archetype, *prototype criterion, touchstone gauge *standard moderate, adj 1 Moderate temperate are often used interchangeably to denote not excessive in degree amount, or the like as a moderate allowance temperate heat. When contrasted moderate often connotes absence or avoidance of excess (opposed to excessive immoderate) and temperate, deliberate restraint or restriction (opposed to intemperate inordinate) thus a moderate drinker suggests free but far from excessive indulgence in intoxicants and a temperate drinker suggests restrained and cautious indulgence moderate enthusiasm suggests lukewarmness, temperate enthusiasm suggests keeping a hold over one's exhibition of feeling one's anger may be far from moderate yet one's reply may be temperate In precise especially technical language moderate and temperate often denote midway between extremes or designate a point as in a scale characterized neither by excess nor by deficiency of something under stood As a rule when so used they are not interchangeable for custom or terminology has determined the selection as moderate temperature a moderate breeze a temperate climate a temperate zone In this sense both moderate and temperate have two antonyms one on the side of deficiency and the other on the side of excess These antonyms are usually specific and vary according to the application as, for example light and strong (of breezes) arctic and torrid (of climate), abstemious and gluttonous (of eating) mild and violent (of something having force and intensity)

Ana Ordinary *common familiar gentle, mild bland *soft *sparing economical

Ant Immoderate — Con *Excessive extreme inordinate

2 *Medium, middling mediocre second rate average fair, indifferent

Ana. Decent, *decorous proper *steady even equable constant.

moderate, v Moderate, qualify, temper, attemper come into comparison when they mean to modify something so as to avoid an extreme or to keep within due bounds. Moderate stresses reduction of that which is excessive but it does not necessarily imply finding the happy mean as the sun at midday moderates the cold you must moderate your demands if you wish to be listened to Moderate your language old man, I said remember that you are addressing a superior (Hudson) Qualify, in most discriminating use emphasizes restriction or more precise definition that brings a thing closer to the truth or facts, or that makes it less general inclusive or sweeping or that gives it a clearly defined quality or character of its own as the teacher qualified his praise of the theme by the added comment you can do better, our admiration of his genius is qualified by our disapproval of his character It is time to qualify the over simple account I have given of the artist's process of creation (S Alexander) Temper strongly implies accommodation to the needs or requirements of the person the situation the time and the like it may or may not suggest moderation or qualification but it usually implies the addition of a counterbalancing or mitigating thing as God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb (Sterne) to temper justice with mercy Fierce for the right he bore his part In strife with many a valiant foe But Laughter winged his polished dart And kindness tempered every blow (W Winter) Attemper is a very close synonym of temper It is however increasingly rarer in current use and it seldom so strongly implies accommodation or adaptation as does temper It commonly suggests a softening or mitigating rather than a counterbalancing of that which is harsh strong or the like The shadow of the willow tree attempered the cheery western sunshine (N Hawthorne)

Ana Abate reduce lessen diminish *decrease mitigate, alleviate lighten, *relieve slow slacken (see DELAY)

Con *Intensify aggravate heighten, enhance augment, *increase modern Modernistic *new novel new fashioned newfangled neoteric original fresh Ana *Contemporary contemporaneous coincident concomitant concurrent *prevailing current prevalent

Ant Antique ancient modernistic. *New new fashioned newfangled neoteric novel modern, original fresh

Ant Antiquated

modest 1 *Humble meek lowly

Ana Retiring withdrawing (see GO) *moderate temperate

Ant Ambitious. — Con *Showy pretentious ostentatious, pompous arrogant haughty *proud overbearing *shameless brazen, barefaced impudent

2 *Shy bashful diffident coy

Ana Reserved reticent *silent shrinking recoiling (see RECOIL) demure, nice seemly proper (see DECOROUS)

3 Decent *chaste pure

Ana. *Moral virtuous *decorous, proper seemly, decent.

Ant Immodest. — Con Indecent indelicate *indecorous unseemly improper modification 1 Change alteration variation. See under CHANGE v

Ana Transformation metamorphosis conversion transmogrification (see under TRANSFORM) qualification tempering (see corresponding verbs at MODERATE)

2 *Variation adaptation mutation modify. *Change, alter, vary Ana. Temper, attemper, *moderate, qualify: *transform, convert, metamorphose, transmogrify. modish. *Stylish, fashionable, smart, chic, dapper, dashing, spruce, natty, nifty, nobby, posh, toffish, brave braw Ant. Antiquated.

Mohock. Gangster, apache, *ruffian, thug, desperado. moist. *Wet, damp, humid dank Con. *Dry, arid molecule. Atom, *particle, corpuscle molest. Trouble, discommode incommode, *inconvenience Ana Disturb, *discompose disquiet perturb interfere, *meddle, intermeddle, tamper *intrude, obtrude, butt in· vex, *annoy, irk, bother mollify. Appease, placate *pacify, propitiate, conciliate Ana. *Relieve, allay, mitigate lighten· *moderate, temper, qualify abate, lessen, reduce, *decrease.
Ant. Exasperate mollycoddle, v Humor, pamper, *indulge, spoil, baby molt. *Discard, cast shed exuviate slough, scrap junk

Ana Value, *worth advantage, profit, avail *use momentary. *Transient, transitory, passing, ephemeral fugitive, fleeting, evanescent short lived Ant. Agelong

coenobitic, coenobitical) agree in meaning of, relating to or characteristic of monks monasteries or by extension any cloistered religious order Monastic is the preferred term by all writers and speakers who have no intent to therefore by many writers and speakers with derogatory intent, still retains such suggestions even when the writer or speaker is unaware of its connotations the metal or their equivalents issued usually by a government, or by an authority recognized by the government, to serve as a medium of exchange in the country or

" The first panacea for a mismanaged nation is inflation of the currency" (Hemingway) Legal tender applies specifically to the tender to any amount unless the contrary is stipulated in the contract, subsidiary silver coins for sums not over $10, minor (nickel or bronze) coins, for not over 25c In Great Britain, treasury notes are legal tender to any amount, silver coins are legal tender for not over 40s, the farthing for not over 6d , and other bronze coins for not over one shilling Specie, coin (only in a collective sense), and coinage apply only to minted or coined money, they therefore imply an opposition to all forms monk. *Religious, friar, nun.

Ana. *Recluse, hermit, eremite, anchorite, cenobite , *cleric, clergyman, abbé *Prank, caper, antic, dido istic, monachal, cenobitic, cenobitical nopolize, engross, absorb, consume eneral term, means to possess or con is, to monopolize the year's crop of ften predicated of persons as conscious often of things that have an inherent capacity

s as in the participles as, an engrossing

* indicates place of treatment of each group.

suit, he is engrossed in writing a book sitting in absorbed reflection an absorbing interest or book, a consuming passion.

Ana Possess own *have hold utilize, *use, employ control manage (see CONDUCT v)

monopoly Monopoly corner, pool syndicate, trust, cartel are not strictly speaking synonymous terms but they are often confused Monopoly denotes the exclusive control of any service (such as telephone or telegraph service) or traffic (such as transportation of goods and passengers by railroad) or of any commodity (such as wheat or petroleum) in a given market. Monopoly may imply exclusive control created by the state as when a franchise is granted an invention is patented or a book is copyrighted More frequently however the term is used to imply the exclusive power to buy or sell a given commodity or service in a given market now especially when such control has been gained by the purchase of the sources of supply (such as mines) or of the whole or of the major portion of the stock of a given commodity "In the reign of Edward III [German traders] had a practical monopoly of the carrying trade (M Pattison) Only by extension is monopoly used to denote the group or organization having such control It might be that when a combination reached a certain size it might have attributed to it more of the character of a monopoly merely by virtue of its size than would be attributed to a smaller one (Justice Holmes) A purely temporal or local monopoly of a given commodity or of a given kind of property (such as the shares of a corporation) as on the stock or produce exchange on a selling day constitutes a corner, so called because it puts all those who are determined to buy into a corner or position where they must pay the price asked as the young and daring financier maintained his corner on wheat for three days Pool is applicable strictly to a combination of property or of interests of different persons or companies by means of which a more or less permanent control or monopoly is acquired Distinctively however pool implies a joint undertaking or end which cannot be attained unless the market is managed either by manipulating the prices for a given commodity security or the like or by destroying the effects of competition, as through agreements concerning prices or rates regulation of outputs division of earnings and the like of each organization concerned In common law and especially in the United States pools are held to be illegal as in restraint of trade A group of financiers organized to profit by a monopoly was once especially in or of European countries, called a syndicate, but at present the word is used of a group of individuals firms or corporations often banking houses which organize for a limited time to accomplish a given purpose frequently to market an issue of bonds for some railroad steel company or public utility which make their profit from the difference between the agreed upon sum which they advance to the issuing corporation for the bonds and the fixed sale price at which they market them which assume responsibility for absorbing themselves any surplus bonds not marketed and which dissolve as a group when the marketing period is completed Outside of the field of finance the use of the term is constantly being extended in its application to any combination as of newspapers business concerns and the like interested in a common project or enterprise and now with decreasing frequency implying relation to a monopoly as his daily column appeared in a syndicate of over one hundred newspapers Trust became prominent in the financial field when clever lawyers adapted the well-known trust provisions so common in wills and testaments to a scheme for inducing stockholders in merged corporations to surrender their rights to "trustees" who would operate the corporations, and to accept in return for their ownership stock certificates trust certificates. Several of the larger business interests adopted this method of organization (the Standard Oil Trust and the Tobacco Trust for example) Since the trust form of organization was defeated by U S Supreme Court decision the word has been less common in financial use Both pools and trusts are known in Germany as cartels the term has some American and British use and is widened in its application to be used of any large combined business unit.

monstrous 1 Monstrous, prodigious, tremendous, stupendous, monumental are more or less hyperbolical adjectives especially in their extended senses in which they mean astonishingly impressive Monstrous commonly applies to that which is abnormal usually in actual or relative size but often also in shape or character the term frequently carries suggestions of deformity extreme ugliness, fabulousness or the like as the imagination turbid with monstrous fancies and misshapen dreams (Wilde) such monstrous feet they had that he declined to try on the Glass Slipper (Meredith) my father upon whose middle age it [the railway] came as a monstrous iron innovation" (Shaw) "some monstrous bulk of rumpled rock (C E Montague) Prodigious usually implies a marvelousness that exceeds belief it sometimes applies to that which is entirely out of proportion to that which is the previous or usual best greatest, largest, or the like as the prodigious demand for steel in the World War a prodigious best seller" (A Huxley) Men have always reverenced prodigious inborn gifts and always will (C W Eliot) a mind with such prodigious capacity of development as Shakespeare's (T S Eliot) Tremendous (etymologically that causes trembling or fear) in very discriminating use comes closer to awe-inspiring terrifying in its immensity and the like than to gigantic or enormous its common denotations in loose use as A tremendous roar arose from the throat of [the mob in the Faubourg] Saint Antoine (Dickens). How shall we compare the cramped and limited vision of the universe which spread itself to the imagination of mankind in old time with the tremendous vistas opened out to us by modern science (Inge) the spell and tremendous incantation of the Thought of Death (L P Smith) Stupendous in discriminating use implies the power to stun or astound it is therefore most precisely used when it is applied to that which because of its size its numbers its complexity or its greatness, exceeds one's power to describe or explain, as. All [things] are but parts of one stupendous whole, Whose body Nature is, and God the soul (Pope) a stupendous catastrophe that occurred in the constellation Hercules 1300 years ago (W Kaempffert) Monumental in its extended sense (see also MASSIVE) applies to that which is as conspicuously impressive or as massively framed or constructed as a monument (such as a great cathedral or an impressive memorial), as. a monumental literary work a monumental lie "The monumental pomp of age Was with this goodly personage A stature undepressed in size Unbent which rather seemed to rise In open victory o'er the weight Of seventy years to loftier height (Wordsworth)

Ana *Enormous immense huge vast, colossal, mammoth gigantic

2 *Outrageous heinous atrocious

Ana *Flagrant glaring gross rank *ominous portentous fateful flagitious, nefarious infamous (see VICIOUS) monument. *Document muniment record archive monumental. 1 *Monstrous prodigious tremendous stupendous

Ana Colossal gigantic *enormous mammoth impressive *moving

2 *Massive massy bulky substantial

Ana Imposing stately majestic august magnificent *grand mood Mood, humor (or humour), temper vein are here compared as meaning a temporary state or frame of mind in which one emotion or desire or one set of emotions gains the ascendancy Mood (etymologically mind or feeling) is now the comprehensive term for any such frame of mind regardless of its particular cause its particular character its effect on others or its length of existence. Mood carries a stronger implication of pervasiveness and of compelling power than the other terms also it may refer not only to the frame of mind (as to feel in a mood to work a sullen mood changing moods) but to its expression in a literary or artistic work (as the language the stresses the very structure of the sentences are imposed upon the writer by the special mood of the piece —Cather) or to that which is seen heard or the l ke in such a way as to evoke a mood or to harmonize with one s mood (as, Only in summer days of highest feather d d its [the heath s] mood touch the level of gaiety —Hardy Our painters are prone to acquiesce in the colours of nature as they find them rather than to use colours expressive of the mood evoked in themselves —Binyon) Humor as here compared (see also WIT 2) applies chiefly to a mood which is the result of one s peculiar temperament or of one s physical or mental condition at the moment it is usually preferred to mood when the idea of capriciousness or of whimsi

Temper, as here compared (see also DISPOSITION 2) applies to a mood dominated by a single strong emotion often specifically that of great anger, as He is in a temper! I never knew him So out of patience with them (Millay) When qualified by an adjective indicating the controlling emotion, temper may apply to any humor that manifests itself in a display of feeling as that meekness has done me more harm than t e bitterest temper (Hardy) she was evidently now in a gay frolicsome temper (Hudson) Vein (see also TOUCH) is often used in the sense of mood or especially of humor but with a stronger implication of transitoriness than mood (as When the peacock vein rises I strut a Gentleman Commoner —Lamb) and a weaker implication than humor of a temperamental or physical cause (as The merry vein you knew me in is sunk into a turn of reflection —Pope)

Ana *D sposition temper temperament character personality individuality *soul spirit emotion *feel ng affection.

moor, v 1 *Secure anchor rivet

Ana *Tie bind attach *fasten affix fix balance steady *stabilize trim

2 *Anchor

moral, adj Moral ethical virtuous, righteous noble are synonyms only when they mean conforming to a standard of what is right and good moral and ethical also come into comparison as meaning of or relating to the science or theory of right conduct Moral is by far the most comprehensive term of the group In all of its here pertinent senses it implies a relationship to character or conduct viewed as good or bad or as right or wrong Sometimes moral implies relationship to or concern with character or conduct as distinguished from intellectual nature physical nature or the like as moral goodness as distinguished from intellectual goodness or spiritual goodness moral value as d st ngu shed from economic value aesthetic value and the l ke The whole tendency of modern thought is to extenuate the responsibility of human nature not merely on the moral side but equally on the spiritual side (C Macken ie) Moral also applies to things such as literary works works of art philosophies or to writers, artists ph losophers etc., concerned with the determ conduct) or in some use of conforming to the mores or connotations thus ethical principles may accord ng to an assent to ethical principles or an attention to the niceties of ethics or to the ideal ends suggested by a system or code of ethics Meanwhile we hear the ethical instinct of mankind asserting itself with splendid courage and patience (H Van Dyke) I have always thought it most regrettable that serious and eth cal thinkers should go scuttl ng through space in th s und gnified manner (L P Sm th) Virtuous impl es the possession or manifestation of moral excellence in character In its most general sense it impl es rectitude justice, integrity and all other virtues (especially those which are described as the Christian [or divine] and as the card nal virtues) but in a narrower sense especially as applied to women and sometimes to men it often means little more than chasteness or perfect f delity in marriage as poor people whether they be lazy or busy drunken or sober virtuous or vicious (Shaw) "A man might grind the faces of the poor, but so long as be refrained from caressing his neighbours wives and daughters, he was regarded as virtuous (A Huxley) Didst thou not kill this king? I grant ye God grant me too Thou mayst be damned for that wicked deed! O he was gentle mild and virtuous! (Shak) Righteous differs from virtuous chiefly in its stronger implication of freedom from guilt or blame as applied to persons, it often implies justification especially worthiness of salvation in the theological sense (as I came not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance —Mark ii 17, "What but thy malice moved thee to misdeem Of righteous Job —Milton), as applied to acts, conduct even displays of passion it usually implies justifiability (as, righteous indignation a righteous occupation —Conrad righteous conduct) Noble (as here compared see also GRAND) applies to persons their acts utterances careers, and the like and implies the possession and exhibition of a conspicuously high character Oftentimes the word carries no other clear implications and seems little more than a term of high praise implying moral or ethical eminence as "This was the noblest Roman of them all (Shak) a noble aim Faithfully kept is as a noble deed (Wordsworth) At other times however the term suggests not only moral eminence but the absence of all taint of anything petty such as self seeking self-interest concern for the world's standards, or the like it then often suggests independence or magnanimity or high courage or some other outstanding moral excellence Better a man without riches, than riches without a man. A noble saying—and acted on would yield A nobler breed of men and women (Tennyson) The disinterested search for truth is certainly one of the highest and noblest careers that a man can choose (Inge)

Ana Right, *good *upright honest, just honorable scrupulous conscientious *chaste pure modest decent ideal *abstract

Con *Immoral unmoral amoral nonmoral.

morality *Goodness, virtue rectitude

Ana Integrity probity honor *honesty *excellence perfection virtue merit.

morally *Virtually practically mordacious *Caustic mordant acrid scathing

Ana See those at MORDANT mordant *Caustic mordacious acrid scathing

Ana *Incisive trenchant cutting biting clear-cut crisp *pungent poignant piquant racy spicy snappy *sharp keen acute moreover Besides, furthermore likewise *also too moron Imbecile idiot *fool simpleton natural morose Glum gloomy saturnine dour *sullen surly sulky crabbed

Ana Splenetic, choleric *irascible testy cranky cross peevish snappish waspish petulant *irritable brusque gruff (see BLUFF) mortal, adj 1 *Deadly fatal lethal

Ana Destructive (see corresponding verb DESTROY) virulent venomous *poisonous implacable unrelenting relentless (see GRIM)

Ant Venial (especially of a sin)

2 *Earthly terrestrial terrene, earthy mundane worldly sublunary

Ant Immortal (of things) mortified *Ashamed chagrined

Ana Harassed harried worried annoyed (see WORRY v) humiliated humbled abased (see ABASE) abashed embarrassed discomfited (see EMBARRASS) motherly *Parental maternal fatherly paternal motif, n 1 Device design, pattern, *figure

2 Variant of MOTIVE 2

motile *Movable mobile motive.

motion, n Motion, movement, move locomotion, stir are here compared as meaning the act or an instance of moving Motion is the preferred term in abstract use for the act or process of moving without regard to that which moves or is moved in philosophical and aesthetic use it is an especially comprehensive term for it may apply to manifestation of change or of changing not only from place to place but from condition to condition, from step to step in a progression or the like as, the laws of motion this vicissitude of motion and rest, which we call life (Steele) in all the arts the principle of motion prevails increasingly over the principle of repose (Babbitt) Ordinarily however the term implies visible moving whether discernible to the naked eye (or other sense) or through a telescope or other instrument as the motion of the planets there is no motion in the atmosphere I was lying injured and incapable of motion (Hudson), the restless motion of the sea Movement usually implies definite regulated motion the term is seldom used to denote an abstraction although it may be used figuratively to denote a quality of representation in a work of art that suggests motion (as movement is one of the most striking characteristics of the Elgin marbles and of the Winged Victory) or a quality in poetry drama or the like that suggests a definite rate of speed or progression as in the meter the action or the like (as, No one will so well render Homer's swift flowing movement as he who has himself something of the swift moving spirit of Homer —Arnold) In concrete use movement implies a passage (sometimes self initiated sometimes under guidance or compulsion) from place to place from situation to situation, from condition to condition, or the like it may in this sense be used interchangeably with motion in the collective singular or in the plural as the movements of the planets the restless movement of the sea the movement of troops to the front was then in progress severe storms hindered the movement of trucks carrying supplies the progress of man is so slow that the movement is rarely perceptible Movement also is frequently used for an instance of moving (especially one involving a change of place or position) as a movement among the ferns attracted Adrian (Meredith) every movement of the bird was watched by the cat Move applies chiefly to a definite instance of moving or of making a change in one's location or in the place occupied by something else usually the term suggests a clearly defined purpose or goal as the detectives are watching his every move the next move (in a game of chess) is yours their next move on their tour will be from Dover to Ostend when the hostess made a move from the table all the guests arose and followed her to the drawing room Locomotion was originally used especially in philosophy as a more specific term than motion because it definitely implied motion from place to place thus, plants were described as living things incapable of locomotion and animals as living things capable of locomotion In modern use, the term suggests travel especially by artificial means as by boat, train airplane or automobile as, "Every improvement of the means of locomotion benefits mankind morally and intellectually" (Macaulay) Stir applies to any motion or movement (often without an implication of changes of place or condition or of progress) that involves a disturbance (but not necessarily a displeasing disturbance) especially of that which has been quiet or at rest but also of that whose motion or movements indicate excitement bustle or agitation as not a stir of child or mouse (Stevenson) 'many persons find stir and movement and the presence of a crowd an agreeable stimulus (A C Benson), It is an age of stir and change (Galsworthy)

Ana Impetus momentum *speed velocity pace headway motivate Actuate *activate

Ana Stimulate quicken *provoke excite arouse rouse *stir inspire animate fire *inform motive, n 1 Motive, spring (or springs), impulse, in-speakers however it often refers to the underlying or basic motive which is often not fully recognized even by the person or persons affected and is especially hidden from all but the most penetrating observers It is difficult to come at the true springs of action (T Forrest) The love of gold was the sordid spring of the most brilliant enterprises of the republic (C Merivale) Impulse is a complex term because it has both a general sense and a very specific sense in each of which some important implications run counter to those of the other sense In both its inclusive and its specific senses however impulse may or may not imply as motive or spring always do imply in very precise use performance of an act or engagement in an activity the term stresses impetus or driving power rather than its effect thus one may check (or restrain or forgo or dismiss) an

a native propensity one s peculiarity of temperament one s intellectual or emotional constitution or the like He was not a man to yield timidly to the impulses of others (Prescott) This declamation is in its impulse if not in its achievement Senecan (T S Eliot) Men like the elder Cato Varro and the elder Pliny liked to record the curiosities of nature but they had not the systematizing impulse the restless passion for order of the Greeks (Buchan) The impulse behind the reformation was the impulse of the English to express their nationality (C Mackenzie) Specifically however but far from invariably one for which the person affected is not himself responsible or which does not originate within himself, as to offer a bonus as an incentive to greater speed and efficiency in production with some pupils praise is not always an incentive to study Money is not the only incentive to work nor the strongest" (Shaw) The great incentive to effort all through life is experience of success after initial difficulties (B Russell) People cut off here without the influence of example or emulation with no incentive but some natural yearning for order and security (Cather) Inducement is narrower than incentive for it suggests an external influence and often an attempt to entice or allure to action or activity The chief inducements to serve were extended use applies to any impetus to action which not only incites but stimulates the mind and increases its energy and ardor Fame is the spur that the clear spirit doth raise To scorn delights and live laborious days (Milton) The spur which drove me was sharp him to the daily toil (Macaulay)

Ana *Cause determinant antecedent reason *desire appetite urge passion lust *feeling emotion, passion purpose intent *intention aim end

2 Also motif *Subject matter subject matter argument topic text theme leitmotiv motive, adj *Movable mobile motile

Ana *Active operative dynamic moving driving impelling or impulsive (see corresponding verbs at MOVE) motley, Heterogeneous *miscellaneous assorted promiscuous

Ana *Different diverse divergent disparate various discrepant incompatible uncongenial incongruous (see CONSONANT)

Uniform homogeneous parallel akin alike al (see SIMILAR)

Proverb adage *saying saw maxim epigram aphorism apothegm mound Mound, bank, dune, embankment terrace tumulus, barrow are here compared as meaning a mass of earth or of earth and rock forming a small and often or earth as the mounds over cemetery graves merest grain of sand drifts unseen into a crevice and by and by another after a while there is a heap a century and it is a mound (Jefferies) Bank may be used in place of mound but it more often suggests a long moderately high elevation rising to a ridge or level a sometimes also descending on the other side Such banks often run alongside a road or are thrown up as a boundary wall or a fortification I know a bank where the wild thyme blows Where oxlips and the nodding violet applies to one of several mounds or banks of sand built up by the force of the wind as on the shore of the sea of a large lake in a river valley or in a desert region since the shape and size of dunes are at the mercy of winds the term suggests shifting and impermanence "Mounds and dunes of loose sand which whirled through the air all day in the boisterous spring winds (Cather) An embankment is an artificial bank usually of solid construction sloping on both sides and topped with a roadway or path Most levees and many dikes ramparts bulwarks and the like, are embankments. Strictly a terrace is the level top of a bank or embankment used for pleasure or for planting the word however in current use commonly suggests not only the leveled top but the entire formation, including its steep or rounded face or faces walled with stone or brick or covered with grass Terraces are found chiefly on the landscaped grounds of a house or institution where rough or steep natural elevations have been made smooth even, and easy, or on the sides of hills or mountains (then usually in tiers) where they counteract the harm done by erosion by providing surfaces which retain the soil and are capable of cultivation Tumulus and barrow are applied chiefly to one of the sepulchral mounds of earth and rock built by primitive peoples over the graves of their dead or to any of the small isolated round hills that dot a plain or gently sloping region of a country and may or may not have been originally sepulchral mounds A plain, on which are five earthen tumuli or barrows (T Pennant) Danish barrows' (Tennyson) mount, n *Mountain peak alp volcano mesa mount, v 1 Ascend soar *rise arise tower rocket levitate surge

Ant Drop

2 *Ascend climb scale.

Ant Dismount.

mountain Mountain mount peak, alp volcano mesa Mountain, the ordinary and inclusive term varies somewhat in meaning according to locality In general it designates an elevation higher and steeper than a hill rising more or less abruptly from its surrounding country and standing out conspicuously when viewed from a distance Mount is often used in proper names of mountains otherwise it is poetic. Peak, when applied to a mountain designates one that rises to a sharp point it may be isolated or one of a range Alp (usually capitalized) which is chiefly poetic suggests a towering dizzy or unscalable height Yet do I sometimes feel a languishment To sit upon an Alp as on a throne And half forget what world or worldling meant (Keats) Volcano, which is strictly applied to a vent in the earth through which hot or molten rock and the like issue also designates the cone-shaped mountain formed chiefly of this ejected material and topped usually by a crater Mesa, a Spanish term adopted in English is commonly used in the southwestern part of the United States to designate a flat topped elevation usually comparable to a hill in height but more suggestive of a mountain because of its steep clifflike sides.

Ana *Height, elevation, altitude mountebank, n *Impostor faker charlatan empiric quack.

mourn Sorrow *grieve.

Ana. Lament bewail bemoan (see DEPLORE) weep keen, wail, *cry

Con Rejoice gladden delight *please exult elate (see corresponding adjectives at ELATED) movable or moveable Movable (or moveable) mobile motile, motive come into comparison when they mean capable of moving or of being moved Movable, in current use applies not to that which has independent power of motion but to that which is not too heavy to be moved by men or machines as by lifting drawing pushing or driving to another place or position (as a movable steam engine; one's movable possessions some of these cabins were moveable and were carried on sledges from one part of the common to another"—Macaulay), or to that which is not fixed as in position or date (as printing from movable types a movable attachment for a machine movable feasts such as Easter and Whitsunday) Mobile stresses facility or ease in moving or less often, in being moved In early use it described particularly the quality of eyes that could range at will or of a star that is not fixed in current use it often describes the quality of flowing which distinguishes a liquid or fluid from a solid (as the mobile liquid passes into a compact rigid solid —T H Huxley) or which characterizes an electric current or charge (as long lasting circulation of the mobile charge around and around the circuit —Karl K Darrow) or the character which distinguishes something that moves or is equipped to move quickly and readily or to go from place to place from that which is slow moving or does inside work (as, a mobile army a mobile radio unit) But more commonly mobile describes features, faces expressions of face thoughts and the like which respond quickly and obviously to changing emotions, mental states, external stimuli, and the like often at the same time connoting either fickleness or instability or flexibility and versatility as, the gray restless eye the thin mobile lips (J R Green), the mobile mirror of his mind (Mrs H Ward) he was no more mobile than his countenance (Cather) You are as mobile as the veering air And all your charms more changeful than the tide (Millay) Motile is almost entirely a technical term In biology it applies to that which is not permanently attached and is free to move about or which has power of spontaneous motion as motile cells motile spores motile flagella In psychology the term describes either the type of person in whom the tendency to recall muscular movements prevails or the kind of images most easily recalled by a person of this type thus, the motile type is distinguished from the audile (or ear minded) or the visile (or eye-minded) types Motive implies a moving only in the transitive sense of driving or causing movement or impelling to action the term is now chiefly applied to power energy or the like produced by fuel such as gasoline by steam by electricity or other forces as steam is no longer the only motive power used in operating railway locomotives the question of what motive power will be best for the new ship has not yet been decided auto*motive* (that is, mechanically self propelled) vehicles Even when the reference is to that which constitutes a motive for action motive power motive force or motive energy is more likely to be used than, as in the past motive cause motive argument "motive principle or the like There was no motive power in experience. It was as little of an active cause as conscience itself (Wilde) As for the dream of the habitable earth peaceful under a universal empire the motive power to realize it must come from the West where men could still be both disciplined and free (Buchan)

Ana. *Changeable changeful variable, mutable

Ant Immovable stationary — Con. Fixed set settled established (see SET v) move, v 1 Move, actuate, drive, impel come into comparison when they mean to set or keep going or in motion. Move is so general that the direction or nature of the motion can be gathered only from the context, it may imply an agent or an agency as the mover, as what power or force moves the rotating earth?, the mechanism that moves the locomotive, vessels moved by wind steam or electricity Actuate is far more restricted in its reference than move being used chiefly in connection with machinery and mechanisms, it stresses the communication of power to work or to set in action, as a turbine is actuated by the force of a current of fluid under pressure Drive implies forward and usually, continuous rather than recurrent motion, it often emphasizes the effect produced as of speed violence, or show of power, rather more than the impetus given; as, a ship driven by

of a man's being impelled forward by the butt-ends of muskets" (Dickens)

These words are also synonymous in another sense when they mean to excite or provoke a person to a given behalf of my daughter (Shak) Actuate always presupposes an inner stimulus such as a desire a feeling a motive Men of the greatest abilities are most fired with

(B Russell) Drive presupposes a compelling force sometimes outer sometimes inner which affects the freedom of the will What had I ever done to you that would drive you to such a step? (M Austin) Impel, like actuate, implies an inner prompting but it suggests greater urgency in the desire or motive and more head long action. 'A life of adventure was that to which his nature irresistibly impelled him (Arnold) She was a prey to shoddy facile emotions none of which had power to impel her to any action (R Macaulay)

Ana *Activate, actuate, motivate *provoke excite quicken, stimulate *induce persuade, prevail on or upon.

2 Move, remove, shift, transfer come into comparison when they mean to change or to cause to change from one place to another Move is by far the most comprehensive of these terms all of which are general in that they do not in themselves and apart from the context imply any definite kind of agent or agency or any definite means of conveyance or transportation or give any indication of the extent of distance covered Move is therefore chiefly used when nothing more than the motion or activity involved in a change of place is to be indicated, as to move a table from a corner to the center of the room to move one s family from New York City to Chicago, to move a house across the street to a larger lot, he is about to move from the city to the country, he will not move from that chair until he is called to dinner Remove is only slightly less general than move but the term impl es (as move seldom if ever impl es apart from a statement in the context) that the person or thing that changes or is changed from one place to another is moved from or quits a place which is his or its normal or original location station, position occupation, or the like, for one which is new or temporary as to remove the cover from a platter, to remove the dishes from the table Many persons prefer the more simple move to remove when a change of habitation or business location is indicated, as to move one s family to one s summer home, to move from Chicago to Denver When the idea of getting rid or eradicating is stressed remove is the preferred term, as to remove a person from office they or guided motion or activity are seldom apparent therefore the term is often preferred when unrest or uncertainty or instability is to be suggested, as the bureau, he shifted his quid of tobacco to the other side of his mouth before answering Transfer (as here compared see also TRANSFER 2) commonly impl es a change from hand to hand or from one mode of conveyance to another or from one depository to another, or the last it is often used in a specific sense especially in the business of transportation, as a truck will transfer our baggage from the railway station to our home you will need to transfer (i e move to another train) at Albany to transfer one s animus from one person to another ' There was no way in which he could transfer his own memories of European civilization into the [American] Indian mind ' (Cather)

Ana. Displace, *replace supplant, supersede convey *carry, bear transport transmit moveable. Variant of MOVABLE movement. *Motion move locomotion stir

Ana. *Action act deed change alteration variation modification (see under CHANGE v) activity operativeness or operation dynamicness or dynamism liveness (see corresponding adjectives at ACTIVE) moving. Moving, impressive, poignant, affecting, touching, pathetic are synonymous so far as they agree in meaning having the power to excite or the effect of exciting deep and usually solemn emotion in the spectator the reader or the like Only moving the most general of these words can be used in place of any of the others the rest though not mutually exclusive in their implications are in precise use very specific That is forcibly on the mind and compels admiration awe conviction or the like 'Scenery majestic without severity impressive without showiness (Hardy) Ordinary men cannot produce really impressive art works" (Shaw) I regret that I cannot put into more impressive words my belief that the defendants were deprived of their rights (Justice Holmes) That is poignant which produces so painfully sharp an impression that it pierces one s heart or penetrates to the depth of one s being ' It was warm and yet fresh blindfold one could have mistaken it for a morning in early May" but this kind of day "had a more poignant loveliness in autumn than in spring, because it was a receding footfall, a waning moon" (Jan Struther). That is affecting which moves one to tears or to some similar manifestation of feeling (as, even the most callous found the play affecting; an affecting reunion of a mother and her child). That is touching which arouses tenderness or compassion or which melts the heart ("A clean sober little maid with a very touching upward look of trust"—Galsworthy; "Hers was a perfect little homily ... and it ended with touching allusions to Pluffles Mamma and Papa"—Kipling). That is pathetic which moves one to pity. Sometimes it suggests pity induced by compassion for one in sorrow or distress ("He was a lonely old man.... Rather pathetic! Tony ... felt a quick sympathy with him"—Arch. Marshall; "Pathetic gropings after the fragments of a shattered faith"—Day Lewis). Sometimes it suggests pity mixed with contempt for that which is weak, inadequate, futile, or the like (as, "a pathetic confusion of aims"—Binyon; pathetic attempts at portrait painting).

Ana Exciting, stimulating, quickening, provoking (see PROVOKE): thrilling, electrifying (see THRILL): stirring, arousing, rousing, awakening, rallying (see STIR).

mucilaginous Gummy, *adhesive, gluey, glutinous, sticky.

muddle, v *Confuse, bemuddle, addle, fuddle, befuddle.
Ana *Puzzle, perplex, mystify, bewilder, distract, nonplus, confound, dumfound: faze, rattle, discomfit, *embarrass: fluster, flurry, upset, agitate, *discompose.
Ant Enlighten.

muddle, n *Confusion, disorder, chaos, disarray, jumble, clutter, pie, snarl.

muddy *Turbid, roiled, roily.
Ana Murky, opaque, gloomy, obscure, *dark: confused, muddled, bemuddled, addled (see CONFUSE): *dirty, filthy, foul, nasty, squalid.
Con *Clear, transparent, translucent, lucid, limpid.

mug, n *Face, countenance, visage, physiognomy, puss.

mulct *Penalize, fine, amerce, sconce.
Ana Exact, require, *demand, claim.

mulish *Obstinate, dogged, stubborn, pertinacious, stiff-necked, pigheaded, bullheaded.
Ana Headstrong, intractable, recalcitrant, refractory, ungovernable, *unruly: fixed, set, firmed or firm (see corresponding verbs at SET).

multifarious Manifold, multifold, divers, numerous, various, *many, several, sundry.
Ana Disparate, diverse, divergent, *different: incongruous, incompatible, uncongenial, discrepant, discordant, *inconsonant, inconsistent.

multifold *Many, several, sundry, various, divers, numerous, manifold, multifarious.
Ana Reproduced, copied, duplicated (see corresponding nouns at REPRODUCTION): repeated, iterated (see REPEAT).

multiply *Increase, augment, enlarge.
Ana Propagate, reproduce, breed, *generate: expand, spread, stretch (see corresponding nouns at EXPANSE).
Con *Decrease, diminish, lessen, reduce, abate.

multitude Multitude, army, host, legion come into comparison when they mean both in the singular and plural a very large number of persons or things. They do not, as crowd, throng, etc., necessarily imply assemblage, but all of them are occasionally, or even often, used with that implication. Multitude stresses numerousness always, however, with respect to what is the standard for or the test of numerousness in the thing referred to; thus, in "that child always asks a multitude of questions" and "I never saw such a multitude of books before in one house," multitude obviously refers to a much smaller number in the first than in the second illustration. "We must not ... expect systematic education to produce multitudes of highly cultivated and symmetrically developed persons" (C. W. Eliot). When applied to a group of persons taken as a whole, a multitude suggests an assemblage of a large number of persons (as, "moved his arms with large pawing gestures, as though he were distributing lay blessings to a kneeling multitude"—E. Wharton), but "the multitude" suggests the masses of ordinary people or the populace (as, speeches that sway the multitude; a book that appeals to the multitude). Army usually adds to multitude the implications of orderly arrangement without a suggestion of crowding and often, especially in clearly figurative use, a progressive advance without any suggestion of halting or gathering (as, they were served by a vast army of waiters; an army of locusts; "Brave conquerors—for so you are, That war against ... the huge army of the world's desires"—Shak.; "We have considered science as a steadily advancing army of ascertained facts"—Inge). Host, like the other terms of this group, has for its primary implication numerousness. It may mean nothing more (as, she has hosts of admirers; he knows hosts of people) but it may suggest more strongly than any of the other words a concentration in great numbers of the thing referred to; in such cases it usually connotes an impressive or striking array (as, a clear cold night and a host of stars in the sky; "I saw a crowd, A host, of golden daffodils; Beside the lake, beneath the trees, Fluttering and dancing in the breeze"—Wordsworth). Legion derives its leading implication of incalculable numbers from Biblical rather than from military sources (in ancient Rome, it denoted the principal unit of an army) and its tendency to be applied to angels, devils, or things thought of as flying to aid or annoy ("Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels?"—Matthew xxvi. 53; "And he [Jesus] asked him [the unclean spirit possessing the man], What is thy name? And he answered, saying, My name is Legion: for we are many"—Mark v. 9; "Armies of angels that soar, legions of demons that lurk"—Browning).
Ana Horde, throng, press, mob, crush, *crowd.

mummer Performer, mime, player, *actor, Thespian, impersonator, trouper.

mummery *Gibberish, hocus-pocus, abracadabra.

mundane Worldly, *earthly, earthy, terrestrial, terrene, mortal, sublunary.
Ana Fleshly, sensual, *carnal, animal, animalistic: secular, temporal, *profane.
Ant Eternal. — Con *Infinite, sempiternal, boundless: heavenly, *celestial, empyrean.

munificent Bountiful, *liberal, generous, handsome.
Ana Benevolent, *charitable, philanthropic, altruistic: *profuse, lavish, prodigal.

muniment *Document, monument, record, archive.

munitions *Armament, arms, ordnance, artillery, ammunition.

murder, v *Kill, slay, assassinate, dispatch, execute.

murky Obscure, gloomy, opaque, *dark, dim, dusk, dusky, darkling.
Ana *Turbid, muddy, roiled, roily: lowering, glowering, glooming or gloomy (see corresponding verbs at FROWN): lurid, grim, *ghastly.
Con *Bright, brilliant, radiant, effulgent: illuminated, illumined, lightened, enlightened (see ILLUMINATE): *clear, transparent, translucent, lucid.

muscular. Muscular, brawny, sinewy, athletic, burly, husky are here compared as applied to persons in the sense of strong and powerful in build or physique Muscular implies well-developed but not overdeveloped muscles and usually a stalwart build My Eustace might have sat for Hercules So muscular he spread so broad of breast (Tennyson) Hard exercise built into a strong muscular body what had been a frail and sickly frame (W A White) Brawny implies the full development of the muscles although originally it was a close synonym of fleshy it carries no connotation of stoutness but rather suggests the might that is associated with hard flesh and great size The muscles of his brawny arms Are strong as iron bands (Longfellow) Sinewy attributes no less power to the muscles than most sinewy sword men (Shak) Athletic, as used in any science in which types of physique are studied is applied an extent that it often carries connotations of corpulence

White)

Ana Robust *healthy hale sound *strong sturdy stalwart, stout *vigorous lusty muse, v *Ponder meditate ruminate

Ana *Consider study contemplate weigh revolve excogitate reflect, reason, *think.

museum Museum library, gallery, archives treasury thesaurus are not synonymous terms, but they come into comparison when they mean a place serving as a repository for monuments (see DOCUMENT 1 for this sense) of the past Museum is the most general of these terms it usually implies the intention both to preserve and to exhibit for the education of the public. In Great Britain it is applied chiefly to an institution concerned with the preservation and exhibition of objects of his place for the exhibition of objects of antiquarian or

Library the National Library (Bibliothèque Nationale) in Paris, the British Museum (chiefly a library) the Library of Congress are vast storehouses of books of all kinds and of all ages manuscripts records, documents, files of journals, and the like, they often in addition exhibit works of art but their primary purpose is to preserve works of literature and of reference and documents in all fields of research and to make them available to scholars Gallery (often art gallery) is used commonly in Great Britain and often in the United States for a room a suite or a building housing and exhibiting paintings, works of sculpture and the like as the National Gallery (in London) The term is used of a place housing a private as well as a public collection, and archives of the Royal Society Treasury and occasionally soppy slushy

*Ought should have have got

*Summon call cite convoke convene ollect congregate assemble *gather marshal arrange *order align, *line range array

Fusty *malodorous stinking fetid noisome rank rancid

*Dirty filthy foul nasty squalid sloppy *su… od unkempt, slovenly mutable *Changeable changeful variable protean

Ana Unstable *inconstant fickle fluctuating wavering swinging swaying (see SWING)

Ant Immutable — Con *steady even constant, uniform equable *lasting permanent durable stable mutation 1 *Change permutation vicissitude alternation

Ana Shifting or shift moving or move removing or remove (see corresponding verbs at MOVE) variation modification alteration (see under CHANGE v)

Con. Stabilizing or stability steadying or steadiness poising or poise (see corresponding verbs at STABILIZE fluctuation wavering swinging or swing (see corresponding verbs at SWING)

2 *Variation adaptation modification.

*Dumb speechless inarticulate

1 *Maim cripple batter mangle jure damage hurt spoil mar disfigure disfeature *deface

2 *Sterilize, asexualize castrate spay emasculate ge…

*insubordinate

…able, *unruly

…e ESTRANGE)

…rising revolt

…s treacherous

…bleness (see

of each group

mutual. *Reciprocal common Ana Shared participated partaken (see SHARE) joined or joint united connected related, associated (see corresponding verbs at JOIN) mysterious Mysterious, inscrutable, arcane agree in meaning beyond one's power to discover understand or explain That is mysterious which excites wonder, curiosity or surmise yet baffles all attempts to explain it "Extremes in Nature equal ends produce In Man they join to some mysterious use" (Pope) "God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform" (Cowper) "The one thing that can make modern life mysterious or marvellous to us" (Wilde) That is inscrutable which defies all one's efforts to examine or investigate it and leaves one with a sense of hopelessness or defeat "Great God thy judgments are inscrutable!" (Browning) "The plaything of an inscrutable power, called Fortune" (Bradley) The word is often applied to a person whose intentions motives mental processes and the like are so well concealed that he excites awe or repels adv-

"Many fathers feel that if the-authority the-
(A C somethi (E Wha
more th ... that is arcane w ... prehension because known or known only to the possessor of the secret (sometimes by implication God Nature the Fates, the authorities) The word often comes close to occult in meaning but it stresses the reservation of that which is necessary for comprehension rather than the supranatural or magical character of that which is not understood thus one finds many of the poems of Blake arcane rather than occult for some arcane (not occult) reason grafters are seldom punished Ana Occult esoteric *recondite abstruse cryptic enigmatic ambiguous equivocal *obscure *mystical mystic anagogical cabalistic.

mystery Mystery, problem, enigma riddle, puzzle, conundrum come into comparison when they denote anything which baffles or perplexes and challenges one's power to solve it Mystery often, especially in theological use implies the thing's incapacity for comprehension by the human reason The term is applied specifically to any one of the doctrines of Christianity (such as the Trinity the Incarnation or the Resurrection) which have this character but it is also applicable to any of the facts of the world about us which defy all attempts to explain their cause or nature as "this mystery of growth and life" (Jefferies) "We must be humble for we are compassed by mysteries and our spiritual faculties are poor and dull" (Inge) The term is also used more loosely denoting something which is guarded by secrecy or which is in itself or by design mystifying as he always makes a mystery of his intentions the story deals with the mystery of a ship that has disappeared it's a mystery to me how he can keep going Problem applies not only to any perplexing question that demands a solution (as, a geometrical problem) but also to any person situation or the like that causes perplexity or puts one in a predicament (as that child is a problem to his parents and teachers) "The problem how to find healthy happy leisure for all the working millions who are now being liberated by machines" (L P Smith) "The architect [of Coutances Cathedral] has grappled with more problems than one need hope to see solved in any single church" (H Adams) Enigma (etymologically a dark saying) applies to that which hides its meaning under obscure or ambiguous allusions so that one can only guess what it signifies as a metaphor should not be farfetched for then it becomes an enigma the ancient oracles usually spoke in enigmas Figuratively the term applies to that which is inscrutable or beyond the range of unaided understanding as, "He [Leonardo da Vinci] was an enigma to which they [his contemporaries] never secured the key" (H Ellis) Riddle applies to any enigma involving paradoxical or contradictory statements, and definitely proposed to be guessed as to make up riddles for the amusement of her guests a book of riddles the riddle of the Sphinx Figuratively the term applies to any problem which is difficult because of its inner contradictions as "he tried to read the riddle of this girl's future" (Galsworthy) "The riddle of Actium is not in the details of the fighting but in the minds of the combatants" (Buchan) Puzzle applies to any problem or enigma which tests one's ingenuity or skill in solution, or which is peculiarly baffling, as a jigsaw puzzle, a crossword puzzle "hoary old puzzles of Ethics and Philosophy" (L P Smith) "There are few things in the world so difficult to explain as real change it appears to me that most scientists are far from realising the complexity of this metaphysical puzzle" (Inge) Conundrum specifically applies to any riddle phrased as a question the answer to which involves a pun or an equivocal use of words as he rightly suspected that the question was a conundrum "I'll make a conundrum" (Austen) The term is used figuratively in reference to unsolved or unsolvable problems which provoke speculation rather than serious attempts at solution "Do you think life is long enough to let me speculate on conundrums like that?" (W Black) mystic, adj *Mystical anagogical cabalistic Ana Occult esoteric *recondite abstruse *mysterious inscrutable visionary quixotic *imaginary mystic, n *Ascetic.

mystical Mystical, mystic, anagogical (or anagogic), cabalistic (or cabalistical) come into comparison when they denote having a meaning or character hidden from all except those who enjoy profound spiritual insight or are spiritually initiated Mystical and mystic though derived from the same root are often distinguished in use In general mystical suggests comprehension of something beyond the range of the perceptive or ratiocinative powers its use therefore often but not invariably implies belief in the possibility of such comprehension Hence the word variously connotes penetration into sacred mysteries, holiness of life idealism detachment from material concerns ecstatic contemplation or spiritual rapture as, the mystical experiences of St Paul the mystical philosophy of Plotinus mystical religions such as Buddhism the mystical poetry of William Blake "There is something mystical in this doctrine this faith as of Keats that what the Imagination seizes as Beauty must be Truth" (L P Smith) Mystic, on the other hand is often preferred by writers who wish to avoid these implications or to suggest others more in keeping with a rationalistic or skeptical point of view Therefore mystic often imputes to the thing it describes (1) an occult esoteric or visionary character as mystic ceremonies the mystic symbolism of Blake's poetry (2) a mysterious enigmatic, or sometimes nebulous quality, as "words of mystic import" (Shelley) "His [Guérin's] expression has ... more than Keats's something mystic inward and profound" (Arnold) (3) a connection with magic or the arts of magic as mystic numbers "each silver Vase in mystic order laid" (Pope) Oftentimes its original denotation is completely obscured and it means merely unintelligible unfathomable or incomprehensible as

' the mystic gulf from God to man (Emerson) The last two words are used chiefly in reference to allegoristic interpretation of the Scriptures as practiced in the past men of profound spiritual insight or those taught by such men ' Jerusalem is literally a city of Palestine allegorically the Church morally the believing soul, anagogically the heavenly Jerusalem (Schaff Herzog) The word has been used also in reference to a deeply hidden sense apparent only to the mystical minded in other writings than the Bible notably the Divine Comedy of Dante The anagogical sense is sometimes called the mystical sense Cabalistic, in its primary meaning was applied to a secret interpretation of Scriptures (Cabala) held to have been revealed to Moses and handed down orally through a line of chosen Jewish rabbis The system was later committed to writing and was used by medieval magicians sorcerers and the like In loose use it sometimes comes close to mystic in its connotations but commonly it is closer to occult

Ana Profound *deep abysmal *ultimate absolute categorical spiritual divine sacred *holy *supernatural supranatural miraculous mysticism Asceticism (see under ASCETIC n) mystify. Bewilder perplex, *puzzle distract nonplus confound dumfound

Ana Discomfit faze rattle *embarrass *discompose disquiet perturb disturb agitate, upset whose origin has been forgotten or is not clearly traceable Myth (see also ALLEGORY 2) is often the general designation for this type of story but in technical use the term specifically implies as a basis for the story an attempt to explain some practice some belief some natural phenomenon some institution some extraordinary event or the like Whoever that discoverer [of the magnetic power of amber] may have been someone ought to make a myth about him and call him the brother of Prometheus (Karl K Darrow) Both in technical and general use myth is commonly applied to stories religious beliefs and rites. The term is sometimes con tree is now regarded as a myth) such application is avoided except by those who wish to stress this imputation Legend (etymologically something to be read) was originally applied to a saint s life or to a collection of such lives of the kind written or compiled in the Middle Ages for the edification of the people Since these tales put into form without regard for their authenticity all the stories circulated about the saint and his miracles, the term legend came to be applied to any story especially one of a fabulous nature circulated by word of mouth, which is attached to a saint a hero, a place a deed or the like which purports to be historical, but which although it has or may seem to have a basis in history is either incredible or unverifiable as, the legend that King Alfred was the founder of Oxford University the legend of the angels who appeared to the British troops at the battle of Mons there was no record or legend of any prisoner with those initials (Dickens) ' even after he was ailing he performed a feat which became one of the legends of the countryside —killed a robber in a midnight scuffle (Cather) Saga in strict tended use saga is often employed in place of myth or legend especially but far from exclusively when their reference to a hero or heroes of northern Europe is implied In such use myth commonly connotes a connection with ancient Greece Rome Egypt and the like though it may be used in reference to the American about fourteen Joan s imagination passed out of the phase of myth and saga into the world of romance The real world drew closer to her (H G Wells) But saga is often even more loosely used to denote any literary Quiller-Couch) or in present day use any novel or series of novels which is a chronicle of persons of a family through several generations (as Galsworthy's "The Forsyte Saga) or of the persons who comprise a community, a class or the like (as With this last visit terminates my saga of Gripsholm —H Marryat)

Ana *Fiction, fable fabrication figment invention apocryphal

legendary

each group

N

nab *Catch capture cop trap snare entrap ensnare bag Ana *Take seize grasp clutch grab snatch apprehend *arrest detain naive or naïve Unsophisticated artless ingenuous *natural simple Ana *Sincere unfeigned *spontaneous, impulsive instinctive fresh original (see NEW) naked *Bare rude bald barren Ana Revealed disclosed discovered (see REVEAL) *evident manifest palpable obvious uncolored *colorless *pure simple sheer name, n Name, designation, denomination, appellation title, style agree in meaning the word or phrase by which anything is called and by means of which it can be distinguished or identified Name is so general that it can be used of any such word or phrase whether it distinguishes a person or an object an individual or a class a particular or a universal a thing having distinct existence in fact or a thing having distinct existence only in thought thus all nouns are names love is the name of an emotion the child's name is John Joseph Brown the name of this synagogue is Beth El Sometimes name is thought of as something apart from the real character of the thing to which it is attached 'What's in a name? that which we call a rose By any other name would smell as sweet' (Shak) 'For sixty years he had been a name not a figure [in the town of Bursley]' (Bennett) More often, however the term connotes identification of the word with the thing or especially the person it names so that what affects one affects the other '[Oxford] home of lost causes and forsaken beliefs and unpopular names and impossible loyalties!' (Arnold) 'If I discovered the worst and it had to be exposed I must see that Jane's name was kept entirely out of it' (P Macaulay) This common feeling of a mutual and almost inevitable relation between the name and the thing named is what distinguishes name from designation denomination appellation all of which are thought of as given and therefore as having an artificial association with the thing and a particular purpose such as description or identification A designation is a name given primarily for the sake of distinguishing one thing (an individual or a class) from other things of the same general description as the French revolutionists changed the traditional designations of days and months as yet no suitable designation has been found for this variety of dahlia Madame Curie chose polonium as the designation of the newly discovered radioelement in honor of her native Poland Denomination (see also RELIGION) is the name given to a class, to a category or to a closely knit group of persons however the idea of a class name is so deeply rooted in the word that it in extended use often means the kind or species or group distinguished by a particular name as, most of George Eliot's works come under the denomination of novel a roll of bills containing notes of every denomination or no two notes of the same denomination Protestants of all denominations attended the religious service Appellation differs from designation and denomination in precluding the idea (not necessarily the fact) of self-choice thus, the designation or name formally given to a thing may be quite different from its appellation or a name by which it is called as 'Jesuit' is the common appellation of a member of the Society of Jesus in school histories, George Washington is frequently referred to by the appellation 'Father of his Country' 'The government of the United States has been emphatically termed a government of laws and not of men It will certainly cease to deserve this high appellation if the laws furnish no remedy for the violation of a vested right' (Ch Just Marshall) A title is either a distinctive name given to a book, a picture a play a musical composition or an honorary appellation coming to a person by virtue of his rank office descent or the like as man one of the Sweet C [illegible] ... of the state must have a title (B... on) When used without reference to a particular work of art or person title is sometimes preferred to denomination because it connotes distinction and dignity 'Any admixture of logical of prose meaning detracts from the value of a poem if it does not disqualify it for the title of poetry altogether' (Day Lewis) When used abstractly in preference to name or designation it often connotes the lack of an essential relation between the name and the thing it names 'Things change their titles as our manners turn' (Pope) Style, which is now not used as commonly as formerly is applicable chiefly to legal and formal titles such as the legal name of a firm or corporation, or the complete formal designation of a royal or other exalted personage as used in documents or in ceremonial address as a business incorporated under the style of the Globe Manufacturing Co 'Thrones and Imperial Powers Offspring of Heaven Ethereal virtues! or these titles now Must we [the fallen angels] renounce and changing style be called Princes of Hell?' (Milton) name, v *Designate nominate elect appoint Ana *Choose select prefer elect opt *declare announce publish advertise narcotic *Anodyne opiate nepenthe narrate *Relate rehearse recite recount describe state report Ana Tell *reveal disclose discover *discourse expatiate dilate descant narrative *Story tale anecdote yarn Ana Chronicle *account report story version *fiction fabrication, figment fable narrow, adj Narrow, strait agree in meaning neither broad nor wide or having little breadth or width ... thing of its kind Narrow ... not ... nor ... narr... that any narro... Galsw... his w... Benson ... in narrow circumstances can h... be called poor —Lecky 'We are left with a narrow choice' —T S Eliot) or to that which (often a person who) is provincial sectional highly partisan bigoted or the like (as narrow opinions a narrow mind 'Mr Broadbent's robust if narrow understanding —Arch Marshall to be neither narrow nor puritanical —Galsworthy) Strait which is often confused with straight is now chiefly archaic dialectal or literary in its historically correct senses. In its earlier and more consistently exact meanings as well as in present precise use, the term carries a stronger implication of tightness or closeness than narrow and therefore often suggests

(2 Kings vi 1), 'To me the straiter prison To me the heavier chain" (Kipling) In its extended senses strait carries a far stronger implication than narrow of a strict-

Ana. Limited restricted confined (see LIMIT, v) · *rigid, rigorous strict, stringent Ant Broad

narrows. *Strait, straits sound, channel passage narthex. Vestibule, foyer, *entry, entryway, hall lobby, anteroom, antechamber nasty. *Dirty, filthy squalid foul Ana *Coarse gross vulgar, obscene, ribald tainted contaminated polluted defiled (see CONTAMINATE) indelicate, indecent unseemly, improper, *indecorous nation *Race people national, n *Citizen subject native, adj Native, indigenous, endemic, aboriginal, autochthonous (or autochthonal, autochthonic) A person or thing is native (opposed to foreign, alien) or is a native, that has had his or its birth or origin in the place or country in question as a native American, a native New Yorker, a native tradition A person or thing is indigenous (opposed to naturalized exotic) or is an indigene, that is not only native but also has not been tecture Indigenous is applied usually to species or races rather than to individuals and often implies reference to a larger area than native as to a country or region lent in) a restricted region because of special conditions favoring its growth or existence, as, the herb edelweiss is endemic in the Alps beriberi is an endemic disease in the Orient A person or thing is aboriginal, or is an aborigine, that belongs to the earliest known race inhabiting a native, n Indigene, endemic, aborigine autoc See under NATIVE adj foreigner ice, dashing, nifty, nobby dipper ionable, modish, smart, posh toffish

1 *Regular, normal typical ry, *common, familiar *usual, custo accustomed wonted Ant. Unnatural artificial adventitious 2 Natural, simple, ingenuous, naive (or naïve) sophisticated, artless, unaffected are synonyms tent, set him to write prose, he is free natural confusion of aims, desires interests therefore may carry one or the other of connotat divergent as mental immaturity and intellectual ness as the lack of experience characteristic of the greatness indeed to be simple is to be great (Emerson) as wicked to hurt her as to hurt a babe in swaddling clothes" (M Webb) Ingenuous stresses inability to disguise or to conceal one's thoughts or feelings

ing) 'Father had set a dog on him A less ingen character would be silent about such passages implies freedom from all that is artificial conve or acquired, in earliest English use and still often cially in its derivative noun naïveté it suggests fresh spontaneity and genuine expression of a nature touched by worldly influences and without affecta or artifices as by contrast with the poetry of Ve

if it can be avoided of persons one genuinely respects one puts such burdens upon the naive and colorless, upon what are called the good natured (Mencken) Equally often but chiefly in learned use it suggests the point of view of the untutored or unenlightened person or of one whose judgments are not corrected by advanced scientific or philosophical knowledge and who therefore supposes that things are what they seem to be "The naive science of an earlier day merely took it for granted that space and time existed in their own right" (Jeans) "That naive patriotism which leads every race to regard itself as evidently superior to every other" (J W Krutch) Unsophisticated also stresses lack of wisdom especially worldly wisdom It does not however emphasize native simplicity as strongly as naive rather it suggests lack of the experience or training necessary for worldly success or more specifically for graceful and adroit social relations "She's not the type of the moment not elegant or artificial, too much the unsophisticated child of nature" (R Macaulay) Artless lays the stress on the absence of design it suggests naturalness that is the result of indifference to, or unawareness of the effect or impression one is producing "Overflowing with artless maternal gratitude" (Austen) "Almost every turn in the artless little maid's prattle touched a new mood in him" (Meredith) "He hated to seem heavy or profound or anything but artless and spontaneous to Cecily" (H G Wells) Unaffected centers the attention on the absence of affectation, but in current use it commonly implies both naturalness and simplicity without any hint of childishness, unworldliness, guilelessness or the like as, a well bred unaffected girl "Very few English people have the art of conversing unaffectedly and sincerely before a circle" (A C Benson)

Ana. *Spontaneous impulsive, instinctive ingrained constitutional *inherent.

Con. Formal conventional ceremonious *ceremonial pretentious, ostentatious, pompous *showy affected assumed counterfeited feigned (see ASSUME) natural, n *Fool idiot imbecile moron simpleton.

nature *Type kind sort description character stripe kidney ilk

Ana *Structure anatomy framework *disposition temperament character personality *form figure shape conformation naught *Cipher zero nought aught ought naughty *Bad evil ill wicked

Ana Mischievous wanton, roguish impish waggish (see PLAYFUL) froward balky restive, wayward *contrary perverse nautical *Marine maritime naval naval Nautical *marine maritime navvy *Worker workman workingman laborer craftsman handcraftsman mechanic artisan hand operative, roustabout near, adj & adv *Close nigh near by

Ant Far

near, v *Approach approximate

Ana Rival *match touch, equal.

Con Vary *change, alter, modify differ from *differ with.

near by Also near by adj & adv *Close near nigh

Ant Far off

nearest Nearest, next are both superlative forms of near but they are not always interchangeable Nearest may be used wherever the intent is merely to indicate the highest degree of propinquity in space time, kinship or the like as the nearest house is five miles distant their nearest neighbor lives two miles away her nearest relatives are her father and mother (or her fifth cousins) Next, in earlier usage, was often employed in this sense, but in current use it commonly implies immediate succession (sometimes but not so often precedence) in an order a series or a sequence thus, the next house is the house just beyond the one in mind in a row or series of houses their next child is the one who comes after the child under consideration in order of birth the next (never nearest) best is the second best in a rating or choice, so, the next chapter of the story, the next day, the next time they met ask the next person we meet But in law one's nearest relative or relatives is (or are) one's next of kin one's next friend is the person who has the right as one's nearest relative or natural guardian to act without authorization of a court for an infant a married woman, or any other person who by the law of the state has not full legal capacity to sue or make other legal moves. In ordinary language "nearest of kin" is found as often as "next of kin, but nearest friend" applies only to one's most intimate friend nearly. Nearly almost approximately, well nigh come into comparison when they mean within a little of being becoming reaching or the like Their differences in meaning are often imperceptible However nearly is preferable when mere proximity is implied as they are nearly at the end of their journey it is nearly six o clock she was nearly hysterical with fright almost is more explicit when the emphasis is on a falling short or a deficiency as they had almost finished when they were interrupted she is almost out of her mind with grief the news is almost too good to be true approximately is the proper choice when the difference is of no practical importance and a reasonable approach to accuracy is implied as there were approximately 10 000 present government meteorologists make approximately correct forecasts well nigh often equals virtually, as they were well nigh lost in the forest he is well nigh mad neat Neat, tidy trim trig, snug shipshape spick-and-span come into comparison as meaning manifesting care and orderliness Neat (etymologically shining) through all its variations in senses keeps as its basic implication clearness, such as the clearness from dirt or soil that is manifest chiefly in perfect cleanliness (as, her house is as neat as a pin the cat is perhaps the neatest of domestic animals "He was remarkably neat in his dress"—Johnson) or the clearness that is indicated in simplicity and freedom from that which clutters, complicates confuses, or the like, or that indicates orderliness deftness or adroitness (as neat workmanship a neat style "the neat craftsman"—C E Montague a neatly performed operation neat arrangement of arguments a neat retort, neat architectural design) or the clearness that means lack of adulteration dilution or the like as, to take his whisky neat neat silk. Tidy (etymologically timely) was in earliest English use often applied to cattle flocks, crops, and the like, in thriving and satisfactory condition this sense now occurs mainly in extended applications to things which indicate a more or less flourishing condition as a tidy farm he has a tidy fortune he has made a tidy success of his venture Tidy as first applied to a person or his work, seems to have meant little more than satisfactorily pleasing in appearance or quality in some use it was approximate to buxom or comely in meaning but it seems to have been applied chiefly to peasants and especially to servants Hence tidy servant at first meant a satisfactory servant from the points of view of diligence and neatness but later came to mean one whose diligence showed itself in orderly habits and neat appearance as, "If thou knowest of any tidy lass like thyself, that wanted a place, and could bring a good character" (Scott) In current use tidy, as distinguished from neat, throws the stress on orderliness, careful arrangement, or a place for everystay, but dirty (D H Lawrence) Trim in current use implies both neatness and tidiness it stresses, however,

Jr) In the eighteenth century snug was often applied to persons or things that were markedly trim or spruce (as, 'He kames his hair, indeed, and gaes right snug — A Ramsay), but this sense now occurs only in dialectal shipshape (Tennyson) Spick-and-span, which stresses the brightness and freshness of that which is new is applicable also to that which by care and cleanliness has been kept new in appearance or made to look like new, as spick-and-span white shoes, her mother keeps her spick-and span every moment of the day, the kitchen was spick and span spick-and-span machinery

Ana. *Clean cleanly fastidious *nice dainty finical exact, precise *correct accurate

Ant. Filthy — Con. Unkempt, slovenly, *slipshod sloppy slack, lax remiss, *negligent confused muddled bemuddled addled (see CONFUSE) neb. Variant of NIB necessary. 1 *Needful, requisite, indispensable essential.

Ana Compelling or compulsory obliging or obligatory constraining (see corresponding verbs at FORCE) important, significant, momentous (see corresponding nouns at IMPORTANCE). cardinal vital, *essential, fundamental.

2 *Certain, inevitable, apodictic.

Ana Unavoidable, inescapable ineluctable *inevitable *infallible inerrable, inerrant, unerring necessity. *Need exigency

Ana Compelling or compulsion, constraining or constraint, obliging or obligation, coercing or coercion (see corresponding verbs at FORCE) indispensableness requisiteness or requisition, needfulness (see corresponding adjectives at NEEDFUL) nectar. *Ambrosia manna amrita nectared, nectarean, nectareous. Ambrosial (see under AMBROSIA) need, n Need, necessity, exigency come into comparison when they denote a state or cond those in need, the European war has taught Americans between night and day, childhood and maturity existence is that we have to find things out for ourselves'" (T S Eliot) Exigency (see also JUNCTURE) implies the compulsion of necessity (sometimes, but rarely of an inherent compelling principle) especially as a result of special circumstances, such as a crisis, an emergency, an accident, that imposes upon one severe restrictions or great stress and strain in either case the term emphasizes more even than either of the preceding words extreme urgency demands of a peremptory and exacting character and difficulties that cannot be easily privation defect *poverty, indigence, penury, destitution privation want need, v *Lack want require

Ana *Demand require, claim exact *long hanker pine, yearn hunger, thirst crave covet, *desire wish.

needful. Needful, necessary, requisite, indispensable, essential come into comparison as meaning urgently required Needful, in current English carries the weakest suggestion of urgency but it applies to that which is required to supply a want or to fill a need as And Jesus answered Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things But one thing is needful (Luke x. 41-42) forts magazines, arsenals, dock yards, and other needful buildings (Ch Just Taney) "trades men carrying what was needful to British ports (A Repplier) Necessary implies more pressing need or urgent constraint but except where the compulsion of necessity (in the sense of an inherent compelling principle as a necessary consequence a necessary conclusion) is suggested the word does not invariably connote that the thing so qualified cannot be done without as His personal return was most required and necessary (Shak) always finding a more necessary article for which a less necessary had to be discarded (Cather) Of all the bitter and heavy things in this sorry old world the not being necessary is the bitterest and heaviest (Deland) to classify in a science is necessary for the purpose of that science to classify when you come to art is at best an expedient (Quiller-Couch) Requisite differs from necessary chiefly in being applied to something that is specifically required by the nature of a thing the end that is in view, the purpose to be fulfilled and the like usually but not invariably the adjective suggests an imposed requirement rather than an inner need and so suggests constraint from without or often from official sources as to complete the subjects requisite for college entrance to gather the requisite equipment for a summer in camp thinking society to be the one thing requisite to the young man he had introduced him to the people he knew (Meredith) the vigor requisite to success (Grandgent) Holy Scripture containeth all things necessary to salvation so that whatsoever is not read therein nor may be proved thereby is not to be required of any man that it should be believed as an article of the Faith or be thought requisite or necessary to salvation (Book of Common Prayer) Indispensable not only carries a stronger implication of urgency than the preceding terms, but it also distinctly implies that the thing so qualified cannot be done without especially if the implied or expressed end is to be attained as, there is no such thing as an indispensable person, though many persons have made themselves virtually indispensable acquaintance with it [the scientific method of inquiry] has become an indispensable element in culture (C W Eliot) Rigid truthfulness in adults towards children is absolutely indispensable if children are not to learn lying (B Russell) Essential (see also ESSENTIAL 2 INHERENT) is often used in place of indispensable as implying no less urgency but as being less extravagant in its suggestions it usually also implies inherent necessity from the point of view of what a thing is or must be by its very nature or end as knowledge of one's subject is essential to successful teaching essential raw materials You are essential to her perfect happiness (Dickens) the builders must have begun with the central piers and the choir because the choir was the only essential part of the church (H Adams) The construction of the pier was desirable for the more convenient repair of warships but it was not essential (Justice Holmes)

Ana Wanted needed required lacked (see LACK v) vital cardinal, *essential fundamental nefarious Iniquitous flagitious infamous corrupt degenerate *vicious villainous

Ana Heinous, *outrageous, atrocious, monstrous *flagrant glaring gross rank negate *Nullify annul, abrogate invalidate Ana Negative *neutralize counteract negative, adj *Neutral indifferent adiaphorous

Ant Affirmative

negative, v 1 *Deny gainsay traverse contradict impugn contravene.

2 *Neutralize counteract

Ana *Nullify negate annul abrogate invalidate neglect, v Neglect, omit disregard, ignore, overlook slight, forget come into comparison as meaning to pass over something without giving it due or sufficient attention Neglect usually implies intentional or unintentional failure to give full or proper attention especially to something one is doing (such as a task) or should do (such as a duty) or to someone who has a claim upon one's care or attention as to neglect one's studies because of undue interest in sports to neglect to pay one's debts Pardon me for neglecting to profit by your advice (Austen) "He asked Mr Powell with some brusqueness if the chief mate had neglected to instruct him that the captain was to be found on the port side (Conrad) to neglect one's family to neglect one's personal appearance, in March the vicar told his curate that he was neglecting Galton for Oaktown (C Mackenzie) Omit implies a leaving out of something which forms a part of a whole (as, to omit two stanzas of a hymn to omit a part of one's lecture) or as it comes more closely into comparison with the other terms in this article to neglect entirely through oversight inattention or absorption an important detail opportunity aspect, or the like Nor could I think well of the man who should omit an occasion of testifying his respect towards any body connected with the family (Austen) Constance remembered small possessions of her own which she had omitted to remove from the cutting-out room (Bennett) Disregard usually but not invariably implies voluntary sometimes deliberate inattention the term may or may not imply justifiable neglect as to disregard petty annoyances to disregard an unimportant piece of evidence she persists in disregarding the wishes of her mother The Great War a hideous business, in which nearly all the humane alleviations of brutal violence introduced and practised in the days when professional armies fought for a dynasty or for a point of honour, were disregarded (Inge) Ignore (etymologically not to know) usually implies either an intention to disregard or a failure to regard something more or less obvious it may even suggest a deliberate closing of the eyes to that which one does not wish to recognize as to those who agree with me I am uttering commonplaces and to those who disagree I am ignoring the necessary foundations of thought (Justice Holmes) By tacit agreement they ignored the remarks and insinuations of their acquaintances (D H Lawrence) The ancients tried to identify the fundamental element one philosopher guessed air another water yet another fire the true one [electricity] lay all about them but they ignored its signals (Karl K Darrow) Overlook implies an omission or disregarding sometimes through intention (often charitable intention) but more often through haste lack of care inadvertence or the like as, to overlook an item in an account. It is the practice of good nature to overlook the faults which have already by the consequences punished the delinquent (Johnson) Slight may imply neglect omission or disregard but it also usually implies a contemptuous or an arrogant attitude that makes one undervalue a thing's importance treat a person disdainfully or be neglectful in performance of a task or duty "Alas! what boots it with uncessant care To tend the homely slighted shepherd's trade [figurative for poet's art] (Milton) Nothing in the service was slighted every phrase and gesture had its full value

(Cather) "I have been slighted tricked threatened insulted made ill but I am justified " (H G Wells) Forget as here considered often retains from its chief (Nelson) Lord God of Hosts be with us yet Lest we forget—lest we forget! (Kipling) Still he told Hannah to get the boy better clothes—though he forgot to give her any money for the purpose" (Deland)

Ant Cherish — Con *Appreciate value prize treasure *nurse nurture foster, cultivate neglect, n *Negligence

Ana Neglecting omitting or omission disregarding or disregard ignoring slighting forgetting overlooking (see corresponding verbs at NEGLECT) lines between them are being drawn with increasing attention (as the amazing negligence of some housekeepers an act of criminal negligence no one has done more through negligence to corrupt the language — Byron all these themes indicate negligence) or as manifested in a temperamental or assumed indifference to hand applies either to the act or fact of neglecting or of leaving undone (or very rarely imperfectly done) something which it is one s business or duty to do (as convicted of neglect of duty We made a nice tidy clean up If I hadn t done it I ought e ther to have been shot for neglect or d smissed for incapacity —H G Wells In dealing with the infant there is need of a delicate balance between neglect and indulgence — B Russell) or to the state or fact of being neglected slighted ignored or forgotten (as Rescue my poor remains from vile neglect —Prior a motive for reading it [that] ensured poetry against neglect — Day Lewis) For these reasons the phrase the negligence of a person always refers to a quality of character of the agent or to its outward manifestation in an act a piece of work an accident or the like the neglect of a person refers to the act of one who neglects slights ignores, or forgets another thereby making that person his victim

Ana Laxness, slackness, remissness (see corresponding adjectives at NEGLIGENT) indifference unconcernedness or unconcern incuriousness (see corresponding adjectives at INDIFFERENT)

Ant Attention solicitude — Con *Care concern anxiety worry diligence assiduity sedulousness (see corresponding adjectives at BUSY) negligent Negligent neglectful, lax, slack, remiss are that which is one's duty or bus ness with the result that nothing is done or that one s work shows markedly one s indifference and inattention as in its imperfection, as so little haunted by the true artist s fine passion for words that he may be described as hav ng for the parents neglectful of their children s health A government at once insatiable and neglectful (James Mill) a ship a master neglectful of discipline Lax (etymologically loose, see LOOSE) implies want of necessary strictness, severity or precis on the term appl es chiefly to persons who do not satisfy the rigorous demands made upon them by the r work or duties or to any work or any came of the laxer Lovells and was naturally incl ned to novelty had first proposed to her husband to dine at six o clock instead of two his malleable young face had become relentless (E Wharton) Slack (see also LOOSE) stresses the want of proper or necessary dil gence is accomplished by a slack worker the term usual suggests neglect of important details necessary to the completeness finish or perfection of the work as "a three-quarters figure of admirable design, though of rather slack execution (J C Stobart) Remiss implies culpable carelessness that shows itself in slackness and forgetfulness or in negligence, it is appl ed chiefly to that which is lax in performance maintenance or the like but it may be applied to a person who is undul careless or lax in the performance of his duties as attentive

negotiate. 1 Parley, treat, *confer commune consult advise 2 Negotiate, arrange, concert come into comparison when they mean to bring about or accompl sh by mutual agreement especially after discussion or parley Negotiate and arrange both imply prior intercommun cation of views and wishes and sometimes settlement by bargaining or compromise Negotiate is preferred when the dealings are carried on by diplomatic, business, or legal agencies and arrange when they are carried on by priva e persons or their representatives as to negotiate a treaty to arrange a marriage to negotiate the Louisiana Pur chase to arrange the settlement of a case out of court to arrange a meeting between estranged persons. Concert, which is now found chiefly in its part cipial form concerted usually but not invariably impl es an agree therefore may or the like as a barbarians as We began to f each group concert measures for his coming on board with secrecy" (Defoe) neighborhood or neighbourhood. *Locality, district vicinage, vicinity neighborly or neighbourly. Friendly *amicable.

Ana Peaceful peaceable, *pacific *social, hospitable gregarious, co-operative cordial sociable *gracious Ant Unneighborly ill-disposed. — Con Antagonistic, *adverse.

neophyte. *Novice, novitiate probationer, postulant apprentice neoteric *New novel modern modernistic, newfangled new fashioned original fresh.

nepenthe. *Anodyne opiate narcotic neritic *Aquatic marine oceanic, thalassic, pelagic abyssal bathysmal, bathybic, lacustrine lacuscular fluvial fluviatile.

nerve Effrontery, *temerity audacity, hardihood cheek, gall Ana Boldness intrepidity (see corresponding adjectives at BRAVE) *fortitude grit pluck sand guts foolhardiness temerariousness, recklessness (see corresponding adjectives at ADVENTUROUS) nervous. 1 *Vigorous lusty energetic, strenuous Ana Forceful forcible potent *powerful *spirited mettlesome virile manly (see MALE) 2 Also nervy. *Impatient restless, restive unquiet uneasy fidgety skittish feverish hectic jumpy jittery Ana Excited or excitable stimulated provoked or provocative (see corresponding verbs at PROVOKE) *inconstant unstable mercurial Ant Steady — Con Constant even equable, uniform (see STEADY) nescient *Ignorant illiterate unlettered uneducated untaught untutored unlearned Ana *Indifferent incurious, aloof unconcerned.

Con *Aware conscious, cognizant nettle. Provoke exasperate *irritate aggravate, roil peeve Ana. *Annoy irk bother vex disturb perturb agitate upset *discompose fret chafe gall (see ABRADE) network *System, scheme organism, economy complex.

neurologist Neurologist, psychiatrist (or psychiater), alienist, psychopathologist (or psychopathist), psychotherapist, psychoanalyst agree in denoting a specialist (usually a medically trained specialist) in mental disorders Neurologist the comprehensive term is applied to any physician skilled in the diagnosis and treatment of diseases of the nervous system as epilepsy locomotor ataxia, and chorea (St Vitus's dance) Only in loose use is the term ever restricted to a specialist in purely mental diseases Psychiatrist alienist psychopathologist are interchangeable terms in scientific use, but they stress different implications All designate a physician who devotes himself to the diagnosis and treatment of diseases affecting the mind especially as distinguished from neurologist of those disorders not demonstrably of physical origin such as neurasthenia hysteria and paranoia Psychiatrist, however usually suggests skill in treatment and in correction of curable disorders alienist the preferred term in medical jurisprudence suggests skill in detection of mental derangements or of insanity psychopathologist (or psychopathist) suggests the psychologist's approach and skill in discovering causes such as defects of personality unfavorable environment, and the like and in describing the nature of the individual case A psychotherapist is a psychiatrist who employs suggestion, hypnosis re-education, etc., in the treatment of psychic disorders A psychoanalyst is a psychotherapist who proceeds on the assumption that mental difficulties are the result of disturbances below the level of consciousness who diagnoses these disorders by a study of the individual's emotional and mental life especially as manifested in dreams inhibitions complexes and the like and who treats these disorders by revealing their causes to the patient and suggesting means whereby the disturbances may be eliminated and the mental difficulties overcome neutral, adj Neutral, negative, indifferent, adiaphorous are here compared as meaning lacking decisiveness or distinctiveness in character, quality action or effect Neutral, in what is probably its earliest and is still its most common sense applies to states, governments parties, or persons who refuse to take sides with either of two (or any of several) contending parties The term may or may not imply an attitude of impartiality, but it usually implies either indecision or a refraining from positive action for any one of numerous reasons "The stepfather [of Octavius] was a moderate Pompeian in sympathies, but his family connections kept him neutral and the household was never drawn into the war" (Buchan) "Revolutionary verse . makes the neutral reader wonder whether it is aimed to win him for the communist or fascist state" (Day Lewis) When otherwise applied as to colors or terms, to a character or personality to a substance in chemistry or to an entity in philosophy or the like neutral implies a quality, an appearance, or a reaction that belongs to neither of two opposites or extremes the term therefore often connotes vagueness indefiniteness, indecisiveness ineffectualness or the like thus a neutral character is one that reveals neither positive virtues nor positive vices a chemically neutral substance such as distilled water is neither acid nor basic, a neutral color such as taupe is not clearly or positively any definite color often because it verges on gray "The artists of the Far East use positive tints quite sparingly giving them for foil large spaces of neutral tone" (Binyon) "[Crabb Robinson's] honest dullness supplied the neutral background that genius needs" (Times Lit Sup) Negative carries a far stronger implication than neutral of absence of positive or affirmative (cf AFFIRMATIVE) characteristics or qualities the term therefore usually implies inaction ineffectiveness or a failure to assume a definite or concrete form as "the negative propaganda of silence" (A Huxley), "the man who falls in love with one of these negative young creatures hardly takes the trouble to ask whether she loves him" (Deland) "There is certainly a vague and widespread discontent with our present results [in education] but it is all a negative opinion" (A C Benson) Indifferent, as here compared (see also INDIFFERENT 1, MEDIUM) implies a character or appearance that does not readily define itself or fall into any clearly marked class or category the term is applicable to things (rarely to persons) which stir up no feeling or elicit no decision as to whether they are good or bad fit according with one's principles or not necessary or unnecessary pleasant or unpleasant, or the like as "though they disliked each other they could converse at length upon indifferent subjects" "it is indifferent to which race the father or the mother belongs Either one attitude is better than the other or else it is indifferent" (T S Eliot) "At Alexandria Hadrian found a money loving population worshipping Christ and Sarapis almost indifferently" (Inge) Adiaphorous is chiefly a technical term applicable to rites, ceremonies practices and the like, which are regarded as indifferent, or as neither necessary nor unnecessary, but often a matter of purely individual concern, thus fasting is an obligatory practice in some churches and an adiaphorous practice in others.

Con. Biased, disposed, predisposed (see INCLINE, v) positive *affirmative *decided, decisive.

neutralize. Neutralize, counteract, negative come into comparison as meaning to render one thing inoperative or ineffective by means of its opposite force, influence, effect, or the like. Neutralize often implies either the reduction of opposites to a state of equality, especially in influence, with the result that neither has the power to make way against the other or the nullification of the good or beneficial or conversely (as ' Unless powerfully

B Russell) or it may imply the operation or the use of forces that destroy or eradicate the evil or harmful thing or make the beneficial effect of a good thing impossible (as the spontaneous physiological processes which counteract disease before medical science comes into gests a frustration of a purpose or a hindrance to the production of an effect, as the hurricane negatived all the labors of the orange growers, their child's contact with all sorts of children in school negatived his early training in correct speech

Ana Offset countervail counterbalance, counterpoise (see COMPENSATE) defeat overcome subdue *conquer never-ending. *Everlasting endless interminable unceasing

Ana *Lasting permanent durable perdurable stable *immortal deathless undying unfading, fadeless amaranthine eternal sempiternal *infinite nevertheless. Still however *but yet new, adj New, novel, new-fashioned, newfangled, modern, neoteric, modernistic, original, fresh come into comparison when they mean having very recently come into existence or use or into a connection a position a state of being recognized, or the like A thing is new that has never before the time of its advent been known thought of manufactured experienced or the like, or that is just ready for use sale circulation or the like as, new books new ideas a new washing machine, "No man putteth new wine into old bottles (Mark ii 22), the new baby a new way of dressing the hair A person is new if he has just been taken into a military business, social, or other connection (as, a new soldier, a new stenographer, three new members the new rich) or if he has received his first experience (as he was frightened, being new to the sight"—Dickens), or if he has been renewed in spirit or in mind (as, ' If any man be in Russia and Italy' (Frankfurter), 'novel schemes of salvation' (L P Smith), ' sermons . bold in thought and novel in language" (E Wharton) ' The assumption that whatever has been customary must be bad and that ingeniously novel in its construction use, or the like often however, the term differs little from new except in suggesting disparagement, as newfangled toys imply up-to-dateness and novelty or a contrast with that which has been long accepted and still is the choice of the conservative in this special sense modernistic is now often preferred to modern as, ' the neoteric fashion of spending a honeymoon on the railway (Meredith) modern (or modernistic) furniture, modern (or modernistic) schools of painting Modern, however, is always other terms as opposed to ancient and medieval usually implies reference to the centuries beginning with the full Renaissance up to the present (as modern languages modern civilizations), often, however, the dividing line between that which is modern and that

A person or thing is original that produces or that is something new or novel and, at the same time the first of its kind as That he would be successful in an original to its native and impetuous generosity

Ant Old

newfangled. *New, novel, new-fashioned neoteric modernistic, modern original fresh new-fashioned. *New, novel, newfangled neoteric modernistic modern original fresh news News, tidings, intelligence, advice (or advices) are all used to designate a report or the reports of occurrences and conditions not previously known. News stresses novelty and freshness of information as, the gossip was not news to her; the letter contained no news. Since news is specifically applied to the information disseminated through journals shortly after the incidents have occurred, it also often implies distribution, even in its general sense or in some of its derivatives, as, experts in handling news; newsmongers. Tidings is now poetic or bookish. It is often appropriate in literary English when it refers to news orally communicated or disseminated as by a herald or messenger. "Fear not: ... I bring you good tidings of great joy. ... For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour" (Luke ii. 10-11). Intelligence commonly stresses the desirability or the practical value of the information rather than its freshness. "Their visits to Mrs. Philips were now productive of the most interesting intelligence" (Austen). In specific military use intelligence suggests clandestine methods of gathering information as by a secret service or spies. It is therefore applied not only to the news gathered but to the branch of the service commissioned to gather it. "An enemy superior in numbers, who possessed also the advantage in armament, position, and more accurate intelligence" (Buchan). In comparison with intelligence, which often suggests the gathering of important information, advice stresses the transmission of information and implies the immediacy of its value. It, therefore, or its plural advices, is often applied to the means by which this information is communicated, such as letters, telegrams, messengers, and the like. "No doubt he [Richelieu] had advices that Casale was sufficiently provisioned to last for many months, perhaps a year" (Belloc).

newspaper *Journal, periodical, magazine, review, organ.

next *Nearest.

nib or neb *Bill, beak.

nice 1 Nice, dainty, fastidious, finical, finicking, finicky, particular, fussy, squeamish, pernickety (or pernicketty, pernickity, also persnickety) come into comparison when they mean exacting or displaying exacting standards as in selection, judgment, workmanship, or the like. Nice, as here considered (see also CORRECT, DECOROUS), implies fineness of discrimination and power to distinguish the very good from that which is merely good; the term connotes rather more of intellectual quality than the other words, as, "an appetite for knowledge too eager to be nice" (Johnson); "In language one should be nice but not difficult" (J. R. Lowell); "to attain this union of gravity and simplicity requires the nicest art" (P. E. More); "he had a nice taste in literature and had edited Crashaw and Vaughan with conspicuous taste and much perception" (C. Mackenzie). Nice is also applicable to questions, problems, and the like, which require such powers of discrimination and subtlety or delicacy in handling if the solution is to be found, as, a nice experiment; the situation raises a nice question. Dainty, in the sense here considered (see also CHOICE), usually implies a tendency to select carefully that which does, or to reject with more or less disdain that which does not, satisfy one's extremely delicate taste or sensibility; it usually connotes chariness or a tendency to pick and choose, especially in eating, as, she has a dainty appetite. "No shape but his can please your dainty eye" (Shak.). "All highly developed forms of utterance are studiously acquired, the tough jargon of the East Side no less than the dainty discourse of the Four Hundred" (Grandgent). Fastidious, etymologically implies a strong aversion to that which does not satisfy one's sense of what is right, proper, in good taste, or the like. In its current use, however, it suggests the possession of ethical, artistic, social, or other standards that are so high that they impose a strain upon those who would meet them (as, "It is ... an advantage for an author to have two or three fastidious readers whom he can imagine sniffing at his pages"—L. P. Smith) or that cause suffering to the possessor when they are not satisfied (as, "I am fastidious in voices, and I can't endure listening to an imperfect reader"—G. Eliot; "The disorder was almost more than his fastidious taste could bear"—Cather) or that foster extreme care in selection from that which is offered or available (as, "a fastidious instinct for the connotations of a phrase"—Pater; "Why such a desperate orgy of literature? I thought you were of a more fastidious habit—not like Stanley, who insists on reading everything"—R. Macaulay). Finical (or the colloquial finicking or finicky) implies an affected or overnice fastidiousness, as, "His reserve, his delicacy, his distaste for many of the persons and things surrounding him ... have produced an impression of Gray as being a man falsely fastidious, finical, effeminate" (Arnold); "a world of little finical observances and little frail proprieties" (Stevenson); a finicky taste in dress. Particular, as here compared, implies an insistence that all details or circumstances should be exactly as one wishes them or that one's special or peculiar standards must be met. In contrast with fastidious, particular may or may not imply what others would call a high standard; the term usually suggests standards which the individual regards as high or exacting, as, a particular teacher; she is particular about the way steak should be broiled. "I'm going to change it [one engraving on a wall] with that one. ... He said the effect would be very much better if they were changed. And his lordship is very particular" (Bennett). "As she approached, George Adams, who had a particular mother, rose, and Niel followed his example" (Cather). Fussy is applicable not only to fastidious or particular persons and to acts that manifest a disposition to be querulous or fidgety (as, "she was not one of the trivially fussy domesticated women"—H. Ellis; "In this matter Augustus moved slowly and tactfully. He was no lawyer, and he had not the fussy interest of Claudius in the work of the courts"—Buchan) but also to things that are so difficult or so complicated that they make a particular person engaged upon them nervous or fidgety (as, a fussy piece of work; an extremely fussy operation). Squeamish etymologically implies a readiness to be nauseated by the sight, taste, smell, or hearing of something disagreeable, as, "the starved stomach is not squeamish" (Hudson). In its extended use it implies a disgust for or an aversion to that which does not satisfy one's standards of what is decent, delicate, honest, or nice. It therefore sometimes connotes extreme sensitiveness or prudishness or scrupulousness or the like, as, "such squeamish youths as cannot bear to be connected with a little absurdity are not worth a regret" (Austen); "trifles magnified into importance by a squeamish conscience" (Macaulay); "As to the nudities ... they might well have startled a not very squeamish eye" (N. Hawthorne); "Our nerves ... are unduly delicate and our tastes too squeamish" (L. Stephen). Pernickety is a colloquial term which manifests the speaker's (sometimes writer's) annoyance, exasperation, or disgust excited by persons who are unduly fussy or finical or by tasks, problems, etc., that are so delicate or complicated that they impose severe strain on one's patience and good temper, as, "The grammarian, the purist, the pernickety stickler for trifles" (B. Matthews); such confining and pernickety work. (Harper's Mag.) Ana *Wise judicious, sage sapient punctilious meticulous scrupulous *careful discriminating discerning penetrating (see corresponding nouns at DISCERNMENT) Con *Coarse gross, vulgar crude callow green raw (see RUDE) *negligent lax remiss, neglectful slack.

2 Precise exact accurate *correct right Ana Strict *rigid rigorous stringent exquisite delicate rare (see CHOICE adj) Con *Random haphazard, hit-or-miss happy-go-lucky *careless, heedless inadvertent 3 Proper seemly comme il faut demure *decorous decent Ana Fitting *fit appropriate suitable meet ☞ Below this level and not embodying the main tendency of nice to express an aversion to or a distaste for anything that does not reach the state of perfection in method manner or deportment lie several other uses which do not meet general approval In general it is a term of approval that reveals nothing out of the ordinary or exacts no attention to a high standard as, a nice day a nice letter a nice book a nice dinner niche *Recess alcove nook embrasure bay cubicle carrell carol nick n *Dent dint notch indentation indenture nifty Nobby natty spruce *stylish fashionable modish smart chic dapper dashing posh toffish, brave braw niggardly Parsimonious penurious miserly *stingy close closefisted tight tightfisted curmudgeonly cheeseparing penny-pinching Ana *Covetous avaricious grasping greedy *sparing economical frugal thrifty *mean ignoble Ant Bountiful — Con *Liberal generous, munificent handsome *profuse lavish prodigal nigh adj & adv *Close near near by Ant Far

nightly Nightly nocturnal agree in meaning of belonging to or occurring at night Nightly is the preferred term when the opposition to daily (as connoting daytime) is to be implied as the daily and nightly visits of his physician there were both daily and nightly raids for several weeks But nightly whether opposed to daily or not commonly carries so strong an implication of recurrence that the term is interpreted as meaning night after night unless the context clearly indicates reference to a single night or to special nights as the doctor made only two nightly visits this week the nightly meetings of the general's staff nightly revels nightly prowls he kept a nightly vigil Nocturnal is often literary or ... technical but it applies specifically and w tho ... things which are so associated with the night ... are thought of as belonging or appropriate to ... of darkness thus, nocturnal animals or insects (bats owls, some flies, etc) are active or evident only during the night animals of nocturnal habits the nocturnal office of a monk (commonly called matins) is usually sung between midnight and dawn nocturnal sounds are those one hears only at night and therefore associates with that period Nocturnal is the correct term when the effect of darkness or of moonlight or starlight ... as the changing beauty of ... (Bennett) Ant Daily

nightmare Dream vision *fan[illegible] phantasm daydream Ana *Delusion, hallucination illusion threatening or threat menacing or menace (see corresponding verbs at THREATEN) nihilist *Collectivist socialist communist, Bolshevist anarchist nimble *Agile brisk spry Ana Sprightly *lively animated alert, wide-awake vigilant *watchful *supple limber lithe.

nimbus *Halo glory aureole nix, fem nixie *Fairy faery fay elf sprite pixy gnome dwarf goblin brownie puck shee leprechaun banshee nob *Fop dandy beau coxcomb exquisite fig[illegible] dude macaroni buck spark swell toff nobby *Stylish fashionable modish smart, chic dapper dashing spruce natty nifty posh toffish brave braw nobility *Aristocracy gentry county gentlefolk ... society noble 1 Stately majestic imposing august, magnificent *grand grandiose Ana Glorious *splendid resplendent superb sublime illustrious eminent distinguished (see FAMOUS) Ant Ignoble cheap — Con Despicable *contemptible sorry scurvy beggarly 2 Virtuous righteous *moral ethical Ana Honorable *upright just honest Ant Base (of actions etc) atrocious (of acts deeds etc) nocturnal *Nightly Ana Diurnal.

noise n *Sound sonance Ana Discordance dissonance (see under DISSONANT) *din uproar babel hubbub racket pandemonium noiseless Silent quiet *still stilly Ana *Calm tranquil serene placid Con Clamorous *vociferous strident boisterous noisome Fetid stinking *malodorous, putrid, rank rancid fusty musty Ana Foul nasty squalid filthy *dirty noxious baneful *pernicious deleterious loathsome *offensive revolting Ant Balmy — Con *Odorous, fragrant aromatic redolent nomadic *Itinerant peripatetic ambulatory ambulant vagrant nom de guerre *Pseudonym alias pen name nom de plume incognito, allonym nom de plume Pen name nom de guerre *pseudonym alias incognito allonym nominate *Designate name elect appoint Ana Propose *intend mean purpose present tender *offer proffer

... rant applicant.

nonchalant Unruffled imperturbable *cool composed collected Ana Unconcerned *indifferent aloof detached lighthearted cheerful *glad *easy effortless, light smooth Con Concerned solicitous anxious worried careful (see under c...) ... ary crated
... ... ertainia

nonesuch *Paragon sublimation apotheosis phoenix nonpareil nonmoral Unmoral amoral *immoral nonpareil *Paragon sublimation apotheosis, phoenix nonesuch nonplus. Bewilder distract confound dumfound mystify perplex *puzzle Ana Faze rattle *embarrass discomfit disconcert *confuse muddle bemuddle baffle balk *frustrate nonreligious Unreligious, *irreligious ungodly godless Ana Secular *profane lay temporal nonsocial *Unsocial asocial antisocial nook *Recess alcove niche embrasure bay cubicle carrell carol norm *Average mean median par normal *Regular typical, natural Ana. Ordinary *common familiar *usual customary habitual wonted accustomed Ant Abnormal adventitious (sense 2) nosy or nosey *Curious inquisitive prying snoopy Ana Meddlesome *impertinent intrusive obtrusive notch, n *Dent dint nick indentation, indenture note, n 1 *Sign, mark token, badge symptom Ana Indication betokening bespeaking attesting (see corresponding verbs at INDICATE) character *quality property attribute accident.

2 Mark sign symbol *character 3 *Remark, observation comment, commentary descant obiter dictum Ana Annotation gloss (see under ANNOTATE) remembering, reminding or reminder recalling or recaller (see corresponding verbs at REMEMBER) 4 *Letter epistle missive message dispatch, report memorandum note v Remark, notice perceive discern observe contemplate survey view *see behold descry espy noted Renowned celebrated *famous famed distinguished eminent illustrious notorious Ana Conspicuous, outstanding salient signal *noticeable remarkable. notice v Remark observe note perceive discern *see behold descry espy view survey contemplate Ana Recognize *acknowledge *refer advert allude Con Ignore slight overlook, disregard *neglect noticeable Noticeable remarkable, prominent, outstanding, conspicuous salient signal, striking arresting agree in meaning attracting or compelling notice or attention Noticeable implies that the thing so described does not or cannot escape observation as, noticeable attentions to a lady a noticeable aversion to another's company noticeably crude behavior Remarkable adds to noticeable the further implication of inviting comment or of demanding a call to others attention it may or may not impute to the thing so described an extraordinary or exceptional character as he has made no remarkable gain in skill during the last five years he has a remarkable gift for making friends Prominent seldom loses its earliest implication of protuberance or projection above a level or beyond a surface in literal use it is applied chiefly to things that noticeably protrude from their background as a prominent nose her eyes were a china blue rather prominent and inexpressive (Cather) a landscape without prominent features In extended use it is applied to persons or things that stand out so clearly from their surroundings that they are often in evidence or are generally known or recognized or are frequently pointed out or the like as the prominent persons in a town the church occupies a prominent position at tending to his parish duties without making himself too prominent by his enthusiasm or his originality (C Mackenzie) Outstanding although it implies prominence is applicable only to that which rises above or beyond others of the same kind and is remarkable by comparison with them, as there is no outstanding man among the candidates for this office the new anthology is outstanding in its kind in that it gives complete works not excerpts Conspicuous is applicable chiefly to that which is so obvious or patent that the eye or the mind cannot miss it (as conspicuous merit conspicuous bravery) it is also used to describe that which strikes the eye or the mind (often unpleasantly) through its singularity as to wear conspicuous clothes to make oneself conspicuous by one's affectations his supporters are conspicuous by their absence Salient stresses emphatic quality and is applied to that which thrusts itself upon one's attention or impresses itself insistently upon the mind it imputes significance more often than obtrusiveness to the thing so described "There are days rich in salient news and days far from rich in it (C E Montague) The Middle Ages sacrificed ruthlessly subsidiary qualities to throw into sharp relief the salient trait till Griselda for example carried patience beyond the utmost bound of human thought (Lowes) Signal suggests such distinction from that which is ordinary or usual that the thing so described is in itself remarkable or memorable as, the signal sacrifice of Sir Robert Scott a signal mark of esteem signal bravery in action. Striking is applicable to that which impresses itself powerfully and deeply upon the observer's mind or vision as one easily remembers the striking scenes in a story to give a striking example of loyalty a woman of striking beauty Arresting adds to striking the suggestion of capturing attention or of more than passing interest as an arresting personality, an arresting story The slight steel-coloured figure with steel-coloured hair was more arresting in its immobility than all the vociferations and gestures of the mob (Galsworthy) Ana. *Evident manifest obvious, palpable patent notify Apprise advise acquaint *inform advertise Ana Announce *declare proclaim publish promulgate broadcast *reveal disclose discover divulge tell notion *Idea concept conception thought impression Ana *Opinion view belief conviction, persuasion sentiment notoriety Reputation repute éclat *fame celebrity renown honor glory Ana *Publicity propaganda promotion, ballyhoo notorious *Famous famed renowned noted celebrated distinguished eminent illustrious Ana Conspicuous, *noticeable remarkable outstanding salient *flagrant glaring gross rank notwithstanding Notwithstanding in spite of, despite are often interchangeable prepositions Notwithstanding the least emphatic merely implies the presence of an obstacle in spite of the most emphatic, suggests active opposition or strongly adverse considerations to be encountered despite is somewhat lighter in its emphasis than in spite of and otherwise is closer to notwithstanding than to in spite of as notwithstanding the rain I shall go I shall go in spite of all your efforts to prevent me despite his assurances, I doubted him. nought Naught aught, ought *cipher zero nourish *Feed pasture graze Ana *Nurse nurture foster cultivate nourishment Nutriment sustenance *food aliment pabulum Ana Support keep, maintenance sustenance *living novel, adj *New new fashioned newfangled neoteric modern, modernistic original fresh Ana *Strange singular unique peculiar Con *Usual customary habitual ordinary *common familiar novel Novel romance fiction that deals more or less realistically with the life of the present or of the past that involves its characters in situations arising out of their individual temperaments or out of the clash between opposing temperaments and that has a definite plot which moves through entanglethe modern form there is greater emphasis on character than on plot and on the inner life than on external action with the result that what happens before the action begins or what may happen after it ends is more or less dealing with the actual or more often the legendary exploits of a hero or heroes such as Arthur and the knights of the Round Table Charlemagne Roland and others Originally the term implied an opposition to the character and that arouses interest chiefly by surprising incidents wonderful exploits or glamorous characters and situations In still later and still current use romance as distinguished from novel often in addition specifically implies the subordination of character to the plot little novice, novitiate Novice, novitiate apprentice some persons) may be applied to anyone who comes under this description since inexperience is their chief distinguishing implication as a novice in writing You are but novices in the art of naval resources (Burke) Novice is specifically applied to a new member of a religious order who is undergoing training before taking first (usually not the final) vows Apprentice is applicable only to a beginner who is serving under another as his master or teacher The breathless the fructifying adoration of a young apprentice in the atelier of some great master of the Renaissance (Van W Brooks) In such applications it commonly emphasizes subjection to a taskmaster and to discipline rather than inexperience Although specifically it often denotes a youth who is seaman) who is receiving instruction in seamanship gunnery and the rudiments of a general education (at a who is on trial for a period of time and must prove his aptitude for the work or life as the most disagreeable tasks in a hospital are often assigned to probationers among the nurses In Scotland a divinity student who is licensed to preach but has not yet received a call is spoken of as a probationer Postulant implies candidacy for admission as into a religious order It usually also implies acceptance for a period of probation hence postulant and probationer are sometimes interchanged in literal use In extended use they are because of the difference in their fundamental implications rarely criminating use however it carries connotations of innocence and youthful eagerness derived from its earliest English association with a newly baptized person or convert to Christianity The old philosopher of Montecello was more than pleased with this ardent neophyte Not since his own years abroad had Jefferson seen such an eager student (Van W Brooks) nouns at INJURY) *poisonous virulent venomous toxic pestilent miasmatic noisome stinking fetid putrid (see MALODOROUS)

Ant Wholesome sanitary nucleus *Center middle midst core hub omphalos naked bald barren

otiose idle empty hollow valueless (see affirmative nouns at WORTH) trifling trivial *petty paltry ineffectual tive inefficacious fruitless bootless futile abortive Nullify negate, annul abrogate invalidate in current literary or general senses are often interchangeable without marked loss All then bear the common denotation to deprive of effective or continued existence One thing nullifies another when the former reduces the latter to nothingness or deprives it of effectiveness validity or value Each of his [Antony's] virtues was nullified by some rampant vice (Buchan) One thing negates another when one cannot coexist with the other or both are mutually destructive as our actions often negate our principles death is the negation of life One thing annuls another (see also ANNUL) when it neutralizes the effect of the other or deprives it of power to act or work 'That is why we call them [the two types of electricity] positive and negative—because they are capable of annulling one another's action" negates another (see also spenses with or es the rights of

of each group

the minority One thing invalidates another when it deprives the latter of its force or legality Invalidate usually implies failure to meet tests of soundness or to conform to imposed conditions, as, a beneficiary under a will cannot witness the will without invalidating it "Let us try to discover how far the facts confirm or invalidate this proud claim' (A Huxley)

Ana *Neutralize, negative counteract offset, countervail counterbalance, *compensate. *limit, restrict confine.

number, n Quantity, whole, total, aggregate *sum, amount.

number, v *Count tell enumerate.

Ana *Calculate, compute, estimate, reckon numerous. *Many, several sundry, various divers, manifold, multifold multifarious.

Ana. *Large great, big abundant, *plentiful plenteous.

nun, *Religious, monk friar nuncio. Legate, internuncio, *ambassador, minister envoy nunnery. *Cloister monastery, convent, abbey priory nuptial, adj *Matrimonial conjugal, connubial hymeneal, marital nuptials. *Marriage matrimony, wedlock, wedding spousal espousals nurse, v Nurse, nurture, foster, cherish, cultivate come into comparison not so strikingly in their primary as in implies similar sedulous attentions such as brooding over or constant provision of sustenance or that which feeds or nourishes thereby strengthening what was at first weak, or indefinite or tentative or the like as the uncle of this young woman had long nursed the Reverence for age and authority even for law has disappeared, and in the train of these have gone the virtues they engendered and nurtured (G L. Dickinson)

Foster (etymologically, to provide a young thing with food and care as or more often as if, its parent) is now extended use it is not always distinguishable from nurse, but among discriminating writers and speakers, it still independence and cast contempt on the narrow self-absorption of domestic love (H Ellis) Julius was a or to plants in order to improve their condition. In figurative or extended use it implies comparable and equally sedulous attentions to the improvement or growth of something desirable as his sense of personal initiative is cultivated instead of being diminished (B Russell) "Determined that his own books should not justify a similar reproach he cultivated his literary gifts with conscientious industry (A Huxley) We shall do well to foster the studies most conducive to the habits we wish to cultivate (Grandgent)

Ana *Feed nourish promote *advance further forward *indulge pamper humor nurture n Foster *nurse cherish cultivate rear (see LIFT) train educate, school (see TEACH) *support uphold back.

ect overlook, disregard ignore.

Nourishment, sustenance *food aliment pabulum

Ana Maintenance, support, keep bread and butter *living obdurate. Inexorable, *inflexible adamant, adamantine

O

Ana. *Hardened indurated callous *obstinate stubborn mulish stiff necked *unmovable, unmobile

Con *Tender compassionate yielding submitting trine is best calculated to make the common people docile wage slaves (Shaw) Tractable, which is nearly as often applied to things as to persons and animals suggests success or ease in handling or managing Unlike docile which in many ways it closely resembles it seldom implies a submissive temperament thus a docile child is always tractable but a strong willed child may prove tractable when he is wisely guided Loving she is and tractable though wild (Wordsworth) It [the Roman amental willingness or readiness to submit not however in the spirit of obedience but because of a desire to be a more homely word than docile it is used chiefly of children of servants and the like Theophilus nodded silently He was perfectly apathetic He seemed to be just a silent biddable child (Deland)

Ana *Compliant acquiescent resigned submissive subdued *tame deferential obeisant (see corresponding nouns at HONOR)

Ant Disobedient contumacious — Con *Insubordinate rebellious *contrary perverse froward wayward recalcitrant refractory intractable *unruly ungovernable obeisance Deference homage *honor reverence

Ana Allegiance fealty loyalty *fidelity respect esteem *regard veneration reverence (see under REVERE) obese Corpulent rotund chubby *fleshy fat stout portly plump

Ant Scrawny — Con *Lean spare angular rawboned lank lanky gaunt skinny *thin slender slim slight.

obiter dictum *Remark observation comment commentary note descant.

object, v Object, protest, remonstrate, expostulate dislike or aversion that it often is lacking in a clear or definite implication of vocal or other outward opposition very frequently however such a reaction is suggested suspension of a lower law by a higher' (Inge) "swear … and protesting against every delay in the work (S Anderson) Remonstrate implies protestation but it carries so much stronger an implication of an attempt to convince or persuade than protest carries that it is often, though not invariably the preferred term when the objection is to something being done by a child a friend, or a relative rather than by an official or an impersonal agent or when reproof is also implied Now and then a

Denver (Cather) Expostulate differs little from remonstrate but it usually carries a heightened implication of firm earnest but friendly reasoning or insistence on the merits of one s arguments The priestly brother ye at my sacrifice and at mine offering? (I Samuel ii 29), when the tax rate was raised for the fourth successive year everybody kicked

Ana *Demur balk scruple jib boggle shy stick, stickle *criticize denounce reprobate

Ant Acquiesce — Con *Assent consent, agree accede object, n 1 *Thing article

Ana *Affair concern matter thing *form figure shape configuration.

2 Objective goal end aim design purpose, *intention, intent

Ana *Motive incentive inducement

Con Result *effect consequence objectify Externalize substantiate substantialize materialize incarnate embody *realize actualize hypostatize reify objective, adj 1 *Material physical corporeal, phenomenal sensible

Ana External outside *outer outward tangible palpable *perceptible

Ant Subjective

2 Impartial unbiased dispassionate uncolored *fair just equitable

Ana & Ant See those at OBJECTIVE 1

Object end goal aim design purpose intent

*Execrate curse damn ban anathematize

Ana Revile vituperate (see SCOLD) condemn, denounce reprobate *criticize Con Applaud *commend compliment.

come into comparison circumstances but a greater impulsion on moral or ethical grounds; thus, a person weighed down by a sense of duty is keenly aware of what in general he ought to do; one has a sense of obligation only in a particular case and for a particular reason; so, Wordsworth describes duty as "the stern daughter of the voice of God" "The path of duty was the way to glory" (Tennyson) "The old statesman [Cicero] was now in a sad frame of mind, torn between duty and self interest" (Buchan) "In the apprehension of these eternal Values, and in earnest striving to co-operate with the divine will in actualising them, lies the whole duty of man" (Inge) Ana Compulsion, constraint, restraint (see FORCE, n): responsibility, accountability, answerability (see corresponding adjectives at RESPONSIBLE) 2 *Debt, indebtedness, liability, debit, arrear, arrearage Ana Burden, *load: promising or promise, engagement, pledging or pledge (see corresponding verbs at PROMISE) oblige. 1 Constrain, coerce, compel, *force.

Ana *Tie, bind
2 Oblige, accommodate, favor agree in denoting to gratify a person by doing him a service or courtesy. To oblige a person is to make him indebted by doing something that is pleasing to him. "Punch was always anxious to oblige every body" (Kipling) "She had given him up to oblige others" (Austen) It is commonly used in the passive voice as a conventional acknowledgment of small courtesies or offices. "There is an oversight . . . which I shall be much obliged to you to correct" (Macaulay) Accommodate, when it is used of services, is often interchangeable with oblige in the active voice. Sometimes, especially in the participial adjective, it implies gracious compliance, as, an accommodating man; sometimes it connotes the intent to be of assistance. "I was willing to accommodate you by undertaking to sell the horse" (G. Eliot) But accommodate often suggests a business transaction rather than an act of kindness and an obligation to pay or repay. In such use it commonly implies a loan of money or acceptance as a paying guest (see also CONTAIN), as, the bank accommodated him when he provided sufficient security; no hotel in town could accommodate the party. To favor, by contrast, is to render an attention or a service solicited or unsolicited out of good will and commonly, but not necessarily, without imposing any obligation on or expecting a return from the person favored, as, to favor a person with one's advice. "Fortune favored him in all his enterprises." Sometimes the implication of partiality is so strong as to obscure that of giving gratification or assistance, as, he always favored gifted students. The verb is of more restricted application than the noun and in ironical use suggests gratuitousness. "The stupidity with which he was favoured by nature" (Austen) Ana. Gratify, *please: *benefit, profit, avail: *help, aid, assist: *support, uphold, back.
Ant. Disoblige. — Con. *Inconvenience, incommode, discommode, trouble obliging. Good-natured, complaisant, *amiable Ana. Helping or helpful, aiding, assisting (see corresponding verbs at HELP): accommodating, favoring (see OBLIGE): *compliant, acquiescent: *thoughtful, considerate Ant Disobliging: inconsiderate oblique. *Crooked, devious.

Ana. *Awry, askance, askew: *indirect, circuitous, roundabout Con. *Direct, immediate: *straightforward, forthright, downright, *forthright obliterate. Efface, cancel, expunge, *erase, blot out, delete, dele Ana *Abolish, annihilate, extinguish: *destroy, raze: annul, abrogate, negate, invalidate, *nullify.

oblivious. *Forgetful, unmindful Ana Disregarding, ignoring, forgetting, neglecting, overlooking (see NEGLECT, v) Con. *Aware, conscious, cognizant: *thoughtful, attentive, considerate: alert, vigilant, *watchful obloquy. 1 *Abuse, vituperation, invective, scurrility, billingsgate Ana. Censuring or censure, condemning or condemnation, denouncing or denunciation, criticizing or criticism (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE): calumny, *detraction, backbiting, slander, scandal.

2 *Disgrace, dishonor, disrepute, shame, infamy, ignominy, opprobrium, odium, scandal Ana *Stigma, brand, blot, stain: humiliation, humbling, degradation (see corresponding verbs at ABASE) obnoxious Distasteful, invidious, abhorrent, *repugnant, repellent Ana *Hateful, odious, detestable, abominable: *offensive, loathsome, repulsive, revolting Ant Grateful.

obscene Gross, vulgar, ribald, *coarse Ana Indecent, indelicate, *indecorous: lewd, lascivious, wanton, *licentious: foul, nasty, *dirty Ant Decent

obscurantist. Obscurantist, Philistine, barbarian agree in denoting one inaccessible or opposed to enlightenment. An obscurantist is one who is precluded by prejudice (as traditionalism or bigotry) from intellectual candor and open-minded inquiry and who is opposed to the introduction of new and enlightened ideas and methods. "From this class of [Chinese] obscurantists who had hitherto resisted all Western innovations there now came young leaders eager to emulate Japan" (Peace Handbooks) "You working men complain of the clergy for being bigoted and obscurantist and hating the cause of the people" (Kingsley) A Philistine is one whose attention is centered on material or worldly things, and is indifferent or blind to whatever makes an appeal only to the mind or soul. The term usually implies obtuseness and insensitiveness. "In their heavy inaccessibility to ideas, their dull respectability, their tedious orthodoxy, their worship of vulgar success, their entire preoccupation with the gross materialistic side of life, and their ridiculous estimate of themselves and their importance, the Jews of Jerusalem in Christ's day were the exact counterpart of the British Philistine of our own" (Wilde) In the following quotation Matthew Arnold has assigned to Philistine a restriction, and to barbarian a sense, that have been adopted by some later writers. "Philistine gives the notion of something particularly stiff-necked and perverse in the resistance to light and its children, and therein it specially suits our middle class. . . . But the aristocratic class . . . if it does not pursue light, it is not that it perversely cherishes some dismal and illiberal existence in preference to light, but it is lured off from following light by . . . worldly splendor, security, power and pleasure. . . . I often, therefore, when I want to distinguish clearly the aristocratic class from the Philistines proper, or middle class, name the former, in my own mind the Barbarians" obscure, adj 1 Murky, gloomy, opaque, *dark, dim, dusk, dusky, darkling Ana Shady, shadowy, umbrageous (see corresponding nouns at SHADE) Con. *Clear, lucid: *bright, brilliant, luminous 2 Obscure, dark, vague, enigmatic, cryptic, ambiguous, equivocal come into comparison when they are language or expression (sometimes to causes motives etc) and agree in meaning not sufficiently intelligible or

(H Ellis) Real and offensive obscurity comes merely of inadequate thought embodied in inadequate language (Swinburne) ' The mere text of the play will often look general or because it is so imperfectly conceived or thought out that it is incapable of clear formulation.

gain power from vague discourse about unknown or unassimilated facts (Grandgent) That is enigmatic which puzzles mystifies and often baffles one who would seek its true meaning or significance She fell to conjecturing the meaning of Farfrae s enigmatic words about not daring to ask her what he fain would (Hardy) Puzzling out the threats or the enigmatic promises of poets] discovered If that sounds cryptic let us start with a modern instance (Lowes) That is ambiguous which admits of more than one interpretation largely does not say which end (Eddington) We are here not far from the ambiguous doctrine that art is expression for expression may be too easily confused with communication (H Ellis) That is equivocal which permits a wrong or false impression thereby admitting uncertainty and confusion or fostering error As applied to use of words equivocal is distinguishable from ambiguous in that it implies the repeated use of a word in different applications in such a way as to convey the impression that the term carries the same implications and connotations in each case as, the equivocal use of 'democracy by persons who apply it to popular governments of widely varying types. In extended use equivocal is applied to anything such as an act or a mode of life that admits of two possible or plausible interpretations, one of which may be harmful or discreditable as, equivocal conduct an equivocal remark.

Ana Abstruse *recondite occult esoteric difficult *hard complicated intricate involved (see COMPLEX) *mysterious, inscrutable

Ant Distinct obvious celebrated (as a person) — Con *Clear perspicuous, lucid *evident manifest obvious express, *explicit definite cringing fawning truckling cowering (see FAWN v) Ant Contumelious

Observance, observation, though derived from the same root came into English about two centuries apart. They are not ... are sometimes confused Observance the ... two forms has always retained a close relation to observe in the sense of keep (see observe under KEEP 1) and therefore almost invariably implies a servances, which he supposed a regular part of the business —Austen The beauty of an inherited courtesy of manners of a thousand little ceremonies flowering out of the most ordinary relations and observances of life"—Binyon) Observation the later term is in current use sharply distinguished from observance for it usually bears a close relation to observe in the sense of to watch attentively Except for its specific sense of a comment (see REMARK n) the term may denote either the act or ... denotes several

note descant, ... on gloss (see under ANNOTATE) *criticism critique observe 1 *Keep celebrate solemnize commemorate Ana Respect esteem regard (see under REGARD, n) *revere reverence venerate.

Ant Violate — Con *Neglect ignore overlook, disregard slight 2 Survey view contemplate notice remark note perceive discern *see behold descry espy Ana *Scrutinize examine scan inspect observer. *Spectator beholder looker-on, onlooker witness, eyewitness bystander, kibitzer obsolete. *Old antiquated archaic antique ancient, venerable antediluvian Ant Current.

obstacle Obstacle obstruction impediment bar snag agree in denoting something which seriously hampers action or progress Obstacle, which is used of both material and immaterial things applies to any object, condition situation or the like which stands in one's ... one is to ... it for the ... ered that ... across the path (Hardy) It is of the very essence of supremacy to remove all obstacles to its action within its own sphere (Ch Just Marshall) The new Lord Advocate ... the conqueror of many obstacles (Steven...) Obstruction may be used of immaterial things, but such use is often obviously figurative for the word suggests a blocking of a way or passage as, the French Maginot ... serious ob...

Crothers) Impediment which etymologically implies an entangling of the feet is in precise use applied to something (material or immaterial) which serves to hinder or delay action or progress until one is freed from it as the refugee's limited knowledge of English was for a long time an impediment to his progress in his profession divorce is often a means of freeing oneself from an impediment to another marriage I have made my way through more impediments Than twenty times your stop (Shak) [In commerce] distance of place difference of speech are irremovable impediments (Bagehot) Bar applies to something interposed as by nature or by man, which serves, either in effect or by intention, to prevent admission or escape as effectually as the bars of a cage or prison. Sometimes the word carries a strong suggestion of prohibition, especially when it applies to a law or condition that restrains as, under the immigration laws, a criminal record an infectious disease and illiteracy are bars to admission to the United States he found his infirmity no bar to his success in his profession Must I new bars to my own joy create? (Dryden) Who breaks his birth's invidious bar And breasts the blows of circumstance (Tennyson) Snag from its literal application to a stump of a tree with jagged points which lies hidden under water and proves a hazard to boats is figuratively applied to any obstacle or impediment which is hidden from view and which one encounters as suddenly and as sharply as a boat that strikes a snag as, they struck many snags in the course of their investigation refugees continually running against some snags in the shape of laws affecting aliens

Ana Barrier *bar hindering or hindrance blocking or block (see corresponding verbs at HINDER) opposing or opposition resisting or resistance withstanding (see corresponding verbs at OPPOSE) obstinate Obstinate dogged stubborn pertinacious mulish, stiff necked pigheaded bullheaded come into comparison when they mean fixed or unyielding in one's purpose course or the like Obstinate implies persistent adherence especially against persuasion or attack to an opinion, purpose or course when applied to persons their ideas, and the like the term often suggests unreasonableness or perversity rather than steadfastness as "They will not be resolute and firm but perverse and obstinate (Burke) so yielding doubtful points that he can be firm without seeming obstinate in essential ones (J R Lowell) There is nothing in the world which can be quite so obstinate as a yielding mild opinionless girl (Deland) Dogged adds the implication of downright and tenacious sometimes sullen persistence usually also it connotes great determination or an unwavering purpose as a dogged veracity (Johnson) a dogged perseverance (Thackeray) Men whose hearts insist upon a dogged fidelity to some image or cause (Hardy) his mother's influence was to make him quietly determined patient dogged unwearied (D H Lawrence) Stubborn is often used interchangeably with obstinate and dogged for it implies the unyielding adherence of the one and the tenacious determination of the other more strongly than either of them however it carries an implication of a native fixedness of character or of a deeply inrooted quality that makes a person sturdily resistant to attempts to change his purpose course or opinion or that makes a thing highly intractable to those who would work it treat it manipulate it or the like as stubborn as a mule (Smollett) Their furrow oft the stubborn glebe has broke (Gray) Cases which proved stubborn to treat and often impossible to cure (V Heiser). Poetry whose democracy is tempered by a stubborn conviction that democracy thwarts the development of the individual at its peril (Lowes) Pertinacious lacks as compared with obstinate the implication of resistance and as compared with stubborn the suggestion of inherent quality it usually implies a chosen course and stresses its pursuit with stick-to-itiveness and often with a persistence that is annoying or irksome as pertinacious as a mosquito a pertinacious beggar [Socrates's] originality lay not in any purely speculative views but in the pertinacious curiosity practical in its origin and aim with which he attacked and sifted the ethical conceptions of his time (G L Dickinson) Mulish suggests an obstinacy as characteristic or as unreasonable as that of a mule as a man intolerably irritable with a mulish determination to make the worst of everything (T S Eliot). A fierce hot hard old stupid squire Small brain great courage mulish will (Masefield) Stiff necked, more even than obstinate or stubborn stresses inflexibility it often also suggests a haughtiness or arrogance that makes one like a high spirited horse incapable of obeying the rein incapable of respecting the commands wishes or suggestions of others as the stiff necked father could neither control his children nor win their love when they approached adolescence "Be ye not stiffnecked as your fathers were but yield yourselves unto the Lord (2 Chronicles xxx. 8) Pigheaded and bullheaded (both more colloquial than the other terms of this group) suggest a particularly perverse or stupid kind of obstinacy therefore they are chiefly terms of severe reproach pigheaded however often suggests impenetrability to argument and bullheaded headstrong determination as many of the managing posts will be filled up by pigheaded people only because they happen to have the habit of ordering poor people about (Shaw), their bull headed obstinacy (Scott)

Ana Headstrong willful recalcitrant *unruly obdurate inexorable *inflexible resolute steadfast stanch (see FAITHFUL)

Ant Pliant, pliable — Con *Plastic malleable ductile submitting or submissive yielding succumbing (see corresponding verbs at YIELD) *compliant acquiescent obstreperous *Vociferous clamorous blatant strident boisterous

Ana *Unruly ungovernable intractable headstrong refractory uproarious rackety (see corresponding nouns at DIN)

Con Restrained curbed checked (see RESTRAIN) quiet, *still, silent noiseless obstruct Impede block *hinder bar dam

Ana *Prevent preclude obviate avert *restrain check, curb inhibit obstruction *Obstacle impediment bar snag

Ana Hindering or hindrance blocking or block (see corresponding verbs at HINDER) arresting or arrest checking or check, interruption (see corresponding verbs at ARREST)

Ant Assistance — Con. Forwarding furthering promoting or promotion advancing or advancement (see corresponding verbs at ADVANCE) obtain *Get, procure secure acquire gain win earn

Ana Gain *reach achieve attain effect, fulfill accomplish *perform obtrude *Intrude interlope butt in Ana *Interpose interfere intervene mediate obtrusive Intrusive meddlesome *impertinent, officious pragmatical.

Ana Inquisitive *curious prying snoopy, nosy blatant strident (see VOCIFEROUS)

Ant Unobtrusive shy obtuse. *Dull blunt.

Ana Insensitive *insensible anesthetic, impassible stolid phlegmatic *impassive

Ant Acute — Con *Sharp keen sensitive, susceptible open exposed (see LIABLE) obverse, n *Converse reverse obviate Precl

Ana *Juncture pass situation posture condition *state moment *instant

*Cause determinant antecedent reason

Ana Incident *occurrence event *origin source inception occasional *Infrequent uncommon scarce rare sporadic

Ana Casual desultory *random incidental *accidental

Ant Customary — Con *Usual habitual accustomed wonted constant *continual continuous occult Esoteric mystic cabalis-calling pursuit métier business.

occur *Happen hap chance, befall betide transpire

Ana Rise arise *spring, emanate issue, proceed *follow succeed ensue supervene occurrence Occurrence, event, incident, episode circumstance agree in denoting something that happens or takes place Occurrence is the general term for that occurrence of subordinate character or secondary importance either a mere casual happening having little writers have won that honor [an Oxford degree] it is in fact almost a routine (1923) caused the severance of diplomatic relations between Italy and Greece at APPEAR) *juncture pass exigency emergency contingency posture situation, condition, *state oceanic. *Aquatic marine thalassic neritic pelagic abyssal bathysmal bathybic lacustrine lacustral fluvial fluviatile odd Queer quaint *strange singular unique peculiar eccentric erratic outlandish curious

Ana Bizarre grotesque *fantastic anomalous *irregular unnatural

Con *Usual customary habitual ordinary *common familiar normal *regular typical natural odds *Advantage handicap allowance edge odious *Hateful abhorrent abominable detestable

Ana *Repugnant repellent distasteful obnoxious

Ana *Fragrance perfume redolence incense bouquet

Odorous, fragrant, redolent aromatic balmy meaning emitting and diffusing scent. Odorous anything which has a strong distinctive smell like that thro

Chinese preferred fragrant tea to ... (V Heiser) Redolent once meant and still occasiona that are aromatic as, aromatic smelling salts aromatic spirit of ammonia Balmy applies chiefly to things which have a delicate and soothing aromatic odor as the balmy air of night (Poe) As aromatic plants bestow No spicy fragrance wh le they grow But crush d, or trodden to the ground D ffuse their balmy sweets around (Goldsmith)

Ant Malodorous odorless — Con Stinking fetid noisome putrid rank, rancid fusty musty (see MALODOROUS) oeconomus *Steward reeve bailiff agent, factor, seneschal major-domo.

oecumenical Variant of ECUMENICAL offend Offend outrage, affront insult come into comparison when they mean to cause another especially by one s actions or words to be deeply vexed or hurt or to take umbrage One offends who with or without intention displeases another by hurting h s feel ngs or by violating h s sense of what is proper or fitting He begged pardon for having displeased her In a softened tone she declared herself not at all offended' (Austen) The majority of women that he meets offend him repel him disgust him (Mencken) One outrages who offends another past endurance or offends his pride or his sense of justice or honor etc. Gr ef of two years standing is only a bad habit Alice started outraged Her mother's grief was sacred to her' (Shaw) One affronts who either with an intent to offend or with deliberate indifference to civility or courtesy humiliates or dishonors a person and arouses his deep resentment A moral sensible and well-bred man Will not affront me and no other can (Cowper) One insults who wantonly and insolently offends another so as to cause h m humiliation or shame You can annoy you can insult you cannot move me (Meredith)

Ana. *Annoy vex irk bother exasperate nettle *irritate pique *provoke excite chafe fret gall (see ABRADE) offense or offence 1 Offens ve aggress on *attack

Ana Assault *attack onslaught onset

2 Offense (or offence), resentment umbrage pique dudgeon huff come into comparison as denoting a person s emotional reaction to what he regards as a sl ght, an affront, an insult or an ind gnity Offense implies a state of d spleasure (often but not necessarily extreme displeasure) or of wounded feelings as criticism so tactfully made that it gave no offense he is so sensitive that he takes offense at any un ntentional or seeming slight. Resentment impl es more ind gnation than offense more prolonged dwell ng upon what one regards as a personal injury or gr evance and often more ill will to the person who has offended as, It is very difficult to get up resentment towards persons whom one has never seen (Newman) As long as I am free from all resentment I would be able to face the life with much more calm" (Wilde) Westermarck cla ms that resentment and grat tude (which he calls emotions) are the foundat on of moral judgments (S Alexander) Umbrage (currently used ch efly in the phrase to take umbrage) differs from offense n carrying a clearer implication of being sl ghted or unfairly ignored the term therefore generally suggests ruffled pride resentful suspicion of others motives or jealousy of those favored as. Although the Rector was not inclined to take umbrage at the treatment they had received he showed that he was quite aware that it was not what m ght have been considered due to the n (Arch Marshall) Very often however umbrage is not clearly distingu shable from offense as, I should be very loath to g ve the least umbrage or offence by what I have sa d (Swift) Pique appl es to the fit of one who has taken offense or umbrage but it distinctively suggests a petty cause and a transient mood and often connotes wounded vanity as, When the wanton heroine cl ooses to flirt with Sir Harry or the Captain the hero, in a pique goes off and makes love to somebody else (Thackeray) Dudgeon applies chiefly to a fit of angry resentment or of h gh indignation provoked by opposition to one s views a refusal of one s request or the l ke as to go off in high dudgeon They often parted in deep dudgeon (Scott) You must not be in a dudgeon with me (Trollope) Huff, like dudgeon applies to a fit of anger but it comes closer to pique in suggesting pettiness of cause and transitoriness distinctively it impl es petulance and a refusal to have more to do with those who have offended At the first h nt that we were tired of waiting and that we should like the show to begin he was off in a huff' (H James) Half of em will be disgusted and go away in a huff' (W De Morga i)

Ana *Affront insult, indignity ind gnation wrath *anger

Con *Pleasure delight, joy gratifying or gratification rejoicing (see correspond ng verbs at PLEASE)

3 Offense (or offence), sin, vice crime scandal are here compared as general terms denoting a more or less serious or conspicuous infraction or transgression of law Offense is the term of widest appl cation being referable to a violation of any law including the law of the state the law of the church natural law moral law the standards of propriety taste etc set up by society or the arts, and the like It is also appl cable to any transgress on regardless of its trivial ty or gravity or its voluntary or involuntary character provided it injures or tends to injure the welfare or well being or happiness of others O my offense is rank it smells to heaven It hath the primal eldest curse upon t A brother's murder' (Shak) Punch was careful not to repeat the offence because Aunty Rosa told him that God had heard every word he had said and was very angry (Kipling) The greater the number of laws the greater the number of offences against them (H Ell s) Sin, in strict use applies to an offense against the moral la v especially as laid down in the Ten Commandments and in laws derived from them Theologically its essential character is d sobed ence of the div ne will and willful oppos tion to the law of God in somewhat wider use it implies a failure to live up to the moral ideals of one s time or environment or to the moral ideal one has set as the standard of one s own conduct as, all regarded stealing and lying as sins the sin of sacrilege nonobservance of the Sabbath was the sin most abhorred by the settlers of that reg on what constitutes the essence of the tragedy is the habitual tion of Beatrice to her sin (T S Eliot) Vice (as here considered see also FAULT 1) though frequently applied to any of the offenses that from the theological and religious po nts of view are called sins often carries little suggest on of a violation of divine law rather t more uniformly imputes to such offenses a character suggestive of moral depravity corrupt on, or deep degradation also, the term less often applies to s ngle acts or single transgress ons than to habits practices etc that debase the character of a person or group of persons as, Spare then the person and expose the vice' (Pope) 'Treachery and cruelty the most pern cious and most odious of all v ces seem peculiar to uncivilized ages (Hume) Crime in ts earliest and still most common sense applies to any infraction of law espec ally of common law or statute law that is punishable by the state or by any power that const tutes itself as the guard an of such law it is not a technical legal term but it is often used in the courts and is sometimes defined in penal codes usually as a sin tice and crime it carries no implication of probable or certain punishment or retribution but emphasizes the distress ng effect it has on others or the discredit it attaches to religion to morals, etc., as, "Catholics could not appear in Protestant assemblies without causing scandal to the weaker brethren (Froude) the man s l fe is an open scandal (Cather) There is only one way in which we can meet and be together and that is as friends I will be party to no scandal (R Macaulay)

Ana *Injustice injury wrong grievance tort *breach infraction, violation, transgression, trespass, infringement contravention.

offensive, adj 1 Attacking aggressive See under ATTACK n

Ana Invasive incursive irruptive (see correspond ng nouns at INVASION) assaulting assailing attacking bombarding storming (see ATTACK v)

2 Offensive, loathsome, repulsive, repugnant revolting come into comparison as meaning utterly d stasteful or repellent That s offensive which subjects one to painful or h ghly d sagreeable sensations Sometimes the term impl es injured feelings as a result of an affront or insult (as Olly though without tl e tact to perceive when remarks were untimely was saved by her very simplicity from rendering them offensive —Hardy) often also, the term suggests the evocation of such aversion that en durance involves mental strain or moral distaste (as, [a situation] far less offensive to modern taste than many other situations in Elizabethan drama —T S Eliot Particularly offensive to the ear of the old fashioned Yankee is goodnus for goodness —Grandgent) most often, it implies a vileness of appearance odor or the like, that excites nausea or extreme disgust (as, [she] lay stretched awkwardly her head thrown back her face discoloured her eyes bulg ng her mouth wet and yawning a sight horribly offensive —Bennett) That is loathsome which is so foul or obscene that one be avo ded, as, loathsome diseases loathsome prison makes one unwilling to dwell on it as Mary was not so repulsive and unsisterly as Elizabeth (Austen) "To Dorothea it [the memory of an aunt s long illness] was all ghastly and repulsive (Deland), Work which is now repulsive can be made no irksomer than the general run of necessary labour (Shaw) In those days all schoolbooks were as repulsive as publishers could make them.

nature being a condition of chronic terror that at last became unbearable (Shaw) The door is not barred and bolted for a solution less repugnant to our deepest intuitions than that [determinism] which has hitherto seemed to be forced upon us (Eddington) That is revolting which is so extremely offensive loathsome, repulsive or repugnant to a person of fine feeling or delicate sensibilities that the sight or thought of it arouses in him a desire or determination to resist or rebel the duty of obedience and the wickedness of resistance to law (H Adams)

Ana Repellent, *repugnant abhorrent, distasteful, obnoxious, invidious *hateful, odious, abominable, detestable.

offensive, n *Attack aggression offense

Ana Assault *attack onslaught onset

offer up one s prayers In current use it frequ impl es a putting before one something wh ch may be accepted or rejected according to his w ll or choice as, There was a crown offered him and being offered him, he put it by (Shak) Had he succeeded he told me, he would have offered me the post of sub-editor" (H Ellis) The verb is also used both transitively and intrans tively in the sense of to put someth ng before one for consideration selection as a way out of a difficulty or the like as to offer one s help to offer a suggestion, a remark a motion a plan to offer oneself in marriage the dress department offers several new models this week he offered $10 000 for the house" "she appeared ready to escape when a way of escape offered" (Hudson) We must ask in the end what they have to offer in place of what they denounce" (T S Eliot) The word is often loosely used in the sense of to offer differs from it chiefly in more consistently implying a putting or setting before one something that one is at liberty to accept or reject and in usually suggesting voluntariness spontaneity, courtesy or the like on the part of the agent as he proffered his arm to a lady having difficulty in crossing a street, Dorothea felt that it would be indelicate just then to ask for any information which Casaubon did not proffer (G Eliot), rejecting the proffered assistance of a couple of officious friends (Shaw), "The flavour of social success is delicious though it is scorned by those to whose lips the cup has not been proffered" (L P Smith) Tender (etymologically to stretch out or extend) was originally and still is a formal term in legal use meaning to offer something to the court or to the person or persons concerned according to the terms of the law for formal acceptance or approval as, to tender a thousand dollars in full satisfaction of a debt the defense will tender evidence to prove its contention that the defendant has a sound alibi to tender the oath to a justice being sworn into office In more general use tender differs from offer and proffer in carrying a stronger connotation of modesty humility gentleness, or the like on the part of the one who makes the offer, as, My gracious lord, I tender you my service (Shak) to tender one a friendship I will not dare to discuss that wisdom here I observe that when the poets preach it we tender them our applause (Quiller Couch) Tender however is the idiomatic or highly polite term in certain collocations as to tender one's resignation to tender one a hospitality to tender one's congratulations Present, as here compared (see also GIVE) carries a stronger implication of ceremonious exhibition or of outward show than any of the preceding terms otherwise it often suggests little more than offer in the sense of to lay or put before one for consideration, selection approval one's use or pleasure or the like as the butler presented the salver to his mistress the producer will present a new play this week My last least offering, I present thee now (Cowper) There is the fatigued Shakespeare presented by Mr Lytton Strachey there is the Messianic Shakespeare presented by Mr Middleton Murry and there is the ferocious Shakespeare a furious Samson presented by Mr Wyndham Lewis (T S Eliot) Prefer, as here considered (see also CHOOSE) is now archaic or obsolete in the sense of proffer or present except in some legal use (as to prefer an indictment to prefer a claim) it is however found often in the writings of authors between the late sixteenth and the mid nineteenth centuries as, He spake and to her hand preferr'd the bowl (Pope) I don't prefer any claim to being the soul of Romance (Dickens)

Ana *Give present bestow confer *adduce advance propose design purpose *intend

Con. Accept, take *receive reject refuse *decline offhand *Extemporaneous extempore extemporary improvised impromptu, unpremeditated

Ana Casual desultory *random abrupt hasty sudden *precipitate impetuous brusque curt blunt (see BLUFF)

Con Studied advised considered *deliberate office. 1 *Function duty province

Ana *Work métier business, calling *task job chore stint

2 Post situation *position place job berth billet capacity officer *Policeman constable bailiff catchpole gendarme bobby peeler copper cop bull officious Meddlesome intrusive obtrusive *impertinent, pragmatical

Ana. Meddling interfering intermeddling tampering (see MEDDLE) annoying vexing irking bothering (see ANNOY) pushing, assertive *aggressive offset. Countervail balance *compensate counterbalance counterpoise.

Ana *Neutralize negative, counteract *nullify negate redeem reclaim save, *rescue.

oft *Often frequently oftentimes.

often. Often, frequently oft, oftentimes are ordinarily used with little or no distinction as meaning again and again in more or less close succession. But often stresses the number of times a thing occurs, without regard to the interval of recurrence frequently usually stresses repetition, especially at short intervals as, he came often he called frequently the disease is often fatal I frequently examined the colour of the snow' (J Tyndall) you will often find this to be true unless you write me more frequently I shall feel out of touch with you Oft and oftentimes differ little from often oft however is usually archaic or poetic (as, "Oft in the stilly night — T Moore) and oftentimes is occasionally preferred for metrical reasons or as a more explicit term than often in its clear implication of numerous times (as, he will oftentimes regret that fit of anger) oftentimes *Often frequently oft oil, n Oil fat wax, grease are comparable when they denote a substance of smooth slippery consistency typically combustible and insoluble in water but soluble in gasoline (or other petroleum distillates) or with some limitations in ether or in alcohol Oil designates any of a large class of such substances that are liquid or at least easily liquefiable on warming and that are used variously as for food for fuel and in the preparation of medicines, perfumes, and lubricants. The term is applicable to all substances of this character whether of animal origin as cod liver oil neat's-foot oil vegetable origin as olive oil wintergreen oil mineral origin, as kerosene oil shale oil Although there are natural oils such as petroleum and whale oil, many if not most oils are derived by extraction expression or distillation Fat commonly designates a substance which either as a semisolid or liquid is found both in the animal and vegetable organism as part of its structure or as a constituent of one of its secretions, and is of considerable nutritive value when the organism or secretion is used as food It is the chief element of adipose tissue and constitutes an important element of the milk of female animals it is also found in certain seeds such as nuts and certain fruits such as the olive It is usually separable from the organism or secretion by processes which decompose the latter, thus, butter an animal fat is obtained by churning cream and leaving buttermilk as a residue the fat of olive olive oil is obtained by expression. Chemically a fat is distinguished from the other substances here differentiated it is usually a mixture of glyceryl esters of certain acids such as oleic and stearic acids that upon saponification yield glycerol Wax was originally applied only to a substance obtained from a secretion of bees and used by them in constructing the honeycomb besides this specific sense the term however is now also used in the far more comprehensive sense in which it is here considered Like a fat a wax is of animal or vegetable origin, but in contrast to the former it is typically a secretion and in its physical properties is less greasy harder and more brittle thus spermaceti is a wax which separates from the oil of a sperm whale Chinese wax is a substance deposited on certain trees by a scale insect that is common in China and India carnauba wax is obtained from a secretion on the leaves of a Brazilian palm tree called the carnauba

Grease is a more popular and less clearly defined term than any of the preceding The most common of its

of fat or fats, wax or waxes mineral oils soapy materials and the like which is in appearance and texture like animal grease and is used as an ointment, lubricant, or cleanser, as axle grease, cup grease (a mixture of petroleum oil, lime or soda soap etc , used in lubricating mechanisms), face grease (a colloquial designation of face cream) oil, v. Oil, grease, lubricate, anoint, inunct, cream, pomade, pomatum agree in meaning to smear with an oily, fatty, or similar substance, but they vary greatly in their implications of the substance used and the purpose for which it is employed and in their idiomatic when one impregnates it with oil so as to make it water proof One greases a thing when one rubs on or in a thick fatty substance, often, but far from always an animal fat or oil, for some purpose such as to increase greases or provides for the feeding of oil or grease or some similar substance to contiguous surfaces in a machine or mechanism to make them slippery, thereby rubs into it, an oily or fatty substance for some purpose application is rubbed in so as to be absorbed by the pores, is inunct, or its more common derivative noun inunction In the application of oily or fatty cosmetics especially those which are called creams, cream is the customary term When one uses perfumed unguent (a pomade) or a greasy substance (a pomatum) to smooth

Unctuous oleaginous *fulsome, sleek soapy 2 Ingratiating, insinuating insinuative, *disarming ocritical, pharisaical sanctimonious (see under OCRISY) bland politic, diplomatic, smooth (see VE)

1 *Aged, elderly, superannuated 2 *Weak feeble infirm decrepit *senile ng, doddering Young

ld, ancient, venerable, antique, antiquated antediluvian, archaic, obsolete all denote having come into existence or use in the more or less distant past That is old (opposed to young new see AGED) which has lived or existed long, or which has been long in use or has stood for a long time in a particular relation to something, that is ancient (opposed esp to modern) which lived existed or happened long ago or which has long ago (Wordsworth) Venerable, as here compared (cf august under GRAND) suggests the hoariness and dignity of age 'An old man [who] appeared the more characteristic of an earlier period, as an antique highboy or clock that belonged to one's great grandmother 'Even a Leonardo regretted his failure to recover the primitive period, with regard to words specifically archaic implies not in use in ordinary modern language but retained in special context or for special uses, as in Biblical ecclesiastical and legal expressions and in poetry (e g belike certes) 'We visited Medina a town so archaic and unreal in its architecture that it was difficult to believe that it was actually inhabited by the human race (M Hoffman) That is obsolete which has

(Dryden) A scientific textbook is obsolete in a decade or less (Lowes) Ana *Secular centuried, agelong, diuturnal, aeonian primitive primeval pristine primal (see PRIMARY) Ant New

oleaginous Oily unctuous, *fulsome sleek soapy Ana See those at OILY oligarchy Oligarchy aristocracy, plutocracy come into comparison as meaning government by or a state governed by the few The terms are often applied to governments or states that are ostensibly monarchies or democracies but are in the opinion of the user governed by a clique Oligarchy is the most inclusive term referable to any government or state where the power is openly or virtually in the hands of a few men The present [1932] government [of Russia] political and economic is a self-appointed oligarchy (J A Hobson) Aristocracy etymologically suggests the rule of the best citizens but it seldom retains this implication except when it is used in distinction from oligarchy and the latter connotes power seized or held for selfish or corrupt reasons An Oligarchy is the swerving or the corruption of an Aristocracy (Raleigh d 1618) It ceased to be in the Greek sense an aristocracy it became a faction an oligarchy (Thirlwall) Its commonest current implication is power vested in a privileged class, especially in a nobility that is regarded as superior by birth and breeding and that by owning or controlling much of the land exercises direct control over a large portion of the population in this sense Great Britain was until recent generations an aristocracy Plutocracy, unlike the other terms is usually not occasionally derogatory as a rule it implies concentration of power in the hands of the wealthy and in consequence a withholding of power from those to whom it properly belongs either the people or their representatives It is true that we still have in England the forms of aristocracy but the spirit is that of plutocracy which is quite a different thing (B Russell) Democracy has to fight its way out from under plutocracy (H G Wells)

omen n Augury portent *foretoken presage prognostic Ana *Sign, mark, token, badge, note symptom divination clairvoyance (see DISCERNMENT) foreboding *apprehension presentiment misgiving ominous Ominous, portentous fateful inauspicious unpropitious come into comparison as basically meaning having a menacing or threatening character or quality That is ominous which has or seems to have the character of an omen especially of an omen forecasting evil In current use however the term commonly suggests a frightening or alarming quality that bodes no good but seldom implies inevitable disaster as an ominous change had come over nature (Hudson) my ears were startled by the uproar of yelling and shouting It sounded ominous but I had to go on (V Heiser) That is portentous which has or seems to have the character of a portent or some prodigy of nature which gives a forewarning of a calamity to come (as a portentous eclipse a portentous comet) In current use portentous far less often than ominous suggests a threatening character It usually means little more than prodigious, monstrous almost frighteningly marvelous, solemn or the like as His gravity was unusual, portentous and unmeasurable (Dickens) the assertion that children of six are mighty prophets seers blessed would have seemed to him [Plato] portentous nonsense (Babbitt) They all look portentous but they have nothing to say (Shaw) That is fateful which has or more often, seems to have the quality character or importance decreed for it by fate or that suggests inevitable death or calamity, as the fateful conference that brought on war, 'The soldier's fateful steel (J Barlow) In present use however the term means little more than momentous appallingly decisive or the like as, A fateful evening doth descend upon us (Coleridge), Lying awake till morning Delia lived over every detail of the fateful day when she had assumed the charge of Charlotte's child (E Wharton) That is inauspicious (see auspicious under FAVORABLE) which is or seems to be attended by signs that are distinctly unfavorable as an inauspicious horoscope But inauspicious now usually means nothing more than unlucky unfortunate or unlikely to succeed as, an inauspicious beginning of a great project an inauspicious war That is unpropitious (see propitious under FAVORABLE) which carries or seems to carry no sign of favoring one's ends or intentions as unpropitious omens. In its more common extended sense the term means merely unfavorable, discouraging or harmful as, sleep and exercise are unpropitious to learning (Jowett), his attitude was unpropitious, and suggested a refusal Ana *Sinister baleful malign malefic threatening menacing (see THREATEN) omit. *Neglect, disregard ignore, overlook slight forget Ana Cancel delete dele efface *erase *exclude eliminate.

Con *Remember recollect, recall *tend attend mind watch omnipotent Omnipotent almighty are not clearly distinguishable when applied to God and meaning all powerful. Nevertheless in their extended and sometimes humorous applications a distinction between them is apparent. Omnipotent implies the power to effect any or all desired ends, as by irresistible power or by overriding all natural laws. O powerful love! that in some respects makes a beast a man in some other a man a beast O omnipotent Love! (Shak) Was he not alone omnipotent On Earth ? tho dead Does not his spirit work for me and mine still the same ruin? (Shelley) Almighty, on the other hand usually stresses the power to command above everything else awe worship obedience or the like "My neglect Of his [Cupid's] almighty dreadful little might (Shak) Insensible of truth's almighty charms (Cowper) Sir Aylmer Aylmer that almighty man The county God (Tennyson) The almighty dollar that great object of universal devotion throughout our land (Irving) omnipresent Omnipresent ubiquitous, ubiquitary agree in meaning present or existent everywhere In strict use, they carry this as a literal or absolute meaning but in loose current English they are often used hyperbolically That is omnipresent which is present everywhere at the same time in earlier and strict use the term was applicable only to the Supreme Being (as omnipresent Deity —Ken) but in more recent use especially in a loose or weakened sense it applies to that which is always present or existent as in a class or a type wherever it may be found or in an area to which it belongs (as, a capable agent makes himself omnipresent —G Eliot an omnipresent sense of social obligation —C W Eliot) That is ubiquitous (or now comparatively rare ubiquitary) which is found everywhere and often but not always, at the time or in the region given or implied as, electrons being so numerous and so ubiquitous (Karl K. Darrow) The big public servies will have to be made practically ubiquitous (Shaw) Either term but especially ubiquitous is applicable to a singular noun naming a type or an individual often with the humorous implication that one cannot

*Dictionary lexicon wordbook glossynonymicon assault onslaught.
on offensive offense *attack storming assail ng (see ATTACK v) *invasion, raid tion
*Attack assault onset omphalos *Center middle midst core hub focus nucleus heart on 1 *At in 2 *At in onerous Onerous, burdensome, oppressive, exacting come into comparison when they mean imposing severe trouble labor or hardships All of these terms are applicable to a state of life its duties or obligations or to conditions imposed upon a person by that life or by another person oppressive and exacting are also applicable to persons or agents responsible for these difficulties. Onerous stresses laboriousness and heaviness but often also implies irksomeness or distastefulness as the on tasks.

onerou then mental as well as physical strain, but it often emphasizes the former at the expense of the latter, as, he was finding the life of a farmer unduly burdensome a burdensome tax the restrictions grew increasingly burdensome Oppressive adds to burdensome the implication of extreme harshness or severity it therefore usually connotes the unendurableness of that which is imposed or inflicted (sometimes by nature as well as by man) or cruelty or tyranny in the one responsible for the impositions or inflictions as oppressive taxes oppressive legislation oppressive heat oppressive rulers. There are more ways tremendous care or pains required of the one who satisfies these demands as an exacting employer an exacting teacher an exacting technique an exacting task The exacting life of the sea has this advantage over the life of the earth that its claims are simple and cannot be evaded (Conrad)

Ana *Heavy weighty ponderous cumbrous cumbersome hefty arduous *hard difficult onlooker Looker-on *spectator observer beholder witness, eyewitness bystander kibitzer only, adj & adv Only, alone are often used interchangeis expressed and the term is the equivalent of exclusive or more often exclusively as, I want this book alone

Ana See those at ONSET onward Onward, forward, forth are here compared as meaning in the act of advancing or getting ahead as in a movement progression, series sequence or the like They are frequently used with little or no distinction, but onward often suggests progress or advance in general toward a definite goal end place or the like as Onward Christian soldiers, Marching as to war (Baring-Gould) onward looking men (Stevenson) Forward (opposed to backward) has more specific reference to movement or advance with reference to that which lies before rather than back in place (see forward under implying swifter or more frequent changes than the former (as back and forth her needle flew) one brings opalescent, opaline Iridescent *prismatic opaque. Obscure dusk dusky darkling *dark, murky turbid muddy roiled roily dull dense crass 1 Exposed subject, prone susceptible *liable incident used 2 Plain candid *frank

Ana *Straightforward aboveboard forthright *natural simple ingenuous, naïve unsophisticated *fair equitable impartial

Ant Close close-mouthed close-lipped clandestine open-air *Outdoor plein-air alfresco operate *Act behave work function react.

operative, adj *Active dynamic live

Ana *Effective effectual efficacious efficient *fertile, fecund fruitful.

Ant Abeyant.

n Mechanic artisan hand workman, *worker laborer craftsman roustabout.
*Anodyne narcotic nepenthe.
Opinion view belief conviction persuasion come into comparison when they mean a more arly formulated idea or judgment which one rue An opinion is a more or less careful consideration as Justice —— presented the majority opinion at today's session of the Supreme Court the critics differ in their opinion of the quality of the book ould like the the term

each group

more consistently suggests (even in the preceding instances) a personal element in the judgment the possibility of its being in error and the strong probability that it will be disputed "'If you doubt it ask Stryver, and he'll tell you so' I prefer to form my own opinion without the aid of his" (Dickens) "Books are a public expression of a man's opinions and consequently they are submitted to the world for criticism" (A. C. Benson) A view is an opinion more or less colored by the feeling sentiment, or bias of the individual as he was fond of airing his views in the public press, this poet's depressing view of life, each member was asked to state his views on the proposed change in the constitution. A belief differs from an opinion or view in that it is not necessarily formulated by the individual who holds it but may have been proposed to him for acceptance (as in the form of a doctrine a dogma a proposition, or an authoritative opinion) The emphasis in belief is placed on intellectual assent or assurance of truth "He [Augustus] possessed from the start certain guiding ideas derived from Julius [Caesar] a passion for order a realism about facts and a belief that he possessed a capacity for reconstruction" (Buchan) "It might be better not to call this pantheistic creed Naturalism reserving the name for the belief that the whole system of nature is calculable in terms of mathematics and mechanics" (Inge) "I have not adopted my faith in order to defend my views of conduct but have modified my views of conduct to conform with what seem to me the implications of my beliefs" (T. S. Eliot) A conviction is a belief which one holds firmly and unshakably because one is undisturbed by doubt of its truth "If any one had asked him the reason of this conviction he could not have told them but convictions do not imply reasons" (Deland) "The teacher should learn not to take sides [in controversial questions] even if he or she has strong convictions" (B. Russell) A persuasion is usually at once an opinion and a belief It often implies that one's assurance of its truth is induced by one's feelings or wishes rather than by argument or evidence "It was the avowed opinion and persuasion of Callimachus that Homer was very imperfectly understood even in his day" (Cowper) "Drugs are not much in cases of this sort Change! That's what's wanted It's no use my talking I know added the Doctor On the contrary said Sir Austin I am quite of your persuasion" (Meredith) Sentiment, as here compared (see also FEELING 2, SENTIMENT 3) is now rare or literary in this sense except in a few idiomatic phrases (as those are my sentiments) but it was very common between the late seventeenth and the early nineteenth centuries The term applies to a more or less settled opinion often, but not necessarily with reference to something which involves one's feelings or which is formulated so as to suggest the stimulus of emotion as "His Solomon had many noble sentiments elegantly expressed" (Johnson) "Had I the command of millions were I in stress of the whole world your brother would be my only choice This charming sentiment gave Catherine a most pleasing remembrance of all the heroines of her acquaintance" (Austen) "There is no expression in the constitution no sentiment delivered by its contemporaneous expounders which would justify us in making it [a certain exception]" (Ch. Just. Marshall)

Ana Thought notion, impression *idea, concept conception inference deduction, conclusion judgment (see under INFER) deciding or decision determining or determination settling or settlement (see corresponding verbs at DECIDE) opinionated Opinionated opinionative self-opinionated agree in meaning having or holding a decided opinion or opinions Opinionated is now the far more common term it usually implies either great assurance of the rightness of one's opinions or great obstinacy in their maintenance, as, "[A] painter bold and opinionated enough to dare and to dictate" (Walpole) "He is not overbearing or bigoted or fanatical—that would be putting it too strongly He seems to put an excessive value on his own opinions Yes, I have the word —opinionated" (S. M. Crothers) Opinionative is now comparatively rare, but it is still sometimes preferred to opinionated when one wishes to suggest the speculative or doctrinaire character (as opposed to the practical value) of a person's opinions at the same time suggesting dogmatism in their maintenance as, "Too young to teach, and too opinionative to learn" (Johnson), "The common female blue [i.e. bluestocking] is intolerable opinionative and opinionated" (Edgeworth) Self-opinionated carries a stronger implication of conceitedness or of pride in one's opinions than either of these terms but, like opinionative, it usually suggests dogmatism in their maintenance, as, he is far too self-opinionated to yield to argument.

Ana *Sure certain positive cocksure *confident, assured, sanguine sure opinionative. *Opinionated self-opinionated

Ana Doctrinaire dogmatic *dictatorial *sure certain positive cocksure opponent Opponent, antagonist, adversary agree in denoting one who expresses or manifests opposition Unlike enemy (in its strict sense) they do not necessarily imply personal animosity or hostility An opponent is one who is on the opposite side in a contest (as an argument disputation or election) or in a conflict of opinion antagonist implies sharper opposition esp in a struggle or combat for supremacy or control "The opponents and proponents of the bill" (N. Y. Times) "Where you find your antagonist beginning to grow warm put an end to the dispute by some genteel badinage" (Chesterfield) Adversary ranges in connotation from the idea of mere opposition to that of active hostility "Do as adversaries do in law Strive mightily but eat and drink as friends" (Shak.) "Your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion walketh about, seeking whom he may devour" (1 Peter v 8)

Ana *Enemy foe rival competitor emulator (see corresponding verbs at RIVAL) opportune *Seasonable timely well-timed pat

Ana Happy felicitous appropriate fitting (see FIT adj.) propitious auspicious *favorable ready prompt *quick, apt Ant Inopportune.

opportunity. Opportunity, occasion, chance, break, time, tide, hint come into comparison when they mean a state of affairs or a juncture of circumstances favorable to some end. Opportunity is perhaps the most common of these terms in both colloquial and literary English it applies to a juncture which provides an opening for doing something especially something in line with one's inclinations, ambitions purposes or desires, as the suspect had both motive and opportunity for the murder "To keep in the rear of opportunity in matters of indulgence is as valuable a habit as to keep abreast of opportunity in matters of enterprise" (Hardy), "on the whole an infant's desire to learn is so strong that parents need only provide opportunity" (B. Russell) Occasion, as here considered (see also CAUSE 1) carries the basic denotation characteristic of its leading senses—a definite moment or juncture but it applies only to a moment that provides an opportunity or more often in current use that calls for or prompts action of a definite kind or almost before its presence is realized This use continues in certain idiomatic phrases as, he took the occasion to satisfy his desire for revenge "We can escape even now So we take fleet occasion by the hair" (Shelley) In current use occasion suggests more strongly than opportunity a juncture that provokes or evokes action as, "With occasion she might have been a Charlotte Corday" (Meredith) "With great things charged he shall not hold Aloof till great occasion rise" (Kipling), "So long as a child is with adults it has no occasion for the exercise of a number of virtues required by the strong in dealing with the weak" (B Russell) Chance applies chiefly to an opportunity that comes seemingly by luck or accident, as, they had no chance to escape he has long hoped for a chance of promotion. Sometimes the word means little more than a fair or a normal opportunity especially in negative expressions as the boy never had a chance to make anything of himself Break is slang (chiefly in the United States) for a chance to make good break that investment was a lucky break for him he has not had a fair break in years) but when it is unquali at the flood leads on to fortune" (Shak) this is the time to buy stocks even tomorrow may be too late Hint is now obsolete in the sense of opportunity or occasion but it was once common especially in the 17th and 18th centuries as, "It was my hint to speak" (Shak) "To watch the hints which conversation offers for the display of their particular attainments" (Johnson)

Ana *Juncture pass contingency emergency posture situation condition, *state oppose. Oppose, combat resist, withstand antagonize are here compared only as transitive verbs and as meaning to set oneself against someone or something Oppose is the most comprehensive of these words it may imply at one extreme little more than objection and at the other intense hostility and violent warfare It commonly implies the intent to thwart or frustrate the will of another or to destroy that which actively interferes with one's own rights or security "After that they did not oppose his plan of leaving the house" (Deland) "At the town meeting there is always the chronic objector who opposes every popular measure" (S M Crothers) "Or to take arms against a sea of troubles, And by opposing end them?" (Shak) Combat stresses a struggle for supremacy and an actual conflict with that which one opposes. In modern English the struggle is the vanity of one white woman" (Cather) "How to combat diphtheria or appendicitis or tuberculosis" (C W Eliot) "Certain fallacies which it is the duty of the better informed members of society to meet and combat" (Grandgent) Resist and withstand both presuppose the initiative in opposition on the other side as by attack, encroachment or the use of compulsion. Resist merely implies acceptance of the challenge and the exercise of counter force as it is the duty of every patriot to resist invasion "To attempt to impose it on us is an act of tyranny and to be resisted" (Arnold) "We must firmly resist those who wish to make education purely scientific" (Inge) Withstand often adds to resist the suggestion of a successful outcome it therefore usually implies special qualities in the person or group such as courage persistence or superior training as only seasoned troops could withstand such an attack "They had been married that afternoon Jane having withstood the pressure of her parents" (R Macaulay) When used of things that are proof against the onslaught of external forces such as germs the elements, military attacks, and the like there is little difference between the two words, withstand being slightly more emphatic as, few trees could withstand (or resist) the fury of the hurricane to resist (or withstand) infection. Both words also are often used without any connotation of threatened danger from the other side but with a strong suggestion of its power to compel by attracting convincing or the like in these cases either the verb or the subject contains a negative or a near negative, as one cannot (or few persons can) withstand her charm "Nobody can resist the Bay of Naples or if he can then all the simple and sensuous delights of this world must turn to bitterness and ashes in his mouth" (C Mackenzie) Antagonize implies that one side (usually one's own) has initiated the opposition and has therefore invited resistance or hostility "The Bishop replied that the time was not yet for the present it was inexpedient to antagonize these people" (Cather) In current use the word often means to incite (sometimes unintentionally) ill will or resentment as, he is unfortunate because his manner antagonizes many persons

Ana *Contend cope fight, battle war *attack, assail, assault, storm bombard *defend protect, shield guard safeguard opposite, adj Opposite, contradictory contrary antithetical (or antithetic), antipodal (or antipodean) antonymous are comparable chiefly as applied to abstractions and as meaning so far apart as to be or to seem irreconcilable with each other The same differences in applications and implications are found in their corresponding nouns opposite, contradictory contrary antithesis, antipodes (or antipode), antonym, when they mean one of two things which are opposite contradictory etc Opposite as here narrowly considered is the inclusive term it may be used interchangeably with any

... are interchangenature of equality and good fellowship ... mention that the denial and therefore especially when it is appl ed to and dead are contradictory terms because the cannot both be truly applied to the same thing for if the appli cation is admissible one of them must be true and the treme divergence with no basis for agreement as to take a contrary view of the situation he maintained that the

"John is prod gal are contrary statements, but John in truth may be neither pars monious nor prod gal but well as to ideas qualities terms and the like I could describe my own particular antithesis among book worms and no doubt he could and probably will deas a singular and preferred to antipode) also imply d ametrical oppos tion they do not suggest an expository is so opposed to another in meaning that it, in effect negates or null fie antonymous wor terms as defined other terms by what is denoted d ctory antonym word g

Ana Reverse *converse antagonistic *adverse counteractive onciling conforming adapting adjusting (see consistent compatible congruous congenial) nt

n Contradictory contrary antithesis, antonym See under OPPOSITE adj

1 *Depress weigh (down on or upon) abuse mistreat maltreat ill treat outrage *worry annoy harass harry 2 *Wrong persecute aggrieve Ana *Afflict torment torture overcome subdue reduce overthrow (see CONQUER) *Onerous burdensome exacting rting or extortionate extract ng (see corre rbs at EDUCE) compell ng or compulsory coercing or coercion, constraining obl ging or obl gatory (see corresponding verbs at FORCE) despotic tyrannical itrary e humanitarian (see CHARITABLE) com ender *Abusive vituperative contumelious trile scurril ng vituperating rail ng berating (see spiteful *malicious malevolent malign execrable damnable accursed Obloquy odium ignominy infamy ace dishonor d srepute scandal ence cull hand p ck embrace espouse olored cheerful l ght hearted joyous *glad Ant Pessimistic — Con *Cynical misanthrop c option *Choice alternative preference selection elect on ight prerogative privilege 1 Affluent wealthy *rich vish *profuse prodigal *showy pretentious ous, pompous Ant Destitute indigent.

2 Sumptuous, *luxurious.

VOCAL 1) always implies utterance and speech it is loses himself in little trifling distinctions and verbal niceties' (Gray) The use of verbal as a substitute for oral oration. *Speech address harangue, allocution, lecture, prelection, talk, sermon homily oratory. Eloquence *elocution.

orb. *Sphere globe, ball orbicular, orbiculate. *Round spherical globular, orbicular annular, circular, discoid orbit. *Range reach scope compass sweep gamut, radius, ken, purview horizon order, n 1 *Association society club

2 *Command, injunction, bidding behest, mandate, dictate

Ana Instruction direction charging or charge (see corresponding verbs at COMMAND) order, v 1 Order, arrange, marshal, organize, systematize, methodize agree in meaning to put (a number of persons or things) in their proper places especially with relation to each other, or to bring about an orderly disposition of the individuals, units, or elements that comprise (a thing) Order is now felt to be archaic when the idea of putting in a definite order is to be expressed, it usually ordered and ...

in order, that is, in proper sequence relationship or adjustment is uppermost The word often implies a convenienced to arrange the details of a conference between the leaders of the factions "It is necessary for the physicist to arrange the experimental conditions so management as under stress or for effectiveness in for the presidency, a colony of ants always reveals organization Systematize implies arrangement according to a definite, and therefore predetermined scheme thus, one systematizes a collection of coins when one arranges them according to some plan of classification, one systematizes one's daily work when one reduces it to routine order Methodize differs from systematize in suggesting the imposition of orderly procedure rather than of a fixed scheme, thus, one can methodize one's work without giving it the character of routine "Those rules of old discovered, not devis'd, Are Nature still but Nature methodis'd" (Pope) 'That art of reasoning which methodizes and facilitates our discourse (J H Shorthouse)

...sion

orderly, adj Orderly, methodical (or methodic) systematic (or systematical), regular come into comparison as meaning following closely a set arrangement design or pattern Orderly implies observance of due keeping a place free from litter or confusion (as, his study is always orderly an orderly housekeeper) or in a less specific sense as in a scheme, system or the like when all details stand in their proper relations each playing was a systematic appropriator of other men's thoughts (L. Stephen), to make a systematic attack on the doctrines of a church trained by success to a sort of systematic selfishness (Cather) Regular (as here compared see also REGULAR 1) implies a steadiness or uniformity as in following a schedule (as regular habits regular meals regular treatments) or in pursuing a course marked by occurrence or recurrence at fixed or stated intervals (as a regular pulse as regular as the ebb and flow of the tides)

Ana Tidy *neat, trim spick-and-span formal conventional ceremonious (see CEREMONIAL) peaceable *pacific peaceful.

Ant Disorderly chaotic.

ordinance. Canon precept. *law rule regulation statute ordinary, adj *Common familiar popular vulgar

Ana *Usual customary habitual, wonted accustomed

Ant Extraordinary — Con *Abnormal atypic, aberrant *exceptional *irregular unnatural anomalous.

ordinary, n *Bishop archbishop metropolitan primate

Ant Agent (sense 2—in ecclesiastical use) ordnance *Armament munitions arms artillery ammunition.

organ 1 Medium vehicle channel *means instrument instrumentality agent, agency

2 *Journal periodical newspaper magazine review organism *System scheme economy network, complex.

organize 1 Systematize methodize *order arrange marshal.

Ana Design project plan scheme (see under PLAN n) form fashion shape *make

Ant Disorganize

2 Institute *found establish Ana *Begin commence start initiate, inaugurate *adjust regulate oriel *Window casement dormer orifice *Aperture interstice origin Origin, source inception, root provenance provenience prime mover come into comparison as denoting the point as represented by an act an event a person a place a condition or the like at which something (such as a process a growth a development a custom a habit, or an institution) begins its course or its existence Origin applies chiefly to the point at which the thing under consideration has its rise or to the person or thing from which it is ultimately derived it often applies specifically to the causes in operation before the thing itself is finally brought into being as, Charles Darwin's book On the Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection the origin of the custom of giving presents at Christmas the origin of Christianity the origin of a phrase Often when used in reference to persons it means little more than ancestry or parentage it is then used either in the singular or (now more often) the plural as, his father was of no great origin" (Belloc) [Ramsay MacDonald's] humble origins were known (H Ellis) Source (etymologically a lifting or surging up) in the earliest of its living senses applies to the point at which waters from a spring or fountain emerge to form the beginning point of a stream or river as, the source of the Hudson River In extended use source more often than origin applies to that which serves as the ultimate beginning of a thing especially an immaterial or intangible thing however since the term is sometimes qualified by words such as immediate secondary etc which weaken or destroy this implication it is often in this sense modified by ultimate fundamental primary or the like as an ever present energy which is the source of all cosmical movement (Inge), "the power of concentrated attention as the fundamental source of the prodigious productiveness of great workers (C W Eliot) Theoretically the mob is the repository of all political wisdom and virtue actually it is the ultimate source of all political power (Mencken) Source is also applied to the person book, manuscript or the like, from which one derives information In this sense a primary source is a person who has firsthand knowledge or a work that was written at the time under discussion especially by one who had firsthand knowledge or the like a secondary source is a person who has learned the facts from others or a work which is based upon information gathered from others as graduate students in history are discouraged from using secondary sources When it [news] comes from one of the great news-collecting agencies like the Associated Press the source generally is indicated (Justice Holmes) Inception is often preferred to origin when the reference is to the actual beginning of an undertaking, a project, an institution or the like the term carries a weaker connotation of underlying causes than origin yet does not as source often does, carry any suggestion that the thing so called is the ultimate origin as, They joined the League of Nations Union Stanley did so, at its inception and became in fact a speaker on platforms in the cause (R Macaulay) The subject may and does change between the inception of the work and its completion (S Alexander) Root is often the preferred term when the actual origin of a thing goes back to something very deep and fundamental, and the thing itself is only an outward manifestation of its influence Root therefore more often even than source applies to what is regarded as the first or final cause of a thing as the love of money is the root of all evil (I Timothy vi. 10) "Faith the root whence only can arise The graces of a life that wins the skies (Cowper) Provenance and provenience (the form preferred by some writers) are chiefly used by scholars, especially in the fields of history anthropology philology and the like for the place (sometimes, the race or people) from which a thing is derived or where (or by whom or among whom) it originated was invented was constructed or the like as not to know the provenance (or provenience) of a legend or custom antiquities of doubtful provenance He would have some difficulty in guessing its provenance and naming the race from which it was brought (A Lang) Prime mover has been employed in philosophy theology poetry but is now chiefly used in mechanics as a designation of an ultimate and original source of motion or motive power In early use it was applied especially to God as the source of all motion this application still occurs but in more modern use when applied to a personal agent it usually refers to an inciter or instigator of an action or course as, the prime mover in the whole matter was Hugh the Great (Freeman) In mechanics the term applies to the natural or mechanical power which sets a thing moving or in motion it has been used in reference to wind (as in driving a sailing ship) steam (as in driving a steamship) a waterwheel a windmill a steam engine and the like

Ana Beginning commencement, initiation starting (see corresponding verbs at BEGIN) derivation, origination rising or rise (see corresponding verbs at SPRING) *ancestry lineage original. *New fresh novel, new fashioned newfangled, neoteric, modern modernistic.

Ant. Dependent banal trite originate Rise derive arise *spring flow, issue emanate, proceed stem

Ana *Begin commence start ornament *Adorn decorate embellish beautify deck bedeck garnish

Ana Enhance heighten *intensify prink primp prank doll up perk up *preen prune ornate. Ornate, rococo, baroque, flamboyant, florid come into comparison when they mean elaborately and often pretentiously decorated or designed Ornate is applicable to anything heavily adorned or ornamented or conspicuously embellished, as, an ornate style of architecture in the fiacre were Gerald and a woman gant and often fantastic use of curves The term therefore implies the ornateness of design characteristic of this style of decoration especially as evident in architectural details in furniture and in mirror and picture frames. It is now used to describe any style that seems to the writer tastelessly or meaninglessly ornate or over adorned especially by scrolls and the like as That rococo seventeenth-century French imitation of the true Renaissance (Pater) Baroque was first applied to a style of art and architecture which prevailed from the time of Michelangelo (d 1564) to nearly the end of the eighteenth century and which emphasized energy in conception amplitude in design the use of dynamic contrasts extremely high relief and the employment of curved and often contorted forms I entered this Baroque interior with its twisted columns and volutes and high piled hideous tombs adorned with skeletons and allegorical figures and angels blowing trumpets (L. P Smith) In its current extended sense baroque suggests more grotesqueness and extravagance and less fancifulness than rococo although it also implies tasteless ornamentation The decorative art of the French does indeed oftener than not lend itself to the rococo though baroque it has rarely been (Brownell) Flam characteristic of that tracery is the use of curves that suggest ascending curving flames In its more general osity have gone quite out of fashion (Quiller Couch) Florid implies richness usually overrichness in details, shown particularly in the use of color figures of speech flourishes, and the like for their own sake it implies therefore showy and often ostentatious embellishment pattern' (Wilde) 'the public genuinely admired the florid and rococo forms of Early Victorian art (A C. Benson)

Ana Adorned decorated ornamented embellished (see ADORN) flowery aureate (see RHETORICAL) *luxurious sumptuous opulent *showy ostentatious.

Ant Chaste austere.

oscillate *Swing sway vibrate fluctuate pendulate waver, undulate.

Ana Vacillate waver *hesitate falter *shake tremble quiver, quaver ostensible *Apparent seeming illusory

Ana Specious *plausible colorable pretended assumed affected simulated feigned (see ASSUME) ps)

ting.

port tile

ought, v Ought should, must, have have got come into comparison as auxiliary verbs meaning is or are bound (to do or to forbear or the like) Ought and should express the compulsion of obligation ought commonly suggesting duty or moral constraint should suggesting the obligation of fitness propriety expediency and the like as We have left undone those things which we ought to have done And we have done those things sense of four qualities of his author (Arnold) But ought is often used in the weaker sense conveyed by should as The translator of Homer ought steadily to keep in mind what judges he is to try to satisfy (Arnold) Must implies the compulsion of necessity whether physical or moral it therefore carries no suggestion that the decision is left to the agent or the person involved as I did but taste a little and lo I must die (1 Samuel xiv 43) Duty whispers low Thou must (Emerson) 'I suppose a woman must have children to love—somebody else's if not her own' (E Wharton) Have and in low colloquial uses have got are often used in the sense of must with however less stress on inescapable necessity and more on the compulsion of obligation duty need or the like as he has to go to the hospital for an operation he had to leave before the convention ended Science has, and will long have to be a divider (Arnold)

Aught naught nought *cipher zero ject expel evict dismiss xclude eliminate shut out rule out debar *dismiss discharge fire cashier sack

*Outright unmitigated arrant fect consequence result aftereffect ith issue upshot sequel ot portion destiny termination *end outdo Excel outstrip transcend surpass *exceed outdoor Outdoor open air, plein-air alfresco agree in meaning outside a house or building Outdoor usually implies existence or occurrence outside of any building and in the fresh air as, outdoor exercise or games outdoor for house wear) an owever it is utside of an

each group.

institution, especially a hospital and then approaches extramural in meaning as outdoor relief Open air invariably implies existence occurrence or the like outside of any building as open air meetings open air concerts an open air school (that is, a school conducting all or most of its activities out of doors) Plein-air, a French term adopted in English as an equivalent of open-air is chiefly applied to certain schools of painters (or their paintings) who carry on their work out of doors and concentrate attention on atmospheric and light effects Alfresco (derived from the Italian al fresco in the fresh [air]) also is equivalent to open-air in denotation However it is applied chiefly to meals, entertainments etc. and so has acquired connotations of informality rusticity and the like.

outer Outer, outward, outside, external, exterior are here compared as adjectives meaning being or placed without something Although in many cases interchangeable they are more or less restricted in their applications and are therefore clearly distinguished in their implications. Outer usually retains its comparative force then applying to that which is farther out from something described as inner (as, the outer as distinguished from the inner court the outer layer of skin is called the epidermis) or is farther than another thing from the center the body or the like (as to shed one's outer garments the outer covering of a butternut is removed before the nut is cracked) Outer is also applicable to that which is definitely without as opposed to that which is definitely within something but in this sense the term rarely suggests spatial relations thus, the outer man is the man as known in the flesh and as distinguished from the inner man, that is, the man as he really is in mind and soul one's outer life is that which is observable to one's fellows the outer world is the world as known directly through the senses Outward less frequently than formerly may be used of spatial relations when it is so used it commonly implies motion or direction away from or the reverse of that which is inward as given to outward display outward travel from New York City is very heavy over the weekends the outward curve of a convex lens. Like outer the term is sometimes used in contrast with that which is spiritual (as, Women's self-possession is an outward thing inwardly they flutter' —Conrad) but more often it implies existence entirely without the mind or soul as obstinate questionings Of sense and outward things (Wordsworth) Unless the outward and visible signs of Our Authority are always before a native he is incapable of understanding what authority means (Kipling) Outside usually implies a position on or a reference to the outer parts or surface of a thing as, an outside stateroom on a ship outside shutters the outside paint is looking shabby But outside in extended use applies especially to a person or thing that is beyond certain implied borders bounds, or limits thus, an outside influence is one not emanating from the particular society group community or the like in mind the outside world is the world beyond the scope or interest of a family group community set or the like or the confines of a town city or state an outside broker is one who is not a member of an exchange outside work is work in the field or on the road in contrast with inside work as in an office factory or store It it had condemned Old Chester would not have cared in the very least It looked down upon the outside world (Deland) External and exterior are often used interchangeably without loss, for both come close in meaning to outside (as the exterior or external appearance of an object the exterior or external form of a body) But external is usually the term preferred when location or situation beyond or away from the thing under consideration is implied (as I was often unable to think of external things as having external existence —Wordsworth Our desires and wills are directed to some object external to us —S Alexander) and exterior is the term preferred when location or situation on the surface or on the outer limits of a thing is implied (as, the exterior slope of a fortification the exterior parts of the human body Thou whose exterior semblance doth belie Thy Soul's immensity —Wordsworth) But external often comes close to superficial in implying mere appearance or semblance that has no relation or little relation to what the thing really is, as But under this external appearance of ease she was covered with cold beads of sweat (E Wharton), beauty that is purely external

Ana *Extrinsic, extraneous foreign alien

Ant Inner —Con Inward inside internal interior intestine (see INNER) outfit, n *Equipment apparatus paraphernalia tackle machinery gear matériel.

outfit, v *Furnish equip appoint accouter arm outlander or uitlander *Stranger foreigner alien outsider immigrant, émigré outlandish *Strange singular unique peculiar eccentric erratic odd queer quaint curious Ana Bizarre grotesque *fantastic, antic alien foreign extraneous, *extrinsic.

outlast *Outlive survive

Ana Endure persist abide *continue withstand resist (see OPPOSE) outline, n 1 Outline contour, profile, sky line, silhouette come into comparison as meaning the boundary line or lines which give form or shape to a body, a mass a figure or the like Outline refers to a line which marks or seems to mark the edge or limits of a thing it may apply either to an outer edge (as At night the outline of the shore is traced in transparent silver by the moonlight and the flying foam —Stevenson) or to the continuous line (sometimes then outlines is preferred) that marks the edge of a body or mass, especially from a given point of view (as Clem looked at the big house The dark outline against the dark sky made him hesitate —E Caldwell [the lighthouse keeper] far from the earth of which he scarcely distinguishes the outlines through the mist —H Ellis) Contour does not fix the attention on an edge or limit but on the outer lines as related to a thing's shape and as indicative of its grace or lack of grace its fullness or slenderness, its softness or harshness or the like as the full and flowing contour of the neck (Shelley) a child of timid soft contours (Heslett) the blurred contour of Rainbarrow obstructed the sky (Hardy) Specifically contour applies to lines (contour lines) in a map (contour map) that indicates the configuration of a country or tract of land Profile in its earliest sense applies to the representation or the appearance of something in outline especially of a face in side view showing the contour of the head and emphasizing the line from forehead to under the chin as lips lovely in profile —a little too wide and hard seen in front (Ruskin) Consequently profile is usually the preferred term when a varied and sharply defined outline as seen against a background is implied although sky line may be chosen as more specific when the background is the sky as Its sky line was like the profile of a big beast lying down (Cather) the sky line of New York City Silhouette in its earlier and literal sense, applies especially to a kind of portrait of someone or something made by tracing the outline of his (or its) shadow on a wall on blueprint See under SKETCH v outline, v *Sketch diagram delineate draft trace plot blueprint outlive Outlive outlast survive are here compared as noted as the three brothers lived to be over ninety but John outlived James and Henry Not marble nor the gilded monuments Of princes, shall outlive this powerful rhyme (Shak) to outlive one s shame The world has outlived much and will outlive a great deal more (J R Lowell) Outlast usually stresses greater length of duration rather than greater capacity for endurance and therefore is employed when comparison is more important than a suggestion of superiority or when the fact of existing longer is more important than the length of time involved as Customs that have long outlasted their usefulness (Inge) The sweet sensations of returning health made me happy for a time but such sensations seldom outlast convalescence (Hudson) But when length of (as distinguished from capacity for) endurance rather than length of life or existence is implied outlast is preferred to outlive as He could outlast horse and outrace hound (Masefield) Survive may be used as an intransitive as well as a transitive verb in general it suggests merely a living or existing longer than another person or thing or after some event (sometimes implied rather than expressed) which might bring about his (or its) end as the elder sister survived the younger far more infants survive after birth than in the days when no prenatal care was given he is unlikely to survive the operation No religion can survive the judgment of his-

ceed

outlook, n *Prospect anticipation foretaste

Ana Forecasting or forecast predicting or prediction prophesying or prophecy presaging or presage (see corresponding verbs at FORETELL) possibility probability likelihood (see corresponding adjectives at PROBABLE) outrage, v 1 *Abuse misuse mistreat maltreat ill treat

Ana *Wrong persecute oppress aggrieve corrupt pervert vitiate deprave *debase.

2 *Offend affront insult Ana Vex, *annoy irk bother mortify chagrin (see corresponding adjectives at ASHAMED) outrageous Outrageous monstrous heinous atrocious agree in meaning enormously or flagrantly bad or horrible That is outrageous which violates even the lowest standard of what is right or decent or exceeds one s power to suffer or tolerate as, outrageous behavior an outrageous practical joke an outrageous cartoon outrageous treatment of prisoners of war That is monstrous which is shockingly wrong absurd horrible or the like or is inconceivably fantastic abnormal or aberrant as, a monstrous falsehood a monstrous conception of morality It is natural that you should consider the idea of an isolated or imprisoned manhood something monstrous (Meredith) The very horror with which men spoke centuries after plainly indicates that such a wholesale massacre was exceptional monstrous (Quiller Couch) That is heinous which is so flagrantly bad or so conspicuous for its enormity that it excites hatred or horror as, treason has always been regarded as a heinous crime A process so heinous that men might on it spit (Chaucer) These animal passions are felt most FAMOUS) *excessive inordinate immoderate extreme flagitious nefarious iniquitous *vicious outright, adj Outright out-and-out unmitigated arrant are comparable when they are used hyperbolically as meaning just what one (a person or thing) is said to be without reservation or qualification They are often used interchangeably as intensives but there are clear differences in meaning That is outright which has gone to the extreme and can be made neither better nor worse beyond the possibility of being lessened softened relieved or the like as an unmitigated evil unrequited affections are in youth unmitigated woes (L P Smith) That is arrant which is all that is implied by the term that follows (usually a term of abuse) as an arrant coward an arrant hypocrite an arrant liar Cf footnote at ABSOLUTE outside adj *Outer outward external exterior

Ana *Extrinsic extraneous alien foreign

Ant Inside — Con *Inner inward internal interior intestine outsider *Stranger foreigner alien outlander immigrant émigré outstanding Prominent conspicuous, salient signal striking arresting remarkable *noticeable.

Ana *Exceptional

Ant Commonplace — Con *Common ordinary familiar outstrip Outdo *exceed surpass transcend excel.

outward *Outer outside external exterior

Ana Extraneous *extrinsic alien foreign

Ant Inward — Con *Inner inside internal interior intestine outwit *Frustrate thwart foil baffle balk circumvent

Ana Defeat overcome surmount (see CONQUER) *prevent preclude obviate, avert overreach, *cheat defraud over *Above

Ant Beneath

overbearing Supercilious, disdainful lordly arrogant haughty *proud insolent

Ana Domineering *masterful imperious scorning or scornful despising or despiteful contemning (see corresponding verbs at DESPISE) autocratic despotic, tyrannical *absolute.

Ant. Subservient.

overcome. Surmount, overthrow subjugate rout *conquer vanquish defeat beat, lick subdue

Ana Capture *catch outstrip outdo *exceed *suppress repress.

overdue *Tardy behindhand late

Ana Delayed retarded detained slowed slackened (see DELAY v) deferred postponed (see DEFER) overflow. *Teem swarm abound, superabound overlay. Overlay, superpose superimpose, appliqué agree in meaning to add one thing to another by placing the former upon or over the latter Overlay usually implies covering with another material or substance sometimes thinly as with a wash glaze or coat (as plated silver is often a white metal overlaid with silver) sometimes thickly as by incrusting, veneering or plastering (as, a brick wall overlaid with stucco) In extended use overlay usually implies accretions or additions that conceal or encumber the original thing or smother and stifle whatever there is of life in it The ancient world had its own complexities but it was not like ours heavily overlaid with the debris of speculative systems (Buchan) Ages of fierceness have overlaid what is naturally kindly in the dispositions of ordinary men and women (B Russell) Superpose and superimpose are not always clearly distinguished especially when they imply a putting of one thing on top of another thereby extending the height of the original mass thus strata are layers of rock successively built up by sedimentary deposits each layer being superimposed (or sub— on the one previously formed Superpose ho preferred term when relative position only and superimpose when the thing added rest supported by the original thing thus sup umns do not necessarily have the columns c row for their respective bases, but superimpos do an overtone is strictly a superposed (not a superimposed) tone Superpose is also the preferred term among scientists when dealing with light rays undulations etc that occupy the same position without destroying each other or losing their identities as upon the large and general motion of the glacier smaller motions are superposed (J Tyndall) originally they [the two bright spots] were superposed on each other (Karl K Darrow) Superimpose often especially in extended use carries the implications of imposition or the addition of something extraneous and burdensome, as many a historian superimposes his prejudices or private opinions upon his narrative of events Appliqué (a verb derived from the French past participle appliqué which is used in English as an adjective) always implies an intent to ornament and is chiefly used in reference to cut or shaped pieces of a fabric or textile which are pasted sewn or otherwise attached to a similar or contrasting fabric or textile so as to form a decorative pattern on the surface of the latter as, to appliqué a satin blouse with wool of the same color net on which lace motifs are appliquéd is called appliqué lace In extended use appliqué always suggests overlaying so as to form a decorative design

Never taking his eyes off the pine-trees, appliquéd against the blue water (Cather) overlook. Slight forget ignore, disregard *neglect, omit.

overplus *Excess superfluity surplus surplusage.

overreach *Cheat, cozen defraud swindle overrun. *Infest beset overset *Overturn upset, capsize overthrow subvert oversight Oversight, supervision, surveillance not only carry the same meaning etymologically—a watching over—but in their current use come into comparison when they denote the function or duty of watching or guarding for the sake of proper control or direction. Oversight the term of Anglo-Saxon origin, applies to the function or duty not only of one who is called an overseer or an inspector but of any one whose duty it is to watch the progress of a piece of work so that no defects or imperfections may occur or to superintend the labors or efforts of a force a staff or other body of workers as, each foreman is charged with the oversight of the work done in his department the bishop has oversight of the clergy and parishes in his diocese. Supervision, the term of Latin origin carries the strongest implication of authoritative powers, of responsibility and of superintendence, it therefore usually suggests more rigorous direction or closer management than oversight as, the architect had supervision of the construction of the building the supervision of the schools is the duty of the superintendent rather than of the board of education police supervision of traffic is very strict Surveillance, the term of French origin applies largely to any duty involving a close watch of persons lest they commit misdeeds of offenses against the law or against morals, or suffer untoward accidents as, the police are maintaining a strict surveillance of the suspect to keep the inmates of a lunatic asylum under surveillance

Ana Management direction controlling or control (see corresponding verbs at CONDU[illegible] [illegible]ection scrutiny examination (see

[illegible] subvert upset

[illegible] *conquer de-

[illegible] [illegible]duce

[illegible]erture, approach, advance tender, bid [illegible]n the senses in which they are here considered words of somewhat indefinite application covering any of a variety of acts or actions by which one person or party tries to gain the good will of another person or party Overture, in careful use always implies an attempt to begin a relationship It may designate a formal proposal intended to open negotiations, as for peace for a marriage between persons of royal blood or for a merger of corporations. It is however, often applied to any act or speech that may be construed as a search for an opening for friendship for reconciliation for co-operation or the like She was not one of those backward and delicate ladies who can die rather than make the first overture (Fielding) You are the new second officer I believe Mr Powell answered in the affirmative wondering if this was a friendly overture (Conrad) Approach often is used in place of overture when the latter is felt to be too formal as, the two girls made timid approaches to each other Advance may be applied to any attempt to gain love friendship good will, or the like whether it serve as an overture or as an effort to establish a closer relationship as after his overtures (more explicit than advances) were accepted no further advances (not overtures) were made by either for some days She tried to make talk but Hugh answered all her advances briefly (S Anderson) Tender in this looser sense still retains its primary meaning of offer but it does not necessarily imply specific acts or a formal proposal Sometimes it suggests little more than a sign or token "He hath, my lord of late made many tenders Of his affection to me Affection! pooh! you speak like a green girl Do you believe his lenders, as you call them?' " (Shak) Bid, the act or action can be inferred only from the context, as, the new state's ready acceptance of the Allies' proposal constituted a bid for recognition

Ana. *Proposal proposition offering or offer, proffering (see corresponding verbs at OFFER)

2 Induction, *introduction prologue, prelude preface foreword, prolegomenon, proem, exordium, preamble, prolusion, protasis avant propos overturn. Overturn, overset, upset, capsize, overthrow, subvert come into comparison only because they carry a common basic meaning—to cause to fall (sometimes intransitively to fall) from its normal or proper position is a state, an institution, or something which has been built up or become established the term also common and close synonym of overturn is now increasingly rare having given way to upset in its literal and, sense of upset see DISCOMPOSE), as the result of some external or internal cause or agency, as, 'I overset my raft' (Defoe), 'No birds in last year's nests—the winds have torn and upset the mossy structures in the bushes' (Jefferies), 'A man who knew how slight a thing would overset the delicate organisation of the mind' (Dickens) long time' (Justice Holmes) Capsize is the specific term ander) "Representative government easily may be England has been used to subvert equality and ity' (Brownell)

Invert *reverse transpose

1 Possess hold *have enjoy oxygenate. *Aerate ventilate carbonate ozone. *Air, atmosphere ether

P

pabulum. *Food aliment, nutriment, nourishment sustenance pace, n 1 *Trot, single-foot walk, gallop run canter lope rack, amble character or quality as peace-loving as disposed to avoid strife or as inclined to keep peace, rather than the or tendencies, as the villagers were a quiet, peaceable folk, Our king the good Simonides deserves so to be good government" his tongue was not views, a nent of each group like, that have for their aim the promotion of peace and of bringing members of divergent sects into accord Pieper lived to see his synod adopt a very irenic attitude towards its former antagonists (Dict Amer Biog) Pacifist and pacifistic, terms of very recent coinage apply ch efly to the views arguments writings or the like of those who call themselves pacifists or opponents of war or the use of military force for any purpose (as pacifist propaganda pacifist doctrines the pacifist atti tude to the Second World War) but they may also apply to the spirit or utterances of anyone who conscientiously objects to wars or who would substitute arbitration for conflict in the settlement of any disputes (as, pacifistic antagon sm to conscription pacifistic labor leaders)

Ana *Calm placid serene tranquil conciliating or conciliatory propitiating or propitiatory appeasing pacifying or pacificatory (see corresponding verbs at PACIFY)

Ant Bellicose — Con *Belligerent pugnacious quarrelsome contentious pacifist, pacifistic *Pacific, peaceable peaceful irenic.

pacify Pacify, appease, placate, mollify, propitiate conciliate agree in meaning to quiet a person or persons when excited or disturbed Pacify presupposes a d sturb ance of the peace and often, but far from invariably a state of insurrection or of active hostility it impl es a reduction to order or quiet but not necessarily a removal of the cause of the outbreak as it took time to pacify the exc ted children troops were sent to pacify the rebellious tribes Appease usually presupposes ag tation caused by someone or something that makes demands it therefore may be used in reference to appetites desires passions, as well as persons it implies giving satisfact on, sometimes complete satisfaction, but more often merely a contenting as to appease one s curiosity or one s hunger When he [an orator] has once tasted the blood of popular applause he is a t ger nevermore to be appeased (Grandgent) Thoroughly to appease his conce t it would have been necessary to sw ng open the gates of honour in the Arc and allow h s figure to pass through (Bennett) In the constructions to appease one s wrath rage temper etc or to appease one in a rage the implication of demands to be satisfied is often obscured though seldom lost the emphasis however is on calming or quiet ng the excitement by pleasing or gratifying as he hoped to appease his father by his candor He [Antony] had a hasty temper but it was eas ly appeased (Buchan) Placate always presupposes bitterness of feeling deep resentment or the like; it implies success in changing all will into good will or a hostile to a friendly attitude as he never attempts to placate his enemies Noth ng ever placates them nothing ever moves to a look of approval that ring of bleak old contemptuous Faces (L P Smith) Mollify presupposes agitation caused by anger especially rising anger or by hurt feelings it implies a softening of one s wrath or a sooth ing of one s feelings as she takes offense eas ly but flattery always mollifies her His careworn look mollified my wife toward him (Thackeray) Propitiate presupposes an offense or affront that makes one ill d sposed it impl es a placating usually for the sake of gaining that person s or group s active or effective good will The gods [of the ancient Greeks] were capricious and often hostile but at least they had a nature akin to his if they were angry they might be propitiated if they were jealous they m ght be appeased (G L Dickinson) Aunty Rosa he argued had the power to beat him It would be d screet in the future to propitiate Aunty Rosa (Kipling) Conciliate presupposes an estrangement or an alienation of a person or group it implies a winning over as by persuasion arbitration inducements or the like and a settling of differences. Dr Lambert with amazing good nature and tact has been able to conciliate the various Island administra tions (V Heiser) The natural instinct of man to conciliate and to propitiate him [a deity] by all the means in his power as he would offer gifts to a prince or chief (A C Benson)

Ana Assuage alleviate allay mitigate *relieve *mod erate qual fy temper

Ant Anger

pack, n 1 *Bundle bunch package packet bale parcel, fardel

2 *Flock herd, drove, bevy covey gaggle flight swarm shoal package, n Packet *bundle bunch bale parcel pack fardel.

packet, n Package pack *bundle bunch bale parcel fardel.

pact Compact *contract bargain treaty entente convention cartel covenant concordat indenture mise pagan, n Pagan heathen, paynim, ethnic, Gentile come into comparison both as nouns and as adjectives when they mean one (or as an adjective of or character istic of one) that belongs to a religion that is not Christian and often by implication, not Jewish Pagan, which came into English from the Latin and heathen which came into Anglo-Saxon from earlier Germanic languages were both used in this sense by early Christians, and by some later writers deal ng with early Christian ty to designate persons who lived in remote sections or away from the centers of civilization and had not yet been converted to Christianity In the course of time with the Christianization of these peoples the words became somewhat, though not always clearly differentiated in meaning, hence pagan very frequently refers specifically to a follower of the Greek and Roman and similar polytheistic religions of ancient times or of times before the Christianizat on of Europe and America (as The emperor Jul an was perverted from Christianity and confirmed a pagan by Maximus a magician —Defoe It was the words descended into Hades That seemed too pagan to our liberal youth —R Frost) and heathen by contrast to one who belongs to a race or people unconverted to Christianity even though that race or people has a rel gion (often but not necessarily a polytheistic religion) of its own (thus, Christian m s sionaries are sent to convert the heathens [not pagans] To reveal his Son in me that I m ght preach him among the heathen —Galatians i 16) In current use pagan more often suggests an attitude to l fe than a difference in religion the term variously impl es irreligiousness indifference to things of the spirit frank del ght in material joys or goods or the like "The Renascence is, in part a return towards the pagan spirit in the special sense in which I have been us ng the word pagan a return towards the life of the senses and the understand ng (Arnold) You will hear the word pagan flung loosely about for irreligious or sometimes as meaning joyous material and comfort loving whereas the s mple pagans walked the earth full of what is called holy awe and that mystic faith in unseen powers which is the antithesis of material sm and gloomy with apprehension of the visitations of their horrid and vindictive gods (R Macaulay) Paynim, or ginally a Middle English word meaning pagandom and then pagan is now an archaic or historical term used chiefly in historical novels, for one who from the point of view of the Middle Ages is a heathen from the crusades on the term has been specifically applied to one of the chief enemies of the crusaders, a Mohammedan or Saracen as, The Paynim turban and the Christian crest (Byron) Both ethnic (now obsolete as a noun) and Gentile (often implies an opposition to Jew and applies as a rule to a Christian of any denomination as Jews and Gentiles gathered to honor the great Hebrew divine pagan, adj Heathen paynim ethnic Gentile See under PAGAN n

pain, n 1 Pain ache, pang throe, twinge, stitch come into comparison when they mean a bodily sensation that causes acute discomfort or suffering Pain may range in its application from a sensation that makes one uneasily aware of some bodily disturbance or injury to a sensation pain implies acute and often sudden suffering such as might be inflicted by something that pierces stings burns or the like An ache is commonly a steady often a dull pain it is especially referable to sensations arising from disorders that may be relieved, as, a back*ache* a head*ache* A fellow that never had the ache in his shoulders (Shak) A pang is a sharp sudden and often transitory pain of great intensity especially one that recurs in spasms Pangs have taken hold upon me as the pangs of a woman that travaileth (Isaiah xxi 3) A throe is a pang characteristic of a process, such as that of labor in childbirth Because of its association with labor it usually designates a violent and convulsive as well as a recurrent pain as, in the throes of violent retching The throes of a mortal and painful disorder (Scott) A twinge is a momentary shooting or darting pain especially one causing muscular contraction or twitching it is sometimes regarded as a premonitory suffering Pain commonly suggests sorrow as for something lost or unattainable. An leave us nought but grief an pain For promis'd joy (Burns) Ache usually implies suffering that must be endured or longing not likely to be appeased as a dull ache in her heart to know the ache of loneliness. Pang suggests a sudden sharp access of a painful emotion as sharp pangs of envy or fear or remorse Throe presupposes the existence of

Ana Agony *distress suffering passion anguish, *sorrow grief

2 In plural form pains *Effort exertion trouble

Ana Labor toil travail *work industriousness or industry diligence sedulousness assiduousness (see corresponding adjectives at BUSY)

*Couple, brace yoke.

ium comrade *associate companion crony ty as to provide palatable meals for one turkey to prefer a savory to a sweet omelet In its ex

Toothsome heightens the implication of agreeableness palatable and usually adds also the suggestion of tenderness or of daintiness as, a toothsome steak a toothsome dessert Flavorsome is the more or less colloquial equivalent of sapid though usually it suggests richness rather than sharpness of taste and often implies fragrance as well as savor as, flavorsome apricots a flavorsome rum sauce Relishing stresses gusto in enjoyment as plain fare is relishing to a starving man be

each group.

palate *Taste relish gusto zest pale adj 1 Pale pallid, ashen ashy wan, livid agree in meaning devoid of natural or healthy color (as a complexion) or deficient in vividness or intensity of hue (as a specific color) Pale is the least rich in implications and connotations of these words it merely implies relative nearness to white and deficiency in depth and brilliance of coloring as his face grew pale the pale pink of a rose the sea is a pale green in this light Pallid adds to pale the suggestions of deprivation rather than absence of color and of an abnormal condition such as weakness or faintness, or intense weariness thus one's cheeks may be naturally pale (better than pallid) his pallid (more expressive than pale) face reveals the strain he has been under Trembling limbs and pallid lips (Shelley) "Its little smoke in pallid moonshine died (Keats) Ashen and ashy definitely suggest not only the pale gray color of ashes but often also that of the skin in death A thing described as ashen or ashy may therefore be said to be deadly or ghastly pale as, The skies they were ashen and sober (Poe) the ashen hue of age (Scott) Oft have I seen a timely parted ghost Of ashy semblance (Shak) Mr Cruncher who was all in a tremble with an ashy and solemn visage (Dickens) Wan suggests the blanching associated with an unhealthy condition or waning vitality it usually therefore denotes a sickly paleness as the blasted stars looked wan" (Milton) her poor wan face with its wistful pitiful little smile (Hewlett) Livid basically means leaden-hued it is chiefly used of things especially of human faces that under the influence of something that distorts them have lost their normal coloring and have assumed a dull gray tinge as he grew livid with rage the livid sky before a storm In the greenish glass her own face looked far off like the livid face of a drowned corpse at the bottom of a pool (Conrad) The word is also applied to various dull or dun colors when the hue is no more than apparent as the livid red of the sun seen through a heavy fog the livid yellow of a stormy sky His trembling lips are livid blue (Scott)

Ana *Ghastly macabre cadaverous *haggard worn

2 Pale, anemic (or anaemic) bloodless come into comparison in their extended senses when they are applied to things and mean weak and thin in substance or in vital qualities as though drained of blood Pale stresses deficiency in qualities necessary to give a thing its true color or character Sometimes it connotes lack of vigor force or energy as The French Shake in their fear and with pale policy Seek to divert the English purposes (Shak) more often especially in modern use it implies inadequacy or failure to measure up to the requirements of a type or standard I choose to wear you [his love] stamped all over me That pale loves may die out of their pretence (Browning) Even philosophy unless you count the pale work of Boethius —real philosophy had nearly perished [in the Dark Ages] (Quiller Couch) Dropping a pale smile on him she drifted away (E Wharton) Anemic, literally used to describe persons whose blood is deficient in the number or quality of red corpuscles in its extended applications to things implies deficiency in the elements that make for vigor or richness especially intellectual or spiritual vigor or richness. That anaemic secular conception of the universe as a whole which be [Darwin] seems to have accepted (H Ellis) The African negro has joy of life love of colour keen senses beautiful voice and ear for music—contributions that might one day prove a tonic to an anaemic and artless America (Zangwill) Bloodless stresses the absence of qualities necessary to life or lifelikeness such as vitality warmth color etc Books are good enough in their own way, but they are a mighty bloodless substitute for life" (Stevenson)

Ana *Insipid wishy washy inane jejune inadequate insufficient (see affirmative adjectives at SUFFICIENT) *ineffective ineffectual pall Cloy surfeit *satiate sate glut gorge surcharge palliate Palliate, extenuate gloze, gloss whitewash whiten come into comparison as meaning to disguise artfully or otherwise give a speciously fine appearance to that which is base evil erroneous or the like Palliate in strict use stresses the concealing or cloaking or the condoning of (or an attempt to conceal, cloak or condone) the enormity of a crime or offense as Retracing thus his frolics ('tis a name That palliates deeds of folly and of shame) (Cowper) We have not endeavored to conceal or even palliate his errors (Lockhart) We cannot explain away this deliberate act as due to the garrulity of age or accept the other excuses with which his admirers have sought to palliate it (L P Smith) The word is also used in reference to other than moral evils in the sense of to disguise the true nature or extent of so as to soften its bad effects as Minds which are keener and wills which are stronger than the average do not rest in quiet desperation palliated by illusion (J W Krutch) When Sophia observed a fault in the daily conduct of the house her first impulse was to go to the root of it and cure it her second was to leave it alone or to palliate it by some superficial remedy (Bennett) Extenuate (as here considered see also THIN) in very precise use refers not only to crimes and offenses but also to one's guilt the term implies the aim to lessen as by excuses or the like the seriousness or magnitude of the crime offense or guilt as When you shall these unlucky deeds relate Speak of me as I am nothing extenuate Nor set down aught in malice (Shak) These however varnished however coloured over however extenuated or diminished will in the event feel the wrath of God (W Paley) he may have somewhat overpraised the virtues and too much extenuated the faults of Bolingbroke (T S Eliot) But the term is often even by good writers used in the sense of to make excuses for as "She had never forgiven Cromwell the execution of the martyr Charles and to extenuate the conduct of the great Roundhead captain was to make Mrs Doria despise and detest you (Meredith) The fact that Soranzo is himself a bad lot does not extenuate her [his wife's] willingness to ruin him (T S Eliot) Gloze and gloss usually followed by over imply an aim to veil as by specious comments by flattering talk or by any other more or less light dissembling the true harshness unpleasantness or disagreeableness of something often the word suggests a representation of that which is actually disagreeable as more or less agreeable or as not distinctly unpleasant gloze however is usually more derogatory than gloss as the explorer has succeeded in glossing over the hardships he endured With the tongue of flattery glozing deeds which God and Truth condemn (Whittier) Whitewash, and less often (especially in colloquial or journalistic use) whiten, imply an attempt to cover up a crime a serious defect or fault a person's guilt, or the like, by some means or other such as a superficial investigation, or a perfunctory trial or a special report that leads to a seeming acquittal or exoneration or that gives the person or persons accused an appearance of innocence or blamelessness as A poet and an author will go as far in whitewashing a munificent tyrant (Walpole) By selecting the evidence any society may be relatively blackened and any other society relatively whitened (H Spencer)

Ana Mitigate alleviate lighten (see RELIEVE) con done *excuse *moderate qualify temper cloak mask *disguise dissemble pallid *Pale ashen, ashy wan livid palpable 1 *Perceptible sensible tangible appreciable ponderable Ana *Apparent ostensible seeming believable credible colorable *plausible Ant Insensible

2 Plain clear *evident apparent manifest patent obvious distinct Ana *Sure certain positive *noticeable remarkable striking arresting Ant Impalpable — Con *Doubtful dubious questionable problematical palpitate Beat throb *pulsate pulse Ana Vibrate oscillate fluctuate *swing sway palpitation. Beat throb pulsation pulse See under PULSATE v Ana Vibration oscillation fluctuation swinging swaying (see corresponding verbs at SWING) palsy *Paralysis apoplexy stroke shock palter. *Lie prevaricate equivocate fib Ana Evade elude *escape *trifle dally paltry Trifling trivial *petty puny measly picayunish, picayune Ana *Contemptible despicable sorry scurvy cheap beggarly abject ignoble *mean *base low vile pamper *Indulge humor spoil baby mollycoddle Ana Gratify tickle regale *please fondle pet *caress dandle Ant Chasten

pandect *Compendium syllabus digest survey sketch précis aperçu pandemonium Uproar *din hullabaloo babel hubbub racket pander *Cater purvey Ana Truckle toady *fawn cringe gratify tickle regale *please panegyric Tribute eulogy *encomium citation Ana Commendation applauding or applause complimenting or compliment (see corresponding verbs at COMMEND) acclaiming or acclaim laudation, praising or praise extolling or extollation (see corresponding verbs at PRAISE) pang *Pain ache throe twinge stitch Ana Agony *distress suffering anguish *sorrow grief heartache torturing or torture tormenting or torment (see corresponding verbs at AFFLICT) panic Terror horror trepidation consternation dismay alarm fright dread *fear Ana Agitation upsetting or upset perturbation disquieting or disquiet discomposing or discomposure (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE) Con *Confidence assurance self possession aplomb *equanimity composure sang froid pant Aspire *aim Ana Thirst hunger *long yearn pine crave covet *desire wish want pantaloon *Fool jester clown antic buffoon zany merry andrew harlequin comedian comic stooge paper, n 1 Paper, instrument document are here compared in their most general senses as meaning a writing (often typed sometimes printed) that is of value to its owner or to others who come after him as a source of information proof of a right or contention or the like Paper is the most general term applicable to any of the letters deeds, certificates writs etc (papers in general) that are filed away for future use or reference as state papers A peculiar difficulty I have experienced in dealing ... h ... I ... d M ... l ...

ancestry (H Ellis) Instrument is a legal term applicable only to a paper (such as a deed a writ a will a contract or the like) that is made and executed according to the terms of the law as concrete evidence of a transfer of property the enforcement of a judgment one's decisions as to who shall inherit one's property the terms of an agreement or the like as [The slave's wh e] father executed certain instruments to manumit him (Ch Just Taney) Document, as here compared (see also DOCUMENT 1) applies to any legal instrument or to any original or authentic copy of a letter a record or other paper that may be used as a source of information evidence or proof as the documents to be used by the

2 Article *essay theme composition par, n Norm *average mean median.

par, adj Mean median average See under AVERAGE n parable *Allegory myth fable apologue parachronism *Anachronism metachronism prochronism parade, n *Display array pomp Ana Showiness ostentatiousness or ostentation, pretentiousness pompousness (see corresponding adjectives at SHOWY) parade v Flaunt expose display exhibit *show Ana *Reveal disclose divulge *declare proclaim publish advertise vaunt *boast brag gasconade Con Cloak mask *disguise dissemble paradigm *Model example pattern exemplar ideal beau ideal standard mirror paradox Paradox antinomy anomaly are not synonyms but they all involve the idea of expressing or ... and are facts and common sense The perfectly bred man is born not bred if the paradox may be permitted (Brownell) By extension a paradox is a situation which is known to exist yet which when described or put in words seems incredible because it involves a logical contradiction His [Horace's] own phrase of golden mediocrity expresses with some truth the paradox of his poetry in no other poet ancient or modern has such studied and unintermitted mediocrity been wrought in pure gold (J W Mackail) The old will perennially become new at the hand of genius. That is the paradox of art (Lowes) An antinomy, in philosophical use is a contradiction between two laws principles or conclusions both of which are held on good grounds or are correctly inferred from the same facts or premises thus the conclusions that every material thing can be explained by mechanical causes and that some material ... cause is postu... ant ... nce ... one ... able ... ard ... led one another not as clashing antinomies but as reco... opposites (Babbitt) In discriminating general use however, an antinomy is an irresolvable conflict (at least in the light of present knowledge) of principles, beliefs forces, tendencies, aspirations and the like A mind that is not naturally analytical and conscious of the antinomies of existence (Amer Speech) Every dogma is but one side of an inevitable antinomy (H Cushing) In Greek religion, these two tendencies are also in evidence the one working towards particularism the other towards a wider Pan Hellenic unity the Greeks —like other ancient peoples—failed to solve the antinomy (Cambridge Ancient History) An anomaly is something that is contrary to what it should be For example it may be an exception or a contradiction to the rule it may be a freak a monster a sport or a contradiction to the type it may be an anachronism or solecism irreconcilable with its surroundings or conditions it may be an action a practice mood or the like that is in effect a denial of what one believes or teaches "There is no greater anomaly in nature than a bird that cannot fly" (Darwin) That he [Mark Twain] remained active and buoyant to the end was sufficient evidence that his philosophical despair was only an anomaly which had no organic part in the structure of his life (Van W Brooks) In Egypt Augustus had royal authority an anomaly in the empire (Buchan) paragon, n Paragon, sublimation, apotheosis, phoenix (or phenix), nonpareil nonesuch are here compared as meaning a person or thing of consummate quality or transcendent excellence in its kind Paragon distinctively implies supremacy and incomparability as An angel! or if not, An earthly paragon! (Shak) on His left [hand] sat smiling Beauty's paragon (Keats) Mill's book is a paragon of expository writing (J A Macy) Hawaii, a Paragon throughout the East (V Heiser) Sublimation in precise use stresses the absence (or sometimes, the removal) of all that is gross, impure or earthy We need not trace the evolution of prayer from a half magical incantation to the sublimation of petition in Thy will be done (Inge) In loose use the word is often thought of as a synonym of quintessence That sublimation of all dismal sounds the bark of a fox (Hardy) Apotheosis is rarely used with precision or with a consciousness of its historical implications For this reason it is often indistinguishable from paragon or sublimation as here all is spotless grace ethereal delicacy the very apotheosis of womanhood (Mrs Jameson) In very discriminating use it implies glorification, or such exaltation of a person or thing that he (or it) loses human or earthly character and becomes almost divine or purely ideal, it is therefore correctly applied not only to the product but also to the act of glorification as, national or racial heroes are often apotheoses of the actual men the apotheosis of the state in totalitarian ideology Wagner believed that Beethoven's Seventh Symphony was an apotheosis of the dance (H Ellis) For some time no more was heard of them then news came of Ellen's marriage to an immensely rich Polish nobleman of legendary fame She disappeared in a kind of sulphurous apotheosis (E Wharton) Phoenix in its literal sense a mythical bird which after having lived its allotted years burns itself on a pyre and arises from the ashes with renewed youth and beauty has acquired in the figurative sense in which it is here considered the implication of uniqueness or rarity or apartness from others For goddes love, let not him be a Phenix, let him not be alone (Latimer) Lucian is far more deeply concerned at seeing the phoenix of modern couture throw herself away on a man unworthy of her (Shaw) Nonpareil and nonesuch are now rarer in literary use than they once were. Like paragon they imply the absence of a rival in excellence but they have been debased by their frequent use in names of botanical and other varieties and in trade names of manufactured articles Thou art the best o the cut throats yet he's good That did the like for Fleance if thou didst it Thou art the nonpareil (Shak) The giddy people had cried him up for a nonesuch" (Cotton Mather) paragraph Paragraph, verse, article, clause, plank, count are here compared only as denoting one of the several and individually distinct statements of a discourse or instrument, each of which deals with a particular point or item Paragraph primarily refers to a typographical division usually indicated by beginning on a new line and usually by indenting the first word or by the use of ¶ but it also is applicable to a similar division in writing or typing In rhetorical use, the term usually implies a number of sentences which comprise a unit that coherently develops a topic or point especially one of the subordinate topics or points of an essay an argument or the like In more general use brief clear or pointed statement of a single idea rather than its expansion and adequate exposition is stressed the term is often used where statements follow in serial or numbered order and are neither developed individually nor logically related to each other as see paragraph 4 of the accompanying instructions the witty paragraphs of a popular columnist. Verse, as here considered (see also VERSE, 1) is applied specifically to one of the numbered paragraphs of the Bible, especially as printed in the Authorized and Douay versions as, Isaiah chapter v verses 23–25 Article may or may not imply paragraph arrangement of each point or item but it does imply that each is a distinct yet essential member of a whole In its more common use it is applied to a statement that stands out distinctly as, for example one of the stipulations in a contract or one of the doctrines in a creed or one of the provisos of a statute thus, the Thirty nine Articles are the doctrines to which a clergyman of the Anglican Communion subscribes before being admitted to holy orders the articles of the Apostles Creed are not paragraphs or sentences, but brief phrases naming each of the dogmas professed by those Christians who hold this creed the articles of an indenture that is of an agreement by which an apprentice is bound to a master are the specific terms or conditions of that agreement However in some instruments such as the Constitution of the United States of America article designates one of the larger and more inclusive divisions, comprising many articles in the narrower sense Therefore one usually speaks of a specific rule regulation, specification, stipulation of that document or of other constitutions, as a clause Clause is also used more often than article in reference to a will a deed and a legislative bill and with little difference in frequency in reference to a contract a statute or similar instruments as, he added two clauses to his will before signing it strike out clause 5 of the agreement Plank originally an Americanism, though now found in British use is applied only to an article in a program as something that those who accept that program implicitly agree to carry out if possible It is chiefly used in designating one of the specific proposals or pledges in the platform of a political party as, the speaker argued for a platform with planks that were both specific and feasible Count is the legal designation for a particular allegation or charge in a declaration or indictment as, to try the indicted man on two counts parallel, adj Analogous, comparable *similar like alike identical, akin homogeneous, uniform

Ana. *Same, identical equal equivalent correspondent correlative (see RECIPROCAL) parallel, n 1 *Comparison contrast antithesis collation corresponds in essentials to another person or thing or closely resembles the latter in the points under consideration Parallel in very precise use is the preferred term sphere or age or language or the like as several French words such as distrait have been anglicized because they had no counterparts in English synthetic chemistry tian progressives tried to find some warrant for it [their belief in a law of progress] in the New Testament where its only analogue is the apocalyptic Messianism which we find St Paul and the author of the Fourth Gospel cautiously discarding (Inge) Correlate retains its primary implication of correspondence but does not as here compared retain that of a complementary relationship A thing which is a correlate of another in the sense under consideration is what corresponds to it from another point of view or in a different order of viewing thus the scientist asks what is the physical correlate of the rainbow the psychologist seeks the correlate of thought in the physical events in the cortex of the brain for the ideas expressed by many words there are no objective correlates affinity is the correlate in chemistry of the force the physicist calls attraction paralogism *Fallacy sophism sophistry casuistry paralogistic. Fallacious sophistical casuistical See under FALLACY paralysis Paralysis, palsy apoplexy, stroke shock are ing or tremulousness of the muscles in a part or the whole of the body Apoplexy, or its more popular designation stroke names a sudden diminution or loss of consciousness and paralysis caused either by a cerebral hemorrhage or by a clot or embolus in an artery that prevents the flow of blood into a part of the brain Paralysis is often the result of apoplexy but it may also be caused by an injury to the spinal cord or to other nervous tissues as by disease or by chemical or bacterial poisons. Shock is another popular term for apoplexy but its use is not approved by physicians because the word has a very different denotation in medicine always indicating a profound depression of the vital processes

Preponderant preponderating predominant sovereign hanger-on, leech, sponge (or sponger) are here compared another) applies strictly to one who is fed and clothed by another without giving any services in return as The poorer citizens [of ancient Rome] were little more than parasites fed with free state bread amused by free state shows (Buchan) It is in a similar sense that parasite is used in the biological sciences when the term denotes an animal or plant that lives on in or with personal advantage from that association (as friends who had faith in her ideas, as well as new parasites who hoped to profit by them gathered around her —H Ellis) or who is as useless and unnecessary a member of society as the biological parasite is to its host (as to regard all idle inheritors of wealth as parasites Sycophant (originally an informer or traducer) applies strictly to one who clings close to a person of great his favor by fawning the École Normale Supérieure and do not mix at all with the average This plan certainly has advantages It prevents the intellectuals from having their nerve broken and becoming sycophants of the average Philistine" (B Russell) Favorite in the specific sense here considered applies to a person who is the close associate and friend of a king a prince or the like and who favored by him often the term carries a sycophancy on the

Toady stresses a truckling to the rich powerful tial It sometimes implies parasitism or sycophancy but more often suggests the servility and indicates place of treatment of each gro snobbery of a social climber as he was a toady in the presence of those he regarded as his superiors and a bully when surrounded by those he thought of as his inferiors. Lickspittle, or the less common lickspit, and bootlicker, or bootlick (the latter pair American slang) are extremely contemptuous synonyms of sycophant or toady all heighten the suggestion of abject servility in fawning or truckling as, Stage-coachmen were comrades to gentlemen, lickspittles to lords (J Hawthorne) he s not a friend of B—s a bootlicker—nothing more Hanger-on is a colloquial general term for anyone who wins contempt for his close adherence to another and dependence on him as He is a perpetual hanger-on yet no-body knows how to be without him" (Swift) political hangers-on dancing attendance on this party boss or that trying to obtain sinecures. Leech applies to a hanger-on especially to a parasite who resembles both in his close clinging and in his power to bleed for his own advantage the blood sucking worms called leeches as the spendthrift and the leech That sucks him (Cowper) Sponge (now a colloquial term) or sponger, applies usually to a parasite but it stresses his laziness, dependence and greed and indifference to the discomforts he may be causing as I will do any thing Nerissa ere I ll be married to a sponge (Shak) the school club refused to elect to membership any one who they feared might become a sponger

Ana Fawner cringer truckler (see corresponding verbs at FAWN) parcel, n 1 *Part, portion piece detail member division section segment sector fraction fragment 2 *Bundle bunch pack, package packet bale fardel parcel, v *Apportion portion ration prorate Ana *Allot assign allocate apportion *grant accord award parch *Dry desiccate, dehydrate bake Ana Sear, scorch char *burn shrivel wizen *wither pardon, v Forgive remit *excuse condone Ana *Free release liberate *confess shrive absolve acquit absolve *exculpate Ant Punish — Con *Penalize fine amerce discipline correct chasten castigate chastise (see PUNISH) pardon, n Pardon, amnesty absolution, indulgence come into comparison in their legal and ecclesiastical senses Pardon which is the comprehensive term denotes a release not as is often mistakenly supposed from guilt, but from the penalty due for a transgression of secular or spiritual law Thus, in civil and military affairs, a pardon usually implies a release from prison or from the payment of a fine or from a sentence of death and permission to go scot free though not acquitted When a pardon is extended to an entire class such as an insurgent group or to an entire community it is called an amnesty, as, a general amnesty and liberty of conscience were promised to parliament by Charles II in the Declaration of Breda (1660) Amnesty often but not invariably carries its etymological implication of oblivion and suggests not only that past offenses will go unpunished but that they will be forgotten When in ecclesiastical use especially in the use of the Roman Catholic Church a pardon is extended for sins confessed and atoned for according to the laws of the Church, it is specifically called absolution when it implies that the eternal punishment for sin has been remitted in the sacrament of penance and it is specifically called indulgence when it implies that the temporal punishment (that is, punishment by heavy penances or in Purgatory) has in some degree been remitted by the performance of further acts of piety prescribed by the Church In older English, pardon often equalled indulgence but the former is seldom found in this sense today except as a translation of the French pardon or in derivatives such as pardoner (the medieval church official) The implication of permission to commit sin which indulgence acquired in the late sixteenth century was the result of post Reformation misunderstanding of the doctrine and is not found today in informed usage pardonable *Venial

pare Peel *skin decorticate flay parental Parental motherly, fatherly, maternal paternal despite the difference in sex suggested by some of the terms come into comparison as meaning of relating to or characteristic of a parent Parental carries no specific or distinguishing implications and is therefore the ordinary uncolored term as parental authority parental duties parental rights Motherly and fatherly carry implications of qualities of character or of appearance associated in the first case with the typical (or often ideal) mother and in the second the typical (or often ideal) father Motherly therefore often suggests tenderness, and comprehension of or sympathy with the natures or difficulties of children (as When I see the motherly airs of my little daughters when playing with their puppets —Addison) or the mature often buxom appearance of a woman who has competently reared many children (as, "a brisk, wholesome motherly body —L. Stephen) Fatherly usually suggests affection protectiveness wisdom in advising, and the like (as to take a fatherly interest in a group of orphans to give the departing son a fatherly blessing and fatherly counsel) or a benign often a venerable appearance (as See how the tears run down his [Cranmer's] fatherly face —Tennyson) Maternal and paternal often differ little from parental except in their definite indication of sex as maternal (or paternal) authority paternal (or maternal) love maternal (or paternal) responsibility They are however the preferred terms when relationship on or through the mother s or father s side is indicated as one s paternal grandfather ancestors on the maternal side one s maternal great aunt Oftentimes, also, maternal and paternal are used in place of motherly and fatherly especially when that which is qualified bears a relation to the fact or state of motherhood or fatherhood rather than to the concept of the ideal or typical father or mother as paternal obligations maternal fears the maternal instinct paternal emotions.

parkway *Road roadway highway highroad street avenue boulevard terrace drive thoroughfare byway lane alley alleyway parley Treat negotiate *confer commune, consult advise Ana *Discuss, debate dispute argue agitate converse talk *speak.

parody, n Travesty *caricature burlesque Ana Skit squib lampoon *libel parody v Travesty caricature burlesque See under CARICATURE n paroxysm Spasm convulsion *fit attack access accession parsimonious. Niggardly penurious *stingy close closefisted tight, tightfisted miserly curmudgeonly cheeseparing penny pinching Ana Avaricious *covetous grasping greedy *sparing frugal *mean ignoble sordid abject Ant Prodigal — Con *Profuse lavish *liberal munificent bountiful generous part n Part, portion, piece detail member, division section segment sector fraction fragment parcel are here compared as meaning something which is less than the whole but which is either considered as apart from the rest of the whole or is actually separated from it Part is the most comprehensive of these terms it may be used in place of any of the succeeding words in this denotes a part of a whole does not always presuppose a less unremembered acts Of kindness and of love (Wordsworth) He is a portion of the loveliness Which once he made more lovely (Shelley) But portion (see also FATE) is preferred to part when there is the intent to water nicely calculated as to quantity ran down a pipe and was deposited at the plant roots (S Anderson) Piece applies always to a separate or detached part or portion of a whole, thus, a piece of bread is a part of a larger whole such as a loaf or a slice, a piece of cloth may be the length of a bolt (i e a given number of yards cut from a web and made into a roll) or a length cut from a bolt a smaller length left after the larger part of that piece has been used or a bit that serves as a swatch or sample so to break a stick of candy into pieces to ask for a small piece of the cake. But piece so stresses the implication of independence that the term is often applied to a thing that is relatively complete in itself and has reference to a whole only as it presupposes a mass from which it was taken a collection of similar or related plan or design or represents the working out of a plan or design in this sense the term is used mainly but not exclusively in the arts of painting sculpture and architecture and often denotes a small but important part or feature as, to reproduce a detail of a painting the (Kipling) Member, in general applies to any part that constitutes one of the units of which a body (a human body an animal or plant body a metaphorical body a construction or structure such as a chair a table a bridge a building or far more often in current use a body of persons who make up a legislature a staff an association or the like) is comprised therefore the term though it usually implies close association with the body body, the saddle seat is a distinctive member of a Windsor chair the flying buttress is an important architectural member of most of the great medieval Gothic cathedrals members of Congress the club has 500 members "Now ye are the body of Christ and members in particular (I Corinthians xii 27), The body of the law is no less encumbered with superfluous members (Addison) Division and section apply to a distinct often a detached terms carry no explicit suggestions as to size extent, or the like division however is more often used abstractly than section which tends to be applied to a conspicu flywheel the segment of the globe known as the ... Zone In mathematical use segment is distinguished from sector in that segment refers to any part of a plane or solid figure cut off from the whole by a line or plane (as a segment of a cylinder a segment of a circle is bounded

Fraction and fragment both apply to a part that is ... connected from a whole especially by breaking ... the arithmetical fraction of your enjoyment of tragedy ... (E. Montague) and fragment applies to one of the pieces left as after eating use, the course of time or the like (as They took up of the fragments twelve baskets full —Matthew xiv 20 only a fragment of a statue or a poem remains) Parcel, as here compared (see also BUNDLE) is now rarely used except in law and in some idiomatic phrases such as part and parcel In law it means a piece of land (as to convey several parcels of an estate to ... general sense ... whole of ... is denied

... der divorce
... ent of each group

Ana *Detach disengage apportion *allot allocate assign *tear rend cleave Ant Cleave.[1] — Con Cling *stick adhere *unite combine conjoin partake *Share participate Ana *Separate part divide take *receive accept *have hold own, possess enjoy *get, obtain procure acquire.

partiality Prepossession prejudice bias *predilection Ana *Favor good will, countenance approving or approval endorsing or endorsement (see corresponding verbs at APPROVE) Ant Impartiality

participate *Share partake Ana *Separate divide part take *receive accept *have hold own, possess enjoy particle 1 Particle bit mite smitch, smidgen (or smidge) whit atom iota jot tittle come into comparison when they mean a very small or insignificant piece or part Particle which is literally a diminutive of part is used in reference not only to substances which are actually divisible but to those which are only theoretically so because they are intangible or ideal things such as a quality a state or a condition usually it implies an amount within the range of ocular or mental perception as, a particle of matter he hasn't a particle of sense "a voice from which every particle of emotion was painfully excluded" (Hardy) Bit sometimes retains its etymological suggestion of bite or mouthful as there isn't a bit of food in the house he hasn't eaten a bit today but in the sense here considered it more often suggests the least possible or feasible amount extent or degree as to own a bit of land he likes it not a bit he is a bit of a coward (that is he has a bit of cowardice in his nature) Mite (a colloquial term) because of its dual reference to mite the tiniest of insects and to the coin of insignificant value (the widow's mite of Luke xxi 2) may stress either diminutiveness in size or minuteness in amount as a mite of a boy a mite of a diamond he hasn't a mite of suspicion I have a mite of fear Smitch, smidgen are dialectal words not distinguishable in meaning from bit or mite Whit is used chiefly in negative phrases in the sense of the least conceivable amount as it matters not a whit he hasn't a whit of knowledge of the subject Atom with its reference to the scientific atom (see PARTICLE 2) implies an amount or a size beyond the possibility of further diminution as, not an atom of dust escaped her scrutiny he exhausted himself to the point where not an atom of energy remained Iota and its anglicized form jot both imply a minuteness suggestive of the character iota [ι] the smallest letter of the Greek alphabet tittle implies a minuteness suggestive of a small diacritical mark such as the dot over an i or a cedilla under ç In use they are not distinguishable when they mean the smallest or most minute detail as he hasn't added a jot an iota or a tittle to our knowledge of the subject "Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law till all be fulfilled" (Matthew v 18) Iota however sometimes denotes an insignificant amount, extent or degree "They never depart an iota from the authentic formulas of tyranny and usurpation" (Burke)

2 Particle corpuscle atom, molecule are here considered in their commonest current meaning in chemistry and physics of a minute (submicroscopic) division of matter Particle the oldest and most general of these terms, is applied especially to any of certain minute entities which have more specific designations such as ion molecule atom electron proton and alpha particle Particle is often used to emphasize the idea of indivisibility without change of identity commonly suggesting the ultimate entities (protons and electrons) of which all matter is now believed to be composed Corpuscle differs from particle chiefly in suggesting a discrete material entity that possesses the properties characteristic of typical material bodies. The words, however, are close synonyms. "They [alpha particles] are corpuscles endowed with charge with mass and with velocity" (Karl K. Darrow) "Let us assume that all lighted bodies emit particles of light or corpuscles which falling on our eyes create the sensation of light" (Einstein & Infeld) "When Huyghens argued with Newton on the subject of the nature of light, he condemned Newton's idea that light consisted of a flight of corpuscles on the ground that material particles could not possibly travel as fast as light had just been found to move" (Sir W H Bragg) According to the common modern concept, an atom is the smallest particle of an element that can exist either alone or in combination with smaller particles of the same or of a different element as an atom of hydrogen or of oxygen Molecule denotes the smallest particle of an element or compound that retains chemical identity with the substance in mass Molecules are usually composed of two or more atoms either of the same or of different elements as, a molecule of water is composed of two atoms of hydrogen and one atom of oxygen Atom is sometimes used loosely in place of molecule particular, adj 1 *Single sole separate unique lone solitary Ant General

2 Individual *special, specific especial respective concrete Ant General universal 3 Particularized detailed itemized *circumstantial minute Ana Scrupulous meticulous *careful punctilious 4 Fussy squeamish *nice dainty fastidious finical pernickety Ana Exacting demanding requiring (see DEMAND) strict *rigid rigorous particular n *Item detail Ant Universal whole aggregate particularized Particular detailed itemized *circumstantial minute Ana Accurate, precise exact *correct Ant Generalized

partisan *Follower adherent disciple sectary henchman satellite.
Ana Supporter upholder backer champion (see under SUPPORT v) helper aider or aid assistant (see corresponding verbs at HELP) Con Antagonist *opponent adversary partner Partner copartner colleague ally confederate agree in denoting an associate Partner implies especially an associate in business or one of two associates as in certain games in a dance or in marriage Since partner alone implies association, the addition of co- with its implication of association in copartner sometimes adds little or nothing to partner as partners or copartners in crime Copartner however does not tend to be as specialized in application as partner and it often distinctively implies fellow partner as "The authority of a partner to bind his co-partners" (Encyc Brit 11th ed) or equality of share as "A copartner in that sovereignty of the people" (J Spence) Colleague implies especially an associate in office or in professional or academic relations Ally and confederate though referable to persons most frequently denote an associated state or government (for confederate see also ACCOMPLICE) Ally suggests a somewhat temporary union for co-operation in war or in affairs of policy or statecraft confederate a closer union for strength and solidarity The latter term often implies a central government or at least central ized control of the associated states.

Ant Rival

parturition. *Childbirth delivery labor travail accouchement party. 1 *Company band troop troupe Ana Clique *set coterie circle gathering collection assembly or assemblage, congregation (see under GATHER) 2 *Combination combine bloc faction ring cabal, junto pasquinade, pasquin, pasquil Lampoon squ b skit *libel pass, n [1] Passage *way route course artery pass, n [2] *Juncture exigency emergency contingency pinch strait crisis Ana. Situation condition *state, posture plight *predicament quandary passage 1 Pass *way route course artery affording access to a particular room or section in it BALCONY) is a corridor having a continuous row of win dows it may be a part of the building or a verandalike enclosure. An arcade is an arched and covered passage-way usually between rows of shops but sometimes, between the front of a row of shops and the street or an open court A cloister is a similar structure in a monastery or in a building imitating monastic architecture but it runs along one or more sides of an open court or patio and is arcaded or colonnaded on the outer side An aisle is, strictly not a passageway but a part of a church or other building divided from the central part or nave by a row of columns or piers. In Gothic and Romanesque churches, aisles flank the nave Since in many modern churches the nave and the aisles contain two rows of pews each to which access is given by a narrow passage-of a monastery and to the curved passageway (loosely the aisle) between the choir of a church and the chapels of an apse 3 *Strait straits, sound channel narrows.

passing, adj *Transient transitory, ephemeral momentary fugitive, fleeting evanescent, short lived passing, n *Death, decease demise passion, n 1 Suffering agony dolor *distress, misery Ana *Trial tribulation cross, visitation affliction.

2 *Feeling emotion affection, sentiment Ana *Inspiration, enthusiasm frenzy furor *ecstasy rapture transport.
3 Lust, concupiscence appetite appetence *desire urge yen.

Ana Craving coveting (see DESIRE v) longing yearning hungering or hunger thirsting or thirst (see corresponding verbs at LONG) panting aspiring aiming (see AIM v) 4 Passion, fervor (or fervour), ardor (or ardour) enthusiasm, zeal agree in denoting intense high-wrought emotion Passion, as here compared implies an overwhelming or driving emotion it may be either the most passion may designate intense erotic love or often, but far from always, lust, as, "The red rose whispers of passion And the white rose breathes of love (J B O Reilly) it may designate violent rage as, she flew into a passion I am very sorry good Horatio, That to Laertes I forgot myself But sure the bravery of his grief did put me Into a towering passion (Shak) Fervor and ardor both imply the kindling of emotion to a high degree of heat but fervor suggests rather a steady glow or burning and ardor a restless or leaping flame Fervor is associated therefore with emotions that express themselves in prayer contemplation, devotion, preaching in works of art or the like ardor with emotions that express themselves in eager longings, zealous efforts, or the like as, the fervor of a nun the ardor of a missionary to exhort with fervor to dampen one's ardor "The hieratic Buddhist art was to become formal and gradually lose the fervour of its inner life (Binyon) In the prints of Harunobu there is an intense sympathy with youth with its shyness its tremulous ardours (B nyon) Enthusiasm often comes very close to ardor but it differs from the latter chiefly in its emphasis on the rational grounds for the emotion, such as thoroughgoing admiration for a person or thing conviction of the worthiness of the cause or end or the like Ardor may suggest aspiration without a clearly envisioned goal, but enthusiasm correctly used always implies an objective a cause an object of devotion or the like thus, a teacher may stimulate ardor in a pupil without necessarily directing the latter's emotion into a definite practical leader (Inge) Zeal, which etymologically implies jealousy and emulation, has now lost these connotations, though it still retains a suggestion of a goading or driving passion equivalent to them in power jectives at EROTIC) passionate. *Impassioned ardent fervent fervid perfervid Ana *Intense vehement impetuous, headlong *precipitate abrupt excited quickened stimulated (see PROVOKE) passive *Inactive, inert idle supine Ana *Impassive phlegmatic, stolid apathetic.

Ant Active. — Con. Live operative dynamic (see ACTIVE) pastoral *Rural rustic, bucolic georgic Arcadian agrestic, geoponic.

pasture, v Graze *feed nourish pat, adj *Seasonable timely well timed opportune Ana. Apt happy felicitous, appropriate fitting (see FIT adj) pertinent apposite apropos applicable (see RELEVANT) patch, v *Mend repair rebuild remodel.

Ana. Emend remedy redress, amend *correct fix *adjust, regulate.

patent *Evident manifest distinct obvious apparent palpable plain, clear Ana *Noticeable conspicuous, salient prominent *flagrant glaring gross rank.
Ant Latent. — Con *Imperceptible insensible impalpable hidden concealed secreted (see HIDE v) paternal *Parental fatherly maternal motherly pathetic Poignant, affecting *moving touching impressive Ana *Pitiful piteous, pitiable plaintive *melancholy doleful.

Ant Comical.

pathogen *Germ, microbe bacterium bacillus, virus.

pathos Pathos, poignancy, bathos are here compared as denoting the quality found in human situations or especially in works of art or literature which moves one to pity or sorrow Pathos is the common term in critical and literary use because of its early and long-continued association with aesthetics it often implies the arousing of emotions which give pleasure rather than pain and it suggests the detachment of an observer rather than personal involvement in the perturbing events or situations as. "Pathos is the luxury of grief and when it ceases to be other than a keen-edged pleasure it ceases to be pathos (Patmore) Often, also pathos implies not so much an effect produced on the person who sees hears or reads as the art, device or trick employed by the writer speaker artist or other person seeking to produce such an effect, as, He passed without an effort from the most solemn appeal to the gayest raillery from the keenest sarcasm to the tenderest pathos (J R Green) "'My poor children, what had I ever done to you that would drive you to such a step? The touch of pathos was all that Jane needed to stiffen her (M Austin) Poignancy is now often preferred by literary and art critics to pathos because it carries no suggestion of artificiality and centers the attention on the genuineness of the thing's emotional quality and of the emotions it arouses it also specifically implies a power to pierce the mind or heart so that the reader hearer or observer feels with pain as well as with aesthetic pleasure the emotion aroused whether it be pity or sorrow or any other overwhelming emotion as. the most famous of the women-poets of Japan, whose verse expresses with peculiar poignancy a sense of the glory of beauty and the pathos of it (Binyon) Out of these illustrious atoms [words] were made all the glow and intensity of eloquence and the sweet poignancy of songs (C E Montague) Bathos is often applied to a false or pretentious pathos, especially a strained pathos that by its absurdity arouses laughter rather than tears.

patience Patience long suffering long sufferance longanimity forbearance, resignation come into comparison when they mean the power to endure or a capacity for enduring without complaint that which is disagreeable or requires effort Patience stresses calmness or composure not only under suffering or under provocation but in awaiting an outcome that seems unduly or inordinately delayed or in performing a task that makes severe demands upon one's attention as. Upon the heat and flame of thy distemper Sprinkle cool patience" (Shak), "In your patience possess ye your souls (Luke xxi 19) Let us run with patience the race that is set before us (Hebrews xii 1) "I shall never lose the habit of giving myself away to you You've brought it on yourself by your goodness and patience (C Mackenzie) Long-suffering (or now less often long sufferance) and longanimity imply extraordinary patience under provocation or trial The former is the common term found both in literary and in colloquial use In colloquial use it sometimes also suggests undue meekness or submissiveness as, "It shows much long-suffering in you to put up with him and keep him in your employ (Hardy) The long sufferance of the army is almost exhausted (Washington) The latter term more often than the former names a virtue and so is chiefly found in abstract use, as. in Isaac such simplicity such longanimity in Jacob (Hooker) Forbearance (see FORBEARING) adds to long suffering the implication of restraint in the expression of one's feelings or in exacting punishment it therefore often suggests toleration, for the sake of peace, of something that merits censure or castigation as, My lord Kew has acted with great forbearance and under the most brutal provocation (Thackeray) Resignation implies a submission to suffering or evil or an acceptance of it because it must be endured or cannot be escaped It sometimes connotes patience arising from submission to what is believed to be the Divine Will, but often it implies a stoical or fatalistic, rather than a religious attitude as, Resignation superadds to patience a submissive disposition it acknowledges both the power and the right of a superior to afflict" (T Cogan) "In resignation lies the only serenity possible in this life of struggle and of combat (Mrs H Ward) For a modern American or Englishman waiting is a psychological torture An Indian accepts the blank hours with resignation (A Huxley) Ana Perseverance, persistence (see corresponding verbs at PERSEVERE) *fortitude backbone pluck grit sand guts *equanimity composure.
Ant Impatience.

patois *Dialect vernacular lingo jargon, cant argot patter slang patrician *Gentleman aristocrat patrimony *Heritage inheritance birthright patron *Sponsor surety guarantor backer angel Ana. Supporter upholder, champion (see corresponding verbs at SUPPORT) benefactor, contributor (cf benefaction contribution at DONATION) protector defender (see corresponding verbs at DEFEND) Ant Client protégé

patter, v Chatter prate, *chat gab prattle babble gabble, jabber gibber patter, n *Dialect, vernacular patois, lingo jargon cant, argot, slang.

pattern, n 1 Exemplar example *model paradigm ideal beau ideal standard mirror Ana *Prototype, archetype *paragon apotheosis, sublimation 2 *Figure design motif device Ana *Form figure shape conformation configuration paunch *Abdomen belly stomach pawn, n Hostage gage *pledge, earnest token pay, v Pay compensate, remunerate satisfy reimburse, indemnify, repay, recompense, requite come into com-

...

gardener good wages (or to pay good wages to one's

...

you' (Deland) When, in extended use, pay does not imply the actual giving of money, the term is often

...

hope of a return in kind (as, to pay attention to a young woman) Compensate is often preferred to pay when no legal obligation is implied or no payment for services is expected, because the term stresses a return, usually but

...

one's pets during the summer But in this sense compensate often does not imply an obligation to another or the passing of money. it often suggests a counterbalancing as of something unpleasant by something pleasant or of something lost by something gained, as the beauty of the view compensated for the labor of the climb (See COMPENSATE, 1) Remunerate, like pay, usu-

...

and remunerate are used in place of pay when the latter term is thought of as offensive or indelicate as, the party always remunerates its faithful workers, the lawyer asked for a thousand dollars to compensate him for his services Satisfy, as here considered (see also SATISFY, 1 & 3) implies the payment of something that is asked, demanded, or required by the terms of the law or the decree

...

making a profit or by another such as one's agent or attorney in doing one's business, as the profits of his business did not reimburse him for the money he had invested in it, to reimburse one's lawyer for certain

...

or actual reimbursement for loss as by fire for injury as by accident, for damage as by war or the like as, the insurance policy indemnifies him against the loss of his

...

money than any of the preced...

...

the passing of money or of an equivalent is implied, repay is preferred when there is a suggestion of giving something back that has been paid out to one (as, to

...

he recompensed each of the victims for the injuries sustained in the collision for which he was responsible) But

...

recompense My rash but more unfortunate misdeed (Milton) Requite carries a still stronger implication of reciprocation or retaliation than these terms it may

...

r, it distinctly implies the avenging of a wrong or the ...sfaction of a desire for revenge, as, 'Drake had ...ited the wrongs inflicted by the Inquisition on ...lish seamen' (J R Green)

... n *Wage or wages salary, stipend fee hire ...olument, screw.

Ana. *Reparation, restitution, indemnity redress, amends.

paynim, adj & n Pagan, heathen, ethnic Gentile See under PAGAN, n peaceable. *Pacific, peaceful, pacifist pacifistic irenic

Ana *Amicable, friendly, neighborly *amiable complaisant *calm placid serene tranquil

...ntentious acrimonious — Con Quarrelsome *belligerent *martial, warlike

... 1 *Calm, tranquil, serene, placid halcyon ...ot gentle, mild *still stilly quiet silent, noiseless.

Ant Turbulent

2 *Pacific peaceable, pacifist, pacifistic, irenic

Ana Composed collected, unruffled *cool equable constant *steady ... Disturbed, perturbed disquieted agitated upset, ...mposed (see DISCOMPOSE)

... 1 *Mountain mount, alp volcano mesa

2 *Summit, pinnacle, climax, apex, acme culmination, meridian, zenith, apogee peculate. *Defalcate embezzle

... usurp confiscate ... plunder rifle

...t. See under

...f each group

ity)
2 Eccentric, odd queer *strange singular unique learning derived from books rather than from actualities sometimes it implies a decided literary or rhetorical quality as, bookish words bookish interests. Few novelists are less bookish than Kipling (C E Montague) Ana *Learned polymathic, erudite *recondite abstruse.

pedigree *Ancestry lineage peek n Peep glimpse glance *l d'oeil.

peel, v *Skin decorticate, pare peel n *Skin bark rind hide peeler *Policeman officer const bobby copper cop bull gendarr peep n Glance glimpse, peek, * d'oeil.

Ana Peering or peer gazing or

(see corresponding verbs at GAZE peer, v *Gaze gape, stare, glare gloat Ana Peep glance glimpse, look (see corresponding nouns at LOOK) peerless

peeve, v *Irritate exasperate nettle provoke aggravate roil.
Ana Vex, *annoy irk bother chafe fret gall (see ABRADE) peevish *Irritable, fractious, snappish, waspish petulant pettish huffy huffish, fretful querulous.

Ana Captious carping caviling faultfinding *critical

*Aquatic, marine, oceanic thalassic neritic bathysmal, bathybic lacustrine lacuscular fluviatile

*Clear transparent translucent lucid diaphanous, limpid Ana *Pure sheer *bright, brilliant luminous radiant exaction by the authorities of a pecuniary penalty or a that it has been left to the discretion of the judge as money) for a breach of discipline or for failure to comply for damage to government property Often the word suggests force commonly it implies imposition or the exaction of a heavy (sometimes oppressive) penalty pendent or pendant *Suspended pendulous pendulate *Swing sway oscillate vibrate fluctuate, waver undulate.

pendulous *Suspended pendent penetrate 1 *Enter pierce probe Ana. Invade entrench encroach *trespass *perforate puncture bore prick.

2 Pervade, interpenetrate, impenetrate *permeate impregnate saturate Ana Insert, insinuate interpolate, *introduce *soak saturate drench steep penetration Insight, acumen, *discernment, discrimination, perception divination, clairvoyance Ana Sharpness, keenness acuteness (see corresponding adjectives at SHARP) shrewdness astuteness, perspicaciousness or perspicacity, sagaciousness or sagacity (see such sorrow or regret, as the outward signs of penitence his penitence is only skin-deep, he showed his penitence in many ways Repentance is richer in its implications for EROSION) are both theological terms, and as such contrasted, only contrition is found in general use Both imply deep sorrow for sin and the purpose of amendment but in strict theological use contrition implies that one's sorrow arises out of love of God and a realization of one s failure to respond to his graces and attrition (now rare except in learned use) that it arises from a lower motive, such as fear of hell or fear of the loss of heaven O may of contrition' (Meredith) Sophia thought that, after such a sin the least Amy could do was to show contrition' (Bennett) Compunction and remorse both imply a painful sting of conscience, but compunction usually suggests a momentary reaction not only for something done but also for something being done or to be done and remorse usually suggests prolonged and insistent self reproach and often, intense suffering for consequences which cannot be escaped "A heartless scoundrel chastise Crimes done had but as loud a voice to warn As its keen sting is mortal to avenge!' (Shelley)

Ana Regret, *sorrow anguish humiliation, humbling degradation debasement (see corresponding verbs at ABASE) *qualm scruple

Con. Obdurateness or obduracy, inexorableness adamant (see corresponding adjectives at INFLEXIBLE) pen name. *Pseudonym, nom de plume, alias, nom de guerre, incognito allonym pennant or pendant. *Flag ensign standard banner color, streamer, pennon jack pennon. *Flag ensign standard banner color streamer, pennant, jack.

penny-pinching. *Stingy, close closefisted tight tightfisted, niggardly parsimonious, penurious miserly curmudgeonly cheeseparing pensive. *Thoughtful reflective speculative contem closefisted, tight, tightfisted, miserly curmudgeonly cheeseparing penny-pinching

Ana. *Need, necessity, exigency pinch strait pass *juncture

Ant. Luxury

dman, *serf, slave, bondsman lot *spirited high spirited mettle

Ana impetuous headlong *precipitate abrupt *pungent, piquant, spicy, snappy.

perceive. Discern, note, remark, notice observe contemplate *see, behold descry, espy, view survey

Ana Grasp seize *take *apprehend, comprehend *enter, penetrate, pierce, probe percept. *Sensation, image

Ana. *Idea, concept notion. recognition acknowledg range of one's senses and can be recognized in itself or by certain signs, as perceptible sounds, the ship is barely perceptible on the horizon, few objects are distinctly perceptible in a fog It may also be used narrowly without qualification by just, scarcely, barely or the like to describe a thing that just passes the borderline between invisibility and visibility, inaudibility and audibility and the like, as a perceptible change in her tone, there are perceptible differences between surprise and astonish, a perceptible flavor of onions her remark had no perceptible relevance to the topic of conversation Sensible may be used to describe anything which is clearly apprehended through the bodily senses or which impresses except in some philosophical use but sensible through the senses more obvious, even some-and to individualize (Browning) may be used to describe tangible in their primary senses may be used to describe anything which is perceptible through the sense of touch. Palpable, however, although it is used of that which is felt by touching with the tips of the fingers as often implies draw" (Shak) "When I hear A lay that once I saw her hand awake Her form seems floating palpable and near (Keats) Tangible on the other hand is applied (literally) only to things which may be or are handled or grasped as, if an infant is not provided with l ght tangible objects he will play with a sunbeam or shadow idols are gods or divinities in tangible form In their secondary senses these two words diverge widely Palpable in one of its most common meanings impl es a h gh degree of perceptibility (see EVIDENT), in poetic use especially when applied to an immaterial thing it suggests an almost physical awareness of its existence or reality "What happiness to live When every hour brings palpable access Of knowledge (Wordsworth) In the expiring diffused twil ght it was the immensity of space made visible—almost palpable (Conrad) Tangible in its extended senses is appl ed only to things that can be thought of as having real independent or objective existence whether they are apparent to the senses or not or whether they can be handled or not thus tangible ideas are those that can be grasped by the mind and made objects of thought tangible advantages are those having a substantial character, tangible assets are those that can be appra sed with reasonable accuracy such as equipment accounts due and the like as d stinguished from those that are intangible such as good will Appreciable is appl ed to anything that is large enough to be measured weighed valued or otherwise estimated thus, a perceptible change in the temperature may be so sl ght a change that it almost but not qu te escapes notice a palpable change in temperature may still be sl ght but it is great enough to make it definitely felt an appreciable change in temperature may also be sl ght but its extent is determinable by reference to a thermometer some said there was no perceptible diminution of war hysteria others declared that the decrease in tension was palpable but still others ma ntained that months must elapse before any tangible effects of the accord became evident and there was appreciable rel ef from stra n. Ponderable is applicable to that which can be weighed either physically or mentally "Something ponderable from the outer world—someth ng of wh ch we can say that its weight is so-and-so (Jeans) The word tends, however to be appl ed to that wh ch is appreciable in terms of weight or significance as distinguished from that which is so intangible as to elude such determinat on as to exert a ponderable influence upon the events of h s time

Ana. *Clear, lucid perspicuous *noticeable consp cu ous signal discerned or discernible noted or notable observed or observable (see corresponding verbs at SEE) perception Penetration insight acumen *discernment d scriminat on divination clairvoyance.

Ant Imperceptible

Ana Appreciation comprehension understanding (see corresponding verbs at UNDERSTAND) sharpness, keenness acuteness (see correspond ng adjectives at SHARP) perch, v *Al ght l ght land roost percussion Concussion clash shock *impact impingement coll s on jar jolt brunt

Ana Striking h tting sm ting (see STRIKE) v bration oscillat on fluctuation (see correspond ng verbs at SWING) perdurable Durable permanent stable *lasting perpetual

Ana. Enduring abid ng pers sting continu ng (see CONTINUE) *everlasting endless, interminable.

Ant Fleeting

peremptory Imperative imperious, *masterful domineering

Ana Decisive *decided pos tive certa n (see SURE) *dictatorial, authoritative dogmatic oracular perennial Perpetual incessant constant, *continual, continuous.

Ana *Lasting, perpetual, perdurable stable *everlasting unceas ng never-ending

Ant Annual (esp of plants) perfect, adj Perfect, whole, entire intact come into comparison when they mean not deficient defective or faulty in any particular Perfect is the usual term to describe such a cond tion for it may imply not only the presence of every part every element and every quality necessary to a thing in its finished or fully developed state but the soundness, the proportionateness and the excellence of each part element or qual ty, as, a perfect set of teeth a perfect diamond a perfect tree a physically perfect infant The term is also applicable where there is no more definite measure or test than correspondence to a very high standard of excellence (as, a perfect gentleman, perfect coloring "a perfect poem like Lycidas a perfect fiction l ke Esmond a perfect handling of a theory like Newman s Idea of a University —Pater) or to an archetype definition or pattern (as, a perfect hexagon a perfect flower [i e one that is both staminate and pistillate] a perfect Greek temple) or to any conception that represents an ideal or personal vision of the highest possible of its kind (as, perfect virtue the perfect Christian) The term is also used in the loose sense of absolute (see fistnote at ABSOLUTE) as he is a perfect fool that is perfect nonsense Whole and entire (as here considered see also WHOLE 2) are somewhat poetical or elevated and often rem n scent of Scriptural use Whole usually implies a perfection, especially a moral or physical perfection that can be sought and attained or that can be lost and rega ned it usually suggests the attainment of or restoration to health soundness completeness or the like as Daughter be of good comfort thy faith hath made thee whole (Matthew ix. 22) she [a statue] is just as whole as when she left the hands of the sculptor" (N Hawthorne) "We touch Him in life s throng and press And we are whole again (Whittier) Entire usually impl es a phys cal intellectual moral or spiritual perfection that derives from the completeness integrity soundness and often the purity (freedom from admixture) of the thing so described more than whole it suggests a perfection that is unimpaired or without sign of previous imperfection as, But let patience have her perfect work that ye may be perfect and entire wanting nothing (James i 4) Oh grant me Phoebus calm content Strength unimpaired a m nd ent re (J Conington) Intact usually implies the retention of the perfection of a thing in its finished or its natural or its original state often it suggests its passage through some experience that might have destroyed its soundness integrity or wholeness as That high courage which enabled Fielding to keep his manly benevolence and love of truth intact (Thackeray) The group was in wonderful preservation the figure of Bacchus intact that of the young faun lacking only the arm (Vernon Lee) I am thankful that I was among the last persons to see the original Rheims intact The cathedral rema ns enshrined in my memory forever (H Ellis)

Ana *Pure absolute simple sheer *consummate finished accomplished *impeccable flawless, faultless errorless.

Ant Imperfect — Con *Deficient, defective. perfection Virtue merit *excellence

Ant Failing

perfervid Fervid *impassioned passionate ardent fervent.

Ana *Intense vehement heightened enhanced intensified (see INTENSIFY) perfidious *Faithless false disloyal traitorous treacherous.

Ana *Mercenary venal disaffected alienated estranged (see ESTRANGE) deceitful *dishonest perjured forsworn (see PERJURE) perforate Perforate puncture, punch prick, bore drill come into comparison as meaning to pierce through so as to leave a hole or holes Perforate is now used mainly with reference to the action of a machine or instrument which makes several holes, usually small round holes in a line or pattern as for ready tearing for ornamentation of leather and other products or for marking with a symbol device name or the like, as, to perforate a sheet of postage stamps to perforate leather for the tips of shoes to perforate laundry tabs The word however may be used of any hole or of any holes in a series or group produced by natural artificial or accidental means as leaves perforated by insects the bullet perforated the breastbone, the soil is perforated by worms Puncture suggests the intentional or accidental entrance of a sharp pointed instrument or thing into a tissue, substance or material as to puncture the arm with a hypodermic needle the tire was punctured by a sharp tack As the rush began there flashed through my mind a picture of the ignominious fate which awaited me—punctured to death by umbrellas (V Heiser) Since puncture in current use is often associated with the sudden release of air

Twain s humorous assault on the dignity of General Grant was to reduce him not to the human but to the common brass railway conductors are instructed to punch the tickets presented them (But punch does not invariably imply perforation or piercing for the tool or machine attendance (i e to prick the name of each student attending school or college chapel) In figurative use prick usually stresses either the sharp sting that accompanies the pricking of the skin (as, his conscience had more than once pricked him —Arch Marshall) or the delicacy and clearness of a pattern or design (as the design is pricked out so to speak by the rhymes —Lowes) Both bore and drill imply the use of a mechanical means in making a hole But bore (etymologically to plow) stresses the removal of materials and therefore is employed when there is a suggestion of excavation by hand or machinery (as, to bore a hole in the ground to bore a tunnel through a mountain) or the use of a rotary tool such as an auger or gimlet (as to bore holes in a plank the corn borer is the larva of a moth that winters in the stem of Indian corn and bores through the ears as logically to bore) commonly implies the use of an instrument or machine equipped with a pointed or two-edged tool for boring holes in hard substances such as metal and stone or in teeth, as to drill a well in rocky ground, to drill holes in a steel plate a dentist drills a tooth to remove decayed dental tissue from a cavity In their figurative as distinguished from their extended senses bore and drill (see also PRACTICE) carry different connotations, bore suggesting the slow or continuous forcing of a passage through (as to bore one s way through a crowd the sound of an aeroplane bored its way into the ears of the crowd —V Woolf) and drill, the forced entrance of something through a succession of perform Perform execute, discharge, accomplish achieve, effect, fulfill (or fulfil) agree in meaning to carry out completely or into effect. Perform (sometimes merely a formal synonym for do) is more often used with reference to processes than to acts. One performs processes that are lengthy or exacting or ceremonial in promised a thing she was scrupulous in *perform*ing it (Austen) One executes that which exists in design or intent by bringing it into being or by putting it into effect in place of perform of a process involving great skill or a highly exacting technique as few dancers can execute an adagio beautifully One discharges duties or obligations when one has gone through a required round (usually routine) of tasks. I had discharged my confidential duties as secretary to the general satisfaction (De Quincey) Accomplish usually stresses the completion of a process rather than the means by which it is carried out One accomplishes something begun or something the fruitfulness of effort or the value of the results attained Because of his efforts things are accomplished (S Anderson) There is very little to be accomplished by telling men anything You have to show them (M Austin) Achieve adds to accomplish the implication of conquered difficulties One achieves a work a task, an enterprise that is of great importance and that makes unusual demands on one s energy will power resources, or the like The American public schools achieve the task of transforming a heterogeneous selection of mankind into a homogeneous nation (B Russell) Effect implies obstacles to be removed but, unlike achieve it emphasizes inherent force in the agent rather than personal qualities such as daring and perseverance As it is often predicated of things as well as of persons as only two prisoners effected their escape That without precision where ... would better serve the purpose It is also often used to correctly for fill, as th e fulfills a want (where this fills a want is correct) Its distinctive implication is full realization as of that which exists potentially or of that which is demanded especially by the nature of a thing as, an injured organ cannot fulfill its natural function some laws do not fulfill the ends for which they were framed the prophecy was fulfilled to the letter In reflexive use fulfill suggests complete manifestation of powers or complete self-expression. God fulfills himself in many ways (Tennyson) Life for her was rich with promise She was to see herself fulfilled (D H Lawrence)

Ana *Reach gain compass, achieve, attain finish, complete conclude (see CLOSE, v) performer. *Actor player, mummer, mime Thespian impersonator trouper perfume *Fragrance, scent bouquet redolence incense.

Ana Odor, scent aroma *smell.

periapt *Fetish talisman, charm amulet pericope *Extract excerpt peril *Danger jeopardy hazard risk

Ana. Menacing or menace threatening or threat (see corresponding verbs at THREATEN) exposure subjection, openness liability (see corresponding adjectives at LIABLE) perilous. *Dangerous hazardous jeopardous risky precarious

Ana Desperate forlorn hopeless (see DESPONDENT) chancy chance haphazard *random perimeter *Circumference periphery circuit compass, ambit period Period epoch era age aeon (or eon) come into comparison when they denote a portion or division of time epoch and era also come into comparison when they denote an event regarded as the beginning of a portion or division of time Period as here compared is the generic term designating an extent of time of any length for whatever purpose delimited as to request a one-minute period of silence as a tribute to a dead person "A centenary period in the history of man" (Milman) An epoch is properly the starting point of a new period esp as marked by striking or remarkable changes or events An era is a period (often one extending from an epoch) characterized esp by some new order of things "The reading of this book was an epoch in my life one of the turning points in my mental history (J S Mill) "A better intellectual era is dawning for the working men (Kingsley) But epoch is frequently used with little distinction from the usual sense of era, and era is sometimes used with little distinction from the proper sense of epoch "Though the epoch was one of confusion the fame of Volta's work spread gradually (Karl K. Darrow) The landing of this English Governor was an era in their lives (W H Dixon) Age is commonly more specific and definite than era it is frequently used of a period dominated by some central figure or clearly marked feature as the age of Pericles the Bronze Age The French Revolution and its age (Arnold) An aeon is an immeasurably or indefinitely long period of time He [the elephant] has weight Behind him aeons of primeval power Have shaped that pillared bulk (W W Gibson) During the three terrible hours he had lived centuries of pain aeon upon aeon of torture (Wilde)

Certain or all of these terms are used with arbitrary value in geological and archaeological classifications but usage is far from uniform In geology the following classification is perhaps more often used than any other An era is one of the five great divisions (Archeozoic Proterozoic Paleozoic Mesozoic Cenozoic) of geologic time as determined by the kinds of fossils found in strata a period is a subdivision of an era an epoch a subdivision of a period An age is a portion of time characterized by its dominant type of life and is not an integral part of this classification thus the Age of Reptiles coincides with the Mesozoic era while the Age of Fishes coincides with the Devonian period

In archaeology uniformity appears to exist only in the use of age for one of the three great divisions of human culture (Stone Bronze Iron) as determined by the kind of implements used There is considerable confusion in the use of names for subdivisions of these three divisions thus the three subdivisions (Eolithic Paleolithic Neolithic) of the Stone Age have been called both periods and eras periodic. *Intermittent, recurrent alternate

Ana *Fitful spasmodic convulsive sporadic occasional (see INFREQUENT) periodical, n *Journal magazine newspaper review organ peripatetic. *Itinerant ambulatory ambulant nomadic vagrant periphery *Circumference perimeter circuit compass ambit

Ana *Limit confine bound end *boundary border march frontier periphrasis *Verbiage redundancy tautology pleonasm circumlocution peristyle *Colonnade arcade arcature portico perjure Perjure, forswear come into comparison only when they mean to violate one's oath or when used reflexively to make a false swearer of oneself In general literary use perjure is often employed more loosely than in law where it is a highly technical term meaning to make a willfully false statement of fact (sometimes of an intention to do something) in spite of an oath or a solemn affirmation that one has told the truth or, as a witness in a judicial proceeding that one will tell only the truth as the judge was convinced that the witness had perjured himself In the looser use perjure often implies making a liar of oneself whether one is under oath or not as When a native begins perjury he perjures himself thoroughly He does not boggle over details (Kipling), He thanked her with as much enthusiasm as he could muster without actually perjuring himself" (Arch Marshall) Forswear as here compared (see also ABJURE) often implies a violation of an oath promise or vow (as he swore a thing to me on Monday night which he forswore on Tuesday morning —Shak Thou shalt not forswear thyself but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths —Matthew v 33) but it may also suggest untruth to something as sacred as an oath such as one's principles one's beliefs, the laws of one's country or the like (as Shelley indignantly refused to forswear his principles by accepting a proposal so insultingly hateful" —Arnold)

Ana *Deceive delude mislead beguile *lie prevaricate perk up *Preen prune primp doll up, prank prink perky Jaunty, *debonair cocky chipper

Ana Gay *lively animated sprightly trim trig *neat tidy permanent *Lasting perdurable durable stable perpetual Ana Perennial constant continuous *continual Ant Temporary ad interim (of persons) permeate Permeate pervade penetrate, interpenetrate impenetrate, impregnate saturate come into comparison when they mean to pass or to cause to pass through every part of a thing Permeate may be used in reference to a material or an immaterial thing and implies its diffusion through all the pores or interstices (literal or figurative) of some substance or entity, as the rain has permeated the sand [the dealer in red ocher] was not temporarily overlaid with the colour it permeated him (Hardy) In the Elizabethan age English society at large was accessible to ideas was permeated by them (Arnold) [Japanese color prints] prove at least how deeply the sense of beauty had permeated the whole nation (Binyon) Pervade (etymologically to walk through) is a very close synonym of permeate but in current use it distinctively carries a heightened suggestion of diffusion throughout every part or parcel of the whole (or in the case of very extensive wholes the portion within one s reach) and it is more often used in reference to places documents works of art and the like, as, a deep And solemn harmony pervades The hollow vale from steep to steep (Wordsworth), a principle which so entirely pervades the

its characteristic quality or efficient force as a whole nation penetrated with an enthusiasm for pure reason and with an ardent zeal for making its prescriptions triumph (Arnold) a letter penetrated with affection for the old plain edifice and its memories (Quiller-Couch) [Painters and poets] penetrated with such ideas and entire substance structure work group or the like as the water is impregnated with magnesia (A Huxley) Any judge who has sat with juries knows that they are extremely likely to be impregnated by the environing atmosphere (Justice Holmes) He is versifying his ideas not impregnating thought with imaginative beauty (Lowes) Saturate as here compared (see also SOAK) implies impregnation to the point where no more of the thing which enters can be taken up or absorbed the term therefore is often used in preference to permeate or pervade when that which permeates or pervades is highly obvious deeply ingrained conspicuously heavy (as an odor) or the like as the unfinished dresses were often so saturated with smoke that he knew she found it a trial to work on them next morning (Cather) The [French] Revolution awakened it [democracy] into consciousness imbued it with ideality saturated it with sentiment (Brownell)

Ana *Infuse imbue ingrain drench steep *soak saturate *inform animate inspire fire permission Permission, leave sufferance come into comparison when they denote the sanction which enables one to do something that requires the consent of those in authority Permission is the ordinary term except in some conventional phrases It commonly implies the power or authority to grant or to refuse what is asked, as, to have the owner s permission to hunt on the estate The horses can go in our barn. I m sure Mr Forrester would have no objection She spoke as if he had asked her permission (Cather) Leave differs very little from permission It occurs chiefly in conventionally courteous phrases such as by your leave to ask leave give me leave and the like but it may be used elsewhere in place of permission as to ask for leave (or permission) to remove papers from a file In military naval and some official use possibly by confusion with

Ana Authorization commissioning or commission licensing or license (see corresponding verbs at AUTHORIZE) letting allowing (see LET) sanctioning approval endorsement (see corresponding verbs at APPROVE)

Ant Prohibition.

permit, v *Let allow suffer leave

Ana *Authorize license commission sanction, endorse *approve forbid

Mutation *change vicissitude, alor move shifting or shift removing or corresponding verbs at MOVE) transforma-nder TRANSFORM)

the educator shall have been educated usually followed by a phrase specifying that which tains injury harm etc as restrictive legislation that is detrimental to trade Paradoxes detrimental to the true course of thought (Jowett)

Ana Baleful malign *sinister malefic *poisonous venomous, toxic pestilent miasmatic injurious hurtful harmful mischievous (see corresponding nouns at INJURY)

Ant Innocuous

pernickety, pernicketty, pernickity, or persnickety Fastidious finical *nice dainty particular, fussy squeamish Ana Exacting demanding requiring (see DEMAND) annoyed vexed irked (see ANNOY) perpendicular *Vertical plumb Ana *Steep abrupt precipitous sheer Ant Horizontal

perpetual 1 *Lasting permanent perdurable durable stable Ana *Everlasting endless, unceasing interminable never-ending eternal sempiternal *infinite 2 *Continual continuous constant incessant perennial.
Ana Enduring persisting abiding continuing (see CONTINUE) set settled fixed established (see SET v) Ant Transitory transient perplex *Puzzle mystify bewilder distract nonplus confound dumfound Ana Disturb perturb upset *discompose baffle balk thwart (see FRUSTRATE) astound amaze astonish *surprise perquisite *Right prerogative privilege appanage birthright persecute Oppress *wrong aggrieve Ana *Worry, annoy, harass harry torture torment rack grill (see AFFLICT) *bait badger hound ride Con *Indulge pamper humor favor *oblige, accommodate *support uphold champion back.

persevere Persevere, persist come into comparison when used in reference to persons in the sense of to continue in a given course in the face of difficulty or opposition. Persevere, in all but rare instances now implies an admirable quality it suggests both refusal to be discouraged by failure doubts attacks or the like and a steadfast or dogged pursuit of an end or an undertaking I will persevere in my course of loyalty though the conflict be sore between that and my blood (Shak)
For strength to persevere and to support And energy to conquer and repel— These elements of virtue that declare The native grandeur of the human soul (Wordsworth) Although persist (as here compared see also CONTINUE) may imply a virtue (as he persisted in his inquiries until he brought the truth to light a strength of character which enables him to persist —S Alexander) it more often suggests a disagreeable or annoying quality for it stresses stubbornness or obstinacy more than courage or patience and frequently implies opposition to advice remonstrance disapproval one's own conscience or the like as to persist in working when ill the [abbreviation] Mlle in which Frenchmen persist to the verge of bigotry (C E Montague) Ana *Continue abide endure last Con Vary *change alter waver vacillate, falter *hesitate persiflage *Badinage raillery Ana. Bantering or banter chaffing or chaff rallying or rally (see corresponding verbs at BANTER) ridiculing or ridicule twitting deriding or derision (see corresponding verbs at RIDICULE) persist 1 *Persevere.

Ant Desist — Con Discontinue cease *stop quit.
2 *Continue last endure abide Ant Desist. — Con *Stop cease discontinue.

persnickety Variant of PERNICKETY personality Character individuality, temperament *disposition temper complexion personate *Act play impersonate perspicacious *Shrewd sagacious astute.

Ana *Sharp keen acute penetrating piercing probing (see ENTER) Ant. Dull.
☞ Do not confuse perspicacious with perspicuous.

perspicuous. *Clear lucid Ana Manifest *evident, plain distinct *explicit express specific definite Con *Turbid muddy inflated flatulent tumid turgid ☞ Do not confuse perspicuous with perspicacious persuade *Induce prevail on or upon Ana. Influence *affect touch sway impress *move drive impel actuate Ant Dissuade — Con *Restrain curb check inhibit *hinder impede obstruct persuasion 1 Conviction belief *opinion view sentiment Ana *Predilection prepossession bias, partiality prejudice tenet, dogma *doctrine.

2 *Religion denomination sect cult communion faith creed church pert *Saucy arch

Ana Flippant frivolous volatile light-minded (see corresponding nouns at LIGHTNESS) *impertinent intrusive brash impudent (see SHAMELESS) Ant Coy

pertain *Bear relate appertain belong apply Ana Connect *join combine associate pertinacious *Obstinate stubborn dogged mulish stiff necked pigheaded bullheaded Ana Tenacious tough stout sturdy *strong persistent, persevering (see corresponding verbs at PERSEVERE) resolute steadfast stanch (see FAITHFUL) headstrong willful (see UNRULY) pertinent *Relevant, germane, material apposite applicable apropos.

Ana Fitting apt happy felicitous (see FIT) pat, *seasonable opportune timely well timed Ant. Impertinent foreign perturb Disturb agitate upset *discompose disquiet fluster flurry Ana *Annoy vex irk bother *confuse muddle addle *confound nonplus distract bewilder dumfound (see PUZZLE v) pervade *Permeate penetrate interpenetrate impenetrate impregnate saturate Ana *Infuse imbue ingrain leaven *inform animate, inspire fire perverse *Contrary restive balky froward wayward Ana *Unruly ungovernable recalcitrant refractory *obstinate stubborn mulish pigheaded stiff necked fractious *irritable peevish pervert, v Deprave corrupt *debase vitiate debauch Ana *Abuse misuse ill treat maltreat mistreat outrage contort distort warp (see DEFORM) pervert n *Renegade apostate turncoat recreant backslider perverted Corrupted depraved debased vitiated debauched See under DEBASE Ana Distorted contorted warped (see DEFORM) abused misused outraged (see ABUSE) pessimistic *Cynical misanthropic, misogynic Ana Gloomy morose (see SULLEN) depressed oppressed weighed (down) (see DEPRESS) Ant Optimistic —Con Sanguine *confident assured pester Plague tease tantalize *worry annoy harass harry Ana *Bait badger hector heckle chevy fret gall chafe (see ABRADE) perturb disturb agitate upset, *discompose pestilent, pestilential. *Poisonous, venomous virulent, toxic, mephitic, miasmatic, miasmic, miasmal Ana *Infectious, contagious catching noxious, *pernicious, baneful deleterious. pet, v *Caress fondle, cuddle, dandle Ana. *Indulge, humor, pamper, mollycoddle baby. petite. *Small little diminutive, wee, tiny, teeny, weeny, minute, microscopic miniature petition, n *Prayer suit, plea appeal petition, v Pray, sue, plead appeal See under PRAYER pettish. *Irritable, fractious, peevish, petulant, snap-of the world s work than one s own effort seems puny and contemptible' (J R Green) That is trivial (etymologically, ordinary or common), in highly discriminating use which seems petty and commonplace and scarcely worthy of special consideration or notice, as 'that distinctions become so trifling, so impalpable (N Hawthorne), 'The tax is trifling' (Burke), a few trifling its (or his) outlook or interests (as, a picayunish policy, a picayune congressman) Ana. *Small little diminutive minute Ant. Important momentous gross. petulant. *Irritable fractious, peevish, pettish, snappish waspish huffy fretful querulous Ana Cross cranky touchy, testy (see IRASCIBLE) *impatient, restive fidgety skittish. phage. Variant of BACTERIOPHAGE. phantasm. 1 *Apparition phantom wraith fetch ghost, spirit, specter, shade revenant spook haunt Ana. *Delusion, illusion, hallucination 2 *Fancy, fantasy, phantasy, vision, dream, daydream, nightmare phantasy. 1 *Fancy, fantasy, phantasm vision dream, daydream nightmare 2 *Imagination, fancy, fantasy phantom. *Apparition, phantasm, wraith fetch ghost spirit, specter, shade revenant, spook haunt Ana. Simulacrum, counterfeit, deception *imposture *delusion illusion hallucination pharisaical. Hypocritical, sanctimonious canting See

...pocrisy sanctimony cant canting
...n *Drug medicinal biological ...*Druggist, pharmacist apothecary
...Druggist, pharmaceutist apothecary ...aspect, side, facet, angle come to apparently assumes during its waxing and waning (as new moon first quarter, full moon last quarter) it often suggests a cyclical change in appearance 'The wheel of the world swings through the same phases Summer passed and winter thereafter and came and passed again' phase and aspect in precise use retains ... derived from one of its literal senses and is used chiefly in reference to something that may be thought of as who put sophistry to shame, and about ... single side to man and thing' ...believe the true (Browning) But side differs from phase and aspect in not invariably connoting appearance or referring to physical or intellectual vision as, to hear both sides of a dispute to read all sides in a controversy On its theoretic and perceptive s de Morality touches Science on its emoin the complete statement of a single selected facet of ex per ence (Day Lewis) Angle denotes that aspect which is observable from a point of view restricted in its scope phase v Var ant of FAZE phenix. Variant of PHOENIX.

phenomenal *Material physical corporeal sens ble objective.

Ana Actual *real

Ant Noumenal

philanthropic *Charitable benevolent humane hu manitarian altruist c

Ana *L beral munificent bountiful generous lav sh *profuse prodigal Ant Misanthrop c.

philanthropy *Charity phlegmatic *Impassive stol d apathet c sto c.

Ana. *Indifferent, unconcerned ncur ous aloof cool ch lly *cold fr g d slugg sh *lethargic phoenix or phenix *Paragon subl mat on apotheos s nonpared, nonesuch photograph Portrait * mage s mulacrum effigy sta ue con mask phrase n Phrase collocation id om express on, locu tion come into comparison when they mean a group of words wh ch, when taken together express a single idea or no on and may be used as a part of a sentence Phrase as h re cons dered does not apply to the gram matical unit called p ase (such as a prepo ional ph ase Collocation when app ed to a phrase stresses the order and arrangement of words the term when used independently in th s sense o in the phrase collocat on of words usually suggests an arrangement that has become fixed in a language a dialect or in personal use some- times spec fically it names one that has acquired a spec al s gn f cance as col oca ons such as to turn in or by the by that oft repeated collo a ion of Caesar s I came I saw I conquered Expressed in French Any given collocat on of ords I as a s gnificance that is certa n (Brown II) Idiom (as here consid red see also the words are interpreted l terally thus, o keep house to center round (a person) to catch cold to s rike a bargain are homely but truly Eng sh pl rases called id oms Expression and locution are somet mes used in place of phrase when the idea of a way of expressing one- self is uppermost Although both terms may be app ed to phrases that are generally current t ey are usually appl ed to those that are ind dual Express on is par ticularly used when accompanied by a characteriz ng adjecti e or clause or phrase as he is in the hab t of using tell ng expressions that s a very odd exp ession an expression that has gone out of use Locu on is some what more formal or bookish than exp ession and is t nged faintly here and there with the rhythms and locu tions of a writer whom lesser minds could not res st (Van W Brooks) phrasing *Language vocabulary d c

Variant of FRENZY

1 *Remedy cure med c ne med cament laxative aperient aper tive purgative ca tico, stoop.

picayunish picayune *Petty tr vial, trifling, puny paltry measly pick, v *Choose select elect opt cull hand pick prefer single out Ana *Take seize grasp determine *decide settle Con Reject spurn refuse *decline picked *Select elect exclusive pickle, n *Predicament plight dilemma quandary scrape fix, jam pictorial *Graphic vivid picturesque picturesque Vivid *graphic pictorial Ana Charming attractive alluring (see under ATTRACT) conspicuous salient striking arresting (see NOTICEABLE) pie *Confusion disorder chaos, disarray jumble clutter snarl, muddle piece, n *Part portion detail member division section segment sector fraction fragment parcel pier. *Buttress abutment pierce Penetrate probe *enter Ana. *Perforate bore drill puncture rend *tear cleave split rive pietistic. Sanctimonious, pious *devout religious Ana Reverencing or reverential venerating adoring worshiping (see corresponding verbs at REVERE) fervid perfervid ardent fervent (see IMPASSIONED) *sentimental maudlin romantic piety Devotion *fidelity allegiance fealty loyalty Ana Obedience docility (see corresponding adjectives at OBEDIENT) fervor ardor zeal enthusiasm *passion *holiness sanctity Ant Impiety

pigeonhole *Assort sort classify alphabetize UNRULY) *contrary perverse froward pilaster *Pillar column. pile, n 1 Heap stack mass, bank shock cock See under HEAP v 2 *Building edifice structure fabric. pile, v *Heap stack mass bank shock cock Ana *Gather collect assemble congregate late amass hoard pilfer *Steal filch purloin lift pinch snitch swipe cop Ana Seize *take grasp grab snatch *catch capture *rob rifle loot plunder pilgrimage *Journey voyage tour trip jaunt excursion cruise expedition pillage, n *Spoil plunder booty prize loot, swag Ana *Cupidity rapacity avarice greed robbery *theft pillage, v *Ravage devastate waste sack despoil spoliate Ana Plunder loot *rob rifle invade encroach *trespass confiscate *arrogate appropriate usurp pillar. Pillar column pilaster come into comparison as applies to any such structure whether it stands alone (as, an obelisk is a kind of pillar But his wife looked back from behind him and she became a pillar of salt — Genesis xix. 26) or is a supporting architectural member

Column in architectural use strictly applies to a supporting pillar that is often but by no means always, cylindrical and free at every point except its bottom and top The term commonly also implies three more or less elaborate parts the base by which it is attached to the floor the shaft often a fluted or channeled cylinder which ... the uppermost architectural column but serving usually as a pedestal for the statue of the person who is honored as, Nelson's Column in London By extension the term is also applicable to anything that suggests a column as in shape (as, a column of smoke) or in use or structure (as, the spinal pier under BUTTRESS) but which in design and treatment resembles a column In this latter sense pilaster implies ... and suggests a co...

ontrol *handle manipulate pinch, v *Steal, pilfer filch purloin lift snitch, swipe cop pinch, n *Juncture pass exigency emergency contingency strait crisis Ana *Difficulty hardship rigor vicissitude pinched *Haggard cadaverous worn careworn, wasted Ana Gaunt scrawny skinny angular rawboned (see LEAN adj) Con *Strong sturdy stout stalwart robust *healthy pinch hitter *Substitute supply locum tenens, alternate understudy double stand in pine, v *Long yearn hanker hunger thirst Ana Crave covet *desire languish enervate (see corresponding adjectives at LANGUID) pinnacle *Summit peak, apex acme climax culmination meridian zenith apogee pious *Devout religious pietistic, sanctimonious.
Ana *Holy sacred divine religious worshiping adoring reverencing venerating revering (see REVERE) fervent ardent fervid (see IMPASSIONED) snappy clear-cut.

jejune inane
f each groan

pique, n *Offense resentment umbrage dudgeon huff Ana Annoyance vexation irking or irk (see corresponding verbs at ANNOY): irritation exasperation provocation (see corresponding verbs at IRRITATE) pique, v 1 *Provoke excite stimulate quicken galvanize Ana *Stir rouse arouse prick punch (see PERFORATE) kindle ignite inflame (see LIGHT v) 2 *Pride plume preen pirouette, v *Turn revolve rotate gyrate circle spin, whirl, twirl wheel eddy swirl pitch v Hurl fling cast *throw toss sling Ana Heave *lift raise hoist *move drive impel piteous *Pitiful pitiable Ana Imploring supplicating entreating beseeching (see BEG) *melancholy doleful dolorous plaintive pithy Summary compendious, *concise terse succinct laconic Ana Sententious, pregnant meaningful, *expressive *brief short.

Con Flatulent *inflated tumid turgid prolix diffuse *wordy verbose pitiable 1 Piteous *pitiful Ana Sad depressed dejected melancholy (see corresponding nouns at SADNESS) forlorn hopeless despairing, desperate *despondent.

2 Despicable *contemptible sorry scurvy cheap beggarly Ana *Miserable wretched deplorable lamentable (see corresponding verbs at DEPLORE) pitiful Pitiful, piteous, pitiable are synonymous adjectives only when they mean arousing or deserving pity or compassion. Even in this sense they are not always interchangeable. Pitiful applies generally to that which actually excites pity or sometimes commiseration because it is felt to be deeply pathetic as their distress was pitiful a long line of pitiful refugees Her face looked pale and extinguished She struck Archer of a sudden as a pathetic and even pitiful figure (E Wharton) Piteous implies not so much an effect on the observer as a character in the thing that excites pity thus, a cry is piteous if it implores or demands attention or pity it is pitiful only if it actually excites pity, one may scorn a piteous appeal but it would be a contradiction in terms to scorn a pitiful appeal Cashel cast a glance round half piteous half desperate like a hunted animal (Shaw) Pitiable is preferable (especially in current good use) to pitiful when a contemptuous commiseration is implied but contempt may be weakly or strongly connoted (see also CONTEMPTIBLE) That pitiable husk of a man who a hundred years ago was a familiar figure in its streets a shadow of his former insolence and splendour (Lucas) Of all these words only pitiful is now employed as meaning full of pity or compassion, but even so its use is chiefly archaic or poetic in this sense as Fair maid be pitiful to my great woe (Keats) tender hearted meek and pitiful (Shelley) Ana Touching *moving pathetic affecting *tender compassionate responsive sympathetic.

Ant Cruel

pittance *Ration allowance dole.

pity, n Pity compassion commiseration, ruth condolence sympathy empathy bowels agree in meaning a feeling for the suffering distress, or unhappiness of another Pity usually implies sorrow or a melting of the heart with tenderness for the one who is suffering or unhappy as, The still tears stealing down that furrow'd cheek Spoke pity plainer than the tongue can speak (Crabbe) pity that was for the murderer on the scaffold as it was for the dying soldier or the martyr on the rack' (Cather) "orators by phrases could move crowds to fury or to pity (Bennett) Sometimes however the term denotes an emotion aroused in the strong or the self-sufficient for the weak or inferior (as, scornful pity —Tennyson Bawdiness, which leaves us less with a sense of repugnance for the man who could write it than with a sense of pity for the man who could think of nothing better —T S Eliot) or for that which is highly regrettable (as, Tis pity love should be so contrary —Shak.) Compassion, in precise use usually suggests tender pity that inspires mercy or charity the term when used not merely as another word for pity but as a word with distinctive values connotes an urgent desire to aid or to spare as There was a dead man carried out the only son of his mother and she was a widow And when the Lord saw her he had compassion on her (Luke vii. 12–13) In his casa every day was Friday—unless one of his neighbour women cooked a chicken and brought it in to him out of pure compassion (Cather) A great wave of compassion had swept away his indifference and impatience (E Wharton) Commiseration carries a strong implication of pity expressed outwardly as in words, tears cries or the like it often also suggests the attitude of one who sees misery and suffers with the person involved in it but can neither help him nor relieve it as While we look at Samson we are forced to think of Milton of his blindness, of his abandonment with as deep a commiseration (Landor) There was a murmur of commiseration as Charles Darnay crossed the room to a grated door (Dickens) Here was cause for commiseration All his forty years Mrs. Day had dominated her son's life (Deland) Ruth (a term of archaic flavor) differs from compassion chiefly in implying a change from hardness of heart anger indifference or the like to merciful pity as, Look homeward Angel now and melt with ruth (Milton) is the truth Within your soul? care for your own or ruth For others sufferings? (Shelley) Condolence etymologically and in its earliest but now less frequent meaning denotes a grieving with another who has suffered a loss or great misfortune as, he deserves condolence rather than congratulation on his marriage In current use the term applies chiefly to such a sentiment formally expressed or to the note letter telegram or the like expressing such a sentiment as, a letter of condolence she sent her personal card to the bereaved parents with "Condolences written upon it they received condolences from as many as two hundred friends Sympathy (etymologically suffering with) is often used in place of pity or compassion (as, his plight aroused her sympathy) or in place of condolence (as, to offer one's sympathy to a bereaved friend) but in its precise meaning it implies a power to enter into another's emotions or experiences, whether of a sorrowful or joyful nature as by sharing them by truly understanding them or by being equally affected by them as a boy goes for sympathy and companionship to his mother and sisters not often to his father (A C Benson) the rebel, as a human type entitled to respect and often to sympathy (R E N Dodge) Amid the various feelings she was aware of arousing she let me see that sympathy in the sense of a moved understanding had always been lacking" (E Wharton) Ah, then that was it! He was a lonely old man, who didn't want to live in constant reminder of happy times past Tony felt a quick sympathy with him (Arch Marshall) Sympathy is also applicable to anything that engages one's interest sometimes because one is in agreement with its aims accomplishments principles or tenets and is attached to it (as, the stepfather was a moderate Pompeian in sympathies —Buchan) but more often because one has the imaginative capacity to enter into it and under stand it in its true nature (as "a creative writer can do his best only with what lies within the range and charac ter of his deepest sympathies —Cather) Empathy appl es to the imaginative power which enables a person especially an artist to understand the emotions and experiences of others and to sympathize with them The active power of empathy which makes the creative artist or the passive power of empathy which makes the appre ciator of art (Rebecca West) Bowels which in Scriptural and other use was applied to the seat of compassion much as heart is today (as "And Joseph made haste for his bowels did yearn upon his brother —Genesis xliii 30) now less often than formerly denotes pity or compassion "I am a man that can feel for my neighbours. I have bowels—yes I have bowels" (Lytton)

Ana *Sadness melancholy, dejection depression *pathos poignancy *charity mercy clemency lenity pixy or pixie *Fairy faery fay elf sprite gnome dwarf goblin browni e puck nix shee leprechaun banshee placate, v *Pacify appease mollify propitiate conciliate

Ant Enrage — Con *Anger infuriate incense mad den *stir arouse rouse *provoke excite stimulate pique place, n *Position situation office post job berth billet capacity

Ana Employment occupation *work calling pursuit metier business *function office duty province placid *Calm tranquil serene peaceful halcyon

Ana Imperturbable nonchalant *cool collected com posed gentle mild lenient (see SOFT) *steady equable even constant

Ant Choleric (of persons) ruffled (of things) plague, v Pester tease tantalize harry harass *worry annoy

Ana Gall fret chafe (see ABRADE) *bait badger hec tor hound ride torment *afflict try Con *Relieve mitigate lighten assuage alleviate plain, adj 1 Plane flat *level even smooth flush

Ant Solid

2 Clear distinct obvious *evident manifest, patent apparent palpable

Ana *Clear lucid perspicuous *explicit express defi nite specific categorical

Ant Abstruse

3 *Frank candid open

Ana Forthright *straightforward aboveboard blunt *bluff *sincere unfeigned plaintive Dolorous doleful *melancholy lugubrious rueful

Ana Pensive reflective meditative *thoughtful la menting deploring (see DEPLORE) *pitiful piteous plait or pleat or plat *Weave knit crochet braid tat plan, n Plan design plot scheme, project come into comparison both as nouns, when they denote a proposed method of doing or making something or of achieving a given end and as verbs when they mean to devise such a method Plan in its widest sense always implies men tal formulation of the method as to plan or make plans for a trip to Europe (or for the future of one's children for a new book for an expansion of one's business) "While she sat maturing this plan (Galsworthy) In a narrower sense the terms may imply a graphic represen Katherine's Dock House is vast in extent and confusing in its plan" (Conrad) Design (see also INTENTION) adds to plan an emphasis on intention (often artistic, some times divine intention) in the disposition of individual members or details, often thereby suggesting a definite pattern since it is used frequently in reference to a com most architecture erected since the Gothic age was a compilation rather than a design (Hardy) Buildings are not grouped like that by pure accident, though con venience probably had much to do with it Convenience often dictates very sound design (Cather) A curious woman whose dresses always looked as if they had been

now found chiefly in technical use as in surveying where the comm superimpose American economic control upon ... foreign countries (V Heiser) Project comes close to scheme except in its connotations. Sometimes it suggests enterprise, sometimes imaginative scope or vision sometimes mere extensiveness Sanguine schemes Am bitious projects pleased me less (Wordsworth) "Such were my projects for the city's good (Browning) "I pro jected and drew up a plan for the union" (Frank ... The difference between scheme and project is best shown in their derivatives schemer and projector, the former ... meaning of a deviser of

under SKETCH v)

plan, v Design plot scheme project See under PLAN n

Ana Propose purpose *intend *sketch outline, dia gram delineate plane adj Plain flat *level even smooth flush.

Ant Solid

plank *Paragraph verse article clause count plastic Plastic pliable pliant, ductile malleable adapt able are here compared as they are applied to things and to persons regarded as material susceptible of being ... plastic which has ... wax clay or ... ceive an im ... each group be made to flow through channels, thus, platinum is the most ductile of all metals, the ductility of heated asphalt is tested by a machine In figurative use, ductile often approaches plastic and pliant Discriminating writers however give it connotations directly derived from its literal senses such as quick responsiveness (as distin into shape especially after being conditioned as by heat ing 'Tempers rendered pliant and malleable in the fiery furnace of domestic tribulation (Irving) 'Truth applied to persons it implies sometimes a pliant, but more often an accommodating disposition and a readiness to make one s habits one s opinions, one s wishes correspond to those of one s present society or environment, as, it is often said that men are less adaptable than women

Ana. Flexible, supple *elastic, resilient tractable amenable (see OBEDIENT)

Con Rigid *stiff inflexible plat, adj Dialectal variant of FLAT, adj (sense 1) plat, v Variant of PLAIT platitude. *Commonplace truism bromide cliché

Ana Banality inanity vapidity insipidity (see corresponding adjectives at INSIPID) mawkishness sentimentality (see corresponding adjectives at SENTIMENTAL) plaudits. *Applause acclamation acclaim

Ana. Cheering hurrahing huzzaing (see APPLAUD) plausible. Plausible, credible, believable, colorable (or colourable), specious come into comparison as meaning capable of impressing the observer auditor or reader as truly or genuinely having or possessing the quality or character that is set forth or claimed A thing (sometimes a person) is plausible (etymologically worthy of applause) that is capable of winning acceptance approval genuine or reasonable at first sight or hearing: the word may or may not definitely imply a false outside, or an intention to deceive, or a lack of soundness, but it usually (Joyce) "A fairly plausible case can be made out for expecting that far fewer marriages and families will be broken up under Socialism than at present" (Shaw) fundamental convictions about our own minds must play, v Play, sport, disport, frolic, rollick, romp, gambol come into comparison as verbs meaning to engage in exercise or other activity as a pleasure or amusement what was play and what was work. No play is interesting

'They had been transformed from a dejected down cast docile uninterested people who could not even play into one which was healthy alert (V Heiser) Sport and the now archaic or poetic original form disport suggest a complete release not only from work but from seriousness the terms imply indulgence in that which my disports corrupt and taint my business Let housewives make a skillet of my helm (Shak) We make ourselves fools to disport ourselves (Shak), Say, Father Thames for thou hast seen Full many a sprightly race Disporting on thy margent green (Gray) Frolic suggests more gaiety more levity more spontaneousness than any of the preceding terms it often is used in reference to the lighthearted joyous movements of children (or by extension of young animals) at play but it also suggests the pastimes antics or pranks of those who have thrown off all care as I come to frolic with you and to cheer Your drooping souls (J Ford & Dekker), They sang as blithe as finches sing And frolic where they list (Cowper) Those who meet as we have met In frolic and in laughter (Praed) their sedateness is as comical as their frolic (Meredith) Rollick (infrequent as a noun now used chiefly in the form rollicking) adds to frolic implications of exuberance in gaiety and of reveling and therefore is used especially in reference to youths or young adults as Rollicking blades (T Hook) a party of young folk off for a rollick Q' appears as a rollicking humourist He rollicks perhaps a little too laboriously (Pall Mall Gazette) Romp suggests the boisterous carefree frolicking of children of rough boys and of hoydens it usually connotes running or racing in play as This careless jade was eternally romping with the footman (Steele) I have been having a romp with my godson (M E Braddon) Gambol suggests the leaping and skipping characteristic of lambs and young children it comes close to frolic but carries

(Pope)

Ana Divert entertain recreate *amuse *trifle toy dally

2 *Act impersonate personate Ana Feign simulate counterfeit *assume play, n 1 Sport disport frolic rollick romp gambol See under PLAY v 1

Ana Enjoyment delectation *pleasure delight amusement diversion, recreation entertainment (see under AMUSE) *athletics, sports, games.

Ant Work.

2 *Fun jest sport game

Ant Earnest.

player *Actor performer mummer mime Thespian impersonator trouper playful Playful frolicsome sportive roguish waggish impish mischievous, wanton come into comparison as meaning given to play jests or tricks, or indicative of such a disposition or mood Playful stresses either light hearted gaiety or merriment (as playful children in a playful mood) or a lack of seriousness or earnestness (as his words were serious, but in his eyes there was a playful gleam the playful humor of Cowper's John Gilpin)

Frolicsome not only heightens the implications of playful a desire to evoke or provoke laughter 'Three generations of serious and of sportive writers wept and laughed over the venality of the senate (Macaulay) 'Strength is a God to you Purity a toy A pretty one and you seem to be fond of playing with it he added with unaccustomed slyness. The lady listened pleased at the sportive malice (Meredith) Roguish not only heightens the implications of sportive but it suggests an engaging naughtiness or slyness. The most bewitching leer with her eyes the most roguish cast (Dryden) "I don't as teasing with impish laughter half suppressed an injury to others as The opinions principles and practices which I thought so very mischievous" (Burke) commonly retains from its earliest sense an impl stressed and that of sportiveness is somewhat obscured or even lost as to produce in the child the same respect for the garden that restrains the grown ups from playing wantonly (B Russell)

Ana Gay sprightly *lively *merry blithe jocund jolly jovial mirthful gleeful hilarious (see corresponding nouns at MIRTH) plea 1 *Apology apologia excuse pretext alibi

Ana Explanation justification rationalization (see corresponding verbs at EXPLAIN) defense vindication (see corresponding verbs at MAINTAIN)

2 *Prayer suit petition appeal

Ana Entreaty supplication, imploring beseeching begging (see corresponding verbs at BEG) plead, v Pray sue petition appeal. See under PRAYER

Ana Entreat implore supplicate beseech, *beg intercede mediate intervene *interpose

Con Bestow confer present *give *grant vouchsafe accord pleasance or pleasaunce *Amenity luxury pleasant Pleasant, pleasing, agreeable, grateful, gratifying welcome are comparable when they mean highly acceptable to the mind or the senses Pleasant and pleasing are often indistinguishable however, pleasant usually imputes a quality to the object to which it is applied and pleasing suggests merely the effect of the object upon one as, a pleasant answer a pleasing answer a pleasant face a pleasing face "Your mother is a very pleasant person to live with (M Austin) The thought of gazing on life's Evening Star makes of ugly old age a pleasing prospect (L P Smith) Agreeable implies harmony with one's tastes or likings as an agreeable (cf a pleasant) taste odor If I was obliged to define politeness, I should call it the art of making oneself agreeable (Smollett) Grateful carries the implications of both pleasing and agreeable in addition it stresses the satisfaction or relief afforded the senses or somewhat less often the mind They lay down on the clean grass under the grateful shade of the tall cottonwoods (Cather) Only occasional voices from the road outside came to disturb the grateful sense of quiet and seclusion" (A Marshall) Gratifying is applied chiefly to that which affords mental pleasure to the individual by satisfying his desires hopes conscience or the like as the reviews of his book were very gratifying The gratifying feeling that our duty has been done (W S Gilbert) Welcome even more than pleasing stresses the pleasure or satisfaction given by the thing to which it is applied it often suggests prior need or an answer to one's longings as the explorers found fresh fruit and vegetables a welcome addition to their diet the news was most welcome

Ana Charming attractive alluring (see under ATTRACT v) *soft, gentle mild balmy

Ant Unpleasant distasteful harsh please, v Please gratify, delight, rejoice gladden, tickle, arride, regale agree in meaning to make happy or to be a cause of happiness Please usually implies an agreement with one's wishes tastes or aspirations and a happiness which ranges from mere content and the absence of any ground for displeasure to actual elation as the family was pleased with the daughter's marriage the aim of poetry is to please the suggestion did not please him the promotion pleased not only Henry but all his friends. Gratify (cf gratifying under PLEASANT) suggests an even stronger measure of satisfaction than please and is invariably positive in its implication of pleasure as he wished to gratify his son by these eulogies of Lucy (Meredith) it gratifies us to imagine that we have reached a point on the road of progress beyond that vouchsafed to our benighted predecessors (H Ellis) It gratified him to have his wife wear jewels it meant something to him (Cather) Delight stresses the emotional rather than the intellectual quality of the reaction, though the latter is often also implied it suggests intense lively pleasure that is not only keenly felt but, usually vividly expressed in the countenance or in outward actions O flatter me for love delights in praises (Shak) Sailors to tell of winds and seas delight" (Gray) "gazed From the watch-towers of Helvellyn Awed delighted and amazed! (Wordsworth) The soul delighted on each accent dwells — Enraptured dwells —not daring to respire (Keats) Rejoice implies a happiness that exceeds bounds and reveals itself as in smiles in song in festivities in enthusiastic effort or the like as.

Rejoice you men of Angiers ring your bells (Shak)

Rejoice the soul of thy servant for unto thee O Lord do I lift up my soul (Psalms lxxxvi 4) Hendrik worked rejoicing in the strength that God had given him in his skill in his power, and in his capacity for righteous anger (S Cloete) Gladden sometimes is indistinguishable from rejoice except in rarely suggesting excess of emotion and in being usually transitive A small pleasantry frankly uttered by a patron, gladdens the heart of the dependant (Irving) It often, however connotes a raising of the spirits or a cheering or consoling in depression or grief Even so thy latent worth will re-appear Gladdening the people's heart from shore to shore (Wordsworth) Tickle arride, and regale involve the idea of delight, but they are often less dignified in their connotations. Tickle implies pleasurable sensations such as tingles and thrills, or it suggests an almost physical gratification, as, food that tickles the palate Something that thrilled and tickled my heart with a feeling partly sensuous and partly spiritual (N Hawthorne) Sometimes, with reference to physical tickling it suggests provocation of laughter "The mimic court of justice in the orchard tickled him immensely (Deland) Arride suggests a delight that is sometimes near derision but always provoked by that which is amusing or engaging The word is not now common but is found in the work of some very good writers 'That conceit arrided us most and still tickles our midriff to remember (Lamb) As he [Stevenson] would have said it [his writing] arrides you wherever you open him and read a sentence or two whatever he means to convey at the time is being vivaciously put (C E Montague) Regale always connotes huge enjoyment or a feasting upon that which gives pleasure, as, 'The sight is pleased The scent regaled' (Cowper) Mr Sycamore was regaling himself with the discomfiture of Lady Charlotte (H G Wells)

Ana *Satisfy content elate exult (see corresponding adjectives at ELATED) beguile *while wile

Ant Displease anger vex pleasing *Pleasant agreeable grateful gratifying welcome

Ana Winning (see GET) ingratiating, *disarming charming attractive alluring enchanting (see under ATTRACT)

Ant Displeasing repellent pleasure Pleasure delight joy delectation enjoyment fruition are the most general terms in English for the agreeable emotion which accompanies the possession acquisition or expectation of that which is good or greatly desired Pleasure so strongly implies a feeling of satisfaction or gratification that it sometimes carries no implication of visible happiness or actual gladness as the first step [in an infant's development] is to pass beyond mere pleasures of sensation such as food and warmth, to the pleasure of social approbation (B Russell) It was for him a bitter sort of pleasure to have a new-comer to whom he could repeat all these matters of grief and suspicion (Conrad) Often however the term suggests an excitement or exaltation of the senses or of the mind that implies positive happiness or gladness as, When these wild ecstasies shall be matured Into a sober pleasure" (Wordsworth) a great work of art always gives pleasure the doctors found out that a man could digest his food best if he ate it with pleasure among cheerful friends (C E Montague) Delight carries a stronger implication of liveliness intensity or obviousness in the satisfaction or gratification induced than pleasure (though not as strong an implication as in glee see MIRTH) the term however often suggests a less stable or enduring emotion than pleasure as, What pleasure the possession of my money could have afforded him I am unable to say but as it did give him evident delight I was not sorry that I had parted with it so readily

(Kipling) Deep was the Old Dog s delight to hear the praises of his Beauty sounded by such aristocratic lips as the Hon Peter Brayder s (Meredith) Joy is often used in place of pleasure and still more often in the place of delight It is the preferred and often the necessary the sensuous or emotional reactions of one who takes delectation of his guests Enjoyment on the other hand usually implies an attitude or a circumstance or a favor able response to a stimulus that tends to make one gratified or happy as He gave himself up to the vigor ous enjoyment of his pipe for a silent minute or two (Conrad) She drank in all the new impressions joy ously from that moment dated her enjoyment of French ways and her delight in Paris (H Ellis) He accepted chance and weather with a sort of grave en joyment (Cather) Fruition is now so often used even by good writers and speakers in the sense of real zation or fulfillment that it has become increas ngly rare in its earlier and generally approved sense of pleasure in pos sess on or of enjoyment in attainment as, If we live by hope let us desire the end and fruition of our hope (Latimer) in love we must deserve nothing or the fine one has to be before learning tl at growth is more de s rable than fruition —Lucas) where realization or fulfillment is stressed and the word implies only the bearing of fru t or the coming to an issue and carries method wh ch had grown up under the shelter of the old causal method —Eddington)

Ana *Happiness fel c ty bl ss amusement diversion recreation, entertainment (see under AMUSE)

Ant Displeasure anger vexation pleat Variant of PLAIT plebiscite *Mandate initiative referendum pledge, n Pledge earnest token pawn hostage gage as here compared agree in denoting something that is given or held as a s gn of another s faith or intention to do what has been promised Pledge originally and still in some appl cations a technical legal term appl es in general to anyth ng (often in tl e past a person) handed

Earnest, originally the money or other thing of value given by a buyer to a seller to bin l a bargain in its

I do set my bow in the cloud and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth (Genesis ix 13) In specific concrete use token is appl ed to som thing which serves as a proof of an obligat on a r gh t a det or the like thus a coinl ke p ece of metal sold by a transportat on company for use as a t cket is usually called a token coins notes and the l ke issued by some countries states or cities as currency at a nominal or face value above their real value as metal (or o her substance) but redeemable at tl e r face value are col lectively called tokens Pawn orig nally a close synonym of pledge (as He must leave beh nd for pawns His mother wife and son —Dryden) no v spec fically refers only to an object of more or less value deposited as secur ity for the money loaned on it by another usually by a person (called a pawnbroker) whose bus ness is the loan ing of money on such secur ty as, he left h s watch w h the broker as a pawn In very prec se exten led use pawn often carries a suggest on of someth ng held for a another until one s agreement or promise has been ful filled as, to hold the k ng s children as hostages for t e safe return of tl e captured barons. In extended use (which is comparatively rare) tl e term is appl cable to anything which serves as an earnest or pledge of some thing to come One who wisely schemed And ho ste from the future took In trained thought and lore of book (Whittier) Gage orig nally the equ val nt of pledge in the earl est sense of that word is now archaic in that sense tl e term still occurs ho vever as a d signa tion for someth ng which is given as a pledge (such as a glove a cap or the like) that a person w ll appear to fight an opponent to assert a claim or the like In th s sense it is found chiefly in the phrase to throw down (or fl ng down) the gage which is figuratively to defy bond bail

contract.

Ant Abjure.

plein air Open-air *outdoor alfresco plenary *Full complete replete

Ant Limited

plenteous *Plentiful ample abundant, cop ous

Ana & Ant See those at PLENTIFUL

Plentiful plenteous ample abundant, copi e in common more than a lequate or sufficient excess Tl at is plentiful or plenteous of which eat or rich supply plenteous is now book ch cheap wl en it is plent ful and dear wl en it is scarce (Shaw) The king made s lver and gold at plenteous as stones (2 Chronicles i 15) That is ample which is generously sufficient to satisfy a definite requirement "Ample apologies indeed for fifteen years of persecution (Macaulay) Their mother's fortune though ample for her situation in life could but ill supply the deficiency of his (Austen) That is abundant which is very plentiful or of which there is an unusually large supply "She found the fru t abundant (Mered th) His abundant vitality (Bennett) Abundant sometimes im plies profusion. 'Abundant beautiful bright tresses (Mered th) That is copious which is marked by great abundance as, a copious supply A copious stream [of words] (Hudson) Copious is especially appl cable to that which varies in the quantity or number of things produced, yielded used or the like It is, therefore not always interchangeable with the other words. Thus, one says a copious (or plentiful) supply of food (not "food was copious) ' there was a copious crop of potatoes this year' (not "potatoes were copious this year ") Copious showers" (Wordsworth) 'Latin he read copiously to the end (Lowes) "Copious eating and still more copious drinking (A Huxley) In l terary use copious often implies profus on of word or richness of vocabulary or fulness of information. Declaimers of a copious vein" (Berkeley) French Engl sh or any other copious language (Hobbes) Be copious and distinct and tell me a great deal of your mind (Johnson)

Ana Fru tful prolific (see FERTILE) sumptuous, opu lent *luxurious *profuse lavish prod gal

Ant Scanty scant

pleonasm *Verbiage redundancy tautology circum locution, periphrasis.

pliable *Plast c pliant duct le malleable adaptable Ana Lithe limber *supple *elast c res l ent springy flexible *compliant, acquiescent

Ant Obstinate

pliant *Plastic, pliable, ductile malleable adaptable

Ana See those at PLIABLE plight n *Pred cament dilemma quandary scrape fix, jam, p ckle.

Ana S tuation cond tion *state posture *difficulty rigor hardship vicissitude plight, v *Promise, engage pledge covenant contract plot, n 1 *Plan, design scheme project.

Ana *Chart, map graph.

2 Plot, intrigue machination conspiracy complot, cabal frame-up are here compared only as meaning a secret plan devised to entrap or ensnare another or others. Plot implies careful plann ng of details and an intent to accomplish an evil mischievous, or treacherous end it may involve one or more devisers and a person a group a class, or a people, as the victim as the Gun powder Plot There is a plot against my life my crown (Shak) the plots against him Had madden d tamer men (Tennyson) Intrigue implies more complicated schem ng or maneuvering than plot and the use of petty underhand methods t more often implies an attempt to gain one s own ends through clandestine means, as in politics, in business, n love or the like rather than (as plot frequently implies) an attempt to destroy to betray to usurp power or the like as, Mr Swift hath finely described that passion for intrigue that love of secrecy slander and lying which belongs to weak people hangers-on of weak courts (Thackeray) The party pol ticians forgot the r good resolutions and reverted to their familiar intrigues (H G Wells) Machination (commonly in the plural) usually imputes hostility or treachery to the makers often also it suggests craftiness in devising or contriving annoyances, injuries evils, or the like if these deas are to be connoted it may be applied to a plot an intrigue or any of the secret plans named by the words in this group Mrs Morland knew so l ttle of lords and baronets that she entertained no notion of their general mischievousness and was wholly unsuspicious of danger to her daughter from the r machinations (Austen) Tortured by some black trouble of the soul and given over to the machinations of his deadliest enemy (N Hawthorne) Conspiracy (as here considered see also under CONNIVE v) and the archaic term complot differ from plot chiefly in implying a comb nation of persons or groups as the devisers and agents and in being applied ch efly to such a plot when it involves treason or great treachery as, "To lay a complot to betray thy foes (Shak) Heaven hath marr d Their complots (Southey) 'This is the fifth conspiracy hatch d in France (Tennyson) Tis a long devised Conspiracy the whole tribe is involved (Browning) In legal use where conspiracy is a technical term the word implies the doing of an unlawful act or the use of unlawful means in accompl shing a lawful end as, Every contract combination in the form of trust or otherwise or conspiracy in restraint of trade or com merce among the several States or with foreign nat ons (First U S Ant trust Act) Cabal (as here cons dered see also COMBINATION) appl es usually to an intrigue in which a group combines to accompl sh some end favor able to it but injurious or d sastrous to the person or group (often specifically the government) affected as 'The cabal against Washington found supporters exclu sively in the north (G Bancroft) Frame-up originally American slang applies to any plot which involves fraud or a fraudulent end especially the incrimination of a person as by planting false evidence or by staging a questionable situation in wh ch he will be found and suspected of a crime as Some one put those l ttle glass figures amongst my traps It was a frame up (Agatha Christie)

Ana Connivance collus on (see under CONNIVE) contrivance *device contraption maneuver stratagem *trick, ruse artifice

3 Sketch outl ne d agram del neation draft tracing blueprint See under SKETCH v plot v 1 Plan des gn scheme project. See under PLAN n

Ana. Fashion, fabricate forge form shape *make conspire *connive collude

2 *Sketch outline d agram del neate draft trace blueprint

Ana Create *invent *chart map graph pluck n *Fort tude grit backbone guts, sand

Ana *Courage spirit mettle resolution tenacity determination, *decision hard hood audacity *temer ity plumb, adj *Vertical perpend cular plume v *Pride p que preen.

Ana *Appreciate value prize plump *Fleshy stout portly rotund chubby fat corpulent obese

Ant Cadaverous. — Con *Lean, spare scrawny skinny lank lanky *haggard pinched wasted plunder, v *Rob rifle loot, th eve, burglarize

Ana Despoil spol ate sack p llage *ravage *strip denude bare.

plunder n *Spoil, pillage booty prize, loot, swag

Ana Robbery larceny *theft plutocracy *Ol garchy aristocracy ply v *Handle manipulate w eld swing

Ana Exercise *pract ce, drill operate work, function (see ACT v) manage direct control *conduct.

pocket, n *Hole hollow cavity void vacuum poet Poet versifier rhymer (or rimer), rhymester (or rimester), poetaster, bard minstrel scop gleeman, jongleur, troubadour, trouvère minnesinger, scald (or skald) come into comparison when they denote a composer who uses metrical or rhythmical language as his medium. Poet etymologically a 'maker' is used in a generic sense and in several highly specific senses In its generic sense it applies to any writer of verse in its specific senses it applies only to a composer of verse who manifests certain qualities regarded as essential by the age or time or by the writer or speaker who uses the term With all its variations in implications in these specific senses poet usually stresses inventive and imaginative power as the prime essential sometimes without clear reference to skill in constructing verses Every man that writes in verse is not a Poet (B Jonson) The Poet is chiefly distinguished from other men by a greater promptness to think and feel without immediate external excitement and a greater power in expressing such thoughts and feelings (Wordsworth) Versifier may designate any composer who uses verse as his medium without reference to any quality or qualities thought of as essential to poetry In contrast to poet however it

use in the seventeenth century when opposition to rhyme especially in heroic verse was crystallizing and there was a pronounced distinction between poets who employed blank verse and those who employed rhyme In earliest use the terms were often descriptive rather than depreciative in later use especially in the age of romanticism when poet was regarded as a title to be bestowed rather than claimed rhymer and rhymester were often used by poets in speaking of themselves or of their fellow poets I am nae poet in a sense But just a rhymer like by chance Whene'er my Muse does on me glance I jingle at her (Burns) Novelist realist rhymester play your part, Paint the mortal shame of nature with the living hues of art (Tennyson) Poetaster is and has always been a term of contempt applied to versifiers whose work is regarded as unimportant trashy inane or the like There are always poetasters enough but of great poets there are never so many as not to leave room for more (J Hawthorne) Bard in strict historical use applies only to one of a class of Celtic poets especially of Welsh and Irish poets in ancient times who composed verses such as those praising heroes chiefs or warriors or recounting historical facts or traditions, and who sang or recited them to the accompaniment of the harp or similar musical instrument In extended use bard is a more or less romantic designation of any poet especially of one who is closely associated with a particular place (thus Shakespeare is called the Bard of Avon Burns, the Ayrshire Bard Wordsworth the Bard of Rydal Mount) or one who is thought of as a composer of verse that sings itself or is written to be sung Compile in all the lyrical poetry of the last 150 years a list of half a dozen first class or even second-class bards who wrote primarily to his own) to the accompaniment of a harp or other instrument and performed tricks later it was robbed of some of its implications of jugglery and buffoonery (except in reference to a black faced entertainer in a minstrel show) and given some of the more elevated connotations of poet in its extended use it is close to bard in its implica tions but it places less emphasis on professional character and more on natural lyrical power O black and unknown bards of long ago How came your lips to touch the sacred fire? How in your darkness did you come to know The power and beauty of the minstrel's lyre (J W Johnson) Scop an Anglo-Saxon word was applied to a type of Anglo-Saxon poet similar to the bard the scop was however a minstrel attached to a court, who provided entertainment by the songs and poetic narratives which he composed or adapted and himself delivered Gleeman (a word of Anglo-Saxon origin) and jongleur (of Norman French origin) are now often used in precise writing in place of minstrel in its earliest sense but with a more definite implication of the minstrels changeable Both designate one of a class of poets who existed between the tenth and the fourteenth centuries chiefly in what is now known as France but who used distinctly different tongues Troubadour applies to a type of poet musician found chiefly in Southern France and Northern Italy frequently a knightly amateur who composed lyrics (often also the music) in the Provençal tongue usually of an amatory character and characteristically in a complicated metrical pattern trouvère applies to a type of poet found in Northern France who composed in the main metrical romances long narrative poems dealing with the loves and exploits of heroes, which were recited or sung by jongleurs and others Trouvère therefore comes close to bard in some of its implications however the two words in their strict historical senses are not interchangeable because they troubadour rightly implies not naturalness but art and technical skill in versifying I speak after my fancies for I am a Troubadour you know and won the violet at Toulouse but my voice is harsh here troubadours and having much in common with especially in their emphasis on love songs and skill in versification Scald applies to a type of ancient Scandinavian poser

poetaster *Poet versifier rhymer rhymester bard, minstrel scop gleeman jongleur troubadour trouvère minnesinger scald keen acute *incisive trenchant cutting biting point, v *Direct aim level train lay

Ana Turn bend (see CURVE v) *direct address devote steer pilot engineer *guide point of view. Point of view, standpoint, viewpoint, angle slant agree in denoting the position or attitude that determines which aspect of an object of contemplation is seen or presented Point of view is the idiomatic English term standpoint and viewpoint came into English as the result of efforts to find a one-word term and a less awkward phrasing as, from the point of view of history from the standpoint of history The substitutes were slow in meeting approval, but both are now generally accepted although viewpoint is still held in disfavor by many persons. Standpoint is increasingly frequent in writing (it was once felt as colloquial) and is acquiring connotations which tend to distinguish it from point of view and viewpoint Point of view and viewpoint may suggest either a physical or mental position standpoint is gradually being restricted to the mental point of view as, to paint a scene from the point of view of one standing on a hillside to consider totalitarianism from the German standpoint (or point of view) Point of view permits the inference that there are other ways of looking at that which is considered and therefore usually suggests lack of completeness in the vision or one-sidedness in the views expressed or presented standpoint more often connotes than definitely implies a fixed way of looking justified by one's fundamental principles one's wealth of information or the like and not necessarily resulting in a limited understanding "Every intellectual product must be judged from the point of view of the age and the people in which it was produced" (Pater) "My criticism of what seem to me one-sided views will be better understood if my general standpoint is known" (Inge) These distinctions though apparent in recent good use are not however always observed Angle definitely implies one-sidedness or limitations in the scope of one's vision "Every man of genius sees the world at a different angle from his fellows, and there is his tragedy But it is usually a measurable angle" (H Ellis) "In the rhetorical speeches from Shakespeare which have been cited we have a new clue to the character in noting the angle from which he views himself" (T S Eliot) Slant (a colloquial term) stresses bias, but it may be the bias derived from temperament mental habits or experience rather than from prejudice as, he always takes a pessimistic slant when any proposal for avoiding war is made "No one sees anything without some personal slant" (Sat Review of Lit) All of these words are synonyms in their extended senses for they agree in meaning one's view (as held or advocated) or views Point of view (or viewpoint) however implies that the view is an opinion or personal judgment as, to express one's point of view his point of view is generally known Standpoint suggests a basic principle or body of principles as to question the validity of an opponent's standpoint "We believe the latter standpoint to be that generally assumed by the British Empire" (Sat Review) Slant and angle also in colloquial usage signify opinion but they imply personal bias far more than does point of view "I remember my confusion when an American professor wanted to know my 'slant' on the leadership question" (Irish Statesman)

Ana *Position stand attitude poise, v *Stabilize steady balance ballast trim

Ana *Support uphold back

Con Disturb agitate upset (see DISCOMPOSE) *overturn overset overthrow subvert poise n 1 *Balance equilibrium equipoise tension

Ana Suspending or suspension hanging (see corresponding verbs at HANG) *equanimity composure

2 *Tact, address, savoir faire

Ana Self possession aplomb assurance *confidence calmness tranquillity serenity (see corresponding adjectives at CALM) grace dignity *elegance poison, n Poison, venom, virus, toxin, bane agree in meaning matter or a substance that when present in an organism or introduced into it chemically produces an injurious or deadly effect Poison, etymologically a potion or drink acquired its first specific meaning when it was applied to a potion containing a highly noxious ingredient especially in such a quantity as to prove fatal to the drinker In its sense development it came to be applied to the deadly ingredient rather than to the drink containing it and to be thought of as something that could be introduced into the system not only through the mouth but in other ways as killed by a poison barbed arrow, morphine (usually introduced hypodermically) is, in sufficient quantities a poison carbon monoxide gas, when inhaled is a deadly poison In still more recent use the term is applied to any substance manufactured within an organism which under certain conditions chemically produces disease or death as poisons in the blood made up of accumulated substances which should have been eliminated in urine cause uremia The term poison is now the most general of all these words and is referable to any highly noxious or deadly matter without reference to whether it is swift or slow in action, whether it is of animal, vegetable or mineral origin or whether it is introduced into the system or is manufactured within the system In its secondary sense poison is merely a figurative extension of its literal sense as fear uncontrolled is a poison that destroys all self confidence Venom and virus had for their earliest meaning a fluid containing a poison secreted by a snake scorpion bee or the like whenever the creature bites or uses its organ of offense or defense such as a fang a sting or a spine Venom still retains this meaning in precise use though it is sometimes applied to a poisonous secretion of a plant "Man spurns the worm, but pauses ere he wake The slumbering venom of the folded snake" (Byron) Virus on the other hand has practically lost this meaning and is more commonly restricted to designating the poison in the juices of a person having an infectious disease (for fuller treatment see GERM) Toxin is specifically applied to a poison or poisonous secretion that is manufactured in the plant or animal body A toxin such as the venom of a snake may be harmful to others but not to the organism itself a toxin produced by faulty metabolism or a lack of balance in the constructive and destructive processes in an organism is usually exceedingly harmful to the organism A toxin may also be the product of bacteria as in tetanus diphtheria or botulism and therefore dangerous to the organism in which it is produced Bane is an old word now rare except in poetic or deliberately archaic use and in certain combinations such as ratsbane (rat poison) and henbane dogbane wolfsbane (certain plants containing a poisonous juice supposedly fatal respectively to hens dogs etc.) Originally applied to anything that caused destruction or woe or that wrought great harm (a meaning still found in such phrases as "she is the bane of his existence") it came to be specifically applied to any poison that is fatal if not counteracted by an antidote "My death and life My bane and antidote are both before me This [the bane] in a moment brings me to an end But this [the antidote] informs me I shall never die" (Addison) poisonous Poisonous venomous, virulent toxic (or toxical), mephitic (or mephitical), pestilent pestilential, miasmatic (or miasmatical) miasmic, miasmal come into comparison as meaning having the properties or the effects of poison (see POISON). In its literal sense, poisonous always implies that the thing so described will be fatal or exceedingly harmful if introduced into a living organism (usually a human organism) in sufficient quantities as by eating, drinking inhaling or the like, as the most poisonous of mushrooms, poisonous gases, "[aniline] is also poisonous but by proper chemical condemn us As poisonous of your honor (Shak.), 'What a difference between Pope's little poisonous barbs and Dryden's strong invective!' (Tennyson), 'The sentence was pronounced ..in a stifling poisonous atmosphere" (Conrad) In its literal sense, venomous applies not only to reptiles insects etc (such as the snake scorpion bee), whose bite or sting introduces or is believed to introduce a deadly venom (see venom under POISON) into the organism, and to plants believed to contain a poisonous fluid (as a venomous snake, 'a garden of venomous plants —Marvell), but also to the bites stings, or wounds inflicted by venomous creatures (as, a venomous snake bite) The adjective is, however, used far more often in its figurative senses, where it a venom, in current use the poisonous substance produced in an organism by an infectious disease) it is now applied chiefly to infectious diseases of a particularly malignant or violent form, or in technical use, to the virus (as defined above) that induces a violent and often fatal attack, as, poverty produces outbreaks of virulent infectious disease sooner or later" (Shaw), one of the flowers (H Ellis) Toxic is chiefly in literal use where it sometimes implies the presence of properties or effects of a toxin or poisonous secretion manufactured in an animal or vegetable organism (as, a toxic condition of the blood, a toxic goiter toxic poisoning of the system) or at other times implies only the character or the properties of a poison, and therefore means little more than poisonous (as the toxic principle of a certain drug, toxic gases a toxic drug) In its rare figurative use toxic often implies insidious and destructive activity comparable to that of some toxins in the human organism, as Arsène Dumont thought that it [civilization] inevitably held agreed that a student should be trained only on the best models . there has been with respect to poetry a pestilent notion that the young should be gradually led up to excellence through lower degrees of it (Bridges) So pestilential, so infectious a thing is sin that it scatters the poison of its breath to all the neighbourhood (Jer. Taylor) Miasmatic, miasmic, miasmal all imply a reference to miasma, or supposedly infectious matter emanating from swamps or jungles or from putrescent substances and floating in the air, as, a miasmatic marsh "The morning mist is grey and miasmic' (Amy Lowell) a miasmal place In their now much more common extended use, these words especially the first two, come close to pestilential in implying a power to spread contamination or to poison the minds or souls of the multitude, as miasmatic doctrines, the miasmic influence of a certain institution

Ana Mortal fatal lethal, *deadly *pernicious baneful noxious, deleterious, detrimental polemic, polemical. *Controversial eristic, apologetic.

Ana. Argumentative, disputatious (see corresponding nouns at ARGUMENTATION) contentious litigious (see BELLIGERENT) policeman. Policeman, officer, constable, bailiff catchpole (or catchpoll), gendarme, bobby, peeler, copper, cop, bull come into comparison when they denote a member of the police or the force or body officially charged with the duty of preserving peace and order in the community by preventing violations of the law and by taking into custody persons who are known or are alleged to be guilty of such violations Policeman is the general term referable to a member of any police force whether civil or military, or if civil, whether under the jurisdiction of town or city or of a state The term is referable to such a person regardless of the specific duties township, or a special official, often a sheriff's assistant charged with executing the warrants of judicial officers, such as warrants for arrest attachment, eviction, and the like It is also used of a member of a constabulary or an organized police force serving a county state or section of a country In British use constable is used as a term of address for a policeman In British, and in rare American use, a bailiff is a sheriff's constable and therefore a county police officer, catchpole is the now contemptuous equivalent of bailiff in this sense or sometimes of any constable. Gendarme is often used by English-speaking persons of a French or other European are both British colloquial equivalents of policeman derived from the name of Sir Robert Peel who as British home secretary was responsible for acts organizing the Metropolitan Police (of Greater London) and the Irish constabulary. Bobby is used chiefly in England of any policeman but especially of uniformed policemen wearing a helmet; peeler was originally an Irish designation for a member of the Irish constabulary, a police force organized on military lines; it was later applied to any policeman. Copper and cop (literally one who cops or catches) are slang terms common both in the United States and in Great Britain; they often refer to a policeman who is on the lookout for offenders such as a patrolman or a motorcycle policeman. Bull also is a slang term for policeman and is often applied specifically to a detective.

polish, v. Polish, burnish, furbish, buff, shine agree in meaning to smooth or brighten by rubbing. Polish, the most common of these words, fundamentally implies friction that removes all roughnesses of surface or gives a crude product a smooth, often a lustrous, finish or renews the finish of an old product; it may imply the use of a tool, instrument, or machine (such as a file, a brush, or a grinder) or the application usually in addition of a gritty powder, a paste, or the like: as, to polish marble for a tombstone; to polish mahogany; to polish glass; to polish furniture; to polish shoes. "Windowpanes which she had polished until they shone like jewels" (M. Wilkins). Burnish etymologically implies a causing to shine or gleam. As originally, it is still used chiefly in reference to metals or to objects made of metals which are rubbed until they become lustrous: as, burnished gold; to burnish one's shield; to burnish brass candlesticks. In present use the term is also applied to things which shine as though they were burnished: as, "the blue green of the pines . . . shone in the sun—a burnished colour" (Jefferies). "Even his hair . . . seemed like burnished bronze in the evening light" (Shaw). Furbish, which is now used more often in a figurative than in a literal sense, in earliest use implied cleaning of rust from armor, weapons, and the like, by friction: as, "furbished the rusty sword again" (Dryden). In extended use it commonly implies freshening up, renovating, or the like, with very little emphasis (if any) on rubbing, brushing, or scouring: "I took it [the play] to make alterations . . . and furbished it up in a day or two" (Lamb). Buff, originally a tradesman's word, implies polishing with a soft, rough, oil-treated leather (originally of buffalo hide) or with a stick or tool (called a buffer) faced with such leather or with chamois, velvet, or the like: as, to buff brass; to buff knives; to buff one's fingernails. Shine is often used in place of polish when cleaning or brightening are implied: as, to shine silver.

Ana *Renew, restore, refresh, rejuvenate

Ant Tarnish

polite *Civil, courteous, courtly, gallant, chivalrous Ana *Gentle, genteel: *suave, urbane, diplomatic, politic: *thoughtful, considerate, attentive

Ant Impolite

politic 1 *Expedient, advisable

Ana Practical, *practicable: *possible, feasible, practicable: *shrewd, astute, perspicacious, sagacious

2 Diplomatic, bland, smooth, *suave, urbane

Ana Ingratiating, insinuating, *disarming: unctuous, sleek, oily, *fulsome: *wise, prudent, judicious politician. Politician, statesman, politico are synonymous terms only when they denote a person who is versed in or engaged in politics or the science or art of government. In American use they are often, though not always, regarded as opposites rather than as interchangeable terms. When used without derogation, politician, as distinguished from statesman, both in British and American use applies to a person who by training and temperament is able to deal with masses of persons so as to accomplish desirable ends, such as election to a political office (sometimes of oneself, sometimes of one's chosen candidate), or the passage of bills or the acceptance of measures one upholds, or the settlement of especially difficult problems to the satisfaction of one's constituency or of the country as a whole. Usually politician also connotes the power to deal successfully with opposition, especially opposition coming from other political parties. "What makes Burke stand out so splendidly among politicians is that he treats politics with his thought and imagination" (Arnold). "The loose cog in the wheel happened to be that he [a former unsuccessful mayor of New York City] held a political position and was 1 000 miles away from being a politician. He did not know how to handle people and did not know how to deal with them or how to get along with them" (Alfred E. Smith). In American as distinguished from British use politician is often a highly derogatory or contemptuous term implying scheming, self-interest, artifice, or intrigue in accomplishing one's ends. "He has . . . a loose, shifty expression of face, and one which gives you the impression of a thorough politician in the bad sense of the word" (E. L. Godkin). "American readers are asked to note that the term 'politician' is used in the English sense as meaning 'one engaged in politics' and has no derogatory application" (Foreword to International Who's Who 1940). Statesman, in both American and British use, carries little if any reference to party politics (except that in effusive American use a politician is sometimes pronounced a statesman), but throws the emphasis upon skill and sagacity in the management of affairs of state as in the capacity of president or prime minister, a member of Congress or of Parliament, an ambassador, or the like. The term in contrast to politician (sometimes to demagogue) is often applied to the highest representatives (either in actuality or in thought) of this type: as, "Unhappily the republic [the First French Republic] was subject to men who were mere demagogues and in no sense statesmen" (Macaulay). "Ticknor was a scholar born, as Webster was a statesman born" (Van W. Brooks). "Men are employed to bring up the name of a politician so that he may be called a statesman" (S. Anderson). Politico is sometimes used in Great Britain in place of politician in the derogatory sense; in American use it is sometimes preferred to politician when a term devoid of all depreciation is desired, and yet there is no intent to suggest laudable qualities.

politico *Politician, statesman.

pollute *Contaminate, defile, taint, attaint.

Ana *Debase, vitiate, corrupt, deprave, pervert: *abuse, outrage, mistreat: profane, desecrate, blaspheme (see corresponding nouns at PROFANATION) poltroon. Craven, dastardly, recreant, *cowardly, pusillanimous

Ana *Mean, ignoble, abject: *contemptible, despicable, sorry, scurvy

Ant Dauntless

polymathic *Learned, erudite, scholarly pomade, pomatum, v. *Oil, grease, lubricate, anoint, inunct, cream pomp, n. *Display, parade, array

Ana Ceremony, ceremonial, liturgy, ritual, formality: *form: ostentatiousness or ostentation, pompousness, showiness or show (see corresponding adjectives at SHOWY) pompous. *Showy, ostentatious, pretentious Ana Ceremonious, *ceremonial, solemn, formal stately, imposing, majestic, grandiose (see GRAND) *splendid, consideration of a problem from all angles or of a thing in all its relations in order that nothing important will escape one unlike weigh in an allied sense (see CONSIDER, 1), it does not now usually suggest a balancing that leads to a conclusion, as, 'Witness this weighty book so nicely pondered yet so strongly wrought" (Dryden), '[Feverel] pondered on what his Aunt said He loved Lady Blandish and yet he did not wish to see her Lady Feverel (Meredith), the great Sung master was wont to spend the day pondering the subjects of his brush by the side of running streams" (Binyon) Meditate adds to ponder an implication of a definite consideration of a plan project or the like that it approaches intend or purpose in meaning as are you really serious in meditating a dance at Netherfield' (Austen) Muse comes close to meditate in implying wander with it and muse upon it and dream upon it (Keats) What an old fashioned place it seems to be! said Elizabeth Jane while her silent mother mused on other things than topography' (Hardy) Ruminate (etymologically to chew the cud as a ruminant animal) implies a going over the same problem the same subject or the same object of meditation again and again It may be used in place of any of these words but it does not carry as strong a suggestion of weighing as ponder of concentrated attention as meditate, or of absorption deliberate speculate *think cogitate ponderable Appreciable *perceptible, sensible palpable tangible Ana Important significant momentous, weighty, consequential (see corresponding nouns at IMPORTANCE) Con Trivial trifling *petty paltry ponderous. Cumbrous cumbersome, *heavy weighty, hefty Ana *Massive massy, bulky, substantial clumsy *awkward maladroit *onerous burdensome, oppressive, exacting cate, trust, cartel etty, puny trivial fulfilling meeting answering (see SATISFY) *Common ordinary, familiar, vulgar neral, *universal generic, common accepted admitted (see RECEIVE) prevalent, *prevailing, current Ant. Unpopular esoteric porch. Veranda, piazza, portico stoop *balcony gallery, loggia. port, n [1] *Harbor, haven. port, n [2] Presence, carriage, front, *bearing deportment demeanor, mien, manner portal. *Door gate, doorway, gateway postern portend. Presage augur prognosticate *foretell predict, forecast, prophesy forebode Ana. Betoken, *indicate, bespeak, attest signify import, *mean denote *Foretoken presage prognostic, omen augury esentiment, foreboding misgiving, *apprehen rewarning warning cautioning or caution (see nding verbs at WARN)

ous. *Ominous unpropitious inauspicious, hreatening menacing (see THREATEN) prodi onstrous prophesying or prophetic presaging foreboding predicting foretelling (see corresponding verbs at FORETELL) porter *Beer lager bock ale stout portico 1 *Colonnade arcade arcature peristyle 2 *Balcony, gallery, loggia, veranda, piazza porch.

1 *Part, piece detail member division ment, sector fraction fragment parcel.
Ana Quantity amount (see SUM n) apportionment, rationing or ration (see corresponding verbs at APPORTION) allotment, assignment allocation (see corresponding verbs at ALLOT) 2 *Fate destiny, lot doom Ana Distribution dispensation division dealing (see corresponding verbs at DISTRIBUTE) fortune hap, *chance luck. portion, v *Apportion parcel ration prorate Ana *Allot, assign allocate *distribute dispense divide deal *Fleshy, stout, plump rotund, chubby, fat nt obese Burly, husky, brawny *muscular it. Photograph, *image, simulacrum effigy icon, mask.
Posture, attitudinize See under POSTURE, n *Assume, affect, simulate, feign, counterfeit.
1 Pose, air (or airs), affectation, mannerism onyms when they mean an adopted rather than a way of speaking behaving and the like Pose implies an attitude deliberately assumed in order to oneself it may be ers hich
The insurgent attitude has now become a pose (Grandgent) Air, except in the plural form airs, does not always imply assumption, for it often suggests acquirement through environmental influences as, she has the air of a teacher he spoke with an air of authority Used absolutely air often implies distinction and aristocratic breeding Mr Wickham was far beyond them all in person, countenance air (Austen) When it and (especially) airs definitely imply artificiality and the intent to give a false appearance they usually also imply a vulgar pretense of breeding of grandeur or of superiority, as, to put on airs Oh! they give themselves such airs (Austen) Affectation usually designates a specific trick of speech or behavior of one who obviously puts on airs or whose trick impresses others as deliberately assumed and insincere Mannerism designates an acquired peculiarity or eccentricity in speech or behavior it seldom implies insincerity but it nearly always connotes habit or potential habit A mannerism consciously assumed becomes thereby also an affectation what begins as an affectation may become an unconscious and habitual trick of behavior and so a mannerism

2 *Posture attitude

posh, adj *Stylish fashionable, modish smart chic, dapper dashing spruce natty, nifty nobby, toffish brave, braw posit *Presuppose presume assume postulate premise position, n 1 Presupposition presumption, assumption postulate, premise See under PRESUPPOSE

2 Position, stand attitude as here compared denote a more or less fixed mental point of view or way of regarding something Position and stand both imply reference to a question at issue or to a matter about which there is difference of opinion. Position however is often the milder term since it, unlike stand seldom connotes aggressiveness or defiance of a widely held or popular opinion as he was asked to make known his position on disarmament he took the stand that disarmament would not accomplish the ends its proponents had in view There is a strong sceptical element in Newman though he would have been shocked at the developments of his position by the Roman Catholic Modernists (Inge) He agreed thoroughly with my stand that no government or private organization could give health people had to achieve it by their own efforts (V Heiser) Attitude suggests a personal or sometimes a group or communal point of view especially one that is colored by personal or party feeling is influenced by one s environment or the fashion of the moment and is on the whole more the product of temperament or of emotion than of thought or conviction as, a humorous attitude to life, the Greek attitude to nature Eudora s attitude of owning your time and interest (M Austin) a resentful attitude to criticism 'Their attitude towards truth (that bug bear of Potterism) was typical Clare wouldn t see it Jane saw it perfectly clearly and would reject it without hesitation if it suited her book (R Macaulay)

Ana *Point of view viewpoint standpoint angle slant

3 Position place situation, office post, job berth, billet, capacity are here considered only in the narrow sense of the particular employment in which one is engaged for a salary or wage Position and place mean little more than this they differ little from each other except that sometimes position is preferred where the employment indicates a higher social status or more dignity in the work involved and place when the reference is to a menial employment as, he has found a position as office manager she has lost her place as a cook there are few good teaching positions open at present the employment agency can provide places for several good servants, chauffeurs, and farm hands at once This distinction however is not maintained in good usage for example, in British use especially place has not entirely lost its earlier denotation of a position in the government at court or the like (as, in my younger years I used many endeavours to get a place at Court —Addison To glut their insatiable craving for place' —J Morley) in university and collegiate use a placement officer is charged with the work of finding places for students leaving college or on vacation Situation (see also STATE) is not always distinguishable from position or place It is frequently the preferred term in the classified columns of newspapers (as, situations wanted situations vacant) and it sometimes carries a stronger implication of occupancy (or need of an occupant) than position as to seek a position (i e an opening or a place in a group staff system) to take or obtain a situation (i e a place one fills) as governess Office as here considered (see also FUNCTION 1) applies specifically to a position of trust, authority or the like especially in the service of a nation state city or the like or of a company corporation or association It often implies the selection of its occupant by election, appointment or the like it usually also suggests definite duties or functions tenure and (though not necessarily) emoluments beyond those given to holders of positions or situations as to elect a new man to the office of mayor he holds the office of attorney general of the state appointed to one of the highest offices in the country the directors elected the president of the corporation to the office of chairman of their board Post originally and still applied to the place where a soldier is stationed for sentry or guard duties, in the sense here considered applies to a position, or more often to an office attended by great responsibility or involving the performance of onerous duties as he has been appointed to the post of secretary of war it is rumored that he will give up his post at the beginning of the new year In British use post is now the common term for a place in the teaching profession Job berth billet are more or less colloquial terms (the last somewhat more frequent in British than in American use) for position situation office or post Job specifically stresses the work involved as a teaching job he has a hard job, a man is lost when he is without a job The term once applied chiefly to places involving heavy labor is now used not only without depreciation but even with a suggestion of some special significance as he is the only man for that job a job requiring skill and courage Berth distinctively implies a place (often a small place) in a system, a staff or a particular service often, but less clearly than billet it suggests a place to which one has been allotted assigned or appointed as he has a good berth in the civil service The men who cling to easy billets ashore (Harper s Mag) Capacity as here considered (see also ABILITY) comes into comparison with the other terms only when it denotes a position or job with reference to the nature of the tasks to be performed or to the qualifications of the person who performs them as he is with the firm in the capacity of financial adviser he serves them in the capacity of butler but they call him their houseman.

Ana *Work employment, occupation calling pursuit métier business positive 1 Certain *sure cocksure

Ana *Confident assured sanguine sure dogmatic doctrinaire oracular *dictatorial.

Ant Doubtful

2 *Affirmative.

Ant Negative. — Con *Neutral indifferent nugatory *vain idle hollow nullifying annulling (see NULLIFY) possess. Own, enjoy, hold, *have

Ana. Control, manage, direct, *conduct · retain *keep, reserve withhold possession, n 1 Possession, dependency, territory, colony, dominion, protectorate, mandate come into comparison as meaning a country or state that is subject in trol of the federal government, as Alaska is a territory of the United States most of the western states of the British colonies which after the American Revolution united to form the United States of America, French colonies in the West Indies Dominion is now the pre-united by a common allegiance to the crown Not all of these in their official titles use dominion, however, thus the Dominion of Canada and the Commonwealth of Australia are dominions in this sense Protectorate applies either to a country over which a more highly organized or more powerful country assumes control for the purposes of protecting it from aggression or internal disturbance and of managing its affairs or to the form

(C Oman) Mandate (see also COMMAND) is the term applied to any former German colony or other conquered territory that was assigned by the Treaty of Versailles, 1919 to another nation (mandatary) not as a possession but as a protectorate with power to administer and regulate its affairs, especially for the benefit of the colony or territory as, German East Africa was one of the mandates assigned to Great Britain

2 In plural form possessions. Possessions, belongings, effects, comparison wh together consti wealth Posse s

means resourc

pecuniary value Possessions may be applied to the personal possessions such as one's clothes one's goods, one's valuables or, in extended use one's family one's relatives, or one's dependents, as to gather up one's belongi suffici folk,

Effect

but usually less so than possessions It is often applied to personal as distinguished from real property especially when the reference is to the estate of a deceased person, as he died leaving no effects of value, all his effects were divided among his relatives estate of a deceased person or to the legal administration of the property of an insolvent or bankrupt person or concern *the assets include all the possessions of market*able value which may be turned into money to provide assets is never exactly the same as resources, because the latter word does not, as assets always does, imply a the proper conditions does or may exist or occur as "Although he [Plato] still asserts that community of . . . would be the ideal institution, he reluctantly . . . ns it as a basis for a possible state (G L. Dukes)

(*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

ion), there will be such [a minority of abnormal] m person] in pra whi ban
C

value (a u tima us of practical the inn comfort into con devised process (as, tele b d re
b le n pl n co u willing (Cowpe tion w a med only w Eliot)

a world religion? (C Mackenzie) Oftentimes feasible specifically implies suitability to an expressed or under stood purpose or appropriateness as a means of accomplishing a given or implied end as a northern resort is not feasible for some invalids in winter the suggested plot was not feasible for the type of play he wished to write

Ana Practical *practicable *expedient advisable.

2 *Probable likely

Ana Credible believable colorable *plausible potential dormant *latent post n *Position place situation office job berth billet capacity posterior, adj Posterior rear hind hinder after back agree in meaning behind in order of arrangement space Poster wh

ana strik espe wit
the up fro rela is h legs tion
Hin post
the usually confined u (A H Huxley) After ID wh
a ve or h beh

Ana

ore important part as back stairs a back door ment of the backwoods.

rior

Gate *door entrance

Presupposition presumption assump-pre ist pos tion S posture of supplication) or the assistance of the context to evoke a picture of how the parts of the body are disposed or to reveal the intention or end There s a posture for a man to fi we ght op

the
At
ex
of sta bet pic to her bow

without her hearing him or changing her attitude (E Wharton) Uttering platitudes In stained glass attitudes (W S Gilbert) Pose applies to an attitude or to a position of some part or parts

Ana *Bearing, carriage deportment mien.

2 Situation *state condition mode status estate

Ana *Position stand attitude

*Powerful, puissant forceful forcible orous energetic strenuous lusty *effective effectual *strong sturdy tenacious. tent

See also explanatory notes facing page 1 potential Dormant *latent quiescent abeyant Ant Active actual pother, n Flurry fuss ado *stir bustle Ana *Haste hurry speed dispatch agitation upset perturbation disturbance (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE) Con Coolness, collectedness composure (see corresponding adjectives at COOL) pouch *Bag sack pound, v *Beat, pummel buffet baste belabor, thrash thresh.

Ana *Strike hit smite slug batter mutilate (see MAIM) poverty. Poverty indigence, penury, want destitution, privation are here compared as denoting the state of one who is poor or without enough to live upon Poverty, the most comprehensive of these terms may imply either the lack of all personal property or possessions (as, the monk s vow of poverty prevents him from having any thing he may call his own) or it may imply resources so limited that one is deprived of many of the necessities and of all of the comforts of l fe (as, in Syria he feath ered his nest so successfully that in two years he raised himself from poverty to opulence —Buchan) Indigence (often opposed to affluence) does not suggest dire or absolute poverty but it always impl es reduced or straitened circumstances and therefore usually connotes the en durance of many hardships and the lack of comforts as to endure indigence in his old age clothing neat and clean but somewhat threadbare gave evidence of his indigence The road that leads from competence and peace To indigence (Cowper) Penury may or may not imply abject poverty but it does suggest such an extreme of need especially of money that one is cramped or oppressed by the lack of it, as Chill Penury repress d their noble rage (Gray) she has to take anything she can get in the way of a husband rather than face penury" (Shaw) But penury may imply the semblance of poverty that comes from miserliness or penuriousness (cf penurious under STINGY) as, Her relatives considered that the penury of her table discredited the Mingott name which had always been associated with good living (E Wharton) Want (see also LACK) and destitution both imply an extreme of poverty that leaves one without the means of mere subsistence both terms especially the latter often imply starvation and homelessness or the need of charity as he is in great want a small weekly gift that secures a family against want Here to the homeless child of want My door is open still (Goldsmith) One estate pass ng by death from heir to heir three times in one year (as happens easily during a war) is wiped out by them [death duties] and the heirs reduced from affluence to destitution (Shaw) Privation though implying a state that is comparable to the one suggested by indigence does not as the latter term does necessarily suggest poverty although it always impl es a condition of being without many of the necessities of existence or an insufficient supply of them it may con note another cause of such a condition than a lack of money or of possessions of value as, an explorer must often undergo prolonged privations months of privation had made every member of the family look scrawny and ill nourished Ana Necessity *need exigency stra t pass pinch (see JUNCTURE) Ant Riches.

power, n 1 Power force, energy strength, might puissance are come into comparison when they mean the ability to exert effort as in doing bearing resisting or the l ke Power is the most general of these terms and denotes the ability latent or exerted inherent or acquired, physical or mental or spiritual to act or be acted upon to effect something or to affect or be affected by something as the finest machine in the world is useless without a motor to give it power the mechanical power of the internal-combustion engine the king has great power over his people to raise the productive power of a body of workers the sound of a great flood moving with majesty and power (Cather) "What is it which has made it [the Authorized Version] a factor of such power in the development of our speech? (Lowes) "Her pained reserve had no power to awe them into decency" (Conrad), to give an attorney the power to act for one hateful to feel their power over me when I knew that they were nothing but fancies (Hudson) Force as here compared (see also FORCE 2) implies the exh bition or the exercise of power the term usually therefore carries with it a suggestion of actually overcoming resistance, actually setting a thing in motion or accelerating its motion actually driving a person or thing in the desired direction or the like thus, one has the power to do something but exerts force when he accompl shes it a wind gathers force accumulated force which drove them as if discharged from a cross-bow (Jefferies) "[the tiller of the soil] deals with a hard and rebell ous element not to be conquered mainly by skill but ma nly by force (H Ellis) He had in fact settled down into a dilettante having learnt to scorn the triumphs which he lacked the force to win (Bennett) Therefore force is often applied to a person or thing that exerts its power with marked efficacy or eff ciency as, They bel eved that the Church was the only force which could consolidate the nation (Inge) Giles Overreach [in Massinger s New Way to Pay [illegible] a great for [illegible]
"Art [illegible]
balance [illegible] Energy [illegible] power is [illegible] power t [illegible] is capab [illegible] cal scien [illegible] is in gen [illegible] the other [illegible] or weight [illegible] is describ [illegible] for work [illegible] other mat [illegible] tential ene [illegible] exhibits k [illegible] will reach t [illegible] exhibits po [illegible] be mechan [illegible] like as, th [illegible] derived fro [illegible] pounded ba [illegible] Darrow) In general use especially as appl ed to persons energy impl es stored up power releasing itself in work or craving such release as. The power of poetry is, by a single word . to [illegible] energy into the mind which compels the imagination to produce the picture (Coleridge) The prodigious energy put forth by industry in time of war (A C Morrison) "Politics and patriotism afforded practical outlets for Greek energy (B Russell), It was marvellous that the energy of her spirit could carry through so triumphantly her frail nervous system (H Ellis) Strength applies to the power that res des in a person or thing as a result of qualities or conditions that enable h m or it to exert force or to manifest great energy or to resist pressure strain stress, attack, or the l ke Physically strength implies soundness as of health of construction or the like (as strength of body the tensile strength of a rope the blasting strength of an explosive), mentally and morally it implies capacity for endurance resolution intrepidity or the like (as, to show strength in trial, or temptation, or in danger) when applied to armies, forces, fleets and the like, it usually implies numbers, equipment, resources etc. (as it was impossible to estimate the exact strength of the enemy s army a fleet incomparable in strength with any other) Might puissance arm are more or less rhetorical or poetic words meaning operative or effective power or force Might often suggests great or superhuman power it is therefore appropriate when the reference is to supernatural beings or supranatural forces or to human power that is so strong that it cannot be gainsaid Protect us by thy might Great God our King (S F Smith) Let us have faith that right makes might (Lincoln) The pride and might and vivid strength of things (Galsworthy) Puissance is often indistinguishable from might but in very discriminating use it generally also connotes an impressive display of power We should advance ourselves To look with forehead bold and big enough Upon the power and puissance of the king (Shak) Wherefore should not strength and might There weakest prove Where boldest, though to sight unconquerable? His [Satan s] puissance I mean to try (Milton) Arm, which is a figurative extension of arm the upper human limb is capable of two applications, both implying operative or effective power Sometimes, it is applicable to the power or body having authority that executes as one s arm executes that which one s mind conceives or one s will directs thus, the police force is the arm of the law the civil authority was in past times called the secular arm that is, the arm of the ecclesiastical authority Arm is also, in military use applied to one branch of the service as, the air arm Sometimes it is applicable to the might that shows itself especially in overcoming an enemy in these cases, arm often seems metaphorical rather than idiomatic English Son of man I have broken the arm of Pharaoh king of Egypt (Ezekiel xxx 21) To whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? (Isaiah liii 1) He whose strong arm the Orient could not check He who had held the Soldan at his beck (Wordsworth)

Ana *Ability capacity capability *gift genius talent faculty qualification competence (see corresponding adjectives at ABLE)

Ant Impotence.

2 Power, faculty, function come into comparison only when they mean an ability to act or perform in a given way or a capacity for a particular kind of action or performance Since as so defined all of these terms are used specifically of human beings they primarily suggest a mental ability or capacity that controls or directs conscious operations of the body or spirit as well as of the mind Power, the comprehensive term of this group may apply to a capacity for action or performance that does not or apparently does not call the mind into play (as the power to digest food the power of reflex movement) but it more frequently applies to an ability or capacity that involves either mental activity or mental receptiveness (as the power to think clearly the power to understand, to lose one s power to remember to Rima had been given this quickness of mind and power to divine distant things —Hudson the power of hearing delicate sounds distinguishing in the soul three principles or powers reason passion and desire —G L Dickinson) Faculty, often but far from always applies to a native or inherent power in earlier use it applied especially to those powers which were the possession of every normal human being though not always manifested in the first months of infancy or the earliest years of childhood as the faculty of hearing, the faculty of speech Still later, the word became a technical term of psychology referable to any one of the three (or more) powers of the human mind (often will memory reason) which psychologists discovered by an analysis of the entity called "mind" or "soul", as, "The understanding and will are two faculties of the mind (Locke), The truth is that memory and imagination the two most important human faculties are scarcely cultivated at all (Grandgent) Individual analyses not only resulted in enumerating widely different faculties and in widely differing definitions of faculties called by the same name (such as reason and understanding) but brought out a tendency to regard each faculty as a separate and distinct thing consequently the term as applied to one of the enumerable powers of the mind or soul has fallen into disrepute and is avoided in current psychological use However faculty as meaning generally a distinct discoverable power of the human mind or soul and faculties as meaning all the powers of the mind which are essential for its successful operation, are both found in good writing especially nontechnical writing as ' There has been endless discussion whether we have a distinct faculty for the knowledge of God (Inge), It is the one occasion when violent grief disturbing his faculties appears in his correspondence (Belloc) In current psychology function, as denoting an activity which can be more or less definitely associated with the brain or the central nervous system or a part of either is usually preferred to faculty and sometimes to power All mental activities such as seeing hearing perceiving conceiving imagining recalling etc are termed functions (Carl Murchison) Some psychologists distinguish kinds of psychology according to the stress laid upon mental processes as evidences of the existence of faculties (faculty psychology) or as activities involving the sense organs central nervous system and brain (functional psychology)

3 Power, authority, jurisdiction, control, command sway, dominion are here compared as meaning the right or prerogative of determining ruling or governing, or the exercise of that right or prerogative Power even in this specific sense never loses its fundamental implication of ability but in this case it is a capacity for rule that resides in one by virtue of one s rank one s office or even one s character or personality as, in an absolute monarchy the king has sole power all power over life and death was placed in the hands of the general, knowledge is power It is a strange desire to seek power and to lose liberty, or to seek power over others and to lose power over a man s self (Bacon) Power when used with reference to a definite person or body or office commonly connotes divisibility or strict limitation as, the trustees have power of appointment the charter gives the city power to tax sales he was given power of attorney but he never exercised that power there is no division of power when a dictator rules It is not enough that a statute goes to the verge of constitutional power We must be able to see clearly that it goes beyond that power (Justice Holmes) Authority is often used interchangeably with power nevertheless there is an essential difference in meaning In precise use authority refers to power resident in or exercised by another than oneself, thus one may have power (not authority) to determine one s own actions, but a parent or a master or a ruler has the authority (or less precisely the power) to determine the actions of those under him so one is obedient to authority (not power) authority (more precise than power) is needed to restrain persons from infringing upon the pl ral often refer to the wrote be accounted under Father Latour s jurisdiction (Cather) Demanding from us a complete subjection to the poetry that occupies us yet never ask ng of poetry more than lies within its proper jurisdiction (Day Lewis) Control as here compared stresses possession of the authority to restrain or curb and its effective exer cise or of actual power to regulate or keep responsive to one s will not only persons but things thus a teacher who has lost control of his class has reached a point where the pupils no longer recognize his authority a fire has gone beyond control when those who are fighting it have way I made my success I always kept the control (S Anderson) Command impl es such control as makes one the master of men and such authority that obedi ence to one s order or one s will either inev tably follows or is inexorably enforced thus one speaks of the officer in command (rather than in control) of a regiment or says that a person has command of a situation (rather than control of it) when he completely dominates it or has all persons or things involved in it under control so the president assumes command of the army and navy in brush did its work with a steady and sure stroke that language and a greater control of the emotion (T S Eliot) Sway tends to be slightly rhetorical because its use in this sense was originally figurative and the word still carries a hint of its etymological impl cations of swinging or sweeping through an arc or circle hence when a word is desired that means power but also con notes extent or scope and preponderant influence compelling authority potency or the like sway is the proper choice as the British Empire has extended its ion, In precise use imputes sovereignty to the power in must be exercised in subord nation to the States, who alone possess supreme dominion (Ch Just Marshall) dominion in any shape would soon become Freeman) gl t privilege prerogative birthright manage- ection (see corresponding verbs at CONDUCT) y *supremacy

Powerful potent puissant, forceful forcible compacting words into the express on of spontaneous life (S Alexander) illusions no longer potent be-somewhat more restrained in their suggestion of power nevertheless imply an abil ty to effect impressive results undoubted force on the observer as a forceful person ality a forceful style a forceful writer he rel ed more on a forceful clarity to convince I is readers than on the bril l ant and exciting ambiguities of propagandist eloquence (A Huxley) Forcible on the other hand suggests the actual exertion of power or force it often implies the use of physical violence in attaining one's ends as to make a forcible entry into a building to take forcible possession of goods not paid for to favor forcible measures in treating unruly prisoners There are times however when forceful falls short because it does not imply aggressiveness militancy or decided potency In such cases discriminating writers often prefer forcible thus one might prefer to describe Theodore Roosevelt's personality or a dictator's speech as forcible rather than forceful

Ana *Able capable competent efficacious effectual, *effective efficient *vigorous, energetic strenuous

Ant Powerless inefficacious

powerless Powerless, impotent, impuissant agree in meaning unable to effect one's purpose intention or end Powerless denotes merely lack of power or efficacy as he suddenly found himself powerless to move powerless as an infant (De Quincey), Argument is powerless against either feeling (Hardy) I hope that the luxuries of this palatial mansion are powerless to corrupt your heart (Shaw) Impotent (see also STERILE 1) implies not only powerlessness, but positive weakness or especially complete ineffectiveness as An angry little spitfire sea continually spits and thrashes with impotent irascibility (Stevenson) terrible and impotent rage (Wilde) "Fifteen years later one King of England was put to death an impotent victim (Belloc) Set him [a French man] to write poetry he is limited artificial and impotent set him to write prose he is free natural and effective (Arnold) Impuissant like puissant (see under POWERFUL) is a literary term often it is indistinguishable from impotent but it is sometimes preferred when there is a contrast between the greatness of the attempt and the complete ineffectiveness of the result as an impuissant man defying fate to send an impuissant army against a puissant invader

Ana Inert *inactive passive supine feeble *weak, infirm decrepit

Ant Powerful efficacious — Con *Effective efficient.

practicable 1 Feasible *possible

Ana Operating or operable working or workable functioning (see corresponding verbs at ACT)

Ant Impracticable

2 Practicable, practical are not synonyms in good current use but they are sometimes confused when they imply a capacity for being used or turned to account Practicable (see also POSSIBLE 1) applies chiefly to things which have not been worked out (as a plan project, scheme design) or which have been recently devised invented constructed or the like (such as a new machine a new form of entertainment a new implement) and about which one of the following questions arises is it capable of being developed or worked out or is it likely to prove successful in operation or use thus many plans for the eradication of poverty are dismissed as "not practicable (or impracticable) the possibility of wireless telegraphy was questioned until Marconi demonstrated its practicability no practicable winter automobile that operates on runners rather than on wheels has yet been devised Practical applies not only to things (concrete and immaterial) but also as practicable never does, to persons The term in all of its senses stresses an opposition to that which is theoretical speculative ideal unrealistic imaginative or the like and implies a relation to the actual life of man his daily needs, or the conditions which must be met When the term also implies a capacity for use it emphasizes actual usefulness rather than highly probable or merely discovered usableness thus the automobile when first invented was not regarded as practicable by many persons but as a result of numerous improvements in the course of time it is now regarded as a most practical vehicle for pleasure business transportation and the like, "Without his [Faraday's] researches in magnetic electricity we might have missed those most practical machines of our modern life the dynamo and the telephone" (H Ellis) Hence, practical may apply to anything that is such in kind character amount effect or the like that it is definitely useful or serviceable in actual life as, very few students of French gain a practical knowledge of it unless they spend at least a year in France In everything he undertook he demanded a utilitarian purpose and a practical result (Buchan) These writers cannot confirm any one in the faith, they can merely have the practical value of removing prejudices from the minds of those who have not the faith but who might possibly come to it (T S Eliot) With the real, practical kindness of leaving some money for her board they moved on (Deland) practical *Practicable practically *Virtually morally practice or practise, v Practice (or as a verb spelled also practise), exercise, drill come into comparison as verbs meaning to perform or cause one to perform an act or series of acts repeatedly and as nouns denoting such repeated activity or exertion Practice fundamentally implies doing especially doing habitually or regularly often in contrast to thinking, believing and professing or to theory and precept as to practice what one preaches the practice of one's religion to practice medicine the practice of one's profession in theory every citizen votes but in practice rarely more than half avail themselves of the privilege If a thing has been practiced for two hundred years by common consent it will need a strong case for the Fourteenth Amendment to affect it (Justice Holmes) Practice also implies a doing over and over again of certain acts for the sake of acquiring proficiency dexterity skill or the like or in the hope of attaining perfection as Practice makes perfect (Proverb) to practice on the piano one hour each day, rifle practice I suppose they teach you to make Latin verses ? That's very good practice (Arch Marshall) Exercise fundamentally implies a keeping busy or a setting to work it usually presupposes the possession of a power or of powers which can be developed or strengthened only by activity especially repeated activity or can be manifested only in practice as give him plenty of opportunities to exercise his intelligence a wise father avoids the exercise of authority except when other means fail "he had liberality and he had the means of exercising it (Austen) so long as a child is with adults it has no occasion for the exercise of a number of important virtues namely those required by the strong in dealing with the weak (B Russell) Will can only be exercised in the presence of something which retards or resists it (Inge) Like practice exercise may be used also to imply acts performed repeatedly for the sake of an ulterior end but exercise usually refers either literally or figuratively to those directed to the attainment of health or physical vigor as Tom was being exercised like a raw recruit to grow mentally dull through lack of physical exercise Exercise is good for the muscles of mind and to keep it well in hand for work (Lowell) Poetry is in France an exercise not an expression It is to real French expression to prose what gymnastics and hygiene are to health (Brownell) Drill fundamentally connotes an intention to fix physical or mental habits as deeply as though they were bored in by the use of the drill the tool, in current use the term stresses repetition as of military evolutions of word pronunciations of grammatical rules or the like as a means of training and disciplining the body or mind or of form ng correct habits as to drill troops a drill in arithmetic. Th s is a real danger in modern education owing to the reaction against the old severe drill The mental work involved in the drill was good what was bad was the killing of intellectual interests (B Russell) Ana *Perform execute fulfill *follow pursue *repeat iterate practice, n 1 *Habit habitude usage custom consuetude use wont Ana Procedure *process proceed ng *method system way fashion mode manner 2 Exercise dr ll See under PRACTICE v.

Ana *Use utility usefulness usage *form convention convenance pursuit calling *work Ant Theory precept pragmatical, pragmatic Officious, meddlesome *impertinent intrusive obtrusive Ana *Cur ous pry ng inquisitive *busy assiduous sedulous agitated disturbed perturbed (see DISCOMPOSE) interfering interposing intervening (see INTERPOSE) praise, v Praise, laud acclaim extol, eulogize agree in meaning to express approbation or esteem Praise often impl es no more than warmly expressed commendation What we admire we praise and when we praise Advance it into notice (Cowper) When specifically referred to persons it frequently suggests the judgment of a superior as to praise a pupil for his diligence However it is also used in reference to God (or a god) or a saint Then it implies glorification by acts of homage such as song or prayer Praise God from whom all bless ngs flow (Ken) Sometimes it connotes thanksgiving Though we have not beef and mutton yet (God be praised) we want them not our Indian corn answers for all (Winthrop) Laud implies very high sometimes excess ve praise as lauded to the skies Both of the writers lauded contemporaries who were certainly no better than middling performers in the r several arts (C E Montague) Acclaim usually suggests enthusiastic expression of approval etc as by loud applause or cheers Dr Welch was acclaimed not only in his own country but throughout the civilized world (V Heiser) Extol retains its etymological implication of lifting up or ra sing and suggests praise that exalts or magnifies They extoll d your perfections to the heavens (B Jonson) It is often used when a contrast between approbat on or esteem and their opposites is enforced To find Virtue extolled and Vice stigmatized (Addison) An age must always decry itself and extol its forbears (Galsworthy) Eulogize sometimes interchangeable with extol d ffers from it in implying formal ty both in the n ethod and in the occasion very frequently t suggests a set compos tion or oration (eulogy) su table for a funeral or testimonial He eulogized constitutional government as immeasurably superior to despot sm (Lecky) Eulogies turn into elegies (Spenser) Ana *Commend applaud compliment *exalt magnify aggrand ze Ant Blame — Con Asperse *mal gn traduce vilify calumniate def me l bel disparage *decry detract from bel ttle reprehend reprobate censure denounce *criticize prank, n Prank, caper antic monkeyshine, dido agree in meaning a playful ften a mischievous, act or trick Prank still carries the strongest impl cation of deviltry of all these words thoug n w there is little suggestion of malice and greater emphasis upon the practical joke than in the past Hear thou how many fru tless pranks botch d up (Shak) His [M ddle- heavy especially in the plura ch ldren in overflowing sp rits and frolicsome as to find childish capers annoying Antic stresses the ludicrousness and grotesqueness of the movements, gestures and postures rather than the spirit in which the acts or tricks are performed as tl e antics of a clown. Sometimes, however it suggests grandstand play" as to watch the antics of boys climbing poles The Casterbridge tradition was that to drive stock hideous cries, coupled with yahoo antics should be used (Hardy) Monkeyshine (a slang term in American use) may be applied to a caper or antic but it usually also implies amusing mimicry or extreme nimbleness in movement It is a frequent designation of the mischievous tricks and capers of young boys Dido (also slang) adds to prank the implications of racket making and often of mal c ous mischief as to cut up didos on Halloween Ana Frolic gambol rollick sport play (see under PLAY v) levity *lightness frivol ty vagary *caprice freak whim whimsey prank, v *Preen prune prink primp perk up, doll up Ana *Adorn ornament decorate deck bedeck embell sh beautify prate Chatter *chat gab patter prattle babble gabble jabber g bber prattle Chatter patter prate gab, *chat babble gabble jabber gibber pray Plead petition appeal sue See under PRAYER Ana Supplicate entreat beseech implore *beg prayer Prayer suit, plea petition, appeal and their corresponding intransitive verbs pray, sue plead, petition appeal agree in meaning an earnest and usually a formal request for something (or to make such a request) Prayer and pray (for or to) imply that the request is made to a person or body invested with author ty or power or especially to God or a god the words usually therefore connote humility in approach and often fervor in entreating We do pray for mercy And that same prayer doth teach us all to render The deeds of mercy" (Shak) In religious use however where prayer and pray always imply an act of worship they may or may not connote a request or petition This implication of making a request is retained however in the specific legal use of these terms in a court of equ ty where formally one prays for rel ef the prayer in a bill in equ ty is the part that specifies the kind of relief sought The words are also used in formal petitions or remonstrances to a leg slative body Suit and sue (for or to) imply a deferential and formal sol citation sometimes for help or rel ef but often for a favor a grace a kindness and the l ke Except in legal use (see SUIT n 3) in reference to the address of a man (a su tor) to the lady he hopes to marry and in some id omatic pl rases such as to sue for peace" the words are somewhat arch aic in flavor "There Kings shall sue and suppliant States be seen Once more to bend before a BRITISH QUEEN (Pope) "Is it that I sue not in some form Of scrupulous law that ye deny my suit" (Shelley) Plea (see also APOLOGY) and plead (for) often suggest a court of law the status of a defen lant or of an accused person an l his formal statements in swer to the plaintiff's allegations or the state's charge Plea especially has technical senses not here considered In general use however, both terms imply argument or urgent entreaty, of which self justification a desire for vindication or support, or strong partisanship is usually the motive, as to make a plea for forgiveness, to plead for a more tolerant attitude "Though justice be thy plea consider this That, in the course of justice none of us Should see salvation" (Shak) I plead frankly for the theistic hypothesis as involving fewer difficulties than any other (Inge) Petition and its verb petition (for) imply a formal and specific request often in writing presented to the person or body that has power to grant it In modern use the words carry little or no connotation of abject humility of entreaty or the like rather they suggest a right to make a request, as one of the sovereign people or as one who is confident that it will be judged on its merits as to petition (or send a petition to) the legislature to repeal an obnoxious law to make a petition to the court for a new trial Appeal and appeal (for or to) basically imply a call for attention to and favorable consideration of one's plea as to appeal for mercy to appeal to one's family for help Often they additionally connote an insistence on being heard and hence a change of plea from an inferior to a superior power such as a higher court or a higher authority or in more recent use the emotions in an attempt to evoke a favorable response or judgment as to appeal to the supreme court for a new trial the court of last appeal Against the decree of fate there is no appeal (A Huxley) Man talins and Dobbins who pursue women with appeals to their pity or jealousy or vanity (Shaw) In current use the terms often omit the to phrase and imply a sympathetic or favorable response or a compelling quality, as, an appealing way the song has a human appeal

Ana Supplication entreaty, beseeching imploring begging (see BEG) worship adoration (see under REVERE) preamble *Introduction prologue induction prelude overture preface foreword prolegomenon proem exordium prolusion protasis avant propos precarious *Dangerous hazardous, perilous jeopardous risky

Ana *Doubtful dubious questionable distrustful mistrustful (see corresponding verbs at DISTRUST) chance chancy haphazard *random Con *Safe secure *steady even equable constant.

precedence *Priority

Ana Leading or lead guiding or guide (see corresponding verbs at GUIDE) antecedence foregoing (see corresponding adjectives at PRECEDING) precedent, adj *Preceding antecedent, foregoing previous, prior former anterior preceding adj Preceding antecedent, precedent, foregoing previous, prior, former anterior agree in meaning being before especially in time or in order of arrangement Preceding (opposed to succeeding following) is restricted to time and place it usually means immediately before as the preceding day the preceding clause events preceding the opening of the story Antecedent (opposed to subsequent consequent) usually implies order in time but unlike preceding it often suggests an indefinite intervening interval as events antecedent to the opening of the story Chaucer's poems were written in a period antecedent to the Elizabethan Age Very often also the word implies a causal or a logical, as well as a temporal relation thus to understand the success of modern dictators we must have a knowledge of antecedent conditions (that is of conditions earlier in time and causative of dictatorships), a conclusion is based on a chain of antecedent inferences Precedent often applies to one thing which must precede another thing if the latter is to be valid or become effective thus, a condition precedent in law is a condition that must be fulfilled before an estate can be vested in one or before a right accrues to one Foregoing (opposed to following) applies almost exclusively to statements as, the foregoing citations the foregoing argument Previous and prior (opposed to subsequent) are often used interchangeably esp with to, as previous to or prior to a given date But prior sometimes implies greater importance than previous thus a previous obligation suggests merely an obligation entered into earlier in point of time whereas a prior obligation is one which surpasses the other in importance and must be fulfilled in advance of the other (or others) Former (opposed to latter), even more definitely than prior, implies comparison, as there can be a former engagement only when there is also a later one a previous or prior engagement may prevent one's making a second Anterior (opposed to posterior) also comparative in force applies to position usually in space sometimes in order or time as, the anterior lobe of the brain Organization must presuppose life as anterior to it (Coleridge)

Ant Following

precept Rule *law canon regulation statute ordinance

Ana *Principle fundamental axiom *doctrine tenet dogma injunction behest bidding (see COMMAND n)

Ant Practice counsel precious. *Costly expensive dear valuable invaluable priceless

Ana *Choice exquisite recherché rare valued prized appreciated cherished (see APPRECIATE) precipitate, adj Precipitate, headlong abrupt impetuous, hasty, sudden, as applied to persons or their acts or behavior denote in common characterized by excessive haste and unexpectedness Precipitate especially stresses lack of due deliberation sometimes it suggests prematureness, and is therefore especially applicable to decisions or to actions based on decisions It was feared by some that she might be precipitate in her choice (Irving) Headlong throws the emphasis on rashness and lack of forethought it is used to describe not only persons and their acts but the qualities exhibited by such persons or in such acts, as headlong folly headlong haste Abrupt, when applied to a person's actions suggests complete lack of warning or sometimes unceremoniousness as an abrupt departure the story came to an abrupt end when applied to manners or words it usually implies curtness as he answered abruptly when applied to style it retains its etymological implication of a sudden breaking off and connotes sharp changes in thought without any attempts at transition Impetuous implies violence or vehemence as applied to persons it often also suggests impulsiveness or at times extreme impatience You know the impetuosity of my brother's temper (Fielding) No necessity exists for any hurry except in the brain of that impetuous boy (Meredith) Hasty stresses quickness of response and often suggests thoughtlessness and hot temper rather than impulsiveness I am known to be a humorous patrician hasty and tinder like what I think I utter and spend my malice in my breath" (Shak) Sudden, as here compared is distinguishable from sudden meaning unexpected only by its added implications of extreme hastiness or impetuosity as sudden in temper, given to sudden rages Now and then an access of sudden fury would lay hold on a man or woman (Kipling)

Ana Headstrong willful refractory (see UNRULY) Ant Deliberate — Con Leisurely *slow ☞ Do not confuse precipitate with precipitous precipitate, v *Speed accelerate quicken, hasten hurry Ana Drive impel (see MOVE v) *force compel coerce constrain precipitous *Steep, abrupt sheer Ana Soaring towering rocketing ascending rising (see RISE) ☞ Do not confuse precipitous with precipitate précis Sketch apercu survey *compendium syllabus, digest pandect precise Exact accurate *correct nice right Ana Definite express *explicit strict *rigid rigorous stringent Ant Loose — Con Lax, slack (see LOOSE). *careless heedless preciseness *Precision

p[illegible] Precision preciseness agree in denoting the [illegible] precise Precision [illegible] sought for or is [illegible] hing When used [illegible] ression with such [illegible] nor nothing less than what appl es [illegible] r consideration is said as expressing herself with incomparable precision (Arnold) to describe with precision the persons to whom this high privilege was given the word citizen was substituted for free inhabitant (Ch Just Taney) [Rhetoric] is merely a vague term of abuse for any style that is so evidently bad or second rate that we do not recognize the necessity for greater precision in the phrases we apply to it (T S Eliot) When used in reference to the arts sciences and the like the term usually impl es such clearness of definition or such sharpness in distinction or in distin gu shing that there is no confusion as to outlines boundaries dividing lines, movements or the l ke as However we may d sgu se it by ve ling words we do not and cannot carry out the d stinction between legislative and executive action with mathematical precision (Justice Holmes) Taught her to play the piano with the force and precision of a crack regiment of cavalry (H G Wells) Acting singing and dancing seem to me the best methods of teaching aesthetic precision (B Russell) Precision is also used in reference to an instrument a machine or a part of a machine or the like that must be made with such exactness of measurements that an infinitesimal fraction of an inch would debar it from fulfilling its function as instruments of precision (or often pre ision instruments) the fabri cation of precision parts (A C Morrison) Preciseness is now rarely used in place of precision for it has come to carry so strong an implication of severity or of strictness sometimes overn cety in the observance of religious laws the code of one s profess on the proprieties as dictated by one s class or social equals or the like that it is depreciative as often as it is laudatory as savor ng of Puritanism and overstrict preciseness (Prynne) prejud ced preciseness (C M Yonge) the letter had the preciseness of an Imperial mandate (Meredith) the preciseness of h s enunciation and diction is almost the only sign of his foreign birth preclude *Prevent obv ate avert ward off Ana *Hinder obstruct impede block, bar *stop discontinue quit cease *exclude eliminate shut out debar precocious Untimely forward *premature advanced Ana *Immature unmatured unripe Ant Backward

precursor. *Forerunner harbinger herald Ana *Sign mark token symptom antecedent determinant *cause reason predicament. Predicament, dilemma quandary plight, scrape, fix, jam, pickle are here compared as denoting a s tuation from which one does or can extr cate himself only with difficulty Predicament orig nally a term of logic denoting the character status, or class fica tion assigned by a predication now carries in its ch ef current sense no implications derived from this mean ng except possibly the implication that the situation con stitutes a problem for those who are involved in it The term may imply lack of freedom to do w l at one wishes or finds essential for some reason or it may imply deep perplexity as to ways out of the situation. "Adv ce may be of such nature that it will be painful to reject and yet impossible to follow it and in th s predicament I conceive myself to be placed (Crabbe) The pred cament [illegible] on now finds itself confronted— [illegible] happy leisure [illegible] by mat [illegible] predicament in l fe I got marr [illegible] have three children (S Anderson) Dilemma so originally and still a term of logic denoting a choice of alternatives presented by an opponent in argument either of which is extremely damaging to one s case) appl es to a s tuation which constitutes a pred cament from which one can escape only by a choice of equally unpleasant or unsatisfactory alternatives as the army was confronted with the dilemma of capitulat ng or starving Quandary d ffers from d lemma ch efly in its stress on puzzlement or perplexity, in fact this impl ca tion is often so emphasized that the suggestion of a dilemma or a choice between alternatives is lost or obscured as he was in a quandary as to how he could keep his appo ntment All his q andaries terminated in the same catastrop he a compromise (Disraeli) All the other words now definitely imply a d ff culty often a very disagreeable situation Plight in its earl est use did not carry this suggestion, for it was appl cable to a s tua tion of any kind or character but in current use even when unqualif ed the term commonly suggests an unfortunate trying or unhappy s tuation as the pl ght in wh ch the world finds itself to-day (J A Hobson) the plight of this poor fam ly is beyond description Cayley Drummle in The Second Mrs Tanqueray has it for his main job to size up the pretty plight of Tanqueray and his w fe and to speculate [illegible] about th ngs which they cannot very well say (C E Montague) Scrape applies to a plight in which one is involved through one s own fault often it suggests a being in d sgrace or disfavor as I only suspected it to be Bingley from believing him the kind of young man to get into a scrape of that sort (Austen) they re every one of em in scrapes and I ve got to pay the piper (Meredith) Fix and jam are colloquial equivalents of plight but fix stresses rather the d fficulty in extr cation, and jam stresses the tight place or hopeless involvements in wh ch one finds oneself as he will be in a fix if he doesn t settle his debts wl en tl ey are due hereafter he is in a jam financially Pickle appl es to a particularly d stress ng or sorry pl ght as How camest thou in this pickle! (Shak) But when I was left ashore in Mel bourne I was in a pretty pickle I knew nobody and I had no money (Shaw) Ana *State s tuation cond tion posture pass, pinch, strait emergency exigency *juncture predicate, v Affirm, declare, *assert, aver, protest, avouch avow, warrant.

predict. *Foretell forecast, prophesy prognosticate, augur, presage portend, forebode

Ana *Foresee, foreknow divine *warn forewarn, caution surmise, *conjecture guess predilection. Predilection, partiality, prepossession, prejudice, bias agree in meaning an attitude of mind as exhibited in a feeling or idea which predisposes one to make a certain choice or judgment or to take a certain view without full consideration or reflection. Predilection always implies a strong liking that results from one's temperament one's principles or one's previous experience and that predisposes one to prefer certain kinds of friends books foods, methods or the like or to accept a thing without reference to any other test, as. For great men I have ever had the warmest predilection (Carlyle), 'a predilection for the strange and whimsical (Coleridge) Out of the mass of words that make up a language every writer uses only a limited number and even among these has his words of predilection (H Ellis) The scientist's refusal to believe in a chaotic universe is [not] based on any personal predilections (Inge) Partiality implies a disposition to favor a particular person or thing because of some predilection or more often because of overweening fondness or passionate other person's (Austen) Prepossession always implies a fixed sulting inclination in favor of or against a person or

Ana *Leaning propensity proclivity, flair bent, turn, knack, aptitude, *gift predispose. Dispose, *incline, bias.

Ant Aversion.

Ana. Influence, sway *affect touch impress, strike predominant. *Dominant paramount, preponderant, preponderating sovereign.

Ana Controlling directing conducting managing (see CONDUCT v) *prevailing prevalent *chief principal leading main foremost

Con. *Subordinate secondary dependent subject

Ana *Dominant, predominant, paramount excelling or excellent, outdoing outstripping (see corresponding verbs at EXCEED) *consummate finished pre-empt. *Arrogate, usurp, appropriate, confiscate

Ana. *Take, seize grasp, grab *exclude, eliminate, shut out, debar animals and to human beings who give close attention to details of grooming Prune is currently less often used than preen in this sense, with the result that it is sometimes mistakenly regarded as incorrect 'Below them, in their holes in the sandstone, pigeons preened themselves nicety more than adornment

Ana Accept *receive, admit, take *approve, endorse, favor, *oblige accommodate offer tender, present.

Selection, election, *choice option,

Ana *Predilection, prepossession partiality *favor, countenance preferment. *Advancement, promotion, elevation.

Ana Advance, progress (see under ADVANCE, v, 2) rising or rise, ascending or ascent (see corresponding verbs at RISE) pregnant. Meaningful, significant, *expressive, eloresponding verbs at INCLINE) *favor, countenance *leaning penchant prelection. *Speech address, oration harangue allocution lecture talk, sermon homily prelude *Introduction prologue induction overture preface foreword prolegomenon, proem exordium preamble prolusion protasis, avant-propos.

premature. Premature, untimely, forward, advanced, precocious are not actually synonyms for they are rarely interchangeable but they come into comparison when they mean unduly early in coming happening developing or the like. Premature applies usually to that which takes place before its due or proper time (as a premature birth a premature announcement) or comes into existence before it is fully grown or developed or ready for presentation (as, a premature baby a premature conclusion a premature report) or to actions or persons that manifest overhaste or impatience (as, I have been a little premature I perceive I beg your pardon — Austen). Untimely usually means little more than unseasonable but when as frequently happens, it is applied to that which comes or occurs in advance of its due or proper time it approaches very close to premature in meaning the term however applies not so often to that which begins a life outward existence or the like before its proper time as to that which ends or destroys a life a season or a growing or developing thing before it has run its normal natural or allotted course as, the untimely falling of fruit from a tree the untimely death of the man and heir the untimely frosts that brought summer's beauty to an end whose harvest perished by untimely blight (C. Bronte) Forward as here compared applies chiefly to living things especially to young persons young animals young plants to growing crops but also sometimes to seasons, that show signs of progress beyond those that are normal or natural for a thing or things of its kind at the time in question as an unusually forward spring he is the most forward in mental development of their children In current use advanced tends to supplant forward when by comparison with other persons, other growing things, other seasons etc of the same kind or class the person or thing so described is notably ahead of the others as, the most advanced children in the school "conflict between the economic interests of the advanced and backward peoples (J. A. Hobson) Precocious strictly implies a premature fruiting or flowering in current use however it is rarely applied to plants but chiefly to children who show undue signs of intellectual maturity or an unusual forwardness in mental development He was precocious and his mixing with natives had taught him some of the more mature (T. S. Eliot)

[illegible]

Ana *Immature unmatured unripe unmellow abortive fruitless (see FUTILE) *precipitate hasty sudden abrupt premeditated *Deliberate considered advised designed studied Ana Intended purposed meant (see INTEND) *voluntary intentional willful

Ant Matured

Ant Unpremeditated casual accidental — Con *Precipitate abrupt headlong hasty sudden premise or premiss, n Postulate position presupposition presumption assumption. See under PRESUPPOSE.

Ana Ground *reason proposition, *proposal premise, v Postulate posit *presuppose presume, assume premium Premium, prize, award, reward meed, guerdon, bounty, bonus agree in meaning something which is bestowed upon a person as a recompense for greater effort superior merit supremacy in competition or the like. Premium, as here considered is applied usually to something extra or additional that serves as an incentive to buy sell loan compete strive or the like as, the school offers premiums for excellence in certain studies to pay a premium in addition to an hourly wage to workmen who perform a given amount of work in less than the standard time specified to ask a premium as well as interest for a loan to increase the sales of a manufactured article by giving premiums Prize is applied to something (etymologically something of value) which is given for or in looser use which may be won by chance it is bestowed upon the winner in a contest or competition, or in a lottery as, bridge prizes

[illegible]

(Browning) He had embarked early upon that desperate game of which the prize was a throne and the forfeit life (A. Repplier) Award implies both a decision of judges and a bestowal of a prize or an honor it is therefore often preferred to prize when the recipients have not been competitors in the strict sense but have in their work or performances fulfilled the conditions required by those who offer prizes as, to receive an award for civic service Boy Scout awards Award is logically the correct term for the act of awarding a prize or for the decision in a particular competition as, the judges have inspected the exhibits and will soon make their awards the Rhodes scholarship awards will be announced this week Reward strongly involves the idea of recompense for that which is good or meritorious (only ironically for that which is evil) it may be used in reference to a prize or premium only when that has been earned thus, a winner of a prize for the best novel of the year may feel that he has been given a reward for intense effort a reward is offered for the return of a lost article (not for its finding) heaven is thought of as the reward for a good life and not as its prize "He scorned to take a reward for doing what in justice he ought to do (Steele)

The reward of one duty is the power to fulfil another (G. Eliot) Meed and guerdon are close synonyms of reward but they are used only in poetry or rhetorical prose They are often employed without distinction but meed tends to suggest a reward recognizing merit and proportioned to it and guerdon a prize or honor conferred as a reward He must not float upon his watery bier Unwept and welter to the parching wind Without the meed of some melodious tear (Milton) "The harsh criticism of the coach on the bank when we rested for a moment to receive our meed of praise or blame (A. C. Benson) Verse like the laurel its immortal meed Should be the guerdon of a noble deed (Cowper) take A horse and arms for guerdon choose the best (Tennyson) Bounty and bonus are applicable chiefly to a sum of money or its equivalent given as a premium or reward Bounty is usually but not exclusively applied to a premium promised by a government or governmental agency as an inducement to enlistment in the army or navy to emigration to a distant colony to the destrucion of noxious animals or pests and the like or as a subsidy to industry as the State pays a bounty for every wildcat killed during the Civil War some men enlisted for the bounty and then deserted Bonus on the other hand is applied to something given over and above what is regularly received or due as salary wages dividends interest or the like either as a reward or encouragement or as a distribution of surplus as a soldier's bonus a shareholder's bonus When used in reference to men in the army and navy bounty refers only to the sum of money paid at enlistment bonus to any sum of money insurance and the like granted after discharge Ana *Gift present gratuity favor enhancement intensification, heightening (see corresponding verbs at INTENSIFY) preoccupied. *Abstracted absent absent-minded distrait distraught.

Ana *Intent engrossed absorbed *forgetful oblivious, unmindful preponderant, preponderating *Dominant, predominant, paramount, sovereign.

Ana *Supreme pre-eminent transcendent surpassing outstanding salient signal (see NOTICEABLE) prepossession Partiality prejudice bias *predilection Ana Bent turn knack aptitude *gift *leaning penchant predisposition inclination (see corresponding verbs at INCLINE) preposterous Absurd *foolish silly Ana *Irrational unreasonable bizarre grotesque *fantastic prerequisite Requisite *requirement.

Ana. Necessity *need exigency prerogative *Right, privilege perquisite appanage birthright.

Ana Immunity *exemption *claim title *freedom license liberty presage, n *Foretoken prognostic omen augury portent Ana *Sign symptom mark token forewarning warning (see WARN) presage, v Augur portend forebode prognosticate *foretell, predict forecast, prophesy Ana. *Indicate betoken bespeak signify import denote *mean prescind *Detach disengage abstract prescribe Prescribe assign define come into comparison when they mean to fix arbitrarily or authoritatively for the sake of order or of a clear understanding Prescribe stresses dictation especially by one in command and usually implies that the aim is to give explicit directions or clear guidance to those who accept one's authority or are bound to obey one's injunctions as the Constitution prescribes the conditions under which it may be amended the Anglican Church prescribes the prayers used in its various services the attending physician prescribes the medicines for his patient Can he refuse a copy thereof to a person demanding it on the terms prescribed by law? (Ch Just Mars all) They were ready within the time prescribed by Austin (Meredith) Assign in the sense here considered (see also ALLOT ASCRIBE) usually retains from its other senses at least a suggestion of allotment or ascription it implies arbitrary but not despotic determination for the sake of some practical end such as harmony in operation or functioning the proper distribution of a number of things, or the settlement of a dispute by agreement as a committee is responsible for assigning the periods for all classes the city charter assigns the duties of each elected official and the limits of his authority some phoneticians assign one value to a In fare mare dare etc and some another "Ye know the spheres and various tasks assign'd By laws eternal to th' aërial kind [sylphs genii daemons, etc] (Pope) Define implies an intent to mark boundaries between things so as to prevent confusion conflict or overlapping as to define the jurisdiction of the various courts the Constitution of the United States prescribes the powers of the government assigns the limits to each and defines the functions of each branch Ana *Set settle fix establish direct enjoin instruct order *command.

prescribed Prescribed, appointed, destined come more closely into comparison than the verbs from which they are derived because some of these adjectives have acquired or retained implications not found in the verb As here compared they agree in meaning fixed or settled beforehand Prescribed usually implies an authoritative setting of bounds not primarily to limit or confine others activities or to restrict others' freedom but to achieve some end such as uniformity in practice or equipment or a conservation of time or energy thus a prescribed form of words commonly constitutes a formula such as a pledge of allegiance an oath of office or the like the prescribed prayers for a service are the prayers that are ordered to be said but they are not necessarily the only ones that are said the prescribed reading for a course represents not the maximum which an energetic student may accomplish but the minimum which is required of every student in order that all students may have a common ground Appointed may imply prior determination by agreement of those concerned or it may imply prior determination by a superior power it stresses a marking out or fixing in a clear and unmistakable fashion as of a time or place of meeting a task to be accomplished a course to be followed an end to be aspired to or a limit to be observed as We were all back in our places at the appointed hour (Galsworthy) Eternal Father! Who bidd'st the mighty ocean deep Its own appointed limits keep (W Whiting) Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds (inscribed on N Y City post office and translated from Herodotus) Destined presupposes a decree by an inexorable power such as God or Fate or especially in modern use a relentless human intention that which is destined is in strict use that which is inevitable and cannot be escaped "The day when I must die My feet shall fall in the destined snare Wherever my road may lie (D G Rossetti) You think that you are Ann's suitor that you are the pursuer and she the pursued Fool it is you who are the pursued the marked down quarry the destined prey (Shaw) The word however is now often used loosely and without an implication of inevitability it may, and commonly does refer to something that has already happened as at last we reached our destined goal she first met her destined husband when she was sixteen Ana Set settled fixed established (see SET v) allotted assigned apportioned (see ALLOT) prescription *Receipt recipe presence *Bearing deportment demeanor mien manner carriage port front Ana Personality individuality (see DISPOSITION) aspect *appearance, look present, v 1 *Give bestow confer donate afford Ana *Grant award accord 2 *Offer tender proffer prefer Ana Exhibit display parade *show advance *adduce allege cite present, n *Gift gratuity, favor boon largess, fairing Ana Contribution, *donation benefaction grant subvention (see APPROPRIATION) presentiment. Misgiving foreboding *apprehension Ana *Fear, dread alarm terror foretaste anticipation, *prospect disquieting or disquietude discomposing or discomposure disturbance perturbation (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE) preserve, v *Save conserve Ana *Rescue deliver redeem ransom protect guard safeguard (see DEFEND) preserves See under SAVE * press, n Throng crush *crowd mob rout horde Ana *Multitude army host legion pressure *Stress strain tension a strain thrust torsion prestige *Influence authority weight credit Ana Ascendancy *supremacy *power sway dominion reputation repute honor glory *fame presume *Presuppose postulate premise posit assume Ana Surmise *conjecture deduce, *infer judge gather conclude presumption Presupposition assumption, postulate premise position See under PRESUPPOSE Ana View *opinion conviction, belief conjecture surmise (see under CONJECTURE v) presuppose Presuppose presume, assume, postulate premise posit agree in meaning to take something for granted or as true or existent especially as a basis for action or reasoning Their corresponding nouns presupposition, presumption assumption, postulate premise (or premiss), position when they denote that which is taken f... g...

... hypothesis, in either case casting doubt on that which is taken for granted as, a lecturer who talks above the heads of his listeners presupposes too extensive a knowledge on their part a school of theology that presupposes the total depravity of human nature At the other extreme the terms may be used in reference to something that is taken for granted because it is the logically necessary antecedent of a thing that is known to be true or the truth of which is not presently in question as, an effect presupposes a cause so deliberate a murder presupposes a motive belief in the supernatural presupposes a belief in natural law (Inge) Presume and presumption are often loosely used to imply conjecture (as, I presume [that is, venture to believe] they are now in London) in precise English they always carry the implication that whatever is taken for granted is entitled to belief until it is disproved Therefore one presumes only that for which there is justification in experience or which has been shown to be sound in practice or in theory or ...

... tion in its favor It cannot be presumed that any clause ...

... is ground for a difference of opinion as, some debaters ... weaken their case by assuming too much for the sake of argument let us assume that the accident occurred as is contended "I know of nothing more false in science or more actively poisonous in politics than the assumption that we belong as a race to the Teutonic family" (Quiller-Couch) "I assume that one purpose of the purchase was to suppress competition" (Justice Holmes) Postulate either as a verb or as a noun, differs from assume or assumption only in being far more restricted in its application and more exact in its implications One can assume or make an assumption at any point in a course of reasoning but one postulates something or lays down a proposition as a postulate only as the groundwork for a single argument or for a chain of reasoning or for a system of thought Postulate therefore has reference to one of the underlying assumptions, which are accepted as true but acknowledged as indemonstrable and without which thought or action (also artistic representation) is impossible because of the limitations of human knowledge or of human reason (or of art) thus, the ordinary man always postulates the reality of time and of space the dramatist postulates certain conventions which it is necessary for the audience to accept "belief in the uniformity of nature which is said to be a postulate of science (B Russell), the prevailing theological system is one which postulates the reality of guidance by a personal God (A Huxley) the kind of curvature postulated by the generalized theory of relativity" (Jeans) Premise is often used as though it were ... in meaning with postulate Premise the noun, in logic denotes a proposition or one of the two propositions in a syllogism from which an inference is drawn. In looser use it commonly refers to any proposition which is the starting point in an argument But a premise is not even in this loose use a proposition that is frankly an assumption as a postulate often is It may have been previously demonstrated or it may be admitted as true or axiomatic but it is always advanced as true and not as assumed as, his listeners could not assent to his conclusion because they doubted the truth of his premises Premise the verb, which means to lay down as a premise or as premises usually refers to the broader rather than to the technical meaning of the noun as, he premised his argument on a proposition which but a few of his readers accept as true The verb sometimes ...

... postulate chiefly in implying affirmation as a truth they rule out the implication of an assumption which is often ...

grounds for positing the existence of God outside the ... ves (Inge)
... *conjecture guess *infer deduce

... Presumption, assumption postulate premise position See under PRESUPPOSE.
... rmise conjecture guess (see under CONJECTURE ... rence deduction judgment (see under INFER) ... onviction *opinion view
... *Assume affect simulate feign, counterfeit sham

Ana *Disguise dissemble cloak, mask *deceive delude mislead beguile pretense or pretence 1 Pretension, *claim title

Ana Plea pretext excuse *apology apologia *right birthright, privilege

2 Pretense (or pretence), pretension, make believe make belief are here compared only as terms that are sometimes confused especially when they involve the idea of offering something false or deceptive as real or true They are seldom synonymous terms because they rarely agree in denotation Pretense may denote false show in general or the evidence of it as she is utterly devoid of pretense there is too much pretense in his piety the pretense that eludes the detection of others and that which deceives the pretender himself (Brownell) The term may also apply to an act that is performed an appearance that is assumed or a statement that is made in the hope that it will convince others of the truth or reality of something that is false or unreal as declining to dance before her on a pretense of sickness when in fact he was in perfect health (Cowper) No one was deceived by his pretense of professional ... (E Wharton); rushing away from the discussi... transparent pretence of quieting the dog (Conr... mother's affectionate pretense of his being the ... the family (M Austin) Pretension as here co... (see also CLAIM, AMBITION) is now rarely if ever ... place of pretense as a concrete act appearance o[r] statement but it is often used in the sense of false show or the evidence of it with however somewhat differing implications Where pretense in this general sense often implies hypocrisy or intentional deceit, pretension suggests rather an unwarranted assumption that one possesses certain desirable qualities or powers and therefore more often implies overweening conceit or self deception as Oh! how sick I am of theories and systems and the pretensions of men! Give me nothing but common place unpretending people! (Meredith) His disdain of affectation and prudery was magnificent He hated all pretension save his own pretension (Mencken) Make believe or the rarer make belief applies usually to pretense or pretenses that arise not so much out of a desire to give others a false impression as out of a strong or vivid imagination such as that of children or poets who like to take that which their fancies create as real or as true as in children the love of make believe usually expresses itself in games in adults in the reading of fiction or in attendance at the theater Both terms are occasionally used to denote the acceptance against one's better judgment of that which is manifestly unreal or untrue because of some power in the thing itself or in its accompaniments The attitude of our own public towards popular superstitions half belief and half make-belief is too common among church goers (Inge)

Ana Humbug, fake sham fraud deceit deception, *imposture affectation *pose air mannerism pretension 1 *Claim title pretense

Ana *Right privilege prerogative assertion affirmation declaration protestation (see corresponding verbs at ASSERT)

2 *Pretense make believe make-belief

Ana *Hypocrisy sanctimony cant dissimulation duplicity guile *deceit

3 *Ambition aspiration

Ana Hoping or hope expectation (see corresponding verbs at EXPECT) dream vision *fancy pretentious 1 *Showy ostentatious pompous

Ana *Gaudy garish flashy *ornate flamboyant florid baroque rococo

Ant Unpretentious

2 *Ambitious utopian

Ana Aiming aspiring panting (see AIM v) conspicuous striking arresting (see NOTICEABLE) preternatural *Supernatural supranatural miraculous superhuman.

Ana Unnatural anomalous (see IRREGULAR) *abnormal atypic outstanding remarkable salient (see NOTICEABLE) *exceptional pretext Excuse plea alibi *apology apologia

Ana Ruse *trick, maneuver stratagem subterfuge *deception justification vindication defending or defense (see corresponding verbs at MAINTAIN) pretty Bonny comely fair *beautiful lovely handsome good looking beauteous pulchritudinous

Ana Charming attractive alluring, taking (see under ATTRACT) dainty delicate exquisite (see CHOICE adj) prevail. In form prevail on or upon. *Ind... persuade Ana *Move actuate d... impress, swa...

... place ... s especially to that which generally or commonly ... time or in the place indicated (often the present where no statement is made) as the prevailing prices for shares of the ten largest industries the prevailing opinion among booksellers the prevailing tendency to obliterate the dividing lines between all the arts (Lowes), the prevailing fatalism of Islam (A Huxley) Prevalent applies especially to that which is general or very common over a given area or at a given time the term however does not suggest as prevailing usually suggests a predominance as in frequency in favor or the like rather it connotes a frequency without necessarily implying that it is the most frequent thus the prevailing (that is the most frequently evident or the usual) wind in a section is from the southeast but southwest winds may nevertheless be prevalent there colds and grippe are prevalent in northern states during the winter a widely prevalent pronunciation of a word may not necessarily be the prevailing pronunciation Rife adds to prevalent an implication such as the rapid spread of the thing which is so qualified or of a great increase in the number of its instances or merely of commonness or abundance as Rumour is already rife here as to Dr Trefoil's successor (Trollope) spiritual maladies, so rife in our day (Carlyle) a heresy which is very rife just now (Inge) Legends were rife of its [Spain's] extraordinary wealth (Buchan) Current (etymologically running or flowing) applies especially to things such as language philosophy etc that are constantly in process of change or development or to things such as coins diseases etc that circulate constantly from one person or thing to another hence current so often describes that which is widespread in its use adoption or acceptance at the time in question that it has come to imply the present if no other time is indicated, thus current English is the English language of the present time a current notion is one that is widely accepted at the moment banknotes postage stamps, coins etc of the current series are those still being printed or minted for circulation or sale so current fashions current tendencies a current practice However when the term applies to periodicals or other things that come out in a series in installments or the like current describes the one appearing during the present week month or the like or the latest to appear as, the current issue of a well known magazine the current installment of a new novel (that is, of a novel appearing serially in a periodical). But current is often used in the place of the other words of this group when the time or place is definitely indicated and merely the passing from one person to another is stressed: as, "Shakespeare used the current language of his day" (J. R. Lowell); "As current in her time, the Evangelical creed was simple" (H. Ellis); "She had been given, at fourteen, the current version of her origin" (E. Wharton).

Ana *Dominant, predominant, preponderant: *common, ordinary, familiar: general, *universal.

prevalent. *Prevailing, rife, current.

Ana *Common, ordinary, familiar: pervading, impregnating, saturating (see PERMEATE): *usual, wonted, accustomed, customary.

prevaricate. *Lie, equivocate, palter, fib.

Ana Evade, elude, *escape: *misrepresent: belie.

prevent. 1 Prevent, anticipate, forestall are comparable when they carry the meaning to be or get ahead of or to deal with beforehand, with reference especially to a thing's due time, its actual occurrence, the action of another, or the like. Prevent, except in deliberately archaic use, no longer carries its etymological meaning of to go or get before. This, however, was one of its common senses until about a century ago and is found in the work of the best writers before the Victorian era. "Oh! run; prevent them [the wise men from the East] with thy humble ode, And lay it lowly at his blessed feet; Have thou the honour first thy Lord to greet" (Milton). In current use, prevent additionally implies frustration, as of an intention or plan, or an averting, as of a threatened evil, or a rendering impossible, as by setting up an obstacle or obstacles. Sometimes the emphasis upon hindrance (see PREVENT 2) is so strong that the etymological implication is nearly lost, but in the sense here considered (which affects strongly the meaning of the adjective preventive) advance provision or preparation against something possible or probable is clearly implied, as to take measures to prevent an epidemic (cf. preventive measures, preventive medicine). "Who stands safest? tell me, is it he? ... whose preventing care In peace provides fit arms against a war" (Pope). Anticipate (see also FORESEE) in modern use takes the place of prevent when merely getting ahead of another (especially as a precursor or forerunner) is implied. "Most of the great European thinkers of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries were in some measure inspired, influenced or anticipated by Shaftesbury" (H. Ellis). "The pithy and succinct comparisons that our medieval ancestors, anticipating the modern Imagists, delighted in" (Lowes). Like prevent, anticipate sometimes suggests balking another in carrying out an intention or plan, but unlike the former word, it does not imply putting obstacles in the way of its performance or execution, but implies rather its prior performance or execution. "He would probably have died by the hand of the executioner, if the executioner had not been anticipated by the populace" (Macaulay). Distinctively, the word implies dealing with, using, treating, or the like, in advance of a thing's due time or proper order, but it often involves another implication which can be gathered only from the context: as, to anticipate a payment on a loan (to make a payment lessening its force or effectiveness. It thereby implies beforehand action that serves to render a thing (especially something inevitable) powerless to harm, or merely harmless: thus, Thackeray's preface to "Pendennis" was an attempt to forestall criticism of his naturalism. "to forestall public opinion and guide its judgement" (L. P. Smith). "'Posterity will still be explaining me long after I am dead. Why, then, should I forestall their labours?'" (Macaulay).

Ana *Frustrate, thwart, foil, baffle, balk: *arrest, check, interrupt: avoid, shun, eschew, evade, *escape.

2 Prevent, preclude, obviate, avert, ward off come into comparison when they mean to hinder or stop something that may occur or, in the case of prevent and preclude, to hinder or stop someone from doing something. Prevent usually implies the existence of something which is directed in such a manner as to permit the exit of fluid from the heart, while they prevent its entrance" (T. H. Huxley). Preclude differs from prevent in stressing the existence of some situation or condition or the taking of anticipatory measures that effectually shuts out every possibility of a thing's occurring or of a person's doing something: as, he makes everything so clear that all misunderstanding is precluded; death precluded him from completing his investigation. "In wishing to put an end to pernicious experiments, I do not mean to preclude the fullest inquiry" (Burke). Obviate usually implies the use of intelligence or forethought; preclude also often implies these but sometimes it suggests the operation of chance. The chief distinction between these words when anticipatory measures are implied is that obviate usually connotes an attempt to forestall disagreeable eventualities by clearing away obstacles or by disposing of difficulties: as, the use of bills of exchange obviates the risk in transporting money from one country to another; prompt payment will obviate the necessity of our taking legal action against you. "No care, no art, no organization of society, could obviate the inherent incompatibility of individual perfection with the course of nature" (G. L. Dickinson). Avert and ward off differ from the other words of this group in always implying prevention of an approaching or oncoming evil. They suggest therefore immediate and effective measures in the face of what threatens. Avert, however, suggests the use of active measures to force back the evil before it is actually encountered: as, to avert a catastrophe by prompt action. "... the satisfaction of averting war" (J. R. Green); "it was very doubtful whether the consequences could be averted by sealing my lips" (Shaw). Ward off, on the other hand, implies a close encounter and the use of defensive measures (cf. to ward off an opponent's blow or thrust) in order to avoid the evil or to diminish its disastrous effects: as, it is now too late to ward off a chill; to ward off an infestation of ants. "If we can ward off actual war till ... s over" (Jefferson).

... obstruct, block, bar, dam, de... UDE): prohibit, *forbid, interdict.

... prior, *preceding, antecedent, pre-

... place of treatment of each group.

Ant Subsequent consequent prey, n *Victim quarry, ravin.

Ana *Spoil or spoils, booty prize.

price, n Price, charge, cost, expense, as here compared agree in meaning that which is given or asked in payment for a thing or for services or the like Price and charge in their ordinary nontechnical use commonly designate what is asked or demanded—in the case of price especially for goods or commodities in the case of charge especially for services, as what is the price of this book? the price of meat has risen greatly, the market price of wheat the charge for haulage (or porterage) goods delivered free of charge within a radius of one hundred miles there is a small charge for registering a deed In economics however price does not necessarily refer to a fixed sum of money asked by a seller but to the quantity or number of units of one thing exchanged in barter or sale for another thing thus the normal or natural price of a thing in economics, is theoretically the amount (usually of money) which is proportionate to the amount (also usually of money) that has been spent in its production not the amount which has been determined by external conditions or the will of the seller Labour was the first price the original purchase-money that was paid for all things" (Adam Smith) Charge especially in accounting also applies to that which is imposed on one as a financial burden and with the payment of which one is charged thus the fixed charges of a business include rentals, taxes, interest Liens and the like Cost and expense in their ordinary nontechnical use commonly apply to what is given or surrendered for something—cost often implying somewhat specifically the payment of the price asked and expense often designating the aggregate amount or in the plural the aggregate of the amounts disbursed for something as they found the cost of the piano made too severe a drain on their resources the cost of provisions traveling expenses the heavy expense of a long illness In looser use cost sometimes replaces price with however a difference in connotation thus, What is the price of this article? means how much do you ask for it? What is the cost of this article? means how much do you want from me in payment for it? In highly precise use cost applies to whatever must be given or sacrificed to obtain something to produce something or to attain some end whether it be money labor lives or the like or whether it is actually given or sacrificed as the price of this article is below the cost of its manufacture victory will be won only at great cost of life he felt that the cost in effort was greater than he could afford Expense also may denote expenditure especially but not only of money as "Fresh news is got only by enterprise and expense" (Justice Holmes) A convenient way of producing the maximum amount of copy with the minimum expense of intellect" (Babbitt) priceless Invaluable precious *costly expensive dear valuable

Ana Cherished treasured prized valued (see APPRECIATE) prick, v Punch, puncture *perforate bore drill

Ana *Enter pierce, probe penetrate *cut slit slash pride n Pride vanity vainglory are here compared as meaning the quality or the feeling of a person who is keenly aware of his excellence or superiority in any way The same distinctions in implications and connotations are found in their corresponding adjectives proud, vain vainglorious Pride and proud may imply either justified or unjustified self-esteem in so far as that which one regards as a merit or a superiority is real or is imagined and as the feeling which governs one manifests itself either in proper self-respect and in abhorrence of that which is beneath one's standards of what is right and good or in inordinate and arrogant conceit In one interpretation, pride is a sin or vice and the antithesis of humility (as "Those that walk in pride he is able to abase"—Daniel iv 37, Proud she may be in the sense of respecting herself; but pride in the sense of contemning others less gifted than herself deserves the two lowest circles of a vulgar woman's Inferno"—Holmes), in the other interpretation pride is either a virtue or a highly pardonable even commendable feeling or quality that is the antithesis of shame and that spurs one to equal or better one's best or gives one rightful gratification (as to take pride in one's work, proud of one's ancestry or of one's skill in fencing "the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice [five sons killed in Civil War] upon the altar of freedom"—Lincoln) Vanity and vain imply an excessive desire to win the notice, approval or praise of others, both connote an interest centered on oneself and often suggest a concentration on things of little or no importance relatively, as "Old Auchinleck had not the gay tail spreading peacock vanity of his son [James Boswell]" (Carlyle), "The heart of the vain man is lighter than the heart of the proud" (F Marion Crawford), poor Robert looked only at himself he had nothing but a small and worthless mortification which was only wounded vanity (Deland), "The idea flattered his vanity which had had little to feed on of late" (Arch Marshall) Vainglory and vainglorious imply excessive pride which manifests itself in boastfulness and arrogant display of one's power skill influence, or the like as vainglorious conquerors, vain glorious boastings (Irving), "It is not vain glory for a man and his [looking] glass to confer in his own chamber" (Shak) "Vainglory's a worm which the very best action Will taint and its soundness eat through" (C & M Lamb)

Ana Arrogance haughtiness superciliousness disdainfulness or disdain insolence (see corresponding adjectives at PROUD) complacency smugness, priggishness (see corresponding adjectives at COMPLACENT) self-esteem, self love egotism egoism *conceit pride, v Pride, plume, pique, preen come into comparison as reflexive verbs meaning to congratulate oneself because of something one is or has or has done or achieved Pride usually implies a taking credit to oneself on or upon something that redounds to one's honor or gives just cause for pride in oneself, as to pride oneself on one's ancestry one's ability one's success or one's taste "Mark prided himself upon maintaining outwardly a demeanour that showed not the least trace of over strung nerves" (C Mackenzie) Plume adds to pride the implication of a display of vanity or of a more obvious exhibition of one's gratification the term usually but not invariably suggests less justification than does pride as "the Viceroy plumed himself on the way in which he had instilled notions of reticence into his staff" (Kipling) "Cicero plumed himself on flirting with disreputable actresses" (Buchan) Pique as here compared (see also PROVOKE 1) differs from plume chiefly in carrying a hint of stirred up pride or satisfaction usually the cause of the pride is a special accomplishment as, "Every Italian or Frenchman of any rank piques himself on speaking his own tongue correctly" (Walpole) "Pride observed Mary who piqued herself upon the solidity of her reflections, is a very common failing, I believe" (Austen) Preen (see also PREEN 1) is sometimes, but infrequently used in place of plume with often a slight suggestion of bird moving about in an aërial dance among the flowers—a living prismatic gem that changes its colour with every change of position" (Hudson). Iridescent (etymologically from iris, a rainbow) implies a rainbowlike play of shifting colors such as is exhibited by a soap bubble, by mother-of-pearl, by the plumage of some birds, and the like. "The whole texture of his [Chaucer's] mind, though its substance seem plain and grave, shows itself at every turn iridescent with poetic feeling like shot silk" (J. R. Lowell); "something iridescent like the shining of wet sand" (A. Repplier). Opalescent and the somewhat rarer opaline imply both the milky quality and the iridescence of an opal; as, "'Tis an hardly ever pure sunshine, but a certain opalescent twilight which has as much of human emotion as of imitative truth in it" (Ruskin); "The opaline light which comes through these lateral bays [of Auxerre Cathedral] and makes a sort of veil under the lofty vaulting" (Amiens-le Duc, transl. by H. Adams).

Ant Humility shame

prisoner. Prisoner, captive, convict agree in denoting one who is deprived of his liberty and is held in custody. Prisoner is the general term applicable to anyone covered by this definition, but it is frequently used in a more specific sense and applied to one who is confined to a prison or jail; as, prisoners of war; to take one prisoner; the prisoners in the penitentiary. Captive implies seizure by force, as in war, conquest, brigandage, and the like; it also often implies bondage or slavery rather than imprisonment, and sometimes suggests capture for ransom. "He hath brought many captives home to Rome, Whose ransoms did the general coffers fill" (Shak.). Convict, although it literally means a person proved guilty of a crime by a competent tribunal, is more often applied to an imprisoned person serving a long sentence for a crime or felony and wearing the uniform characteristic of his class; as, an escaped convict; a chain gang of convicts.

pristine Primeval, primordial, primitive, primal, *primary, prime.
Ana Original, fresh, *new.

privation 1 *Lack, absence, defect.
Ana Negation, nullification, annulling, abrogation (see corresponding verbs at NULLIFY).
2 *Poverty, want, destitution, indigence, penury.
Ana Depletion, draining, exhaustion, impoverishment (see corresponding verbs at DEPLETE): *need, necessity, exigency, pinch, strait (see JUNCTURE).

privilege *Right, prerogative, birthright, perquisite, appanage.
Ana Concession, *allowance: favor, boon (see GIFT): *claim, title.

privy Underhand, underhanded, surreptitious, backstairs, clandestine, furtive, *secret, covert, stealthy.

prize v Value, treasure, cherish, *appreciate.
Ana Esteem, respect, admire, regard (see under REGARD n): *estimate, evaluate, assess, assay, rate.

prize n *Spoil, booty, plunder, pillage, loot, swag.

prize n *Premium, award, reward, meed, guerdon, bounty, bonus.
Ana Recompensing or recompense, requital, compensation (see corresponding verbs at PAY): winning or winnings, earning or earnings (see corresponding verbs at GET).
Ant Forfeit.

probable. Probable, possible, likely are here compared only in the sense of uncertain yet such as may be or may become true, real, or actual. Th[illegible] logically [illegible] suppo[illegible]

from evidence at hand is the one which the weight of evidence supports even though it does not prove; probable [illegible] the probable thief is the one at whom so much of the evidence points as to give grounds for a presumption that he is guilty; the probable life of a person, in the language of actuaries, is the period during which one half the persons of a given age at a given time will remain alive according to mortality tables; so, the probable cause of a fire; the probable author of an anonymous book; the probable expenses of a trip; the probable length of a rumor. That is possible which is within the powers of performance, attainment, conception, or the like of an agent or agency, especially a human agent (as, it is now possible to cross the Atlantic in an airplane; knowledge possible only to God; that we can relieve him is certain, that we can cure him is possible), or which is within the warrant limits of a person's ability or a thing's capacity as determined by nature, necessity, circumstances, or the like (as, it is not possible to carry more than a thousand gallons of gasoline in this airplane; communication with Mars may never be possible; "the number of possible amusements [for an infant] is small until the child has learned to grasp objects that it sees"—B. Russell), or which, though not probable, may happen by chance or is dependent on a contingency or contingencies (as, his election is possible but not probable; it is possible that she will come this way; "I think that 'so near as to obstruct' means so near as actually to obstruct—and not merely near enough to threaten a possible obstruction"—Justice Holmes). That is likely (see also APT 2) which to all appearances is that which is alleged, suggested, required, or the like; in contrast with probable, likely does not as often or as invariably suggest grounds sufficient to warrant a presumption of truth, but in contrast with possible, it usually implies many more chances in favor of its being true; thus, the probable murderer is the suspect whose guilt is nearly but not completely established by the evidence; a possible murderer is merely one against whom suspicion is directed for some reason (often inadequate reason); or other; the likely murderer is the one among the possible murderers who, especially from a more or less superficial point of view, has had the strongest motive and the best opportunity to commit the murder, or toward whom the circumstantial evidence most distinctly points as the murderer; so, no likely heir to the bachelor millionaire's estate has been mentioned; the likely outcome of the war changes from month to month; this hut in the deep woods would be a likely rendezvous for gangsters. Likely is also often used in the sense of promising because of appearances, ability to win favor, and the like; as, a likely young man; a likely candidate.
Ana Credible, believable, colorable, *plausible: *reasonable, rational.
Ant Certain: improbable.

probationer *Novice, novitiate, apprentice, postulant, neophyte.

probe v Pierce, penetrate, *enter.
Ana Examine, inspect, *scrutinize: *prove, try, test.

probe n Investigation, *inquiry, inquisition, inquest, research.

probity *Honesty, honor, integrity.
Ana Uprightness, justness, conscientiousness, scrupulousness (see corresponding adjectives at UPRIGHT): *truth, veracity, [illegible] problematical, problematic. *Doubtful, dubious, questionable proceed. Issue emanate, stem flow, derive, *spring, arise rise originate.

at ACT).

process, n Process, procedure, proceeding come into comparison as denoting the the process of digestion a comp "perfect knowledge is no me (Inge) The idiomatic phrase course of being made produ evolved attained or the like an experi vestigatio parliamen better than to which they have in view often the term means little more than an instance sometimes a course of con way (L. P Smith)

Ana Progress, advance (see under ADVANCE v) conducting or conduct management controlling or control direction (see corresponding verbs at CONDUCT) performance execution accomplishment fulfillment (see corresponding verbs at PERFORM) prochronism. *Anachronism metachronism proclaim. *Declare announce promulgate broadcast.

Ana. *Reveal, disclose discover divulge utter vent, ventilate (see EXPRESS v) advertise proclamation. Declaration, announcement, publication, advertisement, promulgation, broadcasting. See suspend stay, postpone: protract prolong (see EXTEND).

Ant. Hasten, hurry

procreate. *Generate engender, beget, get sire breed propagate, reproduce proctor. *Lawyer, counselor, barrister, counsel, advocate, attorney, solicitor, procurator procurator. *Lawyer, counselor barrister, counsel, advocate, attorney, solicitor, proctor

*Get, obtain secure acquire gain win earn. egotiate arrange concert *reach compass.

*make, form, shape nvent

2 Product, production, produce come into comparison only when the

Ana analogous words. Ant antonyms sense to denote all things (sometimes all things of a specified or implied kind) manufactured or grown to satisfy human wants as to limit production an increase of production in factories with defense contracts is extremely necessary, the problems of production and of distribution. Produce is ordinarily a collective noun applied to agricultural as distinguished from industrial products (as the meagre produce of the land —Cowper the produce exchange [that is, the exchange in which contracts are made involving large-scale sales or purchases of wheat corn and other grains and other agricultural products]) sometimes, however it is applied especially to vegetables and fruits (as, the farmer sells his produce at the public market a new store for the sale of fresh produce) production 1 *Work product opus, artifact Ana Execution fulfillment performance (see corresponding verbs at PERFORM) *effort, exertion.

2 *Product produce

proem. *Introduction prologue induction prelude, overture preface foreword prolegomenon exordium preamble prolusion protasis avant propos.

profanation Profanation desecration sacrilege blasphemy are here compared as meaning a violation or a misuse of something regarded as sacred Profanation, though strongly derogatory does not impute such baseness to the act or conduct as do the other words It usually implies an attitude of irreverence or contempt in the offender that leads him to show his feelings in acts or in words that outrage those who hold the place or the thing sacred. The term often specifically suggests bold vulgar intrusion or irreverent vandalism as the profanation of a sanctuary by ignorant tourists a wall was built round the tomb to protect it from profanation (Froude) Desecration in strict use carries a strong implication of defilement or pollution as of churches, temples sacred vessels etc and a consequent loss of a sacred or hallowed character or of ceremonial cleanliness (as, the desecration of a cathedral by its use as a barracks) by its ... ing troops) sometimes, however mere deprivation of the sacred character is implied (as Various profanations of the sabbath threaten a gradual desecration of that holy day —B Porteus) Sacrilege etymologically implies the stealing of sacred objects, such as the vessels used in the solemn Eucharistic service This sense still obtains, especially in British use as, The very books that are used in the worship of God are sacred The man who steals them is guilty of sacrilege (Manning) The more common sense in ecclesiastical use

[illegible]

be a sacrilege (Cather) In more general use sacrilege is [illegible]

... ...

profane, adj 1 Profane, secular, lay temporal as here compared agree in meaning not dedicated or set apart for religious ends or uses Profane (etymologically outside the temple) in its strictest sense implies an opposition to sacred (see HOLY) in this sense it is purely descriptive and not derogatory thus, profane history as distinguished from sacred history is history dealing with nations or peoples rather than with Biblical events or characters profane literature as distinguished from sacred literature, comprises all literature except the Scriptures other sacred writings and sometimes writings having a definite religious end or use profane love applies to human love as between man and woman as in ships, like the holy men gathered together in monasteries develop traits of profound resemblance (Conrad) Secular (etymologically of the age or time, therefore of the world) usually implies a relation to the world as distinguished from the church or religion, or the religious life, it may be opposed to sacred and come close to profane (as, secular music the secular drama) it may be opposed to regular in the sense of governed by a monas-

[illegible]

[illegible]

There are peoples in the world who have no secular dances, only religious dances —H Ellis) Lay is commonly applied to persons (sometimes to their activities, interests, duties, etc.) that do not belong to the clergy it therefore usually implies an opposition to clerical or ecclesiastical as, the laymen and laywomen of the parish a lay preacher, lay sermon lay delegates to a diocesan ... ...ganized to a

[illegible]

in a convent Lay is also used loosely in the sense of nonprofessional or of not having a professional source or character thus, a lay opinion on a question of law is merely an opinion delivered by one who is neither a lawyer nor a judge Temporal (as here considered see also TEMPORARY 1) implies an opposition to spiritual (in the sense of not concerned with material or mundane but with immaterial and eternal ends) and is applied chiefly ... ...al au

[illegible]

... crilegious.
... ty ungodly godless. *ir...
...us, villainous, *vicious.
...ung swearing
...led ction malison execra...
...ee corresponding verbs at ...EXECRATE)

...ion Art handicraft, craft *trade *Offer tender present prefer ...ropose, design, *intend confer bestow, present *give Con Reject spurn refuse *decline

proficient Proficient, adept, skilled skillful, expert agree in meaning having the knowledge and experience necessary to success in a given line especially of work or endeavor All these terms are applied primarily to persons when applied to things the implication is that the quality of the person has been attributed to the thing One is proficient who as a result of training and practice, has acquired competency beyond that of the average Proficient in the art of self-defence (Shaw) Jane began to type It bored her but she was fairly proficient at it (R. Macaulay) One is adept who has proficiency aptitude and often cleverness as adept at legerdemain The Oriental is adept in extracting himself plausibly from the most compromising situations (V Heiser) One is skilled who has mastered the details of a trade or handicraft or the technique of an art or profession Skilled may imply aptitude or proficiency in modern industrial use however it simply connotes that one has met a standard set up by employers for a special type of work or job as, a skilled laborer the skilled trades By long practice he was skilled in the arts of teaching (Gibbon) One is skillful who unites adeptness and dexterity in execution or performance as a skillful operator of an automobile a skillful teacher a skillful economy of means (Pater) One is expert who has attained extraordinary proficiency or is marvelously adept as an expert accountant an expert bridge player expert knowledge of engines Neither of them was expert in the roping of cattle (M Austin) Ana Efficient effectual *effective capable *able competent qualified finished accomplished *consummate practiced drilled exercised (see under PRACTICE, v) Con *Awkward clumsy maladroit inept gauche *ignorant, untaught profile *Outline contour silhouette skyline profit n *Use service advantage account avail Ana Reward award meed guerdon (see PREMIUM) gaining or gain winning earning (see corresponding verbs at GET) profit, v *Benefit avail boot bestead Ana *Get gain win earn *advance progress.

profitable *Beneficial advantageous Ana *Favorable auspicious propitious *expedient advisable politic Con Detrimental deleterious (see PERNICIOUS) harming or harmful, injurious hurting or hurtful (see corresponding verbs at INJURE) profligate Dissolute reprobate *abandoned Ana Debauched corrupted depraved debased perverted (see under DEBASE) degenerate corrupt *vicious *loose relaxed slack lax.

profound *Deep abysmal Ana Penetrating probing piercing (see ENTER) scrutinizing inspecting examining (see SCRUTINIZE) Ant Shallow

profuse Profuse, lavish prodigal luxuriant lush, exuberant come into comparison because they carry as their basic meaning giving out or given out in great abundance That is profuse which seems to pour or be poured forth in abundance without restraint or in a stream as profuse apologies profuse sweating profuse in expenditure, Pourest thy full heart In profuse strains of unpremeditated art (Shelley) A land where life was great and beauty lay profuse (Browning) That is lavish (etymologically deluging) which is so exceedingly profuse as to suggest positively munificence or extravagance or negatively the absence of all stint or measure as, lavish gifts a lavish feast lavish expenditures 'the lavish attentions of his mother (Meredith) Our lavish use of a bountiful supply of crude oil (A C Morrison) it is a noble lavish and distinguished work (Lucas) That is prodigal which gives or is given so lavishly and so recklessly as to suggest waste or the ultimate exhaustion of resources as the prodigal son of a wealthy father, Chary of praise and prodigal of counsel (Stevenson) he had been prodigal of the excellencies of his nature and like Timon he became bankrupt and fell upon bitterness (Meredith) That is luxuriant which produces or is produced in great and rich abundance the term usually connotes not only profusion but gorgeousness or splendor in that which is produced, as the luxuriant growth of nasturtiums her luxuriant hair the luxuriant imagination of Milton religion might well flourish quite as luxuriantly as it did in former times (J W Krutch) That is lush which is not only luxuriant but which has reached the peak of its perfection the term distinctively connotes richness fullness of development or luxuriousness as How lush and lusty the grass looks! how green! (Shak) lush tropical forests lush dinners here when anybody came were the climactic experiences of Ouvrard's soul (Hervey Allen). The air was knife-keen and as fresh as lettuce a far cry from the lush full blown landscape of the south through which they had set out that morning (Jan Struther) That is exuberant (etymologically prolific or fruitful) which produces or is produced so abundantly or luxuriantly as to suggest exceedingly great vigor vitality or creative power as an exuberant fancy the exuberant genius of Shakespeare exuberant foliage to restrain my too exuberant gesture (M Austin) In current use exuberant applies chiefly to persons their words emotions qualities, or the like that display a vigor or vitality that is almost rampant as, exuberant energy the child's exuberant gaiety Ana Copious abundant (see PLENTIFUL) *excessive immoderate extravagant *liberal bountiful munificent generous Ant Spare scanty scant — Con *Meager skimpy scrimpy exiguous sparse progenitor *Ancestor forefather forebear Ant Progeny

prognostic *Foretoken presage omen augury portent Ana Indication betokening bespeaking (see corresponding verbs at INDICATE) symptom *sign mark token prognosticate *Foretell predict forecast prophesy augur presage portend forebode Ana *Indicate betoken bespeak *foresee foreknow apprehend divine anticipate program or programme Program (or programme), schedule timetable agenda agree in denoting a formulated plan listing things to be done or to take place especially in their time order Program is the term of widest meaning It may refer to a mental plan or to one that is written or printed it may be applied not only to a plan for a meeting an entertainment a service or the like but to one made by an individual in ordering his own day or his own future or to one made by a group that has certain ends in view and proposes their orderly achievement as what is your program for today? the program of a concert theater programs the Five-Year Plan was the name given the industrialization program of the Soviet Union Schedule stresses the importance of the time element and implies a plan of procedure which establishes not only the chronological order of events or steps but also their time limits as, the schedule for a college year a schedule of production in a factory, a schedule for the erection of a building. Schedule is sometimes used but timetable possibly more often for a tabulated list of regularly recurring events, such as arrivals and departures of trains, as, a timetable of trains, a schedule of classes. Agenda (a plural noun sometimes construed as a singular) is more informal than the others in its implications; it is applied chiefly to an order of business for a meeting.

progress, n. 1 Advance (see under ADVANCE v. 2) Ana Improvement, betterment (see corresponding verbs at IMPROVE): headway, impetus (see SPEED n.) 2 Progress, progression are not always clearly distinguished, although in current usage they are more or less sharply differentiated. Both denote movement forward. Progress (for fuller treatment see progress n. under ADVANCE, v. 2) usually applies to the movement considered as a whole, stressing the distance covered, the change or [illegible]

[illegible] itself or in its details, often implying a continuous series of steps, degrees, or stages toward an objective, but sometimes implying little more than a moving on more or less continuously as mode of progression (better than progress). "That slow progression of things, which naturally makes elegance and refinement the last effect of opulence and power" (Sir J. Reynolds). "Every generation ... adds its own discoveries in a progression to which there seems no limit" (Jeacock). "the progression of sound waves" (Karl K. Darrow) progress, v. *Advance Ana *Move, drive, impel: further, forward, promote: *advance, develop: *mature Ant Retrogress

progression 1 *Succession, series, sequence, set, suit, suite, chain, train, string 2 *Progress progressive *Liberal, advanced, radical, left.

Ant Reactionary

prohibit *Forbid, inhibit, enjoin, interdict, ban Ana *Prevent, preclude, obviate: debar, shut out, *exclude: *hinder, impede, obstruct: *restrain, curb, check Ant Permit — Con *Let, allow, suffer, tolerate: endure, *bear project, v. Scheme, design, plot, plan. See under PLAN n.

Ana Propose, purpose, *intend: *sketch, outline, diagram, delineate project, n. Scheme, design, plot, *plan Ana Sketch, delineation, draft, outline, diagram (see under SKETCH n.): *device, contrivance projection Projection, protrusion, protuberance, bulge come into comparison when they denote something [illegible] lar form, as, the protuberances of a potato; he has a protuberance on the cheek which has not as yet been diagnosed. "An obvious moral is indeed a heavy protuberance which injures the gracefulness of a poem" (Landor). A bulge is a protuberance or expansion of a surface caused usually by pressure from within or below, as, a bulge in a wall; there is a slight bulge in the sod before the first stalk of a plant appears.

projector. See under PLAN n.

prolegomenon. *Introduction, prologue, induction, prelude, overture, preface, foreword, proem, exordium, preamble, prolusion, protasis, avant-propos.

prolific Fruitful, *fertile, fecund Ana Teeming, swarming, abounding, superabounding (see TEEM): generating, breeding, propagating, reproducing or reproductive (see corresponding verbs at GENERATE) Ant [illegible]

[illegible] dundant, tautological (see corresponding nouns at VERBIAGE) prologue *Introduction, induction, prelude, overture, preface, foreword, prolegomenon, proem, exordium, preamble, prolusion, protasis, avant-propos.

prolong Protract, *extend, lengthen, elongate Ana *Continue, last, persist, endure: *increase, augment, enlarge: *expand, amplify Ant Curtail — Con *Shorten, abridge, abbreviate, retrench prolusion *Introduction, prologue, induction, prelude, overture, preface, foreword, prolegomenon, proem, exordium, preamble, protasis, avant-propos.

prominent Remarkable, conspicuous, salient, outstanding, signal, *noticeable, striking, arresting Ana *Chief, leading, main, principal: important, significant (see corresponding nouns at IMPORTANCE) promiscuous Heterogeneous, motley, *miscellaneous Ana Mixed, mingled, blended, merged (see MIX): *random, haphazard, desultory, casual: *indiscriminate, wholesale, sweeping: *licentious, lewd, wanton, lascivious.

Con Discriminating, perceiving, discerning (see corresponding nouns at DISCERNMENT): discreet, prudent, forethoughted (see under PRUDENCE) promise, v. Promise, engage, pledge, plight, covenant, contract come into comparison as meaning to give one's word that one will do, make, give, accept, or the like something stipulated. Promise, both as a transitive and as an intransitive verb, implies a giving assurance (usu [illegible]

provide accommodations for four delegates to the convention, an engaged couple, to engage a secretary "Mr Lorry readily engaged for that and the conference was ended (Dickens) Mrs Doria engaged to go down to the baronet (Meredith) she said she was engaged for the next three dances But engage may also imply the securing of a promise from a person and the use of argument persuasion flattery threats, or the like in the attaining of that end as "Yes, and I hope to engage you to be serious likewise" (Austen) Her highness when I left her engaged me to write to her" (Lady M W Montagu) Pledge, chiefly a transitive verb may imply either the giving voluntarily of a promise by some act or words that suggest the giving of a solemn assurance or the provision of a formal guarantee (as to pledge one s honor that one will see that a dying friend s wish is respected they pledged their loyalty to the r sovereign as they lifted their wine glasses By the second [clause] they pledge themselves to maintain and uphold the right of the master —Ch Just Taney) or the putting of an other or of others under a solemn promise to do to forbear, or the like (as to pledge a thousand men to temperance Austria swarmed with excited and angry men pledged to destroy the Church —Belloc, to pledge the children to allegiance to the flag) Plight a very old and now archaic word appears rarely except in certain idiomatic expressions where the entire phrase means to prom se solemnly as in to plight one s faith or one s honor or one s troth (then implying betrothal or as in the words used in some marriage ceremonies marriage) or one s word as he plighted his faith that the injust ce would be avenged Covenant more often an intransitive than a trans tive verb implies at least two parties to the promise each making a solemn agreement with the other or others A man cannot grant any thing to his wife or enter into covenant with her for to covenant with her would be only to covenant with himself" (Blackstone) The men of Ulster covenanted to defeat the present conspiracy to set up a Home Rule Parliament in Ireland (R. Macaulay) Contract (as here considered see also CONTRACT 3 INCUR) implies the entry into a solemn and now usually legally b nding agreement (see CONTRACT n) it is currently rare with a noun object (as, "We have contracted an inviolable amitie with the aforesaid queene —Hakluyt) but it is not uncommon with for or with an infinitive object as to contract for a large loan the company has contracted to supply the schools of the state with textbooks

Ana Agree consent *assent, accede assure, *ensure insure promote Forward further *advance

Ana *Help, aid ass st *speed quicken hasten hurry

Ant Impede. — Con *Hinder obstruct block bar promotion 1 *Advancement preferment elevation

Ana *Progress progression exaltation magnifying aggrandizement (see corresponding verbs at EXALT)

Ant Demotion — Con Degradation hum liation debasement (see corresponding verbs at ABASE)

2 *Publicity propaganda ballyhoo

Ana Advertisement promulgat on broadcasting (see correspond ng verbs at DECLARE) prompt, adj *Quick ready apt

Ana Alert, wide-awake vigilant *watchful expeditious speedy swift (see FAST) trained disciplined (see TEACH) *eager keen avid

Con. Remiss lax, slack (see NEGLIGENT) dilatory *slow promulgate Proclaim announce, *declare publ sh advert se broadcast

Ana *Reveal disclose divulge discover aff rm aver, avow avouch (see ASSERT) *communicate impart promulgation Proclamation declaration announcement publication advertisement broadcasting See under DECLARE prone 1 Subject exposed open *liable susceptible sensitive incident

Ana Inclined predisposed disposed (see INCLINE v) add cted habituated accustomed (see HABITUATE)

2 Prone, supine prostrate, recumbent, reclining couchant, dormant are here compared as meaning lying upon the ground floor or other surface Prone and supine as applied to men or animals are contrasted terms which are often incorrectly used Prone, in strict use impl es a posture where the front of the body l es upon or is turned toward the ground the term is applicable not only to serpents and the l ke that move along the ground but to the natural position of most quadrupeds as distin gu shed from that of man as dogs prone upon the ground a creature who not prone And brute as other creatures, but endued With sanctity of reason might erect His stature" (Milton) The term is also used in reference to men chiefly as a quasi adverb with verbs such as lie fall land etc implying a position with face and abdominal side downward as he fell prone upon the ground the doctor ordered him to be prone for the examination. Then falls betrayed by shifting shells and lands Prone in the jeering water and his hands Clutch for support where no support can be (Amy Lowell) Supine (see also INACTIVE) on the other hand implies a lying upon one s back usually a lying flat upon one s back as he always sleeps in a supine pos tion he fell backward and lay supine until help came jaded people lolling supine in carriages (Shaw) Prostrate in its earliest and still frequent sense implies the posture of one who throws himself forward full length in a prone posi tion as in adoration, submiss on humil ty surrender or fear as, to fall prostrate in worship at the most solemn moment of the liturgy, Prostrate in homage on her face (G Bottomley) In somewhat extended use prostrate is applicable to men or an mals in either a prone or a supine position (as Qu ckly stoop ng I once more drove my weapon to the hilt in his prostrate form —Hudson) and to trees and the like which l e full length upon the ground (as He clambered over half visible rocks fell over prostrate trees, sank into deep holes and struggled out —Cather) Recumbent appl es chiefly to a person or animal lying down in a pos tion suitable for repose or for sleep the term apart from the context carries no clear suggest on of the posture and may imply a flat pos tion or one with the head resting aga nst pillows or the l ke as a recumbent alabaster figure on the top of a tomb Lady Blandish was recumbent upon the bro in p nedroppings (Meredith) Rising proudly from her recumbent position (Lytton) Reclining suggests either a supine position or a lean ng back so as to rest against something often it is not clearly distinguishable from recumbent as she spent the afternoon reclining on her couch reclining gracefully in a chaise longue Couchant and dormant are used in heraldry to describe a lion or other animal on an escutcheon or coat of arms both imply a prone position of the body but couchant applies only to an animal with head raised and dormant to one with head lowered as in a sleeping position as a sable lion couchant on an azure ground

Ana Flat *level groveling wallowing, weltering (see WALLOW) crawl, *creep pronounce Pronounce articulate, enunciate are here compared in the sense of to form speech sounds Pro nounce involves the assignment of sounds to letters groups of letters (as syllables and words) or to the words in general) of a language and the distribution of syllabic stress in utterances of more than one syllable in languages that do not have level cou l not articulate (Macaulay) In a very special rol phonetic sense to articulate is to close or narrow the vocal in pronouncing the English variety of the sound t, the air passage is completely blocked by raising the tip of the tongue to touch the teeth ridge Many foreigners articulate the sound t with the tip of the tongue against the upper teeth This articulation produces a very unnatural effect when used in English

Ant Erect

(H Kipman) To enunciate is to be distinct or indistinct in one's speech as a result of careful or careless

Ant Distrool

propaganda *Publicity promotion ballyhoo

Ana Propagation engendering generating (see corresponding verbs at GENERATE) spread stretch (see EXPANSE) inculcation instillment implanting (see corresponding verbs at IMPLANT) propagate *Generate engender breed beget procreate sire reproduce

Ana *Increase multiply augment *continue persist *extend lengthen prolong propel *Push shove thrust

Ana *Move drive impel *force compel constrain oblige propensity proper 1 Meet appropriate fitting apt happy felicitous *fit suitable

Ana Congruous congenial compatible *consonant *correct nice right *due rightful condign

Ant Improper — Con Wrong *false

2 Seemly *decorous, decent nice comme il faut, demure

Ana Formal conventional ceremonious *ceremonial propinquity *Proximity

Ana Closeness, nearness (see corresponding adjectives at ... relatedness or relationship ... (see corresponding adjectives at RELATED) contiguity

*Pacify appease placate mollify

Ana Reconcile conform adjust ... content intercede mediate (see INTERPOSE) propitious Auspicious *favorable benign

Ana Benignant *kind kindly fortunate providential happy — Con ... inauspicious, portentous balance harmony ... *proportional ... harmonizing according proportional Proportional proportionate, proportionable commensurate commensurable are not close synonymous terms but they are often used with

... the term is intended to imply the adjustment (whether nice but not invariably the deliberate adjustment) of one thing that bears a critical relationship to another thing so that both are in keeping with each other or not out of keeping with what is just, fair, due, reasonable or the like as the punishment should be proportionate to the crime the results were not proportionate to the exertions of the workers the return is not proportionate to the investment Tender is bod es ... into velocity ... violence proportionate to the ... (Johnson) ... rushed into freedom and enjoyment ... proportion proportions or as being properly adjusted to each other as, they have five married children and a proportionable number of grandchildren For us to levy power Proportionable to the enemy Is all unpossible (Shak) Commensurate and commensurable differ from the preceding words chiefly in carrying a stronger implication of equality between things each of which has a measure a degree an intensity or the like that is dependent on its relation to the other or others (as his productiveness is commensurate with [that is, neither exceeds nor falls short of] his display of energy the meagreness of the result was commensurate with the crudity of the methods (Buchan) Sometimes both terms but especially commensurable differ from the other words in implying a common scale of values by which outwardly different things can be shown to be equal or proportionate in some significant way as the delight produced by a beautiful lyric and that produced by an equally beautiful movement of a sonata are commensurable because both imply the evocation of a mood two heroes commensurate only in distinction for one was a hero of the battlefield and the other a hero of the moral sphere

Ana Adequate *sufficient competent correspondent correlative, *reciprocal relative contingent *dependent proportionate *Proportional, proportionable commensurate commensurable

Ana Correspondent correlative *reciprocal adequate *sufficient competent Ant Disproportionate

proposal Proposal proposition as here compared denote something which is proposed to another or others for consideration. Although the dividing lines between the two terms are not always clear cut especially in current English the tendency to distinguish them sharply still prevails in strict usage Proposal usually carries a clear suggestion of the act of proposing thus one receives a proposal or entertains a proposal or listens to a proposal It also commonly implies an offer as of oneself as a would be husband or of a given amount of money in return for the transferring of a piece of property or other valuable possession as a proposal of marriage to submit a proposal to the owner to take care of his grounds for a small weekly wage He offered to sweep the floor of the gymnasium then and there This proposal convinced the Skenes (Shaw) But it may imply the suggestion of a scheme a plan a project or the like which may be accepted or rejected at the will of the person or persons to whom it is proposed as [the Constitution] when it came from their [the framers] hands was a mere proposal without obligation or pretensions to it (Ch Just Marshall) expressing regret that no proposal having for its object the readmission of Master Byron to the academy could be entertained (Shaw) Proposition in its strictest sense applies to a statement (usually an affirmative statement) that is propounded for discussion argument proof or disproof as to demonstrate the truth of a proposition at first sight the proposition seemed absurd It is a proposition too plain to be contested that the constitution controls any legislative act repugnant to it (Ch Just Marshall) The term is also applicable to any implied or expressed principle that is or may be questioned or is regarded from the point of view of its truth or its falsity What you think about the stars Padre? The wise men tell us they are worlds like ours Jacinto I think not he said in the tone of one who has considered a proposition fairly and rejected it I think they are leaders—great spirits (Cather) Proposition has been and to a restricted extent still is used instead of proposal in the sense of a proposal made formally that some course of action be followed some policy be adopted some honor granted or the like In this sense the term rarely in strict use refers to personal or to business affairs as We hold it essential to our success that the proposition of Sir George Clerk should be adopted" (Bp S Wilberforce) The medical major at the first post declares it [a certain heroic act] is impossible He has to sign the proposition for the citation (Hemingway) In looser colloquial use proposition is often used where proposal is still regarded by authorities as the preferred word as if you wish to buy this land make me a proposition propose Purpose *intend mean design

Ana *Aim aspire plan, plot scheme project (see under PLAN n) proposition *Proposal propriety *Decorum decency etiquette dignity

Ana Grace *elegance dignity *form usage convention convenance.

prorate *Apportion portion, parcel ration.

prorogue *Adjourn dissolve

Ant Convoke

prosaic. Prosaic prosy matter-of-fact come into comparison as meaning having a plain practical unimaginative unemotional character or quality Prosaic, as here considered implies an opposition to poetic in the extended sense of the latter word Although the term etymologically suggests the quality of prose it seldom refers to literary prose but rather to the ordinary language of men in communicating their wants their ideas or their experiences or in rendering intelligible that which is difficult to understand or make clear hence prosaic usually implies a commonplace unexciting quality and the absence of everything that would stimulate feeling or awaken great interest as "To make verse speak the language of prose without being prosaic is one of the most arduous tasks a poet can undertake (Cowper) Let me have none of your prosaic curates (Gray) a prosaic and humdrum life The eighteenth century from the religious point of view is a period of rather cold and prosaic common sense (Inge) Prosy, on the other hand, suggests a relation to prose the verb rather than to prose the noun and heightens the implication in the former of turning that which is poetry or interesting prose into dull plain prose as by paraphrasing or by translating Consequently prosy stresses extreme dullness or tediousness and usually but not invariably implies a tendency to talk or write at length in a boring or uninviting manner as, prosy preachers a hopelessly prosy book It is his special comfort to smoke a pipe and be prosy with some good natured fellow the dullest of his acquaintance (Scott) Matter-of fact stresses a concern for fact or for facts as well as lack of interest in that which is imaginative speculative visionary romantic or ideal sometimes it connotes accuracy in detail but often it suggests concern only for the obvious and a neglect of the deeper or spiritual reality as a matter of fact account of his experience In an air said a matter-of fact historian Mr Rose had got so dreamy that he felt the necessity of turning a little more matter-of fact again (W H Mallock) Faced with this matter-of fact scepticism you are driven into pure metaphysics (Shaw)

Ana Practical, *practicable humdrum, tedious *irksome proscribe *Sentence condemn damn doom attaint proselyte *Convert prospect, n Prospect, outlook, anticipation foretaste are here compared as meaning an advance realization of something to come especially of something foreseen or expected. Prospect and outlook both imply a conjuring up of a picture or mental vision of what the future holds in store for one. Prospect, however, is chiefly applied to particular events or situations, especially to those of interest to one as an individual and evocative of an emotional response. "The prospect of the Netherfield ball was extremely agreeable to every female of the family" (Austen). "He had just received a box of new books and had preferred the prospect of a quiet Sunday at home" (E. Wharton). "She asked her father if the prospect of living always with his daughter and being taken care of by her affection . . . was such an awful prospect" (Conrad). Outlook suggests an attempt to forecast the future from the point of view of a thinker, such as an economist or a philosopher, or from that of a practical man, as a politician or businessman, who is concerned not only with immediate but remote possibilities and who demands accuracy in detail and soundness in conclusions. "as the outlook for business has been declared favorable . . ." "The outward dyments and internal ... was ... what those who think in terms of colour call black" (R. Macaulay). Anticipation usually implies a prospect or outlook but in addition it involves the implication of advance suffering or enjoyment of that which is envisioned. "Lord Beaconsfield once said that the worst evil one has to endure is the anticipation of the calamities that do not happen" (A. C. Benson). Foretaste also implies advance experience or prior enjoyment or suffering, but it does not necessarily connote (as does anticipation) a mental act distinguished from an actual experience. It implies sufficient experience to give one a hint of what is to come, but the experience or taste may be actual enjoyment or suffering or a fleeting but poignant anticipation of it. "A trifle of torture to the flesh . . . While soul is spared such foretaste of hell-fire, Is naught" (Browning). "Giving me . . . Amid the fretful dwellings of mankind, A foretaste . . . of the calm That Nature breathes among the hills and groves" (Wordsworth).

Ana Hoping, expectation (see corresponding verbs at EXPECT): foreseeing, foresight, foreknowing or foreknowledge, divining or divination (see corresponding verbs at FORESEE) prostrate *Prone, supine, recumbent, reclining, couchant, dormant

Ana Flat, *level: abject (see MEAN) prosy *Prosaic, matter-of-fact

Ana *Insipid, jejune, banal, inane: *irksome, humdrum, tedious protasis *Introduction, prologue, induction, prelude, overture, preface, foreword, prolegomenon, proem, exordium, preamble, prolusion, avant-propos protean *Changeable, changeful, variable, mutable protect Shield, guard, safeguard, *defend

Ana *Save, preserve, conserve: *ensure, insure, assure: shelter, *harbor protectorate *Possession, dependency, territory, colony, dominion, mandate protest, v. 1 Avouch, avow, affirm, aver, *assert, declare, predicate, warrant

Ana *Swear, affirm, asseverate, testify

2 *Object, remonstrate, expostulate, kick

Ana *Oppose, resist, combat: *demur, scruple, balk

Ant Agree (sense 1)

prototype Prototype, archetype, antitype, ectype are not all synonyms but they are often used carelessly or incorrectly because not clearly distinguished. A prototype is the original, or the first instance, of something which is imitated or reproduced with or without changes and improvements so that its successors follow in series and form a type or kind of thing; as, the Roman republic is not the prototype of modern republics such as the United States of America; it is a question whether Langley's flying machine was the prototype of the airplane. An archetype is the pattern which serves as the model for all created things of the same kind. It may be ideal, that is, a conception in the mind of the creator, as, according to Plato, the Ideas are the archetypes of which sensible things are only the copies. It may be real, that is, it may have concrete existence and thus be the pattern for all future things of the same kind. In this latter sense it is often used interchangeably with prototype; discriminating writers, however, distinguish the words, for prototype does not preclude the implication of change and progress, but archetype in effect does, since it stresses the determining influence of the pattern. "The House of Commons, the archetype of all the representative assemblies which now meet" (Macaulay). Antitype is often misused as though it were a compound of anti- and type and not, as it actually is, a word directly derived from the Greek. Originally a theological and philosophical term, it is now found frequently in literary use. An antitype is that which corresponds to or gives real existence to something that is prefigured or foreshadowed by a type (that is, in a rare sense of this word, a person or a thing that serves as a symbol or sign of what is to come); thus, in theological use, Christ is the antitype of many persons and things in the Old Testament, such as the goat slain in the wilderness, the paschal lamb, and Melchizedek. In literary use, an antitype often means the person or thing that realizes or gives substantial form to a poet's or artist's conception; as, more than one actual person has been identified as the antitype of Wordsworth's "Happy Warrior." An ectype (now rare even in philosophical use) is the person or thing that is a copy of an archetype, or a successor of a prototype; thus, the works of the Creator are called ectypes in contrast with his designs, or predetermined patterns, the archetypes.

Ana Pattern, *model, example, exemplar protract Prolong, *extend, lengthen, elongate

Ana *Delay, retard, slow, slacken: *defer, suspend, stay, postpone

Ant Curtail. — Con *Shorten, abridge, abbreviate protrusion *Projection, protuberance, bulge protuberance *Projection, protrusion, bulge proud 1 Proud, arrogant, haughty, lordly, insolent, overbearing, supercilious, disdainful come into comparison when they mean filled with or exhibiting a sense of one's superiority and scorn for that which is regarded as beneath one. Proud does not always imply presumption or suggest assumed rather than genuine superiority; on the contrary, it may be used in praise as well as in derogation, but in all instances it usually connotes a lofty or imposing manner, attitude, or appearance, that may be interpreted as dignified, elevated, spirited, imperious, satisfied, contemptuous, inordinately conceited, or the like, according to the circumstances. "Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud? Like a swift-fleeting meteor, a fast-flying cloud . . . He passeth from life to his rest in the grave" (W. Knox). "A strange shy lovely girl whose face Was sweet with thought and proud with race" (Masefield). "The high spirit and proud resolution of a real aristocracy" (Inge). "He has nothing to be ashamed of in you—rather everything to be proud of" (Meredith). Arrogant implies a disposition to claim for oneself, often domineeringly or aggressively, more consideration than is warranted or justly due; as, an arrogant nobility was in part responsible for the French Revolution. "In holidays the atmosphere of home is apt to be dominated by the young people. Consequently they tend to become arrogant and hard' (B Russell) Haughty implies a strong consciousness of exalted birth station or character and a more or less obvious scorn of those who are beneath one "Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall (Proverbs xvi 18) There was a deferential manner in the bearing of the men towards her which those haughty creatures accord not save to clever women (Meredith) The last four words of this group are more specific than the preceding terms and refer more to the ways in which arrogance or haughtiness is exhibited than to the temperament or attitude Lordly usually suggests pomposity, strutting or a display of power or magnificence as lordly officials the lordly captain of a ship See yonder wight Who begs a brother of the earth To give him leave to toil, And see his lordly fellow-worm The poor petition spurn (Burns) Insolent implies both haughtiness and extreme contemptuousness it carries a stronger implication than the preceding words of a will to insult or affront the person so treated as she could not determine whether the silent contempt of the gentlemen or the insolent smiles of the ladies were more intolerable (Austen) Overbearing suggests a bullying or tyrannical disposition, or intolerable insolence as an overbearing employer, an overbearing snob No one had loved Hendrik van der Berg he had been too strong too overbearing to be loved (S Cloete) Supercilious stresses the superficial aspects of haughtiness such as a manner intended to repel advances it refers to one's behavior to others rather than to one's conceit of oneself though the latter is always implied often it suggests not only scorn but also incivility and occasionally covert curiosity "They have no blood these people Their voices their supercilious eyes that look you up and down (Galsworthy) Supercilious and haughty they [camels] turn this way and that like the dowagers of very aristocratic families at a plebeian evening party (A Huxley) Disdainful implies a more passionate scorn for that which is beneath one than does supercilious it as often as not suggests justifiable pride or justifiable scorn. He [Caesar] makes me [Antony] angry with him for he seems Proud and disdainful harping on what I am Not what he knew I was (Shak) Don Manuel Chavez very elegant in velvet and broadcloth with delicately cut disdainful features —one had only to see him cross the room to feel the electric quality under his cold reserve (Cather)

Ana Contemptuous scornful disdainful (see corresponding nouns under DESPISE) pretentious, pompous ostentatious (see SHOWY) imperious domineering *masterful

Ant Humble ashamed

2 Vain vainglorious See under PRIDE n

Ana Exalted magnified aggrandized (see EXALT) self-satisfied *complacent smug contented, satisfied (see SATISFY)

Ant Ashamed humble

prove. 1 Prove try, test, demonstrate come into comparison as meaning to establish a given or an implied contention or reach a convincing conclusion by means of evidence argument experiment or any other appropriate means The same distinctions in implications and connotations are evident in their corresponding nouns proof, trial, test demonstration when they denote the process or the means by which a contention is established or a convincing conclusion is reached Prove and proof (as here compared see also INDICATE REASON n 1) are the most widely useful of these terms for they are not only employed in reference to contentions and conclusions but also in reference to persons or things whose strength, genuineness, fitness or the like is in question When used in reference to contentions or to conclusions reached by study they imply that evidence sufficient in amount and sufficiently reliable in its character has been adduced to bring conviction of the truth of the contentions or conclusions and to make other contentions or other conclusions untenable 'This proposition may or may not be true, at present there is certainly no evidence sufficient to prove it true (B Russell) 'The legislation of the different colonies furnishes positive and indisputable proof of this fact (Ch Just Taney) But prove and proof when used in reference to persons or things about which there is doubt in some particular imply the settlement of this doubt or the establishing of certainty of his or its strength genuineness fitness for use or service or the like as by subjecting the thing to an experiment or by giving the person a chance to manifest his quality in experience or by other means such as assaying verifying checking or the like as, to prove the strength of gunpowder, to prove a cannon (cf proving ground), to prove useful members of society to prove one's courage in action to put a man to the proof to demand visible proof of one's love, the proof of gold, the proof of the pudding is in the eating Try and trial (as here compared see also ATTEMPT v, TRIAL, 2) still carry implications from their earliest senses of to separate (or the separation of) the good from the bad in a person or thing and, therefore stress not so much the conclusion reached as the process by which the guilt or innocence of a person is definitely proved or a thing's genuineness or falsity its worth or worthlessness its degree of strength validity or the like is definitely established as to try a person for theft to try a case in court 'The question whether a right has vested or not is in its nature judicial and must be tried by the judicial authority (Ch Just Marshall) A boy does not like to be called a fool and is usually ready to try the question with his fists (Meredith) the trial of metal by fire the medieval trial by combat, the new employee is on trial, to take a new vacuum cleaner on trial Test both as a verb and as a noun implies a putting to decisive proof by means of experiment use experience or comparison with a high standard or through subjection to a thorough examination or trial for the sake of such proof or a determination of the facts as Experience is the surest standard by which to test the real tendency of the existing constitution (Washington) the careful scientist subjects every experiment to severe tests to submit to an intelligence test The first time he [Don Quixote] made a helmet he tested its capacity for resisting blows and battered it out of shape next time he did not test it but deemed it to be a very good helmet (B Russell), how well his writing has stood the test of time (L P Smith) Demonstrate and demonstration (as here compared see also SHOW v 2) imply the conclusive proof of a contention or the reaching of a conclusion about which there can be no doubt In such use, prove and demonstrate and their corresponding nouns are not distinguishable except in the latter term's emphasis upon the resulting certainty or formality of method as, '[Lyell] first imagined and then demonstrated that the geologic agencies are not explosive and cataclysmal but steady and patient (C W Eliot), The schools knew that their society hung for life on the demonstration that God was a reality (H Adams) In current use there is a tendency to distinguish them and to employ demonstrate so that it implies scientific certainty based on sensible evidence or clear experiment, as these arguments [for the existence of God] are sometimes called proofs, though they are not demonstrations (Inge)

Ana Corroborate, verify, substantiate, *confirm: *justify, warrant Ant Disprove
2 *Indicate, betoken, attest, bespeak, argue Ana Evidence, manifest, evince, *show, demonstrate provenance, provenience. *Origin, source, inception, root, prime mover Ana Beginning, commencement, starting (see corresponding verbs at BEGIN) provender. *Food, fodder, forage, victuals, viands, provisions, comestibles, grub, eats, chow proverb. Maxim, adage, motto, *saying, saw, epigram, aphorism, apothegm provided. *If providence. *Prudence, foresight, forethought, discretion Ana *Care, solicitude, concern, thoughtfulness, consideration (see corresponding adjectives at THOUGHTFUL) frugality, thriftiness, economicalness or economy (see corresponding adjectives at SPARING) Ant Improvidence

provident. Prudent, foresighted, forethoughted, discreet. See under PRUDENCE Ana Careful, solicitous, concerned (see under CARE n.) *thoughtful, considerate, *sparing, economical, frugal, thrifty

... orable, benig...

province 1 *Field, domain, sphere, territory, bailiwick Ana *Boundary, border, frontier, march, limit, confine, bound, end 2 Function, office, duty Ana *Work, calling, pursuit, métier, business, *task, duty, job provisional. 1 Provisional, tentative come into comparison as meaning not final or definitive. That is provisional which is adopted only for the time being and will be discarded when the final or definitive form is established or the need of it no longer exists. Provisional therefore is used to describe something made or devised ... provisional postage stamp; a provisional bridge) "The French ministers have taken up this equality of government only provisionally, reserving liberty to alter it according to occurrences" (Bp. J. Hall). That is tentative which is of the nature of a trial or experiment or which serves as a test of a thing's practicability or feasi-provoke. 1 Provoke, excite, stimulate, pique, quicken, galvanize come into comparison as meaning to rouse one or character of that power; it is, therefore, the preferred term when nothing more is to be implied than the effecting of the stated result, as "It is one of the misfortunes of the law that ideas become encysted in phrases and ...

"What happens when we prolong and intensify the rubbing to such a degree that we provoke a spark" (Karl K. Darrow). Excite carries so strong an imputation of a rousing that stirs up, moves profoundly, serves as a challenge to one's powers, or the like that the term is often used merely in the sense of to rouse in any of these ways, as "the ideas which excited my own generation" provoke, and thereby becomes a more explicit or richer word than the latter by suggesting the powerful or stirring nature of the agent or agency and the degree or intensity of the activity stirred up, as "the curiosity excited by his long absence burst forth in ... very direct questions" (Austen), "no stimulus was omitted to evoke and inspire the imagination and the sense" (G. L. Dickinson). Stimulate suggests a provoking or exciting ...

quiement, as to stimulate the growth of plants by the use ...

(Grandgent), "I have always believed that it is better to stimulate than to correct, to fortify rather than to punish" (A. C. Benson). Often stimulate specifically implies excitement or re-excitement of interest, especially of a deep intellectual interest, as "some subjects, which are remarkably stimulating to the mind of the pupil, are neglected because they are not well adapted for examinations" (Inge), "advertising designed to stimulate the public's waning interest". Pique, a term of far more restricted application, suggests provocation or stimulation ... as a (Bennett), "there has been a quickening of interest in minorities since Hitler came into power". Galvanize (ety-...

peeve incense ag)

group

prowess *Heroism valor gallantry Ana Bravery boldness, audacity intrepidity (see corresponding adjectives at BRAVE) *courage mettle spirit strength might puissance *power prowl, v *Wander stray roam ramble, rove range gad gallivant traipse, meander proximity Proximity propinquity are often used interchangeably because both denote nearness Proximity however in good current use commonly implies nearness in space it may be used with reference to either persons or things found in the same vicinity or neighborhood (as owing to its proximity to the sea the town usually enjoys mild winters "for centuries and centuries their [swallows] nests have been placed in the closest proximity to man —Jefferies "affected much as he might have been by the proximity of a large dog of doubtful temper —Shaw) or it may be used as an equivalent of vicinity or neighborhood (as there was no inn in the proximity) Propinquity may imply proximity but it then usually distinctively suggests closeness, sometimes even contact "We read a book because it happens to be near us and it looks inviting It is a case where propinquity is everything (S M Crothers) It is more often used where proximity is not possible to imply nearness in relationship closeness in association in age in tastes or the like or even closeness in time as relations within the fourth degree of propinquity they are both cousins of his but not in the same degree of propinquity propinquity is a powerful aid in fostering attachments events in close propinquity to each other If you can put up with a tumultuous propinquity of football man—you can travel up and down England at single fare [for the round trip] with a football team while its luck prevails in the Cup (Manchester Guardian) Ana Nearness closeness (see corresponding adjectives at CLOSE) adjacency contiguousness juxtaposition (see corresponding adjectives at ADJACENT) proxy Deputy attorney *agent factor prudence Prudence, providence foresight, forethought, discretion come into comparison when they denote a quality that enables a person to choose the wise and sensible course especially in managing his practical affairs The same differences in implications and connotations are apparent in the adjectives prudent provident foresighted forethoughted discreet when they mean manifesting such a quality Prudence and prudent (see also WISE) are the most comprehensive of these words for they imply both that one does not act rashly or unadvisedly and that one has foreseen the probable consequences of one's act Consequently the terms usually imply caution and circumspection but may or may not connote selfishness mercenariness calculation or other unpleasant qualities One is given reason and common sense and prudence that one may use them (A C Benson) That type of person who is conservative from prudence but revolutionary in his dreams (T S Eliot) What is the difference in matrimonial affairs between the mercenary and the prudent motive? (Austen) An old fort where the Filipinos although outnumbering their assailants [Moros] had judged it more prudent to hide than to fight (V Heiser) Providence and provident imply thought for the future especially with reference to its difficulties and its needs and usually the provision in advance of that which will then be required Early and provident fear is the mother of safety (Burke) The creature who bears His image is intended to exercise providence (F D Maurice) I see your [Indian] tribe as a provident rather thoughtful people who made the livelihood secure by raising crops and fowl (Cather) Foresight and foresighted stress a power usually the result of a highly developed intelligence of seeing what is likely to happen and of being prepared for it The more we study the making of the principate the more we shall be impressed with the grasp and foresight of its founder (Buchan) Incapable of the foresighted control and adjustment of action which are the essence of all the higher forms of behavior (Wm McDougall) Forethought and the less frequent forethoughted suggest rather due consideration of contingencies In choosing the Yankee dialect I did not act without forethought (J R Lowell) Discretion and discreet stress the qualities which make for prudence or compel prudent action such as good judgment caution self-control and the like In early use discretion and valor were thought of as complementary qualities as "The better part of valour is discretion (Shak) You put too much wind to your sail discretion and hardy valour are the twins of honour (Beaumont & Fletcher) In later use discretion and discreet often imply the power to restrain oneself when one is tempted to be temerarious passionate incensed loquacious, or the like "Prudence and discretion forbade me to appeal against this decision (A C Benson) I dare say he will be a discreeter man all his life for the foolishness of his first choice (Austen) He [Octavian] had been marvellously patient and discreet (Buchan) Well you don't give me away You are very discreet (Cather) Ana Caution circumspection calculation (see under CAUTIOUS) expediency advisableness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPEDIENT) frugality thriftiness or thrift (see corresponding adjectives at SPARING) prudent 1 Judicious sensible, sane *wise sage sapient Ana *Intelligent, brilliant bright smart alert *shrewd perspicacious, sagacious, astute disciplined schooled (see TEACH) 2 Provident, foresighted forethoughted discreet See under PRUDENCE Ana *Cautious circumspect calculating wary politic *expedient advisable economical frugal thrifty *sparing 3 Prudent prudential are sometimes confused in use Prudent applies to persons their acts, their words or the like and implies qualities of mind or character such as caution circumspection and thrift (see prudent under PRUDENCE) or as wisdom in practical affairs (see WISE) as a prudent man a prudent course a prudent way of life Prudential on the other hand applies not to individuals but either to habits, motives policies considerations or the like which are dictated or prescribed by prudence especially by forethought or business sense practical wisdom or the like (as in a prudential light it is certainly a very good match for her —Austen A journalist like Andrew Lang lives by quoting But no prudential motive could bring him the gift It is at bottom a present from Nature —C E Montague) or to committees groups associations or the like having charge of practical affairs such as expenditures or exercising discretionary or advisory powers in regard to these (as "the prudential men the former designation especially in New England of a group of men selected to look after town affairs a prudential investment society the prudential committee of a Congregational church) Ana Politic *expedient advisable advising counseling (see corresponding nouns at ADVICE) prune, v *Preen, prank prink primp peck up doll up prying *Curious inquisitive snoopy nosy Ana Meddlesome officious *impertinent intrusive obtrusive psalm. *Hymn laud canticle antiphon, anthem canon.

Ant Distance

pseudepigrapha. *Apocrypha pseudonym. Pseudonym, alias, nom de guerre, pen-name, nom de plume, incognito, allonym agree in denoting a name other than one's true or legal name. Pseudonym usually implies assumption of the fictitious name, it more often suggests a creditable than a discreditable motive for one's attempt to conceal one's identity. Alias, in strict legal use, covers not only assumed names but those ascribed by others; thus, a boy's true name may be John Potter but he is better known by the alias John Rhoads (Rhoads being his stepfather's name). In loose use, however, alias is associated with offenders against the law and usually connotes an attempt to free oneself, by a change of name, from the onus of a criminal record. Nom de guerre (a French phrase adopted in English) is a pseudonym assumed by one who seeks anonymity or freedom of scope, especially, but not invariably, as an adventurer, a critic, a controversialist, or the like. pen name or nom de plume (not a French form) ...

... one avoids the honors due because of one's rank or eminence, as the Prince of Wales ... psychiatrist, psychiater. *Neurologist alienist psychopathologist psychotherapist psychoanalyst psychic, psychical. *Mental intellectual intelligent, cerebral psychoanalyst. *Neurologist psychiatrist alienist psychopathologist psychotherapist psychopathologist, psychopathist, psychopath. *Neurologist psychiatrist alienist, psychotherapist psychoanalyst psychosis. ...

publication. Declaration announcement advertisement proclamation ...

... missions or of churches in recently settled countries. Since the Congregation's objectives were the spread and the maintenance of the faith (the Roman Catholic faith) the term came to be applied to the concerted or systematic efforts of any group that tries to convert others ...

... for a cause that cannot work in the open, and with the intent to win over the gullible or the unwary; as, to attempt to undermine the people's faith in democracy by communistic propaganda. "To bring Antony to reason two things were needed. He [Augustus] must acquire an armed following of his own, by lavish expenditure and adroit propaganda" (Buchan). In nonderogatory use propaganda often implies the ends of convincing a prejudiced or ignorant public and of inducing it to accept ...

... by barkers of side shows at a circus) is a slang term ...

... roclaim ... mmunic ... press.

... nome dwarf

... gin, virginal,

... ledged raw

... ticism critique review blurb

... *Belligerent bellicose quarrelsome contentious

... essive militant assertive self-assertive,

... Might strength arm *power force, energy

... indicates place of treatment of each group puissant. *Powerful, potent, forceful, forcible Ant Impuissant

pulchritudinous. Beauteous good looking, comely, bonny pretty handsome fair lovely *beautiful pull, v Pull, draw, drag, haul, hale tug tow, as here compared agree in meaning to move in the direction determined by the person or thing that exerts force Pull, the general term is often accompanied by an adverb or adverbial phrase to indicate the direction as, two locomotives pull the heavy train up the grade, to pull a person toward one to pull down goods from a shelf to pull out a drawer, he felt pulled this way and that way by duty and by ambition Draw usually but not invariably implies a pulling forward or toward the person or thing that exerts the force commonly it implies smoother and often gentler motion than pull as, to draw a chair to the fireside the coach was drawn by six horses, to draw a sled over the snow to draw the curtains to draw lots from an urn In extended use draw often specifically implies a result dependent on a drawing as by lot (as, to draw a prize to draw a jury) or by extracting, steeping or the like (as, to draw a tooth to draw tea) or by an inferring (as to draw a conclusion) or by attracting (as the parasol drew him like a magnet — E. Wharton the drawing power of a play) or a bringing forth or eliciting from a source of supply (as to draw money from the bank, a being from whom we draw power and refreshment —Day Lewis) Drag implies a pulling slowly and heavily after one (the agent or thing exerting force) as over the ground or a surface it usually suggests active or passive resistance as the horses dragged the overturned carriage half a mile the vessel dragged her moorings in the storm drag the laden net to the shore to drag logs to the river It was just like Lady Pinkerton to have gone round to Hobart inciting him to drag Jane from my office (R Macaulay) The attempt which is now being made to drag Anglicanism away from its history and traditions (Inge) Haul, in its strictest use which still prevails in Great Britain implies a forcible pulling sometimes a dragging, as when the hawser fell into the water there was no means of hauling the boat to shore to haul down the sails That dangling figure was hauled up forty feet above the fountain" (Dickens) Mr Bennett gasped and doubled up but without relaxing his grasp silently hauled him to his own tent (Kipling) In American usage haul often implies transportation whether as originally in a vehicle or conveyance actually hauled by man or animal power or later one hauled by a locomotive or the like or even, as now in an automotive vehicle as wagons hauling loads of wood, motor trucks hauling loads of gravel laden barges were hauled through canals by horses walking on the shore trains that haul coal from the mines to the storeyards Hale was formerly often but is now seldom, used in place of haul merely in the sense of pulling forcibly as The rope that haled the buckets from the well (Tennyson) When however the idea of constraint or compulsion or of dragging to prison is involved either haul or hale is possible Saul made havock of the church entering into every house and haling men and women committed them to prison (Acts viii. 3) A pretty thing that would be the Senior Shipping Master of the Port of London hauled up in a police court and fined fifty pounds (Conrad) Rather than pay rates to be used in making Roman Catholics or even Anglo-Catholics of little English children Nonconformist Protestant ratepayers will let themselves be haled before the magistrates (Shaw) Tug implies a strenuous pulling but it may or may not suggest actual movement as the child tugged at his father's hand to tug a car out of the mire with a team of oxen. "There sweat there strain, tug the laborious oar" (Roscommon) Tow implies pulling or drawing by a rope or chain something which is not using or is unable to use its own power as to tow a ship (by means of a tugboat) into its berth, to tow a wrecked automobile to a garage.

pulsate Pulsate, pulse, beat, throb, palpitate agree in meaning to manifest a rhythmical movement such as or similar to that which occurs in the circulatory system when blood is forced along by alternate contractions and distentions of the ventricles of the heart and of the arterial walls The same distinctions in implications and connotations are to be found in the nouns pulsation, pulse, beat throb, palpitation when they are used of this rhythmical movement or of one distinct step in it Pulsate and pulsation carry few specific or distinguishing connotations but they usually imply regularity continuity and vigor in the rhythm whether it is apparent in movements or in sounds as when the heart no longer pulsates death occurs the pulsation or pulsations of a motor engine Pulse (the verb) is not common in scientific use pulsate being the preferred term For pulse (originally to push or drive) still carries a strong implication of impelled movement, in distinction from pulsate it usually also connotes a lively succession of spurts waves, gushes or the like thus the arteries pulsate (not pulse) as the blood pulses (not pulsates) through them The term however is common in literary use where it sometimes takes as its subject that which flows or moves in this fashion (as the blood) and at other times that which evidences the rhythmical movement (as the heart or blood vessels) as the pulsing waters of the sea It [the vivacity of Chaucer] pulses through any book of lyrics printed yesterday (Quiller-Couch) Eustacia set inwardly pulsing by his words (Hardy) They move and breathe in an environment that pulses and glows (Mencken) On the other hand pulse the noun is chiefly a scientific term, even its figurative use is affected by or dependent on the term's meaning in medicine and physiology In this sense pulse usually denotes the number of pulsations of the arteries in a minute as observed commonly by feeling the radial artery of the wrist as a normal pulse a rapid pulse to feel a patient's pulse Pulse often also implies reference to the regularity vigor and continuity of the pulsation as an intermittent pulse a strong pulse a fluttering pulse In his eardrums hammers his heavy pulse' (Amy Lowell) In figurative use pulse when it does not take the place of pulsation commonly is but an extension of the scientific use as the group felt the pulse of public opinion before they decided to announce their program 'Rome was the heart and pulse of the empire and on its well being hung the future of the civilized world (Buchan) Beat (both verb and noun) is the ordinary nontechnical word often used in place of pulsate and pulsation and sometimes in place of pulse It stresses however rhythmical recurrence of sounds more often than rhythmical and continuous alternation in movement thus one hears the beat of his heart or tries to still his beating heart It is the preferred designation therefore for something that strikes the ear at regular intervals such as the tick or ticks of a clock a stroke or a series of strokes on a drum and the accented syllable in verse or note in music as to hear a watch beat the beat of a bird's wing against a window pane the beating of tom toms [The Negro evangelist] Beat on the Bible till he wore it out Starting the jubilee revival shout" (V Lindsay) The 'fourteener [a fourteen-syllable verse] repels readers who have not the patience to accustom their ears and nerves to its beat (T S Eliot) Both the noun and verb throb imply violent, often painful pulsation either is preferred to pulsate or pulse or beat (or corresponding nouns), when there is the intent to imply excitement, strain, emotional stress, or the like: as, every nerve in his body throbbed. "Here is a captain, let him tell the tale. Your hearts will throb and weep to hear him speak" (Shak.). "Godfrey felt a great throb: there was one terror in his mind at that moment" (G. Eliot). Palpitate and palpitation imply rapid (often abnormally rapid) and fluttering pulsation. In medical use the term commonly implies overexertion, violent emotion, or a diseased condition, as, to suffer from spells of palpitation of the heart. In extended use, however, the words often imply a rapid vibration, quivering or shaking without any connotation of something amiss. "Then delicate and palpitating as a silver reed she stood up in the soft light of the morning" (Hewlett).

Ana Vibrate, fluctuate, waver, oscillate (see SWING): quiver, shudder, quaver, tremble (see SHAKE).

pulsation Pulse, beat, throb, palpitation. See under PULSATE.

pulse, n Pulsation, beat, throb, palpitation. See under PULSATE.
Ana *Rhythm, cadence, meter: vibration, fluctuation (see corresponding verbs at SWING).

pulse, v *Pulsate, beat, throb, palpitate.
Ana *Move, drive, impel: vibrate, fluctuate, oscillate (see SWING).

pummel, v *Beat, pound, buffet, baste, belabor, thrash, thresh.
Ana *Strike, hit, smite, slug, punch.

punch, v 1 *Strike, hit, smite, slug, slap, swat, clout, box, cuff.
Ana *Beat, pound, pummel, baste, belabor.
2 *Perforate, puncture, prick, bore, drill.
Ana Pierce, penetrate, probe, *enter.

punctilious Punctual, meticulous, scrupulous, *careful.
Ana Particular, fussy, squeamish, fastidious, *nice: formal, conventional, ceremonious, *ceremonial.

punctual Punctilious, meticulous, scrupulous, *careful.
Ana *Quick, prompt, ready: precise, *correct, nice, right.

puncture, v *Perforate, punch, prick, bore, drill.
Ana Pierce, penetrate (see ENTER): deflate, shrink (see CONTRACT v).

pungent Pungent, piquant, poignant, racy, spicy, snappy come into comparison when they mean characterized by sharpness, zest, and piercing or gripping power. Pungent literally has reference to taste or smell [illegible]

[illegible] (Kipling). In its figurative sense the word carries implications of great telling power or driving force or of a capacity for exciting or stimulating keen attention or interest: as, his pungent wit. "If you would be pungent, be brief; for it is with words as with sunbeams—the more they are condensed, the deeper they burn" (Southey). [illegible]

[illegible] ders the whole piquant" (Hardy). "She made a piquant, pretty show, with her thirty years and her agreeable, slightly roguish face" (Bennett). Poignant (as here compared: see also MOVING) originally applied either to that which literally cuts or pierces deeply (as, a poignant spear) or to that which is pungent to the taste or smell (as, poignant sauce —Chaucer; "the rich poignant perfume" —N. Hawthorne). In current use it often applies to emotions that are keenly or deeply felt or to experiences, words, or the like that produce such emotions or have the power to pierce one's inmost consciousness: as, poignant sorrow, poignant memories; "tenderness so poignant that perhaps neither of us knew whether it was joy or pain" (H. Ellis). "Which do you think is more poignant? Regret for what one has not done or remorse for what one has? I think regret" (C. Mackenzie). Racy literally has reference to that which has the peculiar character, taste, or piquancy associated with a thing of its kind in its best and, often, its freshest condition: as, racy cider, racy grapes, the racy flavor of some mushrooms. The term is now more often used in an extended sense implying such qualities as native verve, dash, vitality, or tang and the absence of all signs of decadence, sophistication, effeteness, or the like: as, "pure 'mother English,' racy and fresh with idiomatic graces" (De Quincey); "Yorkshire has such families here and there ... peculiar, racy, vigorous; of good blood and strong brain" (C. Brontë); "The free and racy spirit of the soil had been banished from its [Barcelona's] amusements, leaving a tame vacuity only too familiar at home" (H. Ellis). Spicy applies literally to that which has the piquant taste of a food seasoned or flavored with or as if with spice or an odor redolent of spice (as, a spicy cake; the spicy odors emanating from the kitchen); but in the extended sense in which it is here chiefly considered it usually implies the addition of qualities which give the thing affected decided piquancy or a pointed, often sensational character, or in some use a touch of smartness, of spiritedness, of scandalousness, or the like (as, spicy criticism; a clever spicy style; a columnist's spicy gossip). Snappy applies literally to that which emits shooting sparks or a series of sharp, quick reports (as, a snappy fire); but in slangy colloquial use it implies a somewhat comparable show of vitality, animation, smartness, or the like (as, a snappy young woman; snappy conversation; a snappy car).
Ana *Incisive, trenchant, biting, cutting, penetrating, piercing, probing (see ENTER): exciting, stimulating, provoking or provocative (see corresponding verbs at PROVOKE).
Ant *Bland.

Punish, chastise, castigate, chasten, discipline, [illegible] agree in meaning to inflict pain, loss, or other [illegible] upon a person for his sin, crime, or fault. Punish implies violation of law, disobedience of authority, or intentional wrongdoing and subjection to the penalty imposed: as, "If ye will not ... hearken unto me, then I will punish you" (Leviticus xxvi. 18); "no misdemeanour should be punished more severely than the most atrocious felonies" (Macaulay). Chastise, in literal use [illegible]

[illegible] usly patronizes democracy in England and [illegible] al courage castigates it at home" (Brownell). Chasten [illegible]

[illegible] tisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group usually implies subjection to affliction or trial greater than is deserved it therefore suggests as an aim not punishment, but a testing whereby one may emerge humbled and purified or strengthened "For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth If ye endure chastening God dealeth with you as with sons (Hebrews xii 6-7) Discipline (see also TEACH) implies punishment chastisement or sometimes chastening with the intent to subjugate subdue or bring under one s control as to discipline striking students by taking away certain privileges these children show that they have never been disciplined "But can he be disciplined . ? Oh there is no question of discipline! He has been a little potentate too long (Cather) Correct implies punishment having for its aim the amendment or reformation of the offender His faults lie open to the laws, let them Not you correct him" (Shak)

Ana *Penalize fine amerce mulct *imprison incarcerate immure *avenge revenge

Ant Excuse pardon — Con *Exculpate acquit exonerate absolve vindicate puny. *Petty, trivial trifling paltry measly picayunish, picayune

Ana. Feeble, *weak frail infirm *small little diminutive slight tenuous (see THIN adj) pupil *Scholar student disciple purblind *Blind sightless purchasable *Vendible salable marketable

Ana. *Mercenary venal, hireling purchase, v *Buy

Ana Hire *employ gain win earn, *get obtain procure secure.

pure 1 Pure, absolute, simple, sheer are here compared as used in the sciences, the arts and to a certain extent in philosophy They agree in denoting free from everything that is foreign to the true nature or the essential character of the thing specified Pure distinctively suggests freedom from intermixture When applied to concrete things it usually implies lack of contamination adulteration or pollution as pure water, a pure breed When applied to an abstraction or to a concrete example of an abstraction it implies the absence of everything that would obscure the thing in its essence or in its ideal character as pure poetry (poetry entirely free of prosaic elements) pure science (science where knowledge, and not the application of such knowledge is the end) "This division into Realism and Romance is the main cleavage in all the Arts, but it is hard to find pure examples of either kind (Galsworthy) Absolute implies freedom from relation to or dependence on anything else, it is applied chiefly to abstractions such as space time and magnitude viewed independently of experience and considered in their ultimate ideal character Thus absolute space as used in physics, is space conceived of as apart from the things which occupy it and which limit or determine the ordinary person s notion of it. Because of such use, absolute often comes close to real, as opposed to apparent "Absolute music in musical theory is music that depends solely on the distinctive properties of that art, such as tone harmony, and rhythm to produce its effects, and avoids, in contrast to program music all suggestion or characterization of external things Absolute is applied to substances less often than is pure but both are applied to alcohol pure alcohol retains a modicum of water, absolute alcohol is completely dehydrated Simple stresses singleness of character and is distinguished from that which is compound or complex. In very precise use it connotes homogeneity and incapacity for analysis or further reduction as, an element is a simple substance quality and "relation" are simple notions Simple as applied to abstractions or conceptions often suggests artificial freedom from complexity, and sometimes also unreality or untruth when the simplicity is attained by eliminating essential factors The world to which your philosophy professor introduces you is simple .. The contradictions of real life are absent from it (W James) Sheer, more than any of these words, tends to lose its significance and to become a mere intensive, as, sheer nonsense However in precise use it still implies such a dissociation from everything else that the pure and essential character of the quality (trait virtue power or the like) to which it is applied is clearly displayed "The Ancient Mariner is a work of sheer imagination (Lowes)

Ana Elemental, *elementary *clear transparent lucid limpid genuine *authentic.

Ant Contaminated polluted adulterated (of foods metals etc) applied (of science)

2 *Chaste modest, decent

Ana *Clean cleanly virtuous *moral ethical Ant Impure immoral

purgation. *Purification catharsis ablution, lustration purgative. *Physic, cathartic purge laxative aperient purge, n *Physic, cathartic purgative laxative aperient.

purification Purification, ablution, lustration, purgation, catharsis are synonyms in their etymological meanings, all of them denoting a cleansing In their extended and figurative senses they do not lose this common denotation but they diverge so widely in their applications especially in ceremonial use that they are seldom interchangeable Purification always implies prior defilement or pollution It covers a variety of symbolic rites involving washing particularly in orthodox Jewish practice In Christian use it refers particularly to the expiation of sin as through repentance penance or sacramental confession Ablution, though literally meaning washing does not in its liturgical use imply purification but prevention of profanation To ensure the consumption of all particles of the consecrated bread and wine the priest performs ablution after the Communion of the Mass by rinsing his index finger and thumb and the inside of the chalice and drinking this liquid "The moving waters at their priestlike task Of pure ablution round earth s human shores (Keats) Lustration in strict use is applicable only to certain purificatory ceremonies of the ancients especially of the ancient Romans as the cleansing of the people every five years after the census (the lustrum) or of a city after a plague or of a fleet ready to depart Lustration does not necessarily connote use of water for fire, air and other cleansing agents were used Nor was it restricted to physical cleansing for it often implied removal of bloodguiltiness In best figurative use it connotes purification on a large scale "St Peter s mind is full of the Deluge as a type of the world s lustration (F W Farrar) Purgation and its Greek equivalent catharsis always imply the elimination or discharge of impurities Both are more often applied to a freeing of the soul or mind from that which interferes with spiritual or mental health than to a ceremony of purification Purgation explicitly suggests the elimination of desires and interests that are sinful or hamper attainment of spiritual perfection "Its [the soul s] attempts to eliminate by discipline and mortification all that stands in the way of its progress towards union with God constitute Purgation a state of pain and effort (E Underhill) Catharsis was effectually introduced into English in Butcher's translation of Aristotle s description of the effect of tragedy as through pity and fear effecting a catharsis of these emotions. It has come to imply the attainment of emotional balance through actual or vicarious suffering that provides an outlet for disturbing emotions and cleanses them of what is morbid or selfish. "And what a tragic catharsis it may prove, a universal purge of evil passions!" (Kate Levick) purloin. *Steal, pilfer, filch, lift, pinch, snitch, swipe, cop.

Ana Abstract, *detach: *rob, plunder, rifle, loot: thieve, burglarize: *defalcate, peculate, embezzle.

purpose, v. Propose, design, *intend, mean.
Ana Meditate, *ponder, weigh, *consider, revolve, contemplate: plan, plot, scheme, project (see under PLAN, n.): determine, *decide.

purpose, n. *Intention, intent, design, aim, end, object, objective, goal.
Ana *Ambition, aspiration: proposition, *proposal: determination, *decision: *plan, project, scheme.

pursue. *Follow, chase, trail, tag, tail.
Ana *Persevere, persist: *practice, exercise: persecute, oppress (see WRONG, adj.): hound, ride, *bait, badger.
Con Flee, fly, *escape, avoid, evade, elude, shun (see ESCAPE).

pursuit. Calling, occupation, employment, *work, métier, business.

purvey. *Cater, pander.
Ana *Furnish, equip, outfit.

purview. *Range, reach, scope, compass, sweep, gamut, radius, ken, horizon, orbit.

push, v. Push, shove, thrust, propel come into comparison when they mean to use pressure or force upon a thing so as to make it move ahead or aside. Push implies the application of force by a body (often, but not necessarily, a person) already in contact with the body to be moved onward, aside, out of one's way, or the like: as, a boy pushing a wheelbarrow along the road; to push a door open; to push a man over a cliff; an extra locomotive was needed at the rear to push the long train up the grade; to push the excited children into another room. Shove often differs from push in carrying a stronger implication of the exercise of muscular strength and of forcing something along a surface such as the ground or a floor: as, the boys shoved the heavy chairs and tables from the center of the room up against the walls; it took three men to shove the piano into the adjoining room. Often, when muscular exertion is not strongly implied, haste or roughness or rudeness in pushing is suggested: as, he shoved the paper into his pocket; to shove the articles on the desk into a box; to shove a person out of one's way; to shove the platter across the table. Thrust, as here compared, differs from push especially in its chief current senses in carrying a weaker implication of steadiness or continuousness in the application of force and a stronger suggestion of rapidity in the movement effected or of violence in the force that is used; oftentimes also the use of actual physical force is not clearly implied: as, "They... thrust him out of the city" (Luke iv. 28–29); "Abraham... thrust the old man out of his tent" (Jer. Taylor); "Mark first that youth who takes the foremost place, And thrusts his person full into your face" (Pope). Often also it implies the sudden and forcible pushing of a weapon, implement, or instrument, or of something held in one's hand, so that it enters into the thing at which it is aimed: as, to thrust (not push or shove) a spear into an opponent's breast; to thrust a spade into the ground; to thrust a bunch of flowers into her hand. Propel implies a driving forward or onward by a force or power that imparts motion. In some use it still implies pressure exerted from outside or behind, usually but far from invariably by some power that is not human: as, boats propelled by the wind; "the flow of air which propels the slow-sailing clouds" (Lowes); "he grabbed him by the collar and propelled him toward the door"; "she walked—as if she were being propelled from the outside by a force that she neither knew nor could control" (A. Tate). It is the preferred term, however, when the use of a mechanical aid (often called a propeller) or of some kind of actuating power, such as steam or electrical power, is implied: as, ships propelled by steam; a galley propelled by fifty oars; automobiles are usually propelled by internal-combustion engines.

In their figurative senses, push implies a pressing or urging forward, as with insistence, with vigor, with impetuousness, or the like, so that one's end may be gained, one's work may be completed, or one's goal be reached: as, to push the war into the enemy's country; to push a bill through Congress; to push one's theory to an extreme; to push oneself too hard in striving to attain one's ends. Shove often suggests obtrusiveness or intrusiveness or lack of finesse in making a way for oneself or another: as, to shove oneself into society; to shove a relative into a high appointive office. Thrust implies a forcing upon others of something that is not wanted, desired, or sought for: as, "some have greatness thrust upon 'em" (Shak.); "Amy had a grievance... because Sophia had recently thrust upon her a fresh method of cooking green vegetables" (Bennett). Propel is sometimes used in place of impel when a strong inner urge or appetite is invoked as pushing one on to that which one desires: as, wolves at their very doors, propelled there by hunger.
Ana *Move, drive, impel: *force, compel, constrain, oblige.

push, n. *Battle, engagement, action.

pushing. *Aggressive, militant, assertive, self-assertive.
Ana *Vigorous, energetic, strenuous: officious, intrusive, obtrusive (see IMPERTINENT): self-confident, confident, self-assured, assured (see corresponding nouns at CONFIDENCE).

pusillanimous. *Cowardly, poltroon, craven, dastardly, recreant.
Ana Timorous, *timid: apprehensive, *fearful, afraid: *contemptible, despicable, sorry, scurvy.
Ant Courageous.

puss, n. *Face, countenance, visage, physiognomy, mug.

putative. *Supposed, supposititious, suppositious, reputed, conjectural, hypothetical.
Ana Alleged, advanced (see ADDUCE): assumed, pretended, simulated (see ASSUME).

putrefy. Rot, decompose, *decay, spoil, disintegrate, crumble.
Ana Corrupt, vitiate, deprave, *debase: dissolve, deliquesce (see LIQUEFY).

putrid. Fetid, noisome, stinking, *malodorous, rank, rancid, fusty, musty.
Ana Decomposed, decayed, rotten, putrefied (see DECAY): corrupted, vitiated (see DEBASE).

Putsch. *Rebellion, revolution, uprising, revolt, insurrection, mutiny.

put up. *Reside, live, dwell, sojourn, lodge, stay, stop.

puzzle, v. Puzzle, perplex, mystify, bewilder, distract, nonplus, confound, dumfound (or dumbfound) come into comparison when they mean to disturb and baffle mentally or to cause to be so disturbed and baffled. The first three words express various mental reactions to what is intricate, complicated, or involved. Puzzle implies such complication or intricacy that the mind finds it exceedingly, often distressingly, difficult to understand or to solve: as, "A great poet may tax our brains, but he ought not to puzzle our wits" (Birrell); "Every economic, political, psychological and moral problem that has puzzled civilized men for 2500 years" (Lippmann). Perplex adds to puzzle the implications of worry and uncertainty especially about reaching a decision on a course of action or by playing upon one's credulity but more often by concealing important facts or factors or by obscuring issues. 'When she [Elizabeth] was weary of mystifying foreign statesmen she turned to find fresh sport in mystifying her own ministers (J. R. Green) Bewilder often implies run to the Socialists or the Capitalists or to your favorite newspaper to make up your mind for you they will only unsettle and bewilder you (Shaw) Distract implies strong agitation arising from divergent or conflicting considerations or interests as, distracted between love and duty' (Byron) She seemed nervous and distracted wisest heads on this Planet has become quite a familiar companion of mine. What is Reality? (L. P. Smith) Confound (see also MISTAKE) implies mental confusion but it stresses the implication either of mental paralysis or of profound astonishment So spoke the son of God

Dumfound (etymologically to confound so as to strike dumb) in colloquial language tends to replace confound Originally the term came close to nonplus but it carried hear him say that I was on a Quixotic enterprise erence)

maze astound flabbergast (see SURPRISE) *confound iddle bemuddle addle *embarrass disconcert

t n *Mystery problem enigma, riddle com

*Dwarf midget manikin homunculus runt

Q

quack n *Impostor faker empiric mountebank charlatan.

Ana Pretender simulator counterfeiter shammer (see corresponding verbs at ASSUME) *deceit duplicity dissimulation, cunning guile quail, v *Recoil shrink flinch wince blench

Ana Cower cringe (see FAWN) falter waver vacillate *hesitate quake quaver tremble shudder (see SHAKE) quaint *Strange odd queer outlandish curious peculiar eccentric, erratic singular unique

Ana. *Fantastic bizarre grotesque droll funny *laughable archaic antiquated antique (see OLD) quake v *Shake tremble totter quiver shiver shudder quaver wobble teeter shimmy didder dither

Ana Quail shrink *recoil vibrate fluctuate waver (see SWING) falter vacillate *hesitate qualified Competent capable *able

Ana Trained instructed disciplined (see TEACH) examined quizzed catechized (see ASK) tested tried, proved (see PROVE)

Ant Unqualified

qualify *Moderate temper attemper

Ana. Modify vary alter *change *adapt adjust conform accommodate reconcile quality Quality property, character attribute accident are synonymous ... denote one ...

the intelligible

a thing may t stood ...

ness There was only one quality in a woman that appealed to him—charm (Galsworthy) The persistent which distinguish a species (hence specific characters) from its generic properties as wheat and oats have common properties but they are distinguished by certain specific characters An attribute is a quality that is become invested with romantic attributes (T. Wright) Sometimes, especially in law and philosophy attribute denotes a quality that must belong to a thing by reason substance—or the real but unapparent nature—of the thing "Waves [on a Japanese artist's screen] such as these divested of all accident of appearance in their naked impetus of movement and recoil" (Binyon) In general use however accident usually implies fortuitousness or lack of intrinsic value "Rhyme is an accident rather than an essential of verse" (Lowes) Ana Predication affirmation (see corresponding verbs at ASSERT) peculiarity, individuality characteristic (see corresponding adjectives at CHARACTERISTIC)

qualm Qualm, scruple, compunction, demur come into comparison when they denote a feeling of doubt or hesitation as to the rightness or wisdom of something one is doing or is about to do. Qualm (etymologically a sudden illness, esp. nausea) implies an uneasy often a sickening sensation that one is not following the dictates of his conscience or of his better judgment as, he is often tempted to lie but is always deterred by qualms of conscience "how few little girls can squash insects and kill rabbits without a qualm" (R. Macaulay) "I had qualms about setting forth over the treacherous waters of the China Sea because the skipper had fortified himself with such huge quantities of alcohol" (V. Heiser) Scruple implies more or less mental disturbance occasioned by doubt of the rightness, the propriety the fairness, or sometimes the outcome of an act it may or may not imply an overnice conscience or an extremely delicate sense of honor as, she has no scruples about carrying away any of my books "some craven scruple Of thinking too precisely on the event A thought which quartered hath but one part wisdom And ever three parts coward" (Shak) "You are fairly safe in keeping your money at a big bank and need have no scruple about availing yourself of its readiness to oblige you" (Shaw) "I respect your scruple sir but in this case I believe true delicacy requires you to do as I ask" (E. Wharton) Compunction (as here compared see also PENITENCE) implies a prick or sting of conscience that warns a person that he is about to commit (or is committing) a sin crime or now more often, slight offense or is about to inflict (or is inflicting) a wrong or injustice, as he had not the slightest compunction in pulling apples from his neighbors trees he felt little stirrings of compunction at getting married without his mother's knowledge (H Austin) Demur stresses hesitation to such an extent that it carries a stronger implication of delay than any of the other terms it usually suggests however a delay caused by objections or irresolution rather than by an awakened conscience or by a scruple or compunc-

[illegible]

Ana Misgiving *apprehension foreboding presentiment doubt mistrust suspicion *uncertainty quandary *Predicament dilemma plight scrape fix jam pickle Ana *Juncture pass, exigency emergency contingency crisis *difficulty hardship vicissitude puzzling or puzzle mystification, perplexity bewilderment (see corresponding verbs at PUZZLE) quantity Amount, *sum aggregate total whole number quarrel, n Quarrel, wrangle, altercation, squabble bickering, spat, tiff agree in denoting a dispute marked

[illegible]

which may persist even after verbal strife has ceased as, to patch up a quarrel "Spectators of our dull domestic quarrels" (Shelley) "I don't complain of Betsey or any of her acts Excepting when we've quarreled and told each other facts" (W Carleton) Wrangle implies undignified and often futile disputation with noisy insistency on each person's opinion as, a wrangle over a point of law "Filled with A scorn of wrangling yet a zeal for

[illegible]

threatening aspect of the man attempted to hurry away" (Shaw) Squabble stresses childish and unseemly wrangling over a petty matter, it does not necessarily

[illegible]

remarks they suggest an irritable mood or mutual antagonism as, they never come together without bickering

[illegible]

spat chiefly in implying a disagreement that manifests itself in ill humor or temporarily hurt feelings. "Having learned that storms Subside and teapot tempests are akin Tiffs end properly in marriage and a dance" (Browning) Ana *Brawl broil fracas, melee row rumpus, scrap contention dissension conflict variance strife *discord quarrel, v Wrangle altercate, squabble bicker spat, tiff See under QUARREL, n Ana *Contend fight battle war dispute agitate argue *discuss.

Con *Agree concur coincide quarrelsome. Pugnacious bellicose *belligerent contentious litigious.

Ana Opposing combating or combative resisting (see corresponding verbs at OPPOSE) antagonistic, *adverse counter hostile inimical antipathetic rancorous (see corresponding nouns at ENMITY) quarry *Victim prey ravin.

*Rooms lodgings chambers, diggings, digs, flat tenement
*Annul abrogate void avoid vacate *Shake tremble shudder quake totter quiver shiver wobble teeter shimmy dodder dither Ana Falter waver vacillate *hesitate vibrate fluctuate sway (see SWING) queenly Regal royal *kingly imperial princely queer, adj *Strange odd erratic eccentric peculiar [illegible] funny

*irritable

[illegible] ubbering

(see CRY v) touchy techy cranky cross (see IRASCI menting deploring bemoaning (see DEPLORE) *Ask question, interrogate, inquire speer quiz catechize *Adventure enterprise emprise

*) indicates place of treatment of each group

Ana Exploit, *feat, achievement question, v *Ask, interrogate, query, inquire, examine quiz catechize speer

Ant Answer — Con Reply respond (see ANSWER v) questionable. *Doubtful, dubious problematical

Ana Uncertain suspicious (see corresponding nouns at UNCERTAINTY) *obscure vague equivocal.

Ant Authoritative unquestioned quick 1 *Living alive animate animated vital

Ant Dead arid

2 Fleet swift, rapid *fast speedy expeditious hasty

Ana Brisk nimble *agile abrupt impetuous *precipitate headlong

3 Quick, prompt, ready, apt come into comparison when applied to persons their mental operations their acts and their words and mean having or manifesting the ability to respond without delay or hesitation Quick stresses instancy of response to such an extent that it usually connotes native rather than acquired power as quick eyes quick in perception observation or decision He could at that time barely write his own name Yet one felt in him a quick and discriminating intelligence (Cather) Very often the word suggests marked capacity for learning or for absorbing that which is taught And I would teach them all that men are taught We [women] are twice as quick! (Tennyson) To be fit to direct to know enough about roads to take the right one the quick must be taught according to their quickness (Grandgent) Prompt also implies instancy of response but it may or may not imply native quickness Often it carries a suggestion of training discipline or some kind of preparation that fits one for quick response when the occasion demands it as prompt service prompt eloquence Blest Stateman He who holds his ministry Resolute at all hazards to fulfil Its duties —prompt to move but firm to wait (Wordsworth) Sometimes the word carries so strong an implication of willingness or eagerness that a lack of normal inhibitions is also suggested A low born cell bred selfish servile band Prompt or to guard or stab to saint or damn (Pope) Ready, like prompt implies previous training or a strong predisposition as well as instancy of response, but it more often characterizes the person or his powers than his performance or his expression of thought or feeling It therefore often implies as prompt does not skill facility fluency ease in attainment, or the like Reading maketh a full man conference a ready man (Bacon) Where n lies happiness? In that which becks Our ready minds to fellowship divine (Keats) On graduation from the lycee at seventeen he [the French boy] has as plentiful a supply of knowledge as ready and accurate a judgment [as the American A.B of twenty two] (Grandgent) The word is often applied to the bodily organ or to the instrument one uses in manifesting his skill fluency or the like as he has a ready tongue he wields a ready pen a pair of ready hands Apt as here compared (see also FIT APT 2) does not throw the emphasis on the quickness of the response though that is involved in its meaning but on the possession of certain qualities which make for such quickness such as a high degree of intelligence a particular talent or gift or a strong bent It is therefore preferable to quick when the person in mind responds quickly only to particular stimuli or shows a capacity for a definite kind of work as she is apt at drawing but not at arithmetic his aptness for all studies is unusual supple a new-corded apt at arms (Tennyson) at the hands of a little people few but apt in the field (Kipling)

Ana *Intelligent clever smart quick witted deft feat, adroit *dexterous *sharp acute keen

Ant Sluggish

quicken, v 1 Quicken, animate, enliven, vivify agree in meaning to make alive or lively Originally all of them meant literally to impart physical life to that which is devoid of it "I have seen a medicine That's able to breathe life into a stone Quicken a rock (Shak) It told how first Prometheus did create A man of many parts from beasts deryv d And then stole fire from heven to animate His worke (Spenser) When God hath raised this body he can enliven it with the same soul that inhabited it before (J Wesley) The great Soul of the Universe vivifyeth all manner of things (Rabelais, transl by Urquhart) This literal sense is now rare and the words have diverged more or less widely in their implications Quicken, which is found chiefly in poetic and religious use stresses either the renewal of life especially of suspended life or growth or the rousing into fullness of activity that which is inert Sometimes the rekindled life is physical When her [spring s] breath Quickens as now the withered heath (Wordsworth) More often however it is spiritual intellectual or imaginative "It is the Spirit that quickeneth the words that I speak unto you they are spirit and they are life (John vi 63) Animate emphasizes the imparting of motion and activity or especially in modern use the giving of the appearance of life to that which is mechanical or artificial as animated cartoons the animated dolls of the puppet theater Lely on animated canvas stole The sleepy eye that spoke the melting soul (Pope) Enliven suggests a stimulating influence that kindles exalts or brightens it therefore commonly presupposes dullness depression, torpidity, or the like in the thing affected, as the sun was wonderfully warm and enlivening (D H Lawrence) But soon the feel of the paint on the canvas begins to enliven his mind, and the mind thus quickened conceives a livelier curiosity about the creature before him (C E Montague) Vivify sometimes, like quicken implies the renewal of life, and at other times like animate implies the giving of the appearance of life In each case however it usually also suggests a freshening or energizing effect and implies vitality more often than activity or motion. "The Russian ballet illustrates once more the vivifying effect of transplantation on the art of Romantic dancing (H Ellis) In the Elizabethan age English society at large was accessible to ideas was permeated by them was vivified by them (Arnold) That Promethean fire which animates the canvass and vivifies the marble (Sir J Reynolds)

Ana Activate *vitalize energize rouse arouse *stir

Ant Deaden

2 Excite stimulate *provoke pique galvanize

Ana *Activate actuate motivate spur goad induce (see corresponding nouns at MOTIVE) *incite foment.

Ant Arrest

3 Hasten hurry *speed accelerate precipitate

Ant Slacken

quick-witted Clever bright, smart *intelligent, alert knowing brilliant.

Ana Ready prompt *quick apt *sharp, keen acute *witty humorous facetious.

quiescent. *Latent dormant potential, abeyant

Ana Quiet *still silent inert *inactive passive supine quiet, adj Silent noiseless, *still stilly

Ana *Calm, serene, placid tranquil peaceful

Ant Unquiet — Con *Rough harsh disturbed agitated upset disquieted perturbed (see DISCOMPOSE) *vociferous, clamorous boisterous, blatant strident quip *Jest joke jape witticism wisecrack crack gag quit 1 Acquit, comport, deport, demean conduct *behave

Ana & Con See those at ACQUIT

Quiver, v ... ake quiver shudder quaver totter tremble quake wobble teeter shimmy dodder dither Ana *Pulsate pulse beat, throb palpitate flutter flicker flitter (see FLIT) quixotic Chimerical fantastic visionary, fanciful *imaginary Ana *Sentimental romantic utopian *ambitious ideal transcendental *abstract quiz, v 1 *Banter, chaff rally kid rag guy, rib, josh jolly 2 *Ask question interrogate examine catechize query inquire speer quote, v Quote, cite, repeat are not close synonyms

... to their author as, "Chaucer's account of himself must be quoted for the delight and sympathy of a true read ers (Hunt)

... pared (see ADDUCE) is to quote an author or a passage as evidence offered in proof of a point or as an authority for one's statement or contention as "He persevered in his refusal to cite any distinct passages from any writing of mine (Newman) To repeat is to reproduce exactly

... property in the combination or in the thoughts ... the words express (Justice Holmes)
... ce allege advance
... *Daily diurnal

R

race, n Race, nation, people are frequently used as usage of the best writers of the past) without a clear sense of these distinctions In the ensuing discrimination emphasis will be placed upon the current technical rather black) the American (or red) the Malay (or brown) Secondary classifications as of the Caucasian race are numerous though not so universally accepted thus, W Z Ripley distinguished three races in Europe (the Teutonic, the Alpine the Mediterranean) on the basis of comparative stature coloring (blond or brunet) and the shape of the head Many other classifications of frequent as a literary word with highly figurative connotations Literally it signifies the inhabitants, or more narrowly the citizenry of a sovereign state or any body of persons who have been united under one independent government long enough to have acquired a distinct identity It implies a certain homogeneity in these persons because of common laws, institutions, loyalties, and customs, but it does not necessarily imply as race usually does, a common origin or a common remote past or a common physical or mental type In this sense it is often contrasted with state "When the state fell to pieces, the nation held together (J R Seeley) "A State is accidental it can be made or unmade but a nation is something real which can be neither made nor destroyed (J R Green) Figuratively nation often suggests an ideal to be realized rather than an established entity it is then as a rule personified as, a nation strong trained up in arms (Shak) "nations like men have their infancy (Bolingbroke) "until nations are generous they will never be wise (Irving) "the nation's honor is dearer than the nation's comfort (W Wilson) There still prevails a use of nation which is not clearly distinguishable from that of race in its popular sense as the Gypsy nation "he hates our sacred [Jewish] nation (Shak) People is the preferred word in historical and sociological terminology when a body of persons as a whole and as individuals show a consciousness of solidarity and of peculiarity that is not entirely explainable by race or nation The term usually designates an aggregate of persons who irrespective of their individual racial origins or ancestral nationalities, have through close and long-continued association achieved a common culture common interests and ideals and a sense of race or kinship People is interchangeable with nation only when the terms imply the nation) People is usually far weaker in its implication of political unity and far stronger in its implications of cultural and social unity than nation "The Cry of the Little Peoples goes up to God in vain For the world is given over to the cruel sons of Cain (R Le Gallienne) rack, n ¹ *Trot pace single-foot lope amble walk gallop, run canter rack, n ² Track vestige *trace

Ana *Sign mark token rack, v ¹ Trot pace single-foot lope, amble walk gallop run canter See under TROT n rack, v ² Torment torture grill try *afflict Ana Persecute oppress (see WRONG v) harry harass *worry annoy rack, v ³ Variant of WRACK.

racket *Din uproar pandemonium, hullabaloo babel hubbub racking *Excruciating agonizing

Ana Torturing tormenting grilling (see AFFLICT) *intense, vehement *fierce ferocious, barbarous savage cruel inhuman.

racy *Pungent piquant poignant spicy snappy

Ana Exciting, stimulating quickening, provoking or provocative (see corresponding verbs at PROVOKE) *spirited mettlesome fiery gingery peppery

Con *Insipid flat jejune banal inane radiant. Brilliant *bright luminous lustrous effulgent refulgent beaming beamy lambent lucent

Ana *Splendid resplendent glorious sublime sparkling glittering gleaming flashing scintillating (see FLASH v) radical adj 1 *Fundamental basic basal underlying substratal, substrative

Ana Cardinal *essential vital *inherent intrinsic constitutional

Ant Superficial

2 Advanced progressive *liberal left radius *Range reach scope compass sweep ken purview horizon orbit rag v *Banter chaff rally quiz kid guy rib josh jolly rage n 1 *Anger ire fury indignation wrath

Ana *Acrimony asperity acerbity frenzy *mania hysteria agitation upset perturbation (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE)

2 *Fashion style mode vogue craze cry dernier cri fad.

Ana *Caprice freak, vagary crotchet whim raid, n *Invasion incursion irruption inroad

Ana *Attack, assault onslaught onset rail v Revile, vituperate rate berate upbraid *scold tongue-lash jaw bawl out wig

Ana Censure denounce condemn reprobate reprehend *criticize reprimand rebuke *reprove reproach raillery *Badinage persiflage

Ana Bantering or banter chaffing or chaff rallying or rally (see corresponding verbs at BANTER) sport *fun game jest play satire sarcasm irony (see WIT) raiment Apparel, attire tire *clothes clothing dress vesture array raise v *Lift elevate hoist heave rear boost

Ana *Rise ascend, mount soar *exalt magnify aggrandize *advance promote forward further rally v ¹ *Stir rouse arouse awaken waken

Ana Excite stimulate quicken *provoke enkindle fire, inflame (see LIGHT v) *renew restore refresh rally v ² 1 *Ridicule deride mock taunt twit

Ana *Scoff jeer gibe flout tease tantalize *worry harass, harry 2 *Banter chaff, quiz kid rag guy rib josh jolly ramble, v *Wander stray roam rove range prowl gad gallivant traipse meander rampant *Rank

Ana Luxuriant lush exuberant *profuse lavish immoderate *excessive Inordinate

Con *Moderate temperate restrained curbed checked (see RESTRAINED) rampart *Bulwark breastwork parapet barbette bastion rancid *Malodorous, stinking fetid rank, noisome putrid fusty musty

Ana Decomposed decayed spoiled (see DECAY) *offensive loathsome repulsive rancor or rancour Antagonism animosity animus antipathy *enmity hostility

Ana Hate hatred detestation abhorrence abomination (see under HATE v) spite *malice malevolence malignity spleen, grudge random Random haphazard, chance, chancy casual, desultory, hit-or-miss happy-go-lucky come into comparison as meaning having a cause or a character that is determined by accident rather than by design or by method That is random which comes goes occurs is made or the like without a fixed or clearly defined aim purpose or evidence of method or system or direction the term therefore implies no or little guidance by a governing mind eye objective or the like as a random shot a random answer to a question a random collection of books "My choice was as random as blindman's buff" (Burns) "They will throw out a random word in or out of season" (Lamb) "He had not heard her divorce spoken of since Janey's first random allusion to it" (E Wharton) That is haphazard which is done is made is used is said or the like without concern or without sufficient concern for its fitness its effectiveness its possible ill effects or the like and which therefore is more or less at the mercy of chance or of natural or logical necessity as a haphazard policy haphazard methods of teaching French a haphazard arrangement of shrubs and plants in a garden That is described as chance which comes or happens to one or is done or made by one without prearrangement or preawareness or without preparation the term is applicable not only to things but to persons with whom one comes into contact more or less by accident as, a chance acquaintance a chance meeting with an old friend a chance remark of the stranger whose face seemed familiar led to my identification of him "He explained that by a charming accident he had disposed of them to a chance buyer in Hanbridge just before starting for Birmingham" (Bennett) That is chancy (a colloquial term) which is so haphazard that it involves uncertainty and risk or that its results actions etc cannot be predicted the term may apply directly or indirectly to persons who are willing to take chances as well as to things that are precarious as a result of their haphazardness as "It is the instinct of the English and the Irish to suspect government and take the risks of the chancy way" (H G Wells) "[The purchase of shares of a company about to undertake a project] is a chancy business" (Shaw) A person or a thing is casual (as here compared see also ACCIDENTAL) that leaves or seems to leave things to chance and that works acts or comes or goes, haphazardly or by chance or without method or deliberation or other indication of intent or purpose the term often also suggests offhandedness (as a casual remark he is a casual fellow his treatment of his friends is casual) or lightness or spontaneity (as "She was constantly referring to dear friends in a casual and familiar way and there were so many of them that it was long before I could distinguish them —H. Ellis), or lack of definiteness as in terms or intention (as, "their policy was opportunist at home and casual abroad —Spectator) "Perhaps the dominant feeling about government today is distrust. The tone of most comment whether casual or deliberate implies that incertitude and inadequacy are the chief characteristics of government" (Frankfurter) "The casual allusion, the chance reference to her" (H. Adams) That is desultory which is not governed by method or system and which therefore jumps or skips from one thing to another. Usually the term implies another quality as a consequence of these such as irregularity or lack of continuousness or persistence (as "He had begun in a desultory way to annotate the diary that Tom had kept on the mesa —Cather), or rambling discursiveness (as, "The book in short is desultory to the last degree and discourses in varying moods on a variety of topics"—Quiller-Couch) or the absence of a as to what pattern or arrangement it makes (as, hit-or-miss hammering hit-or-miss patchwork "A hit-or-miss policy was pursued by the Department of Justice" (W. Z. Ripley) A person is happy-go-lucky who leaves everything to chance or who accepts with happiness or indifference whatever comes a thing is happy-go-lucky that is governed by such a disposition (as a happy-go-lucky race a happy-go-lucky way of earning one's living "A radical pragmatist on the other hand is a happy-go-lucky sort of creature" (W. James) "To make Carter think and talk ... in the happy-go-lucky way of his class" (Reade)

Ana Fortuitous *accidental casual vagrant vagabond truant (see corresponding nouns at VAGABOND) range, v 1 *Line align array

Ana Arrange *order marshal *assort sort classify *incline dispose predispose bias

2 *Wander rove ramble roam stray prowl gad gallivant traipse meander range, n 1 *Habitat station

2 Range, reach scope, compass, sweep, gamut, radius, ken, purview, horizon orbit come into comparison when they denote the extent that lies within the powers of something to cover to grasp to control or the like Range often applies to the extent taken in or covered as by the eye (as there was no human being within my range of vision) or by the ear (as he did not call until he within the range and character of his deepest sympathies —Cather) or the like (as he did not fire until they were within range of his rifle) Equally often the term applies to the literal or figurative extent determined by a thing's powers possibilities capacity or performances and the variety of types gradations kinds etc that it conversation in mixed company (Brownell) "Monochrome is a starved and lifeless term to express the marvellous range and subtlety of tones of which the preparation of black soot known as Chinese ink is capable" (Binyon) When the reference is to something stretched out or stretching itself out as an arm or in the own reach to know How far your genius, taste and learning go (Pope)," Mrs. Bennet was beyond the reach of reason (Austen), "simple virtues within every lated but to some extent contrasted senses. In one of these it denotes the extent between established or predetermined limits which encompass one on all sides and which for one reason or another cannot be overpassed as, the subject does not lie within the scope of this book "all matters within the scope of your understanding" (Austen), "I shall put on one side all speculations about the state its scope and limits" (Frankfurter) In the other senses here considered the term denotes room or space for free uncircumscribed activity growth, expression

(C. Mackenzie) Compass, like range and reach, applies to the utmost extent which can be taken in or reached by or as if by the eye the arm the mind the imagination or the like but like scope it carries an implication of limits that have the character or quality of a circumference

Gamut (literally a musical scale ascribed to Guido d'Arezzo) in its extended sense applies to a range which represents a graded series of all the notes tones, varieties

Virginia a gentleman from Kentucky a man from Ohio, a fellow from New York and a galoot from Boston

plies to the space (literal or figurative space) encircling

France swims into his ken (Keats) Purview is strictly applied to the scope as of a document a statute a book or the like (as The statute intended to include in its purview all the circumstances of the consecration of Parker" —Gladstone) is now more often used in a sense that is almost identical with that of ken "Blake conceived that it was his vocation to bring this mystical illumination this vision of reality within the purview of ordinary men" (E Underhill) Horizon, in its extended sense suggests a compass that represents the utmost reaches on all sides of the human mind or soul especially under given conditions as, "the horizon of the human intellect has widened wonderfully during the past hundred years" (C W Eliot) "Your horizon contracts your mind's eye is focused upon a small circle of exasperating detail" (Jan Struther) Orbit is often used in place of scope in the sense of circumscribing limits as "A small private income ... confined us to a much narrower orbit" (Quiller-Couch) "the orbit within which Mr Murry's discussion moves" (T S Eliot)

Ana Extent area (see SIZE) *field domain province sphere territory spread stretch *expanse amplitude rank, adj 1 Rank rampant are compared as meaning growing or increasing at an immoderate rate Rank, as here considered applies chiefly to vegetation though it is sometimes applied to soil land and the like or is used figuratively The term implies vigorous luxuriant often unchecked growth sometimes of crops (as "And behold seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk, rank and good" —Genesis xli 5) but more often of coarse and unwanted plants, such as weeds or wild shrubs, or undergrowth (as rank growth rank vegetation rank grass) "The even mead [meadow] ... all uncorrected rank ... nothing teems But hateful docks rough thistles kecksies, burs" (Shak) "Weed your better judgements Of all opinion that grows rank in them" (Shak) Rampant is far more widely applicable than rank for it implies rapid often unrestrained or wild spreading and therefore is frequently applicable not only to that which literally grows but to that which extends or increases by contagion diffusion or the like as, "It grieved him to see ignorance and impiety so rampant" (Fuller) "that curiosity which is so rampant as a rule in an Indian village" (Kipling) "the person in whose blood stream malaria is rampant" (A C Morrison)

Ana *Coarse gross vulgar exuberant *profuse lavish luxuriant.

2 Fusty musty rancid *malodorous stinking fetid noisome putrid

Ana Dank humid (see WET) *offensive loathsome repulsive decomposed decayed spoiled (see DECAY)

Ant Balmy

3 *Flagrant glaring gross

Ana Conspicuous outstanding *noticeable foul filthy squalid nasty (see DIRTY) *outrageous heinous atrocious, monstrous ransom v *Rescue deliver redeem reclaim save

Ana *Free, release liberate emancipate manumit *expiate atone rant, n *Bombast fustian rodomontade rhapsody

Ana Inflatedness or inflation turgidity tumidity flatulence (see corresponding adjectives at INFLATED) rapacious Ravening ravenous, gluttonous *voracious.

Ana *Ferocious, fierce greedy grasping *covetous rapacity Greed *cupidity avarice

Ana. Covetousness, avariciousness greediness graspingness (see corresponding adjectives at COVETOUS) exaction demanding or demand claiming or claim (see corresponding verbs at DEMAND) rapid, adj *Fast, swift fleet quick speedy hasty expeditious.

Ana. Brisk nimble, *agile hurried quickened (see SPEED v)

Ant Deliberate leisurely rapt Absorbed engrossed *intent

Ana Ecstatic transported rapturous (see corresponding nouns at ECSTASY) enchanted captivated fascinated (see ATTRACT)

Con *Indifferent, unconcerned incurious uninterested *disinterested rapture *Ecstasy transport

Ana Bliss beatitude blessedness felicity *happiness elation exultation (see corresponding adjectives at ELATED) rare 1 Tenuous, slight, *thin, slender, slim

Ana *Subtle subtile.

2 Delicate dainty exquisite *choice elegant recherché

Ana Excelling or excellent transcending or transcendent surpassing (see corresponding verbs at EXCEED) superlative *supreme incomparable

3 Scarce *infrequent uncommon occasional sporadic

Ana *Exceptional singular unique curious, *strange

Con *Usual customary wonted accustomed habitual *common ordinary familiar rarefy *Thin, attenuate extenuate dilute

Ana Diminish reduce, lessen *decrease *expand distend inflate rash Daring daredevil reckless temerarious foolhardy, *adventurous venturous venturesome

Ana *Precipitate abrupt impetuous sudden hasty desperate forlorn (see DESPONDENT)

Ant Calculating — Con *Cautious circumspect wary chary rate, n Levy assessment *tax excise impost customs duty toll tariff tribute tithe teind cess.

rate, v[1] Berate upbraid *scold tonguelash jaw bawl out wig rail revile vituperate

Ana *Reprove reproach rebuke reprimand admonish chide censure condemn, denounce reprehend reprobate *criticize rate v[2] Value evaluate appraise *estimate assess assay

Ana *Calculate compute reckon estimate *decide determine settle ratify Ratify confirm are here compared only as meaning to make something legally valid or operative Both terms presuppose previous action as by a person or body with power of appointing of legislating of framing a document such as a constitution a treaty or the like and imply reference therefore only to the act of the person or body (or persons or bodies) endowed with the power to accept or to veto the appointment bill constitution etc The terms are occasionally interchanged without loss but ratify usually carries a stronger implication of approval than confirm and is therefore used by preference when the acceptance of something such as a constitution a treaty a course of action that has been framed or proposed by a committee or a small body is put up to a society legislature or nation as a whole for a vote that testifies to its approval thus the Constitution of the United States was framed by the Constitutional Convention in 1787 and went into effect in 1788 after it had been ratified by eleven states "The Report of the [Lambeth] Conference is not intended to be an absolute decree on questions of faith and morals for the matter of that the opinions expressed have no compulsion until ratified by Convocation" (T S Eliot) Confirm on the other hand stresses the giving of formal or decisive assent as necessary to a thing's validity It applies specifically to appointments made by a president, governor or other top executive, that according to the constitution of a nation or state require the consent of a senate a legislature a council or other body before they are definitely settled and made legally valid, as The

Ana *Authorize accredit license commission sanction *approve endorse validate authenticate (see CONFIRM) rating *Mariner sailor seaman, tar, gob, matlow bluejacket ratiocination *Inference illation.

Ant Intuition

ratiocinative Illative inferential See under INFERENCE

...ual supply of food for each animal In these uses it generally implies a fixed variety and restricted amounts of each food When used of a particular food or commodity as wheat or coal it implies a shortage in the supply and a limitation on the amount allowed each person as the sugar ration in 1918 was two teaspoonfuls a day Allowance though often interchangeable with the court determines an heir's allowance during his mi... the national government In the United States it designates commonly the amount given periodically to a such a dowry would be a pittance while elsewhere it is a fortune (Byron)

Ana Apportionment portioning or portion (see corresponding verbs at APPORTION) sharing or share participation partaking (see corresponding verbs at SHARE) ration, v *Apportion portion prorate parcel

Ana Divide *distribute dispense deal dole *share partake participate rational Rational reasonable come into comparison when they are applied to men their acts utterances.

specifically to imply a latent or active power to make inferences from the facts of which one is aware and to draw from such inferences conclusions that enable one to understand the world about him and to relate such knowledge to the attainment of personal and common ends often, in this use rational is opposed to emotional imaginative, animal and the like as, man is a rational animal "we are rational but we are animal too" (Cowper) "In Octavian the emotional side was slow to develop, but from the start the rational was all-powerful (Buchan), "To cure this habit of mind it is necessary to replace fear by rational prevision of misfortune (B Russell) When the term is applied to policies, projects, systems, or to anything already conceived or formulated rational is preferred when justification on grounds that are satisfactory to the reason is specifically implied as, the advantages of a rational orthography (Grandgent) "States may do a good deal of classifying that it is difficult to believe rational" (Justice Holmes) Reasonable usually carries a much weaker implication than rational of the power to reason in general or of guidance by conclusions drawn by the reasoning powers on the other hand it commonly suggests enough guidance by the reason to enable one to avoid mistakes that will lead one into unforeseen difficulties or to make decisions or choices that are practical sensible just or fair "When I was a child and was told that our dog and our parrot were not creatures like myself but were brutal whilst I was reasonable

(Justice Holmes) A reasonableness a refusal to be war (H Ellis) The formation of reasonable habits of method of punctuality is a duty not from an exalted point of view but because it makes enormously for the happiness and convenience of every one about us (A C Benson)

Ant Irrational animal (of nature) demented (of state of mind) absurd (of actions etc) rationalize *Explain account for justify raids storms floods, and the like but it may be employed when only one such act or event or the like achieves a like effect as the barbarians ravaged Greece

Gresham had devastated the neighbouring county to get timber for his Royal Exchange (H. Ellis) "He fell suddenly on the Nervii with four legions seized their cattle wasted their country" (Froude) Sack strictly suggests the act or acts of a victorious army entering a town or other place that has been captured and stripping it of all its possessions of value by looting or destruction as, "We sacked the city after nine months siege" (T Heywood) "the English monasteries were sacked by the invading Danes" In current use sack often means to burglarize so successfully that little of value is left or that all genuinely valuable articles are taken as "house after house was sacked that summer when their owners were away" Pillage stresses ruthless plunder such as is characteristic of an invading or victorious army but it carries a weaker implication of devastation than sack carries as "He pillaged many Spanish towns, and took rich prizes" (Fuller) "the soldiers were allowed to pillage any town or fields through which they passed" In current nonmilitary use pillage still implies ruthlessness, but it carries a stronger implication of appropriation to oneself of something that belongs to another as by fleecing plagiarizing or robbing as "humbugged by their doctors pillaged by their tradesmen" (Shaw) Despoil like sack implies a stripping of valuables, but it does not so often refer to places such as towns or cities which are ransacked for booty it is usually the preferred term when a building such as a church a palace an institution or the like or the person (or persons) connected with it is (or are) deprived of valuables by force or violence as "the despoiling (or despoliation) of the English monasteries in the 16th century" "We are not yet So utterly despoiled but we can spread The friendly board" (Southey) "We can endure that He should waste our lands, Despoil our temples . . . Such food a Tyrant's appetite demands" (Wordsworth) "Kill! crush! despoil! Let not a Greek escape!" (Shelley) Despoil may also imply wanton deprivation of valuable qualities or excellences as, "Despoiled of innocence of faith of bliss" (Milton) Spoliate is more consistently a legal rather than a military term but it has some general use in its meaning it comes close to despoil but it is the preferred term when piracy upon neutral ships in time of war is implied or especially in current general use when the gaining of spoils by means of exactions graft, or various venal practices is suggested as "the Tweed Ring was charged with spoliating (or the spoliation of) the people of New York City"

Ana *Destroy demolish raze plunder loot *rob *ruin wreck wrack invade *trespass encroach ravening Rapacious ravenous gluttonous *voracious

Ana, Greedy acquisitive grasping *covetous ravenous Ravening rapacious, *voracious gluttonous

Ana Grasping greedy acquisitive *covetous *fierce ferocious ravin or raven or ravine *Victim prey quarry raw Crude callow green *rude rough

Ana, *Elementary elemental *ignorant untaught untutored *immature unmatured unripe

Con Practiced exercised drilled (see PRACTICE v) seasoned hardened inured (see HARDEN) *mature matured ripe adult grown up rawboned Gaunt angular *lean lank lanky spare scrawny skinny ray Ray beam are here compared chiefly in their popular senses as denoting a shaft of light This conception of light as a shaft is fixed in our language but is not always in keeping with modern scientific views of the nature of light Ray (etymologically akin to radius) suggests emanation from a center in the manner of the spokes of a wheel it is often applied to one of the apparently thin lines of light that seem to extend from a radiant body, such as the sun or a star, or that are flashed by something brilliant such as steel glittering in the sun as "the more numerous the facets of a diamond the more numerous the rays of light it reflects" In physics, ray often implies a particular color (as a red ray a violet ray) Beam implies not a line but a long bar (timber was the original sense of the term), it suggests therefore a bar made up of a bundle of rays of light as "the beam of an automobile headlight or of a searchlight" "Thither came Uriel gliding through the even On a sunbeam swift as a shooting star" (Milton) "Where a sunbeam enters, every particle of dust becomes visible" (Ruskin) A small beam is sometimes called a ray as "a tiny hole in the window shade admitted a ray of sunlight into the room" In physics "a beam of white light is split by a prism into rays of light of the various colors of the spectrum" Ray is the usual term for implying heat-giving property thus, ray is more often used of the sun than of the moon as "the rays of the sun are more intense in summer than in winter" "How far that little candle throws his beams!" (Shak) raze Demolish *destroy

Ana Efface obliterate (see ERASE) eradicate extirpate (see EXTERMINATE) *ruin wreck *abolish extinguish annihilate reach v Reach gain compass achieve, attain agree in meaning to arrive at a point by effort or work Reach is the most general term being capable of reference to anything that can be arrived at by exertion of any degree as a point in space in time or in a development or as a destination a goal a position of eminence or the like as "they reached Chicago that night after a long discussion they reached an understanding he reached success early in life" In extended use reach may be predicated even of inanimate things as "the hour hand has reached two the depression has reached bottom" Gain usually implies a struggle to reach a contemplated or desired destination or goal "At last the top of the staircase was gained" (Dickens) "I had gained the frontier and slept safe that night" (Browning) Compass implies efforts to get around difficulties or to transcend limitations it often connotes skill or craft in management "A writer who is attempting a higher strain of elevation or pathos than his powers can compass" (C E Montague) "If you can compass it, do cure the younger girls of running after the officers" (Austen) Achieve in discriminating use stresses the skill or the endurance as well as the efforts involved in reaching an end "Some are born great some achieve greatness" (Shak) "No government or private organization could give health people had to achieve it" (V Heiser) Often it implies accomplishment of that which is in itself a feat or triumph "A complete moral unity such as England achieved" (Belloc) Attain in careful use connotes more strongly than any of the others the spur of aspiration or ambition as "his constant efforts to attain his ends" It is therefore especially referable to ends beyond the vision the scope or the powers of most men "This indispensable condition of the safety and civilisation of the world is, indeed very difficult to attain" (J A Hobson) "A fine balance of all the forces of the human spirit such as but once or twice has been attained in the world's history" (Binyon)

Ana Effect fulfill execute accomplish *perform *get obtain procure secure reach, n *Range scope compass sweep gamut radius, ken purview horizon orbit

Ana Extent area magnitude (see SIZE) spread stretch *expanse capacity capability *ability react. Operate work function *act behave.

readiness Readiness, ease facility, dexterity come into comparison when they denote the power of doing some-ness in repartee "a happy readiness of conversation (Austen) Ease which is probably more often used of the quality than of the power suggests not only a lack of all signs of strain or care but an absence of signs of hesitation or uncertainty with resulting evenness in performance and especially in spoken or written discourse which he displayed in the conduct of practical affairs (Bennett) Facility, though sometimes used in a derogatory sense (as his fatal facility in composition His facility in language has been fatal only too often to his logic and philosophy —J C Van Dyke) more freboth readiness and facility but it carries a stronger implication than any of the preceding words of previous training or practice and of proficiency or skill as the singular discernment and dexterity with which he had directed his whip (Austen) his amazing dexterity in argument I should train school-children in forms of more or less dangerous dexterity rather than in such things as football (B Russell)

Ana Quickness promptness aptness (see corresponding adjectives at QUICK) alacrity *celerity legerity fluency eloquence volubility (see corresponding adjectives at VOCAL)

Con *Effort exertion pains trouble ready *Quick prompt apt

Ana Expert adept skilled skillful *proficient *active live dynamic real Real actual true and their derivative nouns reality actuality truth are often used interchangeably without marked loss when they mean correspondent (or that which is correspondent) to all the facts known and knowable as the real or the actual or the true state of affairs his real or actual or true motive the real or actual or true George Washington They are also often used interchangeably even by good writers but with distinct loss in clearness and precision when their common implication is merely that of substantial objective existence Real, in this more inclusive sense implies genuineness or correspondence between what the thing appears or pretends to be and what it is as this is a real diamond the British sovereign has little real power he has a real interest in art To know the difference between real and sham enjoyment (Shaw) Actual emphasizes occurrence or manifest existence It is applied only to that which has emerged into the sphere of action or fact and is therefore inapplicable to abstractions as actual events give me an actual instance of the workings of this law the actual tests of the new sible way—I am far from asserting it was the actual way—in which our legendary Socrates arose" (H Ellis) True implies conformity either to that which is real or to that which is actual If the former is intended the term presupposes a standard a pattern a model a technical definition or a type by which that which is true is determined as a true Christian the ladybird is not a true bug (an insect of the order Hemiptera) but a beetle (an insect of the order Coleoptera) the whale is story a true version of a story The same event can [not] be said to be true for faith but untrue for science (Inge) The language [of poetry] must often, in liveliness and truth fall short of that which is uttered by men in real life under the actual pressure of those passions (Wordsworth)

These words, especially real and true are also used by philosophers and philosophical poets, critics, scientists and others in senses which are often at variance with those in ordinary use and which are consequently a source of confusion All still imply substantial objective existence but only actual necessarily implies existence in experience Real is variously defined in philosophy only two of those senses have come into use by others than philosophers. The older of these senses (often spoken of only what we see of nature—the phenomena of nature But science might legitimately progress along the road from phenomena to reality (Jeans) In another but not so common use real denotes having existence independently of the mind This sense derives from the division of modern philosophy into two and aesthetic use implies conformity to reality in Doubtless he was somebody you icates place of treatment of each group rie] knew that leads people so far astray The actual is not the true' (Stevenson)

Ana Being existing or existent, subsisting or subsistent (see corresponding verbs at BE) *certain necessary inevitable

Ant Unreal apparent (sense 2) imaginary realize Realize actualize embody, incarnate materialize externalize, objectify, substantiate substantialize hypostatize reify are the chief words in English meaning to give concrete or objective existence to that which has existed either as an abstraction a conception or the like or as a possibility Except within smaller groups they are however seldom interchangeable because their implications vary widely and their applications are largely determined by idiom Realize commonly implies emergence into the sphere of actual things as of that which has been a dream an ideal a hope or a plan as the project was never realized owing to a lack of funds he did not realize his ambition until he was past middle life The ideal of economic efficiency is best realized by a machine (Grandgent) The implication of attainment of achievement or of fulfillment is at times so strong in realize as to obscure or subordinate its fundamental idea "To achieve a beautiful relation to another human being is to realize a part of perfection (Binyon) However evolution is effected a divine purpose is being realized in it (Inge) Actualize, though sometimes used interchangeably with realize is found chiefly in philosophical or technical writings with the implication of emergence as of that which has existed only in potentiality either into fullness or perfection of existence (as powers of the mind never actualized) or into act or action (as, potential energy becomes kinetic energy when it is actualized by motion) Embody and incarnate sometimes imply investment with an outward or visible form of something abstract as a principle an idea a trait or a quality as "The poet cannot embody his conceptions so vividly and completely as the painter (Binyon) Dickens incarnated hypocrisy in his Uriah Heep Materialize stresses emergence into the sphere of that which is perceptible or tangible and usually presupposes prior vagueness haziness, or elusiveness I had the glimmering of an idea and endeavoured to materialize it in words (N Hawthorne) Materialize as a transitive verb is now used chiefly in Spiritualism (as to materialize spirits or to make them visible) Externalize and objectify emphasize the projection of that which is subjective as a thought an emotion, a desire so that it takes form apart from the mind Externalize often suggests a conscious or unconscious urge for expression or relief as hallucinations are frequently externalizations of a fear Madness has produced valuable art the artist attempts to rid himself of his abnormality by externalizing it into the work of art (Day Lewis) Objectify is more likely to suggest a conscious attempt to overcome the limitations of subjectivity and to contemplate one's own mental processes as, introspective psychology depends for its data upon the power of the investigator to objectify his own sensations emotions and thoughts Substantiate substantialize hypostatize reify occur chiefly in philosophical and technical writing They all imply conversion by the mind of that which is a concept or abstraction into a thing that has real and objective yet not as a rule perceptible existence thus, in the mind of the ordinary person, space and time are substantialized hypostatized etc. whereas in the view of philosophers and philosophic scientists they are relations

Ana Effect fulfill execute accomplish achieve *perform

2 *Think conceive imagine fancy envisage envision.

Ana *Understand comprehend appreciate rear, adj *Posterior, after back hind hinder

Ant. Front

rear, v Raise *lift, elevate hoist heave boost.

Ana *Rise, ascend mount soar *nurse nurture foster breed propagate (see GENERATE) reason n 1 Reason, ground, argument, proof are here compared as meaning a point or series of points offered or capable of being offered in support of something questioned or disputed Reason usually implies the need of justification either to oneself or another of some practice action opinion belief or the like it is therefore commonly (though not necessarily) personal in its reference thus, a father asks the reason for his son's disobedience a person gives the reasons for his preference Reason is often applied to any motive consideration inducement or the like, which one offers in explanation or defense. So convenient it is to be a reasonable creature since it enables one to find or make a reason for every thing one has in mind to do (Franklin) Ground and its plural grounds are often used in place of reason and reasons because they too imply the intent to justify or defend When however the emphasis is on evidence data facts reasoning etc rather than on motives or considerations ground is the acceptable word thus, the reasons for a belief may explain why it is held but the grounds for it give evidence of the validity of that belief a scientist presents the grounds (better than reasons) for his conclusion Ground also suggests more solid support in fact and therefore greater cogency than reason thus one may speak of frivolous or trumped up reasons (but not grounds) there is ground (better than reason) for the popular belief in thought transference "Suppose I have grounds to think that he can t take care of himself in a given instance?" (Conrad) Argument stresses the intent to convince another or to bring him into agreement with one's view or position Strictly it implies the use of evidence and reasoning in the making and stating of a point in support of one's contention as, the debaters came well provided with arguments every possible argument in favor of the proposal has been advanced but still the Congress is obdurate. Loosely however it often suggests reasoning without reference to fact When he was asked to argue the merits of vaccination he always rejoined that one fact in such cases was worth a thousand arguments (V Heiser) Proof in strict usage emphasizes not an intent but an effect that of conclusive demonstration therefore in the sense here considered a proof is any piece of evidence such as a fact, a document or the testimony of a witness or expert or any argument that evokes a feeling of certainty in those who are to be convinced "These arguments [for the existence of God] are sometimes called proofs though they are not demonstrations they are however closely inwoven with the texture of rational experience (Inge)

Ana Explanation justification rationalization (see corresponding verbs at EXPLAIN)

2 *Cause determinant antecedent occasion

Ana *Motive incentive inducement, impulse basis, foundation ground (see BASE n)

3 Reason intuition, understanding are here compared as terms denoting that power of the intellect by which man arrives at truth or knowledge Like the terms discriminated at MIND these words have been variously defined by psychologists and philosophers with the result that their precise interpretation in literary use often depends upon a knowledge of the author's philosophical or psychological background Reason though often loosely used as though it were an equivalent of mind and intellect (see MIND) as here compared (see also CAUSE 1, REASON 1) applies mainly to the thinking power of the intellect, as such it implies a power which works upon facts gained by perception or upon facts or principles instilled into one's mind by others and which orders and relates those facts and principles by drawing inferences from them and a conclusion or conclusions from a body of inferences thereby increasing one's knowledge or reaching a comprehension of that which was formerly vague or obscure "Those who use their reason do not reach the same conclusions as those who obey their prejudices (Lippmann) "Facts have a double value they give us wherewithal to think straight and they stimulate the imagination for imagination like reason cannot run without the gasoline of knowledge (Grandgent) Reason often specifically applies to a power of arriving at knowledge which is higher than perception or the power of gaining knowledge through the medium of the senses, because it starts from the point where perception ends and yet which is lower than another power (variously named, e g , intuition) which enables one to attain knowledge or comprehension of that which is invisible and immaterial without the aid of the senses as truths beyond reason To admit that reason can ing at knowledge or truth by logical processes whether one starts with observed facts, with principles regarded as axioms or necessary postulates or the like, thus in Kant's definition pure reason does not start with facts derived from experience or observation but with truths ately and not through the agency of the reason. The term usually also suggests a knowledge that is comparable to that which one gains through seeing or perceiving but since it frequently implies knowledge of that which is beyond the senses it may denote a power higher than reason which enables the mind to attain immediate knowledge of the supersensible or supernatural. One in whom persuasion and belief Had ripened into faith and faith become A passionate intuition (Wordsworth) In philosophical psychological and aesthetic use the term commonly denotes a power of arriving at truth or knowledge that is different from though not necessarily

INSTINCTIVE 1) implies a gift or an instinct for immedi facts, or what is required of one to meet adequately a situation or exigency, as "To have a really precise understanding of this matter (Shaw), "Knowledge he has gained but not understanding" (A Repplier) In its philosophical and here pertinent sense understanding applies to a power to see a thing not as an individual but as an instance of the class or species to which it character and therefore from having an understanding of it one who regards a thing from the point of view of understanding sees it in its universal and often, by implication its eternal essence In this sense understanding (especially as a translation of the German Verstand) is often but not invariably, distinguished from reason (especially as a translation of the German Vernunft which usually includes intuition in its higher sense) in that understanding is thought of as the power of the intellect whereby the external objective world becomes orderly and intelligible and reason as the power by which one ascends from what is known to new knowledge "Understanding is the entire power of perceiving and conceiving [that is, making concepts], exclusive of the sensibility the power of dealing with the impressions of sense and composing them into wholes (Coleridge) The neoclassicists by admitting only what is probable to the understanding reduced unduly the rôle of illusion, the element of wonder and surprise (Babbitt)

Ana *Mind intellect, intelligence, brain ratiocination, illation, *inference te cogitate

wise fair equitable just.

Ant Unreasonable

rebate *Deduction, abatement, discount rebel, n Rebel, insurgent, iconoclast come into comparison when they denote a person who rises up against constituted authority or the established order Rebel recognized in Europe till the period of the French Revolution The term rebel was in itself a term of reproach till the days of Byron (R F N Dodge) point of view be designated as insurgents even though they call themselves rebels as, the colonial forces were found able to cope with the insurgents in India In a to his many

roup

the free verse movement was led by a group of insurgents Iconoclast (etymologically, an image breaker, originally one of a party of insurgents in the Eastern Church in the 8th and 9th centuries who opposed the use of icons [see icon under IMAGE 1]) is now applied in an extended sense to any person who violently attacks an established belief, a venerated custom, a highly respected tradition, or the like as an obstacle to reform or progress or as a mere fetish. "I have become a reformer and, like all reformers, an iconoclast . . . I shatter creeds and demolish idols" (Shaw) "Julius was a bold iconoclast about republican forms which had survived their usefulness . . . Augustus sought to cherish whatever of these forms could be made to work" (Buchan) rebellion Rebellion, revolution, uprising, revolt, insurrection, mutiny, Putsch come into comparison only when they denote a war or a warlike outbreak against a government or against powers in authority. Rebellion in this narrow sense implies open, organized, and usually armed resistance to constituted authority or to the government in power; the term is usually applied (only after the event) to an instance of such resistance as has failed to overthrow the powers that be; as, Jack Straw's Rebellion; the Jacobite rebellions of 1715 and 1745. Revolution, on the other hand, applies strictly to a rebellion that has been successful to the extent that the old government is overthrown and a new one substituted; as, the French Revolution; the American Revolution. The term, however, does not invariably imply a war or a warlike outbreak or even a change in government; as, the industrial revolution of the nineteenth century; to effect a bloodless revolution by a coup d'état. The words are often applied to the same event according to the point of view of the user or sometimes according to the time in which it is used, thus, the American Civil War of 1861–1865 was called the "War of the Rebellion" by Northerners not only during its progress but for a long time after; a revolution is often called a rebellion by the overthrown government or its supporters until bitterness has faded; thus, the English Civil War (1642–1652) was, after the Restoration (1660), and still sometimes is called the Great Rebellion. Uprising is a somewhat general term applicable to any act of violence that indicates a popular desire to defy or overthrow the government; it is often used in reference to a small and ineffective movement among an insurgent class or section of the people but it is applicable also to the first signs of a general or widespread rebellion; as, there was fear of uprisings in different parts of the country; "Whenever the whole nation should join together in one sudden and vigorous uprising" (Freeman) Revolt and insurrection in strict use apply to an armed uprising which does not attain the extent of a rebellion either because it is quickly put down or is immediately effective. Revolt, however, carries a stronger suggestion of a refusal to accept conditions or continue in allegiance than does insurrection, which often suggests a seditious act such as an attempt to seize the governing power or to gain control for one's party. "The Reformation . . . was no sudden revolt, but the culmination of a long agitation for national independence in religious matters" (Inge) "Baltazar's tyranny grew little by little and the Ácoma people were sometimes at the point of revolt" (Cather) "Insurrections of base people are more furious in their beginnings" (Bacon) "Excess of obedience is . . . as bad as insurrection" (Meredith) Mutiny applies chiefly to an insurrection against military or especially maritime or naval authority; as, the ship's master feared mutiny long before it occurred; the mutiny of a regiment made the situation desperate for the invaders. Putsch, a Swiss-German term in some use in English, applies to a small popular uprising; as, the Kapp Putsch in Germany in 1920; the Munich beer hall Putsch of Hitler's supporters in 1923.

Ana *Opponent, antagonist, adversary: assailant, attacker (see ATTACK v)

Ana *Sedition, treason: resistance, opposition, combating, withstanding (see corresponding verbs at OPPOSE) rebellious. *Insubordinate, mutinous, seditious, factious, contumacious

Ana Recalcitrant, refractory, intractable, *unruly, ungovernable: estranged, alienated, disaffected (see ESTRANGE)

Ant Acquiescent: resigned: submissive rebound, v Rebound, reverberate, recoil, resile, repercuss come into comparison when they mean to spring back especially after being thrown, stretched, or the like. Rebound literally implies a springing back after a collision or impact; as, the ball readily rebounds when thrown against a wall. In figurative use, the term implies a springing back as from one extreme to another or from an abnormal condition to one that is normal; as, his heart rebounded with hope. Reverberate is now used chiefly in reference to sounds which are forced back in the manner of an echo or series of echoes, but it is still employed with reference to rays of light, flames, or waves of heat which are repelled or reflected from side to side or from one surface to another. "The evening gun thundered from the fortress, and was reverberated from the heights" (N. Hawthorne) "The far flashing of their starry lances Reverberates the dying light of day" (Shelley) Recoil in its literal use (see also RECOIL 1) often implies a springing back after being stretched, strained, or depressed; as, the springs of a mattress recoil after the pressure has been removed; the gun recoils when a shot is fired. This implication is even more often apparent in one of the figurative senses of the verb, where the suggestion of a return to the source or point of origin in the manner of a boomerang is also evident. "That evidence missed the mark at which it was aimed and recoiled on him from whom it proceeded" (Macaulay) But recoil often implies a springing back in the sense of being forced back by or as if by a blow; it then may or may not connote a retreat, a receding, a reeling, or the like; as, "Ten paces huge He back recoiled" (Milton) "As deep recoiling surges foam below" (Burns) "Cashel [in a fight] recoiled, wringing his hand to relieve the tingling of his knuckles" (Shaw) Resile (the least common of these words), like recoil, may imply a springing back into the original state or position, but in this sense it is commonly used in reference to resilient bodies or substances and suggests either literally or figuratively a drawing back that is normal or lacking in abruptness; as, to give a tube time to resile after it has been stretched; many of the converts to the new religion resiled in the course of time. Repercuss, which is now rare (its corresponding noun repercussion and adjective repercussive are common), is a close synonym of reverberate and rebound for it implies the return of something moving ahead with great force or, in figurative use, set in motion or operation, back to or toward the starting point. However, it (or especially the noun or the adjective) distinctively suggests repulsion upon impact and a return with undiminished force or sometimes even greater force and often, when persons are involved, with a marked effect upon the one or the ones who initiated the action; as, the waves dashed against the rocks and repercussed with a great roar; the attack was violent but its repercussion was destructive; few foresaw the inevitable repercussions of the Treaty of Versailles.

Ana Bound, *skip: ricochet rebuild. Remodel, *mend, repair, patch.

Ana. *Renew, restore, renovate, refresh rebuke. *Reprove, reprimand, admonish, reproach, chide.

Ana Rate, upbraid, *scold, berate: *criticize, reprehend reprobate rebut. *Disprove, refute, confute, controvert.

recalcitrant. Refractory, intractable, headstrong willful *unruly ungovernable Ana Rebellious, *insubordinate, factious contumacious *obstinate, stubborn resisting opposing withstanding combating or combative (see corresponding verbs at OPPOSE) Ant. Amenable (sense 2) recall, v Recollect, *remember, remind, reminisce bethink mind Ana. Evoke, elicit, extract, *educe *stir, rouse, arouse, waken, awaken recant. Retract, *abjure renounce, forswear Ana. Withdraw, remove recede. Recede, retreat, retrograde, retract, back, crawfish come into comparison when they mean to move or seem to move in the direction that is exactly the opposite [illegible] is stationary and the point of view changes In such a [illegible] one is averse to remaining or to advancing further or is for some reason such as imminent defeat or danger, or obedience to orders unable to remain or advance; as after the failure of the first attack the army retreated, [illegible]

plies movement contrary to that which is normal or natural, thus, a planet retrogrades when it moves or [illegible] ences as the opposite of protract. In reference to those parts of an organism which can be thrust forward or drawn backward, as, to retract the tongue, to cause a cat's claws to retract "throwing out and retracting their left fists like pawing horses" (Shaw) Back, in this sense, [illegible] to the bowl or sink, to back out of a room, a wind backs when it shifts to a counterclockwise direction. Often when followed by out or down it implies a receding as from a stand or attitude, or a retreating, as from a [illegible] [illegible] ceed' advance (sense 2).

[illegible] 1 *Reception.
2 Receipt, recipe, prescription are here compared as meaning a formula or set of directions for the compounding of ingredients especially, but not exclusively. In [illegible]

'take' and was used as the initial word (now abbreviated to ℞ or ℞) of a physician's formula for a medicine Not until the sixteenth century did the term become a noun denoting such a formula, and not until the mid-eighteenth century was it also applied to a cookery receipt. In the former sense, recipe is now rare, in the latter sense [illegible] is generally preferred [illegible] scription for bronchitis.

receive. Receive, accept, admit, take are synonymous only when they mean to take or let someone or something [illegible] presence one's group, [illegible]

soft wax receives the impression of anything that touches it. Only when it implies welcoming or recognition does receive connote activity in the receiver, as after some delay the king received the ambassador, the social leaders refused to receive the newcomers "The indifference and hostility with which his earlier work was received" (Day Lewis) Accept, in contrast with receive always implies a measure of mental consent even of approval Thus a person may be received but not necessarily accepted in society an idea may be received but not accepted by the mind "In [Dante's] purgatory the torment of flame is deliberately and consciously accepted by the penitent" (T S Eliot) Frequently accept suggests tacit acquiescence rather than active assent or approval Sometimes in such cases it connotes an uncritical attitude "The man who ..accepted simply, as a matter of course the tradition" (G L Dickinson) Sometimes it implies a surrender to the inevitable "It is the business of the sensitive artist in life to accept his own nature as it is not to try to force it into another shape" (A Huxley) Admit comes into comparison with receive only when the agent (the one that lets in) is the one that receives rather than introduces as the king admitted the ambassador to his presence (cf the major-domo admitted the ambassador to the throne room) the heart admits fluid through these apertures (cf these apertures readily admit fluid into the heart) Admit in this restricted sense is distinguishable from receive by slight syntactical differences but chiefly by its strong implications of permission allowance, or sufferance Thus, a judge admits evidence only after its admissibility has been questioned and he has allowed its entrance. The situation remains the same when the subject is impersonal as the archway was wide enough to admit ten men abreast Sometimes these implications are so strong that the idea of receiving is lost as, this admits of no argument Admit in contrast with accept, often adds the implication of concession. Thus one who admits the truth of a contention accepts it more or less unwillingly one can accept a proposition without question but one admits it only after one has questioned it. Take is a synonym of receive only when it suggests no reaching out on one's own part or of one's own initiative to get hold of something (for the usual sense see TAKE, 1) or when it suggests an offering presenting conferring inflicting, or the like by another it then implies merely a letting something be put into one's hands one's mind one's possession one's control, or the like as this gift was meant for you take it or leave it as you please he takes whatever fortune sends him the British showed that they can take the German bombing "What was it that made men follow Oliver Cromwell and take at his hands that which they would not receive from any of his contemporaries?" (S M Crothers) "You don't have to take anything from him or to stand his bad manners" (Cather)

Ana *Enter penetrate seize *take grasp receivership. *Insolvency bankruptcy failure, suspension.

reception Reception, receipt agree in meaning a receiving but they are not now interchangeable their correct use being dependent upon accepted idiom Reception is now the preferred term when that which is received is a person, especially a caller a visitor a guest or the like the term may then apply to the act fashion or manner of receiving (as they are now in line ready for the reception of their guests she gave all her friends a warm reception) or the manner of being received (as "much pleased with the reception she had"—Pepys) or a ceremonious receiving or entertaining (as to invite one's circle of friends to a reception to hold a reception for the out-of town delegates and their wives), or an admission or entrance as into a place a society, a company or the like (as, the house is ready for the reception of its new tenants, to call attention to the reception of several new members into the society) When that which is received is a thing reception is employed only when to the idea of receiving is added the idea of admitting into or as if into a space or enclosure (as, the tower is large enough for the reception of several bells) or of apprehension as by a sense, or by the senses, or by the mind (as the reception [i e the hearing of sound transmitted by the radio] is not good tonight their minds are not ready for the reception of such ideas, the proposal met a favorable reception) Receipt (see also RECEIPT 2) is now the preferred term when that which is received is a thing given or sent by another and delivered by hand by mail by express or the like into one's custody or possession such a thing may be a sum of money a piece or lot of goods, a letter or other communication, or the like as to acknowledge the receipt of goods ordered, I am awaiting the receipt of a letter before making my decision Receipt is also applied to a signed paper or document testifying to the receipt of money due of goods ordered etc recess, n Recess, alcove, nook, niche, embrasure, bay, cubicle, carrell, carol are comparable only in their architectural senses. Recess, the comprehensive term names any outward or seemingly outward projecting space formed by a break in the straight line of a wall An alcove is a recess large enough to contain a bed or a secretary or the like A nook is a recess usually formed by something that projects inward and makes a new wall line such as a chimney a row of built in bookcases or by partitions A niche is a recess in a wall usually above the floor and below the ceiling large enough to contain a piece of sculpture or other decorative object An embrasure is a recess formed by an outward projecting window (or windows) or door a bay is a deep embrasure formed by windows arranged in a rectangular polygonal or curved line A cubicle may be a very small room but the term is often applied to an alcove or nook by a window or in an embrasure for the use of a student or writer In technical language carrell is commonly used when the cubicle is in a library and carol when it is in a monastery recherché Elegant *choice exquisite delicate dainty rare.

Ana Fresh original *new, novel *select exclusive picked

Ant Banal

recidivate *Lapse relapse backslide

Ana Degenerate deteriorate decline (see corresponding nouns at DETERIORATION)

Con *Improve, better reform amend remedy redress *correct.

recidivation, recidivism Lapse relapse backsliding See under LAPSE, v

Ana *Deterioration degeneration decline declension, decadence devolution.

Con. *Reformation, reform recipe. *Receipt, prescription reciprocal 1 Reciprocal mutual, common come into comparison as meaning shared experienced shown or the like by each of the persons or things concerned Reciprocal has for its distinctive implication the return in due measure by each of two sides of that which exists on the other or of that which is offered given or manifested by the other Usually therefore it implies not only a "this for that" but an equivalence in value (though not necessarily in kind) on each side as of love, hate, understanding courtesies, concessions, duties and the mutual enthusiasm (often better than reciprocal except when there is the intent to imply a giving to and a getting back from each other) But mutual only (and not reciprocal) is possible when the adjective applies to two persons who entertain reciprocal feelings to each other; as they are mutual friends, mutual foes When there is very little or no suggestion of a reciprocal relation betimes mingles poetry and propaganda to their mutual disaster' (Lowes) Both reciprocal and mutual are sometimes used even by good writers, when more than two persons, classes, or things are involved This use is not generally approved when there is no implication of reciprocity, common being the preferred term in such a case, thus one says we (two, three or more persons) are mutual friends (i e, we are all friends of each other) but they have common friends (i e, each of them has friends who are friends of the other or others) or a common friend [though Dickens entitled one of his novels Our Mutual Friend], the members of a group may have a common (not mutual unless reciprocity is involved) purpose For common, as here compared (see also COMMON 3, UNIVERSAL 2), implies a sharing by or a joint possession of two or more persons and differs from mutual in not being restricted as to the number involved and in not carrying when two persons or things are concerned any suggestion of a reciprocal relation or of husband and wife have a common purse

Ana Shared participated partaken (see SHARE) interchanged exchanged (see EXCHANGE) balancing or similarly related to each other as in kind quality value or the like Reciprocal, as here compared (see also RECIPROCAL 1) implies that the likeness or equivalence of two things or of one thing to another rests on the fact

(Jefferson); her ideas of proper housekeeping were not like, as, correspondent organs such as the stomach of a human being and the gizzard of a fowl, the stripes on the blouse are correspondent to those on the skirt. Correlative implies a close relationship rather than a likeness, but it or one cannot exist without the other (as, "the right of the worker to demand work on reasonable terms and the correlative obligation of the organized community to provide it"—J A Hobson the correlative rights and duties of every citizen) In somewhat looser, but correct, use correlative may imply nothing more than so close a correspondence or relation between two things that they come naturally, necessarily, or logically together, as, major changes in social conditions and correlative changes important to recognise that these two uses of the surplus are complementary and not competitive' (J A Hobson), 'the corpuscular and undulatory concepts of light must be regarded as complementary rather than antithetical' (Jeans), revelation is regarded by many theologians as complemental to reason Convertible, in the sense

(Blackstone), 'truth and beauty [as in Keats's line 'Beauty is truth truth beauty'] have never been recognised as identical and to employ their names as convertible terms would lead to no end of confusion (Quiller-Couch)

Ana Equivalent identical *same related associated linked united (see JOIN) recite. Rehearse recount *relate, narrate, describe state report

Ana Enumerate tell *count number detail, itemize particularize (see corresponding adjectives at CIRCUMSTANTIAL) reckless. Daring daredevil rash temerarious, foolhardy venturesome venturous *adventurous.

Ana *Precipitate sudden hasty headlong impetuous desperate hopeless (see DESPONDENT) alculating — Con *Cautious, circumspect ary

1 *Calculate compute estimate *add ture ctify reclining. Recumbent, *prone supine prostrate couchant dormant.

Ana Resting, reposing (see corresponding nouns at REST) leaning inclining (see SLANT v) recluse Recluse, hermit eremite, anchorite (or anchoret), cenobite (or coenobite) are comparable when they designate a person who lives apart from the world to devote himself to prayer, contemplation and penance Recluse and hermit are now also applied to persons who avoid intercourse with men for other than religious motives but even in their extended senses they retain their original distinguishing implications for recluse stresses retirement from the world into seclusion, and hermit a solitary life lived apart from men and usually in a place or under conditions where there is little likelihood of intrusion Recluse is the broader term for it may be applied either to a hermit or to a religious who lives in a cloistered community In modern Christian use hermit is often applied to a member of one of the very few religious orders, such as the Carthusians, where the monks dwell alone and meet other members of the community only in church and in the refectory on Sundays Eremite, though an archaic variant of hermit, is sometimes preferred in modern use because it unequivocally designates a solitary who is under a religious vow For this reason its derivative eremitical is the preferred adjective, even when hermit or anchorite is the chosen noun Anchorite and cenobite are contrasted terms for the two leading types of recluses in the Eastern and in the Western Church Anchorite designates the type that dwells in a community or eremite cenobite the type that dwells in a community esp a strictly cloistered community as a monk or nun.

recognition. Recognition, identification, assimilation, apperception come into comparison only when they designate a form of cognition which relates a perception of something new to knowledge already acquired Recognition implies that the thing now seen heard or otherwise perceived has been previously seen heard or otherwise perceived if not in itself then in another instance of the same species or type and that the mind is aware that the two things are identical or of the same kind Identification implies not only recognition but a previous knowledge of the name which belongs to the thing as an individual or as a member of a class and an ability to apply the name correctly Assimilation implies that the mind responds to new facts, new ideas and the like by interpreting them in the light of that which is already known thereby making them also an integral part of one a body of knowledge Apperception a word of many meanings but here compared only as used in educational psychology, denotes a method of learning regarded as normal and therefore as a determinant of methods of instruction The term implies that the mind responds to new facts ideas or situations when it can relate them to that which is already known and that on the contrary it rejects or is incapable of assimilating that which it is at the time unprepared to receive recognize *Acknowledge

Ana Accept admit *receive notice note observe remark (see SEE) recoil, v 1 Recoil, shrink, flinch, wince, blench, quail agree in meaning to draw back through fear fainthearted ness or the like Recoil more than any of the succeeding terms suggests the physical signs of such drawing back or the sensations that accompany it Often the term implies a start a movement away a prolonged hesitation, or the like as "She sat down on the bench beside him He recoiled" (Dickens) to recoil from the sight of the old man s misery Lord Worthington has been telling us about you said Lydia He recoiled evidently deeply mortified" (Shaw) "Why shouldn t we go abroad together? , 'Abroad?' murmured Constance, aghast recoiling from the proposition as from a grave danger (Bennett) Often however the term suggests an inner or not outwardly apparent shaking or stirring that affects one mentally more than physically as, his mind recoils from the prospect of war, she recoiled from the marriage suggested by her parents Archer was too intelligent to think that Ellen Olenska would necessarily recoil from everything that reminded her of her past (E Wharton) Shrink implies an instinctive recoil as from something painful or unpleasant or horrible it often implies cowardice but it may imply extreme sensitiveness or scrupulousness ' Guilt and misery shrink, by a natural instinct from public notice (De Quincey) She shrank from the words which would have expressed their mutual consciousness, as she would have shrunk from flakes of fire (G Eliot) He might have shrunk from defending himself at the expense of a frightened unhappy girl (R Macaulay) Flinch, in precise use implies a failure in resolution or an inability to overcome one s desire to avoid or evade something that is painful difficult or abhorrent as he gritted his teeth and did not flinch when the knife cut into his flesh. She read and took notes incessantly mastering facts with painful laboriousness but never flinching from her self imposed task " (Hardy) ' Though the color had heightened in his cheek, he did not flinch from his friend s gaze (Joyce) Flinch is sometimes used but wince is better when by some involuntary often slight physical movement such as starting or recoiling one manifests his pain, or fear or acute sensitiveness He is as tender as a man without a skin who cannot bear the slightest touch without flinching (Smollett) His horse stands wincing at the flies, giving sharp shivers of his skin (Hunt) Old Lady Kew s tongue was a dreadful thong which made numbers of people wince (Thackeray) Dinner at the Bronckhorsts was an infliction Bronckhorst took a pleasure in saying things that made his wife wince (Kipling) Blench is often indistinguishable from flinch it often however carries a stronger suggestion of fainthearted ness or of signs of fear 'This painful heroic task he undertook and never blenched from its fulfillment (Jeffrey) That glaring and dazzling influence at which the eyes of eagles have blenched' (Burke) To quail is to shrink coweringly as from something which strikes terror as There quails Count Guido armed to the chattering teeth Cowers at the steadfast eye and quiet word O the Canon (Browning), quailing before his adversary' (Shelley)

Ana Waver falter *hesitate shy balk stick, stickle (see DEMUR)

Ant Confront defy

2 *Rebound reverberate resile repercuss

Ana Retreat *recede back retract *return, revert recollect *Remember recall remind reminisce bethink mind

Ana *Stir rouse arouse rally waken awaken.

recollection *Memory remembrance reminiscence mind souvenir recommend *Commend compliment applaud

Ana *Approve endorse sanction *praise extol acclaim recompense, v Requite reimburse indemnify, repay satisfy remunerate compensate *pay

Ana Award accord vouchsafe *grant balance, offset *compensate reconcile Conform accommodate adjust *adapt.

Ana Harmonize accord square *agree *correct rectify amend revise recondite. Recondite, abstruse, occult, esoteric agree in denoting beyond the power of the average intelligence to grasp or understand Recondite stresses difficulty resulting from the profundity of the subject matter or its remoteness from ordinary human interest It often implies scholarly research carried beyond the bounds of usefulness Recondite points of law (Maine) Abstruse suggests extreme complexity or abstractness in the material as well as its remoteness from the ordinary range of human experience or interest "The Hibbert Journal which was endowed to promote abstruse theological discussion (C Mackenzie) Astronomers watch the stars and mathematicians make abstruse calculations (Shaw) Occult implies secret mysterious knowledge purporting to be attainable only through supernatural or magical agencies and not through human reason as, the occult …

initiates It however is extended in use to describe knowledge in the possession only of adepts, specialists, and the like To the idea of poetry as exclusive esoteric …

tic scholastic academic record, n *Document monument muniment archive recount. Recite *relate rehearse narrate describe state report

Ana Enumerate *count number tell detail itemize particularize (see corresponding adjectives at CIRCUMSTANTIAL) recoup, v Recruit retrieve regain *recover

Ana *Compensate balance offset counterpoise recover. Recover, regain retrieve recoup, recruit agree in meaning to get back something that has been let go or lost Recover, the most comprehensive of these terms may imply a finding or obtaining something material or immaterial that has been lost in any way (as to recover a lost watch to recover one s health to recover one s peace of mind to recover one s balance) or a getting of something in reparation or compensation (as to recover damages in a lawsuit) Regain, though often used interchangeably with recover carries a stronger implication of winning back or getting once more in one s possession something of which one has been deprived as by capture seizure or by any power natural or human as to regain a fortress to regain a person s good will to regain one s …

perdition to regain the green room unobserved (Quiller-Couch) Retrieve originally and still often a hunting term used in reference to dogs which (in the earlier sense) find or arouse game that has sought cover or which (in the more common sense) seek out and bring back wounded or killed game in extended use implies a …

(Belloc) marvelling at the silent untiring activity with which her popularity had been retrieved (E Wharton) But retrieve sometimes takes for its object words such as loss error failure disaster etc then implying not recovery but a repair, as by making that which is bad good or a reparation as by making up for that which was wrong or unsuccessful by a series of acts which set things right, as, life is not long enough to retrieve so many mistakes, "One false step is never retrieved" (Gray) "he is to retrieve his father s failure to recover the lost gentility of a family that had once been proud (Van W Brooks) This latter sense of retrieve comes out especially in the adjectives retrievable and irretrievable as, an irretrievable loss. Recoup was originally and still is a legal term implying a rightful deduction as by a defendant from damages sought by a plaintiff in a lawsuit thus when a physician sues a former patient for the payment of his fee the patient may if he loses his case and if he has shown the physician s lack of skill recoup some of the damages In its extended use recoup implies recovery or retrieval by some form of compensation or by reimbursing (oneself), as, he was unable to recoup his gambling losses by further play, to recoup oneself for …

regaining of that which has been lost (such as vigor through illness or money through extravagance or heavy expenditures) by fresh additions or replenishment of the supply, as recruiting his strength with a good plain dinner (Dickens), [the middle class] is continually recruited from the capitalist families (Shaw)

Ana Redeem, reclaim (see RESCUE) *compensate offset balance recreant, adj *Cowardly pusillanimous, poltroon craven dastardly

Ana *Timid timorous submissive *tame subdued *mean, abject ignoble recreant, n *Renegade apostate turncoat backslider pervert

Ana Treacherousness or treachery perfidiousness or perfidy traitorousness (see corresponding adjectives at FAITHLESS) recreate *Amuse divert entertain

Ana *Renew restore refresh rejuvenate enliven *quicken animate recreation Amusement diversion entertainment See under AMUSE

Ana Relaxation repose ease (see REST) play, sport frolic rollick (see under PLAY v) *mirth, jollity hilarity recrudesce *Return revert recur

Ana *Renew renovate refurbish

Con *Suppress repress *stop cease discontinue recrudescence. Return reversion recurrence See under RETURN v

Ana Renewal restoration refreshment renovation (see corresponding verbs at RENEW) pression repression (see corresponding verbs ss)

*Recover regain retrieve recoup.

Ana *Renew, restore renovate, refresh repair *mend rebuild rectify. *Correct emend amend reform revise remedy redress.

Ana. *Improve, better help ameliorate *mend repair rebuild *adjust regulate fix.

rectitude. Virtue *goodness, morality Ana Integrity probity *honesty honor righteousness nobility (see corresponding adjectives at MORAL) uprightness justness conscientiousness scrupulousness (see corresponding adjectives at UPRIGHT) recumbent. *Prone, supine, prostrate, reclining couchant dormant.

Ant Upright, erect.

recur *Return revert recrudesce.
Ana *Repeat, iterate reiterate recurrence Return reversion recrudescence See under RETURN v Ana. Relapse recidivation recidivism (see under LAPSE v) repeating or repetition iteration (see corresponding verbs at REPEAT) recurrent *Intermittent periodic alternate Ana Rhythmic metrical (see corresponding nouns at RHYTHM) returning reverting, recrudescing (see RETURN) *fitful spasmodic.

redeem Deliver *rescue, ransom save reclaim Ana *Free liberate release emancipate manumit restore *renew renovate *recover regain.

redintegrate *Renew, restore refresh rejuvenate renovate refurbish.

redolence. *Fragrance, perfume scent, incense bouquet.
Ana. Odor aroma *smell balminess aromaticness or aromaticity (see corresponding adjectives at ODOROUS) redolent Aromatic balmy fragrant *odorous Ana *Pungent poignant piquant racy spicy penetrating piercing (see ENTER) redoubtable *Formidable Ana. *Fearful terrible dreadful frightful awful intrepid valiant doughty valorous *brave redound *Conduce contribute accrue Ana *Help aid assist further forward promote *advance redress v Emend remedy amend *correct rectify reform revise Ana *Relieve lighten alleviate assuage allay repair *mend redress, n *Reparation amends restitution ...

Ana Compensation offsetting balancing ... PENSATE) *retaliation reprisal vengeance retribution reduce 1 *Decrease lessen diminish abate dwindle Ana *Shorten abridge abbreviate curtail retrench *contract shrink, condense Con. *Increase augment enlarge multiply *extend lengthen, elongate prolong protract *expand swell amplify 2 *Conquer vanquish defeat subjugate beat overcome, lick subdue surmount overthrow rout Ana *Weaken cripple disable undermine enfeeble humble humiliate degrade debase (see ABASE) redundancy *Verbiage tautology pleonasm circumlocution, periphrasis Ana Wordiness verbosity prolixity diffuseness (see corresponding adjectives at WORDY) inflatedness or inflation turgidity tumidity flatulence (see corresponding adjectives at INFLATED) *bombast rant fustian redundant *Wordy verbose prolix diffuse Ana *Superfluous surplus, supernumerary extra spare repeating or repetitious iterating reiterating (see ... reeve *Steward bailiff agent, factor seneschal major domo oeconomus.

refer. 1 Assign credit accredit *ascribe attribute impute charge Ana Associate, relate connect (see JOIN) *direct aim point lay 2 *Resort apply go turn Ana Consult, *confer commune advise address *direct 3 Refer, allude advert are synonymous when they mean to mention something so as to call or direct attention to it Refer, when unqualified usually suggests intentional introduction and distinct mention as by a thing's true name as he frequently referred to his ...

... indirect reference as by a hint a suggestive phrase a roundabout or covert method of expression a figure of ...

(see ADVERT 1) is interchangeable with refer only in loose use then the words are scarcely distinguishable in meaning I never heard him [Carlyle] advert to his works and his fame (FitzGerald) Ana *Introduce insert interpolate *quote cite referee n Umpire arbiter *judge arbitrator referendum Initiative *mandate plebiscite reflect *Think, cogitate reason speculate deliberate Ana *Consider contemplate study weigh revolve *ponder muse meditate ruminate

... blame (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE) *attack assault onslaught onset disparagement derogation depreciation (see corresponding verbs at DECRY) reflective *Thoughtful contemplative meditative pensive speculative Ana Thinking reasoning deliberating cogitating (see THINK) analytical *logical subtle.

reform v *Correct, rectify emend amend, remedy redress, revise Ana *Mend repair rebuild better *improve, help ameliorate reform n *Reformation.

reformation Reformation reform are not always distinguished when they mean a making better of a new and improved form or character and are sometimes interchangeable without loss as, the reformation (or reform) of a criminal, the reforma-

Reform, on the other hand, is preferred as a designation of an attempt (whether successful or unsuccessful) to remove abuses, correct corrupt practices or to make changes for the better in any way, as, to be hostile to all persons advocating reform "Boeotia chose reform or civil war" (Shelley), "a wave of municipal reform had passed over it [Barcelona]" (H Ellis) Reform also applies as reformation never does apply to a particular or specific amendment whether achieved or proposed as a measure of reform, as to initiate sweeping reforms [not

r

subordinate rebellious contumacious.

Ant. Malleable amenable (sense 2) refrain, v Refrain, abstain, forbear agree in meaning to keep or withhold oneself voluntarily from something to which one is moved by desire or impulse Refrain is especially suitable when the checking of a momentary

A

ciple I have abstained from the use of many expressions in themselves proper and beautiful, but which have been foolishly repeated by bad Poets" (Wordsworth) It also applies with greater frequency to the appetites or passions control over which is essential to self discipline as to abstain from intoxicating liquors. "Abstain from fleshly lusts" (1 Peter ii 11) Forbear, great patience under provocation or in trial "I have now put an end to my forbearance of him" (C Middleton) "There is a time For long forbearing clemency to wait" (Cowper)

Ana Check *arrest interrupt *restrain curb, inhibit refresh. *Renew restore redintegrate rejuvenate renovate refurbish

Ana Enliven *quicken animate vivify recruit *recover, regain recreate *amuse divert

Ant Jade addle

refuge Asylum sanctuary, *shelter cover retreat, ark

Ana Safety, security (see corresponding adjectives at SAFE) stronghold citadel, *fort, fortress *harbor, haven port refulgent. Effulgent luminous radiant, lustrous *bright brilliant beaming refurbish. Renovate, venate redintegrate

A colon ( ) groups words

Ana *Polish, burnish, furbish, shine, buff

*Decline, reject, repudiate, spurn.

Deny gainsay balk, baffle, *frustrate, thwart, bar, *exclude, shut out.

Confute, rebut, *disprove, controvert.

ontradict, impugn, traverse, negative contravene

y)

*Recover, recruit, recoup, retrieve

Gain, *reach, compass, attain achieve redeem save (see RESCUE) redintegrate, restore

Royal, *kingly, queenly imperial, princely

Ana. Majestic, imposing, stately, magnificent august (see GRAND) *splendid, resplendent, glorious, sublime.

regale. Tickle, arride, gratify, delight, *please, rejoice, gladden.

Ant. Vex.

regard, v 1 Respect, esteem, admire. See under REGARD n.

Ana *Appreciate, cherish, value, prize treasure

Ant. Despise — Con. Contemn, scorn disdain (see DESPISE) reject repudiate spurn (see DECLINE, v)

2 *Consider account, reckon, deem.

Ana Rate, *estimate, value, assess, assay regard, n Regard, respect, esteem, admiration, and their corresponding verbs (regard, respect, esteem, admire) agree in denoting a feeling (or to have a feeling) for someone or something which involves recognition of that person's or thing's worth and some degree of liking recognition which is due him or it, as he respected their operation.

esteem imply a recognition of superiority, but they usually connote more enthusiastic appreciation and sometimes suggest genuine affection "Miss Welwood I have long felt the deepest esteem for you, and your present courageous attitude in this distressing financial crisis has added admiration to esteem" (Deland) In somewhat looser use the words stress the personal attractiveness of the object of admiration and weaken the implication of esteem "What sight is sadder than

tion cherishing prizing, valuing (see corresponding verbs at APPRECIATE) Ant Despite — Con Contempt, scorn disdain (see under DESPISE) regarding *About concerning respecting anent.

region. *Area tract zone belt Ana *Locality vicinity district neighborhood section sector division *part *field territory province register, n *List, table catalogue schedule roll roster rota canon, inventory regressive Retrogressive retrograde *backward Ant Progressive

regret, n *Sorrow grief heartache anguish woe dole Ana Compunction, remorse *penitence, repentance, contrition *qualm scruple demur regular, adj 1 Regular, normal, typical, natural come into comparison when they mean being of the sort or kind that is expected as usual ordinary or average A person, or far more often a thing is regular (opposed to irregular) that conforms to what is the prescribed rule or standard or the established pattern for its kind as to undergo the regular tests for admission to the army a regular verb a regular meeting of a society he is a regular practitioner (as opposed to a quack) A person or a thing is normal (opposed to abnormal or exceptional) that does not deviate in any marked way from what has been discovered or established as the norm (see norm under AVERAGE, n) for one of its kind in contrast with regular, the term carries a stronger implication of conformity within certain prescribed limits or under certain given conditions, and therefore sometimes admits a wide range of difference among the things that may be described as normal for a class or kind as normal winter weather he is a perfectly normal child (physically as well as mentally), his pulse is normal for a person of his age But when applied to persons normal often specifically connotes mental balance or sanity (as his actions are not those of a normal person) on the other hand it may connote merely an approach to the average in mentality implying the exclusion of those below or above this average Exceptional capacities are not infrequently associated with mental instability and in such cases it is desirable to adopt methods [of education] which would be bad for the normal boy (B Russell) The twins since they had gone to Oxford never admitted that they cared for any books that normal people cared for" (R. Macaulay) A person or thing is typical (opposed to individual) that markedly exhibits the characters or characteristics peculiar to the type class species group or the like to which he (or it) belongs often to the exclusion or the obscuring of any that differentiate him (or it) as a particular member of the type class or species as a typical example of Browning's style I would suggest that the most typical as it is probably the oldest of the arts, is the Dance (Binyon) The political situation in Ceylon was typical of that encountered elsewhere in the East (V Heiser) only that is good even on this level which pleases the typical or normal or generic man (S Alexander), a typical English country town with wide High Street narrow Market Street picturesque Market Square (C Mackenzie) A person or thing is natural (as here compared see also NATURAL 2) that acts, behaves, operates, or the like in accordance with the nature or essence of his (or its) kind or constitution or that is normal in or suitable to him (or it) because of that nature or constitution as the father is the natural protector of his children the natural love of a mother flesh is the natural food of a dog he died from natural causes.

Ana *Usual, habitual, customary *common ordinary, familiar Ant Irregular
2 *Orderly, methodical systematic regular Ana Fixed set settled (see SET) constant, even equable, *steady, uniform Ant Irregular

regulate *Adjust fix.
Ana *Order, arrange organize systematize methodize temper attemper *moderate *correct rectify regulation. Rule *law precept, statute ordinance canon Ana Instruction direction bidding (see corresponding verbs at COMMAND) deciding or decision, determination ruling (see corresponding verbs at DECIDE) rehearse *Relate narrate, describe recite, recount state report Ana *Repeat iterate, reiterate detail itemize particularize (see corresponding adjectives at CIRCUMSTANTIAL) reify *Realize actualize embody incarnate materialize externalize objectify substantiate substantialize hypostatize reimburse Indemnify repay recompense, requite compensate, remunerate, satisfy *pay Ana Recoup *recover *compensate balance, offset reiterate *Repeat iterate, ingeminate reject, v Repudiate spurn refuse *decline Ana *Discard cast shed oust expel dismiss *eject *exclude debar shut out eliminate Ant Accept choose select rejoice. Delight gladden *please gratify tickle arride regale Ana Elate exult (see corresponding adjectives at ELATED) Ant Grieve aggrieve bewail rejoin *Answer respond reply retort Con Question interrogate *ask inquire, query catechize examine rejoinder Answer response reply retort. See under ANSWER v 1 Ana Returning or return reverting or reversion (see under RETURN v) *retaliation reprisal rejuvenate *Renew restore refresh redintegrate renovate refurbish relapse v *Lapse backslide recidivate Ana Revert *return degenerate, decline deteriorate (see corresponding nouns at DETERIORATION) relapse, n Lapse backsliding recidivation recidivism See under LAPSE v Ana *Reversion atavism throwback degeneration decline declension decadence *deterioration relate, v 1 Relate rehearse, recite, recount, narrate, describe state, report come into comparison when they mean to tell orally or in writing the details or circumstances necessary to others understanding or knowledge of a real or imagined situation or combination of events Relate implies the giving of an account usually a detailed or orderly account of something one has witnessed experienced, or otherwise directly known as to relate the story of one's life to relate an experience Then Father Junipero and his companion related fully their adventure (Cather) Rehearse (etymologically to harrow over again) usually suggests a repetition it may imply a summary of what is known (as, let us rehearse the few facts known of the inconspicuous life of Thomas Traherne —Quiller-Couch) or a second or third or oft-repeated telling (as, "his mother proceeded to rehearse once more the monstrous tale of the affront inflicted on Mrs Lovell Mingott —E Wharton) or a going over and over in one s mind or with another person or in

On his way across the Atlantic he had rehearsed this meeting in varying keys —H G Wells) Recite and in the sense here considered the now more common recount imply greater particularity of detail than the preceding terms in fact the implication of enumeration or of mention of each particular is so strong that both verbs commonly take a plural object thus, one relates an gests the employment of devices characteristic of the literary narrative such as plot excitement of suspense movement toward a climax and the like as, What verse can sing what prose narrate The butcher deeds of bloody Fate (Burns) The discovery of Madeira is narrated with all the exaggerations of romance (Southey) Describe now usually implies emphasis upon details that give the hearers or readers a clear picture or that give could be anything but a woman to be described as stout or thin as jolly or crabbed but always mature (Conrad) State stresses particularity clearness, and definiteness of detail and suggests the aim of presenting facts ideas feelings etc in their naked truth so that they will be distinctly understood or fixed in others minds Swinburne was also a master of words but Swinburne s words are all suggestions and no denotation Dryden s words on the other hand are precise they state immensely but their suggestiveness is often nothing (T S Eliot) One should know what one thinks and what one means and be able to state it in clear terms (R Macaulay) Report implies a recounting and narrating often after investigation for the information of others especially the readers of a newspaper as, to school

Ana Tell *reveal disclose divulge detail itemize particularize (see corresponding adjectives at CIRCUMSTANTIAL)

2 Associate link connect *join combine unite

Ana Attach *fasten fix refer assign credit impute *ascribe

Con Disengage *detach abstract prescind divorce sever sunder *separate

3 *Bear pertain appertain belong apply related Related, cognate, kindred, allied, affiliated come into comparison when they mean connected by or as by close family ties Related when referred to persons usually implies consanguinity or a blood connection sometimes, however it implies connection by marriage as the royal families in Europe are nearly all related to each other When applied to things related suggests some connection often a close one the nature of which is to be gathered from the context and which may be variously a common origin a common cause interdependence reciprocal action mutual opposition etc. as related species related events related activities every part of an organism is related to the other parts body and soul are contrasted but related concepts. Cognate in discriminating use differs from related in being referable only to things that are generically alike or that can be shown to have a common ancestor or source or to be derived from the same root stock, or the like as, cognate races cognate languages cognate words in various languages, such as pater Vater" father , physics and chemistry are cognate sciences. Kindred, in its primary sense stresses blood relationship as the kindred members of a community In its more common extended sense it implies likenesses that might be characteristic of a family such as common interests tastes, aims, qualities, and the like When the otherwise alien tongues [Hebrew and English]" (Lowes) Allied more often implies connection by union than by origin and especially by marriage or by voluntary association It often connotes a more remote family connection than related The Raycie blood was still to be traced in various allied families Kents, Huzzards, Cosbys (E Wharton) In its extended use it usually stresses the possession of common characters qualities, aims, effects and the like which lend either to union or to inclusion in the same class or category as, allied genera allied physical types allied societies allied diseases. Affiliated also stresses connection by union, but in precise use it implies a dependent relation such as that of a child to a parent Sometimes it implies the adoption of the weaker by the stronger as a small college affiliated to a university Sometimes it connotes a loose union in which the affiliating units retain their independence but derive support or strength from the main central or parent body or co-operate in its work as Monte Cassino and affiliated monasteries the CIO and its affiliated unions

Ana Associated connected (see JOIN) *reciprocal correspondent correlative convertible complementary akin identical alike analogous (see SIMILAR) *relevant ndent contingent, conditional adjective

*Rest repose leisure ease comfort nent diversion recreation (see under AMUSE v) relieving or relief assuagement alleviation mitigation (see corresponding verbs at RELIEVE) relaxed *Loose slack lax

Ana Mitigated lightened alleviated assuaged relieved (see RELIEVE) flexuous sinuous (see WINDING) *soft mild gentle lenient

Ant Stiff — Con Strict *rigid rigorous, stringent *severe stern austere ascetic release, v *Free liberate emancipate manumit deliver discharge enfranchise affranchise

Ana *Detach disengage *exculpate exonerate acquit surrender resign yield *relinquish

Ant Detain (as a prisoner) check (as thoughts feelings etc) oblige (as a promise pledge etc) relegate v *Commit entrust confide consign

Ana Refer assign credit accredit charge (see ASCRIBE) relent *Yield submit capitulate succumb defer bow cave in.

Ana Comply acquiesce (see corresponding adjectives at COMPLIANT) forbear *refrain abstain *abate subside wane ebb relentless Unrelenting merciless implacable *grim

Ana Inexorable obdurate adamant *inflexible strict stringent *rigid rigorous *fierce ferocious cruel inhuman.

Con *Soft lenient mild gentle *tender compassionate yielding submitting or submissive (see corresponding verbs at YIELD) relevant. Relevant, germane (or german), material, pertinent, apposite, applicable, apropos (or sometimes à propos) agree in meaning having a relation to or a bearing upon the matter in hand or the present circumstances That is relevant which has any traceable connection especially logical connection with the thing under consideration and which has significance in any degree for those who are engaged in such consideration as, the judge decided that the evidence was relevant and therefore admissible "The controversy between the useful and the ornamental is relevant [to a discussion of the ends of education] though not decisive Should children be taught to enunciate correctly and to have pleasant manners or are these mere relics of aristocracy" (B Russell) That is germane which is so closely related as in spirit tone or quality to the subject the matter the occasion the issue or the like that the fitness or appropriateness of their association is beyond question as, to enliven his lecture by introducing amusing anecdotes germane to his subject an interesting point but not germane to the issue to rule out all festivities not germane to the celebration of Memorial Day "To a writer happily engaged on his work and excited by it there may come a curious extension of his ordinary faculties relevant passages will quote themselves to his mind from books that he scarcely remembers to have ever read and he suddenly sees germane connections where in his ordinary state of mind he would see nothing" (C E Montague) That is material which is so closely related to the matter in hand that it cannot be dispensed with without having an evident effect especially a harmful effect as these facts though relevant are not material to the defendant s case Certain passages material to his understanding the rest of this important narrative (Scott) That is pertinent which is so decisively or significantly relevant that it touches the real point at issue or contributes materially to the understanding of what is under discussion or to the solution of that which is in question "Be humble and gentle in your conversation and of few words I charge you but always pertinent when you speak" (Penn) "It is more pertinent to observe that it seems to me that logically and rationally a man cannot be said to be more than once in jeopardy in the same cause however often he may be tried" (Justice Holmes) That is apposite which is relevant and germane to such a degree that it strikes one both by its pertinency and by its felicitousness as an apposite illustration "Judged by standards that have no intelligible *apposite*ness when applied to an artist" (Mencken) That is applicable which may be brought to bear upon or be used fittingly in reference to a particular case, instance problem or the like as, the word 'tool' is applicable to a plow only when used in a general sense the principle is not applicable to the case in question "Although I do not get much help from general propositions in a case of this sort I cannot forbear quoting what seems to me applicable here" (Justice Holmes) That is apropos (sometimes found in its French form à propos) which is both appropriate and opportune as a person who is not aware of an undercurrent of feeling may make remarks that are far from apropos "The wit of man could not have found out a conduct more à propos in that conjuncture than what the king used" (R North) When followed by a preposition (in precise use of, but often also to) it usually suggests relevancy rather than appropriateness or opportuneness as, "tell you a story apropos of two noble instances of fidelity and generosity" (Walpole)

Ana *Related cognate allied fitting appropriate, proper (see FIT) important significant, weighty (see corresponding nouns at IMPORTANCE)

Ant Extraneous — Con Alien foreign *extrinsic reliable. Reliable, dependable, trustworthy, trusty, tried come into comparison when they are applied to persons their utterances, views methods instruments or the like and mean having or manifesting qualities which assure one that he or it merits confidence or trust. A person or thing is reliable when one can count upon him or it not to fail in doing what he or it is expected to do competently (as, she is a very reliable servant one of the most reliable of our employees a reliable washing machine) or to give or tell the exact truth (as, a reliable work of reference, reliable testimony) A person or thing is dependable to whom (or which) one can go in full confidence that one will get the support or assistance required in time of need or in an emergency, as to ask a friend to recommend a dependable physician he is the most dependable of our friends a dependable source of information Dependable is also used merely as a descriptive term implying a character that admits nothing that is incalculable or that is the antithesis of that which is fickle capricious or the like "Laura wasn t pretty but healthy looking and dependable" (M Austin) A person or less often a thing is trustworthy that merits or has earned one s complete confidence in his (or its) soundness, integrity, veracity discretion reliability or the like as, a trustworthy confidant, a trustworthy witness a trustworthy wife "The most trustworthy comment on the text of the Gospels and the Epistles is to be found in the practice of the primitive Christians" (Macaulay) A person is trusty who has been found by experience to be reliable and trustworthy as a trusty guide a trusty servant a trusty prisoner (often called a "trusty") A thing is trusty that has been found never to have failed one in need or in an emergency or that has been found dependable whenever needed, as "his trusty sword" (Spenser) "he wrapped the trusty garment about him" (Cather) A person or thing is tried that has demonstrated his (or its) reliability dependability trustworthiness or trustiness again and again, as, a tried and true friend, a tried remedy, a tried soldier "his tried expedients" (Bagehot)

Ana *Safe secure *infallible inerrable, inerrant unerring cogent *valid sound convincing telling

Ant Dubious — Con *Doubtful problematical questionable reliance *Trust confidence dependence faith

Ana Credence credit *belief faith assurance conviction certitude *certainty reliant Reliant, self-reliant are often contrasted rather than synonymous terms Reliant usually suggests dependence on another (or on others) that is the result either of confidence in his (or their) powers or more often, of one s own weakness and need of external support as a religious man always reliant on the help of God she is too reliant on her husband "Seem not reliant —loose thy clinging hand" (B Taylor) Self-reliant on the other hand carries a strong implication of independence and of trust in oneself however it suggests courage and backbone more than overweening self-confidence as to bring up one s children to be self reliant Johnson first taught literary men the lesson of self reliance (Jowett), doles which tend to pauperize even the self reliant poor relics Remains, leavings, *remainder residue residuum rest balance remnant relieve Relieve, alleviate, lighten, assuage, mitigate allay agree in meaning to make something tolerable or pa n to relieve the misery and suffering caused by a disaster Occasionally relieve when used in the passive implies a release from anxiety or fear, as they were greatly relieved wl en her letter came sometimes it suggest an effective calming or quieting as tl e report allayed their fears to allay one s thirst h s suspicions were allayed These words were of sobering tendency they allayed agitation they composed and consequently must make her happier (Austen)

Ana *Comfort console solace *moderate qual fy temper attemper d minish reduce lessen, *decrease

Ant Intens fy embarrass alarm religion Religion denomination sect cult commun ion faith creed persuasion church come into comparison when they denote a system of religious bel ef and worship or the body of persons who accept such a system Re ligion tl e usual uncolored term may apply to any system such as Christianity wh ch represents the beliefs and worsh p of all those who accept a given revelation or to one such as Angl canism which represents the means a follow ng and was formerly often but is now rarely appl ed to a group of persons who follow a par ticular philosopher or school of thought or rule of conduct or the like (as For we have found this man serts that all real science is precise measurement" —H Ellis) rather through a confusion of its true etymology with a false one sect has come to be applied to a group cut off from a larger body such as that of Christians or more specifically of an established or a parent church by d fferences in the interpretation or appl cation of wl it all regard as the same revelat on thus, one speaks of tl e Christ an religion (never sect) as compris ng all who accept the New Testament as d vine revelation or of tl e various sects (not religions or even denominations) into wl ich the seventeenth-century and eighteenth-century Protestant denominations were di vided Cult is applied eitl er to a form of rel gious worsh p has been in short to turn the nature cult into a religion (Babbitt) Communion stresses not difference from others but union in essentials such as of rel gious several sects of a denomination (as, the Presbyterian communion) Faith and creed apply to any system of bel ef and worship that is clearly formulated and defi nitely accepte l as men of all faiths were present creeds are often a cause of division Persuasion, l ke sect does not invariably imply reference to rel gious bel efs and worship (as, men of the same pol tical persuasion) very commonly however it does imply such reference then carrying suggestions very much like those of faith as, men and women of the Baptist persuasion Church is often used colloqu ally by Cl ristians in either of these senses and with impl cations that closely relate it to church does he belong? some churches that forbade dancing now countenance it religious, adj 1 *Devout pious pietistic sanctimoni ous.

Ana *Faithful stanch steadfast leal true virtuous righteous noble *moral ethical *upright just honorable honest

Ant Irreligious — Con Ungodly godless (see IRRELI GIOUS)

2 Spiritual *holy sacred divine blessed

Ant Secular (of schools journals authorities etc) profane (of music drama etc) religious, n Religious monk friar, nun agree in mean ing a member of a relig ous order all of whose members are bound by the monastic vows of poverty chastity especially in current English to designate any male themselves ma nly to contemplation and prayer and to liturgical observances carrying on in the meantime other labors such as in med eval days the copying of manu scripts and in the present day various scholarly artistic scientific and other employments Friar (etymologically under whose original regulations neither personal nor community tenure of property was allowed whose mem bers lived by alms, and wandered from place to place preaching the Gospel administering the sacraments and the like At the present time friar appl es to any member of these four orders or of any order patterned after them whether he lives as a mendicant or in a cloistered com munity and whether he serves as a pastor a curate a missionary a preacher a teacher or the like Both monk and friar in the strict sense of each term are also d s-bound by monastic rules go abroad as ministers of the gospel and from members of various other congrega tions such as the Vincentians who serve as teachers hosp talers missionaries and the like Nun appl es only to a female relig ous since there are no terms to dis tingu sh nuns accord ng to the severity of the r d scipline relinquish

usually in place of relinquish sometimes implying a forsaking (as we have left all and have followed thee —Mark x. 28 He has left me Quitted me! Abandoned me!"—Bennett) sometimes a giving up or letting go that may suggest motives or intentions as far apart as sacrifice (as the opium eater who cannot leave his drug —T Wolfe) and as neglect (as By all ye leave or do The imposition upon others (as, she leaves most of the work to her sister) Resign emphasizes voluntary or del berate sacrifice it usually connotes either renunciation or acceptance of the inevitable (These connotations are especially strong in resigned and resignation) Resign our own and seek our Maker s will (Cowper) In her face was that same strange mingling of resigned despair and almost eager appeal (Galsworthy) Surrender in precise use distinctively implies the existence of external compuls on or demand it commonly suggests sacrifice as for a greater advantage is he ghtened as to surrender one s right to a portion of an estate for the sake of another member of the family Cede is narrower in its application than surrender as a rule it suggests juridical pressure as expressed in a court decis on the findings of arbitrators or the terms of a treaty though it may suggest previous negotiation, and is used in reference to the transfer of lands territory or the like Abandon (as don t abandon them on my account (C Macken ie) to ins st on something, such as a right a claim one s preference one s immunity obedience to a rule law or convention or the l ke usually for the sake of courtesy s mplicity or concentration on that which is relatively waive may be used reflexively in the sense of giving oneself up to someone or something They retain their d stinctive implications in this usage but tl ey show their differences mainly in their indirect objects One surrenders oneself or now less often yields oneself to a superior power or force as a conqueror or a court of card shed cast

Ant Keep

relish, n 1 Savor tang flavor *taste sapidity smack.
2 *Taste palate gusto zest

Ana Liking loving enjoying relishing (see LIKE) *predilection partial ty prepossession prejudice bias propensity *lean ng flair penchant relish, v Fancy dote on or upon enjoy *like love

Ana Pleasing gratifying delighting rejoicing tickling regaling (see PLEASE)

Con Flat *insipid jejune banal inane reluctant. *Disinclined indisposed hesitant loath averse

Ana *Cautious circumspect chary, wary, calculating *antipathetic, unsympathetic

Con Inclined disposed predisposed (see INCLINE, v) *eager avid keen rely. Rely, trust depend, count, reckon, bank come into comparison (as intransitive verbs) when they mean to have or place full confidence One relies on or upon someone or something that one believes will never fail in giving or doing what one wishes or expects. Rely usually connotes a judgment based on previous experience and in the case of persons actual association as he relies on his father to help him out of any trouble he gets into he never relies on the opinions of others a physician upon whom all his patients rely Even in Miss Jekyll s gardens with all his admiration for them Britten could be relied upon to find some fault or other confident that another (often the Supreme Being) will not fail one in need Trust stresses unquestioning faith though it does not rule out experience as an aid to faith I will trust and not be afraid (Isaiah xii 2) Take short views hope for the best and trust in God (Sydney Smith) There is a great Field Marshal my friend who arrays our battalions Let us to Providence trust and abide and work in our stations (Clough) One depends on or upon someone or something when one with or without previous experience rests confidently on him or it for support or assistance Depend except when followed by on oneself upon one s own efforts and the like may connote a lack of self sufficiency or even weakness in most cases however it implies so strong a belief or so confident an assumption that the hoped for support or assistance is forthcoming that no provision for the contrary is made His diffidence had prevented his depending on his own judgment but his reliance on mine made everything easy (Austen) The captain of the ship at sea is a remote inaccessible creature depending on nobody (Conrad) The man never cared he was always getting himself into crusades or feuds or love or debt and depended on the woman to get him out (H Adams) One counts or reckons (more colloquial than count) on something when one takes it into one s calculations as certain or assured the words often imply even more confidence in expectation than depend but they seldom carry the latter s frequent suggestion of possible disaster if one s expectations are not fulfilled thus a captain counts (not depends) on replenishing his fuel supply at certain ports when making his calculations for a voyage the party counts (not depends) on a much larger representation in congress after the next election he reckoned on the train s being late I ve told her that she shall always have a special sum set apart for her poor children on that she may absolutely count (E Wharton) One banks (a colloquialism) on something in which one s confidence is so strong that one is willing to place a heavy wager on it in the certainty one cannot lose as I ll bank on his succeeding in any venture he undertakes you can bank on his honesty

Ana Confide entrust *commit *hope expect look look for await remain *Stay, wait abide tarry linger

Ant Depart

remainder, n Remainder, residue, residuum remains, leavings, relics, rest, balance, remnant come into comparison in the sense of that which is left after the subtraction or removal of a part Remainder is the technical term for the result in the arithmetical process of subtraction (as subtract 8 from 10 and the remainder is 2) It is otherwise a comprehensive term for anything that remain after the others of a collection assemblage or the like have been taken away or for any persons that remain after the others of the group have departed as, he spent the remainder (that is the remaining days, months or years) of his life in seclusion it took a week to eat up the remainder of their Thanksgiving feast the remainder (that is those who had not gone further) of the party turned homeward a sale of publishers remainders (that is unsold copies of various books) Residue and residuum are often interchanged with remainder but in current use they usually imply whatever may be left of a former whole often a previously intact whole after it has been subjected to some process which depletes or diminishes it but does not annihilate it Both terms but especially residue, have acquired specific meanings thus a testator after making certain bequests and providing for the payment of all his debts and charges usually leaves the residue of his estate to a legatee or to legatees of his choice water after evaporation often leaves a residue as of lime or some other mineral substance the residue of anything destroyed by burning is called ash or ashes Residuum is frequently used in place of residue especially when evaporation, ... preferred from cane is called molasses there is always a residuum of air in the lungs after the most forcible expiration possible every severe emotional experience leaves its aftereffect or residuum One might say that every fine story must leave in the mind of the sensitive reader an intangible residuum of pleasure (Cather) Remains (the singular form remain has given way to the plural) is now chiefly used of that which is left after death, decay decline disintegration or consumption the term is specifically applied to a corpse to the unpublished works of a dead author and to the ruins of an ancient civilization as they buried Keats s remains in the Protestant cemetery in Rome to be appointed executor of a friend s literary remains the remains of Pompeii the remains of a meal Leavings usually but not invariably implies that the valuable or useful parts or things have been culled out and used up or taken away or that what is left has been rejected or discarded How like the leavings of some vast over turned scrap-basket ... humorously senses in which remains is more commonly employed ... or treasur arithmetical sense) and the two are commonly used interchangeably without loss However it is preferred to remainder by discriminating writers and speakers when it means simply the persons or things not previously referred to or mentioned as in an enumeration or list and carries no implication of subtraction deduction depletion and the like as England as well as the rest of Europe awaited the effect of the ultimatum with anxiety only two stories in this book are interesting and the rest are uniformly dull Balance, in the sense of remainder or rest has never been fully accepted by authorities even in the United States where it is more common than in England Presently I began to receive letters asking for the rest of it sometimes for the balance of it (J R. Lowell) In this sense the term derives from the commercial use of balance for the sum in which one side of an account falls short of the other and which must be added in order that the two sides balance or become equal In reference to a banking account balance usually is applied only to the amount left after withdrawals and other charges have been deducted from the deposits and accumulated interest (the reverse being called an overdraft) in a mercantile charge account balance is usually applied to the amount owed after credits have been deducted from the debits thus a balance (strictly a deposit balance) in the bank is a sum of money to the depositor s credit a balance of a bill (or more explicitly a balance due) is an amount still owed by the debtor a balance in hand is an amount left when all assets are reckoned after all liabilities have been discharged Remnant, and its increasingly common plural remnants are now applied only to a remainder that is small in size or numbers or that represents only an insignificant part or piece left from a former whole as the remnant of a once powerful army a sale of remnants of cloth. The last representative of the original Cardenas y Barrenuevos was supposed to be living in Santa Fé on the remnants of the family fortune (M Austin) Sleeping bits of woodlands—remnants of the great forests in which Tom had worked as a boy (S Anderson) remains Leavings, residue *remainder residuum relics rest balance remnant remark, v 1 Notice note observe perceive discern *see behold descry espy view survey contemplate

2 Remark comment, commentate animadvert come into comparison in their intransitive senses where they are usually followed by on or upon They agree in meaning to make observations or to pass judgment but they diverge in their implications regarding the motive and the nature of these observations and judgments Remark usually implies little more than a desire to call attention to something as a bore remarks upon everything he sees "So I remarked upon our Schumann s victories Over the commonplace how faded phrase grew fine (Browning) Comment stresses interpretation as by bringing out what is not apparent or by adding details that help to clarify as the dramatic reader frequently interrupted his performance to comment upon a scene Very frequently in modern use the word implies unfavorable interpretation The Vicar told his curate One or two of the parishioners have commented on your passion for Oaktown, and I fancy that you have given a little offence (C Mackenzie) Commentate an old word that had been falling into disuse has recently been revived as a substitute for comment to suggest a purely expository or interpretative intent The verb is, however less frequently used than its agent noun commentator as radio commentators on the news of the day Animadvert implies a turning of one s attention to something for the sake of judging it as Adrian animadverted on everybody very sympathetically (Meredith) In modern use however this its basic implication, is often obscured by an emphasis on passing an adverse judgment (see ANIMADVERSION) "You know you have grievously offended him I wish not to animadvert on your conduct (Meredith)

remark, n Remark, observation, comment, commentary, note, descant, obiter dictum come into comparison when they denote a brief expression intended to enlighten clarify express an opinion or the like A remark is a more or less casual expression in speech or writing of an opinion or judgment as of something seen in passing something read for the first time something to which one s attention has been called or the like the term usually carries no implication of a final or considered judgment as "Perhaps you may now and then amuse yourself with my translation Should your remarks reach me they shall be all most welcome (Cowper), Brousson had a genius for remembering the most telltale gestures as well as the most self revelatory remarks of his master (J W Krutch) Observation suggests a reasoned judgment based on more or less careful scrutiny of the evidence He apparently was impressed by my observation that disease had made it largely impossible for Indians to smile (V Heiser) In reading over a package of letters from Sarah Orne Jewett I find this observation The thing that teases the mind over and over for years and at last gets itself put down rightly on paper belongs to Literature (Cather) Comment applies to a remark or an observation made in criticism in interpretation or in elucidation of something as the candidate said he would make no comment on the suggestion Very often she gave him some wise observation or discreet comment to begin the day with (Cather) Katherine seldom does much of the talking She listens and puts in from time to time some critical comment that often extraordinarily clears up any subject one is talking round (R Macaulay) Commentary may be used in place of comment for an annotation or gloss of a passage or text More often however it is employed as a collective noun designating the series of annotations or glosses provided for the elucidation of a text or literary work Note applies chiefly to a written or printed comment gloss or the like on a particular point such as the historical origin of an idea the exact meaning of a term or the source of the writer's information, made either by the reader of an article or book on the margin of a page or by the author to be printed at the bottom of the page (then called a footnote) or with other comments or glosses in an appendix The author was advised to subjoin some few explanatory notes (Gray) Note is also applicable to any brief statement jotted down such as one of the minutes of a meeting a memorandum of a point developed or to be developed in a speech or of a point made by a speaker or lecturer or the like as to make notes of what happened at the conference to preach from notes Descant (originally a musical term designating a voice part above the main one or serving as an accompaniment to it) is often used as a synonym of remark or comment with however a stronger suggestion of addition to or variation of the main theme (as Neither shall I make any descant or reflection thereon — Barrow) very often also the term does not imply brevity but a playing with or upon a thought or subject Charlotte Brontë makes no break in the artistry of her Villette when she imbeds in it a descant on a piece of acting by Rachel (C E Montague) Obiter dictum (pl obiter dicta) is a Latin phrase (meaning literally a word on the way that is in passing) applied in law to an incidental opinion delivered by a judge on a matter bearing upon but not material to the case being tried and therefore having no binding force In literary use its connotations have been determined largely by Augustine

Birrell who in his book of informal essays called Obiter Dicta defines it (obiter dictum) humorously as "A gratuitous opinion an individual impertinence which whether it be wise or foolish, right or wrong bindeth none, not even the lips that utter it " The term is usually applied to a remark or observation made more or less on the spur bringing about recovery or restoration to health, as aspirin is a common remedy for headache, sunlight and rest are remedies for tuberculosis Cure is more positive a faith cure the cure for a psychic disorder Medicine, except in extended and more or less humorous use (as a year s vacation is the only medicine I need) is the ordinary term for any substance or preparation (especially one in the form of a pill a powder a capsule a liquid now rarely applied to a substance or preparation used externally as by applying rubbing or spraying The plied usually to a drug sometimes to a medicine known to be effective in curing a certain disease thus quinine is the specific for malaria Most medicines are alleviative in their action and not definitely curative A very few actual curatives are known and these are gen revise

Ana. *Relieve assuage alleviate lighten mitigate reme to him (i e put me and my regard for him in his mind) and in older literary use (as Remembering them the truth of what they themselves know —Milton) now implies a putting oneself in mind of something The term in current use carries so strong an implication of keeping in one's memory that it often implies no conscious effort or willing, as he remembers every detail of that occurrence as though it happened yesterday, "The average reader of the newspaper or short story reads to forget not to remember" (C W. Eliot); "Years—so many of them that no one remembered the exact number" (R Bradford) Recollect (which is distinguished from re-collect only in pronunciation and in bearing a more specific significance) etymologically presupposes a scattering and implies a gathering of that which has been scattered it is distinguished from remember in presupposing a letting go from rather than a retaining in one's used reflexively recollect usually implies a remembrance of something one has forgotten in one's eagerness, excitement anger, or the like, such as one's manners or attended (Millay) " Miss Manette, had you any conversation with the prisoner on that passage across the channel? Yes sir Recall it ' In the midst of a profound stillness she faintly began (Dickens) But recall may imply as recollect does not and as remember now rarely does an agent or an agency other than oneself in such because it implies the evocation of something forgotten or not at the time in one's mind by some compelling o'clock, he found it necessary to keep on reminding himself that the time was short and the work must be finished according to schedule Reminisce rarely occurs as a transitive verb but as an intransitive verb it usually implies the process of recollecting or of recalling something 'She could not have remembered much of Keats How do people remember overlook

remembrance. *Memory recollection reminiscence mind souvenir Ant Forgetfulness

remind. *Remember recollect recall reminisce bethink mind Ana *Suggest intimate hint imply reminisce *Remember, recollect recall remind bethink mind reminiscence. *Memory, remembrance recollection mind souvenir remiss. Lax, slack neglectful *negligent Ana *Careless heedless thoughtless *forgetful oblivious, unmindful indolent slothful, fainéant *lazy Ant Scrupulous

remit. 1 Pardon forgive *excuse condone Ana *Exculpate

*trace remodel. Rebuild *mend repair patch remonstrate. Expostulate *object protest kick Ana *Oppose combat resist withstand *criticize denounce reprobate remorse. *Penitence repentance contrition attrition compunction.

Ana Regret, *sorrow, grief *qualm scruple compunction demur remote *Distant, far faraway far-off removed Ant Close

remove, v 1 *Move shift transfer Ana Convey *carry cate, ev 2 Rem as close their basic and general meaning to move something from

Ana

shoes "the

Ana Eliminate, *exclude, debar *separate, part divorce renegade or renegado, n Renegade (or renegado), apostate, pervert, turncoat, recreant backslider hibitionism Turncoat, a contemptuous designation differs from renegade and apostate chiefly in its implications that profession of faith or allegiance is regarded lightly and that convenience or profit rather than con was regarded as a turncoat' (Van W Brooks) Recreant, like apostate implies a retreat from a stand one has taken but it stresses cowardice and mean spiritedness and usually connotes treachery to the party or cause once supported Backslider, in contrast to the other terms usually implies a previous conversion and a reversion abandoner (see corresponding verbs at ABANDON) *heretic schismatic.

Ant Adherent

renew. Renew, restore, refresh, renovate, refurbish, redintegrate, rejuvenate, rejuvenize, rejuvenesce come into comparison when they mean to give a person or

Eliot) or a making a fresh start (as to renew one s efforts to renew one s offer of assistance) Restore definitely implies a return to an original state or to a prime condition as after depletion exhaustion illness or the like (as to restore one s vigor to restore one s good humor a long rest restored him to health) or after having been marred injured or wrecked as by passage of time use accident or assault in war (as Rheims Cathedral was restored after the World War an attempt to restore a picture or mutilated statue) or after the loss of any vital or essential quality or character (as If I quench thee thou flaming minister I can again thy former light restore Should I repent me —Shak great artists have never been able to restore the scent and the savour and the substance [of French speech] which Villon and Montaigne could once find within its borders — H Ellis) Refresh often implies the supplying of something necessary to restore lost strength animation power or the like (as sleep refreshes both body and mind the tired soldiers were refreshed after they had partaken of food a cool refreshing drink) or to make up for that which has been lost through forgetfulness or disuse or has never been known or the earth ..break forth to refresh and gladden the life of flowers and the life of man' (Binyon), "The presence of Helen renewed and refreshed him (S Anderson) Renovate and refurbish differ from the preceding terms chiefly in being referred almost, but not quite exclusively to material things and as a consequence, in not having gathered the finer poetic connotations so often found in renew restore and refresh Renovate is often used in place of renew when cleansing repairing rebuilding or the like is implied, as to renovate both the rooms and scouring or polishing it suggests little more than a term now seldom used carries a strong implication of a return to original soundness integrity, or perfection it is employed especially with reference to things whose wholeness, soundness or perfection depends chiefly on a rectify *correct

Con Exhaust *deplete drain impoverish bankrupt renounce 1 *Abdicate resign demit Ana Sacrifice abnegate *forgo forbear eschew Ant Arrogate covet (sense 2) — Con Usurp pre-*forgo.

Ant Confess (sense 1) claim renovate. Refurbish rejuvenate *renew restore refresh redintegrate Ana *Mend repair patch remodel *clean cleanse *polish shine burnish renown. *Fame honor glory celebrity reputation repute notoriety éclat Ana Prestige authority *influence weight credit Con Contempt despite disdain scorn (see under DESPISE) disrepute *disgrace dishonor obloquy renowned. *Famous famed noted celebrated distin of each day s wishes as with the diurnal setting of the sun (Hardy) Abnegation is scarcely distinguishable from self-abnegation in historical use Modern writers however prefer the latter or its equivalent abnegation of self Both words (except the former in rare instances) more often denote a quality of character than an act, both imply a very high degree of unselfishness or a capacity for putting aside all personal interests or desires Individuals who are willing to abandon the pleasures of the world for lepers are rare but, when found usually exhibit complete abnegation of self (L Hesser) Self-denial, unlike abnegation, is usually applied to an act or a practice. Though it means denial of oneself or forbearance from gratifying one s own desires, it does not necessarily connote nobility in the act, its motive or its end, and is therefore applicable to a larger range of instances than either abnegation or renunciation Her still face with the mouth closed tight from suffering and disillusion and self-denial (D H Lawrence)

Ana Sacrificing or sacrifice, forgoing forbearing eschewing (see corresponding verbs at FORGO) repair, v *Mend patch rebuild remodel

Ana Remedy redress amend emend rectify, *correct *renew renovate refurbish restore reparation. Reparation redress, amends, restitution, indemnity agree in meaning a return for something lost or suffered usually through the fault of another Reparation commonly implies an attempt to restore things to their normal or sound condition Though now chiefly applied to recompense for material losses or damages, or reimbursement for repairs (as, war reparations to seek reparation from the state for flood damages) it is still frequently applied to atonement for an offense especially one incurring injury to others as, to make reparation for one s sins I am sensible of the scandal I have given by my loose writings and make what reparation I am able (Dryden) Redress heightens the implications of a grievance and therefore, connotes compensation or satisfaction, or even, at times retaliation or vengeance as to seek redress in the courts or by the sword " Redress is always to be had against oppression by punishing the immediate agents (Johnson) The civil law by which contracts are enforced and redress given for slanders and injuries that are not dealt with by the police (Shaw) "Particular grievances call not only for redress but also for the formulation of universally valid reasons why they should be redressed" (A Huxley) Amends is as strong as redress in its suggestion of due satisfaction but weaker in its implication of a grievance It often implies a correction or restoration of a just balance If I did take the kingdom from your sons To make amends I ll give it to your daughter (Shak) Love, freedom comrades surely make amends For all these thorns through which we walk to death (Masefield) Restitution implies the restoration in kind or in value of that unlawfully taken from one as, to make restitution for a theft or for slander a restitution of civil rights Indemnity is the specific term for money given as by an insurance company in reparation for losses caused by fire accident illness, etc or as by a defeated country for losses caused by war

Ana Expiation atonement (see under EXPIATE) compensation, remuneration requital recompensing or recompense (see corresponding verbs at PAY) repartee *Wit humor irony sarcasm satire

Ana Retort rejoinder response (see under ANSWER, v) *badinage persiflage raillery repay *Pay compensate remunerate recompense requite satisfy reimburse indemnify

Ana Balance, offset *compensate accord award (see GRANT v)

repeat, v 1 Repeat, iterate, reiterate, ingeminate come into comparison as meaning to say or do again. Repeat, the word in ordinary use may be used in reference not only to what is said or uttered again (as to repeat a command to repeat a request, the teacher repeated her question not once but three times) but to what is made done presented performed or studied again (as to repeat an attempt to swim the river, to repeat a step in a process the Glee Club will repeat the concert tomorrow night they were asked to repeat the performance, to repeat a lesson to wish to repeat a pleasant experience) Repeat sometimes implies a change in the speaker or doer, as, please do not repeat what I have told you the teacher asked the children to repeat the verses after her Although the use of again after repeat is regarded as redundant the use of a word or phrase indicating the number of times something is repeated is not always necessarily redundant for the verb sometimes implies not one time but an indefinite number of times as the same figure is repeated (or repeated ten or twenty times) in the design Iterate in current use commonly implies one repetition after another especially of something that is said as, matter of hardly less surprise and iterated talk in the village (G Eliot) There is very little difference between iterate and reiterate, except that the former occasionally refers to a second saying doing etc and the latter carries an even more emphatic implication of manifold repetitions consequently the two words are often used together when insistency is implied (as scientific research iterates and reiterates one moral the greatness of little things —Sat Review), though when only one term is desired to make this point reiterate is usually preferred (as, Mother is wonderful Over and over thought Edith they had reiterated that phrase" —V Woolf the muffled footsteps of innumerable pilgrims and the reiterated mantra Nam Mo, O-mi to-Fo, which they murmured —L P Smith) Ingeminate [from a Latin verb meaning to double] a somewhat rare term still occasionally found in the work of good writers Implies reiteration not for the sake of insistency but for special emphasis or impressiveness It therefore seldom implies indefinite repetition but rather duplication or triplication for the sake of the effect produced [Falkland] often after a deep silence and frequent sighs would with a shrill and sad accent ingeminate the word Peace Peace (Clarendon)

Ana *Return recur, revert, recrudesce rehearse recite recount *relate

2 *Quote cite repellent or repellant. *Repugnant abhorrent distasteful obnoxious invidious

Ana *Offensive loathsome repulsive revolting

Ant Attractive pleasing — Con Alluring charming captivating bewitching (see under ATTRACT) enticing seductive tempting luring (see corresponding verbs at LURE) repentance. *Penitence contrition attrition remorse compunction

Ana Regret *sorrow, grief confessing or confession absolving or absolution (see corresponding verbs at CONFESS)

Con. Complacency self-complacency self satisfaction (see corresponding adjectives at COMPLACENT) repercuss Reverberate recoil *rebound resile replace Replace, displace supplant supersede come into comparison in spite of the fact that they are rarely interchangeable terms for they sometimes carry the same basic meaning—to put a person or thing out of his or its place or into the place of another A person replaces that which has been lost destroyed used up widowed father's remarriage by saying that no woman could replace their mother, although he enjoyed marionettes he declared that they could never replace human actors) Also one replaces a thing when he puts it back crowded out or ousted or replaces it (or him) by another This dual implication of putting out of place and of replacing is the chief distinction of displace in contrast with replace as the weight of water displaced by a floating body such as a ship is equal to that of the displacing body However one of these ideas is sometimes, but far from always stressed more than the other so that the table —E Wharton) In strictest use a person supplants (etymologically trips up or overthrows) another when by craft fraud treachery or the like he dispossesses or ousts the other and takes or usurps his place posses longer implied as his tutor tried to supplant his fears by arousing his sense of curiosity the Modernists don't claim that the Divine revelation has been supplanted but that it has been amplified (C Mackenzie) A thing or less often a person supersedes (etymologically sits above) another when it (or he) directly or indirectly causes that other to be set aside abandoned or rejected as inferior no longer of use or value super erudition—that the next scholar sucks the few drops of honey that you have accumulated sets right your blunders and you are superseded (A C Benson) A person supersedes another in a position an office a rank or the like either when as the one having authority or appointive power he replaces the present incumbent by another (as to supersede a dishonest public official) or when as the one who takes the place he supplants the present recoup retrieve replete *Full complete plenary Ana Abundant *plentiful sated satiated surfeited (see SATIATE) replica Facsimile *reproduction duplicate copy car y transcript

*Answer respond rejoin retort.
*Ask question interrogate query inquire cate-tamine *accuse charge impeach, indict salute *address

r, in law replication, n Answer response rejoinder retort. See under ANSWER n 1 Ana Acknowledgment recognition (see corresponding verbs at ACKNOWLEDGE) Con Asking requesting or request solicitation (see -onding verbs at ASK) accusation charging or (see corresponding verbs at ACCUSE) *argument *greeting salute

v *Relate narrate describe state recite rehearse

*Communicate impart *reveal disclose discover tell divulge report, n 1 *Account story chronicle version.

2 Dispatch message note *letter epistle missive memorandum repose, n *Rest relaxation leisure ease comfort Ana Calmness, tranquillity serenity placidity peacefulness (see corresponding adjectives at CALM) refreshment restoration renewal redintegration (see corresponding verbs at RENEW) Con *Work labor toil grind drudgery *stress strain agitation perturbation discomposure (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE) reposeful Restful *comfortable cozy snug easy Ana Tranquil serene placid peaceful *calm *still quiet silent reprehend *Criticize censure reprobate condemn ne e rebuke reprimand admonish reproach upbraid berate rate press.

n curb check inhibit subdue overcome

*Reprove rebuke reproach admonish chide Ana Upbraid rate berate *scold censure denounce blame reprehend reprobate *criticize reprisal *Retaliation retribution revenge vengeance reproach, v Chide admonish *reprove rebuke reprimand Ana *Criticize reprehend censure reprobate *warn forewarn caution counsel advise (see under ADVICE) solute ate *blame-us virtuous

reprobate, v Censure reprehend *criticize blame condemn denounce Ana *Decry derogate from detract from depreciate disparage reject, repudiate spurn (see DECLINE v) reprimand rebuke *reprove reproduce Propagate *generate engender breed beget get sire procreate dy been made produced written or like Reproduction may imply identity in material or substance in size and in quality or it may imply differences provided that the imitation gives a fairly true likeness of the original thus a reproduction of an Elizabethan theater may be on a very small scale, a reproduction of a Sheraton chair may be in cherry rather than in the mahogany of the original A duplicate is ture, to make out a receipt in duplicate A copy is a reproduction, it may imply differences as in scale but it ginal and is thought of as its equal in value, thus one does not correctly speak of a modern replica of the reprove Reprove, rebuke, reprimand, admonish, reproach, chide stern reproof, reprimand suggests reproof that is formal Count him not as an enemy but admonish him as a brother (2 Thessalonians iii 15) "Sincere acknowledgments to both my private and public censors animate and the inanimate is distasteful to science which aged the addresses of a man so obnoxious to them all (Richardson). The Prussian Government too during the war offered a the invidious word usury) (Hume), "What I would urge therefore is that no invidious distinction should be made between the Old Ana. Repellent, *repugnant, abhorrent, obnoxious.

Ant. Alluring captivating reputation. Repute, *fame, renown, honor, glory celebrity, éclat, notoriety.

Ana Credit, weight, *influence authority prestige repute, n Reputation, *fame, renown, celebrity, notoriety, éclat, honor, glory.

Ant Disrepute

reputed. *Supposed suppositious supposititious putative conjectural, hypothetical Ana Assumed, presumed (see PRESUPPOSE) *traditional legendary request, v *Ask solicit Ana *Beg entreat, beseech implore, supplicate importune appeal petition sue pray (see under PRAYER) require 1 Exact, claim, *demand Ana. *Prescribe, assign, define warrant, *justify 2 *Lack want, need requirement Requirement, requisite, prerequisite agree in denoting something that is regarded as necessary to the success or perfection of a thing Although requirement, the more general term, may be employed in place of requisite, in current use it is the customary term when the idea to be conveyed is of something more or less arbitrarily demanded or expected especially, but not exclusively by those who lay down conditions as for admission to college for enlistment in the army or navy

(G Eliot), "My wardrobe had to provide for a wide range in temperature, and social business, and sport site differs from requisite only in a stress on the time when it becomes indispensable It applies therefore to things which must be known, or accomplished, or acquired as preliminaries to the study of a subject, the doing of a kind of work, or the attainment of any end as "he possesses the prerequisite of an original poet—a percipience unifying exact and exhilarating" (Day Lewis) requisite, adj *Needful necessary, indispensable essential Ana. Compelled or compulsory, constrained obliged or obligatory (see corresponding verbs at FORCE) fundamental *essential cardinal vital requisite, n *Requirement prerequisite requite. Recompense, repay, compensate, remunerate *pay, satisfy, reimburse, indemnify Ana. Retaliate, revenge (see corresponding nouns at RETALIATION) regain *recover, retrieve recoup rescue, v Rescue, deliver, redeem, ransom, reclaim, save come into comparison as meaning to free a person automobile) less often, one rescues a thing that is in danger of destruction, or that has been forcibly seized least, from serfdom" (H Ellis) One redeems a person in bondage, in captivity, or from suffering the consequences paying the amount that is due or is asked for its recovery (as, at last he was able to redeem his watch) or from a state of neglect, deterioration, or decay by spending the money or the time necessary to restore it to good condition (as, "a plot of land redeemed from the heath, and after long and laborious years brought into cultivation —Hardy), One ransoms a person who has been captured

(Milton) One reclaims that which has become debased wild, savage, waste, desert, or the like, by bringing it back to its former state or condition Specifically, one reclaims a person who has wandered from rectitude or has become a sinner, a reprobate, a degenerate, or the enjoy security or happiness, to be of future use or service or the like, as to save a house from flames, to save a tree ved by an wrong by save me

manumit

harmony conformity (see corresponding verbs at AGREE) *comparison parallel Ant Difference distinction resentment. *Offense umbrage pique dudgeon huff Ana Rancor animus animosity antipathy antagonism (see ENMITY) ill will spite *malice malignity reserve, v *Keep keep back hold back retain withhold detain Ana *Save preserve conserve appropriate pre-empt confiscate *arrogate reserved *Silent, reticent uncommunicative taciturn secretive close close-lipped closemouthed tight lipped [illegible] INDIFFERENT) ceremonious reside Reside, live, dwell sojourn lodge, stay, put up, [illegible] extended use it carries a stronger implication of abiding as in thought or in spirit (as The bad poet dwells partly in a world of objects and partly in a world of words, and he never can get them to fit —T S Eliot) [illegible]

[illegible] money in a bank to lodge the cattle in the barn for the winter) Stay is the term commonly used in colloquial language in place of sojourn and often of lodge as, he is staying at Miami Beach for the winter whenever he was [illegible] avoided by very precise writers and speakers Ana Remain abide (see STAY) *continue endure residence. *Habitation dwelling abode domicile house home resident, n *Inhabitant denizen citizen.

residue Residuum remains leavings *remainder relics rest balance remnant residuum Residue *remainder remains, leavings

[illegible] ve abandon, *relinquish [illegible] fice, forbear abnegate [illegible] acquiescence See under [illegible] yielding deferring or [illegible]

[illegible] pluck resigned *Compliant, acquiescent Ana Submissive, subdued (see TAME) reconciled adjusted adapted accommodated conformed (see [illegible] [illegible] BOUND) recovering, regaining retrieving (see RECOVER) Con Rigid *stiff inflexible tense 2 *Elastic expansive buoyant volatile effervescent Ana Responsive sympathetic (see TENDER) *spirited high spirited mettlesome Ant Flaccid

resist [illegible] Ant Submit abide

[illegible] Steadfast stanch *faithful, true leal, loyal [illegible] determined, decided resolved (see DECIDE) valiant *brave courageous stubborn [illegible] pertinacious.

[illegible] 1 *Analyze, dissect, anatomize break down Ana *Separate, part, divide reduce diminish (see DECREASE) dissolve melt fuse (see LIQUEFY)

Ant Blend
2 Determine *decide settle rule

…ed o… authentic information and recourse to someone or something that will supply such information as every time he comes across a new word he refers to the dictionary most men refer to their own watches when someone reports the time Apply suggests having direct terms than the words previously considered for they Ana *Direct address devote *use employ utilize resort, n *Resource expedient shift makeshift stopgap substitute surrogate and tradition from using the resources of texture and of light and shade (Binyon) Resort is now far less often used than resource except when qualified by last or in classify when you come to art is at the best an expedient, useful to some critics and to a multitude of examiners (Quiller Couch) A shift is commonly a tentative or temporary expedient the term frequently implies eva for the super or and of en th paper in their windows as a makeshift for glass. Stopgap applies to any person or thing that momentarily or has been invented or devised to take its place or to do its work as Another discovery was that a substitute for milk could be manufactured from the soya bean" (V Heiser) Daydreams in adult life are recognized as more or less pathological and as a substitute for efforts in the sphere of reality (B Russell) Surrogate is a somewhat learned word for a substitute often but far from always for a synthetic or artificial product designed to replace a natural product that is scarce or comparatively expensive as surrogates for various foodstuffs such as butter slang is a facile surrogate for thought (Lowes) Ana *Device contrivance contraption *invention, creation (see corresponding verbs at INVENT) *method manner way fashion mode system respect, v Regard esteem admire See under REGARD n Ana Reverence *revere venerate value prize cherish *appreciate Ant Abuse misuse respect n *Regard esteem admiration …rence awe fear *honor homage deference reverence worship adoration (see under mpt Concerning regarding *about anent, Individual particular *special especial spec… concrete *Each apiece severally individually *Splendid gorgeous glorious sublime

Ana Effulgent refulgent radiant brilliant *bright blazing glowing flaming (see BLAZE v) respond *Answer reply rejoin retort Ana React behave
…der
…ble
sub-
…e of
…are
…ng someone
…e

distinguishable largely in their applications One is responsible for the performance of a task or duty or the fulfillment of an obligation or the execution of a trust or the administration of an office to the person or body that imposes the task duty trust or the like or delegates the power, as the Governor is responsible to the electorate for the administration of the laws Sometimes the to phrase or the for phrase is suppressed but still implied, as the salesmen are responsible to the manager and the manager is responsible to the owner a teacher is responsible for the conduct of pupils in the classroom "The ideally free individual is responsible only to himself" (H Adams) Sometimes when both phrases are suppressed responsible implies manifest ability to fulfill one's obligations as his record shows that he is a responsible person. Still narrower meanings are possible when the word is so used that with the aid of the context a sense of one's moral obligations or the power of judgment is connoted "James arrived at an age when he could be treated as responsible" (Froude) One is answerable (to someone for something) who because of a moral or legal obligation or because of the acceptance of such an obligation for another may be called upon to pay the penalty for a violation of the law or a neglect of duty it usually indicates or implies the existence of a judge or tribunal as the father made himself answerable to the court for his son's behavior "Men in business, who are answerable with their fortunes for the consequences of their opinions" (Hazlitt) One is accountable (to someone for something) who because of something entrusted to one is bound to be called upon to render an account of how that trust has been executed Accountable is much more positive than responsible or answerable in its suggestion of retributive justice in case of default "We are held accountable and God will reckon with us roundly for the abuse of what he deems no mean or trivial trust" (Cowper) Amenable and liable especially stress subjection and suggest the contingency rather than the probability or certainty of being called to account One is amenable (to someone or to something) whose acts are subject to the control or the censure of a higher authority and who therefore is not self governing or absolute in power "as a despot is amenable to no will other than his own" "Is it to be contended that the heads of departments are not amenable to the laws of their country?" (Ch Just Marshall) One (a person or thing) is liable that by the terms of the law may be made answerable in case of one's own or another's default as a surety is liable for the debts of his principal "The present United States took nothing by succession from the Confederation It ... was not liable for any of its [the Confederation's] obligations" (Ch Just Taney) Liable does not however always imply answerability It may imply mere contingent obligation as, every citizen is liable for jury duty (or liable to be called to serve on a jury)

Ana Subject open exposed (see LIABLE) *reliable dependable trustworthy responsive Sympathetic, warm warmhearted compassionate *tender

Ana Gentle mild lenient (see SOFT) sensible conscious alive awake *aware sensitive susceptible prone (see LIABLE) rest, n 1 Rest, repose, relaxation leisure, ease comfort come into comparison when they mean freedom from toil or strain Rest the most general of these terms implies withdrawal from labor or exertion of any kind and therefore suggests an opposition to the term work but it may imply freedom from activity of any kind it does not in itself explicitly imply any particular way of spending one's time but it always suggests as an aim or as a result the overcoming of physical or mental weariness as "There the wicked cease from troubling and there the weary be at rest" (Job iii 17). "Sleep on now and take your rest" (Matthew xxvi 45) "Night came and with it but little rest" (Hardy) Repose implies freedom from motion or movement and therefore not only suggests physical quiet (often specifically the state of sleeping or slumbering), but also mental quiet and freedom from that which disturbs, annoys agitates confuses or the like the term therefore usually suggests tranquillity or peace or the refreshment that comes from complete quiet or rest "Heavily passed the night Sleep or repose that deserved the name of sleep, was out of the question" (Austen) "Eighteen years of commotion had made the majority of the people ready to buy repose at any price" (Macaulay) "Walls that shut out the world and gave repose to the spirit" (Cather) Repose is also used in aesthetics and art criticism for a principle that is opposed usually to that of motion or action sometimes the term implies a flawless harmony of colors hues or tones or a harmonious disposition of parts so that the whole rests the eye (or ear) and satisfies the mind (as "The repose of classical art not in sculpture alone is gone from our ideals"—S Alexander) but at other times it suggests rather the absence of any straining for effect or of any signs of a difference between that which is attempted (or suggested) and that which is achieved (as "the new tower [of Chartres Cathedral] is a little wanting in repose for a tower whose business is to counterpoise the very classic lines of the old one"—H Adams) Relaxation may imply rest that comes from diversion or recreation but in the sense here stressed, it implies either a releasing of the tension that keeps muscles taut and fit for work or the mind keyed up to the processes of clear and prolonged thinking or a physical and mental slackening that finally induces repose "[Amusements] catering to those who wish relaxation from analysis—to the tired scientist, and the fagged philologist and the weary man of business" (Babbitt) "The hours of the day at which people can work under highest tension the proportion of pressure and relaxation conducive to a maximum output" (Grandgent) "Now and then came relaxation and lassitude but never release The war towered over him like a vigilant teacher" (H G Wells) Leisure implies exemption from labor imposed upon one by a trade or profession by duties, etc it may apply to the hours in which one is not engaged in one's daily work or to the period in which one is on vacation or to the entire time of a person who is not compelled to earn his living as to have little leisure for reading he looked forward to the prospect of a full month of leisure those who lead lives of leisure Leisure therefore stresses freedom from compulsion or routine or continuous work it usually suggests not freedom from activity but the freedom to determine one's activities "Labor is doing what we must leisure is doing what we like rest is doing nothing whilst our bodies and minds are recovering from their fatigue" (Shaw) "I cannot include under the pleasant name of leisure those activities that are carried on systematically after business hours Very soon they become things that must be done" (S M Crothers) Ease (see also READINESS) stresses exemption from toil but it also implies a freedom from that which worries or disturbs and from that which demands physical or mental activity In contrast to leisure it implies rest and repose in addition it suggests either complete relaxation of mind and body or a state of mind that finds no attraction in work or activity as "lasting ease Elysian quiet, without toil or strife" (Wordsworth) "all day I sit in idleness while to and fro About me thy serene grave servants go And I am weary of my lonely ease (Mil differs from all the other words of this group in carrying little if any suggestion of freedom from toil it applies rather to a state of mind induced by rel ef from all that strains or inconveniences or causes pain disquiet or wealth streaming through his f ngers neither adulation nor love neither splendour nor comfort (Conrad)

Ana Intermitting or intermission suspend ng or suspens on deferring (see corresponding verbs at DEFER) stillness quietness or qu et s lentness or s lence (see correspond ng adjectives at STILL) calmness or calm tranquillity serenity (see correspond ng adjectives at CALM) rest, n *Remainder residue residuum remains leavings relics balance remnant

Ana *Excess superfluity surplus surplusage overplus restful Reposeful *comfortable cozy snug easy

Ana *Soft gentle mild lenient *still quiet silent placid peaceful *calm serene tranqu l restitution Amends redress *reparation indemnity

Ana Repayment recompense reimbursement requital (see corresponding verbs at PAY) restive 1 *Contrary perverse balky froward wayward

Ana Intractable *unruly ungovernable refractory *obstinate stubborn mulish stiff necked pigheaded

2 Restless *impatient nervous unquiet uneasy fidgety skittish feverish hectic jumpy jittery

Ana See those at RESTLESS restless Restive *impatient nervous unquiet uneasy ricious ed dis-

restorative Restorative alterative tonic are synonymous terms in medicine denoting an agent that tends to restore a person to normal health or vigor Restorative may be used generally but it is most often applied to a substance such as smelling salts or adrenalin that has a rapid action in restoring a person to consciousness as after fainting apparent drowning or the like Alterative is appl ed to a medicine or treatment prescribed for building up the body espec ally after an illness An alterative acts gradually having a favorable effect upon the general processes of nutrition and repair in the body but not having a demonstrable effect on any particular organ Typical alteratives are iron mercury compounds and cod liver o l Tonic is applied to an agent usually a medicine that gradually restores normal vigor to the a specific action thus strychnine is a nerve tonic amend (see CORRECT v) *recover regain retrieve recoup recruit Restrain curb, snaffle, check, bridle inhibit o comparison when they mean to hold a person back from doing something or from going too ing something Restrain, the most comprehen ese terms may imply the intent either to prevent or to keep under control or within bounds, but it usually suggests the operation of some force authority or motive that is so strong or compell ng that it achieves the desired end Pleasant excited by the strangeness of the occasion could not be restrained she was bubbl ng over with information (Deland) "To produce in the drastically restrained their power to acqu re and bequeath property (Buchan) Curb suggests the use of a method comparable to that of a curb (i e a chain or strap) which when pulled back by a rider draws tightly against the lower jaw of a speeding or unruly horse and brings him under control it therefore differs from restrain in implying either a sharp drastic method that produces its effect immediately (as, He s often been on the point of blurting out with it but I ve curbed h m"—Cather) or the influence of something that serves to shackle one or to prevent a thing s free or efficient operation (as Authority curbs the will power of the individual" —C W Eliot The sober scientific method does not stimulate the imagination it curbs it —S M Crothers)

Check (as here considered see also ARREST 1) often discipl ined and checked by the broader interests of the Church —H Adams) Bridle (as here compared see also STRUT) also derives its implications from the use of a part of a horse s harness in this case the one called a bridle and consisting of all the parts of the headgear by means of which a horse is gu ded or controlled The verb carries a stronger implication of keeping under one s psychological na *Arrest check interrupt abstain *refrain rbear *hinder impede obstruct block nt Impel incite activate abandon (oneself) straint Constraint compulsion, *force coercion uress, violence Ana Curbing, checking inhibiting (see RESTRAIN) indering impeding obstructing blocking (see HINDER) Ant Incitement liberty strict *Limit circumscribe confine Ana Bind *tie *contract shrink *restrain curb heck Con *Extend lengthen *expand amplify swell nlarge *increase sult Consequence *effect aftereffect event after math issue outcome upshot sequel Ana Concluding or conclusion ending or end closing or lose termination (see corresponding verbs at CLOSE) product production Con *Origin source root *cause determinant antecedent

t. *Soak saturate drench steep impregnate sog sop waterlog etain *Keep keep back detain withhold reserve hold back.
Ana *Have hold own possess enjoy *save preserve conserve Con *Discard shed cast *relinquish surrender abandon yield *abdicate resign *abjure renounce forswear recant, retract etaliation Retaliation, reprisal revenge vengeance retribution agree in meaning both the act of inflicting or the intent to inflict injury in return for injury and the injury so inflicted Retaliation implies a return of like for like commonly but not exclusively a return of evil for evil as raid after raid occurred each in retaliation for one perpetrated by the other side to be so astonished by a blow as to lose the opportunity for retaliation he is never satisfied until he inflicts a retaliation for every injury real or fancied Reprisal applies specifically to an act of retaliation indulged in for the sake of gaining redress of a grievance or of compelling an enemy or antagonist to cease unlawful acts The term in legal use commonly but not invariably implies the seizure of property by force either as a means of getting compensation for one's own injuries or of inflicting punishment when used in reference to nations it may or may not imply an act of war as in reprisal for the blockade of her ports Germany engaged in a vigorous submarine campaign against British shipping air raids on Berlin in reprisal for German air raids on London to make reprisals on a neighbor's orchard for the stealing of one's fruit by his children Lest Mr Raycie's mysterious faculty of hearing what was said behind his back should bring sudden reprisals on the venerable lady (E Wharton) Revenge usually carries a strong implication of vindictiveness or sometimes of justifiable anger that is lacking in retaliation the term therefore more often applies to the strong desire or intent to inflict injury than to the fulfillment of that desire or intent (as, A man that studieth revenge keeps his own wounds green —Bacon) or more pointedly implies the gratification of that desire than the actual infliction of injury (as he had his revenge revenge is sweet —Old Proverb 'Tis sweet to love but when with scorn we meet Revenge supplies the loss with joys as great —G Granville) Vengeance may imply the avenging of a wrong done to oneself or another by measures that punish the offender so that he suffers in the same degree as his victim but the term is also applicable to the act or acts committed in gratification of one's revenge as Vengeance is mine I will repay, saith the Lord Therefore if thine enemy hunger feed him if he thirst give him drink (Romans xii 19-20) There was a time in my imprisonment when my desire for vengeance was unbearable (Dickens) The burning of a rick is an act of vengeance and a ploughman out of employ is a vengeful animal (Meredith) Retribution also applies chiefly to a punishment inflicted in return but it carries less suggestion of a grievance on the part of a victim and a far stronger implication than any of the others of the operation of strict justice in fact the word is often qualified by just deserved or the like and the punishment is seldom meted out by the victim but by a higher power Therefore it commonly implies merited punishment brought upon oneself usually though far from always by an infraction of law especially of a law or the laws of God or of nature

He only retained his boozing dyspeptic brother Hippias at Raynham in order to exhibit to his son the woful retribution Nature wreaked upon a life of indulgence (Meredith) To be left alone And face to face with my own crime had been Just retribution (Longfellow)

Ana Punishment disciplining or discipline correcting or correction (see corresponding verbs at PUNISH) requital recompensing or recompense indemnification repayment (see corresponding verbs at PAY) retard *Delay slow slacken detain Ana Reduce lessen *decrease *arrest check interrupt clog fetter *hamper balk baffle (see FRUSTRATE) Ant Accelerate advance further reticent *Silent reserved uncommunicative taciturn secretive close close-lipped close-mouthed tight lipped Ana Restrained inhibited curbed checked (see RESTRAIN) discreet prudent (see under PRUDENCE) Ant Frank — Con Candid open plain (see FRANK) retire Withdraw *go leave depart quit scram clear out Ana *Recede retreat recoil *rebound resile *relinquish yield surrender abandon.

retort n Rejoinder answer reply response See under ANSWER v 1 retort v Rejoin reply *answer respond Ana *Retaliation reprisal revenge repartee (see WIT) retract 1 Retrograde back *recede retreat crawfish Ant Protract

2 Recant *abjure renounce forswear Ana Eliminate *exclude suspend, rule out retreat, n *Shelter cover refuge asylum sanctuary ark Ana *Harbor haven port safety security (see corresponding adjectives at SAFE) seclusion *solitude retreat v *Recede retrograde, back retract crawfish Ana Withdraw retire depart *go *recoil shrink quail retrench Curtail abridge *shorten abbreviate Ana *Decrease lessen reduce diminish retribution Reprisal vengeance revenge *retaliation Ana *Reparation redress amends restitution visitation tribulation *trial affliction Con *Mercy clemency lenity grace forgiveness pardoning or pardon remitting or remission (see corresponding verbs at EXCUSE) retrieve *Recover regain recoup recruit Ana Amend remedy redress reform (see CORRECT v) repair *mend rebuild Ant Lose

retrograde, adj *Backward retrogressive regressive Ana Reversed inverted (see REVERSE v) relapsing lapsing backsliding recidivating (see LAPSE v) retrograde, v *Recede retreat back crawfish retract Ana *Return revert *reverse invert relapse *lapse backslide recidivate retrogressive Regressive retrograde *backward return, v Return, revert, recur, recrudesce come into comparison when they mean to go or come back as to a person place or condition The same d stinctions in implications and connotations are evident in their corresponding nouns return, reversion, recurrence recrudescence Return is the ordinary term of this group it usually implies either a going back to the place or person from which it started (as They returned as wolves return to cover satisfied with the slaughter that they had done —Kipling White surf rushing in and returning immed ately —Jefferies the sickness of a

IMPROVE)

in its turn (as to look forward to the return of spring he was greeted with enthusiasm on his return home, he returns here tomorrow we do not expect any return of the fever) Revert and reversion (for specific sense as applied to a return to an ancestral type or qual ty see REVERSION 2) most frequently imply a go ng back to a previous often an orig nal state or cond tion especially after the person or th ng has advanced or progressed as to revert (or a reversion) to barbarism the conception of a lordly splend d destiny for the human race to which we are false when we revert to wars and other atavistic follies (B Russell) Both terms however are often used when a return after an interruption is impl ed as to a previous owner to a previous top c to a previous dec s on or the like as when the lease expires the property reverts to the lessor to revert (or a reversion) to a top c previously d scussed First Mr Britling thought that he would not pass between these two then he decided that he would hurry up and do so then he reverted to his former decis on (H G Wells) The terms may also imply merely a turn ng back to the next in l ne as for a promotion a scholarsh ip an office or the l ke as when Smith found himself unable to accept the fellowship it reverted to the next best candidate Recur and recurrence imply a return (sometimes repeated returns at more or less regular intervals) of something that has previously happened that has previously af fected a person or th ng that has previously been in one s m nd that has been previously known or experi enced or the like as there will be no recurrence of this dream if you clear your m nd of fears The relapses [into old ways] recur not only from effort to effort in the case of the individual but from generation to genera descence of Ferdinand s power (Belloc) "We are not here concerned with the question whether this recru descence of energy that has communicated itself to verse is the death throes of a social order or the birth pangs of a new one (Day Lewis) Ana *Advert revert *turn, rotate revolve restore *renew *recover regain reverberate, repercuss, *rebound return, n Reversion recurrence, recrudescence See under RETURN v reveal, v Reveal discover, disclose, divulge, tell, betray sense it implies supernatural communication by means of vision inspiration or the like of truths beyond or above the range of human sight or reason as Sacred laws unto him revealed in vision (Spenser) There is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets and maketh known to the king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days (Daniel ii 28) in laws divine Deduced by reason or to faith revealed" (Wordsworth) cf revealed rel gion But the term may also imply an impart ng by a human being such as a seer or a poet whose vision penetrates into that which cannot be seen or understood by the ord nary man (as The artist the man of genius, raises this veil and reveals Nature to us —H Ellis "he must feel as a man what he reveals as a poet"—Day Lewis) or as a person in possess on of a secret (as His mind vibrating between the wish to reveal himself to her [as her father] and the policy of leaving well alone —Hardy) In somewhat less strict but nevertheless correct use reveal may carry no suggestions of an inten tional communication but rather an affording of signs or other evidence from which the truth may be inferred as The paradox of both distrusting and burdening government reveals the lack of a conscious philosophy of politics (Frankfurter) Discover (as here compared see design (Binyon) Disclose is more often used in current (Conrad) More often however disclose impl es the mak ing known of something that has not been announced or it seemed to me an occasion to divulge my real ideas and hopes for the Commonwealth —L. P. Smith) Tell (as here compared see also COUNT 1) may come very close to divulge in the sense of making known something which should be kept a secret (as gentlemen never tell) but more often it implies the giving of necessary or helpful information especially on request or demand (as to tell one's name or one's intentions "Why didst thou not tell me that she was thy wife?" —Genesis xii 18) Betray (as here compared see also DECEIVE) often implies a divulging of a secret but it carries either a stronger and more obvious suggestion of a breach of faith (as [he] had written no letters that would betray the conspiracy he had entered into against Steve —S. Anderson) or of a disclosure as through signs or appearances against one's will (as, Only May Welland betrayed by a heightened colour a sense of the gravity of the situation —E. Wharton 'Life moves on through whatever deserts and one must compose oneself to meet it never betraying one's soul —R. Macaulay) Bewray, an archaic term carries a slighter implication of intentional secrecy than any of the other terms, but it does imply a making known that which was not known or not clearly recognized as Write down thy mind bewray thy meaning so (Shak.) thy speech bewrayeth thee (Matthew xxvi 73)

Ana Impart *communicate *suggest adumbrate shadow *declare, announce publish revelation Revelation, vision apocalypse, prophecy are here compared in senses derived mainly from their Scriptural uses and employed not only by religious writers but also by poets critics and others In this use they agree in meaning a (or the) disclosure by divine or preternatural means of something not apparent to the senses nor comprehensible by the unaided reason Revelation in this sense is often specifically applied to the religious ideas transmitted by writers of books regarded as sacred or divinely inspired especially the Bible by extension, therefore it has come to mean a body of knowledge distinguishable from that attained by the normal human processes of observation experiment and reason as the truths of science and the truths of reason This revelation satisfies all doubts Explains all mysteries, except her own (Cowper) Revelation differs from natural knowledge he [Spinoza] says not by being more divine or more certain than natural knowledge but by being conveyed in a different way (Arnold) Vision implies as revelation does not a seeing of something not corporeally present often, especially in mystical and poetic language it suggests a profound intuition of something not comprehensible to the ordinary or unaided reason commonly therefore it implies the operation of some agent such as the Holy Spirit or the gift (or accession) of some inexplicable power not attributable to all men, such as genius, poetic rapture or the like Vision however unlike revelation does not necessarily imply that what is seen or realized is true or of value to oneself or others And some had visions as they stood on chairs And sang of Jacob and the golden stairs (V. Lindsay) "Dante's imagination is visual in the sense that he lived in an age in which men still saw visions We have nothing but dreams and we have forgotten that seeing visions—a practice now relegated to the aberrant and uneducated—was once a more significant, interesting and disciplined kind of dreaming (T. S. Eliot) Apocalypse is in its etymological sense the equivalent of revelation it is in the Douay Version the designation of the New Testament book called Revelation in the Authorized Version It also specifically denotes a type of sacred book (of which the Book of Revelation is an example) usually of unknown or pseudonymous authorship which was common in Jewish and Christian literature in the centuries immediately preceding and following the birth of Christ and which presented a vision of the future in which the enemies of Israel or of Christianity would be defeated and God's justice and righteousness prevail In its modern general application apocalypse usually denotes a vision of the future when all the mysteries of life shall be explained and good shall magnificently triumph over evil. The noun and, still more its adjective apocalyptic (or apocalyptical) often carry one or more connotations as various as those of a spectacular splendor or magnitude suggestive of the Book of Revelation or especially in present use suggestive of wild and extravagant dreams of the visionary or passionate reformer, as the apocalyptic imagination of Michelangelo (N. Y. Times) Slowly as out of the heavens, with apocalyptical splendors Sank the broad red sun (Longfellow) These problems [race problems] which the Austrian monarchy sought to solve by tolerance, do not concern the apocalyptic dreamer [Hitler] (D. Thompson) Prophecy is now rarely found in its original meaning except in learned use and in some religious use Its occasional and permissible connotation of the prediction of future events has been emphasized to such an extent that its historical and etymologically correct implications have almost been lost with the result that the word in older writings is often misinterpreted Prophecy in this strict sense implies a commission to speak for another especially and commonly for God or a god It therefore further implies that the prophet has been the recipient of divine communications or revelations, or that he has been granted a vision or visions And though I have the gift of prophecy and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge and have not charity I am nothing (I Corinthians xiii 2) The word of prophecy those truths divine Which make that heaven, if thou desire it thine (Cowper)

Ant Conceal

Ant Adumbration

revenant *Apparition phantasm phantom wraith fetch ghost spirit specter shade spook haunt revenge, v *Avenge

Ana Requite recompense repay (see PAY v) vindicate defend justify (see MAINTAIN) revenge n Vengeance *retaliation retribution reprisal

Ana *Reparation redress amends requital recompensing or recompense repayment (see corresponding verbs at PAY) revengeful *Vindictive vengeful

Ana Implacable relentless unrelenting merciless, *grim inexorable obdurate adamant *inflexible reverberate Repercuss *rebound recoil resile

Ana *Return, revert recur revere. Revere reverence, venerate, worship, adore agree in meaning to regard with profound respect and honor All imply a recognition of the exalted character of that which is so respected and honored but they differ mainly in regard to their objects and to the feelings and acts which they connote Their differences in implication extend to their corresponding nouns reverence (for both verbs revere and reverence) veneration worship and adoration. One reveres not only persons who are entitled to respect and honor but also things which are associated with such persons the word commonly connotes tenderness of feeling and deference That makes her lov'd at home rever'd abroad (Burns) Islands and cities which be revered as the cradle of civilization (Buchan) Towards Johnson his [Boswell's] feeling was not sycophancy which is the lowest but reverence which i the highest of human feel ngs (Carlyle) One reverences things more often tl an persons, especially things such as laws and customs which have an intrinsic claim to sacred or sacrosanct because of character associations, deified when one pays homage by word or ceremonial as churches are buil l ngs in wh ch God is worshiped success ... As here compared (see also ADORE 2) one adores as one worships (in the strictest sense) a divine be ng Worship however usually sug gests the group approach and adore the personal approach to deity Adore therefore commonly impl es love and the performance of in lividual acts of worsh p

Ana Esteem respect regard admire (see under REGARD n) cherish prize value treasure *appreciate Ant Flout

reverence, n 1 *Honor homage deference obeisance Ana Piety devotion fealty loyalty *fidelity esteem respect *regard admiration 2 Veneration worsh p adoration See under REVERE Ana Fervor ardor zeal *passion devoutness pious ness religiousness (see corresponding adjectives at DEVOUT) 3 Reverence awe fear come into comparison only when they denote the emotion inspired by someth ng wl ich arouses one s deep respect or veneration Reverence distinctively implies a recognition of the sacredness or inviolabil ty of the person or thing which stimulates the emotion as to l ave reverence for the law a profound reverence for and fidel ty to the truth (Mencken) Richelieu s reverence for the throne was constant (Belloc) treating him almost with reverence (D H Lawrence) Like you I feel a reveren e for this place Wherever humanity has made that hardest of all starts such as adoration profound reverence wonder terror with fear of God a divinity (Wordsworth) reverence, v Venerate worship adore *revere

... e enjoy (see LIKE) esteem respect regard
... e un ler REGARD n)
*Converse obverse
... rear posterior (see correspond ng adjectives at POSTERIOR) opposite contrary (see under OPPOSITE adj) reverse a judgment is to change a previous judgment to another tl at is contrary to it, to reverse a policy is to change a pol cy so that it will have a contrary trend or induce a distinctly different result to reverse a garment polished The latter group came down with benben. Tl en the d ets were reversed (Hersey) Transpose ferred to the other s de of the equation) the result obtained is a=c—b But transpose often especially in grammar anatomy and the l ke impl es merely a change in the natural order or position as he frequently transposes words for the sake of effect a transposed tl e relation of cause and effect an inverted chord The custom to invert now and then the order of the class, so as to make the highest and lowest boys change places (T Moore)

... erturn overset upset caps ze 1 Return recurrence recrudescence See ...URN v

tion], divergent or reversionary individuals are eliminated' (J A Thomson) Atavism and atavistic are widely used both in general and in technical English Their implication of reversion to a remote rather than to an immediate ancestral type is so strong that some biologists use them not as synonyms of reversion and reversionary but as far more specific terms implying the reappearance of remote even primitive characters after a long period of latency Often in general use this connotation of primitiveness carries with it a suggestion of barbarism or degeneration 'Some mysterious atavism—some strange recurrence to a primitive past' (Bagehot) "Those who had made England what it was had done so by sticking where they were regardless of their own atavistic instincts which might have led them back to France or Denmark' (Van W Brooks) Throwback is preferred to reversion or atavism by those who seek a picturesque or more colloquial word It is however chiefly applied to the concrete instance usually being avoided as an abstract term as the youngest son could not be explained except as a throwback to his pioneering ancestors.

Ana Relapse lapse backsliding recidivation recidivism (see corresponding verbs at LAPSE) reversionary, reversive Atavistic (see under REVERSION) revert 1 *Return recur recrudesce

Ana *Recede retreat retrograde back *lapse relapse backslide recidivate

2 *Advert

Ana *Return recur

review, n 1 *Criticism critique blurb puff

2 *Journal periodical magazine organ newspaper revile. Vituperate rail berate rate upbraid *scold tonguelash jaw bawl out wig

Ana Vilify calumniate *malign traduce defame asperse slander libel *execrate objurgate curse

Ant Laud — Con *Praise extol eulogize acclaim revise *Correct rectify emend remedy redress amend, reform

Ana *Improve better ameliorate *change alter modify revivalist. *Missionary evangelist apostle revolt, n Revolution uprising insurrection *rebellion mutiny Putsch

Ana Insubordination seditiousness or sedition factiousness contumaciousness or contumacy (see corresponding adjectives at INSUBORDINATE) revolting *Offensive loathsome repulsive repugnant

Ana *Horrible, horrid horrific repellent distasteful obnoxious, abhorrent (see REPUGNANT) odious *hateful abominable revolution *Rebellion uprising revolt insurrection mutiny Putsch

Ana Overthrowing or overthrow subverting or subversion, upsetting or upset overturning or overturn (see corresponding verbs at OVERTURN) change modification alteration (see under CHANGE, v) revolve 1 Weigh excogitate *consider study contemplate

Ana Reflect deliberate speculate *think reason cogitate *ponder muse meditate, ruminate

2 *Turn rotate gyrate circle spin whirl twirl wheel eddy swirl, pirouette

Ana. *Swing sway oscillate vibrate reward, n *Premium prize award meed guerdon bounty bonus rhapsody *Bombast rant fustian rodomontade rhetorical Rhetorical grandiloquent magniloquent aureate, flowery, euphuistic, bombastic are here compared in the sense of emphasizing style often, but not invariably at the expense of thought Rhetorical describes any style discourse passage phrase or word which however skillfully constructed or chosen and however effective impresses the reader or hearer as not natural or effortless but the result of conscious endeavor to produce an effect as the rhetorical style of Cicero, the rhetorical perorations of Daniel Webster ' Burke catches your eye by rhetorical inversions (Quiller-Couch) Grandiloquent suggests tall talking or writing It is applicable not only to what is spoken but also to what is written and catches an oratorical tone it frequently implies a pomposity or an attempt at eloquence that not only is out of keeping with the subject but approaches absurdity as a grandiloquent tribute I find in John son s books a measured grandiloquence, stepping or rather stalking along in a very solemn way (Carlyle) Magniloquent is not always distinguishable from grandiloquent but in discriminating usage it more often suggests boastfulness or extravagance than an over reaching eloquence as the magniloquent utterances of the drunken Falstaff In his public lectures and speeches to which the students flocked he [Everett] let his fancy soar That he was magniloquent they did not know That he was theatrical they did not care (Van W Brooks) Aureate, which is itself a rhetorical term in favor in the early Renaissance and revived by some modern critics of literature implies excessive embellishment of style by figures of speech high sounding words, and the like in ordinary language and in reference to writings which have no pretensions to literature the same quality is described by flowery, as the aureate prose of the Elizabethans, the flowery style of many young ambitious writers Euphuistic describes the highly rhetorical and aureate style of John Lyly (1554? 1606), author of Euphues the Anatomy of Wit and Euphues and his England In extended use it more often suggests extreme artificiality and a straining after effects that distract attention from the thought rather than the affectation of elegance and the excessive use of alliteration antithesis similes and the like that characterized Lyly s prose and are implied in euphuistic when used in its strict historical sense as in Love's Labour s Lost Shakespeare burlesqued many affectations of language in his own time most of which are now loosely described as euphuistic Bombastic (derived from bombast which originally meant cotton wool or raw cotton a use of which is for padding) always implies inflation or grandiosity of style It suggests verbosity and grandiloquence rather than a straining for rhetorical effects These lines of Milton s —Up to a hill anon his steps he reared From whose high top to ken the prospect round would be merely bombastic if the poet were starting to set forth how So-and so climbed a hill for the view—just that and nothing else (Quiller-Couch)

Ana Eloquent articulate *vocal fluent voluble glib florid, *ornate flamboyant *inflated turgid tumid flatulent rhymer, rhymester or rimer, rimester *Poet versifier poetaster bard minstrel scop gleeman jongleur troubadour trouvère minnesinger scald rhythm, n Rhythm, meter (or metre), cadence, as here compared agree in meaning the more or less regular rise and fall (in intensity) of sounds that one associates chiefly with poetry and music Rhythm, which of these three terms is the most inclusive and the widest in its range of application, always implies movement and flow as well as an agreeable succession of rising and falling sounds it may or may not suggest regular alternation of these sounds but it fundamentally implies the recurrence at fairly regular intervals of the accented or prolonged syllable in poetry or of the heavy beat or the strongly accented note in music so that no matter how many unaccented or unstressed syllables or notes lie between these the continuing up and down movement is strongly apparent to the senses Consequently, rhythm is used not only in reference to speech sounds and musical tones ordered with relation to stress and time but also to dancing games natural phenomena and the like where a comparable pulsing movement is apparent and even to the arts of design where fluctuations in line or pattern suggest a pulsing movement The loveliness like the wavering lovely rhythms of the sea of W B Yeats took her as it took her whole generation by storm (R Macaulay) Even the style of Thoreau was system and measure Poetry that has meter (in general this is true of all poetry except free verse) has a definite rhythmical pattern which determines the typical foot (sometimes the arrangement of feet) in each verse and either the number of feet in every verse or if a stanzaic pattern is implied in each verse of a stanza as the epics of Homer and Vergil are written in the meter called dactylic hexameter the revolt against meter in poetry in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries prose may have rhythm but not meter In music meter implies the division of the rhythm into measures, all of which are uniform in number of beats or time units and each of which begins with the heavily accented tone Cadence (etymologically a falling) is the least clearly fixed in meaning of these words The term has often been used as though it were equal to rhythm or sometimes to meter especially when the reference is to poetry as golden cadence of poesy (Shak) Wit will shine measured time and recurrent stress and as stimulating a muscular response such as in dancing in beating with one's hand or in tapping with one's foot Cadence now often stresses the rise and fall of sound or the rhythm as heard (now often in prose as well as in poetry) and as influenced by tone or modulation choice of words rib, v *Banter chaff rally quiz kid rag guy josh jolly ribald Obscene gross *coarse vulgar

Ana *Offensive loathsome indecent indelicate (see INDECOROUS) lewd lascivious wanton (see LICENTIOUS) scurrilous opprobrious (see ABUSIVE) ribbon Fillet band *strip stripe rich Rich wealthy affluent opulent come into comparison not only as applied to persons but also to things. The last three are close synonyms of rich the general or anything above the normal (a variable quantity or standard) in possessions When used of persons without qualification it implies the possession of money or of property especially income-producing property, as, a and therefore usually connotes material possessions. It is prosperous and therefore continually increasing one's material possessions Affluent though often used to describe persons, groups nations etc. is more often applied to their circumstances or to their state thus, a rich man is in affluent circumstances if his income is increasing or at least not decreasing one is reduced from an affluent position or affluence but not from riches or wealth for only affluent implies increase and therefore suggests decrease as its opposite the days of a nation's affluence are over when its natural resources are used up Mrs Manson Mingott had lived in affluence for half a century but memories of her early straits had made her decorations opulent entertainment The almost bare industrialists an opulent aristocracy the Croesus Occasionally opulent does not con... but inexhaustible richness as the opulent ...akespeare — Con Destitute indigent penurious (see ...ng nouns at POVERTY)

*Skip bound hop curvet lope lollop

*Sift sieve screen bolt winnow

Puzzle conundrum enigma problem

Ride, drive both as verbs (transitive and intransitive) and as nouns are frequently confused especially when they involve the idea of moving in a vehicle or conveyance or upon the back of something The basic meaning of ride is a being borne along in or upon something when this idea is uppermost it makes little difference who or what controls the animal the vehicle or mechanism by which one is borne along thus one rides a horse a bicycle or a motorcycle when mounted upon it, one controls its operation or movements, a woman seated on a pillion behind the man s saddle may also be said to ride the horse and a person in the rear seat of a tandem bicycle may be said to ride the bicycle but a person in a sidecar of a motorcycle rides in the sidecar (not rides the motorcycle) Some however prefer ride the transitive verb when the management of the horse and vehicle is also implied and ride the intransitive verb when merely the being mounted upon a moving horse or vehicle is suggested as, when he rides his horse his small daughter usually rides on it with him In the case of the noun ride when there is no expressed or implied opposition to drive the term implies the act or fact of being borne along usually upon the back of a horse but sometimes upon the seat of a cycle, as, I think I ll take a ride for exercise, he is out for a ride The basic meaning of drive (see MOVE 1) is a causing to move in a given direction the term therefore primarily refers to the action of an agent that controls either the movements of the horse or other beast of burden or the operation of the mechanism which supplies the power whereby a vehicle conveyance or the like is moved, as only the coachman drives the Victoria the chauffeur drives their car at high speed when Mrs B— is not in the car, to drive a locomotive they haven t an automobile because there is no one in the family who wants to drive In the case of the noun drive when there is no expressed or implied opposition to ride the term usually implies the act or fact of guiding or controlling the operation of a vehicle as he asked her to accompany him on a short drive take as many drives in the small sleigh as you wish

Current good use tends to bring about further distinctions between ride and drive sometimes as verbs but more often as nouns when movement in a vehicle or conveyance of any sort is implied Ride usually suggests movement in a vehicle which is not in any sense under one s control such as a train, a bus a trolley car or a stranger s automobile, as it is a long ride from New York to Chicago he said he preferred riding in a bus to riding in a train will you give me a ride to the next town Drive now often suggests movement in a horse-drawn or motor vehicle the course of which is in some way or in some degree under one s control whether one is the actual driver or an employer patron guest etc whose wishes the actual driver observes as to take a drive along the shore of the lake we are going for a short drive we ll drive to the station in a taxi In these senses it will be seen, ride still stresses a being borne along and drive a causing to move in a given direction But ride is less common in British than in American use when applied to movement in a vehicle or conveyance

2 *Bait badger heckle hector chevy hound

Ana *Worry annoy harass harry persecute oppress (see WRONG v) torment torture (see AFFLICT) ride, n Drive (see under RIDE v)

Ana *Journey tour trip excursion expedition ridicule, v Ridicule, deride, mock, taunt, twit rally agree in meaning to make a person or thing the object of one s own or another s laughter Ridicule may or may not involve unkindness or malice but it usually implies the belittling of the person or persons affected as the critics ridiculed his play the old State religion which Augustine attacks ridiculing the innumerable Roman godlings whose names he perhaps found in Varro" (Inge) Deride implies a bitter or contemptuous spirit All fools have still an itching to deride And fain would be upon the laughing side (Pope) He took his revenge on the fate that had made him sad by fiercely deriding every thing" (A Huxley) ' There is no temptation so str[ong] for the aesthetic nature, as to deride, the art that [we] have just outgrown ' (A C Benson) Mock stre[sses] scornful derision and usually implies words or gestu[res] expressive of one s defiance or contempt. "There ca[me] forth little children out of the city and mocked [E]lisha and said unto him Go up thou bald he[ad], go up, thou bald head (2 Kings ii 23) When used [in] reference to things mock often implies a setting [at] naught that suggests scorn or derision. A persh[ing] That mocks the gladness of the Spring! (Wordswor[th]) An impenetrable mystery that mocked investigati[on] (G Eliot) Taunt implies both mockery and reproach [and] often connotes jeering insults Some words arose [be]tween us. At last he taunted me beyond endurance [...] offered me—characteristically—twenty pounds to st[...] him (Shaw) Twit implies taunting and a casting so[me]thing up to someone I was twitted unmercifully [...] my mealy complexion' (Symonds) "The upper cla[sses] are not vulgar in spite of the absence of ideas [...] which Matthew Arnold twits them " (Inge) Rally stre[sses] raillery or good humored ridicule or banter, ne[ver]theless it often implies an approach to taunt[ing] Honeycomb rallies me upon a country life (A[ddi]son) ' They rally'd next Vanessa s dress' (Swift)

Ana *Scoff, flout jeer gibe caricature burles[que] travesty (see under CARICATURE n) ridiculous *Laughable ludicrous droll funny co[mic] comical farcical risible

Ana Absurd preposterous *foolish silly amusing [di]verting entertaining (see AMUSE) *fantastic grotes[que] bizarre antic rife *Prevailing prevalent current

Ana Abundant *plentiful copious ample *comm[on] ordinary familiar rifle, v Plunder *rob loot thieve, burglarize

Ana Despoil spoliate *ravage pillage, sack devast[ate] *steal pilfer purloin filch right, adj 1 *Good

Ant Wrong

2 *Correct accurate, exact precise nice

Ana Fitting proper meet (see FIT) *decorous dec[ent] seemly comme il faut true *real actual right, n Right, prerogative privilege, perquisite, [ap]panage birthright come into comparison when [they] mean something to which a person has a just or l[egal] claim They differ however in their implications [...] of the nature of the thing claimed and of the ground [of] the claim Right is by far the most inclusive term [...] it may be used to designate anything such as a pow[er] condition of existence or a possession to which or[e is] entitled by nature or by the principles of morality [or] by grant as by the laws of the land or by purchase[...] the right to life liberty and the pursuit of happi[ness] rights in a patent "We do not lose our right to cond[emn] either measures or men because the country is at w[ar]" (Justice Holmes) Every person has a right to a cer[tain] amount of room in the world and should not be mad[e to] feel wicked in standing up for what is due to h[im]" (B Russell) A prerogative is a right which belongs [to a] person (actual or legal) by virtue of being what on[e is] as in sex rank office character or the like and w[hich] thereby gives him precedence superiority or an ad[van]tage over others The fundamental fact is that emi[nent] domain is a prerogative of the State (Justice Holm[es]) To dread no eye and to suspect no tongue is the gr[eat]est prerogative of innocence (Johnson) "Man, w[hat a] prerogative it is to be in a great degree a creature o[f his] own making (Burke) A privilege is a peculiar ri[ght] either granted to one as a favor or concession, or belonging to one as a prerogative; privilege often but not invariably implies an advantage over others; as, only passengers with Pullman tickets have the privilege of us-support of a younger son of a great family, as by a grant of land or of money a lucrative office or the like, since anything to which one has a claim through custom, right away. Straightway, *directly immediately in corrupt profligate dissolute reprobate *abandoned rightful. *Due condign

Ant Wrong

Ana *Fair, equitable, just impartial *lawful, legal legitimate rigid. 1 *Stiff inflexible tense stark wooden.

Ana. *Firm hard solid compact *close tough tenacious *strong

Ant Elastic — Con Resilient flexible supple, springy (see ELASTIC)

2 Rigid, rigorous, strict, stringent are often used interchangeably in the sense of extremely severe and stern rigid (see also STIFF), now very seldom used In its literal the persons make for themselves or others, it usually suggests uncompromising inflexibility; as, rigid laws persons, to their acts, to their way of life, and to the natural or artificial conditions under which they live It commonly implies imposed severities or hardships or the conscientious acceptance of them, thus, a rigid rule admits of no change or compromise, a rigorous rule imposes exacting or harsh conditions, a rigorous enforcement of a law makes the people feel its rigors, a rigid enforcement of a law admits of no relaxations in anyone's favor, we can speak of a rigorous (not rigid) winter; a rigorous (usually better than rigid) disciplinarian; the rigorous (not rigid) life of an explorer or a monk. Strict is applied chiefly to persons or their acts and denotes showing or demanding undeviating conformity to rules, standards, conditions, or requirements, thus, a strict rule or a strict teacher demands obedience, a strict watch admits no reformer suggests impositions that limit, curb or sometimes coerce [was] eagerly sought everywhere were we able to lay down more and more stringent conditions" (V Heiser)

Ana. *Inflexible inexorable, obdurate adamant adamantine stern, *severe austere

Ant Lax

rigor or rigour. *Difficulty hardship vicissitude

Ant. Amenity

rigorous. *Rigid, strict, stringent

Ana *Stiff, rigid, inflexible stern austere ascetic, re exacting *onerous burdensome oppressive *Easy facile light, smooth effortless

Variant of ROIL

2 *Arena circus, lists cockpit court field gridiron, diamond rink rip, v *Tear rend split cleave rive ripa *Shore coast beach strand bank littoral foreshore ripe *Mature, matured mellow adult grown up full fledged

Ana *Seasonable timely well timed *consummate finished accomplished

Ant Green unripe — Con Raw *rude crude callow *immature unmatured unmellow ripen, *Mature develop age

Ana *Improve better enhance heighten *intensify season inure (see HARDEN) ripple, n *Wave undulation, billow roller breaker comber beachcomber surge rise, v 1 *Spring arise originate derive flow issue emanate, proceed stem

Ana *Appear, emerge loom

Ant Abate (sense 3) — Con Ebb, subside wane (see ABATE)

2 Rise, arise, ascend, mount, soar, tower, rocket, levitate, surge, as here compared agree in meaning to move or come up from a lower to a higher level Rise is the comprehensive term interchangeable with all the others but often at a sacrifice of explicitness or picturesqueness Rise is idiomatic and therefore the preferred word when used (1) in reference to persons sometimes animals, that erect themselves from a recumbent position as in bed or after a fall or from a sitting or kneeling position (as to rise every morning at six the injured horse was unable to rise the audience rose when the national anthem was sung) (2) in reference to certain things that give the impression of coming up into view (as, the sun rises at 5 30 the moon will rise at eight o clock) or an object that seems to lift itself up (as, the hills rise in the distance) (3) in reference to water or other fluid under the influence of some natural force that sends it upward (as the river rises regularly each spring the mercury is rising) or to any natural phenomenon indicated by such rising of water or other fluid (as the tide rises early tonight the temperature is rising) The word may be used far more widely than these instances indicate but in these and in closely related figurative applications rise is specifically necessary For the first two weeks or three the work rose about him like a tide' (M Austin) Now he felt his mother counting the week s money and her wrath rising (D H Lawrence) Arise (see also SPRING) is not only far narrower in its range of application than rise but it is also generally felt to be rhetorical or poetic It is still far from uncommon in spoken English in the senses of to get up in the morning after a night s sleep or to rise from the grave but such usage (especially the former) is regarded as poetic formal or archaic Arise arise Awake the snorting citizens with the bell (Shak) "The temple rends the rocks burst the dead arise (Steele) Ascend and mount (for transitive use of both words see ASCEND 2) carry a much stronger suggestion of continuous or progressive upward movement and of climbing than rise and may therefore be used in distinction from the latter word thus the sun rises at dawn but it ascends from dawn to noon smoke rises from a fire and ascends to the tree tops a lark rises from the ground and mounts to the skies a scientist s hopes rise at the first indication of his success and mount as one experiment after another turns out as expected The third day he rose again from the dead He ascended into heaven (Apostles Creed Bk of Com Prayer) Soar always even in its figurative use suggests the straight upward flight of a bird, especially of one that mounts without flapping of wings it therefore usually connotes continuous often swift ascent into high altitudes especially into very high altitudes (intellectually spiritually, aesthetically or the like) ' [The skylark] singing still dost soar, and soaring ever singest ' (Shelley) What would this man? Now upward will he soar And little less than Angel would be more (Pope) 'The soaring melody of the rondo in the Waldstein sonata is Beethoven s transfiguration of the air of a ribald folk-song ' (Lowes) Tower is used more often in reference to things that attain conspicuous height through growth building up or the like than in reference to things that actually move upward It also frequently connotes extension to a height beyond that of comparable neighboring objects such as buildings, trees, mountains or when eminence is suggested persons as the Empire State Building towers above all the New York City skyscrapers Shakespeare towers above all the dramatists of his time Full thirty foot she towered from waterline to rail ' (Kipling) When the word does imply movement upward it usually evokes a picture of something shooting up so as to suggest a tower or steeple 'The nimble flames towered nodded and swooped through the surrounding air (Hardy) Rocket suggests the inordinately swift ascent of a projectile or especially of the firework of that name hence it is used chiefly with reference to things that rise with incredible or extraordinary rapidity as under the impetus of events as with the first hint of a shortage wheat prices rocketed on the market Levitate (opposed to gravitate) implies a force that causes a thing to rise through its actual or induced lightness or buoyancy in general use the word may be but seldom is used of the rising of balloons kites and the like it is associated chiefly with spiritualistic practices (as the levitation of a table at a séance) and with illusory risings of a person or thing It is asserted that a man or a woman 'levitated' to the ceiling floated about there and finally sailed out by the window (T Huxley) Surge suggests heaving or spurting upward as of waves It is often used with up in reference to emotions and thoughts that rise powerfully from the depths of subconsciousness All the enthusiasm of old surged up to answer this appeal (Mrs Oliphant) Things half guessed obscurely felt, surged up from unsuspected depths in her (E Wharton) Quite as often especially with forward it also suggests a rolling movement comparable to that of oncoming waves as the troops surged forward

Ana Climb *ascend mount scale *increase enlarge augment *lift raise elevate Ant Decline set (as the sun) risible Droll funny *laughable ludicrous, ridiculous comic, comical farcical

Ana Amusing diverting entertaining (see AMUSE) risk, n Hazard *danger peril jeopardy

Ana *Chance fortune luck accident exposedness or exposure liableness or liability openness (see corresponding adjectives at LIABLE)

Con Safety security (see corresponding adjectives at SAFE) *exemption immunity risky Precarious hazardous *dangerous perilous jeopardous

Ana *Adventurous venturous venturesome chancy *random haphazard hit-or miss, happy go-lucky rite Ritual liturgy ceremonial ceremony *form formality ritual Rite liturgy, ceremonial, ceremony *form formality rival, v 1 Rival, compete with, vie with, emulate, as here compared agree in meaning to strive to equal or surpass another person or his achievements Rival (see also MATCH) now occurs with increasing rareness with reference to the act of a person or persons, it is, however, age Vie with carries less suggestion of arduous struggle to hold one s own or to excel than compete with, it someimplies a conscious effort to equal or surpass someone or something by imitation or by using him or it as a model, as a simplicity [that of George Herbert s poetry] emulated without success by numerous modern poets (T S Eliot) ' Her companions she loved and admired but could not emulate for they were wise about things she knew not of (R Macaulay) ' Modern water colour when it tries to emulate the force and solidity

2 *Match equal, approach touch rive, v Cleave split rend *tear rip

Ana Sever sunder divide *separate *cut, hew, chop rivel. *Wither shrivel wizen rivet, v *Secure anchor moor

Ana. *Fasten attach affix fix *join unite connect link road. Road, roadway, highway, highroad, street, avenue, boulevard, terrace, drive, parkway, thoroughfare, byway, lane, alley, alleyway, as here compared denote in common a paved or unpaved way over which vehicles persons or animals may pass from one point to another A road is a way generally outside an urban district and primarily for vehicles and horses between one place and another A roadway is that part of a road over which traffic travels as distinct from curbs shoulders, sidewalks and the like A highway is a main often much traveled road Highroad stresses the idea of freepared, is a street having houses situated along the side a prospect of scenery A parkway is a street or road having enough turf, trees, flowers, etc., along the sides or down the middle, or both, to constitute a park. A thoroughfare is a public road, street, or avenue open at both ends, and usually heavily traveled A byway is an obscure or unfrequented side road A lane is a narrow Alleyway places more emphasis than alley on high enclo-

*Road, street, highway, highroad, avenue ... terrace, drive parkway, thoroughfare, by- ... alley, alleyway

... Wander, stray, ramble, rove range, prowl gad traipse meander.

... *Bake, broil, grill, barbecue

... rob, plunder, rifle, loot, thieve, burglarize come into comparison as meaning to despoil a person of possessions or a place of valuables In strict legal use rob implies the taking of personal property or valuables from a church In extended use, rob implies deprivation by unjust means or by powers beyond one's control as to rob a person of his good name, the high winds robbed the trees of their fruit, a tree robs the adjacent soil of moisture and fertility Plunder implies a despoliation by force, as by armies in war, organized gangs, bandits or the like it often suggests robbery on an extensive scale or a ravaging or pillaging of a territory, as travelers through the remote sections of the country were in constant danger of being plundered, to plunder the warehouses, plundering wrecked ships . was a well established business in many places on our shores"

...on of circumstances which explain the despoila... ...make it exceedingly reprehensible it sometimes implied as a group of officials who looted the state treasury Thieve implies a taking of possessions or valuables by stealth unlike the other terms of this group the word is used chiefly but not exclusively as an intransitive verb, often implying habitual stealing of goods from persons or places as he lives by thieving When a thief thieves from a thief God laughs (West Indian Negro Proverb) I never did such a thing as thieve (Dickens) Burglarize implies an act of burglary or a breaking and entering by night in order to steal usually however, it carries as burglary in law does not necessarily carry an implication that one's purpose has been accomplished as the house was burglarized while its occupants were asleep

Ana *Steal pilfer purloin filch lift defraud swindle *cheat despoil pillage sack *ravage embezzle *defalcate peculate robber. Larcener thief burglar See under THEFT robbery Larceny *theft burglary robe, v *Clothe attire tire dress apparel array vest invest robust *Healthy sound wholesome hale well

Ana *Strong sturdy stout stalwart athletic husky *muscular sinewy *vigorous energetic lusty

Ant Frail feeble rock, v *Shake agitate convulse

Ana *Swing sway undulate, oscillate totter quake tremble (see SHAKE) rocket, v *Rise arise ascend mount soar tower levitate surge.

rococo, adj *Ornate baroque flamboyant florid rodomontade *Bombast rhapsody rant fustian

Ana Boasting bragging vaunting (see BOAST v) vainglory vanity *pride magniloquence grandiloquence (see corresponding adjectives at RHETORICAL) roguish. *Playful frolicsome sportive waggish impish mischievous, wanton roil or rile Provoke aggravate nettle *irritate exasperate peeve

Ana *Anger incense enrage infuriate madden vex, *annoy irk bother roiled or riled, roily or riley *Turbid muddy roll, n *List, table catalogue schedule register roster rota canon inventory roller *Wave undulation billow breaker comber beachcomber surge ripple rollick, v Frolic disport sport, *play romp gambol rollick, n Frolic disport sport play romp gambol See under PLAY v romance n *Novel

romantic, adj *Sentimental mawkish maudlin soppy mushy slushy

Ana Fanciful *imaginary quixotic fantastic visionary invented created (see INVENT) picturesque pictorial vivid *graphic romp, v Frolic, rollick gambol disport sport *play romp n Frolic rollick gambol disport sport play See under PLAY v room n 1 Room chamber apartment are here compared as used of space in a building enclosed or set apart by a partition Room is the word in ordinary use Chamber is chiefly elevated or poetical it is commonly used of a private room especially of a bedroom on an upper floor "High in her chamber up a tower to the east (Tennyson) He hardly ever slept two nights successively in one chamber (Southey) Apartment is now rare in the sense of a single room Her morning room was an airy apartment on the first floor (M E Braddon)

2 In plural form rooms Rooms lodgings chambers quarters, diggings, digs, apartment, flat, tenement denote in common one or more rooms used as a separate residence in a building in which there are other dwellers A room or rooms are engaged in a private house or in a dormitory or hotel usually by a single person commonly, certain facilities (as the bathroom) are shared and there is no provision or very limited provision for housekeeping Lodgings are a room or rooms rented in a private house The term is not much used colloquially in the United States Chambers (chiefly British) are rooms for single persons living alone either in a private house or in a building containing only such rooms. The term is little used in the United States Quarters are usually an assigned place of residence occupied for a precarious term especially by soldiers, as in a house or in barracks. With a qualifying word quarters may characterize or appraise the accommodations of any place of residence as bachelor quarters cramped or spacious quarters Diggings is colloquial digs slang (both especially British) for any of the preceding terms An apartment in the United States and Canada is usually a suite of rooms having complete facilities for private living and housekeeping, in a building composed exclusively of similar suites Less often the term is applied to a single room with bath and without kitchen especially in the so-called apartment hotels In England the singular form apartment is now rarely used the plural form apartments is a colloquial and somewhat pretentious term for a set of rooms in a private house hired for short term occupancy The curate's lodgings—apartments his landlady would call them. (M R Mitford) A flat is an apartment occupying the whole or a part of one floor as distinguished for instance from the so-called duplex apartment which has rooms on two floors Since, however the rooms of an apartment are commonly all on one floor this distinction does not often come into play and in England flat is the term in general use for what in the United States is usually called an apartment In the United States flat is sometimes used as in England and thus is applied interchangeably with apartment to a suite of any size the rooms of which are all on one floor however it is perhaps more often applied to a suite of rooms usually with private entrance from the outside occupying the whole of one floor or half of one floor and separated from the other suite on the same floor by a corridor in a building smaller than the largest of apartment houses and often of less substantial construction and with less elegant appointments Tenement in the United States usually suggests an inferior apartment or flat especially a crowded one in the slums But sometimes the word is so devoid of derogatory connotation that one sees in the windows of buildings containing vacant apartments or flats signs reading Tenement to Let In England the word is not derogatory and differs from flat in being applicable to a suite on more than one floor and from apartments in implying more permanent tenure Tenement is often also used for tenement house roost v Perch *alight light land root v *Applaud cheer hurrah huzza root n *Origin source inception provenance provenience prime mover

Ana Beginning commencing or commencement starting or start (see corresponding verbs at BEGIN) foundation basis ground (see BASE) roseate *Hopeful optimistic rose-colored rose colored *Hopeful optimistic roseate roster *List table catalogue schedule register rota canon inventory rot, v *Decay decompose, putrefy spoil disintegrate crumble

Ana Corrupt vitiate *debase taint *contaminate pollute defile rota. *List table catalogue schedule register roll roster canon inventory rotate 1 *Turn revolve gyrate circle spin whirl twirl wheel eddy swirl pirouette

2 Rotate, alternate are synonyms when they mean to succeed or cause to succeed each other in turn. Rotate may be used in reference to two or more persons or things it implies indefinite repetition of the order of succession Thus, persons rotate in jobs or offices when they periodically interchange their jobs or offices according usually to a predetermined scheme, one rotates crops who grows different things on the same land in successive seasons in an order calculated to maintain soil fertility or to enrich exhausted soil Alternate differs from rotate in being referable only to two persons or things though it also implies repetition of the order it does not convey so strong a suggestion of continuity, as to alternate workers on an exhausting job to alternate hot and cold applications in the treatment of a bruise The weather alternated between blinding sand storms and brilliant sunlight (Cather)

Ana Interchange *exchange swap bandy succeed *follow ensue rotund. Plump chubby portly stout *fleshy fat corpulent obese.

Ant Angular — Con *Lean spare lank lanky gaunt rawboned skinny scrawny rough, adj 1 Rough, harsh, uneven, rugged, scabrous come into comparison when they mean not having a smooth or even surface exterior texture or the like Rough, the usual and comprehensive word applies literally to anything that may be said to have a surface or an exterior which to the sense of touch or the sense of sight is not smooth but is covered with points, bristles projections or ridges of any kind or nature as, rough ground the rough surface of a body of water (or the sea is rough to lay) a rough block of stone the rough skin of chapped hands a rough tweed a rough unshaved face Often in literal use when applied to materials and substances employed in the arts and crafts, rough means unpolished unworked unwrought etc as a rough diamond rough steel rough lumber By extension the term also applies to things which impress another than the tactile sense or one's nerves or one's feelings as lacking in smoothness and evenness as rough words rough winds rough sounds a rough disposition he has had a rough time (for fuller treatment of extended senses see RUDE) Harsh suggests an even more disagreeable sensation or impression than rough when applied to that which is felt with the hand it implies a surface or texture that is distinctly unpleasant to the tactile nerves (as a harsh fabric harsh cinders harsh sand) when applied to that which is heard it suggests a rasping grating quality (as harsh voices harsh din Broke the fair music —Milton a harsh language) when applied to anything seen tasted or the like it suggests a character or quality that is offensive or repellent to a sensitive person (as, a harsh or in imposing rigors (as a harsh rebuke a harsh climate, a harsh sentence) Uneven applies not only to surfaces but to lines and suggests a lack of uniformity in height through all the points of the surface (as an uneven road an uneven floor) or a lack of straightness and the presence of curves or angles (as, an uneven edge, an uneven hem) In figurative use it implies a lack of uniformity in excellence or agreeableness, or the like in all the parts as of a life, a performance a work of art, etc. as, the artist's brushwork in this painting is uneven the trio's playing of the sonata was uneven Rugged, though now chiefly applied to persons so strong and healthy that they can survive great stress and strain, is still frequently employed in the sense of rough in current use however it applies chiefly to surfaces marked with ridges, prominences, and the like such as those which offer obstacles to the traveler the worker and the like (as a rugged road up a mountain the rice-fields, all clothed in their rugged stubble —F Kemble) or which as in the case of faces or countenances are gaunt seamed or heavy featured and suggest strength or maturity (as any resemblance between you with your rugged strong face and your coal-black hair and this young Adonis —Wilde His face people sometimes praise as simply a page torn from the book of life' (C E Montague) Scabrous applies liter

scabrous leaf a scabrous stem a scabrous hide In figurative use scabrous applies chiefly to subject matter or to writings and works of art having subject matter that is prickly or thorny or difficult to treat often because it is offensive to the tastes or morals of the community as, What writer has spoken more acutely on the somewhat scabrous but none the less important subject of feminine temperament ? (A Huxley)

Ana Hard solid *firm *coarse gross *rank rampant

Ant Smooth

2 *Rude crude raw callow green

Ana Brusque crusty gruff curt blunt *bluff ungracious uncivil discourteous impolite (see RUDE) *indecorous unseemly, indecent indelicate

Ant Gentle

round, adj Round spherical, circular globular (or globose, globate, globoid), orbicular (or orbiculate), annular discoid (or discoidal) are not all synonyms of each other but they are all synonyms of round the comprehensive term when it means having an edge or circumference or outer surface every point of which is

and its variant forms are less mathematical and more concrete in their connotations than spherical they often suggest merely an approximation to the spherical in shape (as the earth is globular but not actually spherical) as globular (or globose) berries globular (or globoid) grains globular bowls or wine glasses Orbicular may also mean approximately spherical as are the orbs or heavenly bodies, as known the word frequently however means approximately circular as are the orbs or heavenly bodies, as seen Thus the socket of some bones is described as an orbicular (that is globe-shaped) socket and the muscle which surrounds the eye socket and controls the opening and closing of the eye is describable as an orbicular (that is circular) muscle Annular adds to circular the implication of being hollow in the center and therefore ring shaped as annular markings on trees an annular eclipse of the sun Discoid adds to circular the implications of a continuous surface and of flatness thus a discoid shell is one like the shell of the nautilus spiral yet having all its coils practically in the same plane round, adv Around *about roundabout *Indirect circuitous

Ana Sinuous *winding tortuous anfractuous flexuous rouse Arouse *stir awaken, rally waken

Ana Enliven *quicken animate vivify stimulate excite *provoke *incite foment instigate roustabout *Worker workman, workingman laborer mechanic artisan operative hand craftsman handicraftsman.

rout, n *Crowd throng press, crush mob horde rout, v *Conquer vanquish defeat subdue subjugate reduce overcome surmount overthrow beat lick route, n *Way course passage pass artery rove *Wander stray roam ramble range prowl gad gallivant, traipse meander row, n *Brawl broil fracas melee rumpus scrap

Ana Fight affray fray combat conflict *contest altercation, wrangle *quarrel squabble royal Regal *kingly queenly imperial princely

Ana *Splendid resplendent glorious superb august majestic, stately imposing (see GRAND) rude 1 Rude rough crude, raw callow green are synonyms when they mean lacking in most or in all of the qualities that make for finish or for perfection in development or in use Rude which etymologically means unwrought or unformed is applicable not only to men to their minds, to their manners but also to the things they make or do As applied to men and their minds, it suggests a comparatively low state of culture or a dearth of learning more often than savagery or barbarism although it may suggest the latter as Like a rude and savage man of Ind (Shak) His companies [companions] unletter'd rude and shallow (Shak) The melody that was at first designed To cheer the rude forefathers of mankind (Cowper) As applied to the things which men make or do rude suggests the makers ignorance of technique or of proper materials their inexpertness or inexperience a deficiency of materials or the like as rude attempts at verse rude implements rude workmanship a rude hut Our father Adam sat under the Tree and scratched with a stick in the mould And the first rude sketch that the world had seen was joy to his mighty heart (Kipling) Rough as here compared (see also ROUGH 1) is also applicable to men their manners and their works and products it usually suggests more harshness or violence than rude and a more culpable ignorance or inexperience As applied to men and their manners the term usually implies the absence of signs not only of polish and refinement but of gentleness politeness and often even civility It does not however necessarily imply boldness insolence boorishness or other unpleasant qualities as A plain rough honest man and wise tho not learned (Addison) a couple of rough fellows appeared at the door to use rough language a rough but hearty welcome. As applied to men s works and products, rough suggests more offhandedness haste indifference to technique or the like than rude it is therefore usually applied to things which are not carefully made often intentionally because they suffice for the purpose or are not yet finished being in an early stage of a process or development, as to make a first rough draft of his argument to show a rough sketch of the proposed garden a rough guess a rough buffing of cutlery precedes what is called a gloss buffing Crude may be applied to men and their acts words products, and the like but it gets its fundamental implications from its historically earlier application to things which have been untouched by man as by being unprocessed unrefined untreated and the like, and are as yet therefore in their natural state or in an undeveloped state as crude petroleum crude rubber, crude sugar Consequently when applied to men their acts, words products and the like crude implies the far remove of that which is so described from that which is perfected is highly developed or fully civilized as by toning down, refining disciplining or the like as, crude colors crude methods crude emotions a crude philosophy "The blank verse of Tennyson is cruder (not 'rougher' or less perfect in technique) than that of half a dozen contemporaries of Shakespeare cruder because less capable of expressing complicated subtle and surprising emotions" (T S Eliot) Our ordinary high school pupils crude as they may appear represent a degree of refinement notably higher than the stage attained by their parents (Grandgent) Raw which in the earliest of its present senses describes the condition of uncooked food especially of meat fish eggs and vegetables, is often further applied to natural products which are gathered mined or otherwise removed from their native places, but are not yet processed or are in the earliest stage of manufacture or processing thus raw silk names the fiber from the cocoons of the silkworm as it is drawn from them and reeled raw hides are stripped from the carcasses of animals but are not yet tanned or otherwise dressed raw milk is as yet unpasteurized; the raw materials from which the miller produces flour are various cereals such as wheat barley rye and the like The raw material of music is sound (Day Lewis) As applied to men their minds their products and the like raw far more than crude suggests the elementariness of the untried and the inexperienced as raw recruits to raise ill armed half-starved under aged raw levies (Browrell) the raw judgment of the multitude (De Quincey) Over and over again he had seen her take some raw youth twist him turn him, wake him up set him going (V Woolf) Callow, originally applied to an unfledged bird especially one covered with down is now more often applied to youths or to those who retain the signs of immaturity in manhood It usually suggests naïveté simplicity lack of sophistication but not so strikingly as does crude and its suggestions of inexperience or present unfitness are not so strong as those of raw Souls and wits which have never got beyond the callow and boarding school stage (Arnold) Pluffles was a subaltern in the Unmentionables He was callow even for a subaltern (Kipling) Green, as here compared derives most of its connotations from green as applied to fruit and implying unripeness and unfitness for use The term often comes pretty close to raw when applied to persons and their abilities because it suggests inexperience and lack of necessary training as to employ green hands in a factory Often however it additionally connotes simplicity or gullibility He has taken me for a green country girl impressed with him because he is from the city and dressed in fine clothes (S Anderson) But green is also used of products (sometimes of the raw materials) of manufacture or processing which are not yet fully seasoned cured dried or the like as green liquors (not as yet mellowed by age) green sugar (not yet perfectly dried) green pelts (fresh from the animal) green manure (not yet sufficiently rotted)

Ana Boorish churlish clownish loutish (see under BOOR) rustic *rural bucol c barbarous savage *barbarian primitive *primary primeval

2 Rude ill mannered impolite discourteous uncivil, ungracious come into comparison as meaning not observant of the manners or forms required by good breeding Rude suggests lack of delicacy or consideration intercourse among civilized persons (as No profanity Señor We want nothing from you but to get away from your uncivil tongue —Cather) Ungracious stresses the lack of kindliness or courtesy that enables one to keep

SULLEN)

Ant Civil urbane

rueful Dolorous doleful lugubrious plaintive *melancholy

Ana Depressed weighed (down) oppressed (see DEPRESS) piteous *pitiful despairing *despondent hopeless ruffian, n Ruffian thug, desperado gangster, Mohock apache agree in denoting a brutal fellow given to wanton brutal person who mercilessly inflicts pain or death on population as the field of operations than the plains or the wild and waste regions of a country It also impl es great recklessness in attack often but not necessarily 1 cutthroat, gunman bravo.

Bristle bridle swagger *strut aunt parade d splay, exhibit *show

*Rough scabrous harsh uneven

Robust healthy burly brawny husky *muscu nk, rampant arduous *hard d fficult.

Ant Fragile

someone as through destructive agencies such as weather age neglect or the like through partial destruction by fire flood collision or the like or through loss of something vital to one s happiness or success (such as one s fortune one s good name one s chastity) as the severe windstorm has ruined the garden nearly every one of the old and beautiful churches in the region was ruined by bombs the firm s reputation was ruined by rumors spread by envious competitors "There was in all of them [persons] something ruined lost or broken —some precious and irretrievable quality which had gone out of them and which they never could get back again (T Wolfe) Wreck implies a ruining by or as if by crashing or being shattered Literally it is used in reference to a ship a train an automobile an airplane or the like as the vessel was wrecked on the rocky coast of Maine only the locomotive of the second train was wrecked in the collision In its extended sense wreck is often used in place of ruin when there is an intent to imply that the thing (often an intangible thing such as one s career one s credit one s prospects or the like) is injured past all hope of repair or of reconstruction as his health was wrecked by his many years of tropical exploration the party has been wrecked by the misdeeds of a few of its leaders their plans were wrecked by the unexpected change in weather When the pulling down of a building is implied wreck is often preferred to demolish or destroy because it does not necessarily carry the suggestion implicit in the latter words of the uselessness of that which is left Wrack (or in dialectal or er whole fleets in pride like riven toys (F T Palgrave) The verb is now seldom used but the noun wrack is not uncommon. Dilapidate (etymologically to scatter like stones) in precise use implies ruin especially of a building of developed property or of one's fortune or financial resources through neglect or through wasteful intransitive verb and the noun dilapidation often specifically suggest ecclesiastical wastefulness through a failure to keep a church or church property in proper regulate the recovery of compensation for money spent in repairing churches and ecclesiastical buildings allowed to dilapidate In more general use dilapidate implies a rule, n *Law regulation precept statute ordinance canon.

Ana Order mandate dictate *command *principle axiom fundamental etiquette *decorum propriety rule, v 1 *Govern.

Ana *Guide lead manage direct control *conduct *execute administer 2 *Decide determine settle resolve Ana Conclude judge gather deduce *infer 3 In form rule out Eliminate debar *exclude shut out, suspend disbar blackball Ana Bar block (see HINDER) *prevent preclude obviate ruminate Muse meditate *ponder Ana *Consider weigh revolve excogitate reflect deliberate speculate cogitate *think rumpus *Brawl broil fracas melee row scrap run v Gallop canter trot pace single-foot walk lope rack, amble See under TROT n run n Gallop canter *trot pace single-foot walk, lope rack amble runt *Dwarf pygmy midget manikin homunculus rupture n *Fracture implies open country whether uninhabited or sparsely settled more narrowly it suggests agricultural pursuits or simple community life In distinction from rustic however rural suggests the pleasant aspects of country life rustic commonly implies a contrast with the refinements of the city or the town, and often connotes rudeness or lack of polish. He buried himself in the rural or rather rustic solitude of Buriton (Gibbon) peace and apartness from the world To pastoral dales thin set with modest farms (Wordsworth) When I thought that a war would arise in defence of the right That No more shall Peace Pipe on her pastoral hillock a languid note (Tennyson) Bucolic especially in modern humorous writing is referred chiefly to persons their acts, and their words rather than to landscape and far more strongly than rustic implies loutishness. The keenest of bucolic minds felt a whisper equivalent of rustic and the latter in modern use approaching bucolic or georgic as agrestic behavior (W Gregory) A brown parchment hided old man of the geoponic or bucolic species (J R. Lowell) ruse n *Trick, stratagem, maneuver artifice wile feint.

Ana Subterfuge chicane trickery *deception expedient shift makeshift, *resource resort rustic *Rural pastoral bucolic georgic Arcadian agrestic geoponic

Commiseration compassion *pity condolence sympathy empathy bowels *Mercy grace charity clemency lenity forbearance tolerance indulgence (see under FORBEARING)

S

Sabbath *Sunday the Lord's Day sack v 1 Pillage despoil spoliate *ravage devastate waste.

Ana Plund
raze *strip

sack, v 2 *D sack n *Ba sacred 1 *

Ana Ded cherished tr

Ana analog

Ant Profane — Con Secular lay temporal (see PROFANE) 2 Sacred sacrosanct inviolate inviolable are here to charity, the study was sacred to the father of the family) or a special character or quality which makes the person or thing held sacred an object of almost rel g ous veneration or reverence (as [Louis XIII] saw that the things which happened increasingly strengthene l the

Let them establish your fundamental rights by a sacrosanct declaration —Jefferson) the term now is either ironical and occasionally slightly derisive or suggests an imputed rather than a genuinely deserved claim for freedom from attack or violation (as etymology is after all not sacrosanct —Karl K. Darrow The one off ce which he [Augustus] tried to keep sacrosanct was the consulsh p —Buchan) Inviolate and inviolable apply to laws principles treaties agreements, institutions persons places objects etc that for one reason or another are secure from breach infringement attack intrusion injury or the like they differ from each other chiefly in that inviolate suggests the fact of not having been violated wh le inviolable implies a character which does not permit or which distinctly forbids violation thus one holds a vow inviolable but keeps his vow inviolate so What seemed inviolable barriers are burst asunder in a trice (Meredith) The Navajos believed that their old gods dwelt in the fastnesses of that canyon like their Shiprock it was an inviolate place (Coll er)

Ana Protected shielded defended guarded (see DEFEND) revered reverenced venerated (see REVERE)

sacrifice, v Abnegate forbear *forgo eschew

Ana Renounce *abdicate surrender yield resign *rel nqu sh sacrilege Desecration *profanation blasphemy

Ana Defilement pollution (see correspond ng verbs at CONTAMINATE) violation transgress on trespass *breach sin cr me scandal *offense sacrilegious Blasphemous *impious profane

Ana Polluting defiling (see CONTAMINATE) profaning desecrating (see correspond ng nouns at PROFANATION) sacrosanct Inviolate inviolable *sacred

Ana Respected regarded esteemed (see corresponding verbs under REGARD n) revered venerated reverenced (see REVERE) sadness Sadness depression melancholy melancholia dejection gloom blues, dumps vapors (or vapours) are here compared as mean ng a state of mind when one is low sp rited or an attack of low sp rits Sadness is the general term apart from the context it carries no explicit suggestions of the cause of the low spirits or of the extent to which one is deprived of cheerfulness as A let down discouraged and devo d of v gor (owing to physical mental or other causes) or to a state of mind usually outwardly manifested by brood ng in which one is listless despondent sullen or the like as On some days he was happy and then his happiness was followed by an odd fit of depression (S Anderson), Tina s love was a stormy affair with continual ups and downs of rapture and depression (E Wharton), Never before in any mood of depression had she given evidence of suicidal thoughts (H Ellis) Melancholy in earl est use applied and still sometimes applies to a settled depression that is temperamental or constitutional and that at times shows evi lences of insanity (as Melancholy is the nurse of frenzy —Shak) in current use this condition is regarded as the result of a mental disease and is called specifically melancholia (as, alone and friendless, she fell into a me ancholia) Melancholy now often appl es to a not unpleasant or displeasing mood or a mental state characterized by sadness (but not grief or despair) pensiveness and deep but not depressing or heavy seriousness as To lend our hearts and spirits wholly To the influence of mild minded melancholy (Tennyson), the lively curious mind the wit the gaiety of spirit tinged with a tender melancholy (Hudson) She dwells with Beauty—Beauty that must die Ay in the very temple of delight Veil d Melancholy has her sovran shrine Though seen of none save him whose soul shall taste tl e sadness of her might (Keats) Dejection suggests especially the mood of one who is downcast discourage l or disp irited the term differs from depression chiefly in its suggestion of an external cause and in choly or melanchol a depress on dejection, or extreme sadness on the person afflicted or to the atmosphere which a person of low spirits or a depressing event creates in its literal sense the term implies darkness and dullness and it further connotes lack of all that enlivens or cheers as the leaden gloom of one who has headache and is acutely depressed or dejected as Sometimes thro pride the sexes change their airs My lord l as vapours and my lady swears (Young)

Ana *Sorrow grief anguish woe despondency despair hopelessness forlornness (see under DESPONDENT) dness

Variant of SECULAR

Safe secure come into comparison only when n free from danger or apprehens on of danger mologically whole sound) in its earl est and still current sense implies that one has passed through dangers or has run the risk of injury of being lost (often in early use spiritually lost) or the l ke without incurring harm or damage as they arrived home safe and sound after their long journey she always insists on despise an enemy"—Defoe) or to any cautious procedure which keeps one out of danger or free from the risk of making an error or blunder (as this is as much as it is safe to say about the prospects of a cure for freedom from anxiety or apprehension of danger, as and his existence would be as flat and secure as that of a milch cow (Mencken)

Ana Protected, guarded, shielded (see DEFEND) *reliable dependable, tried

Ant Dangerous — Con Precarious, hazardous, risky perilous jeopardous (see DANGEROUS) safeguard, v Guard shield protect *defend Ana Conserve, preserve *save secure, insure, *ensure assure saga, *Myth legend sagacious Perspicacious astute *shrewd

Ana *Sharp, keen acute penetrating piercing probing (see ENTER) *wise judicious sage sapient sage, adj *Wise, sapient, judicious prudent, sensible sane.

Ana. *Intelligent, knowing brilliant *le sagacious perspicacious (see SHREWD)

'm, scud shoot, dart, *fly

, seaman, tar, gob mallow, bluejacket.

able, *vendible purchasable stipend, pay, hire, emolument, fee icuous, outstanding signal, striking ient, remarkable *noticeable

, important, weighty (see corresponding NCE) impressive, *moving obtrusive, ERTINENT) salubrious. *Healthful, healthy, wholesome, salutary, hygienic sanitary

Ana. *Beneficial advantageous benign *favorable salutary. Wholesome, *healthful healthy, salubrious hygienic, sanitary

Ana. *Beneficial advantageous profitable restorative alterative, tonic (see corresponding nouns at RESTORATIVE)

Ant. Deleterious evil.

. *Greeting salute

*Address greet, hail, accost

*Greeting, salutation lm, emollient, demulcent.

Same, selfsame, very, identical, identic, equal, tantamount come into comparison mean either not different from the other or or absolute agreement in all details as of quality, shape appearance, and the like (as since the sculptures are identical one must be a replica of the other, no two leaves from the same tree are identical twins that are they amount to the same thing (particularly when set off against each other) especially in worth force signifi-

Ant D fferent sample, n Specimen example *instance case illustration Ana Piece *part portion segment fragment sanctimonious 1 Pietistic rel g ous *devout pious Ana See tl ose at SANCTIMONIOUS 2 2 Hypocritical pharisaical canting See under HYPOCRISY Ana Affected feigned simulated counterfeited assumed pretended (see ASSUME) perfervid fervid ardent fervent (see IMPASSIONED) sanctimony, sanctimoniousness *Hypocrisy pharisaism cant canting Ana Pretend ng or pretense simulation fe gning counterfeiting affecting or affectation (see corresponding verbs at ASSUME) enthusiasm zealotry fanaticism (cf nouns at ENTHUSIAST) sanction, v *Approve endorse accredit certify Ana *Authorize license commission confirm *ratify *enforce implement Ant Interd ct sanctity *Holiness sanctuary Refuge asylum *shelter cover retreat ark Ana Safety security (see corresponding adjectives at SAFE) protection shielding or sl ield guard ng or guard (see corresponding verbs at DEFEND) sand, n *Fortitude grit backbone pluck guts Ana *Courage mettle spirit resolution tenacity sane *Wise jud cious prudent sensible sage sapient Ana *Rational reasonable right *good sound cogent convincing (see VALID) Ant Insane sang froid Phlegm composure *equanimity Ana Ind fference unconcernedness or unconcern guinary gory Ant Bloodless

2 Assured *confident sure Ana *Hopeful optimistic pos tive certain *sure Ant Afraid (sense 2) sanitary *Healthful hygienic salutary salubrious healthy wholesome Ana Curing or curative heal ng remedying (see corresponding verbs at CURE) *effective efficacious effectual Ant Noxious sanitiz sap, v disable

Ana wreck *destroy sapid, saporous *Palatable appetizing savory tasty

*Taste, flavor, savor tang relish smack. ipidity Sage *wise jud cious prudent sensible sane earned erud te scl olarly sagacious, persp ca SHREWD)
Satire irony *wit humor repartee isiveness trenchancy bitingness cuttingness sponding adjectives at INCISIVE) mockery derision (see corresponding verbs at RIDICULE) sarcastic or sarcastical Sarcastic (or sarcastical) satirical (or satiric), ironical (or ironic), sardonic (or sardonical) come into comparison when they mean having or manifesting bitterness and power to cut or st ng sarcastic should sarcastically call that time to our recollection (Burke) A person or his utterance express on, or sp rit is satirical (less often satiric, this term being applied chiefly to literature or a literary work involving satire) someone or comedy was filled with bitter satiric strokes against a certain young lady (Thackeray) Not only a person or an utterance mood or express on but also a s tuat on or an event may be described as ironical or ironic when he or it manifests the power to evoke amused but often ance be-person s smile expression or words may be described as sardonic when he or it manifests scorn mockery and

Ana B ting trenchant *incisive *caustic licious Iron cal satirical *sarcastic eriding or der sive mock ng taunting ridicul ng (see correspond ng verbs at RIDICULE) *sin ster mal gn v *Satiate surfeit cloy pall glut gorge surcharge *Satisfy, content indulge pamper humor fy regale arride (see PLEASE) isk () indicates place of treatment of each group satellite *Follower, adherent henchman, partisan disciple sectary

Ana Sycophant *parasite favorite toady, lickspit hanger-on devotee votary *addict fan.

satiate Satiate sate, surfeit cloy, pall glut gorge surcharge come into comparison chiefly as transitive but often as intransitive verbs meaning to fill or become filled to the po nt of replet on Both satiate and sate have been, but are now less often used in the sense of merely to satisfy completely (as I will satiate the soul of the priests with fatness —Jeremiah xxxi 14 and my soul procure Wherewith to sate its malice —Shelley) both common words of explanation a few sober words of prom sate

imp

nau

surf

show (Addison) There anguish does not sting nor pleasure pall (Keats) Common sense does pall on a husband sometimes (Deland) Glut like surfeit implies excess in feeding or supplying but it stresses the consequent overloading rather than the extinction of appetite or desire often also it suggests the st mulation of a greed that knows no lim ts except those imposed upon it by phys with reference to persons than to things though it is still frequently employed figuratively in reference to a person s heart or mind as a heart surcharged w th grief cares that surcharge his mind with worry t ll his spirit sank Surcharged within him (Wordsworth) When the tetanus toxin

Ana *Satisfy content pamper humor *indulge gratify regale arride (see PLEASE) y silken velvety glabrous glossy humor sarcasm repartee aillage *badinage lampoon pas-ridicul ng or rid cule deriding or e corresponding verbs at RIDICULE)

Ironical sardonic *sarcastic uant po gnant rid culing deriding mocking (see corresponding verbs at RIDICULE) mordant mordacious *caustic scath ng or longings but also of one s needs requirements or the like as walks that satisfy one s wish for exercise he was always ready to satisfy every one of her desires [B shop Vaillant] was summoned to Rome to explain his compli cated finance before the Papal Court —and he had very hard work to satisfy the Card nals (Cather) Content impl es appeasement to the po nt where one is not dis quieted or disturbed by a desire for what one does not have even though every wish is not fully gratified as When I was at home I was in a better place but travellers must be content (Shak) my own garden

*satiate sate

Ant Tantalize

2 Recompense compensate requite remunerate, repay *pay reimburse indemnify

Ana Balance *compensate offset expressiveness or without violation of idiom Satisfy, as sly interpreted is used ch efly in reference to persons considered impersonally) which are the claims made for it Meet implies exact agreement tions , the supply meets the demand the estate is not large enough to meet the claims against it Answer usually but not necessarily implies even more modera tion in praise than meet while it does not imply d ssatisfaction it seldom connotes complete content, as this knife will answer the purpose his rating answered his parents expectations

Ana *Prove test try, demonstrate verify substantiate corroborate *confirm *match equal rival approach touch saturate 1 *Soak steep impregnate drench sog sop ret waterlog

Ana *Dip immerse submerge *absorb imbibe assimilate

2 Impregnate interpenetrate impenetrate penetrate *permeate pervade

Ana *Infuse imbue ingrain inoculate penetrate pierce probe (see ENTER) saturnine Dour gloomy *sullen glum morose surly sulky crabbed

Ana Grave *serious solemn staid taciturn reserved uncommunicative *s lent

Ant Gen al mercurial

saucy Saucy, pert arch come into comparison in spite of widely different implications when they agree in meaning flippant and bold rather than serious and respectful in one s manner or attitude Saucy originally stressed insolence or impertinence to superiors especially as sho vn in offensive speech in modern use it is not always so strongly derogatory though it still implies lack of proper respect as a saucy pupil a saucy retort Usually it also implies piquancy and levity with a hint of smartness or of amus ng effrontery A little saucy rose-bud minx can strike Death-damp into the breast of doughty king (Browning) Sometimes it is appl ed also like that present a brave smart and more or less pug nacious appearance as the Saucy Sixth (The Royal Warwickshire Regiment) Tight and saucy—tight and saucy Tr m s the sh p we hail from (W C Bennett) Pert implies a saucy freedom that savors of presumption or affectation rather than of insolence A pert jack anapes, full of college petulance and self-conceit (Smollett) A little upstart vulgar being with all her airs of pert pretension (Austen) In some contexts the word carries additional implications found in its other senses such as of cleverness sprightliness or the like A little upright pert tart tripp ng wight (Burns) Arch usually implies roguish audacity or m schievous mockery and often, when appl ed to women carries a hint of coquettishness El zabeth at the first con

Ana Flippant, frivolous volatile l ght minded (see corresponding nouns at LIGHTNESS) intrusive obtrusive meddlesome *impertinent brash impudent (see SHAMELESS) piquant, snappy (see PUNGENT).

lo tering in a coffeehouse (Fielding) Stroll differs from saunter chiefly in its implications of an objective such as sight seeing exercise or the like pursued without haste and with wandering from one place to another Then we strolled For half the day thro stately theatres (Tennyson) The notables of the town stroll past with the dignity of Roman senators (A Huxley) Amble occas onally conveys the same implications as saunter or sometimes stroll but it far more often suggests merely sometimes connotes slow mincing steps and at other times a casual jaunty ga t savage adj 1 *Fierce ferocious, barbarous, inhuman, cruel fell truculent

Ana Implacable relentless unrelenting merciless, *grim rapacious *voracious ravenous Con Gentle mild lenient (see SOFT) humane benevolent *charitable.

2 Barbarous *barbarian barbaric

Ana Primitive primeval (see PRIMARY) *rough harsh untaught untutored *ignorant

Con *Tame submissive subdued civilized cultured (see corresponding nouns at CIVILIZATION) save, v 1 Deliver redeem *rescue ransom reclaim

Ana *Free release liberate emancipate *defend protect shield guard safeguard *recover retrieve recoup recruit

Ant Lose waste damn (in theology)

2 Save, preserve, conserve come into comparison as meaning to keep free or secure from injury decay destruction or loss Save may imply measures taken to protect someth ng from danger of loss injury or destruction (as to save one s papers by keeping them in a vault All I pray is that this young child may be saved from him — Meredith) but more often it suggests rescue or delivery from a dangerous s tuation especially one which means death or destruction as to save a child from drowning the house was saved from the fire The souls I could not save (Housman) Preserve stresses the idea of resistance to destructive agencies and hence implies the use of means to keep something in ex stence or intact as old records are preserved by protect ng them from light and moisture fru ts are preserved by heat ng on the other hand suggests keeping sound and unimpaired and implies the use of means to prevent change loss or depletion as, a convalescent must conserve h s energy if he is to make rap d progress our constitutional

Ana *Have hold own possess enjoy *keep retain reserve.

Ant Spend consume

savoir-faire Po se *tact address

Ana Grace dignity *elegance ease *readiness dexterity facility self possession, self-assurance aplomb *confidence

Con Awkwardness clumsiness ineptness maladroitness gaucherie (see corresponding adjectives at AWKWARD) savor or savour, n 1 *Taste sapidity flavor tang relish smack s on, impress print stamp savory or savoury. *Palatable appetizing sapid saporous tasty toothsome flavorsome relishing

Ant Bland (to taste) acrid (in taste and smell) saw, n *Saying maxim adage proverb motto epigram aphorism apothegm saying Saying, saw, maxim, adage, proverb, motto, Johnson s remark Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel scabrous *Rough harsh uneven rugged

Ant Glabrous smooth

scald or skald, n *Poet versifier rhymer rhymester poetaster bard minstrel scop gleeman jongleur troubadour trouvère minnesinger scale, n More often in plural form scales *Balance scale, v Climb mount *ascend scan *Scrutinize examine inspect audit.

Ana *Consider study contemplate observe survey remark notice (see cor scandal, n 1 *O

Ana Indignity

Ana analogous w

outraging or outrage (see corresponding verbs at traducing (see corresponding verbs at MALIGN) scanning Scrutiny, examination inspection audit

See under SCRUTINIZE

Ana Study application *attention concentration *oversight supervision surveillance analysis dissection (see under ANALYZE) scant Scanty skimpy scrimpy *meager exiguous spare sparse Ana *Deficient defective scarce rare *infrequent insufficient inadequate (see affirmative adjectives at

Scatter, disperse dissipate, dispel come into ison when they mean to cause a group mass ps the wind scattered the leaves On the other catter may imply little more than throwing or so that the things thrown will fall where (or as) they will as to scatter pennies to scatter seeds to scatter rugs Disperse usually implies a wider separation of the units than scatter and a complete breaking up dissipated before he left college (Meredith) Dispel carr es less suggestion of separation of units or particles

Ana *Throw cast fling toss *distribute d spense divide *d scard shed cast Con *Accumulate amass hoard: collect *gather assemble *compact concentrate scent, n 1 *Smell odor aroma Ana Emanation issuing or issue (see corresponding verbs at SPRING) 2 *Fragrance perfume incense redolence bouquet sceptic Variant of SKEPTIC.

scepticism Variant of SKEPTICISM schedule, n 1 *List table catalogue register roll ordering spond ng verbs at ORDER) whole total *sum scheme, v Plan design plot project See under PLAN n Ana Propose purpose *intend *aim aspire manipulate *handle swing w eld schemer See under PLAN n.

schismatic, n *Heretic sectarian dissenter nonconformist scholar Scholar pupil student disciple come into comparison when they denote one who studies under a teacher Scholar stresses enrollment in a school (now especially except in its specific senses in an elementary school a Sunday school or the l ke) and therefore tuition and instruction as the school has five hundred scholars

Rhodes scholars at Oxford Pupil suggests more strongly than scholar the teacher s personal care or overs ght it therefore may be used not only of those in school but of learners studying privately under a teacher as he takes pupils in subjects required for college entrance she has ten pupils to whom she gives instruction in music the teacher found her pupils exceedingly restless that day Student, though generally appl cable to anyone who or in humorous use but even then with some connotation of devoted adherence to the teachings of the master The true teacher defends his pupils aga nst his own personal influence He will have no d (Bronson Alcott)

scholarly *Learned erudi Ana Academic scholast
*recondite accurate exact

A colon ( ) groups words d scholarship Learning erud tion *knowledge science information lore Academic *pedantic bookish versant versed *dry and formal conven CEREMONIAL)

*Flock herd drove pack bevy covey it swarm shoal school, v Discipline train *teach instruct educate Ana *Practice exercise drill *guide lead *conduct control d rect manage science 1 *Knowledge learning erud tion scholarship information lore.

2 *Art

scintillate, *Flash gleam glance glint sparkle glitter gl sten, coruscate gl mmer shimmer twinkle glister spark.

scoff, v Scoff, jeer, gibe, jibe, fleer, gird, sneer, flout are here compared as meaning to manifest one s scorn or contempt in derision or mockery Scoff stresses insolence irreverence lack of respect or incredulity as the motives for one s derision or mockery as It is an easy thing to scoff at any art or recreation a l ttle wit mixed with ill nature confidence and malice will do it (Walton) at least a less keenly critical attitude than scoff as Tindal and Toland prompt at priests to jeer (Pope) inclined to jeer at those slightly older than himself who

Field ng (L Stephen) After one of her vis tations you gibed each other good naturedly over the extent to which you found yourself shifted from the firm ground of reasoned conclus on (M Austin) Fleer throws the emphasis upon derisive grins grimaces and laughs rather than on utterances as [They] look l ke two old maids of honor got into a circle of fleering g rls and boys (Gray) the fleering rabble (Stevenson). He at the simple joys of the mentally ... (C E Montague) People are nowadays so cynical—they sneer at everything that makes l fe worth liv ng (L P Smith) Flout which is more often used transi him make the Law he flouts (Kipling) "no form of Christianity which flouts science is in the true line of progress (Inge) The women po nted and flouted at her (Besant & Rice) It seems incred ble that anv scout contemn *despise scold, n Shrew vixen termagant *virago amazon barge.

scold v Scold upbraid rate berate tonguelash jaw bawl out wig rail revile vituperate agree in meaning to are the expressive tonguelash (commonly found as a Revile carr es a much stronger impl cat on of abus ve scurr lous language than ra l does but l ttle f any sug gest on of scoffing often, a so it impl es del berate vil fication as they that passed by reviled h m wagging the r heads (Matthew xxvii 39) she roundly abused the tobacco wh ch she was then smoking rev led all Brahm ns (Kipl ng) Her tenants who have to earn the money she spends abroad rev le her as a fug tive and an absentee (Shaw) Vituperate mplies more v o lence in the censure and in the method of attack than does revile but otherw se they are close synonyms as "he v uperated from the pulp t the v ces of the court (Froude) "The last image that crossed his mind was S r James with his angry face and h s trembling hands vituperating him (Arch Marshall)

Ana Reprehend reprobate censure blame *crit c ze h reprimand *reprove rebuke admonish chide e objurgate

*Penalize fine amerce mulct

*Dip lade bail l dle spoon dish scop n Bard minstrel *poet vers fier rhymer rhymester poetaster gleeman jongleur troubadour trouvère m nnes nger scald scope *Range reach compass sweep gamut rad us ken purvie v horizon orb t.

England and America but there is still evident in these countries a tendency to prefer Scotch where Scottish has been accepted only in certain phrases where the d s tinction from that wh ch s English is highly important thus a pound Scots is distinguished from a pound Ster ling Scots law is distinguished from English and Roman law

The differences in the use of these terms as nouns do not proceed from their use as adjectives Scot is the preferred term for an individual Scotch usually names the apply to both the language and to the people but the latter use is now comparatively rare Scotch being the most w dely accepted designation of the people In Scot land Scots is preferred to Scottish as the name of the language

Scotch, n Scottish Scots See under SCOTCH adj

Scots, adj *Scotch Scottish

Scots n Scotch Scottish See under SCOTCH adj

Scottish, adj *Scotch Scots

Scottish, n Scotch Scots See under SCOTCH adj scout, n *Emissary spy intelligencer secret service agent secret agent scout, v Scorn *despise contemn disdain

Ana Flout *scoff sneer jeer deride taunt mock *rid cule scowl, v *Frown glo ver lower gloom

Ana Glare stare *gaze scram Retire withdraw clear out *go leave depart qu t scranny Variant of SCRAWNY scrap, v *Discard junk cast shed molt exuviate slough scrap n *Br...

Ana *Difficulty vicissitude perplexity bewilderment dis raction (see corresponding verbs at PUZZLE) em barrassment discomfiture (see correspond ngs verbs at EMBARRASS)

*lean spare ous

screen v 1 *H de conceal secrete cache bury ensconce typist.

scrimpy *Meager scanty scant skimpy exiguous spare sparse

Ana *Thin slight slender slim niggardly *stingy penurious parsimonious scrivener Scribe amanuensis *secretary stenographer typ st scruple, n Demur *qualm compunction

Ana *Hes tation hesitancy doubt *uncertainty s spicion m strust misgiving *apprehens on

s

s

Ana Fastidious particular, finical fussy (see NICE) exact accurate precise (see CORRECT)

Ant Remiss.

2 Conscientious *upright honest, just honorable Ana *Moral ethical righteous virtuous noble *rigid rigorous strict

...rupulous

Scrutinize scan inspect, examine audit ...eaning to look at or over critically and attention to minute detail "Utamaro takes a figure from the most ord nary human life—a woman in a draper's shop scrutinising a piece of gauze" (Binyon) "We have scrutinized the case but cannot say that it shows an infraction of rights under the Constitution of the United States" (Justice Holmes) Scan and scanning are words which have in current use almost lost their h storical emphasis on close analytic observation except w th reference to poetic verse and the detection of its metrical structure In older Engl sh it always implied close survey or close study of a thing in order to reveal its des gn or inward character or to pass judgment upon it "The great Architect Did wisely to conceal and not divulge His secrets, to be scanned by them who ought Rather admire" (Milton) "Know then thyself presume not morning may adm t of either interpretation Only a Inspect and inspection in general use often imply l ttle more than a careful observation but in legal mil tary governmental and industrial use they imply a search ng prepared for the daily inspection these guns w ll not pass inspection Hence inspector now frequently impl es an official status or official duties as, an inspector of sanitation factory inspectors Examine, as here com pared (see also ASK 1) and examination imply a close

the

amining the instrument under which it arises? (Ch Just Marshall) Audit, as verb or noun implies a searching *analyze resolve dissect anatomize penetrate, pierce probe (see ENTER) scrutiny Examination, scanning inspection, audit See under SCRUTINIZE.

Ana Investigation, research probe *inquiry inquisition surveying or survey observing or observation viewing or view (see corresponding verbs at SEE) scud Skim shoot sail *fly dart float.

sculk Variant of SKULK.

scum *Foam froth spume lather suds yeast scurrilous, scurrile or scurril *Abusive opprobrious, vituperative contumelious

Ana Ribald obscene gross *coarse vulgar insulting outraging offending or offensive (see corresponding verbs at OFFEND) foul filthy *dirty scurrility *Abuse billingsgate invective vituperation obloquy

Ana Vilifying or vilification maligning traducing calumniation (see corresponding verbs at MALIGN) reviling berating upbraiding rating scolding (see SCOLD) scurvy, adj *Contemptible despicable pitiable sorry cheap beggarly

Ana *Base low vile *mean abject seaman *Mariner sailor tar gob matlow bluejacket rating sear, v *Burn, scorch char singe season v *Harden inure acclimatize acclimate

Ana *Habituate accustom familiarize train school discipline (see TEACH) *practice exercise drill *temper anneal seasonable Seasonable timely, well timed, opportune pat come into comparison when they mean occurring or coming with peculiar appropriateness as to moment condition or the like That is seasonable which is perfectly suited to the season or time of year (thus seasonable fruits are those grown out of doors in their natural season seasonable weather is the weather rightly to be expected at that time of year) or by extension, which annoyed others by his attentions] was a seasonable relief to them all (Austen) That is timely which is not only seasonable but comes or occurs at such a moment as to be of genuine value or service as a timely book 'To which is so timely as to suggest the appearance (often the actual exercise) of care forethought or design as Their well timed and rapid charge decided the conflict (Gibbon) The question was well-timed (Buchan) That is opportune which fits directly into a given concurrence of circumstances or which comes, as if by accident in the nick of time and works to the advantage of those concerned as, they decided that the moment was not opportune for an uprising the opportune death of the dictator prevented the collapse of peace neg

Blank a resignation was opportune for it gave was at the point of desperation, his first chan vancement That is pat which is not only perfectly (Bennett)

Ana Apropos apposite pertinent *relevant appropriate happy felicitous apt (see FIT) welcome grateful gratifying (see PLEASANT)

Ant Unseasonable

seclusion *Solitude isolation

Ana Retirement withdrawal (see corresponding verbs at GO) separation, parting severing or severance (see corresponding verbs at SEPARATE)

Con *Intercourse communication commerce dealings communion.

second, n *Instant moment minute flash trice jiffy twinkling twinkle split second secondary, adj *Subordinate dependent subject tributary succursal collateral

Ana *Auxiliary accessory subservient subsidiary contributory incidental *accidental adventitious

Ant Primary

second-rate Mediocre middling *medium moderate average fair indifferent secret, adj Secret covert stealthy, furtive, clandestine surreptitious, underhand underhanded, privy, backstairs (or backstair) come into comparison when they mean done carried on operated or the like so as not to attract attention or observation Secret the most ties of a soul the secret graces which cannot be discovered by a mortal eye (Spectator) She seized a lamp and hurried towards the secret passage (Walpole) for eighteen years a secret and an unaccused prisoner in the Bastille (Dickens) from being public and respectable its [fetishism's] manifestations become secret personal and slightly shameful (A Huxley) Covert agrees with stealthy in suggesting an intent to escape observation but it carries clearer suggestions of cautiousness watchfulness or slyness consequently the term

Ana analogous words. Ant antonyms.

broad Hatteri-o tact a e made on me an impres-sion of rather stupid honesty (Galsworthy) It would be possible for them by breaking the law discreetly to get all they want without discomfort but they refuse to be the furtive evaders of a rule' (A Huxley) Clandestine implies concealment as in working out a plan and usually an evil or illicit end it commonly tive actions but also to emotions or desires and to concrete things which are concealed either for fear of their discovery or because one is violating a right a law a custom or the like as, There he kept his surreptitious quids of tobacco his pipe and his small hoards (M Wilkins) Over the paling of the garden we might obtain an oblique and surreptitious view (H James) to cherish a surreptitious liking for romantic love stories the surreptitious removal of his stock by a merchant about to be forced into bankruptcy Underhand and underhanded always carry an implication of fraud deceit or unfairness in addition to that of secrecy in one's dealings or surreptitiousness in one's methods as He had suspected his agent of some underhand dealings (Austen) I say all this to them as to you I will have

who are therefore sometimes but far from always clandestine participators (as She was privy to these manoeuvres —Thackeray The Governments of Savoy Spain and England were privy to what was toward Richelieu was to be killed —Belloc) Historically also the term survives in such designations as privy council originally a secret council whose members were by which private as distinguished from state visitors ascended to the apartments of the sovereign or lord or in smaller residences one used by servants The term often suggests the workings of secret or privy influences and sometimes distinctly connotes intrigue (as a back stairs influence and clandestine government —Burke back stairs plots —L Stephen) but it may suggest little more than surreptitious acts such as clandestine meetings eavesdropping and the like (as backstairs gossip) Ana *Mysterious, inscrutable arcane puzzling per or transcribing for him The distinctions between the words are often in regard to the services actually performed rather than the skills possessed by the person Secretary carries many more implications than those expressed in the common denotation It implies in addition a relation of trust between employer and employee as shown chiefly in handling correspondence of a con performed the duties of a secretary or of a copyist when handwriting was the means of transcription The first and the last are now found chiefly in historical writing Stenographer and typist primarily suggest the possession of skills stenographer implies the ability to take notes in shorthand from dictation of speeches, or of what is ut rapher but a typist does not serve as a secretary secrete *Hide conceal screen cache bury ensconce Ana Dissemble cloak mask *disguise *remove, withdraw secretive Close close-lipped close mouthed tight lipped *silent, uncommunicative taciturn reticent reserved Ana *Cautious circumspect wary restrained inhibited (see RESTRAIN) Con *Talkative loquacious garrulous voluble candid missary spy

munion faith

ple partisan

2 Also sectarian *heretic schismatic dissenter nonconformist Ana *Enthusiast zealot fanatic bigot section, n Sector segment division *part portion, piece detail member fraction fragment parcel Ana District *locality vicinity region tract *area, zone belt *field sphere territory portion piece

*profane terrestrial

thorities etc)

Roman games plays etc means occurring once a cen partly

roup

The age long processes of Nature (J A Thomson) *lasting permanent perpetual perdurable stable secure, adj *Safe secure, v 1 Secure, anchor moor, rivet in their extended senses are comparable because they mean to fasten or fix firmly or immovably They are however not often interchangeable because of implications derived from their primary senses One secures that which may get lost or which may escape or which may permit invasion or intrusion if allowed to remain loose or to work loose the word usually implies care or protection as the end of the action as to secure sails (which are in its very nature is unstable or which is subject to tugging or pulling by external forces or influences) to another thing strong enough to hold it down or in place or powerful enough to counterbalance or counteract the security and affection but when adolescence comes, he often longs to break his moorings Why not believe then? Why not yet anchor thy frailty there where man Hath moor'd and rested? (Tennyson) One rivets one thing to another when one joins things normally or actually separate from each other as closely together as Ana Establish *set settle fix *fasten attach affix.

2 *Ensure insure assure Ana. Protect *defend safeguard guard shield preserve conserve *save guarantee guaranty (see corresponding nouns at GUARANTEE) warrant *justify 3 Procure obtain *get acquire gain win earn Ana Seize *take grasp *reach attain achieve gain *have hold own possess security Surety guaranty *guarantee bond bail Ana *Pledge earnest token gage sedate Grave staid earnest sober *serious solemn Ana Placid *calm serene tranquil collected composed imperturbable (see COOL) *decorous seemly proper Ant Flighty

sedition. Sedition, treason come into comparison only when they mean an offense against the state to which or the sovereign to whom one owes allegiance Sedition applies to any conduct that is not manifested in an overt act and that incites commotion and resistance to lawful authority without amounting to an insurrection Treason applies to conduct marked by an overt act or acts that has for its aim the overthrow of the government the death of the sovereign betrayal to the enemy or the like Ana *Rebellion revolt revolution uprising insurrection mutiny Putsch disaffection alienation estrangement (see corresponding verbs at ESTRANGE) Con *Fidelity allegiance loyalty fealty seditious Mutinous rebellious factious *insubordinate contumacious Ana Traitorous treacherous perfidious, disloyal *faithless disaffected alienated (see ESTRANGE) seduce Tempt entice inveigle *lure decoy Ana Mislead beguile delude *deceive corrupt debauch deprave pervert *debase bewitch captivate allure (see ATTRACT) sedulous Assiduous diligent industrious *busy Ana Persevering persistent (see corresponding verbs at PERSEVERE) untiring unwearied *indefatigable tireless see, v 1 See behold, descry, espy view, survey, contem waistcoat and from waistcoat to leggings for a few moments' (Hardy), 'Tony .surveyed the room at large, examining the various articles of use or beauty. . scattered about it" (Arch Marshall), 'A man surveying Europe to-day discovers this strange anomaly it is one use of another sense, as he observed (or noticed) every detail in the arrangement did you notice (or observe the actions of) the man who just passed us?, he noticed a peculiar odor Observe differs from notice especially in light effect] omitted to notice a whole quarter of the city on fire (Binyon) Remark (see also REMARK) and note carry an even stronger implication than notice of registering mentally one's impression though either word may or may not suggest a comment upon that which is noticed remark more often than note carries that implication (as, he thought the circumstance of removing from one carriage into another might be remarked —Austen I could not help remarking the leagues —H Ellis he stream and every hill t a stronger implication o tion than any of the pre

Implies the powers of deeply perceiving and of distinguishing or discriminating that which the senses perceive,

Ana *Scrutinize, scan examine, inspect pierce, penetrate, probe (see ENTER) *consider study contemplate

2 See, look, watch are here compared chiefly but not exclusively as intransitive verbs and only in their most general senses as they mean to perceive something by the fixing of the eyes on something in order to see it, as if you will only look, you will be able to see what I am doing he refused to look in the mirror the nurse gave him Watch (see also TEND) implies a following of some-

the opinion is based on a visual impression, appear may parison when they mean marked by a character or crimination in preference to others of the same class or kind, as, the hotel caters to a select clientele; "The Milton was one of those elect persons in whose subconscious, if not in their conscious, nature is implanted the realisation that 'science is poetry' " (H Ellis) Picked, a somewhat more colloquial term than the others here considered like select may or may not imply actual choice the term tithesis in constitution or character, thus, mutually uerché superlative, surpassing, peerless *supreme Ant. Indiscriminate.

select, v *Choose, elect, hand pick, prefer, opt pick cull, single out.
Ana *Assort, sort, classify discriminate discern (see corresponding nouns at DISCERNMENT) Ant Reject — Con. Refuse repudiate spurn (see DECLINE, v) selection. *Choice, alternative Ana Choosing culling CHOOSE) discrimination Ant Rejection

self-abnegation *Re denial Ana Sacrificing or sacrifice forbearance forgoing es (see corresponding verbs at FORGO) surrendering abandonment, relinquishment at RELINQUISH) *aggressive pushing militant Ana. Obtrusive, intrusive officious meddlesome, *impertinent bold, audacious (see BRAVE) positive, certain, Assurance, *confidence self-confi elf possession collectedness imperturbability (see djectives at COOL) composure, sang self-denial. Self abnegation abnegation *renunciation Ana Sacrificing or sacrifice forbearance (see corresponding verbs at FORGO) abstaining refraining (see REFRAIN) restraining or restraint, curbing or curb checking or check (see corresponding verbs at RESTRAIN) Self love, *conceit, egotism egoism , vanity self respect self regard, self see primitive nouns at REGARD) *trust

Self-esteem, *conceit, egotism egoism, , vanity, vainglory complacency, self , smugness priggishness (see corresponding adjectives at COMPLACENT). ness.
*Opinionated, opinionative dictatorial doctrinaire oracular cer- cocksure *Confidence, self confidence assur aplomb , composure coolness collectedness onchalance (see corresponding adjec se savoir faire *tact ant very identical identic equivalent dentical uniform (see SIMILAR) *Complacent self-complacent smug Ana Satisfied content (see under SATISFY) conceited egoistic egotistic (see corresponding nouns at CONCEIT) sell, v Sell, vend, auction, barter, trade agree in denoting to take part in a transaction in which property is trans-

Ana analogous words A.

Barter implies an exchange of commodities Every possible device for doing without money altogether by bartering (Shaw) By extension barter frequently implies to exchange for an unworthy consideration Writers who will not barter human rights for the patronage of the great (J Bright) Trade is often syn relegate semblance *Appearance look aspect.

Ana *Likeness similitude resemblance analogy affinity *pose affectation air (or airs) *form figure shape seminary. *Academy, institute college lycée gymnasium sempiternal Eternal *infinite boundless illimitable increasing *lasting senescence *Age senility senilism dotage

Ant Adolescence

seneschal *Steward reeve bailiff agent factor major domo senile Senile anile, doting doted, doddering doddered agree in meaning women

grey headed man who had an ancient doddering manner (M E Braddon) Auld feckless doddered men (Stevenson)

Ana Old *aged elderly superannuated *weak feeble infirm decrepit

Ant Juvenile virgin

senilism Senescence senility *age dotage.

senility Dotage *age senescence sensation 1 Sensation percept ... pared as denoting the experience or ...

of sense such as the eyes, ears nostrils, taste buds of the tongue or tactile nerves as to feel a sensation of chill to give oneself up to the enjoyment of the sensations provided by a perfect spring day such a seeming waste of longevity on a reptile that appears to relish it so little as to squander more than two-thirds of its existence in a

from sensation in being applicable only to a sensation received through an organ of sense and accompanied by the recognition of the object thus, an infant feels sensa tion of that mental representation in the memory for an appreciable even a very long time as, After I had looked long at it and passed on the image of that perfect flower remained persistently in my mind (Hudson) as a result of previous sense experience or that is a con

... enjoy a success

savor tone (see ATMOSPHERE) consciousness awareness (see corresponding adjectives at AWARE)

2 Sensation, sense feeling sensibility are not close synonyms but they come into comparison when they agree in meaning ... the capacity hearing smelling etc and does not imply recognition or comprehension. The first step which most children tions of your mind they affect nor yet, possibly, what parts of your physical entity' (F. M. Ford). Although sense is applied specifically to any one of the various unusually quickened'—Galsworthy), it differs from sen- see also FEELING 2, ATMOSPHERE 2) in its most specific meaning denotes the sense that has its end organs in the century, especially as a result of the romantic movement in literature and art, sensibility was thought of as an essential of the poet and artist and of the reader

-EPTIBLE) reaction action behavior (see corresponding verbs at ACT) response answer (see under ANSWER v) sense, n 1 *Sensation, feeling sensibility gumption, judgment, wisdom are here compared as meaning the quality of mind or character which enables one to make intelligent choices or decisions or to reach a native capacity—for seeing things as they are and without illusion or emotional bias for making practical choices or decisions that are sane prudent, fair, and reasonable, and that commend themselves to the normal or average good mind "'Jane is a goose,' said the doctor, irritably 'Maggy is the only one that has any sense in that family'" (Deland) "Rich in saving common sense" (Tennyson) "'Good sense, which only is the gift of Heaven" (Pope). "He was a plain man...he had what is roughly known as horse-sense (C. D Warner) Gumption, a colloquial term implies sense but in addition it suggests a capacity to estimate shrewdly or cleverly the possibilities of success or failure, of change for the better or worse, or the like, as, an investor without gumption is bound to lose money, he is a dreamer and what is worse, he hasn't the slightest bit of gumption, if the voters have gumption they will re-elect the mayor Judgment, as here considered, seldom applies to a native quality, though it usually suggests a foundation in native ability to comprehend the significance of those facts and power, but not goodness and understanding'

r) lence, foresight, discretion understanding, ion, appreciation (see corresponding verbs at D) intelligence, brain, brains wit, wits (see

g. acceptation, signification, significance tation, connotation (see under DENOTE)

Feeling sense *sensation.

Ana Perception, *discernment penetration discrimination insight, clairvoyance sensitiveness susceptibility (see corresponding adjectives at LIABLE) emotion. *feeling affection sentimentalism, *sentiment, senti-

*Material physical corporeal, phenomenal

Ant. Intelligible

2 *Perceptible, palpable tangible, appreciable ponderable

Ana Sensational perceptual imaginal (see corresponding nouns at SENSATION) obvious patent manifest *evident *carnal fleshly sensual
Ant Insensible
3 *Aware conscious, cognizant alive awake Ana Perceiving noting remarking observing seeing (see SEE) knowing *intelligent understanding comprehending appreciating (see UNDERSTAND) sensitive susceptible (see LIABLE) Ant Insensible (of or to) — Con Impassible insensitive anesthetic (see INSENSIBLE) 4 Prudent sane judicious *wise sage sapient Ana Sagacious perspicacious astute *shrewd foresighted discreet provident (see under PRUDENCE) reasonable *rational Ant Absurd foolish fatuous asinine sensitive Susceptible subject exposed open *liable prone incident Ana Impressed influenced affected (see AFFECT) predisposed disposed inclined (see INCLINE v) Ant Insensitive

sensual 1 *Carnal fleshly animal animalistic Ana *Bodily physical corporeal somatic *coarse gross, vulgar lewd lascivious lustful wanton (see LICENTIOUS) 2 *Sensuous luxurious voluptuous sybaritic epicurean Ana See those at SENSUAL 1 ☞ Do not confuse sensual with sensory sensuous Sensuous sensual luxurious voluptuous sybaritic, epicurean come into comparison when they motive sensuous on the contrary implies the gratification of the senses (less often the indulgence of the appetites) for the sake of the aesthetic pleasure or the

The young boy's love is a spiritual passion without any sensory still less any sensual elements (H Ellis) Luxurious (as here compared in its primary and still

(Inge), sat down to a long luxurious smoke (Kipling) the music [in a restaurant gives] a luxurious pleasure not to be had from eating a silent meal (Justice Holmes) Voluptuous also implies giving oneself up to the pleasures of sense but it carries a stronger implication of abandonment to such pleasure for its own sake than does luxurious also it more frequently carries a suggestion of sensual rather than of sensuous enjoyment, as, tuousness but now largely as a result of a truer understanding of the philsophy of the ancient Greek Epicurus (Epicurean philosophy) it suggests sensuous rather than sensual delight in the pleasures of eating drinking and the like and a delicate and fastidious termination and pronouncement of punishment (or the like) following an adverse verdict thus, when a jury renders a verdict of guilty it becomes the duty of the condemned to exile cells for condemned prisoners) or in the case of things a forfeiture of its existence or of historical meanings akin to condemn is now not employed in law In theological use it implies the condemnation of the soul to hell or to eternal punishment He that destiny is so strongly stressed in doom that in some cases the implication of an adverse judgment is lost or ob-

(that is, loss of power to receive or to transmit property by inheritance) and the loss of all rights and privileges as a citizen. "In the United States the Constitution provides that no bill of attainder shall be passed, and that no attainder of treason (in consequence of a ration was . signed by all the Powers which proscribed Napoleon as a public enemy, with whom neither peace nor truce could be concluded (Sir A. Alison)

Con Acquit absolve, vindicate exonerate, *exculpate sententious Pregnant meaningful, significant, *expressive eloquent

Ana Formal conventional ceremonious (see CEREMONIAL) Pompous, *showy, ostentatious terse, pithy compendious (see CONCISE) sentiment. 1 Emotion affection, *feeling passion

Ana Thought, impression, notion, *idea ideal standard exemplar (see MODEL)

2 *Opinion, view, belief conviction, persuasion.

Ana. *Truth verity conclusion, judgment (see under INFER)

3 Sentiment, sentimenta into comparison when they acteristic, that is the pr SENSATION 2) and that is in spoken utterances or in wo fangled sentiment the boasted grace Of those who never feel in the right place" (Cowper) Sentimentality is definitely a derogatory and often a contemptuous, term for it always implies mawkishness, affectation or excess sentimentality but precise writers prefer the former (Galsworthy).

Sentimental, romantic, mawkish, maudlish, slushy come into comparison when for criminals and scorn for the society that produces them), as, sentimental songs, sentimental women, "Mr Sterne [in 'A Sentimental Journey'] becomes sentimental over a cab and weeps generous tears over a donkey" but is derived more from one's imagination of what they should be ideally or from one's conceptions of them as fused as to seem mere drivel as slushy stories a slushy speech Ana Emotional affectionate feeling passionate (see

Ana Sensibility feeling (see SENSATION) separate, Separate part divide sever sunder divorce wheat from the chaff to separate one s mind from one s work) or the presence of an intervening thing or things (as the Atlantic separates Europe from America a thousand m les separate the two branches of the family) Part usually but not invariably suggests the separation of two persons or things in close union or association often in sorrow may meet again in joy (Scott) Divorce etymologically to turn different ways, implies the legal dissolution of a marriage and thereby the undoing of a union. The term is widely used in an extended sense implying the separation of two or more things so closely associated that they interact upon each other or work only in union with each other, as Its academic tendency to divorce form from matter [in poetry] (Day

Ana Cleave rend split, rive (see TEAR) *estrange alienate disperse dispel *scatter *detach disengage distinctive (see CHARACTERISTIC) detached disengaged (see DETACH) sept *Tribe s b clan horde Upshot outcome issue *effect consequence aftereffect event aftermath mination *end ending conclusion closing finish (see corresponding verbs at CLOSE) Series *succession progression set suit arrangement (see corresponding *Consecutive successive serial discrete seraph Cherub archangel *angel serene Tranquil *calm peaceful placid halcyon Ana *Still stilly silent noiseless quiet *cool collected composed smooth effortless *easy Con Disturbed disquieted agitated upset (see DISCOMPOSE)

Serf, slave, bondslave, thrall, villein, vassal bondman bondsman peon Helot are often distinguished in their historical senses but in their extended looser senses they agree in designating a person who is in servitude or in bondage to a master or owner upon one as the teacher that serf of custom that subjugated rebel that feeble persistent antagonist of the triumphant things that rule him" (H G Wells) not only over the services but also over the person and his (or her) act ons they therefore suggest both in their h storical and in their extended senses pr vat on of freedom and deprivat on of all the rights and privileges associated w th independence Had you rather Cae ar gests a being held n bondage as in cha ns (more often figurat ve than literal) or in capt vity and therefore usually connotes tl e loss of one s l berty or the forfe t of t to a greater po ver Unlike serf and slave the term words because t applies only to a person wl o under the feudal system (or a system comparable to t) holds lands or rece ves protect on on cond t ons of homage and allegiance to the overlord who grants the land or prom ises protect on in return for the vassal s pledged support plied to any person or personified th ng that is perforce or voluntar ly subo d nate to another and dependent

Bondman and bondsman (also bonduoman and bonds woman and bondmaid [as in Galat ans v 22 Lev t cus xxv 44] also bondservant [as in Lev cu xxv 39]) have shown fluctuat ons in meaning owing largely to differ ences

(Bryan) Peon a term used cl efly in reference to comparable to that of a serf is often used in an extended sense to mean slave or serf but with added connotat ons of an oppressed cond tion or of being dr ven beyond l uman bounds.

serial adj *Consecutive successive sequent sequential

Follow ng ensuing succeed ng (see FOLLOW) uous *continual

*Succession progression sequence set su t ha n train string

Serious grave solemn sedate staid sober ander) Grave impl es both ser ousness and d gn ty but it commonly also implies a somber express on or attitude and the pressure of weighty interests or responsibilit es A stately speech Such as grave Livers do in Scotland use (Wordsworth) She had no fl ghts of eloquence but the slow grave tones with which she uttered the things that seemed to her the most worth while in life were more impressive than any arts of the orator ous use when referred d rectly to persons as solemn as a judge If the word may be used of so solemn a person age he wr ggled (Conrad) Sedate impl es composure stronger negat on of volatility or fr volity than seda e The s de st eets here are excess vely ma den lady l ke The knockers have a very sta d serious way almost of one s emotions or pass ons Come pens ve Nun devout and pure Sober steadfast and demure (M lto) Earnest implies ser ousness of purpose as well as s n cer ty and often zealousness and enthus asm as an ea nest student And men are merry at the r chores And children earnest at their play (M llay)

re stern *severe ascet c *thoughtful ntemplat ve med tative *deep profound om ly *speech add ess orat on harangue on lecture prelection

*W nding s nuous tortuous flexuous utous roundabout *indirect *crooked

*Use advantage profit account, avail

Ana Usefulness utility (see USE n. 2) *worth value help ng or help aiding or aid assistance (see correspond ing verbs at HELP) servile *Subservient menial slavish obsequious Ana *Mean abject ignoble fawning cringing truckling cowering (see FAWN) Ant Authoritative

servitude Servitude, slavery, bondage agree in mean ing the state of subjection to a master Servitude may refer to the state of a person or of a class of persons or of a race that is bound to obey the will of a master a lord or a sovere gn and lacks the freedom to determine his (or their) own acts, laws conditions of living and the like The term is often vague or rhetorical sometimes implying lack of pol tical freedom sometimes lack of liberty to do as one pleases I am as free as Nature first made man Ere the base laws of servitude began When wild in woods the noble savage ran (Dryden) In very precise use however servitude denotes the condition of one who must give service to a master and perform labor for him either because he has bound himself (see BOND adj) voluntarily or because he is a convict (especially one transported to a colony or one sentenced to penal servitude tl at is, imprisonment with hard labor) a slave or the like Slavery, in precise use implies subject on to a master who is the owner of one s person or who may treat one as his property Slavery historically does not invariably imply servitude but that implication is common when the reference is to modern as distinct from ancient times Taken by the insolent foe And sold to slavery (Shak) In rhetorical use slavery impl es entire loss of personal freedom and subjugation to another Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? (P Henry) Bondage, wh ch is now chiefly a literary or rhetor cal term originally appl ed to the state of one who was bound as a serf to the so l and who was sold with the land when the latter was conveyed to a new owner By confus on with bonds or tl e chains of a set, v Set settle fix establish, firm come into compari p ece of work or to serve a certain purpose (as to set a hen on eggs—but id omatically a setting hen rather than a sitting hen to set a l gl t at each w ndow to set out trees to set food on the table to set a child on a horse) sometimes implying a placing under orders in an stab lity rest or repose and often a weaker impl cation of regulative or dictatorial power as to settle an invalid in an easy chair, to settle themselves in their new home to settle one s eyes on a distant view Often the word carries an implication of decisive quieting calming or ordering of that which is disturbed upset unstable fluctuating or the like as to settle a person s nerves to settle one s doubts the white of an egg will settle the coffee to settle one s bedroom each morning after break fast, There s nothing will settle me but a bullet (Swift) Fix as here compared (see also ADJUST 1, FASTEN) usually implies more stability and permanence in posi fixed' (S Anderson) What I have most at l eart is, that etymological sense stresses not the putting in place or the bringing into existence so much as the becoming new processes of thought and establishes new mental habits much more easily than the adult (C W Eliot) Firm, in the sense under consideration is now obsolete except in horticultural uses It impl es a setting so securely in place that the thing set quickly establishes itself or cannot easily be uprooted or broken down by the elemer ts or other d sturbing forces as to firm young shoots in the ground The stones were again by the mason s art so levelled and firm d as they had been formerly (Walton) Ana *Implant infix *fasten attach fix affix *prescribe ass gn, define Con Eradicate deracinate uproot (see EXTERMINATE) *abolish annihilate extinguish displace supplant *replace set n 1 Series sequence suit suite *succession, progression chain train, string Ana Collection gathering assemblage (see under GATHER) 2 Set circle, coterie clique agree in denoting a more or less carefully selected or exclusive group of persons writers has even penetrated into academic circles

English society—mind I don t call the London exclusive dique the best English society (Coleridge) To hu manize [knowledge] to make it efficient outside the dique of the cultivated and learned (Arnold) setting *Background environment, milieu mise-en scène backdrop settle 1 *Set fix establish firm Ana *Secure anchor moor rivet *pacify appease conciliate propitiate *order arrange Ant Unsettle

2 Determine *decide rule resolve Ana *Judge adjudge adjud cate *close end conclude terminate sever *Separate sunder part divide d vorce Ana Rive cleave rend spl t (see TEAR) *cut hew chop *detach disengage several 1 *Distinct separate discrete Ana Respective individual particular *special especial.

2 *Many sundry various, divers numerous manifold multifold multifarious.
Ana *Single separate particular detached disengaged (see DETACH) severally. Individually, respectively *each apiece

s

d spassionately just but a stern judge reveals no disposi tion to be mild or lenient to be made of stern stuff is to have an unyielding will or an extraordinarily resolute to juiciness and sweetness in a fruit, such as feeling warmth color animation and ornament and has therefore pos tively impl ed d spassionateness coldness reserve barrenness and the like ' My common con stark simplicity and to become a term of praise rather than of depreciation The austere dignity and simplicity of their existence (Pater) Mathematics rightly borious and exacting training or discipline Through its reference to the spiritual exercises and acts of discipline (such as fasting and mortification) characteristic of monastic life in the Middle Ages it acquired impl cations of self denial abstention from that which is pleasurable and the courting of that which is painful or disagreeable. In modern use these latter implications are often stressed to the exclusion of the earlier and fundamental one High nature amorous of the good But touch d o ascetic gloom (Tennyson) A people possessed

Exacting oppressive *onerous burdensome rigorous strict stringent *hard, difficult us harsh rugged uneven *rough Tolerant tender — Con Lenient, clement aring merciful indulgent gentle mild *soft.

Sex, gender come into comparison because both e a character by which a thing is describable as line or feminine or as neither Sex, however applies strictly only to living things especially to animals but also to plants which are identified by anatomical and physiological characteristics as male or female or ne ther strictly nor clearly one or the other Gender except in vulgarly colloquial and humorous use or where anatomical or physiological differences are not impl ed (as, black divinities of the feminine gender —Dickens) is used only with reference to distinctions in words other languages) masculine gender is a characteristic of a noun or pronoun that refers to a male feminine gender of one that refers to a female and neuter gender of one h refers to a sexless thing Convention however pre- sculine or feminine gender for some sexless h as sh p (fem nine gender esp in poetry) Fetter clog trammel *hamper, manacle Ana *Restra n curb check inhibit *hinder impede lock bar restrict circumscribe, confine ncumber disembarrass *extricate release ree which light reveals [in paintings] the richness of shade piece of pointed lace In the Queen's shadow vibrate on the walls (Tennyson) the shadowless winter when it is all shade and therefore no shadow (Jefferies) Figuratively shade implies darkness or obscurity, shadow (so also shadowy) insubstantiality or unreality as there no shade can las (Tennyson), Tis but the sh

not the thing applies chiefly

in that umbrage (L P Smith) Umbra now almost entirely and penumbra fundamentally are astronomical terms Umbra applies to the perfect or complete shadow cast on the sun by the moon or the earth in an eclipse and penumbra to the imperfect or partly illuminated between that which is clearly one thing or the other or in which the exact differences between one thing or another are so obscure as not to be clearly discernible His

of the mystical penumbra in whose shadow its transcendental value seemed real though hid (J W Krutch) The great other (Justice Holmes) Adumbration (literally a shad ice dash vein strain tincture streak ce vestige tint tinge (see COLOR) *Shade umbrage umbra penumbra, adum m figure shape conformation configuration obscurity dimness (see corresponding adjec-RK) silhouette contour *outline physical or emotional instability that it cals any of the particular ways suggested by the succeeding this awful tempest of sound I trembled like a leaf (Hudson) She stood with her hand on the door knob her whole body trembling (S Anderson) She is so life of their own the tails [of fighting cats] twitch and tremble (A Huxley) the bridge shook as if trembling for several hours before it collapsed Quake is now often used in place of tremble but it commonly carries a stronger implication of violent shaking or of extreme agitation as His name was a terror that made the dead quake in their graves (Ouida) In very precise speech or writing the term usually suggests either an internal convulsion such as an earthquake (now more often rocks thrones and impious altars quaked Prisons and citadels (Shelley) Totter usually suggests great physical weakness such as that associated with infancy extreme old or a shaking

mass) as When she saw The haggard father s face and reverend beard all dabbled with the blood Of his own son [she] shudder d' (Tennyson) I am afraid of it she answered shuddering (Dickens) it was one of those illnesses from which we turn away our eyes partly derived from the denotation of the noun in mus c shoulders down so as to simulate trembling which is characteristic of the dance of that name and therefore usually suggests v bratory motions of an abnormal na ture as I often see the walls of my house shimmying a b t (Lucas) the shimmying (that is abnormal vibration) of the front wheels of an automob le Didder and dither are now chiefly d alectal terms implying a shaking through fear or excitement They are often used in place of tremble quake quiver or shiver and sometimes imply merely mental confusion or uncertainty rather than a physical shaking

Ana. Oscillate fluctuate vibrate waver *swing sway

2 Shake, agitate, rock, convulse are comparable when they mean to cause to move to and fro or up and down with more or less violence Shake, the most general of

purpose of tossing or of violent stirring than shake It often also suggests a prolongation of the movement as a churn has a dasher or other device for agitating cream or m lk the aurora powerfully agitates a magnet. The leaves on the trees were agitated as if by a high wind (Hudson) In modern use agitate when the agent is a person usually carries connotations of excitement or disturbance Mr Thompson agitated his eyebrows dreadfully He was vulse often implies more violence in, and more frequent repetition of the motion than any of the others it also commonly suggests a pulling to and fro or a wrenching

1 flourish brandish *swing unsettle *disorder l cursory uncritical *th n trivial trifling *petty lle *vain cheat fake humbug fraud

Ana ... (see corresponding verbs at ABASE) mortification chagrin (see corresponding adjectives at ASHAMED)

Ant Glory pride

shameless Shameless, brazen barefaced brash im pudent, when appl ed to persons and their acts in defiance of the moral code or of social decorum agree in meaning characterized by boldness and a lack of a sense of shame Shameless implies a lack of effective restraints Green) Brazen suggests a heart or conscience as hard as brass it implies not only complete shamelessness but mask one s transgress ons it connotes extreme effron brash and boyish crime (V Lindsay) Impudent, as here compared not only carries all the implications of shameless but in addition it implies bold or pert defiance of principles of modesty or decency as impudent hussies Conduct so sordidly unladylike that even the most impudent woman would not dare do it openly (Shaw) Ana *Abandoned profligate dissolute *hardened indurated callous *vicious villainous iniquitous Con Modest pure *chaste decent *shy diffident bashful shape, n *Form figure conformation configuration Gestalt Ana *Outline contour profile silhouette *appearance look aspect semblance shape, v *Make form fashion fabricate manufacture forge shapeless *Formless unformed chaotic inchoate amorphous Ana *Rude rough crude Ant Shapely — Con Proportionate *proportional commensurate share, v Share participate, partake come into comparison only when they mean to have get use exercise experience or engage in something in common with another or others All were once used transitively in this

Eliot) But share may also take for its subject a group and imply a community of possession enjoyment or the like as You do not share the great earth among yo fairly' (Jefferses) participates in som ceases to be merely melodramatic and part drama (T S Eliot) Ana *Communicate impart divide disper ute sharp Sharp keen acute come into compar their general and extended senses As use sharp (the common word) appl es to e ther point keen esp to an edge rarely to a (commonly more or less technical) appl es tip or end formed by lines or edges conv

A colon ( ) groups words discriminated in sharp point, as sharp (or keen) as a razor sharp (not keen) as a needle as acute as the vertex of an isosceles triangle As applied to that which affects the senses sharp often suggests a disagreeably cutting quality as, sharp as vinegar a sharp voice a sharp flash a sharp wind Frequently however it emphasizes distinctness or clearness of definition as a sharp contrast While one notes each of the unnaturally sharp and lustrous images it [a searchlight] picks out (E Wharton) Keen in contrast suggests a bracing zestful or piquant quality The wind came keen with a tang of frost (Masefield) Very keen is the savour of the roast beef that floats up (A C Benson) Acute is rare in this application being applied chiefly to high pitched tones as, an acute accent As applied to the senses themselves sharp is used esp of sight and hearing keen of sight and smell acute of hearing as, sharp-sighted keen sighted sharp ears his hearing was still acute dogs keen of scent As characterizing pleasures and pains sharp suggests most definitely that which cuts or pierces keen implies intensity acute implies poignancy as a sharp pain keen zest acute anguish With reference to persons or personal qualities sharp often implies overcleverness or trickiness keen suggests clearsightedness quickness and sometimes shrewdness acute suggests penetration or nicety of discrimination as sharp practice a sharp customer a keen intellect His keen worldly face (Dr J Brown) Rather an acute thinker than a subtle one (De Quincey) His criticisms are always sensible never acute (Landor) Ana *Incisive trenchant cutting biting mordant mordacious *caustic scathing piercing penetrating probing (see ENTER) tricky cunning artful wily *sly Ant Dull blunt

n *Stress strain pressure tension thrust

*Discard cast, molt exuviate slough scrap emove shift transfer (see MOVE) reject repudiate spurn (see DECLINE v) shee *Fairy faery fay elf sprite pixy gnome dwarf hing or eaming sh (see ling verbs at FLASH)

1 *Pure simple absolute tright out and-out arrant, unmitigated. ous abrupt *steep pendicular *vertical *Turn divert deflect avert *Husk hull shuck

Shelter, cover, retreat refuge asylum mean

ourate s one s place sarety, happiness of the like, but it usually implies fleeing and sometimes also a pursuer or something such as a thought or emotion that harasses, as to refuse refuge to political exiles, the escaped convict found refuge in a deserted house ' Our clubs are tions of exemption from seizure or spoliation, and the finding of a protector of a place outside the jurisdiction of the law, or the like, as the embezzler sought asylum in a foreign land, France has time after time provided asylum for deposed or abdicated monarchs of other churches where by medieval law fugitives from an enemy or from the law might find immunity from seizure. Sanctuary, however, is the precise term for the Christian reference to the boat in which Noah and his family were shelter, v *Harbor lodge house, entertain board Ana. *Defend protect, shield guard safeguard *receive, accept shield, v Pro Ana Preserv house shift, v *Mo Ana. Displac

*swerve, devi shift, n. I stopgap, subs

Ana *Dev

Ana analogo

gaggle, flight, swarm, school shoal, n [1] Shoal, bank, reef, bar are here compared only as meaning a shallow place caused by an elevation in a sea or large body of water All of these terms have their ordinary nontechnical senses, the first three, however, elevation on which the water is between 11 and 200 meters deep, and reef to a rocky elevation on wh ch the

2 *Paralysis palsy, apoplexy, stroke shoot, n Shoot, branch, bough, limb come into comparison only when they mean one of the members of a emanates directly from the trunk or stem or from that outgrowth or one of its subdivisions Bough is now a more literary term than either of the preceding terms. It is not interchangeable with shoot for it usually suggests fol age and fruit or flowers Although it is often used interchangeably w th branch and is sometimes thought of as a large or main branch it now carries a comparatively weak implication of ramification and a strong connotation of full seasonal development thus, good usage seems to indicate that bough is preferred when the shrub or tree is in leaf or bloom and branch when the shrub or tree is stripped of foliage or its members are thought of as barren or dead as, loaded boughs pine thinned (see THIN v) antiquated obsolete archaic (see OLD) shore, n Shore coast, beach strand bank, littoral ripa, foreshore agree in denoting land bordering a body or

[illegible]

[illegible]

Both shore and beach denote a place of resort for pleasure or vacation Shore however usually ind cates proximity to the sea as to spend the summer at the shore Beach on the other hand suggests a place of resort for swimmers or sun bathers as, to spend a part of each day at the beach Strand is elevated or poetical for shore or beach To th s lakes de as to the holiest strand in Europe pilgrims full of soul were drawn in thousands (L P Smith) Bank denotes the steep or sloping margin of a stream Littoral is a somewhat formal or pretent ous term occurring espec ally in geographic political and scientific writings for the whole or an extended clearly specified portion of the coast of a particular sea or country it may imply extension farther inland than coast impl es The whole Mediterranean littoral is subject to earthquakes (Scribner s) Ripa is still more uncom

[illegible]

cutting but they vary so greatly in their idiomatic associations and in some of their implications that they are not always interchangeable Shorten commonly implies reduction in length either in dimension or duration as to shorten a road by eliminating curves to shorten one s stay Also it is often used more or less figuratively of apparent rather than actual length as they shortened the journey by telling stories. Curtail adds to shorten the implication of docking or of making cuts that impair completeness or cause deprivation as the interrupt on curtailed his speech, the outdoor ceremony was curtailed because of the storm curtailed rights Abbreviate, except in humorous use is now said chiefly of words or phrases. It suggests shortening by contraction, omission or substitution of a symbol yet in such a way that the brief the relative completeness of that which results as, to abridge a dictionary, all laws abridge liberty "Thus ended her relation which I have abridged" (Goldsmith) Retrench stresses reduction in extent or costs of something felt to be in excess as to retrench expenses. Any retrenchment of their generous way of living would be a hardship for her (Cather)

[illegible]

Ana Reduce *decrease lessen diminish *contract shrink, condense

Ant Lengthen elongate extend short-lived *Transient transitory passing ephemeral momentary fugitive fleeting evanescent.

Ant Agelong

[illegible] impel [illegible] demon[illegible] to reveal [illegible] when the

[illegible]

fuller plainer and more indubitable revelation than show In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world that we might live through him (I John iv 9)

In hand writing the Chinese believe that the inner per

[illegible]

here discriminated It merely implies some outward marks or tokens usually of an interest an emotion, a power or the like as so far as is known, he has evinced long abstract word (C E Montague) Demonstrate (see also PROVE 1) is used chiefly in reference to feelings it ordinarily implies external signs such as effusiveness enthusiasm emotional excitement and the like the verb is still used in this sense but these implications come out more strongly in the noun demonstration and in the adjective demonstrative as, to demonstrate one s tender

Con *Hide conceal secrete

2 Show, exhibit, display expose, parade, flaunt, as here compared agree in meaning to present in such a way as to invite notice or attention One shows anything which one enables another or others to see or to look at as by putting it forward into view intentionally or inadvertently or by taking another where he may see it garments are not exhibited but are shown only to prospective purchasers to exhibit unreasonable fear If any crave redress of injustice they should exhibit their petitions in the street (Shak) One displays anything that one spreads out before the view of others or puts in a position where it can be seen to advantage or with great clearness as the exhibition of pictures was criticized because the best paintings were not properly displayed Before a contest begins the owner brings in his cock and holding it firmly by the tail allows it to struggle and strain in order to display its fierceness and strength (V Heiser) The host took Father Vaillant through his corrals and stables to show him his stock He exhibited with peculiar pride two cream-coloured mules stalled side by side With his own hand he led them out of the stable pretensions and their hypocrisy

One parades anything which one displays oster or arrogantly as the pianist was accused of pa

Ant Disguise

show, n *Exhibition exhibit exposition, fair showy. Showy, pretentious, ostentatious, pompous come into comparison as meaning given to making or presenting as a thing an outward display that is by implication greater than that which is justifiable Showy, the ordinary term carries less definite implica it does not necessarily imply either showiness or pretentiousness as ostentatious public charities (Wilde)

a love of ceremony or more often by a solemn and prosing pompous woman who thought nothing of consequence but as it related to her own concerns (Austen) hy meretricious

OID) opulent

*virago amazon.

ious, astute agree

sound judgment

airs Shrewd im

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms.

judgments their methods of pursuing their ends and the like it stresses penetration discernment judiciousness and often farsightedness [Lincoln] the kindly earnest brave foreseeing man, sagacious patient dreading traord narily sharp s gl ted it is now appl ed chiefly to mental s ght or ins ght and suggests unusual power to plies a comb nation of shrewdness an l perspicacity and often in addition connotes an ability to keep one s counsel or an incapacity for being fooled especially used heightens the suggestion sometimes present in Ana *Decrease reduce diminish lessen *shorten abridge retrench curtail

Ant Swell — Con *Expand amplify d stend dilate inflate

2 *Recoil flinch quail blench wince

Ana Cringe cower (see FAWN) retreat *recede balk shy boggle scruple *demur shrive. *Confess absolve remit shrivel *Wither rivel wizen.

Ana Parch desiccate *dry sear scorch *burn.

shuck or shock, v *Husk hull shell shudder, v Shiver quiver quaver *shake tremble quake totter wobble teeter shimmy didder d ther shun Avoid evade elude *escape eschew

Ana *Decline refuse reject balk shy scruple *demur stick stickle scorn disdain, *despise

Ant Habituate

shut, v *Close shut out Eliminate *exclude debar rule out black ball disbar

Ana *Prevent preclude obviate *hinder obstruc block bar shy, adj Shy bashful diffident modest coy agree shyness usually manifests itself in a certain reserve c manner or in timidity in approaching others Th ful impl es an instinctive or constitutional shrinkin from public notice that usually expresses itself in awk

A colon ( ) groups words discriminated in this book

Benson) The schoolboy s diffidence—his unwillingness to hear his own voice attempting the strange tongue—modesty with a stronger dependence on my judgment than on his own" (Austen) My native modesty is such that I was vexed and resolved to be even with her by not spect

Ant Obtrusive

shy, v Balk boggle scruple *demur j b stickle st ck strain Ana *Recoil shrink quail blench *hesitate waver falter vacillate d fference n the sieve, v *Sift, riddle, screen, bolt winnow the substance from extraneous matter or from coarser particles or sometimes to separate the particles of a ticles from those that are larger for any one of several ends as to riddle sand so as to extract all gravel shells and the like, to riddle gravel so as to extract all pebbles cobbles and the like to screen coal so as to separate it often used in a figurative sense implying the elimination winnow from the coming step of time All chaff of custom" (Keats). "There is a simplicity of diction which reflects a meagre and barren stock, there is also a simplicity which results from the winnowing of a rich abundance" (Lowes) or when one is desperately trying to restrain one s tears, the noun however, more often refers solely to this sound splashed and gurgled and moaned round the house (Kipling) Groan implies a heavier sound than moan and more often suggests an unbearable weight of suffering or a strong spirit of rebelliousness to pain or discomfort, as the groans of those caught in the wreckage were heard at ent *deplore, bemoan bewail *long, yearn, ger, thirst groan moan sob See under SIGH, v ret, *sorrow, grief

*Look, view, glance, glimpse, peep peek, coup ospect, outlook vision, *revelation

*Blind purblind

1 Sign, mark, token, badge, note, symptom come into comparison when they denote a sensible symbolic device or act (as, the mace is the sign of au misery and despair —H Ellis) to any trace or vestige of someone or something (as the signs of her fate in a footprint here a broken twig there a trinket dropped by the way —Conrad) to any objective evidence that perience left its mark (not sign) on his countenance courtesy is the mark (better than sign) of a gentleman the distinguishing marks (not signs) of Victorian poetry What then are the marks of culture and efficiency? (H Suzzallo) It is a great mistake to suppose that assertiveness is the only mannish trait taken on by suc indicate its ownership (as a trade mark a laundry mark) Token (see also PLEDGE) is preferred to sign and or token when it is thought of in reference to a class a accept the petticoat as the badge of disenfranchisement (R Macaulay) Note usually means a distinguishing or dominant mark or characteristic both when it is so close to its earliest sense a distinctive impressed upon that th

institution, a state or the body politic or to any external phenomenon th symptom of our general failure to grasp the need of knowledge and thought in mastering the complex modern world (B Russell)

Ana Indication betokening attesting or attestation (see corresponding verbs at INDICATE) manifestation evidencing or evidence demonstration showing or show (see corresponding verbs at SHOW) intimation suggestion (see corresponding verbs at SUGGEST)

2 Sign, signal come into comparison when they mean a motion an action a gesture or a word by which a com silence to give the accepted sign of warning Signal usually applies to a conventional and recognizable sign given under circumstances which make it clear to the person o a comm startled visitor cork gave the signal and a hum began to spread

(

where a guard a watchman a policeman or the like might otherwise be necessary as traffic signals railroad signals

Ana *Gesture gesticulation *symbol emblem

3 Symbol *character mark note

Ana *Device contrivance

prominent remarkable *noticeable conspicuous Ana Distinctive individual peculiar *characteristic distinguished eminent illustrious *famous renowned significance 1 Signification import *meaning sense acceptation Ana Denotation connotation (see under DENOTE) suggestion implication intimation (see corresponding significant *Expressive meaningful pregnant eloquent sententious und forcible tous weighty

eaning sense

Ana Signifying meaning denoting (see MEAN v) denotation connotation (see under DENOTE 2) signify Import *mean denote Ana Convey *carry bear *denote connote imply *suggest silent

others Silent and uncommunicative often imply a tendency to say no more than is absolutely necess matter of habit (as he had had a rather unhap hood and it made him a silent man —Conrad silent man, long a widower —Cather whose mun cative heart Will scarce one precious word impart —Su f) or an abstinence from speech on some particular occasion because of caution the stress of emotion or the like (as We paused And hand in hand Sat silent —Tennyson the reporters found the president uncommunicative when they asked him his opinion of the proposal) Taciturn implies a temperamental disinclination to speech it usually also connotes extreme disposition to keep one's own counsel or the habit or fact of withholding much that might be said especially under particular circumstances the term does not usually conn uson) Reserved implies reticence but it also suggests formality standoffishness, or a temperamental indisposition to the give and take of friendly conversation Brownell) Secretive also implies reticence but it carries a m

Ana

custom and even nature—for she was not secretive—were most sedulously kept out of sight for a time (C Brontë) Close, as here compared (see also CLOSE 1 & 2) comes near to reticent and secretive in its meaning but it usually denotes a disposition rather than an attitude or manner and therefore often suggests taciturnity as He was too close to name his circumstances to me (Dickens) Close lipped and closemouthed are often used in place of close not only as more picturesque terms but also as carrying a stronger connotation of criticism or censure or as more clearly implying a refusal to disclose

Ana Restrained curbed checked inhibited (see RESTRAIN) discreet prudent (see under PRUDENCE) Ant Talkative —Con *Vocal articulate fluent voluble glib loquacious garrulous (see TALKATIVE) 2 *Still stilly quiet noiseless Ana *Calm serene tranquil, placid peaceful *Outline contour profile sky line *shade adumbration
*Sleek slick glossy velvety glabrous, satiny

crass dumb vacuous, *empty 2 *Foolish absurd preposterous Ana Inane wishy washy *insipid puerile juvenile (see YOUTHFUL) ridiculous, ludicrous *laughable silt *Wash drift diluvium alluvium alluvion similar Similar like alike identical akin analogous comparable parallel homogeneous uniform as here compared agree in meaning closely resembling each other Things are similar when in appearance or on the surface they are not readily distinguishable or may be mistaken for each other they are like or alike when are identical (see also SAME) when there is exact correspondence between them as the typed original and carbon copies are identical Just as among all the myriad faces in the world there are no two really alike so are there no two identical sets of limbs (Lucas) Things are akin to each other when in spite of marked differences they reveal essential rather than superficial likenesses. A playing off of one image against an other a technical device akin to the interlacing of themes in music (Day Lewis) The movement which went on in France under the old régime from 1700 to 1789 was akin to the movement of the Renascence (Arnold) Things are analogous to each other when in spite of their belonging to different categories or logical groupings they are susceptible of comparison and exhibit common likenesses thus analogous words have many implications in common but they are not true synonyms because they do not carry a common denotation or are not applicable to the same things or ideas or

(B Russell) You keep talking about maladies of the mind and soul I don t accept the idea of psychic diseases analogous to mental diseases (C Mackenzie) Things are comparable when they bear sufficient likeness to each careers may be said to be parallel wl en they can be shown to have followed a similar course Things are homogeneous when they are alike in kind and in char acter But homogeneous is rarely used in this sense except in reference to the things which form a collection an aggregate or the like The family is a unit composed of people of different ages and sexes with different unctions to perform it is organic in a way which a col lection of homogeneous individuals is not (B Russell)

Ana *Same equivalent equal identical correspond ent correlative complementary *reciprocal Ant Dissimilar — Con *Different d sparate diverse *opposite contradictory contrary antithetical antony mous similarity *Likeness resemblance simil tude analogy affinity Ana *Comparison contrast collation parallel agree ment accordance harmonizing or harmony correspond affinity Ant Dissim litude d ss m larity simper, v *Sm le smirk grin simper, n Smile smirk grin See under SMILE v simple, adj 1 *Pure absolute sheer Ana Elemental *elementary *single sole Ant Compound complex

3 *Natural ingenuous naïve unsophist cated artless Ana *S ncere unfe gned *childlike childish open plain *frank cand d Con Affected pretended assumed (see ASSUME) incapable of dealing with any ideas or situations that involve mental effort It may imply either ill teracy coupled with a lack of native shrewdness or feeble-mindedness that does not amount to imbecility as they have a simple son Smooth words he had to wheedle simple souls (Wordsworth) When used as a term of criticism of normal persons or their acts it suggests little more than failure to use one s intelligence "You are fretting about General Tilney and that is very term of criticism of normal persons and their acts it is far stronger tl an simple because it imputes either the appearance of idiocy or imbecility or a want of intell contempt rather than of impersonal description, and is capable of additional connotations such as fat science (H Ellis) Fond to the point of fatu ty (A D Sedgwick) Asinine is also a term of contempt rational being as an asinine choice of professio asinine use of one s leisure time What is one to think of a man so asinine that he looks for gratitude in this world? (Mencken) Ana Childish *ch ldlike dull dense dumb *stupid crass *ignorant illiterate untaught Ant Wise simple, n *Drug medicinal pharmaceutical biolog cal simpleton *Fool moron imbecile id ot natural simulacrum 1 *Image eff gy statue icon po trait photograph mask 2 *Impost re cheat fraud sham fake humbug deceit *assume e mock

h group

simulation. Simulation, dissimulation, when they de-protective coloration are both forms of simulation Dissimulation is negative and suggests a dissembling or a concealment of one's true (usually evil) nature or purpose in order to prevent recognition of it "Dissimulation, in the negative, when a man lets fall signs and arguments that he is not what he is . Simulation in the affirmative when a man industriously and expressly feigns and pretends to be that he is not" (Bacon) 'Simulation is a simultaneous. Synchronous, coincident, *contemporary contemporaneous coeval concomitant concurrent Ana Concurring coinciding, agreeing (see AGREE).

Con *Preceding, foregoing, antecedent, previous following succeeding ensuing (see FOLLOW).

sin, n *Offense, vice crime, scandal Ana Transgression, trespass *breach violation *error lapse slip *fault, failing frailty since, adv Since, ago Ago refers to a point in past time since, in strict usage, to the period intervening between such a point and the present, in ago the mind is carried back from the present, in since, forward from a starting point in the past, as I met him ten years ago but have seen him only once since since, conj *Because for, as inasmuch as sincere. Sincere, wholehearted, whole-souled, heartfelt, hearty, unfeigned agree in meaning genuine in feeling or expression or manifesting such genuineness Sincere stresses the absence of hypocrisy dissimulation or falsification in any degree it therefore usually connotes a strict adherence to truth a revelation of just what one feels thinks sees (especially as an artist or poet) and no more and an unwillingness to embellish exaggerate or make pretenses of any sort, as in a few cases where a man professes to be destroying with a view to rebuilding we are not sure whether he is sincere (B Russell), 'The loathing with which he [Hitler] describes the sodden Vienna working classes is so sincere that usage of totalitarianism, A bust of Burns looking not so warm and whole souled as his pictures usually do (N Hawthorne) Who could help liking her? her generous nature emotion such as tears or in acts it suggests that one's innermost tation, and may connote either simple honesty, great warmth, or exuberance in the display of feeling, as, to receive a hearty welcome, a hearty laugh, 'in the hearty

Lowes)
Ana Candid, open, *frank, plain honest, honorable conscientious, scrupulous *upright *straightforward aboveboard, forthright Ant Insincere

sinewy. *Muscular, athletic, husky, brawny, burly.
Ana Robust, *healthy sound *strong tough, tenacious sturdy nervous, *vigorous energetic.

singe. Sear, *burn, scorch, char single, adj Single, sole, unique, lone, solitary, separate, particular are here compared only as meaning one as distinguished from two or more or all others. That is single which is not accompanied or supported by or combined or united with another, as, a single instance may be cited, a single woman a single house; 'the strength of the lyric lies in the complete statement of a single selected facet of experience' (Day Lewis) 'A painter discards many trivial points of exactness in order to heighten the truthfulness of a few fundamentals, he makes the sitter. .more like himself . than he actually is at any such single moment

Ana Individual particular *special especial specific Ant Accompanied supported conjugal single, v In form single out. Prefer, hand pick, *choose select elect opt pick cull Ana *Take seize grasp grab accept *receive admit *decide, determine settle single foot, n *Trot pace walk gallop run canter lope rack amble single-foot, v Trot pace walk gallop run canter sinister. Sinister, baleful, malign malefic come into pado a person a all policy The sinister power exercised by the comb na tion in keeping rivals out of the business and ruining those who already were in (Justice Holmes) Baleful carries an even stronger suggestion of menace than sinister for it impl es inevitable suffering misery or destruct on often it imputes perniciousness noxiousness hell shness or the l ke to the thing so described It is appl cable to that which works openly and without struggle between two forces the one beneficent the other malign ' (Bryce) ' The spirit of competition which according to Rousseau was one of the earliest of the malign fruits of awakening intelligence (Grandgent) The prickly topic of symbol sm with its malign power to set the wise by the ears (C E Montague) Malefic inauspicious *secret covert furtive underhand underhanded *malicious malignant malevolent spiteful sinuous. *Wind ng flexuous, serpentine tortuous, anfractuous.

Ana Labyrinthine mazy (see correspond ng nouns at LABYRINTH) circuitous roundabout *indirect devious

,ct get procreate *generate engender breed reproduce

1 *State condition mode posture status, ncture pass cris s exigency emergency ent plight quandary d lemma case *in *Position place office post job berth billet acity a Employment occupation *work calling bus ness, suit métier n Size dimensions, area, extent magnitude themselves but can be computed in terms of the number of individuals which comprise them or the amount of sions when used collectively is a close synonym of size in contrast however it usually implies accurate measurements that are known or specified as the window breadth It is used chiefly of plane figures or of plane surfaces such as the ground a floor an arena or the like and is computed usually in square measure as the estate is 200 acres in area the forest fire covered an area of ten square miles the area of a rectangle is computed by multiply ng its length by its breadth Extent is referable ch efly to things that are measured in one d mens

Dock House is vast in extent and confusing in its plan (Conrad) The word is also referable to mea ured t me or to space measured in terms of time, thus the duration of a thing is the extent of its existence, few lives reach the extent of one hundred years [In the time of A Germany was a mere and of

... it in time with no
... position (R Macaulay) It may be used also in reference to anything measurable whose exact quantity extent or degree may be expressed mathematically in figures thus the magnitude of a star is indicated by a number that expresses its relative brightness An alpha particle bearing a positive charge equal in magnitude to twice the electron charge' (Karl K Darrow) Volume (see also BULK) is also as here considered a scientific term, it is used in reference to anything which can be measured in terms of the cubic inches feet yards etc, it occupies thus the volume of a solid cylinder is equal to the cubic measure of air it displaces, and that of a hollow one to the cubic measure of its capacity two objects that are equal in volume may differ greatly in weight when a thing expands it increases in volume Ana Amplitude *expanse spread stretch *bulk mass, volume skald, n Variant of SCALD skeleton. *Structure, anatomy, framework skeptic or sceptic. Skeptic (or sceptic), agnostic, and their derivative nouns skepticism, agnosticism, are very close synonyms when they denote a person (or a philosophy) that regards all human knowledge as uncertain or all absolute knowledge as unattainable by the human mind They are however distinguishable in precise and especially in philosophical use Skeptic and skepticism imply the attitude of the doubter who suspends judgment because he knows the limitations of the human reason Historically therefore these terms have been applied to every type of thinker or philosophy having for his (or its) fundamental assumption the impotency or the inadequacy of the reason even by extension to those teaching that through revelation inspiration intuition or the like men come to a measure of truth thus, philosophical idealism is in the last analysis a form of scepticism Agnostic and agnosticism, on the other hand stress the impossibility of attaining certainty in general use they commonly imply the unknowability of that which transcends the human reason such as the existence of God the origin of things and the like In philosophical use they imply the impossibility of attaining truth by any means since all knowledge is relative and conditioned by the nature of the human mind skepticism or scepticism 1 Agnosticism (see under SKEPTIC) Ant Faith

2 *Uncertainty doubt, dubiety dubiosity suspicion mistrust Ana Disbelief *unbelief incredulity demur scruple compunction *qualm Ant Credulity

sketch, n 1 Outline diagram delineation draft tracing plot blueprint See under SKETCH v Ana Design plot *plan scheme project *chart map graph.
2 Précis, aperçu *compendium syllabus digest pandect, survey sketch, v Sketch outline, diagram, delineate, draft (or draught), trace, plot, blueprint come into comparison when they mean to present or to represent something by or as if by drawing its lines or its features The same distinctions in implications and connotations are observable in the corresponding nouns sketch, outline, diagram, delineation, draft (or draught), tracing plot, blueprint. Sketch (etymologically akin to scheme) may imply a drawing, a painting a model or a verbal presentation (as in a description or exposition) of the main lines features, or points with the result that a clear, often a vivid but not a detailed impression or conception of the whole is given, as, then in a calm historian s tone he proceeded to sketch some pictures of the corruption which was rife abroad" (Joyce) "This lecture is a humble attempt to sketch out a metaphysics of natural science" (Inge), a sculptor s sketch of his design for a memorial an artist usually sketches his picture before he paints it, In some of Miss Jewett s earlier books one can find first sketches first impressions which later crystallized into almost flawless examples of literary art (Cather) Outline differs from sketch in suggesting emphasis upon the contours of a thing that is represented or the main points of a thing expounded and in implying more or less inattention to the details which fill up amplify or particularize the term therefore usually implies a more rigid selection and greater economy in treatment and less consideration for qualities which give pleasure than sketch implies and, often suggests a presentation of a thing as a simplified whole When the period came for the reappearance of Mr Scales [a traveling salesman] Mrs. Baines outlined a plan and when the circular announcing the exact time of his arrival was dropped into the letter box she formulated the plan in detail (Bennett) The detailed study of history should be supplemented by brilliant outlines even if they contained questionable generalizations (B Russell) Diagram implies presentation of something which requires explanation rather than representation or portrayal by means of a graphic design such as a mechanical drawing a pattern showing arrangement and distribution of parts a chart map graph or the like as to diagram (or to make a diagram of) the nervous system to make a diagram of a sentence to show its grammatical structure He diagrammed his route on the table-cloth (Cather) Delineate and delineation etymologically and in their early and no longer widely current senses came closer to sketch and to outline than as they now come to describe and description and depict and depiction For that reason, though they still retain a strong implication of drawing a thing so as to show its lines or features with great distinctness, they also suggest more attention to the amplifying details and therefore often imply greater fullness or richness in treatment than the preceding words. His brush did its work with a steady and sure stroke that indicated command of his materials He could delineate whatever he selected with technical skill (Jefferies) He [a Chinese painter of the fourth century] seems to have preferred the delineation of strongly featured heads men of character and experience (Binyon) Chaucer's delineation of the Prioress (Lowes) Draft especially in its verbal rather than its substantive use implies the accurate drawing to scale of something especially of an architect s plan for a building to be constructed or of a design for a vessel a machine an engine or the like as young architects usually spend their first years in drafting plans rather than in designing buildings The term either as verb or noun may imply the drawing up of a preliminary statement which when corrected polished and copied will serve as a final statement (in either case often specifically called rough draft) as draft me a proper letter to send him (Shaw) to make a draft of a petition there is a rough draft of the book among his father s papers Trace and tracing more often stress the act or the method of outlining or drawing and in themselves carry little implication of a carefully wrought design pattern or the like The words therefore are over it as to trace the new route to be followed in rebuilding a road to get a tracing of the pattern of a rose window Sometimes however the terms do suggest a pattern or design which involves the use of tracery or decorative interlacing of lines as deep-set windows stain d and traced (Tennyson) Plot is often used in their relation to each other or the whole is clear thus one who diagrammatically represents the condition of business during a given year by means of a graph is said to in the amus ng and innocuous pastime of blueprinting a new social order (The Commonweal) Ana Design plot plan scheme project (see under PLAN n) *chart map graph skid, v *Slide sl p glide gl ssade slither coast toboggan skill *Art cunning craft artifice Ana Profic ency adeptness expertness (see correspond ing adjectives at PROFICIENT) effic ency effectiveness (see correspond ng adjectives at EFFECTIVE) *read ness facil ty dexterity ease skilled Skillful *proficient adept expert Ana Apt ready *quick prompt practiced exercised drilled (see PRACTICE v) competent qualified *able capable Ant Unskilled

skillful *Proficient adept expert skilled Ana *Dexterous, adroit deft feat efficient *effective *conversant versed Ant Unskillful — Con *Awkward clumsy inept maladroit gauche skim Float *fly dart scud shoot sail skimpy Scrimpy exiguous *meager scanty scant spare sparse skin, n Skin, hide pelt fell rind bark peel come into skin of an apple the skin of an almond Skin appl es to this integument whether it covers the l ving organism or has been stripped from it when dead Hide applies especially to the tough skin of large wild and domest c animals such as the rhinoceros or the horse It is how ever chiefly in commercial use where it is applied to the raw or undressed skins of heavy cattle horses and other large animals in distinction from those of calves sheep goats and the like which are commonly described merely as sk ns thus tanned and dressed hides are made into shoes traveling bags and the like tanned and dressed skins are made into gloves purses and the like Pelt is appl ed chi fly to the skin of an animal that is covered with hair fur or wool in commerce it usually denotes an undressed skin of any of these animals, especially of a furred animal as fox pelts sheep pelts It is also applied to the skin of a sheep or goat stripped of wool or hair and ready for tanning Fell is now chiefly a literary term for skin hide or pelt but in some specific use it denotes an underskin or thin tough membrane lying beneath a pelt Rind applies chiefly to the thick tough and often inelastic integument which covers certain fruits such as oranges and grapefruit or the stems ts of some woody perennial plants (then usually bark) The hardened sk n on smoked meats such n and the hardened crust of molded cheeses are lied rinds Any skin rind or bark ... hat is or may be stripped from a fru t is called to slip on a banana peel cand ed orange peel

Skin, decorticate, peel, pare, flay come into skin as to skin calves slaughtered for the market to to decorticate wl ent Peel and pare are frequently confused in use peel is appl cable only wl en the skin or outer covering can be removed by stripping espec ally pare one s toe nails to pare expenses to a minimum Flay ... has often in threats or in descript ons of torture Consequently the word in current use is more l terary than techn cal and more figurative than l teral for it usually carries a connotat on of torture or of cruel punishment springs or leaps The first three words are commonly referable to persons or animals but they may be used in reference to inanimate things Sk graceful movement anc touching a surface and s when referred to living cr or excess of animal spirit· skip like a calf (Psalms sk pping (Shak) Bound ous springs than skip and elasticity and buoyancy as, Like a roe I bounded o er the mountains (Wordsworth) I saw her bounding down the rocky slope l ke some wild agile creature (Hudson) the ball struck the earth and bounded across the field Hop suggests a less flowing or springy movement than the two preceding words at times it connotes jerkiness and lack of dignity in movement It impl es a success on of small qu ck leaps such as those characteristic of the movement of birds toads grasshoppers and the like as [b rds] hopping from spray to spray (Dryd

The v often, e jump ng leap or makes v are fallı his legs it usuall
Would and curvell ng course (Cowper) A gang of merry ro stering devils, frisking and curveting on a flat rock (Irving) Lope evokes a picture of the long easy bounds of a l the and agile animal such as a wolf or fox on the run as "Wh te rabbits went loping about the place (Twain) the long loping stride of a mountaineer every evening at dusk the athletes in training loped round and round the track Lollop on the other hand implies a clumsy irregular bounding th movem they tres s amble sively
It sug reboun watch that stones the es a surface as to over the surf to ricochet sto a shot is made force and have skirmish, n

Ana *Conte affray fray engagement action *battle skit *Libel squ b lampoon, pasquinade skittish Restless, restive uneasy fidgety *impatient nervous unquiet feverish hectic jumpy j ttery skulk or sculk *Lurk, couch slink sneak Ana Secrete *hide conceal Con Emerge *appear loom sky line Profile contour *outline s lhouette slack adj 1 Lax remiss *negl gent neglectful Ana *Lazy indolent slothful faintant * nd fferent unconcerned detached aloof slugg sh *letharg c Con Diligent sedulous industrious, *busy assiduous expeditious, quick *fast 2 Relaxed *loose lax Ana *Weak feeble infirm inert supine passive *inact ve *slow leisurely laggard Con, *Tight taut tense *steady constant uniform even equable *firm hard slacken *Delay retard slow deta n v Defame, libel calumniate, *malign traduce asperse vilify Ana *Decry, depreciate detract from, derogate from disparage belittle *injure damage, hurt *attack, assail slang *Dialect vernacular, patois, lingo jargon, cant argot, patter slant, n 1 Slant, inclination, slope, acclivity, declivity, incline grade, gradient agree in denoting obliquity or something obl que Slant inclination slope are some times interchangeable but are not exact synonyms Slant is divergence (commonly sharp divergence) from the vertical or horizontal The slant of a ladder that leans against a house (Twain) Inclination is any divergence sl ght or sharp from a straigl t position or a direction taken as normal as to correct an inclination of the teeth Commonly when there is no contrary indication a bending sidewise (or forward) and downward is impl ed as the inclination of a tree the inclination of a magnetic needle She answered only by a slight inclination of the head (Austen) Slope is used especially of surfaces and commonly implies a gradual slant as the slope of a meadow a windshield a brow Slant sometimes and slope frequently are slant

a decl structı formin town built on an incline an incline between two floors in a garage Grade and gradient are equivalent terms the former chiefly in American the latter in British use They are used commonly (grade almost exclusively) of railroads and highways and denote usually degree of inclination from the horizontal as, there is a ten per cent grade (that is an ascent or descent of ten feet to every hundred feet of horizontal distance) between the two villages The roads of the period [were] steep in gradient (Hardy) Grade is often used to denote a stretch of a road or railroad that rises or falls from a level as there is a heavy grade between Albany and Schenectady Ana Tipping tilting canting careening (see TIP) *dev ation deflection divergence 2 *Point of view standpo nt viewpoint angle Ana Attitude *position stand bias prejudice *predilection slant, v Slant, slope, incline, lean come into comparison when they mean to diverge or vertical a

I

slanted by the of his body seemed to slant towards the other he settled so much more heavily upon one foot (M Wilkins) Slope is often used in place of slant but it is the preferred term when the reference is to a surface or a side of an elevat on such as a hill a roof or the like dispatch execute.

msy loppy flaccid flabby *loose slack sy, velvety, velvet, silken l men and such as sleep the inclination by a human agent or by some shap ng or molding force (as to lean back in one s chair s nce the hurricane most of the trees of the grove lean toward the northwest) or of a resting or an intent to rest against a (l teral or figurative) support (as to lean against a p llar she al vays leaned upon her husband when they walked the mountain trails a child should not be allowed to lean too heavily on parents or teachers)

Ana *Tip tilt cant careen veer *swerve deviate diverge slap, v *Strike hit smite swat slug clout punch box cuff slash, v Slit *cut hew chop carve

Ana Rive rend cleave split (see TEAR) penetrate pierce *enter slatternly, adj Slatternly, dowdy frowzy, blowzy are adjectives usually appl ed to women (rarely except frow y to men often except blowzy to children regard less of sex) and the r appearance and meaning negl gent of neatness freshness or smartness in dress and looks Slatternly implies slovenliness and general unkemptness It often grieved her to the heart to think that her mother should have an appearance so comfortless so slatternly so shabby (Austen) Dowdy suggests lack

(Wilde) Frowzy implies an offensive lack of neatness cro vded one there is no meaning in words (Shaw)

Ana Slovenly unkempt sloppy *slipshod *dirty squalid foul filthy

Con *Neat tidy trim spick and span slaughter, n *Massacre butchery carnage pogrom of it) which is sleek or more often in current use wh ch is so perfectly finished that the eye can detect no flaw novel produced by popular American writers] is marked by a competent slickness This surface gloss this soph s- reader who is calendered paper That is glossy wh ch has by nature or art a surface that is exceed ngly smooth and shining as the glossy leaves of the beech tree downy peaches and the glossy plum (Dryden) glossy as black rocks on a sunny day cased in ice (D Wordsworth) the table has a waxed not a glossy finish That is velvety (or less often velvet) which has the extreme softness associated with the surface or appearance of velvet though the word is often used of things as they appeal to the sense of touch or of sight or of both (as a velvety or velvet skin a velvety or velvet flower) it is also appl cable to sounds that caress the ear or to tastes or odors that are del ghtfully bland (as even her high notes are velvety the velvet touch of a pianist the boy read ng in his qual ty (as, Mrs Gibson petted him in her sweetest silkiest manner —Gaskell) That is satiny (or less often Ana *Bright lustrous brilliant smooth even (see uave ur specious sleepy Sleepy, drowsy, somnolent slumberous (or slumbrous) come into comparison when they mean affected by a des asleep (as Away you rogue away! I am sleepy — implied slip heightens the emphasis upon quietness lows glided in an effortless way through the busy air

Eustace a waited inner he a slumberous pools clear as the was as a rule of a the ma

Ana Finished * faultless shallow slide v Slide sli

Ana analogous w

slithered away In the bod es of innumerable worms — Amy Lowell) Coast and toboggan always connote a sl d which cannot be impeded until the bottom is reached or some obstruction is provided as from 1929 to 1933 the prices of securities tobogganed slight, adj Tenuous rare *thin slender sl m Ana *Impercept ble imponderable impalpable intan gible insensible inappreciable trifling trivial puny *petty paltry minute diminutive wee little *small slight, v *Neglect ignore overlook disregard omit forget Ana Scorn d sdain contemn *desp se flout *scoff slim *Thin slender slight tenuous rare Ana *Lean spare skinny scrawny *meager ex guous scant scanty l the lithesome lissome (see SUPPLE) Ant Chubby (of persons)

sling v[1] Hurl fling pitch toss *throw cast Ana Heave hoist *l ft raise impel drive (see MOVE) propel shove thrust *push sling v[2] *Hang suspend dangle slink *Lurk skulk sneak couch slip, v *Slide glide sk d glissade sl ther toboggan slip n Lapse *error mistake blunder faux pas howler boner bloomer floater Ana Accident *chance inadvertence careles heedlessness (see corresponding adjectives at CAREI *fault fail ng fo ble frailty vice slipshod, adj Slipshod slovenly unkempt, sloppy into comparison not only when appl ed to persons and their appearance but also to their mental and manual lect his dress was slovenly (G Eliot) In somewhat later use it was appl ed to processes technique workmanship and the like as slovenly thinking, the slovenly manner in wh ch the dinner was served (Conrad), a tendency to think that a fine idea excuses slovenly workmanship (Amy Lowell) Unkempt (ety mologically uncombed) is applied usually to that which requires to be kept in order if a favorable impression is to be produced It impl es ternly dowdy frowzy blowzy Con Precise accurate exact *correct fastidious finical *nice slit, v Slash *cut hew chop carve slither *Slide sl p glide sk d gl ssade coast toboggan slog, v Variant of SLUG slope, v *Slant incl ne lean Ana *Tip tilt cant careen dev ate d verge veer *swerve slope, n *Slant incl nation acclivity decliv ty incl ne grade grad ent Ana Tipping turn ng canting careening (see TIP) *mountain mount peak alp steepness abruptness miss lax *negl gent neglectful *slo v leisurely del berate dilatory laggard Ant Industrious — Con *Busy d ligent sed lous Exuviate *discard cast shed molt scrap different em ss sp ck urely the r ee in and videst

roup

in making changes), or a tempo that is required by nature art, or a plan or schedule (as, a slow convales application referable only to persons or to things for which persons are responsible as their actors, performers more censorious a term than dilatory for it implies a term suggests absence of hurry or agitation and a slowness that is the result of care, forethought calculation self restraint, or the like, as deliberate enunciation de

to persons and their acts but to things that have no slow, v Slacken

Ana *Moderate

crease, lessen

Ant. Speed — (see SPEED v.) slug or slog, punch box c sluggish *L

Ana Inert *

languishing *

Ant Brisk c

slumberous nolent.

slushy. *S maudlin sopr sly, adj Sly, synon

'Why, Jane—you never dropt a word of this, you sly thing' (Austen) 'Wrinkled slyness and craft pitted against native truth and sagacity (N. Hawthorne) deception or in maneuvering, as to fear a tricky opponent more than a crafty one Able men of high character and not smart tricky men' (The Nation) Foxy implies

Ana Furtive clandestine stealthy covert (see SECRET) devious oblique, *crooked astute, *shrewd impl cations than small which often connotes less mag nitude than that which is ordinary or which is to be expected or is desirable it is preferred to small therefore when there is the intent to convey a hint of petiteness of pettiness or of insignificance in size amount or quantity extent or the like as to take ferred when the context carries a note of tenderness pathos or the l ke as a little (cf small) ch ld our little (cf small) house her pathetic little smile Sleep my little one (Tennyson) Diminutive not only carries a stronger implication of divergence from the normal or a French word has been taken over into English in only one of its applications It is the usual term to describe a wh sky) is also often found in standard English as a little wee face with a l ttle yellow beard (Shak) Wee modest crimson tipped flow r (Burns) Tiny goes even f rther chiefly in childish playful or jocose use these terms occur also in paired or reduplicated forms as teeny weeny teeny-tiny as in One day this teeny-tiny woman ferred by scientific and other writers who wish to give a more definite impl cation of extreme smallness or littleness as a minute animalcule minute gra ns of sand the tremendous forces imprisoned in minute particles of matter (Inge) Microscopic appl es only to that wh ch is so pact and complete on the top of a mountain (L P Smith) We may thus picture an atom as a miniature solar system (Eddington) In the fine arts miniature appl es to a type of painting (a miniature painting) which is typically a portrait painted on a small piece of ivory or metal often brilliantly colored and executed with nicety and del cacy so as to bring out each detail Ana *Petty puny paltry trifling trivial Ant Large — Con Big great (see LARGE) vast huge immense *enormous small arms See under WEAPON smaller. *Less lesser fewer smart. 1 Bright, knowing quick witted *intell gent clever alert

* harp keen acute *quick ready prompt apt astute perspicacious. ll (of mind)
h fashionable *stylish chic dapper dashing natty nifty nobby posh toffish brave braw egant exquisite (see CHOICE adj) *finished nate wdy frowzy blowzy

Smell, scent, odor (or odour), aroma come into son when they denote that property of a thing which makes it perceptible to the olfactory sense Smell is not only the most general of these terms but it is also the most colorless It is the appropriate word when merely the sensation is indicated and no hint of its source quality or character is necessary ' Our horses and jasmine stronger even than the reek of the dust (Kipling) Scent (see also FRAGRANCE) in precise use always carries the impl cation of a phys cal emanation odorous and odoriferous) and therefore does not suggest as scent often does the need of a delicate or highly sensitive sense of smell as Trixie knows her master by his scent (not odor) the odors (better than scents) of the kitchen clung to her clothes For these reasons odor usually implies general perceptib lity and is the preferred

Henning recognizes six outstand ng odors spicy ness in very d scriminating use it often suggest something to be savored and therefore may be used of things that appeal both to the sense of smell and taste or by extension to one s aesthet c sense as the arom like Smile is the general term capable of being qualified so as to suggest mal gn as well as ben gn pleasure or amusement as to smile tenderly or deris vely a sad or a br ght smile to smile at one s maiden efforts to wear a set sm le Grin impl es a broad smile that sl ows the teeth It still often carries a suggestion of its earlier mean ng—to show one s teeth as a dog or wolf in anger or pain, in its st ll not infrequent implication of unnatu ralness of bewilderment senselessness or the like With rash and awkward force the chords [of a lyre] he [an id ot] shakes And grins w th wonder at the jar he makes (Cowper) They could not see the bitter sm le

Ant Frown

smile n S mper smirk grin See under SMILE v Ant Frown

smirk v Simper gr n sm le smirk n S mper grin smile See under SMILE v smitch *Particle bit mite smidgen whit atom iota jot t ttle smite *Strike hit slug slap swat clout punch box cuff Ana *Beat pummel buffet *punish discipline correct smog Fog m st *haze brume smooth, adj 1 Even plane pla n flat *level flush Ana *Sleek slick glossy glabrous polished burnished (see POLISH) Ant Rough — Con Harsh uneven rugged scabrous (see ROUGH) 2 Effortless *easy l ght simple facile Ana Agreeable *pleasant pleas ng gratifying grateful serene tranquil *calm placid peaceful Ant Labored — Con *Hard difficult arduous 3 Bland diplomatic pol tic, *suave urbane Ana *D sarming ingrat at ng ins nuat ng pol te courteous courtly (see CIVIL) oily unctuous sleek *fulsome Ant Bluff — Con Blunt brusque (see BLUFF) smörgåsbord *Appetizer hors d apér tif smug Self-complacent self-satisfie placent

Ana analogous words Ant anto

Ana Self respecting self-esteeming self admiring (see primitive verbs under REGARD n) pharisaical sancti monious hypocritical (see under HYPOCRISY) snaffle, v Curb check bridle *restrain inh b t Ana *Guide lead control manage direct (see crabbed morose (see SULLEN) snappy *Pungent piquant po gnant racy spicy Ana *Sharp keen acute vivacious *l vely animated *quick prompt ready smart dashing chic mod sh (see STYLISH) snare, n Trap *lure bait decoy Ana *Trick ruse stratagem maneuver artifice fe nt wile trickery *deception chicanery chicane subterfuge snare, v Ensnare trap entrap bag *catch capture nab cop Ana *Lure entice inveigle tempt seduce decoy *Confus on d sorder chaos d sarray jumble e muddle mplex ty complication intricateness or in ee corresponding adjectives at COMPLEX) hardship Grasp grab clutch se ze *take Ana *Catch capture nab cop *pull drag draw Slink skulk *lurk couch *Scoff jeer g rd flout g be fleer eride taunt mock *r d cule scout *desp se sda n *Steal p lfer filch purloin l ft pinch swipe cop *Curious inquis tive prying nosy Ana Meddlesome officious intrusive *impert nent ob trus ve interfering interposing (see INTERPOSE) snug 1 Trim trig sh pshape *neat t dy sp ck-and span

The shadowy copse was soaked in p ney sweetness the form of vapor one s clothes may be described as saturated when they are so damp that the add tion of heat pressure or the l ke Consequently, in its f gurative use saturate usually impl es a becoming imbued or in fused with someth ing in exactly the right measure or in the most useful degree as To a mind not thoroughly saturated with the tolerating maxims of the Gospel (Burke) the entire poem is saturated with imagination Sat rated with experience of a particular class of ma terials an expert intuitively feels whether a newly extended sense the term in very precise use always carries an implication of being soaked or saturated by monly suggests the extraction of the essence of one thing so th at it becomes part and parcel of the other thus one steeps tea leaves in boiling water in order to make the beverage tea In extended use the acquirement of th e sh ne —D H Lawrence) Impregnate, less than any of in sherry and covered with a soft custard) but it may apply also to anything such as so l that is heavily soaked with liqu d as sopping wet clothes to sop one s plants with too much water Ret, now chiefly a technical term often applies to a soaking or exposure to moisture that is part of a process ng of materials or of seasoning or condit on ng them as to ret hemp or flax to ret timber Waterlog suggests a thorough soaking or drench ing that renders a thing either useless or too heavy and sodden for floating cultivating or the like as a water logged rowboat to waterlog soil by lack of proper drainage

Ana *Dip immerse submerge *permeate pervade penetrate soak, n *Drunkard inebriate alcoholic, dipsomaniac sot toper tosspot tippler soapy. Sleek *fulsome oily unctuous oleaginous soar *Rise arise ascend mount tower rocket levi tate surge Ana *Fly dart shoot aspire *aim sob, v Moan groan *sigh

Ana Weep wail, *cry, blubber sob, n Moan groan sigh See under SIGH, v

Ana Weeping wailing crying blubbering (see CRY v) sober. 1 Sober, temperate, continent, unimpassioned come into comparison when they mean having or mani festing self-control or the mastery of one s emotions passions, or appetites Sober etymologically implies free dom from intox cation this implication is still often found with another, such as that of habitual abstinence from intoxicating liquors or merely of not being drunk at the time in question as he is, by reputation a sober man he was sober when he delivered the blow As here especially considered (see also SERIOUS) sober impl es a cool head great composure especially under strain or excitement and freedom from passion prejud ce fear or the like as, he was the only one who could keep a sober head during the panic sound sober adv ce a man of sober judgment Temperate (as here compared see also MODERATE, 1) implies control over the expression of one s feelings passions appetites or desires, or the restra ned exercise of one s rights, powers or privileges w th the result that one never exceeds the bounds of what is right or proper or decorous as That sober freedom out of and upon one s feelings seeking expression or upon one s desires (especially sexual desires) seeking satisfaction as I pray you have a continent forbearance till the speed of his rage goes slower (Shak) "My past life Hath been as continent as chaste as true As I am now unhappy (Shak) Not a subject of irregular and interrupted impulses of virtue but a continent persisting immovable person (Emerson) Unimpassioned so stresses the absence of heat, ardor or fervor that it often connotes lack of feeling and therefore coldness stiffness hardness of heart or the l ke (as [Selfishness] frozen unimpassioned spiritless, Shunning the l ght —Shelley) but in very discriminating use it often implies a subduing of feel ng or passion by allowing reason to ga n the mastery (as th e unimpassioned adm nistration of discipl nary measures one who comes to ask In weighed and measured unimpassioned words A gift which if denied He must withdraw content upon his cheek Despair within his soul —Browning)

Ana Abstaining refraining forbearing (see REFRAIN) forgoing eschewing abnegat ng (see FORGO) *cool collected composed reasonable *rational

Ant Drunk excited

2 Grave *ser

Ant Gay —Con Light frivolous fl ppant light minded (see corresponding nouns at LIGHTNESS) sobriety. *Temperance abstinence abstemiousness, cont nence

Ana Moderateness temperateness (see correspond ng adjectives at MODERATE) quietness stillness (see corre sponding adjectives at STILL) seriousness gravity plaisant good natured

Ant Unsociable

social, adj Social gregarious, co-operative convivial companionable hospitable are not actually synonymous t es for social activities in this town they have pleasant tives of the group the community or society at large and of the need of mutual assistance in the atta nment of those ends the term therefore usually suggests some m more

Ant Unsoc al antisocial asocial socialist *Collectivist communist Bolshevist, nihilist anarchist society 1 Elite gentlefolk *aristocracy nobil ty county

...ciation order club

Soft bland mild gentle lenient, balmy come parison when they are applied to things with o the sensations tl ey evoke or the impress ons

(Ant s) 11 is pos tive connotat on is apparent 11 t e discriminating use of soft even when its major impl cation pleasantly low and without a trace of harshness or stridency The far shore of the river s mouth was just soft dusk (Galsworthy) Or the soft shock Of wizened apples falling From an old tree (Millay) Bland which was once applied almost exclusively to persons and the r manners (see SUAVE) is now increasingly applied to things which in earl er times might be described as soft It has however carried over its or ginal connotations of country side [was cl osen] for the s te of the grave [of might be or often are harsh rough strong violent unduly stimulating or irritating and are therefore quility or even more often a sense of restrained power or force Some d d shed A clear mild beam like Hes though sweet and well combined And lenient as soft op ates to the mind (Cowper) Pangs of grief for lenient time too keen (Wordsworth) The word has in the course of time however taken over from its later but

r
c
d

tl e *le*i ent hand of t me had left no marks upon her i agrai ce especial y the aromatic fragrance of balm producing trees Tired Nature s sweet restorer balmy sleep! (Young) O balmy gales of soul reviving air! (Cowper) Sweet sleep whose dews Are sweeter than Rough harsh uneven rugged *intense vehement sog *Soak saturate drench steep impregnate sop ret waterlog sojourn, v *Reside lodge stay put up stop live dwell solace v *Comfort console

Ana *Relieve assuage m t gate allay alleviate l ghten gladden rejo ce del ght *please grat fy sole adj *Single un que solitary lone separate particular

Ana Alone *only exclusive picked *select solecism 1 Solecism barbarism impropriety designate in rhetoric a v olation of the standard of good use in language A solecism s a construction which v olates the rule of employed tween you tor perso isms the i an impropriety

2 *Anachronism solemn 1 *Ceremonial ceremonious formal conventional SPLENDID) pompous ostentat ous (see SHOWY) solemnize Celebrate observe *keep commemorate solicit 1 *Ask request

Ana *Resort refer apply go turn *beg entreat beseech implore suppl cate

2 *Inv te b d court woo

Ana Importune adjure conjure (see BEG) *demand claim exact evoke elicit extract extort *educe solicitor *Lawyer attorney counselor barrister counsel advocate proctor procurator solicitous Careful concerned anxious worried See under CARE n

Ana Apprehensive, *fearful afraid agitated disturbed disquieted upset (see DISCOMPOSE) uneasy g presenti *fear alarm, ernation dismay Negl gence unmindfulness *Firm hard

Ana Compact *close dense consolidated concen npacted (see COMPACT v) l liquid
*Unity union integr ty sol dation concentration, un fication (see ng verbs at COMPACT) co-operat on con currence combination (see corresponding verbs at UNITE) solitary 1 *Alone lonely lonesome lone forlorn lorn desolate

Ana Isolated secluded (see correspond ng nouns at SOLITUDE) retired withdrawn (see GO) forsaken, deserted abandoned (see ABANDON)

2 *S ngle sole unique lone separate particular

Ana Alone *only solitude Solitude isolation seclusion come into com par son as meaning the state of one that is alone Solitude appl es not only to a physical cond tion where there are no others of one s k nd w th who n one can associate in any way (as O Solitude! where are the charms That sages have seen in thy face? I am out of human ty s reach Never hear the sweet mus c of speech I start at the sound of my own —Cowper) but more often to the state physical or mental of one who by w sh or by compuls on is cut off from ne ghbors the term refers entirely to a mental state and comes very close in mean ng to loneliness im ply ng a lack of nt mate

(Bennett) Isolation stresses detachment from others e ther because of causes beyond one s control or because of one s own w sh S nce the term may refer to commun t es and to th ngs as well as to indiv duals it often suggests a cutt ng off phys cally rather than a frame of m nd such as lonel ness or depress on as the isolat on of a country surrounded on all s des by enem es "the solemn isolation of a man against the sea and sky (Stevenson) the ax om that the art st and man of letters ought not to work in clo stral isolation removed from publ c affairs (Q iller Couch) the one place in the house where he could get isolat on (Cather) away or a keep ng apart of oneself or another so that one s e ther inaccess ble to others or is access ble only under very d fficult condit ons Usually the term con such that she would hardly be l kely to learn the news except through a spec al messenger (Hardy) Shaftes truth was, he could not be happy for long w thout human intercourse (Call er)

Ana Retreat refuge asylum (see SHELTER n) retirement w thdrawal (see correspond ng verbs at GO) solvent Solvent, d ssolvent, resolvent, menstruum alkahest agree in denot ng a substance that d ssolves or m xes homogeneously w th another substance Sol when there is the intent to imply d s ntegrat on as a d ssolvent for gallstones there are few dissolvents for gold P somnolent *Sleepy drowsy slumberous

Ana Sluggish stuporous comatose *lethargic inert *inactive pass ve sup ne sonance *Sound no se soon adv *Early beforehand bet mes sop *Soak saturate drench steep mpregnate sog set waterlog sophism Soph stry casu stry *fa lacy pa alogism sophistical Fallacious casu st cal paralog st c See under FALLACY

Ant Val d — Con Cogent sound conv ncing tell ng (see VALID) sophisticate *Adulterate load we ght doctor deacon sophist

Ana

adject v

tergi er

(see correspond ng verbs at ESCAPE) soppy *Sentimental romant c mawk sh maudl n mu hy s ushy sorcery *Mag w tcheraft w tchery alchemy thaumaturgy sord d *Mean ignoble abject

Ana *Mercenary venal squal d foul filt *d rty *contempt ble desp cable sorry scur beggarly sorrow, n Sorrow grief heartache anguish regret

That it engluts and swallows other sorrows (Shak) Heartache is used espec ally of sorrow that spr ngs from supply the place of sleepe Let all that may augment My doole drawe nearel (Spenser) Regret seldom im pl es a sorro v that shows itself in tears or sobs or (Wordsworth)

Ana Mourning gr eving (see GRIEVE) *d stress suf fer ng misery agony melancholy dejection *sadness depress on

Ant Joy

sorrow v Mourn *gr eve

Ana *Cry \ eep wa l keen sob moan groan (see SIG I v) sorry P tiable *contempt ble desp cable scurvy cheap begga ly

Ana *Mean ignoble sord d abject *m serable wretched paltry *petty trifl ng triv al sort n *Type kind nature descr pt on character stripe k dney ilk sort v *Assort class fy alphabetize p geonhole

Ana Arrange methodize systemat ze *order cull p ck *choose select sot *Drunkard inebriate alcohol c d psomaniac soak r tosspot t ppler

1 *M nd intellect psyche bra n brains intell e wit wits

Powers faculties funct ons (see s ngular nouns at POWER)

2 Soul sp rit are often convertible terms especially dead one does the right thing for one s soul s (not spirit s) sake one l fts up one s spirit (rather than soul) in prayer to come close to God in spirit (rather than soul) a man fervent in spirit The spirit indeed is lay bare the soul of a people to obey the spirit rather than the le at one in bel eving tl at there are other domains than that of physics (Jeans) Spirit only and not soul is used of incorporeal beings such as angels devils and tl e l ke as I can call spirits from the vasty deep (Shak)

Ant Body

sound adj 1 *Healthy wholesome robust hale well

Ana *Vigorous lusty nervous energetic strenuous *strong sturdy stalwart stout intact whole entire *perfect

2 *Val d cogent convincing telling

Ana *Impeccable flawless faultless errorless *correct exact prec se accurate *rational reasonable

Ant Fallacious

sound n [1] *Strait stra ts channel passage narro vs sound n [2] Sound no se sonan e t at s l eard regard ess of its loudness or softness its pleasantness or unpleasantness its mean ngfulness or its meaninglessness Lord \ alleys heard a sound rather sh ll and tentat ve s vell nto hoarse h gh clam shop the hell of distracting noises made by the carts the cabs the carr ages (W H Mallock) Although the connotat ons of unpleasantness and d scordance still one t ny noise of water wind in trees or man (Galsworthy) Sonance s occas onally found in general use in place of sound when the stress is on the qual ty of the sound as heard by the d scriminating ear as poets who pay l ttle attent on to the sonance of the r verses the far off mellow sonance of a cowbell (E Ferber) In

s

shade smack spice dash vein stra n streak sour Sour acid acidulous tart dry mean hav ng a taste devo d of s veetness All but dry suggest the taste of lemons vinegar or of most unripe fruits Sour is more often appl ed to that wh ch through fermentation has lost its sweet or neutral taste or sometimes smell t may or may not suggest ranc dness as sour m lk sour w ne sour bread sour garbage acid to that which has such a acid ty as some mineral waters are pleasantly acidulous envious d spos tion (Burke) A tart temper never mellows with age (Irving) I thought I m ght venture to say that her mother must be very old

An intelligent but acid weekly paper (R Macaulay)

Ana *Bitter acr d *sharp keen *astringent con str ngent morose *sullen glum crabbed saturn ne

*Or gin root inception provenance provenance r me mover

Ana Beg nning commencement starting or start (see correspond ng verbs at BEG N) *cause determ nant antecedent

Ant Term nation outcome rse submerge duck dunk saturate impregnate n brance recollect on *memory adj 1 *Dom nant predominant para ponderant preponderating preme transcendent surpass ng absolute

2 Independent *free autonomous autonom c au tarch c autark c Ana H gl est loft est (s e positive adject ves at I IGH) pal foremost governing rul ng (see mmanding d recting (see COM IAND v)

Independence freedom autonomy au hy See under FREE adj emacy ascendancy command sway n on *po ver authority spacious Spacious commodious capacious ample spacious rooms spacious gardens The whole inte or a dim spacious fragrant place afloat with golden l ghts (Pater) Figurat vely though it usually impl es he l ke

re

(G Eliot) Commodious carries as its distinctive implications usefulness serviceableness and now particularly convenience and comfortableness. My mother's room is very commodious is it not? Large and cheerful looking and the dressing-closets so well disposed It always strikes me as the most comfortable apartment in the house (Austen) In older use the word meant comfortable convenient or accommodating and carried no implication of spaciousness We [Adam and Eve after the Fall] need not fear To pass commodiously this life sustained By him [God] with many comforts (Milton) "What nature wants commodious Gold bestows (Pope) Capacious stresses the ability to hold contain and sometimes receive or retain more than the ordinary thing of its kind as, capacious pockets a capacious cupboard, the capacious soul of Shakespeare (Hazlitt) The word is often used humorously with reference to the size or nature of its contents as, a pair of capacious shoes (Dickens) a capacious crimson damask armchair (Shaw) Justice Malam was regarded as a man of capacious mind seeing that he could draw much wider conclusions without evidence than could be expected of his neighbours (G Eliot) Ample emphasizes largeness of size or particularly expanse Literally it suggests fullness bulk and the like as, she held the child beneath the folds of her ample cloak a lady of those ample architectural proportions that in women who are not Duchesses are described as stoutness (Wilde) In figurative use it often suggests freedom to expand or absence of trammels or limitations More pellucid streams An ampler ether a diviner air (Wordsworth) The yearning [of romantic composers] for an ampler expression (Babbitt)

Ana Vast immense *enormous *broad wide deep extended or extensive (see EXTEND) spade, v *Dig delve grub excavate exhume disinter spare, adj 1 Extra *superfluous surplus, supernumerary

Ana *Excessive immoderate exorbitant inordinate

2 *Lean lank lanky skinny scrawny gaunt raw boned, angular

Ana *Thin slender slim slight sinewy athletic (see MUSCULAR)

Ant Corpulent — Con Fat *fleshy obese portly plump

3 *Meager exiguous sparse scanty scant skimpy scrimpy

Ana Economical *sparing frugal thrifty

Ant Profuse

sparing, adj Sparing, frugal thrifty economical agree in meaning exercising or manifesting careful and unwasteful use of one's money goods resources and the like Sparing connotes abstention or restraint as sparing in the expenditure of money (or use of words or in giving praise) Nor will this sparing touch of noble books be any irreverence to their writers (Keats) Frugal suggests the absence of all luxury and lavishness especially in food ways of living dress and the like positively it implies simplicity temperance and often content O enjoyed was he to find She [his wife] had a frugal mind (Cowper) Roman life was a frugal thing sparing in food temperate in drink modest in clothing, cleanly in habit (Buchan) Thrifty implies industry good management and prosperity as well as frugality Far into the night the housewife plied her own peculiar work [Their] light was famous in its neighborhood and was a public symbol of the life that thrifty pair had lived (Wordsworth) Mrs Manson Mingott had lived in affluence for half a century but memories of her early straits had made her excessively thrifty" (E Wharton) Economical often is used interchangeably with thrifty when the sparing use of money and goods is emphasized as an economical housekeeper However, in precise English the word implies more than saving for its chief implication is prudent management or use to the best advantage without waste and it is therefore far more widely applicable than thrifty which refers only to persons or their expenditures thus an artist who is economical in detail avoids every dispensable detail and makes each one that he selects count to the utmost The verse, which nowhere bursts into a flame of poetry is yet economical and tidy, and formed to extract all the dramatic value possible from the situation (T S Eliot)

Ana *Meager exiguous spare *stingy, niggardly parsimonious penurious *moderate temperate

Ant Lavish — Con *Profuse prodigal exuberant spark, v *Flash, gleam glance glint sparkle glitter glisten, scintillate, coruscate glimmer shimmer twinkle glister spark, n *Fop dandy beau coxcomb exquisite élégant dude macaroni buck swell nob toff sparkle, v *Flash gleam glance glint glitter glisten scintillate, coruscate glimmer shimmer twinkle glister spark.

sparse. *Meager spare exiguous, scanty scant skimpy scrimpy

Ana Scattered dispersed (see SCATTER) sporadic occasional *infrequent uncommon *thin slim slender

Ant Dense — Con *Close thick compact spasm. Paroxysm convulsion *fit attack access accession spasmodic. *Fitful convulsive

Ana *Intermittent, alternate recurrent periodic *irregular unnatural *abnormal aberrant atypic

Con. *Steady even constant equable uniform regular methodical *orderly spat, v Bicker squabble quarrel wrangle altercate tiff See under QUARREL n

Ana Dispute argue agitate debate (see DISCUSS) *differ with differ from

Con *Agree concur, coincide.

spat, n Bickering squabble *quarrel wrangle altercation tiff

Ana Dispute controversy, *argument contention variance *discord

Con Agreement, concurrence coincidence (see corresponding verbs at AGREE) spatter. *Sprinkle besprinkle asperse bespatter splash.

spay Castrate *sterilize asexualize emasculate mutilate geld, caponize speak Speak, talk, converse agree in meaning to articulate words so as to express one's thoughts Speak is in general the broader term and may refer to utterances of any kind however coherent or however broken or disconnected and with or without reference to a hearer or hearers as to learn to speak not to be able to speak above a whisper I shall speak to him about it let him speak for the organization Talk, on the other hand usually implies an auditor or auditors and connected colloquy or discourse, as, he left the room because he did not care to talk We talk in the bosom of our family in a way different from that in which we discourse on state occasions (Lowes) But speak is also used of relatively weighty or formal speech (often public speech) talk of that which is more or less empty or frivolous as a fool may talk but a wise man speaks (B Jonson) a good old man sir he will be talking' (Shak) Yet there opinions as Words learned by rote a parrot may re-(T S El ot)

Ana *Pronounce articulate enunciate *stammer stutter *discourse expatiate d late descant special, adj Special especial specific, particular, individual, respective, concrete are not all synonyms of one another but they are closely related terms because

th ng so described from others of its kind At one time or another these two words have borne the same senses In current use however special is the preferred term when the d fferences give the thing concerned a qual ty char acter identity use or the like of its own as the mistress of the board nghouse refused to serve special food to any of her guests the baby requires a special soap and a special powder to make Sunday a special day devoted to rest and worship It the whole of nature is purposive it is not likely tl at we can d scern special purposes operating (Inge) a special aspect of a more general malady (Babbitt) Often in addit on special implies being out of the ordinary or being conspicuously un usual and therefore comes close to uncommon or excep tional as It s not l ke ordinary photographs There s someth ng special about it (Bennett) Wee Will e Winkie betrayed a special interest in Miss Allardyce He was trying to discover why Coppy should have kissed her (Kipling) Special is also applicable to some-preferred term when there is the intent to convey the idea of pre-eminence or of being such as is described over and above all the others as h s especial friend a matter of especial importance this has no especial reference to any one person In general the adverbs observe the same d fferences in meaning in current good use as a specially prescribed medicine a train run especially for com muters the criticism is especially deserved in such cases Specific, especially in philosoph cal scientific and criti cal use suggests an opposition to generic and impl es a relation to the species as distinguished from the genus or of a drug the specific remedy for malaria intellect is the specific possession of man as d st nguished from the highest animals In more general but equally good use specific (see also EXPLICIT) impl es a relation to one thing as distinguished from all other th ngs that are gush (C E Montague) 'Where it [vitality] exists, there is pleasure in feeling alive quite apart from any specific pleasant circumstance (B Russell) In this latter sense of specific particular is preferred by some writers and speakers on the ground that the term is clearly opposed to general and that it is a close synonym of single (for fuller treatment see SINGLE) The d fferences between the two words in this sense are not eas ly d s coverable but specific seems to be chosen more often by careful writers and speakers when the ideas of specif ca use but one describes the particular (much better than specific) varieties of peacl es We get a sense for par ticular beauties of nature rather than a sense for Nature herself (Binyon) Particular is also often used in the sense of special and especial (as some half-dozen par ticular friends —Dickens 'Would you say that it is single member of to some members of a class rather than to all thus some men are h ghly intelligent is a particular proposition but all men make mistakes" is a universal proposition Often in less technical use par ticular implies an oppos tion to general as well as to universal as [Swinburne] uses tl e most general word because his emotion is never particular (T S Eliot) one is apt to amplify a particular judgment into a gen eral opinion (C Macken ie) Individual unequivocally impl es reference to one of the class or group as clearly dist ngu shed from all the others as the aspect of every individual stone or brick (Conrad) a confl ct

Respective is here considered not as a close synonym of the preceding words but because it implies reference to each member of a class or to each subd vision of a group as apart from or as d stinguished from each of the others otherwise it often comes close to specific and particular in meaning as the respective powers of the departments of the government the respective users of this med c ne w ll find widely varying reactions Concrete comes very close to specific and particular in meaning but it carries a def n te impl cation not found in the other words—that the thing so described either has actual pl ysical ex st idea or otl er th ng which has no tang ble existence (as matter beauty progress) and sometimes to a general word in phrase after phrase forcing you to touch and see (Quiller Couch) It is a folly and a waste of t me to give abstract moral instruct on to a child everything must be concrete and actually demanded by the existing s tuation (B Russell) Ana Distinctive peculiar individual *characteristic *exceptional uncommon occas onal rare (see INFREQUENT) Con *Common ord nary famil ar *usual customary hab tual specie Cash currency *money legal tender coin co nage specific, adj 1 *Special especial part cular indiv dual respective concrete Ant Generic

2 Definite *explicit express categorical Ana Designating naming (see DESIGNATE) *clear lucid perspicuous precise exact (see CORRECT adj) Ant Vague

specific, n *Remedy cure med cine med cament physic specimen. Example sample illustration *instance case specious *Plausible believable colorable credible Ana *Vain nugatory empty hollow idle delusory delus ve *misleading, deceptive decc tful *dishonest untruthful mendacious lying spectator. Spectator, observer, beholder, looker on onlooker witness, eyewitness bystander kibitzer agree in meaning one who sees or looks upon something Spectator is in prec se use used in place of auditor (or in the plural of audience) for one (or the group) that at tends an exhib tion performance or entertainment that does not nvolve an appeal to the sense of hear ng thus one says the spectators at a football game at a prize fight at a pageant at a pantomime at a circus but the aud tors or the audience at a concert a lecture a play

n e

are sen h c observer the accepter of facts (A Huxley) an for the I times used in place of spectator when the distinction between the one who sees and that wh ch he sees is knows firstl and and therefore is competent to give testimony the term sometimes but very far from al ways applies to a person who knows because he has seen as No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act (Constitution of the United States) Stand ng there I was w tness of a l ttl inc dent that seemed to escape the rest (Quiller Couch) Since witness does not necessarily imply seeing eyewitness is often preferred as more pol ceman took the names of all the bystanders) but at other times it suggests l ttle more tl an presence at a place (as a bystander was njured by the explosion) K bitzer *apparition phantasm phantom revenant spook haunt eflect *think cogitate del berate ate muse rum nate *cons der contemplate excog tate emplative meditative *thought conjectural surm sing guessing rbs at CONJECTURE) pondering ee PONDER)

2 *Theore cal academ c tended to influence instruct or entertain a group of l steners as the senator was called upon to make a speech after dinner speeches Address implies formality and usually careful preparation it often connotes d stinction in the speaker or gives emphasis to the (C C Furnas) Allocution is applied chiefly to a solemn address of exhortation delivered by a leader as a general term with rare American use, designates a lecture, often in the nature of a running commentary on a text, delivered by a university professor to his students Talk connotes a theme drawn from a Scriptural text, homily suggests practical moral counsel rather than doctrinal discussion These distinctions are, however not always observed speechless. *Dumb mute inarticulate speed, n 1 *Haste hurry expedition dispatch Ana *Celerity legerity alacrity fleetness rapidity swiftness quickness (see corresponding adjectives at puted simply by dividing the distance covered by the often used loosely in place of speed or velocity but in the party

ships Although this is still the chief implication of the term (as here considered) it usually now denotes the rate of movement ahead, and is used in reference not only to ships but to anything capable of advancing or making progress as the sailboat made no headway against the to increase the headway of a car by using the actor

v Speed, accelerate, quicken, hasten, hurry, itate agree in denoting to go or make go fast or Though many of these words are used interably without seeming loss each one carries distinctive implications which can be brought out to advantage in precise use Speed emphasizes rapidity of motion or progress as a transitive verb it suggests an increase to rapid tempo as an intransitive verb, a high degree of swiftness, as to speed up an engine, to speed up the work in a factory, the bullet sped through the air, I speeded homewards, arrested for speeding Accelerate, in careful use stresses increase in rate of motion or progress it does not necessarily imply speed as to accelerate one's pace, a rich soil accelerates the growth of most plants, to accelerate the speed of a car Quicken stresses shortening of the time consumed there is often a suggestion of its original implication of animation or suddenness or abruptness regulate fix

Expeditious quick swift, fleet rapid *fast brisk nimble *agile prompt, *quick ready dilatory

Inquire query, interrogate, question catechize, quiz

Sphere

as the sun the moon or a planet or the fixed stars The first conception is an inference drawn from ocular observation the second is the result of a hypothesis framed to account for the observed motion of celestial bodies. Neither conception is held by modern astronomers, but sphere is still sometimes applied as in earlier times to a representation, as in a chart of the apparent boundaries of space on which are indicated the positions and relations of heavenly bodies at a given time or their movements, as observable from the earth Both conceptions of sphere but especially the second, have been and to a degree still are influential in the poetic use of the word. Stand still you ever moving spheres of heaven That time may cease and midnight never come (Marlowe) The face of Nature shines from where earth seems Far-stretch'd around to meet the bending sphere (Thomson) The belief (promulgated by the Pythagoreans) that the motions of the celestial spheres are so attuned to each other that they produce ethereal music (the "music of the spheres) and exquisite surface all points of which are equally distant from its center Globe is far more physical in its implications than ficial things called balls as puffballs the ball of the foot a ball-and-socket joint the eyeball

2 *Field domain, province territory, bailiwick

Ana Dominion sway jurisdiction control *power *range reach scope compass *function office duty province spherical. Globular orbicular *round circular annular discoid spice *Touch suggestion suspicion soupçon tincture tinge shade smack dash vein strain streak spick-and-span *Neat, tidy trim trig snug shipshape

Ana *Clean cleanly fresh *new

Ant Filthy

spicy *Pungent piquant poignant racy snappy Ana *Spirited high spirited gingery fiery peppery aromatic, redolent balmy *odorous spier Variant of SPEER spin, v *Turn revolve, rotate gyrate, circle whirl twirl wheel eddy swirl pirouette.

Ana *Swing, sway oscillate vibrate.

Spine backbone, vertebrae, chine designate the lated column of bones (often called the spinal or al column) which is the central and axial feature skeleton of human beings and of all vertebrate ls except a few primitive forms in which it remains undeveloped Spine and backbone are interchangeable but spine is usually preferred when anatomical structure and functions are under consideration Backbone is not only a more homely term, but it may convey a wrong port or the mainstay of a structure or organization bra (the term denoting one of the segments of the spinal column) when preceded by the is found even more often in technical use than spine and is usually preferred to spine when the reference is to one of the lower animals Chine is now rarely employed in the sense of spine except in reference to animals whose flesh is used as meat It therefore has come to be referred less often to the spine than to the part of the back which is supported by the spine In current use it is applied chiefly to this part of a carcass of beef or other meat or to a portion of t served as a roast or joint as a chine of beef *Soul.

d intellect soul psyche *apparition, phantasm phantom wraith er shade revenant spook, haunt e mettle resolution tenacity itude pluck grit backbone sand guts zeal or *passion enthusiasm energy strength ver force

Spirited high spirited mettlesome spunky ry gingery come into comparison when they ng or manifesting a high degree of vitality daring Spirited implies not only fullness of lor animation energy enthusiasm or other ellent physical or sometimes mental health ldom conveys exactly the same implications in fine lively, spirited young man (Scott), 'Shaking his ful mettlesome young Achilles (Thackeray) Spunky, a more colloquial term than those which precede often implies qualities similar to those suggested by high as synonyms of the preceding terms only when one prefers a more concrete term Fiery suggesting the heat of to spirited suggestions of a hotness or pungency charac*brave impetuous *precipitate *eager avid keen passionate enthusiastic zealous fervent ardent (see corresponding nouns at PASSION) Ant Spiritless

spiritless *Languid languishing languorous listless enervated lackadaisical Ana *Lethargic sluggish comatose stuporous dull *stupid dense crass *tame subdued submissive Ant Spirited

spiritual *Holy sacred divine religious blessed Ana *Supernatural supranatural *celestial heavenly Ant Physical carnal material temporal spirituous *Alcoholic ardent hard strong spit, v Spit, expectorate agree in meaning to eject matter from the mouth Spit is not only the ordinary word for blood The employment of expectorate for spit as an *malice ostile (see vengeful spatter spleen. Malignity grudge spite despite *malice malevolence ill will Ana Animosity antipathy anim rancor antagonism having or displaying outstanding or transcendingly impressive qualities Although like nearly all English adjectives implying transcendence they are often used fine—yea

beyond comparison in its reflection in architecture ornament poetry colour religion and philosophy (H Adams) the splendid efflorescence of genius in That is

Egdon and fired its crimson heather to scarlet It was the one season of the year and the one weather of the season in which the heath was gorgeous (Hardy) this gorgeous combination of all the hues of Paradise (H Adams) stand His back was turned but not his brightness hid (Milton) As often happens after a grey daybreak the sun had risen in a warm and glorious splendour (Conrad) this glorious vision of manly strength and the terrors it possesses as a natural event (S Alexander) That is superb wh ch exceeds that which is merely grand magnificent sumptuous, splend d or the like and reaches the highest conceivable po nt of gran deur magnificence splendor etc., as a superb phys que a superb wine a superb performance of a symphony [Homer] actually does convey Odysseus from Troy to Ithaca by a ten years voyage too he actually has nar rated that voyage to us in plain, straightforward words

Ana Rad ant effulgent luminous brilliant *bright illustrious eminent distinguished (see FAMOUS) excell ing or excellent surpassing transcending or transcendent (see corresponding verbs at EXCEED) splenetic *Irascible cholerc testy techy touchy cranky cross.

Ana Morose, *sullen glum gloomy *irritable queru lous peevish, snappish captious carping caviling (see CRITICAL) split, v Rend cleave rive rip *tear

Ana *Separate part divide sever *cut chop hew split second *Instant moment second minute flash trice jiffy twinkling twinkle spoil, v 1 *Injure harm hurt damage impair mar

Ana *Ruin wreck *destroy demolish

Con. Preserve conserve *save amend redress remedy (see CORRECT v)

2 *Indulge pamper humor baby mollycoddle

Ana *Injure harm hurt damage favor accommodate *oblige *debase deprave vitiate debauch

3 *Decay decompose rot putrefy disintegrate crumble

Ana Corrupt vitiate (see DEBASE) *ruin wreck applied to the movable property of a defeated enemy wh ch by the custom of warfare belonged to the victor and of which he stripped the captured city or place Fire the palace the fort and the keep— Leave to the foeman no spoil at all (Kipling) With changes in meth ods of warfare spoil and the currently more common spoils came to be applied to any property territory or the like, taken over by the conquering forces in actual warfare or demanded by them from the conquered as a condition of making peace In extended use spoils ap plies more open violence and greater lawlessness and destructiveness in warfare than spoil It suggests inva sion and sacking by more or less disorderly troops or by maraud ng bands. That robbed all the countrie there about And brought the pillage home (Spenser) Plunder also impl es open violence but even in its earli est use it was a more inclusive term than spoil or pillage because not restricted to warfare It has cons stently nontechnical use however booty distinctively suggests something to be shared or d vided and therefore presup poses the operations of a band "The German women a singular noun only) the former referring to spoil taken on land the latter to spoil (such as a vessel of war) captured on the high seas or in the territorial waters of the enemy Loot may be used in place of plunder booty or of buildings wholly or partly destroyed as by fire flood or violent storm as pro vlers among the ruins in search of loot in general it is applicable to ill gotten gains of any sort as corrupt officials enriched by the loot of

Ana *Theft robbery larceny burglary acquisitions acquirements (see singular nouns at ACQUIREMENT) spoliate Despo l *ravage devastate waste sack pillage *cheat avorite

gement

backer,

angel are comparable only when they denote a person who in a greater or less degree accepts respons bility for another especially for another s venture or undertak ng Sponsor usually implies public acceptance of a responsi bility and a definite engagement to perform what is promised In its earlier and still accepted sense the word implies making a pledge in behalf of another and thereby accepting responsibility for its fulfillment thus the patron of an institut on a cause a charity or the like is one whose generous and regular contributions to its on default and without notice A guarantor is answerable only after ineffectual legal proceedings have been taken against the principal Backer a somewhat colloquial term is used chiefly in sports politics and theatrical and similar enterprises It often implies the giving of financial support (but sometimes merely moral support or encouragement) but it carries no implication that responsibility for debts is assumed The success of a publication is the success of its editors and not of its business managers and its backers (B Hendrick) Angel is a slang and often derogatory term for a financial backer especially of a theatrical enterprise

Ana Supporter or support upholder champion advocator or advocate (see corresponding verbs at SUPPORT) promoter furtherer (see corresponding verbs at ADVANCE) spontaneity Abandon *unconstraint

Ana Spontaneousness instinctiveness impulsiveness suddenly and impetuously under the stress of the feeling or spirit of the moment and which in contrast with instinctive result of in to actions building by minds may yet become instantaneous or as we call it emotions and to suggest the operation of a machine But ingenuous unsophisticated

2 *Automatic autogenous endogenous attered dispersed (see SCATTER) sparse exigu ager *adventitious adventive

1 Play d sport frolic rollick romp gambol

T PLAY v

Ana Amusement diversion recreation entertainment (see under AMUSE) merriment jollity (see corresponding adjectives at MERRY)

2 *

Ana

ivert *amuse recreate entertain

op

*Playful frolicsome roguish waggish impish ous wanton

Ana Blithe *merry jocund jovial jolly mirthful gleeful hilarious (see corresponding nouns at MIRTH)

*marriage matrimony

AIN n

e amplitude stretch magnitude *size *range reach animated vivacious gay

Ana Active live dynamic *agile nimble brisk spry *merry blithe jocund spring v Spring arise, rise, originate, derive flow issue emanate proceed stem are synonymous verbs when they mean to come up or out of something into

because it usu

Eliot) Arise emphasizes the fact of coming into existence or into notice more than the conditions attending the event, often it conveys no clear suggestion of a prior state as a rumor arose and was widely circulated "And I would that my tongue could utter The thoughts that arise in me" (Tennyson) When used with from however it usually implies a causal connection between that which is the object of the preposition and that which is the subject of the verb In such cases it is synonymous with result though it neither loses nor obscures its primary implication of coming into existence as mistakes often arise from ignorance, comfort arose from the reflection the mischief arose from careless gossip Sometimes when the context suggests a cause the from phrase is omitted as where there is continued discontent trouble is certain to arise "The right never existed and the question whether it has been surrendered cannot arise" (Ch Just Marshall) Rise and arise as here compared (see also under RISE 2) are often used interchangeably but current good usage favors arise except where in addition to the implication of beginning there is either in the word or the context a strong suggestion of ascent thus, new nations rise (better than arise) only to fall the rumor rose (better than arose) and spread like wildfire, mighty forces rise from small beginnings A river is said to rise at a certain point (rather than arise) because it usually has its source in a spring or fountain Originate suggests a definite source or starting point which may be specified or located as the theory of evolution did not originate with Darwin the fire originated in the basement mental complexes often originate from repressed or unsatisfied desires. Derive also suggests a source but usually it does not imply as originate always implies actual inception rather it presupposes a prior existence in another form or in another person or thing and connotes descent as by inheritance endowment transference deduction or the like as, the power of the executive derives from the people our thoughts often derive from our wishes "The principle of symmetry derives I suppose from contemplation of the human form" (Binyon) Flow issue emanate in common imply a passing from one thing to another the former being the source from which the latter is derived All of these words are colored by their literal meanings Flow suggests passage like water easily as if from a spring or abundantly as if from a reservoir as, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow" (Ken) "Is it not clear that from such a welter [of confused interests and powers] any one of many diverse consequences might have flowed?" (Belloc) Issue most frequently suggests emergence into existence as if from a womb "Proud deliverance [of a nation] issuing out of pain and direful throes" (Wordsworth) "How far Arnold is responsible for the birth of Humanism would be difficult to say we can at least say that it issues very naturally from his doctrine" (T S Eliot) Emanate is used largely in reference to immaterial constructions such as a law a principle a power a system of thought or the like it connotes the passage of something impalpable or invisible and suggests a less obvious causal connection between the source and the thing derived than flow or issue "We may certainly say that they [the arts and sciences] all emanate from the same focus" (H Ellis) "The government of the Union is emphatically and truly a government of the people In form and in substance it emanates from them" (Ch Just Marshall) Proceed stresses place of origin or sometimes, parentage derivation or cause "By every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God" (Matthew iv 4) "No public benefit which you receive But it proceeds or comes from them to you And no way from yourselves" (Shak) Stem suggests growth out of as of a stem from a root or a branch It is therefore used in reference to things that come into existence through the influence of a predecessor as a natural outgrowth, or as a subordinate development "The good portrait painters stem from Rubens" (F J Mather)

Ana Emerge loom *appear *come arrive *begin commence start spring, n Also springs *Motive impulse incentive inducement spur goad

Ana *Origin source root inception *cause determinant antecedent *stimulus, stimulant incitement impetus springy *Elastic, resilient flexible supple

Ana Yielding submitting (see YIELD) recoiling rebounding (see REBOUND) sprinkle, v Sprinkle, besprinkle, asperse, spatter, bespatter, splash agree in meaning to scatter a fluid in drops or blobs, or (in the case of sprinkle and besprinkle) a powdered substance in fine particles over the surface of something Sprinkle commonly implies the use of the fingers or of some utensil that permits dispersion in fine drops or particles as to water plants by sprinkling them, to sprinkle food with salt to sprinkle sand over an icy walk cf a water sprinkler a sugar sprinkler a sprinkling can In extended use it may be used in reference to anything that is thinly dispersed or lightly strewn as his letters are sprinkled with hints of dissatisfaction a broad plain sprinkled with a few houses Besprinkle differs from sprinkle only in being a somewhat affected literary word and in occurring more often in the extended than in the primary sense "Sloping banks besprinkled with pleasant villas" (Dickens) Asperse is now rare in its literal sense of sprinkle it and its derivative noun aspersion (especially the latter) are found however as technical terms referring to the method of baptizing by sprinkling the head in contrast with that by pouring water on the head or by immersion "Coleridge his locks aspersed with fairy foam" (W Watson) Spatter, and its intensive bespatter, more often imply accident than intention they also carry in contrast to sprinkle suggestions of more force and sound in the scattering of greater size in the drops of one's own or another's carelessness or of a disagreeable effect such as spotting or soiling as a passing automobile spattered his coat with mud the rain spattered her silk stockings ink bespattered the walls of the schoolroom they were bespattered with paint from head to foot In extended use both words may be used in reference to anything that is more or less thickly strewn or scattered as "the bare floor Spattered with moonlight" (Amy Lowell) a speech bespattered with tributes Splash always suggests a violent or careless, profuse and often noisy spattering when it implies soiling or staining it usually suggests a daubing or streaking (or the appearance of these) rather than a spotting as to splash water while bathing to splash coffee into one's saucer to splash a bib with milk to splash a mirror with lather

Ana Drench impregnate (see SOAK) moisten dampen (see corresponding adjectives at WET) *scatter disperse dissipate sprite *Fairy faery fay elf pixy gnome dwarf goblin brownie puck nix shee leprechaun banshee spruce, adj Dashing dapper *stylish fashionable modish smart chic natty nifty nobby posh toffish brave braw

Ana Fussy finical fastidious persnickety (see NICE)

Ant Blowzy

spry *Agile brisk nimble standpoint *Point of view viewpoint angle slant Ana Stand *position attitude stanza *Verse stare, v *Gaze gape glare peer gloat Ana Look watch *see glower lower scowl *frown stark. *Stiff rigid inflexible tense wooden.

Ana Settled established fixed set firmed (see SET v) Con *Elastic resilient springy flexible supple fluid *liquid starry Starry, stellar, astral, sidereal agree in meaning

...

start, v *Begin commence initiate inaugurate Ana Institute *found establish organize *enter penetrate originate proceed *spring startle Scare alarm terrify terrorize *frighten fright affray affright.

Ana *Surprise astonish astound rouse ar[ouse] electrify *thrill state, n State condition mode situation

...

(Macaulay) The term m...

... the state of her feelings

...

effect, and a weaker suggestion of the duration of that effect also, condition may be used in the plural in the sense of combination of circumstances and of qualities

...

(Conrad) There is no possible method of compelling a child to feel sympathy or affection the only possible method is to observe the conditions under which these feel...

...

man sought the shelter of trees and banks of caves and hollows so the labourers under somewhat the same conditions came to the corner where the bushes grew (Jefferies) "Science has to deal with scores of chemical energies which it knows little about except that they always seem to be constant to the same conditions" (H Adams) Mode (as here compared see also METHOD FASHION 2) is purely a philosophical term as such it is variously defined In general, however despite many differences in definition the term implies an opposition to substance defined as the underlying reality which can be known only from its external manifestations such as ...

...

particular physical phenomena modes of matter or extension. "I used to live entirely for pleasure. I shunned suffering and sorrow of ...

the character or circumstances of the person or persons involved, so as to make for difficulty or advantage embarrassment or elation uncertainty or security or the like as, "Such views of life were to some extent the natural begettings of her situation upon her nature (Hardy), "What he expected of me was to extricate him from a difficult situation" (Conrad) "That slender un rigid erectness and the fine carriage of head which always made him seem master of the situation (Cather) The term is also applied to any comparably striking and interesting combination of events in a novel drama or other narrative, especially one whose outcome involves uncertainty or suspense One knows the situation in fiction—the desperate girl appealing out of her misery to the Christian priest for help So many women have this touch of melodrama this sense of a situation (R Macaulay) [Wilkie] Collins was a master of plot and situation of those elements of drama which are most essential to melodrama (T S Eliot) Posture (as here compared see POSTURE 1) was once used in the sense of condition when that represented a state into which one was forced by need of preparation for something to come as, to put a warship in a posture of defense to put a house on the coast in a posture to receive a storm [Christ] insisted upon a certain posture of the soul as proper to man's reception of this revelation (H P Liddon) In current use the term is often a closer synonym of situation than of condition and is chiefly found in the phrase 'posture of affairs as Eustacia had become considerably depressed by the posture of affairs (Hardy) Status is strictly a legal term implying reference to one s state or condition as determined by one s legal capacity or one s legal relations to another or others as in marriage in making contracts in inheriting property in citizenship or the like In this sense one s status is often determined by one s age one s sex one s degree of mental capacity one s possession of the right to vote and the like, as the status of imbeciles and of insane persons her status as a widow entitles her to a third of her husband s estate In more general use status applies to the standing of a person or thing with reference to all other persons or all other things of the same kind and as determined by rank social official industrial or other position popular estimation or any other similarly determining factor as In some hazy way he fancied that it was fine and impressive that it gave him a status among men (Kipling) As adopted by Augustus it [princeps] was a popular appellation defining a status rather than an office (Buchan) The necessity of readjusting our way of life to Tommy s new status of proprietor (M Austin) In the opinion of the theologians of the Middle Age the conduct of life had been reduced to the status of an exact science (J W Krutch) Estate, in its older sense of state or condition now appears in a very few idiomatic phrases as he has come recently to man s estate

Ana *Phase aspect plight *predicament quandary dilemma pass *juncture exigency emergency crisis state, v Report *relate, rehearse recite recount narrate describe

Ana Expound, *explain, elucidate interpret *assert affirm declare stately Magnificent imposing majestic august *grand, noble, grandiose

Ana Princely regal royal *kingly, imperial *splendid glorious superb sublime sumptuous, opulent *luxurious statement. *Account bill statesman *Politician politico station, n 1 Station, depot are here considered only as denoting a regular railway stop for the discharge and taking on of passengers baggage (Brit luggage) and freight (Brit goods) or the building or buildings at such a stop Station has always been the approved term in British use (especially in the phrase railway station) for the stop and for the building or buildings connected with the transportation of passengers and their luggage It is now often used also of the building or buildings connected with the transportation of goods (a goods station ') Station (especially ' railroad station) is now also the approved term in the sense given in the binding sentence in most parts of the United States. Until the end of the nineteenth century depot was the more common term and it still prevails in certain sections though its use is generally discountenanced Depot still occurs in British use as a designation of what is commonly called a freight station" in the United States.

2 *Habitat range statue *Image simulacrum effigy icon portrait photograph mask stature. *Height altitude elevation status Situation posture condition, *state mode estate statute 1 Ordinance regulation, *law rule, precept canon.

2 *Bill act law staunch Variant of STANCH stay, v 1 Stay, remain, wait, abide, tarry, linger Stay, the most general of these terms, stresses continuance in a place (sometimes in a specified condition) it often specifically connotes the status of visitor or guest as they could not decide whether to stay or to go they went for tea and stayed for dinner she was asked to stay a week Remain is often used interchangeably with stay but in precise usage it means to stay behind or to be left after others have gone as few remained in the building after the alarm was given A little Verse my All that shall remain (Gray) To wait is to stay in expectation or in readiness as at his request no one waited for him at the pier the taxi waited one hour while they were shopping To abide is to stay at length and usually connotes either stable residence or patient waiting for an outcome She hated the change she felt like one banished but here she was forced to abide (Hardy) To tarry is to stay or rest when it is time to depart or to proceed as do not tarry if you wish to catch the noon train some children like to tarry on the way to school Linger, like tarry usually implies outstaying one s appointed or allotted time frequently however it also implies either deliberate delay or disinclination to depart "Strange that now she was released she should linger by him (Meredith)

Ana *Delay procrastinate lag loiter *arrest check interrupt *continue persist

2 Sojourn lodge, put up stop *reside live dwell.

3 *Defer postpone suspend intermit

Ana *Delay retard slow slacken detain *restrain check curb *hinder obstruct impede.

steadfast or stedfast Stanch resolute constant leal true *faithful loyal Ana Settled established set fixed (see SET v) *steady constant stable durable perdurable *lasting enduring persisting abiding (see CONTINUE)

Ant Capricious

steady, adj Steady, uniform even, equable, constant come into comparison as meaning neither markedly varying nor variable but much the same throughout its course its extent or the like Steady is by far the most widely applicable of these terms in general it suggests lack of fluctuation (as a steady market steady prices a steady flame) or lack of nervousness (as steady hands a steady voice) or a constant uninterrupted flow pursuit or the like (as a steady stream, a steady rain steady work) Uniform stresses the sameness or alikeness of all the elements parts units instances or the like that the strident babble —Kipling she won and lost with the same equable sangfroid —R Macaulay) Constant (see also FAITHFUL CONTINUAL) implies fixity in character quality or condition or persistence in kind or type under the same conditions as The sand is frequently yellow but this colour is by no means constant (Lyell) throughout nature there runs a constant association of cause and effect (Inge) Science has to deal with scores of chemical energies which it knc ... about except that they always seem to be consta same conditions (H Adams)

Ana Stable durable perdurable perpetual • enduring persisting continuing (see CONTINUE) stanch steadfast resolute constant (see FAITHFUL) persevering persisting (see PERSEVERE)

Ant Unsteady nervous jumpy steady, v *Stabilize poise balance ballast trim

Con *Shake rock agitate convulse *tip tilt cant careen steal, v Steal pilfer filch purloin, lift pinch snitch rob (see these words under ROB) now often specifically implies stealing in small amounts or is chosen as a euphemism when steal seems too harsh or plainspoken as a pilfering servant he refused to employ any small boys because he suspected all of a tendency to pilfer ladies of unexceptionable position who are caught pilfering furs in shops (L P Smith) Filch though close to pilfer in its implications of petty thievery carries a more obvious suggestion of the use of surreptitious means or of snatching as Who steals my purse steals trash But he that filches from me my good name often differing little in meaning from the preceding terms, is preferred by careful writers and speakers when there is an intent to heighten the implication of removal carrying off or making away with for one's own use or to 1552 in the hands of the spoilers But it proposed that all since purloined should be given back (Belloc) Lift is often used colloquially in place of purloin or sometimes of steal as Thieves that came to lift their cattle (A Ramsay) He took to his old courses and lifted a purse here and a watch there (Thackeray) The word is found also in the intransitive verb shoplift (most commonly in the form of the verbal noun shoplifting) The other words of the group are all regarded as slang pinch and snitch in their implications coming closest to filch swipe (an Americanism) being used in place of any of the others and cop stressing a stealing on the spur of the moment

Ana *Rob plunder rifle loot thieve burglarize embezzle peculate *defalcate stealthy *Secret covert furtive clandestine sur ... kstairs ... sneak steep, adj Steep, abrupt, precipitous, sheer come into comparison when they mean having an incline approaching the perpendicular The words are here arranged in ascending order of degree of perpendicularity That is steep which has so sharp a slope or pitch that ascent or sharper pitch or angle of ascent or descent but also that of a sudden break in a level It is the high land nearest to the shore which falls most abruptly (Kinglake) That is precipitous (in ordinary usage) which suggests a headlong descent and an abruptness like that of a precipice as a precipitous height a precipitous descent A big ... That is sheer which

Ana *Conduct direct manage control *govern, rule stellar. *Starry sidereal astral stem, v Proceed issue emanate derive flow originate *spring arise, rise stenographer Typist *secretary amanuensis scribe scrivener stereotyped. *Trite hackneyed threadbare shopworn Ana Conventional formal (see CEREMONIAL) obsolete archaic antiquated (see OLD) used employed utilized applied (see USE) Ant Changeful
sterile 1 Sterile, barren, impotent unfruitful infertile are here compared as meaning not having or manifesting the power to produce offspring or literally or figuratively to bear fruit Sterile, as here compared literally implies an inability to reproduce its kind usually because of a defect in either the male or female organism the term is applicable to a human being or animal (chiefly to a female) to a plant flower and the like as a sterile woman the "workers among ants and bees are sterile a sterile plant flower or fungus In figurative use sterile is applicable to many things such as land in which seeds will not take root and grow (as the sterile wastes of a desert) to minds that do not give birth to ideas and by extension to persons with such minds (as for a year his imagination had been sterile a sterile author), to money which earns no interest (as sterile gold in a safe-deposit box) or to anything which offers persons in particular or in general nothing of value profit or use (as beneath his fun lurked the sterile bitterness of the still young man who has tried and given up —E Wharton) Barren (as here compared see also BARE, 1) applies especially to a woman who has borne no offspring or who is or is believed to be incapable of bearing children as thy cousin Elisabeth she hath also conceived a son in her old age and this is the sixth month with her who was called barren (Luke i 36) Figuratively (except as considered at BARE) the term usually implies a lack of return or issue as a barren conquest which brought him no special repute (Buchan) to prove that it [Quakerism] leads to no barren and self-centred detachment from social life and its problems (Inge) Impotent (as here compared see also POWERLESS) usually applies to the male of the species (especially of the human species) lacking power of procreation the term is however applicable to persons or animals (sometimes plants) of both sexes especially when considered as mates or as groups of mates as "Whole groups of animals and plants are rendered impotent by the same unnatural conditions (Darwin) Unfruitful is often used in place of barren not only as applied to women or to the female of any species but as applied to land vegetation or efforts of any kind which bear no fruit in any sense of that word as unfruitful women an unfruitful tree unfruitful soil unfruitful attempts suggestions zeal Infertile is often used in place of sterile especially in its literal sense as animals and plants when removed from their natural conditions are often rendered in some degree infertile (Darwin) Ana *Bare barren bald naked arid, *dry *meager exiguous empty hollow nugatory *vain Ant Fertile exuberant — Con Bearing, yielding producing turning out (see BEAR) fecund fruitful prolific (see FERTILE) 2 Sterile aseptic antiseptic agree in meaning free from danger of infection or infecting That is sterile which is free from all living microorganisms including bacteria and their viable spores and certain fungi as distilled water is a sterile fluid instruments rendered sterile by heat That is aseptic which involves asepsis, or the methods or processes of making or keeping free from microorganisms causing disease Aseptic implies the use of precautions to prevent infection with pathogenic microorganisms Aseptic technique is used in aseptic surgery that is surgery in which the attempt is made to prevent pathogenic microorganisms from getting to the incision by such measures as having the mouth and nose of the operators covered with masks and the room instruments and site of operation thoroughly cleansed and disinfected That is antiseptic (as here compared applied only to surgery) which involves antisepsis, or the process of killing or inhibiting the growth and activity of microorganisms by the use of certain substances (antiseptics) In antiseptic surgery emphasis is placed on the destruction of bacteria at the site of the operation rather than on their exclusion by suitable precautionary measures.
sterilize. 1 Sterilize, asexualize, castrate, spay, emasculate, mutilate, geld caponize agree in meaning to render incapable of producing offspring Sterilize, the most general of these terms, is applicable to both human beings and animals and is used in referring to any incapacitation of the reproductive power This incapacitation may be accomplished in various ways as by undue exposure to X rays which kill germ cells by a surgical operation such as vasectomy or salpingotomy which prevents the germ cells from reaching the site where fertilization can occur or by removal of the gonads Today sterilize often suggests a legalized procedure undertaken to prevent the reproduction of undesirables such as imbeciles and habitual criminals The term does not imply physical disfigurement Asexualize, a comparatively uncommon term is sometimes used instead of sterilize when the effect rather than the process is emphasized Castrate, a narrower term than sterilize, strictly means to deprive of the testicles (the male reproductive glands) It is used of both human beings and animals, and usually implies a surgical procedure By extension castrate has come to mean also to deprive of the ovaries (the female reproductive glands) and therefore is often used in place of spay, the specific term for this operation Emasculate is often preferred to castrate in the strict sense when the reference is to human beings and especially when there is the intent to suggest enervation and the loss of virile or masculine qualities Mutilate, usually a term of much wider significance (see MAIM) is often substituted for castrate especially when the intent is to convey strongly the idea of physical disfigurement or violence or when a euphemism is desired Geld the oldest term meaning to castrate is now applied chiefly to domestic animals especially the horse and caponize, also meaning to castrate is most commonly applied to the male domestic fowl or cock but both are sometimes used humorously of human beings
Ant Fertilize
2 Sterilize disinfect, sanitize, fumigate are not close synonyms but they come into comparison when they mean to subject to a process or treatment which has for its end the destruction of living organisms especially microorganisms Sterilize suggests special drastic methods such as the application of intense heat boiling the use of strong chemicals and the like which have for their end or effect the destruction of all microorganisms whether they are disease-producing or not. The term usually suggests means taken to avoid infection as in preparation for an operation the nurses and physicians sterilize not only every instrument, every bandage or every sponge to be used but put on garments that have been sterilized to sterilize sewage by chlorination Dis infect also suggests special methods such as exposure to strong sunlight and fresh air, thorough washing and the like, which have for their end the destruction of all when the reference is to preventive measures affecting the health of a community, such as the treatment of drinking water, air, and the like and when neither sterilize (because it suggests complete destruction of makes clear their intention Fumigate is associated with these terms only because fumigation was once the usual method of disinfection Literally it implies the use of fumes (smoke, vapor or gas) that are destructive not only of microorganisms but of pests, such as cockroaches beetles, and bedbugs stern, adj *Severe austere ascetic

Ana. Strict *rigid, rigorous stringent *grim, implacable unrelenting *inflexible, inexorable disciplined trained schooled (see TEACH)

Ant. Soft lenient

steward, n Steward, reeve, bailiff, agent, factor, seneschal, major-domo, oeconomus come into compari

Steward was originally applied to an official in a great household such as that of a royal person or a noble who was responsible for the management of the servants the provision and dispensation of supplies, and the proper expenditure of the money or funds entrusted to him for that purpose In the royal household the steward was always a nobleman In current use the term in this sense who audited accounts and who was responsible for all arrangements that had to do with maintaining or increasing the income derived from the estate In present use steward generally implies management of the concerns of a large landholder such as the supervision of employees the collection of rents and the keeping of accounts but it seldom suggests so complete a delegation of power from lord to deputy as was implied in the earlier senses However in all these senses steward carries an implication of custodianship or guardianship of goods or moneys which are entrusted to him by his lord or master and for the use of which he must render an accounting in due time This implication has been so heightened by use of the word in the New Testament especially in the parable of the unjust steward (Luke personality "We are Goddes stewardes all, noughte of our owne we bare" (Chatterton) "A man of business and a vigilant steward of the public money" (Macaulay) Reeve, which is now purely historical in this sense, and bailiff were used from the fourteenth to the seventeenth century as nearly identical terms Both then implied designates an employee whose duties correspond to those steward This distinction between steward and bailiff is not always kept perfectly clear, however Agent, or estate agent, is now often used for bailiff, especially in England, factor is the usual Scottish designation Seneschal and major-domo carry with them stronger tions The difference between the two words is not always clear except that major-domo was originally used in reference to other than English (chiefly Italian and Spanish) officials When the term later became applicable to an English steward (of a household) or a butler occurs (now rarely) in ecclesiastical or scholastic use being applied to the person whose office it is to manage the temporal affairs of a diocese a college, or a religious order or community stick. 1 Stick, adhere, cohere, cling, cleave agree in meaning to be or become closely, firmly, or indissolubly attached Stick, in early use, suggested attachment by infixing or embedding, it now usually implies attachment by affixing, it is when it carries the latter implication that it comes into comparison with the synonyms here tinct or separate as abdominal tissues sometimes adhere after an operation When referred to persons, adhere

Cling now usually implies attachment by hanging on as by the arms the roots, the tendrils or the like as to cling to a capsized boat the vine clings to the wall wet clothes cling to the body In figurative use cling often implies dependence or the need of support as she clung to her father and mother even after her marriage

It implies closeness and strength of attachment wh n

Ana *Tie bind attach *fasten affix, fix infix *implant.

Con Sever sunder part divide *separate *detach disengage.

2 Stickle, balk shy boggle *demur scruple jib strain stickle, v Balk shy boggle jib *demur scruple stick strain.

Ana *Hesitate vacillate falter waver *object kick, protest sticky. *Adhesive gluey glutinous mucilaginous gummy stiff, adj Stiff, rigid inflexible tense stark, wooden come into comparison when they mean so firm hard or because except in its extended senses it merely implies g acousness in dealing with others (as "Mrs Haw thorne something that must be overcome or must be accomplished the term implies unusual difficulty or the need of great exertion (as, a stiff ascent a stiff opposition a stiff examination a stiff task) when applied to something that under particular circumstances or in a particular pliability handling stiff with other sense (as, a stiff violence (tended ser

Ana anal

stiffness that the thing so described cannot be bent or flexed without breaking it as an airship with a rigid hull a bridge supported by a series of rigid masonry arches a rigid crosspiece trees too large and rigid to withstand the force of a hurricane Inflexible (for extended sense see INFLEXIBLE 2) in its literal sense differs from rigid only in suggesting a lack of limberness or an incapacity for being bent rather than a texture or consistency that resists bending or deforming Consequently it is often used when a less precise term is

TIGHT 1) now infrequently occurs in its literal sense and muscles as tense as those of a tiger about to spring on its prey Stark in the literal sense of stiff or sometimes of rigid and in many of the extended senses of stiff is now chiefly a dialectal term However one still comes across it in the literature of past centuries and occasionally in the work of modern authors who have a feeling for its special values For the word usually suggests a stiffness that is associated with loss of life warmth power vitality or fluidity and therefore often contrast with our rather stark and rigid methods (Gladstone) The neo-classic theorists evidently had a faith in law that was too stark and literal in a world of flux they tried to set up changeless formulae (Babbitt) now style the stark bare structure of language was to her a fetish (R Macaulay) More often in current use stark is merely an intensive (often an adverb) meaning little more than such as is stated or described without qualification as he was stark naked he stood in stark terror they wrote stark nonsense (Quiller Couch) Wooden comes into comparison with the preceding terms only in its extended sense where it suggests not only the hardness and inflexibility of wood but its dryness its lack of suppleness plasticity and the like consequently the term not only suggests stiffness and lack of life and grace but often clumsiness deadness or heaviness of spirit or the like as despite the gaiety of the conversation no smile lighted his wooden countenance Kim took a few paces in a stiff wooden style (Kipling)

Ana Tough tenacious *strong stout *firm hard solid formal conventional ceremonious (see CEREMONIAL) frigid *cold cool difficult *hard arduous

Ant Relaxed supple

stiff n 1 *Body corpse carcass cadaver

2 *Vagabond vagrant tramp hobo bum truant swagman sundowner stiff necked *Obstinate stubborn mulish dogged eful *calm

as though it had been a mark of honour (Macaulay) They can attach a social stigma to the relief by taking away the pauper s vote (Shaw) Brand carries far stronger impl cations of disgrace and infamy than use imply a blemish that dim nishes the honor of a name or a reputation or that sullies one s reputation for

Ana *Disgrace d shonor opprobrium od um shame contamination tainting or taint defilement pollution (see corresponding verbs at CONTAMINATE) still, adj Still stilly quiet silent noiseless come into comparison when they mean making no stir or noise implies also the absence of stir or motion as Oft in the stilly night Ere Slumber s chain has bound me (T Moore) In the stilly fields in the stilly ways (Henley) Quiet like still may imply absence of per ceptible motion or sound or of both but it carries Coleridge Three mountain tops Three silent pinnacles of aged snow —Tenn connotes absence of or movement (as

They kept the noi

Ant Stirring no s

A colon ( ) groups

Ana Provocation excitement stimulation qu ckening galvanizing (see corresponding verbs at PROVOKE) incentive spur goad *motive

Ant Anesthetic anodyne stimulate Excite *provoke quicken pique galvanize

Ana *Quicken animate enliven vivify activate energize *vitalize rouse arouse *stir rally waken awaken erve deaden.

Stimulus, stimulant Incitement impetus comparison when they mean a force that person a group of persons an animal an or r the like to activity Stimulus in its earl est a u p ysiological sense applies to anything (substance or agency) that quickens organ c action by pricking it into activity as a drug that serves as a sedative rather than as a stimulus is usually required in the treatment of lung conditions In later and now more frequent use the term applies especially to anything that evokes or in duces a reaction or response in any living thing, such as a human being an animal or a plant or in any living

In psychology a stimulus is any force that arouses the organism or any of its parts to activity Light is a pre existing activity is essential in any accurate sur vey of the whole field of activity and thus it is that what we may call the stimulus response psychology is of genu ne and fundamental importance (R S Woodworth) In more general nontechn cal use stimulus applies especially to anything that by pricking or irri tating goads or stirs up not only a person or persons but his (or their) powers into action activity endeavor or the like as No stimulus was omitted to excite and in spire the imagination and the sense (G L Dickinson) Many persons find stir and movement and the pres ence of a crowd an agreeable stimulus (A C Benson) For strong emotion the shock of sudden external stimulus is necessary (H Ellis) A great writer of the past is known by the delight and stimulus which he gives to mature spirits in the present (Van W Brooks) Stimulant is still occasionally used in place of stimulus in this last and most general sense and it is the preferred tended to drive one into moving or acting quickly rather than the result attained as border incidents s rving as incitements to war these things which God sends us as an incitement to proceed with more honour and alacrity (Milton) Nor could all the incitements of its master induce the beast again . . . forward (Galsw. . .

also spi

crease i

What . . . pe us to the mind of men at th s period was the discovery of the New World (Hazlitt) In estimating the social importance of this movement we must be careful to discount the temporary impetus it received from the economic slump of th s period (Day Lewis) But the term sometimes applies also to a stimulus that in t ates action as It is the impetus that I ask of you the will to try (Quiller-Couch)

Ana Spur goad incentive *motive inducement excitement piqu ng provocation (see corresponding verbs at PROVOKE) irritation nettl ng (see corresponding verbs at IRRITATE) stingy Stingy, close, closefisted tight tightfisted, niggardly, parsimonious penurious miserly curmudgeonly cheeseparing, penny pinching come into comparison as meaning unwilling (or manifesting unwillingness) to share one s goods with others or to give to another any of one s possessions Stingy the ordinary colloqu al term impl es mainly a lack of generosity the term is applicable therefore whenever there is a suggestion of a mean or ill beral spirit as sl e is . . . because she . . .

. . . ing ness of nature . . . ey also ordinarily suggest the power to keep a t ght grip upon whatever one has acquired as to be closefisted in the expenditure of one s money he is the most tightfisted person we have ever met though ver rich he is so close . . .
him for character closefistec or amoun giving or goods but to the co
oneself or . . . as poor and niggardly as it would be to set down no more meat than your company will . . .
for . . .
a gga so In nigga stress beca not been a spendthrift all his l fe he had now become strictly parsimonious and devoted every energy of . . .

penurious impl es Ana an

ness as the motive as her [Elizabeth s] expenditure was parsimonious and even miserly (J R Green) a miserly contribution to the commun ty chest Curmudgeonly is a highly contemptuous term implying in its . . .

Cheeseparing and penny pinching suggest frugality and parsimoniousness carried to the extreme (as, the cheeseparing guard ans of the city's finances, a penny pinching appropriation for rel ef)

Ana *Mean sordid ignoble scrimpy skimpy *meager greedy acquis tive avaricious *covetous, grasping *sparing economical frugal thrifty

Ant Generous. — Con *Liberal bountiful munificent *profuse lavish prod gal.

stinking *Malodorous, fetid noisome putrid rank rancid fusty musty

Ana Foul filthy nasty, *dirty *offensive repulsive revolting stint, n *Task duty job chare chore assignment

Ana Quantity amount (see SUM) allotment apportionment (see corresponding verbs at ALLOT) prescribing or prescription assigning (see corresponding verbs at PRESCRIBE) sharing or share participation (see corresponding verbs at SHARE) stipend *Wage salary fee emolument pay hire screw

Ana Remunerat . . .

. . . a band (R Ma . . . recollect on of it stirred him past the point of be ng able to sleep (M Austin) Rouse arouse awaken waken all presuppose a state of rest or repose often that of sleep Rouse derives its impl cations from its earl est appl cation to the starting of game from coverts or lairs by the cries of hunters or by beating of bushes and in precise use . . .

. . . cattle gather and blare . . . by the feet of running men dazed by the lantern glare (Kipling) Antony had spoken words which roused the mob to fury (Buchan) Arouse though frequently used interchangeably with rouse is so much weaker in its implications that it often mean . . . more than to start . . .
ence) and In the nigh up into co also make hastily arn
. . . asted words.

(not roused) and immediately dispelled passions are roused (not aroused) when they are so stirred up that they exert a harmful influence The effect of the madness [Hamlet s] is not to lull but to arouse the king s suspicion (T S Eliot) Awaken and waken in literal use like arouse frequently imply an ending of sleep in figurative use they are employed chiefly in reference to mental or spiritual powers or faculties which need only the proper stimulation to be called forth into activity or to be elicited as to awaken attention to waken love the up s ... strength for a final blow (Pre ...

*move drive impel actuate stir, n 1 *Motion movement move locomotion

Ana Acting or activity working or work behaving or behavior reaction (see corresponding verbs at ACT) change alteration variation modification (see under CHANGE v)

2 Stir bustle flurry, pother fuss ado are comparable when they refer to the signs of excitement or hurry that accompany an act action or an event Stir suggests brisk or restless movement and ordinarily implies a crowd I hear A busy stir of men about the streets (Shelley) Many persons find stir and movement and the n...

fuss needless worry or effort as he is always in a pother about something or other there is no fuss when she entertains She could distinctly catch the tramping ...

Ana Agitation disturbance disquieting or disquiet (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE) excitement stimulation (see corresponding verbs at PROVOKE) *din uproar hubbub pandemonium

Ant Tranquillity

stitch, n *Pain twinge ache pang throe stocky *Thick thickset squat chunky stubby dumpy stoic *Impassive phlegmatic apathetic stolid

Ana Detached aloof *indifferent unconcerned imperturbable composed collected *cool unassailable indomitable (see INVINCIBLE) patient long suffering resigned (see corresponding nouns at PATIENCE) stoicism Impassivity phlegm apathy stolidity See under IMPASSIVE

A colon ( ) groups words discriminated in this book

Ana *Fortitude grit backbone pluck guts sand detachment aloofness indifference unconcernedness or unconcern (see corresponding adjectives at INDIFFERENT) stolid *Impassive phlegmatic apathetic

Ana *Dull blunt obtuse *stupid dull dense crass dumb *heavy ponderous passive supine inert *inactive

Ant Adroit (sense 2)

stolidity Impassivity phlegm apathy stoicism See under IMPASSIVE

Con Quickness promptness readiness aptness (see corresponding adjectives at QUICK) animation enquickening (see corresponding verbs at *passion fervor ardor zeal enthusiasm *Abdomen belly paunch

Stone, gem jewel agree in denoting a particle of hard mineral or similar substance having the beauty of color radiance cutting or the like that fits it for use diamonds rubies sapphires and emeralds or as semiprecious stones a class including stones of somewhat lower value because less rare or less hard such as the garnet amethyst jade and tourmaline Gem, in technical as well as in correct ordinary use applies especially to a precious stone that is cut and polished and has beauty apart from its setting or to a pearl that has beauty of form and quality The term however is also applied to any semiprecious stone that is similarly cut and polished or to any exquisitely carved or engraved

...'s crown or the like as the crown jewels are on display the jewel That trembles in her ear (Tennyson) jewels flashed from her throat her ears her breast and hands is a gem a gem of a drawing by Rembrandt) and jewel stresses rather the value of the thing as an asset to its owner or possessor or as a contribution to his worth strength effectiveness or the like (as Good name in man and woman dear my lord Is the immediate jewel of their souls —Shak she is a jewel of a servant —Jane W Carlyle) stooge *Fool jester clown comedian comic, antic buffoon zany merry andrew pantaloon harlequin stoop ...

you should stoop to lying! Often the term implies a lowering of one's standards as of conduct or a debasement of one's principles or motives for some lower end such as pecuniary gain as Aspiring to be the leader of a nation of third rate men, he had to stoop to the common level (Mencken) His ambition was still to paint huge historical pictures but meanwhile to keep the pot boiling he was prepared to stoop to a pettier kind of art (A Huxley) But on the material side Mr Archer if one may stoop to consider such things (E Wharton) Condescend may imply the stooping of one who is actually exalted in power rank or dignity so as to accommodate himself to intercourse with those who are his inferiors in this sense the term usually suggests graciousness and courtesy and a waiving of formalities Spain's mighty monarch In gracious clemency does condescend On these conditions to become your friend (Dryden) Often however the term implies an assumption of superiority and a patronizing manner that tends to offend or affront the person who is regarded as an inferior as No beggar ever felt him condescend No prince presume (J R. Lowell) Those who thought they were honoring me by condescending to address a few words to me (F W Robinson) Deign now implies a temperament or frame of mind that makes one haughty arrogant, contemptuous or the like more often than it implies high rank or dignity or high standards of conduct with this limitation especially in current English (in older English deign was very close to condescend as 'O deign to visit our forsaken seats —Pope) it usually means to stoop to that which one believes is scarcely in keeping with one's dignity or which one vouchsafes with reluctance therefore the term is most common with scarcely, hardly etc or in negative constructions as [The] very dog will hardly deign to bark at you (Arnold) Richard marched hastily out of the room and through the garden never so much as deigning a glance at his wistful little guide wondering a world of fancies about the handsome proud boy (Meredith) Mr Critchlow deigned no remark (Bennett)

Ana *Abase demean humble vouchsafe accord *grant concede favor accommodate *oblige stoop n Porch piazza veranda portico *balcony gallery, loggia stop v 1 Stop cease quit discontinue desist agree in meaning to suspend or cause to suspend activity Stop applies primarily to action or progress or to that which is thought of as moving or progressing cease applies primarily to states and conditions or to that which is thought of as being or as having existence as a train stops but does not cease the noise it makes both stops and ceases one stops a car but ceases driving a car one stops work on a book but ceases one's efforts to perfect its style one's love may cease but scarcely stop When I have fears that I may cease to be (Keats) Stop frequently connotes a sudden or definite cease a gradual suspension of activity as to stop a quarrel to cease quarreling I gave commands Then all smiles stopped together' (Browning) You hear the grating roar begin, and cease and then again begin (Arnold) Quit as a synonym for stop and cease (see also LEAVE 2) is an Americanism as, he quit coming to quit smoking the man who does the work of two men before fifty is usually the one who can afford to quit (that is stop working or retire) at that age Discontinue implies the suspension of some activity especially one that has become a form of occupation or employment or is a practice or habit as to discontinue a business (or a friendship or a correspondence or a subscription to a journal or drinking intoxicating liquors) How do we discontinue to be friends?" (Browning) Desist (which is rarely transitive in current use) usually stresses forbearance or self restraint as the motive for stopping or ceasing but it may imply the futility of one's efforts as to desist from further questioning, An order requiring such person to cease and desist from the violation of the law so charged (U S Code title 15 §45) Never desisting in my efforts to induce the Indians to join me in that adventure (Hudson) He had made two attempts to shave but his hand had been so unsteady that he had been obliged to desist (Joyce)

Ana *Arrest check, interrupt intermit suspend stay *defer postpone *frustrate thwart foil balk circumvent

Con Start *begin commence initiate *go depart leave

2 Stay put up, lodge sojourn *reside live dwell stopgap. Makeshift shift expedient *resource resort substitute surrogate storm, v Bombard assault assail *attack story 1 *Account report chronicle version

Ana *History chronicle annals relation rehearsing recital recounting (see corresponding verbs at RELATE)

2 Story, narrative, tale, anecdote, yarn are alike in denoting a recital of happenings less elaborate than a novel Story is the most general and the familiar word and may in loose use be interchanged with any of the others of the group except in its generalized sense of legendary lore as in And snowy summits old in story (Tennyson) A story may be oral or written, actual or fictitious in prose or in verse designed to inform or to entertain but characteristically treats of a connected series of events or incidents rather than a single incident as a fairy story one's life story the story of an opera the story of the Crusades a story full of incident The short story and a newspaper story may treat of but one incident Narrative in its common use is more often factual than imaginative as, a historical narrative a narrative of discovery or adventure narrative is a more formal word than story As a literary composition narrative usually suggests a plot or causally connected series of motived incidents thus a chronicle or a diary is not called a narrative Tale suggests in consequence of its historical connection with oral telling a more leisurely and more loosely organized recital characteristically treating legendary or imaginary happenings especially those of ancient times and may be in verse as Oriental tales folk tales tales of the court of King Arthur Tale is a more elevated or poetical word than story Anecdote retaining something of its original sense of an unpublished item is a brief story of a single detachable incident of curious or humorous interest often illustrative of a truth or principle or of the character or foibles of a notable person and generally designed to entertain as, a pithy anecdote an anecdote of Lincoln's boyhood During the meal he entertained them with anecdotes of his travels (Meredith) Yarn once sailors slang now used only in colloquial language suggests a rambling and rather dubious tale of exciting adventure marvelous or incredible ingenious or fanciful, and not always reaching a clear-cut outcome Without motive a story is not a novel but only a yarn (Caine)

Ana Narration description (see corresponding verbs at RELATE) *fiction fable fabrication *novel romance

3 *Lie falsehood untruth fib misrepresentation stout adj 1 *Strong sturdy stalwart tough tenacious

Ana. *Brave, bold intrepid valiant valorous indomitable *invincible resolute stanch steadfast (see FAITHFUL) *vigorous energetic lusty

2 *Fleshy fat portly corpulent obese plump rotund chubby

Ana *Thick thickset stocky burly brawny husky *muscular Ant Cadaverous — Con *Lean lank lanky spare angular rawboned skinny scrawny stout, n *Beer lager bock ale porter straightforward Straightforward forthright, aboveboard when appl ed to persons their actions or the r methods agree in mean ng honest and open That is straightforward which is cons stently d rect and free from

(n its figurative sense) wh ch is free from all traces of board are also used adverb ally w th the same impl cat ons and connotations as the r adject val forms Ana Honest *upright honorable just *fair equitable impartial cand d *frank open plain Ant Devious indirect straightway *Directly immed ately instantly in stantaneously forthwith at once anon right away strain, v 1 Spra n See under STRAIN n 2 *Demur scruple balk j b shy boggle st ckle stick strain, n [1] Streak vein *touch suggest on susp cion soupcon tincture tinge shade smack sp ce dash strain, n [2] 1 *Stress pressure tens on shear thrust tors on term for a st ffness result ng from muscular strain in the arm or leg as of an athlete to strain one s back while trying to avoid a fall on a sl ppery s dewalk Sprain tendons or muscles attached to the jo nt as to spra n one s ankle a severe shoulder sprain strait, adj *Narrow Ana Limited restricted confined (see LIMIT v) strict stringent *r gid rig Ant Wide strait, n 1 Strait strait narrows are comparable w

A colon ( ) groups words c comparatively narrow stretch of water connecting two larger bodies Their meanings in geography are here espec ally considered but it should be noted that their use in proper names does not invariably conform to the r is longer and more extens ve than a strait the term is often appl ed to a long narro v body of water between the mainland and an island or group of islands and therefore at each en l opening into the same ocean or sea or arms of the same ocean or sea as Long Island Sound

Islands and opening at both ends into the Gulf of Mexico) Puget Sound in Washington and Paml co and Albemarle Sound in North Carol na are not true sounds in th s technical sense Channel is less frequent than strait or sound as a techn cal term in the sense here con s dered but when it is so used it denotes a relatively large sound as the Engl sh Channel (between southeastern England and the north coast of France) the Mozamb que Channel (between the coast of southeastern

Strange singular unique peculiar eccentric

To most of us the art of Ch na and Japan much it may attract and impress is strange (Binyon) He was in one of those strange and novel portents a motor car (H G Wells) Singular in prec se use al vays impl es d fference from every other gests strangeness that puzzles one or piques one s implies not only s ngularity in its precise sense but the

"He [John Bright] has the almost unique distinction of having made speeches which were both effective when delivered and also models of literary eloquence" (Inge) Peculiar, as here compared (see also CHARACTERISTIC) implies marked or conspicuous distinctiveness in character quality or the like as "This difference arises from the peculiar character of the Government of the United States" (Ch Just Taney) "Only subtle and delicate minds . . . catch the characteristic aroma, the peculiar perfume" (Brownell) "The nineteenth century had like every other limited tastes and peculiar fashions" (T S Eliot) Often, in looser use peculiar is employed where one of the succeeding terms in this article (such as eccentric or queer) might better be used as he is growing very peculiar, recent events have provoked the frequent comment "We live in a very peculiar world" Eccentric implies divergence from the beaten track erratic adds to eccentric a stronger implication of caprice as "his [Carlyle's] taste for the eccentric amorphous, and violent in men" (J R Lowell) an eccentric preference for beginning his dinner . . . in the late afternoon (Cather) "geniuses are such erratic people and mediocrities so respectable" (Shaw) "the workings of his mind were erratic" Odd stresses a departure from the usual the normal the regular it sometimes suggests an element of the fantastic queer even more strongly implies eccentricity and often suggests that the thing so qualified is dubious or questionable as "great men whose odd habits it would have been glorious piety to endure" (G Eliot) "His tail cocks up in a very odd way" (Barham) "our sense of the odd the humorous the grotesque" (J R Lowell) "Now Elkanah Settle sounds so queer who can expect much from that name?" (Boswell) "Alice was not much surprised at this she was getting so well used to queer things happening" (Carroll) there is something queer about this transaction Quaint implies pleasant or especially old fashioned oddness outlandish uncouth or bizarre oddness as a quaint village full of half timbered houses "the language . . . quaint and old fashioned" (Cowper) an outlandish custom "A quaint procession! Old Solomon in his seedy clothes and long white locks seemed to be luring that decent company by the magic scream of his fiddle" (G Eliot) "He wore the prophet's robe with a difference He never let it look outlandish" (C E Montague) Curious usually implies extraordinary oddness or a singularity that invites close attention, study or inquiry The word is often employed as an equivalent of one or another of the words here considered as curious things are happening a curious exhibition of feeling Discriminating writers and speakers, however give full value to one or both of the connotations of extraordinariness and singularity and always imply that the thing so described merits notice or investigation as curious bits of folklore curious customs and habits of speech surviving from an earlier age "That she had chosen for her afternoon walk the road along which she had returned to Casterbridge three hours earlier . . . was curious—if anything should be called curious in concatenations of phenomena wherein each is known to have its accounting cause" (Hardy) "My only guiding principle has been that the examples should be curious striking and even in certain cases extravagant" (A Huxley)

Ana *Abnormal atypic aberrant *fantastic, bizarre grotesque surprising, astonishing amazing flabbergasting (see SURPRISE)

Ant Familiar

stranger Stranger, foreigner, alien, outlander (or outlander), outsider, immigrant émigré are not synonymous except when they are used narrowly to designate a person who comes into a community from the outside and is not recognized as a member of that community This is the primary denotation of some of the words but the secondary sense of the others especially the last three Stranger and foreigner were originally equivalent and applied to one who came from another country (sometimes, especially in dialectal use from another section) as a resident or visitor Their differences in implications however have led to present distinctions in meaning stranger stressing the person's unfamiliarity with the language and customs and foreigner the fact that he speaks a different language follows different customs or bears allegiance to another government "The time came when I was the observant foreigner examining education in France To tell the truth I was not a stranger to it, having lived in France as a child and again as a youth" (Grandgent) Alien emphasizes allegiance to another sovereign or government and is opposed to citizen, one may be called a foreigner after naturalization but not an alien Figuratively therefore alien implies exclusion from full privileges or inability to identify oneself with a group "The older I grow the more of an alien I find myself in the world I cannot get used to it cannot believe that it is real" (L P Smith) "He is anaesthetic to their theological and political enthusiasms He finds himself an alien at their feasts of soul" (Mencken) Outlander is the term of Anglo Saxon origin uitlander of Dutch origin for foreigner they were specifically applied to English residents in the former South African republics of the Transvaal and Orange Free State In its general sense outlander is preferred to foreigner only for a literary or rhetorical reason or because it carries the implications of outlandish "His neighbors were . . . outlanders of that particular type to which . . . his own fastidiousness found the greatest objection" (Tarkington) Outsider usually implies nonmembership in a group clique, caste or the like largely because of essential differences in origin interests, backgrounds, customs and manners "An outsider like myself feels a strong suspicion that the new instrument with which Einstein has presented the mathematicians is being put to uses for which it was never intended" (Inge) Immigrant and émigré are often used of foreigners who are residents and no longer aliens The former usually is applied to a foreigner who came searching for subsistence or for a means of earning a living the latter implies that the foreigner was a fugitive or refugee from his native land Émigré is often specifically applied to a French refugee in England at the time of the French Revolution stratagem *Trick ruse maneuver artifice wile feint Ana *Device, contrivance contraption expedient shift *resource, resort machination intrigue conspiracy *plot stray, v *Wander, roam, ramble, rove range, prowl, gad gallivant traipse meander streak, n Strain vein *touch suggestion suspicion soupçon tincture, tinge shade smack spice dash stream, n *Flow current flood tide flux streamer. Pennant pennon, banner, *flag ensign, standard color street *Road roadway highway highroad avenue boulevard terrace drive parkway thoroughfare by way lane, alley alleyway strength *Power force, might energy puissance arm Ana Stoutness sturdiness toughness tenaciousness (see corresponding adjectives at STRONG) soundness healthiness (see corresponding adjectives at HEALTHY) *possessions, means resources assets strenuous Energetic, *vigorous, lusty nervous

Ana. Virile manful manly (see MALE) dynamic, live *active operative *spirited high-spirited mettlesome vehement *intense stress, n 1 Stress, strain, pressure, tension shear, thrust, torsion come into comparison in their mechanical senses when they mean the act on or effect of force exerted within or upon a body or structure Stress and strain are the comprehensive terms of this group loosely they are employed as close synonyms in the sense given in the preceding sentence, but in strict technical use stress is applied to the force exerted when one body or part of a body presses upon pushes against pulls upon, or tends to stretch compress, or twist another body or part of a body Since in natural bodies and in artificial structures such force meets the opposing force of the thing pressed pushed pulled etc the term stress now usually denotes either (1) the reciprocal action of two opposing forces, which are or should be balanced so that either one of the bodies or parts supports the other (as, in a balanced structure stresses equal each other the point of stress in a Gothic arch) or (2) the cohesive force or molecular resistance set up in one body or part against the force exerted by the opposing body or part (as, "If the external forces acting on the body increase to the extent that the maximum stress that can be developed is unable to balance the external forces, the change in form will increase rapidly and the body will break or rupture —Kent's Mechanical Engineers Handbook) Strain, on the other hand in its strict technical sense denotes the alteration in size or shape resulting from stress, either as the force exerted by one body or part upon another or as the resistance developed in opposition to an extern[illegible]

[illegible]

designate a particular type of stress, and in some cases, also of strain. Pressure commonly applies to a stress which is characterized by a weighing down upon or a pushing against a surface and which in fluids, is distributed uniformly in all directions it is usually measurable per unit area of surface affected as, the [illegible]

[illegible]

forces, usually balanced forces, pulling in opposite directions and causing or tending to cause extension. Such stress is measured per unit area of cross section as, Such is the tension and friction in the warp on the loom that were the threads themselves not properly lubricated and protected from ravelling by sizes the breakage would offset the advantage of the machine's more rapid action (A C Morrison) Shear is applicable either to a stress or to a strain that occurs when a force lying in the plane of one area or section tends [illegible] to both the strain and the stress as, to measure magnetic attraction and repulsion by the torsion of a wire filament. 2 *Emphasis, accent, accentuation.

[illegible]

stretch, n *Expanse amplitude, spread.

Ana *Area, tract region extent, magnitude *size.

strict. Stringent, *rigid rigorous.

Ana Stern, *severe austere ascetic *inflexible inexorable exacting oppressive *onerous, burdensome.

Ant Lax loose lenient indulgent.

stricture *Animadversion, aspersion reflection.

Ana Criticism censuring or censure condemnation denouncing or denunciation (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE) Ant Commendation.

strident. Blatant clamorous, *vociferous boisterous obstreperous.

Ana Harsh uneven, *rough discordant *dissonant.

strife. *Discord, conflict contention, dissension variance

Ana Combat conflict fight affray fray (see CONTEST) dispute controversy *argument *brawl broil, fracas altercation, wrangle *quarrel, squabble.

Ant Peace accord

strike, v 1 Strike, hit, smite, slug, slog slap swat, clout, punch, box, cuff come into comparison when they mean to deal or deliver a blow to someone or upon something Strike (as here compared see also AFFECT 1) the [illegible]

[illegible]

tended as, he struck the boy hard several times he struck at his opponent with his fists but the latter neatly eluded him Strike also typically implies the use of one's hand or of a whip stick, bat cane or similar implement as, she struck him in the face before he could finish his sentence to strike a horse with a whip to strike an anvil. Often also the term suggests the making of an imprint, an impression a sound or combination of sounds, or the like by movements which involve a careful aiming at a definite spot and a touching it with just the force necessary to achieve one's end as, to strike the keys of a piano to strike a chord on a piano A line [in a Chinese painting] once struck upon the silk was there for ever" (Binyon) to strike a bell to strike a medal Otherwise [illegible]

[illegible]

careful writers and speakers prefer it when the stress is upon the impact of the blow or the reaching of the mark aimed at thus, in precise usage the archer hit (not struck) the target he hit (not struck) the boy full in the face [illegible]

[illegible]

because it implies both the dealing of a blow and the Judges v 26) the injuriousness or destructiveness of the effect produced (as thou all shaking thunder Smite flat the thick rotund ty o the world! —Shak 'Liberty AFFECT 1) when there is the intent to suggest an im press on or emotional reaction that cuts deep into the nurses and mothers and schoolmistresses clout our heads the moment our conclusions differ from theirs —Shaw) punch (as here compared see also PERFORATE)

Ana *Beat pummel buffet pound baste belabor thrash thresh

2 Impress touch influence *affect sway impressive *moving string n *Succession progression series sequence set suit suite chain train stringent Strict *rigid rigorous Ana *Severe austere stern limiting restricting circumscribing confining (see LIMIT v) restraining curbing (see RESTRAIN) exacting oppressive *onerous strait *narrow strip v Strip divest, denude bare dismantle agree in in contrast to strip does not suggest violence implies a taking away of that with which a thing has been clothed or equipped especially of power rank influence prestige or the like criminating use therefore it often connotes a or a dispossession or a degrading or the like as to divest an officer of all authority to divest a policeman of his badge Electricity is invested with magnetic qualities when it begins to move divested when it stops again (Karl K Darrow) Naturalism divests life tainside was denuded of trees by the hurricane Stripped pletely denuded [and] only words words, words (J W Krutch) Bare, although it suggests a removal of that which covers or clothes seldom carries implications loot plunder *rob

Ant Furnish invest strip, n Strip stripe, band ribbon, fillet come into comparison only when they mean a relatively long and narrow piece or section or something which suggests such a piece or section Strip and stripe have probably under strip commonly suggests narrowly of a strip employed in binding confining en circling and the l ke (for synonyms in this sense see BOND 1) Only in the early nineteenth century did it acquire the meaning in which it is here considered in which the stress is on shape rather than on use However the difference is often a matter of emphasis for the word when it means a strip or stripe often also connotes either

(encircling horizontal stripes) of blue silk bands of colored l ght in the sky at dawn at closer range the mountain showed three bands the lowest green the mid dle gray and the highest white However, in such

Fillet had for its earliest meaning in English a ribbon or other band for confining the hair but in its sense develop ment (somewhat influenced by that of the French word stripe, n 1 *Strip band ribbon fillet 2 Character description nature *type kind sort kidney ilk strive Struggle endeavor *attempt essay assay try Ana Work labor toil travail (see corresponding nouns at WORK) cope *contend fight striving, n Struggle endeavor essay assay attempt strong 1 Strong stout sturdy stalwart, tough tena-weight of two persons a strong foundation) but in ex tended use it may apply to groups whose force is depend sentiment that is particularly intense or violent (as, a strong purple the strong light of the setting sun strong anger, a strong love, a strong attachment) Stout (as here compared see also FLESHY) carries a stronger impl ca tion than does strong of an ability to resist aggression or destructive forces or of an ability to endure hard use quell the valour of the stoutest heart —Cowper) when applied to things it usually also suggests solid substan tial construction (as a stout cane a stout ship) or a texture that resists stress or strain (as a stout canvas a stout paper) In fact the term is generally applicable when the suggestion of power to resist or endure is more emphatic than that of a power to do or to effect Sturdy impl es qualities in inanimate as well as in animate things, that suggest the possession of rugged health the term carries no suggestion of powers derived from size, intensity vehemence or the like but connotes rather an inner ferocious winds of the hills the tremendous rains that blow up from the sea and bitter frost (Jefferies) our den brings his stalwart common sense to bear upon the destroy overcome or the like it therefore stresses hardiness rather than vigor res stant elasticity or wiri ness rather than hardness or sol dity or a capacity for yield ng that is just suff cient to increase rather than to carries a strong suggestion of holding on or of maintaining strength in spite of all oppos ng forces that would dislodge dispossess thwart or weaken in any particular when applied to substances materials, and the like, it suggests extraordinary res stance to forces that would break out, or the like (as he seemed to hold on to life by a single thread only but that single thread was very tenacious —Arnold bold and tenacious as the bamboo shooting up through the hard ground of winter —Binyon) when appl ed to persons it suggests a stubborn hold upon something such as a possession or an opinion that defies the efforts of others to break (as Italians in possession are probably as tenacious of their rights as any one else —Lucas if the child is starved of pleasures, he will of course cling tenaciously to those that are attainable —B Russell) Ana *Vigorous energetic lusty *powerful potent forcible forceful robust, sound, *healthy vehement *intense Ant. Weak.

2 *Alcohol c spirituous, ardent hard stronghold Citadel *fort fortress acropolis fastness structure 1 *Building ed fice fabric pile 2 Structure anatomy, framework skeleton are often used interchangeably Structure however is by far the richest in impl cations and the widest therefore in its range of application In general it denotes the formation arrangement and articulation of parts in anything built up by nature or art Oftentimes the word impl es reference to everything that enters into the make-up of a particular body organism edifice substance or the like thus a study of the structure of a bra n involves attention to the two kinds of matter (gray and wh te) of which it s composed to the three parts into which it is divided (forebrain midbrain hindbrain) to the subdivis ons of each of these parts to the connections and interrelations between all these divisions and to any pecul arities as in form or arrangement of parts Somet mes however structure implies a reference to certain features only as for example (1) the parts or elements wh ch d stinguish the type or species and not the nd v dual (as crocodiles and all gators exhibit certain differences in structure) (2) the parts or features which are essential or necessary to a thing s existence as distingu shed from those that are removable detachable etc (as in Gothic arch tecture the pointed arch is part of the structure and s not a decorative addition) (3) the parts or features that reveal the underlying des gn as opposed to those that complete the work or bring it into fullness of being (as to study the structure of Browning s R ng and the Book) In current use some persons especially some b ologists prefer anatomy when the typical structure of an organism or of an organ is ind cated as the anatomy of an ape the anatomy of the heart Framework and skeleton are applied to the underlying or support ng structure Framework is used chiefly in reference to an art fic al construction which serves merely as a prop or a gu de n bu lding but which is not vis ble in the completed th ng as, the framework of a sofa the carpenters are now working on the framework for the house Skeleton s frequently used in the bu lding trades for a r g d framework especially one made of steel it is often used in place of structure design outline in reference to literary construc tions, sometimes to imply that the des gn is carefully developed and its parts definitely art culated (as the skeleton of his argument is now fin shed) but more often probably to indicate a sketchy concept on of the whole which serves as a starting point (as he has the skeleton of his plot in mind) In either case it is usually further implied that the writ ng out in l terary form and the elaboration of atmosphere details, characters etc remain to be accompl shed Ana Integration articulation concatenation (see under INTEGRATE) organization arrangement (see correspond ing verbs at ORDER) *system organism scheme complex. struggle, v Strive endeavor essay assay *attempt try Ana *Contend cope, fight compete (with) vie (with) *rival, emulate toil, labor work travail (see corresponding nouns at WORK) struggle, n Striving endeavor essay assay attempt try See under ATTEMPT v Ana Toil labor *work travail *contest conflict fight affray fray contending coping (see CONTEND) strut, v Strut, swagger, ruffle bristle bridle come into comparison when they mean to assume an air of dignity or importance Strut implies a pompous or theatrical affectation of dignity especially as shown in one s gait or by one s bearing in movement A poor player That struts and frets his hour upon the stage (Shak) Dr Goldsmith went strutting away and calling to me with an air of superiority (Boswell) Swagger always implies ostentation a conviction of one s superiority and often an insolent or overbearing gait or manner He scarcely deigned to set a foot to ground But swaggered like a lord about his hall (Dryden) What a swaggering puppy must he take me for (Goldsmith) Ruffle a term that was common before 1700 but obsolete thereafter until the first quarter of the nineteenth century is still occasionally found It carries a strong implication of swaggering but it suggests even more rowdiness more defiance and often more absurdly pretent ous display [He] gets drunk ruffles and roysters (Kingsley) He must ruffle it in another sort that would walk to court in a nobleman s train (Scott) Bristle impl es an aggressive manifestation originally of anger or of zeal but now often of any emot on or des re that causes one to d splay conspicuously one s sense of dignity or importance All the time he stuck close to her bristling with a small boy s pride of her (D H Lawrence) The bourgeoisie bristling with prejud ces and social snobberies (R Macaulay) Bridle usually suggests awareness of a threat to one s d gnity or a susp cion of one s unimportance that leads one to toss up one s head to draw in one s chin and otherwise to assume a lofty manner By her brid ing up I perceived she expected to be treated hereafter not as Jenny Distaff but Mrs Tranquillus (Tatler) Everything that poses prances, bridles struts bedizens and plumes itself (Mrs H Ward) Ana Expose exhibit flaunt parade (see SHOW v) Con. Cringe cower *fawn truckle grovel flounder (see WALLOW) stubborn *Obstinate dogged pertinacious mulish, stiff necked pigheaded bullheaded Ana Rebell ous contumacious *insubord nate intractable recalcitrant refractory (see UNRULY) obdurate adamant inexorable *inflexible self-opinionated *opinionated Con Pl able pl ant adaptable (see PLASTIC) tractable amenable (see OBEDIENT) stubby Chunky dumpy stocky *thick thickset squat student *Scholar pupil disc ple studied *Deliberate considered advised premeditated designed Ana *Thoughtful considerate attentive intentional *voluntary will ng wilful Con *Spontaneous impulsive instinctive study, n Concentration, application *attention.

study, v *Consider contemplate weigh revolve excogitate Ana *Scrutinize examine inspect *ponder muse meditate *think reflect reason speculate.

stultify *Stunt atrophy reference to men s minds or souls or men s mental or spiritual activities However even in their literal senses they have for their basic meaning to arrest the growth and development of someone or something Stunt implies primarily a dwarfing as the result of abnormal or unfavorable conditions and a failure to attain full height or size So they [trees] slowly come to full growth until warped stunted or risen to fair and gracious height, they stand open to all the winds (Galsworthy) When used with reference to mental or spiritual development the word commonly suggests a blighting or blasting or a

ity) has gradually extended in significance so that it and its derivative stultification now rarely except in law imply imbecility or insanity In its chief current sense it implies one s subjection to such influences that one s mind deteriorates and loses its power of growth Wearing our lives away in dull stultifying routine (New

a movement a school of thought a form of art) are capable of indefinite progress or development Sometimes little more than a checking of this progress and a rendering nugatory or useless all that has been or is being done are implied The blind folly of his servants had stultified his efforts (M E Braddon) In very discriminating use however the word also connotes a destruction of usefulness or effectiveness by making a thing ridiculous or despicable. We do stultify criticism if we prostrate ourselves indiscriminately before what is good and what is bad (Quiller Couch) Common sense demands that we shall begin with non violence and not run the risk of stultifying the whole process of reform by using violence (A Huxley) Atrophy literally implies a wasting away or a shriveling up because of lack of nourishment or disuse In medicine atrophy (both as verb and noun) usually also implies degeneration but the latter is often the result of a prior condition that cuts off or greatly diminishes the blood supply to the affected part as the muscles of a paralyzed arm gradually become atrophied In extended use atrophy is used chiefly with reference to instincts natural appetites powers of the mind or soul or elicits the stronger forms of parental affection, in those who avoid this trouble the parental instinct becomes more or less atrophied (B Russell) The scientific person will become atrophied on the mystical side the mystical person will become atrophied on the scientific side (H Ellis) Ana Disable cripple sap undermine enfeeble, debilitate, *weaken *arrest check interrupt stupendous Tremendous prodigious monumental *monstrous to absorb ideas or impressions or exhibiting such a lack Stupid implies a benumbed or dazed state of mind that what fury drove us into saying the stupid intolerant, denunciatory things we said ? (L P Smith) Dull (see also DULL 2) suggests slowness or sluggishness of mind that may be constitutional or the result of lack of mental exercise or of overwork or of a physical condition A person or thing that is stupid reveals a deadness or a deadening of the mental powers a person or thing that is dull manifests a lack of mental quickness or alertness or heavy labored mental processes thus, constitutionally dull pupils progress slowly until they are awakened by good teaching constitutionally stupid pupils are usually subnormal physically or mentally a dull book is so lacking in brightness liveliness, or other of various other qualities that reveal lack of perception sensitiveness or subtlety as the teacher of mathematics thought he had a particularly dense group of students More virtuous than myself or more dense (Lamb) Crass suggests fatness or grossness of substance (fatheadedness lumpishness etc) that makes the mind incapable of delicate mental processes such as analysis, discrimina ... refined compared (see also DUMB 1) is American slang partly affected by the German dumm and partly by the ordinary sense of the English word As it is a term of contempt it may be used in place of any of the preceding terms, especially when obtuseness and inarticulateness are also implied Ana Foolish silly *simple fatuous asinine sluggish comatose stuporous *lethargic inert idle supine *inactive phlegmatic stolid *impassive Ant Intelligent

... *) indicates place of treatment of each group INACTIVE) Insensibility anesthesia (see corresponding adjectives at INSENSIBLE) stuporous *Lethargic torpid comatose sluggish Ana *Dull obtuse, inert supine passive *inactive enervated spiritless listless, lackadaisical, languorous (see LANGUID) sturdy Stout *strong stalwart tough tenacious.

Ana Sound robust *healthy *vigorous energetic lusty dogged pertinacious (see OBSTINATE) Ant Decrepit

stutter *Stammer

Stygian *Infernal chthonian Hadean, Tartarean hellish style, n 1 Diction phraseology phrasing *language vocabulary Ana *Taste zest, gusto relish *form convention usage convenance.

2 *Fashion mode vogue fad rage craze dernier cri cry Ana. Modishness smartness chicness spruceness nattiness, stylishness, fashionableness (see corresponding adjectives at STYLISH) 3 *Name designation title denomination, appellation stylish Stylish, fashionable, modish, smart, chic dapper, dashing, spruce natty, nifty, nobby, posh toffish, brave, braw are here compared as meaning presenting a fine fresh and more or less splendid or elegant appearance Most of these terms as here considered apply chiefly to persons and stress the effect produced by clothes or by clothes and grooming Stylish fashionable and modish are applicable not only to persons, but to clothes as apart from persons and to several other things These three terms usually imply a conformity to e currently accepted style or fashion Stylish applies any person regardless of class or social station for is reason the term sometimes suggests pretentiousness r showiness as well as up-to-dateness (as the French ian remarked the stylish clothes of American girls lthough without much money to spend on clothes she evertheless looks stylish Her air though it had not ll the decided pretension the resolute stylishness of Miss Thorpe's had more real elegance (Austen) But stylish is of the shop and belongs to the dialect of milliners apprentices and waiting maids alone in England (Lady F P Verney) On the other hand fashionable usually connotes some connection with those who move in society or belong to a world apart from and above that of the ordinary man and whose approval of that which is new not only in clothes in furniture in decorations and the like but also in ideas, in books, in writers in artists, etc determines the choice of those who would follow them hence to say that a costume a hat or a type of interior decoration is fashionable is not only to say that it is the latest style but that it meets with the approval of those who are regarded as dictators of fashion as In those days it was fashionable to stroll along the waterfront on Saturday afternoons Taste is now the fashionable word of the fashionable world (Chesterfield) The fashionable disparagement of reason and exaltation of will feeling or instinct (Inge) My sister recommended me to read the fashionable prophets of the day Carlyle and Emerson and Ruskin (L P Smith) Modish differs from stylish chiefly in its greater stress on up-to-dateness or conformity with the very latest style rather than on the effect produced it sometimes suggests a step ahead of what is describable as stylish or fashionable and a daring or startling quality as, this shop offers only modish dresses and suits Mr Pen Sir William's son is come back from France A most modish person grown a fine gentleman" (Pepys) Thomas Moore's high flown and modish 'Evenings in Greece (T Walsh), Wit of that genuine kind which is free from modishness (Birrell) Smart often implies extreme modishness in dress and appearance but even more often it retains implications of trimness and neatness derived from an earlier and now comparatively rare sense of the word and connotes a finish or perfection suggestive not only of modishness but of perfect grooming and an awareness of the importance of cut line color accent or the like as she always wears smart clothes she makes a smart appearance whatever the time of day or night. Chic a term taken from the French but currently carrying implications that are found only in English is sometimes loosely used as meaning modish or smart In discriminating use however it does not imply conformity to the latest fashion, but an effectiveness in style not only of dress or millinery but of any product of art or craftsmanship which suggests the exercise of a knack or skill and the achievement of distinction thus a chic hat has not only a style of its own but distinction and charm a chic appearance is produced not by slavish attention to the latest fashion nor by an ignoring of it but by original touches or clever adaptations that distinguish one from those who are merely stylish or fashionable Dapper typically applies to men now usually only to men of small or slight build it always implies stylishness, but it also commonly connotes trimness, briskness and fastidious grooming as Guido's dapper Archangel (N Hawthorne), Cibber the smart dapper little Frenchified coxcomb (L Stephen) Dashing applies to men and to women or to things which they wear or use it implies not only stylishness or more often modishness but a bright shining appearance that enables one to cut a figure in any group or assemblage as, 'She had two dashing daughters, who dressed as fine as dragons (Irving) a pair of dashing young brokers a dashing carriage and pair Spruce applies most often to men it suggests an almost affected attention to the details of one's appearance in order that one will look not only stylish but smart and fresh in appearance it sometimes connotes a finical almost vulgar concern for the perfection of every detail as Fastidious Brisk a neat spruce affecting courtier one that wears clothes well and is in fashion (B Jonson) The spruce apprentice sets up for a critic (Goldsmith) Making themselves as spruce as bridegrooms according to the rules of their newly acquired town experience (Hardy) Natty differs from spruce in stressing neatness and orderliness slightly more than stylishness as As natty a beau As Bond Street ever saw" (Shelley) Nifty, which is chiefly American slang implies approval of that which is stylish or smart as, that is a nifty suit a nifty hat Nobby (or originally British slang) posh and toffish (more recent British slang) come close to fashionable in their application to the clothes manners, possessions and the like characteristic of the upper classes or of the world of fashion. Nobby suggests reference to the nobs, or persons of great wealth or distinction (as, it's a nobby place "An outfit described as rather nobby —Quiller-Couch), posh implies a character or appearance that is eminently high-class or wins the favor of the exceedingly rich or aristocratic (as I'd like to have a very cozy car small but frightfully posh —J B Priestley 'Unfortunately Prufrock became posh —Day Lewis) toffish suggests reference to that which is characteristic of toffs swells, or of dandies (as you certainly look toffish in that new suit) Brave or its Scottish equivalent braw suggests showiness or splendor as of dress as to make a brave appearance in his first evening clothes styptic *Astringent constringent suave Suave urbane, diplomatic, bland, smooth, politic are here compared as applied to persons the r differences in meaning are apparent Suave suggests qualities that are (or have the appearance of being) cultivation poise and wide social experience It also commonly suggests an ingrained or inbred courtesy which makes for pleasant and agreeable intercourse among all kinds of men regardless of their social or intellectual standing No one lost anything by granting precedence to a man so flawlessly urbane (A Repplier)

That peculiarly Roman urbanity—the spirit at once of the grown man as distinguished from children of the man of the world and of the gentleman (J W Mackail) Since urbanity and an ability to deal with difficult or ticklish situations with great tact are theoretically the qualities of the typical diplomat the adjective diplomatic, when used in reference to nondiplomats carries bland (Goldsmi) Mr Pickwick was producing a constant succession of the blandest and most benevolent smiles (Dickens) He s simply a distinguished looking old cleric with a sweet smile and a white tie he s just honorable and bland and as cold as ice (Santayana) Smooth differs from bland chiefly in being more positive in its implications and in being more consistently de applied to persons implies both shrewdness and tact the Deferential, glad to be of use Politic cautious and meticulous (T S Eliot)

Ana *Gracious cordial affable genial sociable *disarming ingratiating courteous courtly polite (see CIVIL) *fulsome, unctuous sleek subdue. Subjugate reduce overcome surmount overthrow rout *conquer vanquish defeat beat lick trol manage direct (see CONDUCT v) disci *unish correct foil thwart circumvent *suppress repress iken (sense 2) waken

Ant Bluff

*Tame submissive

k *humble modest lowly *timid timorous

Ana *Subservient servile slavish conditio contingent *dependent relative Ant Sovereign dominant

2 *Liable open exposed prone susceptible sensitive incident

Ana *Apt likely liable

Ant Exempt

subject, n 1 *Citizen national

Ant Sovereign

2 Subject, matter, subject matter, argument, topic well as the least definite in denotation of these words It may be used in reference to any type of discourse or to a work of art of any kind for it implies merely some restriction in one s field of choice and a governing principle determining the selection of one s material and demanding some concentration in the treatment of it as she is the chief subject of conversation at present what is the subject of his painting? a writer should stick to his he treated restricted field or range of material from which selects the specific subject he intends to treat thus the medieval writers of romance or heroic poetry had three matters from which to draw situations characters and incidents for their narratives the matter of France (the legends of Charlemagne and his companions) the matter of Britain (the Arthurian legends) and the matter of

deal with the kind of subject matter in which I now find myself most at home (Cather) An argument is the subject especially the carefully delimited subject, for a particular discourse such as a poem or a part of a poem, that is planned in advance of execution O Spirit Instruct me for Thou know st That to the highth of this great argument [the idea to be developed in Paradise Lost] I may assert Eternal Providence And justify the ways of God to men (Milton) The word sometimes, but far from always implies explicit statement of the leading idea or a summarizing of its development thus Pope prefaced each epistle of his Essay on Man with an argument of it A topic is a subject (usually one of general interest) chosen because of its possibilities for individual or original treatment or for discussion by different persons holding diverse views as the students were asked to write an essay on one of the assigned topics he had exhausted every topic of conversation" (Mrs Radcliffe) A text, strictly is a verse or passage usually from Scripture chosen as providing or suggesting a subject for a sermon or similar discourse "The excellency of this text is that it will suit any sermon and of th s sermon that it will suit any text (Sterne) In extended use it is often applied to anything (not necessarily a phrase) that suggests itself as a good starting point for a discourse the subject of which is [illegible] defined or which lacks a definite subject Aunt Took this fair day for text and from [illegible] (Tennyson) A theme is a subject which on [illegible] treatment (especially literary or artistic tre[illegible] cause of its appeal to oneself or its possible appeal to others. Theme is applicable to any idea proposition text (or in music melodic phrase) mood or the like which a writer composer or artist proposes to develop (as in a poem) to elaborate upon (as in a movement of a symphony) or to illustrate (as in a mural or series of murals) or which can be detected in a completed work as the dominant object of his concern Fools are my theme let satire be my song (Byron) Waterfalls are from very early times a favourite theme for the painter (Binyon) I somehow played the piece [Schumann s Carnival] remarked on each old theme I the new dress (Browning) Theme does not necessarily suggest any clearer definition than subject or topic (thus a poet chooses love for his subject or theme an essayist has a wide range of themes or of topics from which to make a choice) but in distinction from them it invites comparison with the treatment and calls attention to the quality the form the design or the execution of the completed work thus an overworked theme implies a lack of freshness in the thought design or the like a compelling theme suggests force and enthusiasm in its treatment To produce a mighty book you must choose a mighty theme (Melville) Motive is restricted in its reference to works of art in which design or pattern is the important element In music it is interchangeable in this sense with theme the leading phrase which is repeated with variations during the course of a composition or movement in the decorative arts it is the figure which stands out as the salient and dominant feature of the design and is repeated at appropriate intervals as the chief motif of the design is the peacock one much favored by decorative artists Leitmotiv was originally employed in reference to the music dramas of the German composer Wagner In music it designates a specific melodic phrase that is associated with a particular person mood or situation and that is repeated each time this person mood or situation reappears The word has considerable extended use, and is often applied to an insistent or recurrent idea that appeals to a reader as the dominant theme of an author or of a work "'Fate went its way uncompromisingly to the terrible end' This is the leitmotiv of this interesting dignified apologia of one of Austria s Elder Statesmen (Sat Review of Lit)

subject matter. *Subject matter, argument, topic, text, theme motive leitmotiv subjoin. *Add append annex superadd

Ana. Attach affix, *fasten *unite conjoin combine

Con. *Detach disengage *separate part sever subjugate. Subdue reduce overcome surmount overthrow rout *conquer vanquish defeat beat lick.

Ana. Circumvent outwit, foil thwart, *frustrate compel coerce *force sublimation. *Paragon apotheosis phoenix nonpareil nonesuch

Ana. Ideal beau ideal, paradigm exemplar, pattern *model sublime. Glorious, *splendid, superb, resplendent gorgeous

Ana. Transcendent transcendental ideal *abstract divine spiritual sacred *holy majestic august noble stately (see GRAND) sublunary. *Earthly, terre[illegible] rene earthy, mundane worl[illegible]

[illegible] unk

[illegible]

[illegible] ng succumbing bowing caving [illegible] YIELD) compliance, acquiescence resignation (see under COMPLIANT)

Ant Resistance

submissive *Tame subdued

Ana Docile tractable amenable biddable *obedient meek, lowly *humble *subservient servile slavish menial

Ant Rebellious

submit. *Yield capitulate succumb relent defer bow cave in

Ana. Surrender abandon resign *relinquish abide endure suffer *bear

Ant Resist withstand subordinate, adj Subordinate, secondary, dependent, subject tributary, succursal, collateral come into comparison as meaning placed in or belonging to a class rank or status lower than the highest or the first in importance or power Subordinate applies to any person or thing that is beneath another in any way such as by being under his (or its) authority (as all officers of an independent army below the rank of general are subordinate officers the house servants are subordinate to the butler) or by having a less important or less conspicuous place position or status in the scheme of a whole than some other member part element or the like (as the relation of dominating to subordinate features [of a landscape] —Binyon ceremony is subordinate in the scheme of life as colour is in a painting —H Ellis) or by loss of independence and reduction to a lower or inferior position (as, at that time considered as a subordinate and inferior class of beings subjugated by the dominant race —Ch Just Taney Such a step would tend to make poetry merely a subordinate branch of music —Day Lewis) Secondary differs from subordinate mainly in suggesting a much narrower range of difference for it implies a position an importance or the like that is just below that which may be described as primary main chief leading or the like, it is therefore never in precise and discriminating use, applied to a thing which is distant from the highest by two or more steps or degrees as, "What they actually believe is of something but it also connotes the position or the status

In its commonest use dependent implies a loss through subjugation or through weakness of one's independence it therefore frequently stresses powerlessness or debasement more than subordination as England long dependent and degraded was again a power of the first rank (Macaulay) countries that let themselves become dependent on the labor of other countries and settle down into a comfortable and ladylike parasitism (Shaw) Subject definitely implies subordination to a dominant power but never carries as subordinate sometimes carries an implication of relative importance within a scheme of the whole it often tends to suggest the loss of powers which imply a degree of freedom responsibility self discipline and the like as a subject race aristocracy is out of date and subject populations will no longer obey even the most wise and virtuous rulers (B Russell) Tributary strictly applies to peoples races nations etc that have been conquered and made subject to another people race or nation and that are forced to pay tribute to their conquerors in somewhat looser but correct use it is often interchangeable with accretions and the like which increase the size or importance of the latter as the tributary streams of the Mississippi River the lane receiving two tributary lanes from who should say what remote hamlets widened out with this accession (C Mackenzie) Succursal was originally applied to churches chapels and monastic t accede endorse

tributary

subject.

2 Subservient servile, slavish menial obsequious are synonyms only in so far as they agree in meaning manifesting as a person or his acts or requiring as a position or status extreme compliance or abject obedience Subservient, as here compared (see also AUXILIARY) applies directly or indirectly to those who occupy a subordinate or dependent condition or who manifest the state of mind of one in such a position the term may imply nothing more or it may connote cringing or truckling as, Editors and journalists who express opinions in print that are opposed to the interests of the rich are dismissed and replaced by subservient ones (Shaw) The writers cringing submission as to occupy a servile position implies the status work or attitude of a slave carries much stronger implications of utter abjectness or de-

Both servile and slavish are used of unduly close depend applies to persons who are inferiors or to the words actions manners or the like by which they reveal their *compliant acquiescent resigned *mean ignoble abject Ant Domineering overbearing subside *Abate wane ebb Ana Dwindle diminish *decrease subsidiary *Auxiliary contributory subservient ancillary adjuvant accessory subsidy Grant subvention *appropriation subsist Exist live *be subsistence *Living livelihood sustenance maintenance support keep bread bread and butter substantial *Massive massy bulky monumental.

Ant Airy ethereal. substantialize Substantiate hypostatize reify *realize actualize embody incarnate materialize externalize, objectify substantiate 1 Substantialize hypostatize reify *realize actualize embody incarnate materialize externalize objectify 2 Verify corroborate *confirm authenticate validate Ana *Prove demonstrate try test substitute, n 1 Surrogate *resource resort expedient shift makeshift stopgap Ana. *Device contrivance contraption duplicate copy *reproduction 2 Substitute, supply locum tenens, alternate understudy, double stand in, pinch hitter designate a person who performs or is prepared to perform the duties of another during the latter's absence or incapacitation photograph ... the appropriate ...

particularly needed) is one who substitutes for another in a "pinch" or emergency it usually connotes competence or ability to rise to the demands of the situation substratal substrative Underlying basic basal *fundamental radical. subsume. *Include comprehend embrace involve imply implicate subterfuge Double-dealing fraud *deception trick ery ch cane
Ana. Ruse expedient s equivocat or Ana analog

subtile *Subtle

by the Latin form Both still basically mean so fine or tenuous in quality or consistency as to be hard to perceive detect or recognize The choice of spelling is often merely a matter of personal preference but in current use subtle is by far the commoner form When as now usually based on very subtle factors (Frankfurter) It is commonly the preferred term when applied to the mind or a mental power or mental effort then implying refinement of thought insight perception or the like discriminating use often carries a connotation of artfulness or of a beguiling quality as Subtle Litigation's pliant tongue (Burns) Hogarth in one of his pieces of coarse yet subtile engraving has presented a group of occupants of the pit of a theatre sketched during the performance of some broad comedy or farce (E. Dowden) spontaneous variety which people who love English know to be one of its most subtle charms (B Wendell) Subtile is perhaps more often the preferred term when the implied opposition is to gross then usually it is applied to something physical as a subtle odor he shows us that a matter so infinitely subtile and performing motions as inconceivably quick and fine as those which modern science postulates in her explanations has no trace of grossness left (W James)

Ana Displace supplant *replace supersede.
Ant Precede.
succession Succession progression series sequence, set, suit suite, chain train, string are here compared as meaning a number of things that come together often to form a larger whole in some order or in accordance with some plan Succession always implies that the units (often things, sometimes persons) follow each other ists (Inge) The pecul ar method of composition

(M Austin) Reality is a succession of concrete and rather than a succession of events Its ch ef use is in mathematics and in music in the former it denotes a succession of quantities between every two of which there is a particular but an unvarying relation (as an arithmetical progression a geometrical progression) in the latter it denotes a succession of notes or of chords which constitute a melody or a harmony Series applies to a number of things of similar or uniform character that stand in the same relation to each other or achieve the same end often the term is ind stinguishable from succession but the separateness of the units is rather more stressed than the fact that they follow each other (Cather) Sequence is more restricted in meaning than series for it implies either a closer connection between the things involved such as a causal or logical connec t on a numerical or chronolog cal order or a settled recurrence in the same order as the sequence of the e ther complement each other or are parts of a complete whole as a set of chairs a set of ch na a set of teeth Set may also apply to a number of persons who form a closely together in space (as a suite of rooms [i e a group which provide necessary living quarters] a suite of biological three words of the group here compared are all used figuratively Chain applies to a succession or series wh ch forms a logical or causal sequence as a chain of argu ments a chain of effects It would be possible to trace a conclusion to which we have come depends on a chain of principles which it was necessary to preserve un broken (Ch Just Marshall) Train applies to a number of persons animals or concrete things or of effects ideas etc that follow as attendants or as consequences (or sometimes as in the case of causes that precede)

(Deland) String applies to a series or succession so uni form in character size qual ty or the like that its units are or seem to be strung on a thread usually there is little impl cation of chronological logical or causal connection as a string of fish a string of sausages a string of victories a string of boys filing through the trail Oftentimes in sports the term is used of a group of

der INTEGRATE)

nsecutive sequent sequential serial *continual constant incessant ro-see ROTATE)

*concise laconic summary pithy compressed condensed contracted compact *close curt brusque blunt (see BLUFF)

Ant Discursive

succumb *Yield submit capitulate relent defer bow cave in dent sub-

rupt, im

Quickened hurried speeded accelerated (see D v) *fast rapi l swift fleet expeditious

*Foam froth spume lather scum yeast

Pray plead petition See under PRAYER

Entreat beseech *beg importune implore sup-te solicit request, *ask *demand cla m, exact,

re

*Adipose marrow tallow lard e stand brook

submit bow

of each group

sufferance *Permission, leave.
Ana. Toleration, endurance (see corresponding verbs at BEAR): acquiescence, resignation, compliance (see under COMPLIANT) suffering *Distress, misery, agony, dolor, passion.

Ana. Affliction, tribulation, *trial, visitation, adversity, *misfortune: *sorrow, grief, anguish, woe, heartache.

sufficient Sufficient, enough, adequate, competent come into comparison when they mean exactly commensurate to a requirement or the requirements. That is sufficient or enough which perfectly satisfies a need or desire with nothing wanting or nothing in excess: as, sufficient money for a week's vacation; enough food for an army; sufficient leisure for travel; they never have enough work to keep them busy. That is adequate which measures up to a just, fair, or sometimes, inexacting competent which answers all the requirements or is adequately adapted to the end in view: as, competent evidence is evidence that meets the legal requirements for proof; a traveler should have at least a competent knowledge of French.

Ana. Ample, *plentiful, plenteous, abundant: satisfying, contenting (see SATISFY): fitting, suitable, meet, proper (see FIT).
Ant. Insufficient: deficient.

suffrage n. Suffrage, franchise, vote, ballot come into comparison when they mean the right, privilege, or power of expressing one's choice or wish, as in an election or in the determination of policy. They are here considered only in their current uses and with reference exclusively to public or state affairs. Suffrage is the preferred term when the emphasis is upon the extent to which this privilege or power is enjoyed in a state or community or upon the kinds of citizens in a representative government who legally exercise this power; the word is frequently modified by a term indicating such extent or restriction: as, universal suffrage; the long fight that brought about woman suffrage in England, the United States, and other countries; household suffrage, or the restriction of the right to vote to male householders, existed in Great Britain from 1867 to 1918. Franchise is preferred when the privilege or power

a
n
a
a s
i

exercise it is to show oneself unworthy of one's citizen ... a class that has not the vote lacks the power to ...

successful appeal from the ballot to the bullet, and they who take such appeal are sure to lose their case and pay the cost" (Lincoln) suffuse *Infuse, imbue, ingrain, inoculate, leaven.

Ana. *Introduce, interpose, interject: impregnate, penetrate, pervade (see PERMEATE) suggest 1 Suggest, imply, hint, intimate, insinuate agree in meaning to convey an idea or the thought of something by indirect means. Suggest emphasizes a putting into the mind as the result of an association of ideas, an awakening of a desire, an initiating of a train of thought, or the like: as, in some curious way ... his

Imply (see also INCLUDE; INFER 2) is in general opposed to express: the term stresses a suggesting or putting into the mind of an idea, a thought, or a meaning that is involved in a statement, a situation, a word, or the like, and forms a part, but not necessarily an obvious part, of its full signification or significance: as, "the philosophy of Nature which is implied in Chinese art" (Binyon); "In the Greek view to be a citizen of a state did not merely imply the payment of taxes, and the possession of a vote; it implied a direct and active co-operation in all the functions of civil and military life" (G. L. Dickinson)

(A. Huxley); "The sayings of a community, its proverbs, are its characteristic comment upon life; they imply its history, suggest its attitude toward the world and its way of accepting life" (Cather). Hint implies the use of a remote or covert suggestion, often also connoting lack of candor, frankness, or straightforwardness: as, that he thought, thus intimating to his hearers that they might infer that he meant more (Justice Holmes). Insinuate, as here compared (see INTRODUCE, 2), is to hint artfully or to convey an unpleasant suggestion in an underhanded manner: as, by his tone and expression, rather *advance, further: allude, *refer, advert: connote, *denote.

Ant. Express.

2 Suggest, adumbrate, shadow are synonymous when they are predicated of things that serve indirectly to about the man suggested that he was not poor for his degree (Hardy) It may be a symbol which calls to mind that which it conventionally represents as the veals more than it actually denotes Phrases flat and prec se on the surface yet suggesting mystery below (Day Lewis) The business of words in prose is primarily to state in poetry, not only to state but also (and sometimes primarily) to suggest (Lowes) One thing adumbrates another when the former very faintly or darkly suggests the latter Adumbrate in precise use

Chinese painters this world of nature seemed a more effective way of shadowing forth the manifold moods of man than by representing human figures animated by these moods (Binyon)

Suggest and adumbrate also come into comparison when they mean something less than to propose or propound colleagues will shamble behind him in whatever proposals he adumbrates to his huge majority (Contemp Review) s on series cha n, tra n string

? *Prayer pl a pet demand ng justice or enforcing a right Though often used interchangeably in the sense of lawsuit their differences in etymology and in earl er meanings to a certain versus Jones ended in victory for the defendant. Action comes very close to suit but it is relatively colorless and throws the emphasis on actual proceedings rather than on petition as to bring an action in Circuit Court. In strict legal use however it is a proceeding in a court of law which is distinguished from a suit in equity and which has for its end the ascertainment of facts. If the complainant s d agnosis is found correct, then the legal remedy may be applied Cause, more a literary than a legal term emphasizes the grounds on which one institutes a suit consequently, like suit it impl es the plaintiff s point of view but it suggests even more strongly his sense of the justice of his demand "The customary arts of the pleader the appeal to the sympathies of the public he rejected as unworthy of himself and of his cause (G L Dickinson) Case some-

the defendant s attorney stated his case However case cond gn

Ant Unsuitable unbecoming sulky Surly, morose glum *sullen crabbed saturnine dour gloomy Ana Cranky cross testy touchy techy (see IRASCI gruffness of speech and manner to sullenness or morose-

Pithy, compendious, *concise, terse, *quick, prompt, ready, apt· com-concentrated (see COMPACT, v). ulative, accumulative additive or mountain, but only the latter suggests a range and "Though the Filipino seldom smiled, he was by no means dour. Kindliness was one of his most charming unhappy

Ana. Lowering glowering frowning, scowling (see FROWN) spiteful, despiteful, malevolent, *malicious, malign *cynical pessimistic.

sum, n Sum, amount, aggregate, total, whole, number, quantity come into comparison when they denote a result obtained by putting or taking together all in a given group or mass Sum denotes the result of simple addition usually of figures, sometimes of particulars, as the sum of two and two amount denotes the result reached by combining all the sums, or weights or measures that dividual forces and efforts' (J A Hobson) Total and suggests an end, or close, as, reserve your strongest argument for the climax of your speech Apex is the name given to the tip or top of a thing where all ascending

One forms the apex of those systems of philosophical and apogee derive their figurative senses from their enumerate number

Ana. analogous

XIV, when the nobles were definitively conquered by the crown and the Reformation by the church" (Brownell) ascent but ensuing decline "I have touch'd the highest prime or height of glory, as the French Revolution reached its apogee in the Reign of Terror summon or summons, v Summon (or summons), call, cite, convoke, convene, muster come into compari son when they mean to demand the presence of a person or persons or, by extension of things. Summon (or its councilors to the palace to summon one s secretary to summon a person to appear in court I summon your grace to his majesty s parliament" (Shak) ' She could in earliest use implied a summons to court either as a principal or as a witness, this sense still prevails (as he was cited for contempt of court) but in England cite usually suggests a summoning to an ecclesiastical court courage, strength etc , as "mustering courage to come to her side (G Eliot), "At length you have mustered heart to visit the old place ' (Dickens)

Ana *Command, order, bid enjoin evoke, elicit *educe sumptuous. *Luxurious opulent.

...agnificent, stately, majestic, *grand· *splendid ...ent. gorgeous superb *showy, ostentatious ...ous lavish prodigal (see PROFUSE) day of rest and worship in the fourth (or, in Roman Catholic versions the third) Commandment The change of this day to Sunday after Christianity was established divorce hobo, truant rs, numerous

ergent *dis- peculiar (see CHARACTERISTIC) superabound *Teem, abound, swarm overflow superadd Annex append subjoin, *add

Ana *Fasten attach affix ment or encumbrance as supererogatory apologies supererogatory attentions Gratuitous (etymologically pleasing) in the somewhat earlier of its leading senses implies a giving voluntarily without expectation of recompense reward or compensation as many a physician gives his services gratuitously to the poor the gratuitous education provided by the public schools of the United often logical absurdity, as the gratuitous assumption that the new must surpass the old (Grandgent) uncalled for interference uncalled for advice Wanton (as here considered see also PLAYFUL LICENTIOUS) also implies stronger' (Bryce) Ana *Free independent autonomous *excessive extreme exorbitant *superfluous supernumerary extra spare superficial Superficial shallow, cursory, uncritical are not all close synonyms but they come into comparison when specific meanings in some of these applications the term usually implies a taking in of or a concern with surface tendency

appreciative and further implies some quality such as pretense ostentation slightness, lack of thoroughness insignificance insincerity and the like as superficial people the lecture was very superficial Our political theory is hopelessly sophomoric and superficial (Mencken) these judgments how superficial how fragmentary they are! (V Woolf) Shallow both in its literal and extended senses implies a lack of depth (as, a shallow stream shallow breathing) when applied to persons their knowledge their reasoning or their emotions it is almost invariably derogatory and differs little from superficial used derogatorily except in its freedom ideas become more automatic we begin to suspect that they spring from a shallower source (T S Eliot) Cursory, which literally means hasty or hurried in the extended sense here considered stresses a lack of thoroughness or of care for details rather than a concentration on the obvious it often also suggests haste casualness skipping or the like as even from a cursory reading of the book I judge that it is a very fine piece of work but of any data statements matters events and the like which must be evaluated related estimated or jectives at PROFUSE) superfluous Superfluous, surplus, supernumerary, extra spare come into comparison when they mean above or beyond what is needed or is indispensable tempted as are those who work direct from nature to transcribe superfluous detail because it happens to be before their eyes (Binyon) Sometimes however the and inconsistent scenes —T S Eliot Authority like a which exceeds the regular or expected number though in reference to a physical condition it often implies a departure from the normal as a supernumerary tooth a supernumerary member of a cast (i e one used for mob scenes etc and called a supernumerary often shortened in slang use to super or supe) supernumerary ribs supernumerary officers are usually needed by regiments engaged in active warfare Extra is often used colloquially in place of supernumerary (as she always kept an extra servant to buy a few extra Christmas presents in case someone has been forgotten) but it may imply not merely an a l lition in number but in amount (as to ask extra work of each employee during the vacation period) or in quality (as extra beef extra wheat) or in price (as there is an extra charge for coffee) Spare is often used you a spare cigarette on you?)

Ana *Supererogatory gratu tous uncalled for wanton *profuse lavish prod gal exuberant *excessive inordinate extravagant extreme superhuman Preternatural miraculous supranatural *supernatural

Ana Potent puissant *powerful forcible forceful herculean Antaean Cyclopean t tanic gigantic (see ENORMOUS) superimpose *Overlay superpose appl qué superlative, adj *Supreme transcendent surpassing peerless incomparable pre-eminent banner

Ana *Consummate fin shed accompl shed *splendid glorious subl me superb supernatural Supernatural supranatural, preternatural miraculous superhuman are not strictly speaking synonymous terms but many persons are confused as to the l mits of their meanings Supernatural (literally

... of or g ... of ... fluence or a participation in some of the attributes of divinity as supernatural beings the supernatural character of the soul supernatural forces to attribute one s recovery from a usually mortal illness to a supernatural power Supranat...

... ence as supranatural phenomena such as telepathy and thought transference parapsychology deals with the supranatural Preternatural (etymologically beyond the range or compass of nat ...

Miraculous (etymolog cally marvelous or exceedingly wondrous) appl es part cularly to events or effects in the physical world that are out of the ordinary course of ...

of Jesus the miraculous transformation of water into wine at the wedding in Cana (John ii 1–11), the miraculous cures attributed to a sa nt The miraculous interpositions by which it [Christ anity] was attested and carried on (Bp Butler) Superhuman (literally above or beyon l human existence or power) is somet mes loosely used in the sense of supernatural However even in this use it does not carry as clear an implication of divinity as supernatural does and may therefore imply angelic demonic or similar existence or power as superstitious belief in superhuman agency (J B Mozley) But superhuman is commonly used in a hyper...

its powers do not seem so superhuman (B Russell)

Ana Divine spiritual sacred *holy blessed *infinite eternal boundless illim table supernumerary Surplus extra spare *superfluous superpose Superimpose *overlay appliqué supersede *Replace d splace supplant

... *aban... FER)

... nbine *unite conjoin co-operate supervenient *Adventitious adventive advenient supervision Oversight surveillance

Ana Controlling or control management direct on con l cting or conduct (see correspond ng verbs at CON...

... leading gu ding (see GUIDE)

... 1 *Prone prostrate recumbent recl ning ... it dormant ... ctive inert passive idle ... slothful *lazy indolent fainéant *lethargic ... torpid stuporous apathetic *impassive ... atic

Ant Alert

supplant Displace *replace supersede

Ana *Eject oust d smiss expel uproot erad cate movements of their arms and shoulders the sure rhythm of their tiny moccasined feet" (Cather) Limber also implies great flexibility of muscles and joints, and the power to move quickly or easily but it carries no clear suggestion of grace or of muscular co-ordination, as limber country boys jumping from rock to rock, showing applied chiefly to persons or animals that are slender, supple nimble and usually graceful in movements, as a lithe dancer, 'They climbed the wall—your lady must be lithe' (Browning) 'We could not use the term

Ana Graceful elegant (see corresponding nouns at ELEGANCE) *easy, smooth effortless facile supplement, n 1 *Complement 2 *Appendix, addendum, addenda.

supplement, v Complement See under COMPLEMENT, n Ana. *Improve, better heighten enhance, aggravate *intensify.

supplicate. Implore beseech entreat importune. *beg adjure, conjure.
Ana Pray, sue, plead appeal petition (see under PRAYER) *ask, request, solicit.

supply, n *Substitute locum tenens alternate understudy, pinch hitter, double, stand in.

supply, adj *Temporary provisional ad interim acting support, v Support, uphold, advocate, back, champion, and their corresponding agent nouns supporter, upholder, advocate, backer, champion, are comparable Socialism is and why it is advocated so widely (Shaw) "The advocates of the old classical education have been impl es strong support from the rear to be used whenever assistance is needed to prevent the failure of a person or of his ventures or efforts Sometimes it connotes reserve forces or the use of force sometimes it impl reserves or the promise of financial assistanc father said he would back him in business 'St and small, with...their very practical traders pushing for foreign markets, and their navies and armies to back the traders and annex these markets (Shaw) Often however, back derives its implications from its use in betting (esp in 'to back a horse') and suggests a willingness to put money on a person's or thing's chance for success 'I back you to hold your own against them all' (E. Wharton) Champion always in discriminating use implies public defense of a person or thing believed to be unjustly attacked or too weak to advocate its own

(Browning)
Ana *Approve endorse sanction espouse, embrace fend protect, shield Maintenance, sustenance, *living liveli tence keep, bread Upholder, advocate backer, champion See sary antagonist supposed Supposed, supposititious, suppositious, reputed, putative, conjectural, hypothetical come into comparison as meaning believed or assumed to be true, real or in accordance with the facts Both supposed and supposititious imply that the person or thing so described is assumed to be actual real or genuine in the relation indicated Supposed however, usually implies more demanded finds no support whatsoever in the British constitution (Winston S Churchill) Reputed and putative both imply a basis in tradition or in popular belief The former is now the usual word the latter being reserved for a few legal expressions as a reputed millionaire the putative father of a child, the reputed owner of an estate, a putative marriage (i e a marriage which was performed in good faith but is not valid because of inference from incomplete or defective evidence That which is so described is offered as a possibility or likeli tion etc) that is invented or put forward as possibly

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms

of nebulae the cross-examining lawyer posed a hypothetical question to the expert witness in order to get his opinion concerning the inference to be drawn from facts not yet fully established 'I tried to expound such sentiments to my French visitor—who was a real flesh and blood visitor and not like most of his kind a hypothetical foreigner invented to point a moral (Grandgent) When Nature produces a thunderstorm she is

Ana Assumed presumed presupposed postulated (see PRESUPPOSE) tentative *provisional *doubtful dubious questionable *theoretical speculative academic Ant Certain

suppress Suppress repress are general terms which mean to hold back by the use of more or less force someone or something that seeks expression activity or other outlet Suppress carries a strong implication of each case it often suggests the prompt use of effective

"The tendencies which Lycurgus had endeavoured to repress by external regulation reasserted themselves in his despite (C L Dickinson) When an affection as intense as that is balked in its direct path and repressed it usually as we know finds an indirect outlet (Van W Brooks) In psychology suppress is commonly used with reference to desires instincts emotions and the like which are consciously and forcibly inhibited by the mind from seeking expression or overt activity repress usually suggests an unconscious or subconscious process by which a desire or an impulse that is regarded as unacceptable because of one's religious moral or social training is inhibited by a refusal to recognize it or to permit consideration of it and so is left to operate in the unconscious Ana *Arrest check interrupt extinguish *abolish annihilate *forbid prohibit ban subdue overcome surmount *conquer supranatural *Supernatural miraculous preternatu of being first as in rank power influence Supremacy implies superiority over all others as in numbers in all other dramatists who is universally regarded as the best and the greatest In the Sahara the automobile has begun to challenge the supremacy of the camel (A Huxley) Perhaps each great race has just strength enough for one period of literary supremacy (T S Eliot) Ascendancy may or may not imply supremacy but it always involves the idea of domination or of autocratic power thus a country may lose its ascendancy over its colonies after it has been deprived of its military and naval supremacy an idea has ascendancy over one's imagination when it has the latter completely under its sway The whole system of oppression and cruelty by which dominant castes seek to retain their ascendancy (B Russell) The ascendancy which Spain then had in Europe had been gained by unquestioned superiority in all the arts of policy and of war (Macaulay) Ana Pre-eminence transcendence superlativeness peerlessness incomparability (see corresponding adjectives at SUPREME) *power authority dominion control sway employed with precision but all of them are frequently used rhetorically or bombastically with resulting loss in definiteness It is the precise signification of each that is emphasized in this discrimination Supreme is applica the supreme dramatic poet the supreme power in a nation Superlative is applicable to anything which by comparison with all other things of the same kind or with may admit equals, but it excludes superiors as the superlative wit of Alexander Pope the superlative genius of Goethe his superlative rudeness What makes him a great artist is a high fervour of spirit which produces a nence It implies both superlativeness and uniqueness within the limits indicated but it seldom in precise use carries a suggestion of supremacy or transcendency as the pre-eminent general in that war the pre-eminent film of the year the pre-eminent example of magnanimity Peerless and incomparable both imply the absence of

'Ph lip Sidney called the peerless one of his age

German Empire is Americanism impl es such pre-em nence or incompara b'l ty tl at the thing so qualified is worthy of being distinguished by some outward mark such as a banner it is more often a term of strong and enthusiastic approbation, rather than of d screct appraisal as the banner state a banner occas on the banner regiment a banner year for the company or corporation

Ana *Chief foremost lead ng capital predominant *dominant paramount sovereign surcharge Gorge surfeit *satiate sate cloy pall glut Ana Oppress *depress weigh (down) sure 1 Assured *confident sanguine

Ana Relying trusting depending counting banking (see RELY) inerrant unerring *infallible *safe secure frequently emphasizes the mere subjective state of assurance certain often suggests more strongly a conviction of his innocence I am now certain of h s guilt More over are we so sure that the qual ties that mark successful climbers—self assertion acquisition emula pected of an educated adult anything m ght be d scussed but it was a trifle vulgar to reach very positive conclusions (B Russell) Cocksure in earl er use came nearer to certain than to sure as time goes on however it tends to carry an increasingly stronger implication of presumption or overconfidence in pos tiveness They [quoted passages] show how caut ous and profound a thinker he [T H Huxley] was—how very far from being [an] arrogant and cocksure mater alist (A Huxley) Certi dogmatic doctrinaire oracular (see DICTATORIAL)

Ant Unsure

surety 1 Security bond *guarantee guaranty bail

Ana *Pledge earnest token hostage pawn gage

2 Guarantor *sponsor backer patron angel surfeit, v *Satiate sate cloy pall glut gorge surcharge

Ant Whet

surge n *Wave undulation billow roller breaker comber beachcomber ripple surge, v *R se arise ascend mount soar tower rocket levitate.

surly Morose glum *sulle dour gloomy Ana *Rude ungracious boorish churl sh (see unde fractious, *irritable

Ana analogous words

Ant Amiable — Con *Gracious, cordial affable

*Conjecture guess

r gather judge deduce conclude *think incy imagine *cons der regard deem

Conjecture guess See under CONJECTURE v

Ana Inference deduction conclusion (see under INFER) *hypothesis theory surmount Overcome overthrow rout *conquer vanquish defeat subdue subjugate reduce beat l ck.

Ana Surpass transcend outdo outstrip excel *exceed surpass Transcend excel outdo outstrip *exceed

Ana Surmount overcome beat (see CONQUER) surpassing Transcendent *supreme superlative preeminent peerless incomparable banner

Ana Excell ng outdo ng outstripping (see EXCEED) *consummate finished accompl shed surplus, n *Excess superfluity surplusage overplus

Ana *Rema nder res due residuum

Ant Deficiency

surplus adj *Superfluous supernumerary extra spare

Con *Needful necessary requisite indispensable essential surplusage Surplus superfluity overplus *excess

Ana & Ant See those at SURPLUS n surprise, v 1 Surprise, waylay ambush are synonymous terms when they mean to attack unawares Surprise is in m l tary as well as in general use As a techn cal term it impl es strategy in the disposition and movement of troops and equipment and secrecy in the operations it may or may not suggest that the attack l as been successful So we may beat down Edward s guard And seize h mself I say not slaughter him For I intend but only to surprise him (Shak) An army suddenly attacked within the l nes which it had reckoned upon to ward off its enemy is in a military sense surprised (J F Maurice) In literary use one may surprise suggests a lying in wait on a road or h ghway Sometimes it implies concealment by the roadside and an evil intent such as robbery or assault as he was waylaid on his grab

2 Surprise, astonish astound amaze, flabbergast agree because both imply a lack of preparation or a reversal of what is anticipated The older sense commonly takes a personal subject in the active vo ce as her friends embarrass ng pos tion by h s w fe interrupted her re proof beg nning I am surprised— with the retort Not you my dear—I am surprised you are astonished Modern authorities, however countenance both uses of true that one can find no precedent for it. Thus a piece sl ould even speak to her was ama ing!—but to speak with such civil ty (Au ten) I have been amazed to d scover that town bred people sel lom know the po nts

Ana Startle

Ana *Abd cate renounce *forgo forbear sacr fice eschew subm t cap tulate succumb (see YIELD) tional and immed ate surrender could be accepted Submission often impl es surrender as of an army its suppl es its fortif cat ons and the like, but it stresses the acknowledgment of the po ver or author ty of an other and often suggests loss of ndependence t s used

Capitulation also impl es surrender but it suggests a con ditional one on terms agreed upon between the parties or the commanders of the forces concerned In current use surrender usually impl es a yield ng to the force or demand of the stronger party capitulation usually eir defeat In Greece to offer earth and s gn of capitulation (Neu nan) Underhand underl anded *secret cov backsta rs king (see LURK)

t exped ent *ret on (see under

E) observation *observance

View espy descry behold *see observe mark note perceive d scern

Ana *scrutinize scan inspect examine *see look watch d um syllabus d gest pandect last

Ana ...withstand resist ty (or by lated but In str ct ease when the germs caus ng it get into the body Hypersensitivity (or hypersensitiveness) denotes an ex cess ve sens tiveness to some agent and is used in fore gn substance as ind cated by the reaction to a sec ond (or subsequent) inoculation with the same germ or by a second (or subseq tent) introduct on of the same substance into the body The term was coined to cover a s gn that a const tutional change has been brought about by the prior experience In nontechnical or loose use allergy usually means increased susceptibility or sen usually regarded as the oppos te of immunity in the sense of immunity as freedom from the bad effects of certain prote n substances susceptible Sens tive subject exposed prone *liable open nc dent

Ana Inclined disposed predisposed (see INCLINE v) alive awake sensible conscious (see AWARE) Ant Immune suspend 1 Disbar shut out *exclude eliminate debar blackball rule out Ana *Eject dismiss, oust *banish exile ostracize 2 Stay intermit postpone *defer lous agree in meaning hanging or seeming to hang Suspended may suggest a being poised or a being upheld as by buoyancy or the like (as Pure air free from suspended matter' —Jefferies water clouded by sus

(as, a suspended ceiling a suspended [now commonly a suspension] bridge) Pendent now usually describes suspension *Insolvency bankruptcy receivership failure. suspicion 1 Mistrust *uncertainty doubt dubiety dubiosity skepticism Ana Misgiving foreboding presentiment *apprehension distrust mistrust (see under DISTRUST v) 2 *Touch suggestion, soupçon tincture tinge shade smack spice dash vein strain streak sustenance 1 Nourishment nutriment *food aliment pabulum 2 Maintenance support *living livelihood subsistence keep bread suture, n *Joint articulation swag n *Spoil pillage plunder loot booty prize swagger, v *Strut ruffle bristle bridle Ana Flourish brandish *swing wave brag *boast vaunt, crow gasconade Con Cower cringe truckle (see FAWN) shrink quail blench wince (see RECOIL) swarthy. *Dusky tawny Ana *Dark murky gloomy darkling swat, v *Strike hit smite slug slap clout punch box cuff Ana *Beat pound pummel baste belabor sway, v 1 *Swing oscillate fluctuate pendulate vibrate waver undulate Ana Brandish flourish wave *swing *shake rock agitate convulse *tip tilt cant careen.

2 Influence impress strike touch *affect Ana Control direct manage *conduct rule *govern bias *incline dispose predispose sway, n Dominion, control command *power authority Ana *Supremacy ascendancy *range reach scope sweep spread stretch amplitude *expanse *govern gives a solemn pledge with an appeal to God or by laying one's hand on a sacred object such as the Bible that one speaks or will speak only the truth or that one will do what one promises. One affirms before a magistrate or tribunal when one makes a pledge like that of the one who swears and under the same penalties of perjury but without reference to a sacred person or object because one's conscience or creed forbids an oath One asseverates when one insists earnestly and emphatically and (especially in current usage) on one's word of honor that what one says is true or what one promises will be carried out Asseverate is often used when the writer wishes to one makes a statement such as an affidavit or a deposi

Ana Pledge plight covenant engage *promise swearing *Blasphemy profanity cursing laneous swell, v *Expand amplify distend inflate dilate Ana *Extend elongate lengthen *intensify heighten enhance *increase augment enlarge Ant Shrink. — Con *Contract condense compress constrict point the road swerves to the left The great roots of a tree swerve upward out of the design —Binyon) it may is frequently used in reference to a change in the course of a wind or of a ship often, in such contexts it suggests either a frequent turning this way or that or a series of turnings in the same direction especially (as in modern criminating use the term commonly implies a change or series of changes of direction or course under an external influence comparable to the wind (as the world s opinion as usual veered completely round —Meredith) or a turning aside for a tactical reason such as to avoid an undue influence (as Imagist poetry is right in veering away from any tinge of archaism in its diction because it is aiming at an effect with which such diction is inconsistent —Lowes) Deviate (etymologically to go from the way) implies a turning aside from a customary allotted or prescribed course it is commonly used in reference to persons their minds their morals their actions and the like with the suggestion of a swerving from that which is the norm the law the standard or the right procedure or course as [Shenstone] never deviates from the beaten paths for fear of being lost gent) From a fundamental sincerity he could not deviate (T S Eliot) The last three words of this group taught me —Psalms cxix. 102) Digress in its earliest but now practically obsolete sense was a close synonym of depart in current use it commonly implies a departure from the subject of one s discourse that may be voluntary and therefore made with the intent to return (as let me digress for a few minutes to indicate the possible results of this condition) or involuntary and the outcome of an inability to think coherently or to stick to the point to be developed (as he digressed so often in his speech that he finally lost the thread of his discourse) two roads diverging like the branches of a Y (Belloc) rays of light diverge as they proceed from the sun

Ant *Turn divert deflect sheer avert *curve bend

*Fast rapid fleet quick speedy hasty expeditious.

*Easy effortless smooth facile headlong *precipitate sudden swindle, v *Cheat overreach cozen defraud thing so that it moves alternately backward and forward implies undulating or fluttering motions it also carries a weaker implication of rhythmical regularity than swing as to wave a flag to wave a handkerchief The word moreover commonly implies something more than the waving something which one holds in one s hand such on a cold day

Ana Parade flaunt display exhibit (see SHOW v) *shake tremble quiver quaver quake

2 Swing sway oscillate vibrate, fluctuate pendulate waver undulate come into comparison when they mean attached only at one side or at one end as by being suspended hinged pivoted or the like apart from the context the term conveys no definite implication of whether the movement is induced or is automatic, whether it is occasional or constant or whether it is rhythmical and regular or intermittent and irregular as, the tavern s sign swings from a hook above the door the red amaryllises swung in heavy clusters (Stark Young) the door swung open to swing (i e to hang) a thief from the branch of a tree swinging their dinner pails (S Anderson) a pendulum swings with great regu padded feet across the desert' (L P Smith) a l ght breeze swaying the branches. Oscillate also usually im plies a swinging motion, but of something suspended so that it moves in the manner of a pendulum the term usually implies a movement from one side or place or in figurative use from one cond tion attitude or pos tion to another with more or less regularity Move any body as a pendulum in one way and it will continue to oscillate in an arch [arc] of the same circle until the known causes make it rest (Burke) His adventures

Nostrand s Scie tı fic Ei cyclopedia) In a more extended sense v brate usually impl es a trembl ng a quavering a throbbing or the like suggestive of the movements of musical strings when an instrument is being played as nings when the air vibrated with the song of insects (S Anderson) Nerve and bone of that poor man s body vibrated to those words (H B Stowe) Fluctuate ety worth) The surface rolls and fluctuates to the eye (Bryant) The term is now chiefly used in an extended sense imply ng constant irregular alternations suggestive rare word revived n the nineteenth century is a near synonym of oscillate implying a swinging between two extremes but it often comes closer to fluctuate in its strong suggestion of constant change as The ill starred scoundrel pendulates between Heaven and Earth (Carlyle) Waver in the l teral sense in which it s here considered (see also HESITATE) carries a stronger impli cation of unstead ness or of uncerta nty in swinging than wind (Berners) Some stars waver irregularly back and forth between fairly well defined limits of brightness (P W Merrill) Undulate is now more often used than fluctuate when a wavelike motion is implied it is also often used figuratively, seldom suggesting violent changes but rather the continuous rolling or rippl ng ve rotate, gyrate. ampulate *handle ply rol manage direct *conduct *execute va l labor toil *work drudgery grind steal pilfer filch purloin lift pinch snitch ircle spin wh rl twirl wheel eddy *turn ate gyrate pirouette *Sensuous sensual luxurious voluptuous

*Parasite favorite toady lickspit hanger ponge li ber cajoler wheedler (see corresponding
x) fawner truckler (see corresponding verbs

*Compendium digest pandect survey sket h précis aperçu onspectus synops s epitome *abridgment brief end This close and natural connection between the symbol and that wh ch appl cable ch efly to any pictorial device sometimes an object sometimes a combinat on of objects found on a sh eld a banner a flag or the l ke and intended to arb trary or chosen symbol of the character the family the nat on the royal line or the as adopted it thus the spread eagle the

See also explanatory notes facing page 1

usual emblem of the United States is found in its coat of arms and on some of its coins and postage stamps the andria Type, considered as the correlative to antitype (see under PROTOTYPE) is chiefly but not exclusively in theological use It is applied to a person or thing that wisdom is unchang ng and eternal it is communi cated to us in types and shadows dim—in symbols—till we grow up into the power of understanding it (Inge) Ana *Sign mark token badge device motif design *figure pattern 3 *Character sign mark note Ana *Device contrivance diagram delineation out line sketch (see SKETCH v) symbolism *Allegory

symmetry Symmetry, proportion balance harmony are here compared chiefly but not exclusively as used in the arts of des gn and decorat on and as meaning a quality which gives aesthetic pleasure and wh ch depends upon the proper relating of details and parts to each other as in magnitude arrangement or the like and to the consequent effect produced by the whole Symmetry in strict use impl es a median l ne or an axis on either side of leaf or flower common in decorative design in the placing of pictures on a wall so that on e ther s de of the med an

the measured fitness of every one of its details and the consequent perfection of the whole How sour sweet music is When t me is broke and no proportion kept! (Shak) In small proportions we just beauties see And in short measures l fe may perfect be (B Jonson) We care for size but inartist cally we care nothing for proportion which is what makes size count (Brownell) Balance is sometimes employed as though it were the equivalent of symmetry in d scriminating use it implies opposition rather than repetition of details or parts and a massing of different things such as light and shade sharply contrasted colors figures and background so that each one tends to offset the other or to reduce the other s emphasis without loss of s gnificance on either side Balance impl es as its aesthetic effect an inducing of a pleasant satisfaction in the thing s quiet beauty or of a delight in the unified yet varied beauty of the whole It is a sim lar principle of unsymmetrical balance which the Taoist artists sought in design Space therefore statue is marked by a certain air of repose every fine picture exists in a state of stable equilibrium brought about by the balance of its masses (J W Krutch) Harmony, when used specifically in reference to the arts of design and decoration retains as its leading implica tion the same idea as is involved in its general sense (see HARMONY 1) that of beauty resulting from a perfect interrelation of details and tl e r fus on into an agreeable whole However in th s connection it often denotes specifically the aesthet c impression produced by something which manifests symmetry proportion or balance or these qual ties in combination A coloring harmony obtained by the aid of a long experience in tl e effects of light on translucent surfaces (Viollet le Duc transl by H Adams) We hear harmonious tones but the pleasure they g ve us [is] distinct from the pleasures appropriate to the separate tones it is the pleasure of their relational form which makes us attribute to them and the r physical combination a quality which we call harmony (S Alexander) sympathetic 1 *Consonant congenial congruous compatible consistent Ana Agreeing harmonizing or harmonious accordant correspondent (see correspond ng verbs at AGREE) 2 *Tender compass onate warm warmhearted re sponsive Ana Kindly *kind ben gn benig iant understand ng appreciating comprehending (see UNDERSTAND) Ant Unsympathetic

sympathy 1 *Attraction affinity Ana Reciprocality correspondence (see corresponding adjectives at RECIPROCAL) *harmony consonance ac cord concord Ant Antipathy
2 *Pity compassion commiseration, ruth condolence empathy bowels Ana Tenderness warmheartedness warmth respon siveness (see corresp ond ng adjectives at TENDER) kindliness kindness benignness benignancy (see corresponding adjectives at KIND)

*contempo- concurrent st cartel e congress synonymicon *Dictionary lexicon wordbook glossary onomasticon gazetteer synopsis Brief conspectus, epitome *abridgment, abstract.

synthetic *Artificial ersatz factitious system 1 System, organism scheme economy net work complex come into comparison when they mean an organized integrated whole made up of diverse but inter related and interdependent parts or elements System applies both to a natural and to an artificial aggregation all of whose units, when phys cal or material function operate or move in unison or in obedience to some form of control or when immaterial (such as laws, principles theories, etc) fit into each other so as to form a d stinctive and coherent whole as, a telegraph system the solar system a stellar system one s bod ly system a system of railroads a philosophical system Kant sought to mix up aesthetics with his system (H Ellis) the fault lay not so much in our characters as in the capitalist system which we had allowed to dominate our lives (Shaw) Organism applies only to a system that has actual life such as the human body where the movement function ing or development of any part or parts is governed by its (or their) relation to all the other parts, or to one that seems to have l fe because it is capable of development and therefore of change and of growth as, unt l definite knowledge became available of the effects of certain substances upon the human organism (V Heiser) The Church grew, like any other organism by responding to its environment (Inge), [Augustus] had created a huge and intricate polity and it must have the articulate life of an organism and not the mere functional differentiation of a machine (Buchan) Scheme is often used in place of system especially when it refers to a system that has been or seems to have been planned in deta l and therefore, to have the character of a great design or construction often the term is used with a hint of irony or depreciation but equally often it is free from any derogatory suggestions as, In our complex system [that of the United States of America] presenting the rare and difficult scheme of one general government whose action extends over the whole (Ch Just Marshall) The organ zat on of eighteenth century French society was hopelessly inefficient so that great numbers of in dividual Frenchmen unable to fit into the scheme of things suffered acute discomfort (A Huxley) a wider Naturalism which will find room for life mind and spirit w thin the scheme of nature (Inge) Economy as here considered applies to a distinctive system of government or of organization as of a people a land, a church or even of the world (the divine economy) or of immaterial things and implies due consideration of the individual cond tions and needs of the governed or of the s gnificance of each part or detail in the organization as The principle may operate successfully in the close economy of a good family or even w thin a small rel gious community (J A Hobson) Octavius looked beyond the political conundrum to the economic problems of the land The Roman economy was unbalanced (Buchan), the field of mus c is time that of pa nting space To multiply simultaneous sounds or to make colors follow one another in a ngle file is to change their economy (Babbitt). Network l terally applies to any fabric or structure made of threads cords wires etc crossing each other at intervals figurat vely it applies to any system especially any physical system, that has a corresponding structure with all its intercrossing threads coming under a central government or control as a vast network of railroads. Complex appl es chiefly to any integrated whole that involves a great variety of parts elements, or factors yet brings them all into relation and unity though the term has specific senses, such as in psychology (for a complicated system of des res and memories that exerts an influence on one s temperament and behavior) it tends to be used when system organism scheme etc., are too rich in impl cations or connotations for one s purposes as We do know that a certain complex of energies can wag its tail and another make syllogisms (Justice Holmes)

Ant Chaos

2 *Method mode manner way fashion

Ana *Plan, project scheme design procedure *process proceeding systematic, systematical *Orderly method cal regular

Ana Systematized organized ordered arranged (see ORDER v) *log cal, analytical systematize Organize methodize *order arrange marshal

Ana. *Adjust, regulate fix

T

tabernacle *Altar shrine, chantry table, n *List catalogue schedule register roll roster rota, canon inventory taciturn *Silent uncommunicative reserved ret cent secretive, close close-l pped closemouthed tight l pped

Ana *Dumb mute inarticulate restrained inh bited curbed checked (see RESTRAIN)

Ant Garrulous clamorous (especially of crowds) convivial (of hab ts) tackle, n *Equipment apparatus machinery paraphernalia outfit gear matériel tact Tact, address, poise savoir faire are comparable when they name the sk ll and grace with which a well bred person conducts himself in his relations with others Tact stresses skill and grace in one s association with or handling of others whether one s social equals or not It implies del cate and sympathetic perception especially of what is fit graceful, or considerate under given circumstances. Of polit cal wisdom Elizabeth had little or none but her political tact was unerring (J R Green) His Vicar who had so much tact with the natives, so much sympathy with all their short-comings (Cather) Without the tact to perceive when remarks were unt mely (Hardy) Address stresses dexter ty and grace in approach as in meeting strangers or in coping w th new or with difficult situations It often connotes adroitness and suavity it commonly implies success in w nn ng favor or in attain ng one s ends Her address in rendering them [l er many guests] easy with one another (Burney) His acute and flexible logic could support with equal address the adverse sides of every possible question (Gibbon) He was as reluctant as other men to be found wanting in address by a pretty woman (Shaw) Poise in current use often impl es both tact and address it stresses however self possess on or equanimity in meeting embarrassing or upsetting s tua t ons Charles Francis Adams was singular for mental poise a balance of mind and temper that ne ther chal lenged nor avoided notice nor admitted quest on of superiority or inferiority (H Adams) Savoir-faire a French phrase much used in English stresses worldly or social experience and a knowledge of what is the proper thing to say or do or of how to act under all circumstances The inexperience and want of savoir faire in h gh matters of d plomacy of the Emperor and his suave) *courtesy amenity gallantry Ant Awkwardness tag v *Follow pursue chase trail tail tail, v *Follow pursue chase trail tag taint, v *Contaminate pollute defile Ana *Debase deprave corrupt vitiate spo l decompose rot putrefy *decay imbue inoculate *infuse take 1 Take, seize grasp clutch snatch grab agree in meaning to get hold of by or as if by reaching out the

by means of which one gets possession of or control over something (as to take a band of th eves to take a city) Between these two extremes take may imply any of numerous methods of getting hold of something thus one takes a prize who w ns it in a competition one takes a cottage who h res the use of it one takes the temperature of a room by observ ng the thermometer so to take a bath to take the air to take a rest to take care Seize usually suggests a sudden and forc ble tak ng or getting hold of and it therefore is interchangeable with take only when emphasis is placed upon these qual ties as to could hold the Norman took less than he would have l Led —H Adams) or the understanding of something extremely difficult to apprehend or analyze (as unless you seize this point of view you will not understand the almost entirely figurative usually suggesting a movement of the mind or spirit or emotions that is comparable to that of tentacles as [Prudentius] clutches at rather than grasps the Roman verse tradition (Fitzmaurice-Kelly) A man was now terribly at the mercy of fate carries as strong a suggestion of the use of force as does its closest synonym sei e rather it often impl es stealth use one snatches only what one can get by chance surreptitiously by prompt action or the l ke as to snatch gladly any opportun ty for rest to snatch a joy in the r discomfiture to snatch a free moment for writing a letter Grab commonly implies more rudeness or roughness than snatch does at times and it also usually impl es as much force or violence as sei e distinctively it often suggests vulgarity and ind fference to t e r ghts of others or to the standards of the community or a more or less *attract 3 Take, assume are very close synonyms when they or assumed is rarely a tangible thing and then usually one that is the sign or symbol of a function an office a duty or a st te in l fe thus to take the ve l is to be invested with the habit of a nun (of which the veil is a conspicuo s feature) in a ceremony wl ch includes the pronouncing of vo s to assume the toga (toga virilis) hat assumes the color of the plant on which it feeds has by implication (not necessarily in fact) some means of imitating that color, a pudding takes its shape from the mold in which it is chilled a person's face assumes an expression when it reveals what he feels or what he wishes others to think he feels. When a person rather than a thing is the subject of the verb take is often more colorless than assume, the latter sometimes suggesting arrogation, sometimes deliberate acceptance of a burden sometimes presumption, or the like thus to assume charge of another's affairs suggests more initiative than to take charge, which may be merely an answer to a request, one takes office but one assumes power over (wrongly) jurisdiction one may take the blame when one does not attempt to answer criticism but one assumes the blame only when one removes it from others an actor takes a role in a play but a dictator assumes the role of lawgiver In these and similar instances take may carry the full implications of assume by adding to it one of certain prepositions or prepositional phrases thus one says either to assume or to take on the pose of a martyr to assume or to take upon oneself new obligations to assume or to take up the burdens of office

Ana *Adopt, embrace appropriate pre-empt (see ARROGATE) *enter penetrate

4 *Receive accept admit

Ana. Acquiesce accede *assent consent, subscribe

5 *Bring, fetch.

Ana *Carry convey bear deliver (cf delivery at DELIVERANCE) taking Captivating enchanting charming fascinating bewitching alluring attractive See under ATTRACT tale. *Story narrative anecdote yarn

Ana *Fiction, fable *myth legend saga *novel romance.

talent. Genius, *gift, faculty aptitude knack bent turn.

Ana Capacity, *ability capability *art skill craft cunning endowment enduement (see corresponding verbs at DOWER) talisman. *Fetish charm amulet periapt talk, v *Speak, converse.

Ana *Discuss, dispute argue *discourse expatiate dilate, descant *chat chatter prate talk, n *Speech address oration harangue allocution lecture prelection, sermon homily talkative. Talkative loquacious garrulous voluble are here compared chiefly as applied to persons and their moods and as meaning given to talk or talking The same distinctions in implications and connotations are also seen in their corresponding nouns talkativeness loquacity (or loquaciousness), garrulity (or garrulousness) and volubility (or volubleness) Talkative and talkativeness the least explicit of these terms may imply nothing more than a readiness to engage in talk or they may suggest fluency and ease in talking or a disposition to enjoy conversation as, A talkative boy learns French sooner in France than a silent boy (Sydney Smith) Good humoured and talkative he preferred any company rather than none (Thackeray) among them they noticed a beautiful slim talkative old man with bright black eyes and snow-white hair (L P Smith) Loquacious and loquacity more commonly imply fluency and ease in speech they may variously imply qualities as diverse as the power of expressing oneself articulately or eloquently or a disposition to indulge in chattiness or glibness as Your French friend stuns you with his loquacity' (Smollett) to become loquacious or as it is familiarly called chatty (Scott) every glib and loquacious hireling who shows strangers about their picture galleries palaces, and ruins" (Trench) 'He was not loquacious but, when he was forced to speak in public his natural eloquence moved the envy of practised rhetoricians (Macaulay) Garrulous and garrulity imply prosy tedious or rambling loquacity and usually suggest much idle talk about trivial things as "a fond garrulous old man who loved to indulge his mind in reminiscences of the past (Trollope), garrulous Pepys (J R Lowell) We cannot, therefore explain away this deliberate act as due to the garrulity of age or accept the other excuses with which his admirers have sought to palliate it (L P Smith) Voluble (for fuller consideration see VOCAL 2) and volubility suggest a free easy and unending loquacity as, voluble Latins gesturing continuously as they talked a brilliant swift voluble, affectionate, and pleasant creature (Carlyle), He sang of the lark and it was the lark's voluble self (Pater) for it was not a fault in him to dislike Aunt Charlotte whose volubility must have assorted ill with his customary reserve (Arch Marshall)

Ana. *Vocal, fluent articulate voluble glib, eloquent *vociferous clamorous

Ant Silent — Con Reticent reserved uncommunicative secretive (see SILENT) talkativeness Loquacity garrulity volubility See under TALKATIVE.

Ana Fluency articulateness eloquence volubility glibness (see corresponding adjectives at VOCAL)

Ant Silence.

tall *High, lofty

Ant Short

tallow *Adipose marrow, suet lard tally, v *Agree square accord harmonize correspond, conform comport jibe

Ana *Match, equal coincide concur (see AGREE)

Con Differ from, *differ with tame, adj Tame, subdued, submissive come into comparison when they mean rendered docile and tractable or incapable of asserting one's will either permanently or for the time being Tame implies opposition to wild and in its literal sense applies chiefly to animals that have been domesticated and therefore accustomed to control by men (as tame versus wild horses the tamest of tame cats) in extended use it also applies to persons (or less directly to the acts words etc of persons) whose wills have been broken or who have allowed themselves to be dominated by the will of another (as the haughty Katharine became tame under Petruchio's treatment They should expose themselves to public contempt on account of their tame behaviour —Hume The tribunal lately so insolent became on a sudden strangely tame (Macaulay) Often the term implies little more than a temperamental lack of proper spirit or independence or undue docility or timidity as a tame reply tame acquiescence in tradition and routine (Babbitt) Subdued, in its most general sense implies a toning down with a loss of all vehemence or intensity (as subdued voices subdued colors) as here considered in reference to persons, their acts, words characters etc it implies complete domination by or subjection to another (or a similar response to circumstances) and a resulting quietness or meekness that suggests a broken will, complete dependence excessive timorousness or the like as Our polished manners are a mask we wear And at the bottom barbarous still and rude We are restrained indeed but not subdued (Cowper) She had a mild subdued expiring look (Crabbe). In such a man so gentle and subdued A race illustrious for heroic deeds, Humbled but not degraded may expire (Wordsworth) Submissive implies the state of mind of one who has yielded his will to control by another and who therefore unquestioningly or humbly obeys or accepts what is given as In the submissive way of one long accustomed to obey under coercion he ate and drank what they gave him (Dickens) Meek humble timid persons who are cautious prudent and submissive leave things very tamper *Meddle, interfere intermeddle Ana *Interpose interfere intervene molest trouble discommode *inconvenience tang *Taste sapidity flavor savor relish smack Ana Pungency piquancy raciness (see corresponding adjectives at PUNGENT) tangent, adj Abutting adjoining *adjacent contiguous conterminous juxtaposed tangible Sensible *perceptible palpable appreciable ponderable Ana *Material physical corporeal objective actual *real true obvious *evident manifest Ant Intangible

tantalize Tease harass harry *worry annoy plague pester Ana Vex *annoy irk bother torment torture try *afflict *bait badger Ant Satisfy

tantamount *Same selfsame very identical identic equivalent equal Ana Like alike uniform *similar tar, n *Mariner sailor seaman gob matlow bluejacket rating tardy, adj Tardy late behindhand overdue come into comparison when ever necessar

dinner even a late repentance is better than no repentance at all the train is very late today spring is very late this year Behindhand usually applies either directly or

Ana Dilatory laggard *slow delayed detained retarded (see DELAY) Ant Prompt

tariff Customs duty toll impost excise *tax levy assessment rate tribute tithe teind cess tarry *Stay remain wait abide linger Ana *Delay procrastinate lag loiter dawdle dally dillydally tart, adj *Sour acid acidulous dry Ana Piquant *pungent *sharp keen curt brusque blunt (see BLUFF) *irritable snappish waspish

Tartarean *Infernal chthonian Hadean Stygian hellish task, n Task, duty job chare (or char) chore stint assignment come into comparison when they mean a piece of work which one is asked to do and is expected to accomplish Task distinctively implies imposition by another such as an employer a parent or a teacher as he was given the task of cleaning the cellar each day every child was asked to perform a special task In extended use task often suggests imposition not by a in Sainte Beuve s opinion was the most important task of the critic (L P Smith) Sometimes the work to be accomplished is not that of a person but of a thing then task comes very close to function in meaning Every inch of material up and down from crypt to vault had its task giving support where support was needed or weight when concentration was felt lump) which one is asked to do because of one s occupation trade or business but which one is expected to accomplish only if one accepts the opportunity as to engage a carpenter for the job of paneling a room householders needing men for small jobs were asked to inquire you start a job stick to it to make a good job of a piece he found polishing the table a disagreeable esn t believe in parsons standing outside nly doing soft jobs (R Macaulay) Chare e former the usual but now obsolescent the latter the usual American form) other hand is applied to one of the routine activities that must be regularly performed by one responsible for a home for the care of stock and the like or by some person given this as a task or duty as when Mrs B finishes her evening chores she usually goes visiting each child in the family had his daily chore He made my health a pretext for taking all the heavy chores (Cather) Chore is often used colloquially without qualification for a difficult or disagreeable yet necessary piece of work as picking up the pieces of a shattered glass bulb is a chore Stint and assignment denote a specific and clearly defined task. But stint implies allotment or prescription and suggests that the task is either one's share of a work in which several persons are engaged or the amount of work set for accomplishment within a given period of time as each girl in the family had her daily stint which she was expected to finish before noon to work by stint Stint when used of the amount of work one sets for oneself often suggests a minimum which must be accomplished within a given time Here I took to doing German Romance as my daily work ten pages daily my stint (Carlyle) Assignment suggests that the task is prescribed in character and limited in amount It is used chiefly of a specific task set by one in authority such as a teacher or an editor often for accomplishment elsewhere than in the classroom office or the like The photographers had been sent on an assignment and were determined not to return to their papers without pictures (V Heiser)

Ana *Function office duty province *work labor toil employment occupation business métier (see WORK)

taste n 1 Taste sapidity flavor (or flavour) savor (or savour), tang relish smack are here compared as meaning that property of a substance which makes it perceptible to the gustatory sense when it comes into contact with the taste buds of the tongue or in popular but scientifically incorrect language with the palate. Taste is not only the most inclusive of these terms but it also gives no suggestion of a specific character or quality as to be able to distinguish types of oranges by their taste to dislike the taste of olives only four tastes acid bitter salt and sweet, are fundamental All others are either combinations or more commonly sensations of taste modified by smell (Webster's New Int Dict 2d Ed) Sapidity implies far more than taste a decided or highly perceptible sensation thus to say that a given meat or food has no sapidity is not to say that it has no taste but that the taste can be described as bland or neutral or not clearly definable so because of its sapidity some persons prefer game that is high to that which is fresh fruits lacking in sapidity Flavor applies to the property of a thing which is recognized by the co-operation of the olfactory and gustatory senses The term therefore usually denotes the combination of tastes and smells perceived when eating or drinking a thing Usually also it suggests the blend of tastes and odors that give a substance a distinctive or peculiar character as this peach has a peculiarly fine flavor the flavor of a fine tea has been described as a bouquet which can be tasted" My stock of provisions had been so long consumed that I had forgotten the flavour of pulse and maize and pumpkins and purple and sweet potatoes (Hudson) Savor stresses the quality such as sweetness or bitterness that is detected by the organs of taste and smell (sometimes of one more than the other) It often implies sensitiveness of palate (strictly taste buds) or of nose and may refer to the odor of that which is cooking as well as to the flavor of that which is eaten Viands of various kinds allure the taste Of choicest sort and savour (Pope) "The savour of the stew had floated from the cottage into the porch with such appetizing distinctness that the meat the onions the pepper and the herbs could be severally recognized by his nose (Hardy) A traveler describes the savor of the durian [a tropical fruit] as a rich butter like custard highly flavored with almonds but intermingled with it come wafts of flavor that call to mind cream cheese onion sauce brown sherry and other incongruities (V Heiser) Tang applies chiefly to a sharp penetrating savor flavor or odor it usually implies a live pungent quality as to prefer apples with a tang the tang of dry champagne, the tang of a salt breeze Happiness to me is wine Effervescent superfine Full of tang and fiery pleasure (Amy Lowell) Relish and smack are now comparatively rare in this sense relish (see also TASTE 2) comes close to savor and usually suggests enjoyment of the taste (as A Laplander or Negro has no notion of the relish of wine —Hume My first endeavour must be to distinguish the true taste of fruits refine my palate and establish a just relish in the kind —Shaftesbury) smack comes close to flavor but applies usually to one that is added to or different from the typical flavor of the substance (as ale with a burnt musty smack there is a good smack of pepper in this stew)

Figuratively these words usually call up one or more suggestions from their literal senses Taste usually denotes a strong impression or a heightened sense of the quality of something as the book leaves a bad taste in the mouth How comfortable is the feeling and taste of grace (Lyly) Flavor implies a predominant or distinctive quality suggestive of a flavor in its literal sense as The higher heroisms and the old rare flavors are passing out of life (W James) The passing hour's supporting joys have lost the keen-edged flavor (Meredith) Your words have no longer their old flavour (Hardy) Flavour in fine is the spirit of the dramatist projected into his work in a state of volatility so that no one can exactly lay hands on it here there or anywhere (Galsworthy) Savor (see also ATMOSPHERE 2) differs from flavor largely in suggesting a stimulating or enlivening character or quality that like salt spice or other seasoning gives life or pungency to a thing as a Puritanism that still strove to keep in its creed the intense savor which had long gone out of its faith (J R Lowell) no one treats me like a child now and the savour has gone out of my life (H Ellis) Tang relish, and smack come still closer to their literal senses The language has a tang of Shakespeare (Gray) Yankeeisms whose salt sea flavor has its own peculiar tang in it (J R Lowell) The full flavor the whole relish of delight (H W Beecher) Your lordship hath yet some smack of age in you some relish of the saltness of time (Shak) The Saxon names of places with the pleasant whole some smack of the soil in them (Arnold)

2 Taste palate relish gusto zest come into comparison when they mean a liking for or an enjoyment of something because of particular qualities that literally afford one's taste buds (or in idiomatic but scientifically inaccurate English one's palate) a pleasurable sensation or that figuratively produce comparably pleasant mental or aesthetic impressions Taste (as here compared see also TASTE 3) implies a liking that is either natural or acquired the term is often used to designate any deep-seated or ingrained longing for something that lies behind one's predilection for it one's bent to it one's aptitude for it or any predisposition to enjoy one thing more than another as to cultivate a taste for olives he had no taste for the law Had he discovered in himself a capacity and a taste for that sort of thing [arguing preaching remonstrating]? (Conrad) More often taste refers to a taste namely the power of correct or discriminating aesthetic judgment that the two meanings tend to over lap and are sometimes confused In the first case however taste is not an abstraction but a concrete thing referable to an individual or a group of individuals and therefore subject to evaluation as good bad indifferent etc We have our tastes in painting as in confectionery Some of us prefer Tintoretto to Rembrandt as we do chocolate to cocoanut (Brownell) If he found this room more to his taste than any other in the house either the house or his taste must have been deficient (Arch Marshall) In the latter sense taste is an abstraction used commonly without reference to individuals Like all abstractions it is tenuous variously defined and not clearly established in meaning In general however it implies a capacity characteristic of only the finest minds and spirits for discerning true beauty and the same time original has had the task of creating the taste by which he is to be enjoyed (Wordsworth) Palate (literally the roof of the mouth once popularly regarded and still spoken of as the organ of the sense of taste) may be used either literally or figuratively in the sense here considered a liking dependent upon pleasurable physical sensation may be suggested (as cooked according to the palate of an epicure a wine taster must have a discriminating palate) but the term refers equally if not more often to pleasure afforded the mind (as Any subject that was not to their palate they condemned —Milton I heard a little too much preaching and lost my palate for it —G Eliot) Relish often suggests a more distinct or a more exciting flavor in the thing that evokes enjoyment or a liking it usually however implies a keener or more personal gratification than taste as a man of a quick relish for pleasure (Macaulay) He walked up-hill as the rest of the

Montague) Gusto usually implies either the hearty relish with which one sometimes may attack a meal execute a piece of work (especially a work of art) or go about the performance of any task duty or the like or a quality in the thing which is executed or in the work which is performed that indicates vital or enthusiastic interest keen delight and intense imaginative or emotional energy in the doing of it [He] argues that the chief contribution of [Theodore Roosevelt] to American life was the example of his gigantic gusto his delight in toil and struggle his superb aliveness (Mencken) [Prescott's] swing and gusto his abundant detail and the swift excitement of his narrative (Times Lit Sup) This dramatic sense gives Rostand's characters—Cyrano at least—a gusto which is uncommon on the modern stage (T S Eliot) Zest like gusto applies either to the spirit in which one approaches something one likes to do make encounter or the like or the quality imparted to the thing done made envisioned etc. as a result of this spirit In contrast with gusto it suggests eagerness avidity or a perception of a thing's piquancy or peculiar flavor rather than a hearty appetite indicative of abounding energy The Elizabethan theatre had its cause in an ardent zest for life and living (Arnold) No one has painted the riotous merriment of a country fair with such zest as Rubens (Binyon)

Ana *Predilection prepossession partiality appreciation understanding comprehension (see corresponding verbs at UNDERSTAND) inclination disposition predisposition (see corresponding verbs at INCLINE) *discernment, discrimination penetration insight acumen

Ant Antipathy

tasty Savory sapid saporous *palatable appetizing toothsome flavorsome relishing

Ant Bland

tat, v *Weave knit crochet braid plait tattle *Gossip blab

Ana Divulge disclose betray *reveal taunt, v Mock deride *ridicule twit rally

Ana *Scoff jeer gibe flout affront insult *offend outrage scorn disdain scout (see DESPISE) chaff *banter quiz

it tense

*Verbiage redundancy pleonasm circumlocution periphrasis

*Gaudy garish flashy meretricious

Ana *Showy pretentious vulgar gross *coarse flamboyant *ornate florid tawney Variant of TAWNY tawny *Dusky swarthy tax, n Tax levy assessment rate excise, impost customs duty tariff toll tribute tithe teind cess come into comparison when they mean a compulsory contribution exacted by some recognized authority or by some tax

amount by some method of proportioning or of distribution of the burden as a sales tax an income tax a poll tax Levy stresses compulsory raising and collecting as here compared it is applied chiefly to special or emergency taxes but it may also be applied to any contribution that is collected by the exercise of legal or constituted authority or by the exercise of force as by an invader or conqueror and that consists of money or of supplies as to pro

by constituted authority etymologically it implies a prorating of the amount but this implication is not invariably conveyed as a real-estate tax is an assessment upon property the stockholders assessment to cover bank losses was fifty percent of the par value of their shares the society levied an assessment on its members of one dollar each to pay for the entertainment Rate which is in British use is distinctively applied to a tax on property assessed at so much in the pound of valuation and levied especially for local purposes thus borough rates in England roughly correspond to city taxes in the United States, a ratepayer in England is the equivalent of the American taxpayer when the latter term as is usual, implies reference to property owners An excise is a tax levied on the manufacture sale, use and consumption of certain commodities such as liquor cigarettes, and automobiles, or on the pursuit of various occupations or sports such as liquor-selling and hunting that require a license to be legally engaged in An impost in its specific and more common sense is a tax levied on imports it is also called customs (now rarely if ever in the singular form custom) or a duty, as to pay the impost or the customs or a heavy duty on diamonds bought in Amsterdam. In general usage however impost is often more inclusive and refers to any revenue-raising tax laid upon a person indirectly or directly In England popular language dubs all imposts by a non-sovereign body, rates and all imposts by a sovereign or like a colony, quasi-sovereign body taxes customs or excise (F Palgrave) Customs was once wider also in its range of application, for it designated any tax levied on goods or merchandise on its way to market but especially on those being exported from or imported into a country Duty especially in British use is a particularly comprehensive term, in general it includes all taxes known as customs and excises and a variety of other taxes on possessions and on certain transactions such as the transfer or succession of property, the legal acknowledgment of deeds and other instruments or the probate and execution of a will, as stamp duties death duties Tariff when it designates a tax specifically means the scheduled duty on an import, as, the tariff on raw wool was generally regarded as too high Toll which now commonly denotes a tax paid for a privilege such as a right to use a public highway or a bridge was once so general in its application that it covered any of the various taxes now known as customs and excises When the King raised his tolls on foreign merchandise the courts still decided in his favour" (Belloc) Tribute as here compared is now chiefly historical or figurative in its use Originally it denoted a tax levied upon a people not for their own or their ruler's use but for payment to another government or ruler in acknowledgment of their subjection to or dependence upon it or him Millions for defence but not one cent for tribute (inscribed on memorial of Charles Cotesworth Pinckney) Tithe or in Scots use teind (literally a tenth of something) historically designates either a voluntary or a compulsory contribution for religious or charitable uses paid in money or in kind representing a tenth of the annual increase arising from the profits of one's stock, one's industry or the like In British or other ecclesiastical and legal use it came to mean any tax levied for the support of the church or of its charities Cess, which is chiefly in Irish but also in Scottish and English dialectal use is in Ireland the equivalent of rate and in Scotland the equivalent of land tax It always implies assessment (with which it is etymologically associated) and in some extended use connotes extortionate levying of money and supplies for specific purposes teach. Teach, instruct educate train discipline, school are here compared as meaning to cause others (or sometimes oneself) to acquire knowledge or skill Teach implies a direct showing to another with the intent that he will learn it usually suggests the imparting of information, but in addition it often also connotes the giving of any help that will be of assistance to the learner in mastering such difficulties as are involved in putting the new knowledge to use or in making it a part of his mental or physical equipment as the older child is teaching the younger one how to read to teach arithmetic to teach the Gospel, to teach dancing "The common notion is that Darwin teaches that all history is development towards a goal (Inge) Instruct stresses the furnishing, especially the methodical furnishing of necessary knowledge or skill to a person or persons as a reserve officer was sent to instruct the boys in military tactics. "Schoolmasters will I keep within my house Fit to instruct her youth (Shak) "He is wise who can instruct us and assist us in the business of daily virtuous living" (Carlyle) Educate, although it implies or presupposes teaching or instruction as the means in discriminating use stresses the intention or the result the bringing out or development of qualities or capacities latent in the individual or regarded as essential to his position in life as, to determine that his children should be educated in the best schools available, schools that educate boys for the ministry or priesthood In my eyes the question is not what to teach but how to Educate (Kingsley) Train, on the other hand even when it is used as a close synonym of educate almost invariably suggests a distinct end or aim which guides teachers and instructors it implies, therefore such subjection of the pupil as will form him or fit him for the state in mind, as "Train up a child in the way he should go (Proverbs xxii 6), Universities exist on the one hand to train men and women for certain professions (B Russell) In current use, train is especially employed in reference to the instruction of persons (sometimes animals) who must be physically in best condition, mentally proficient quickly responsive to orders or the like for a given occupation or kind of work as to subject new recruits to three months intensive training to train dogs to catch hares to keep members of a football squad in training from early September until the end of November Discipline, even more than train implies subordination to a master or subjection to control often self-control Great natural geniuses that were never disciplined and broken by rules of art (Addison) He consciously seeks to discipline himself in fine thinking and right living" (H Ellis) One must not let one's thoughts run on like this one must discipline one's mind (V Sackville West) School though it is not infrequently found in the sense of educate (as some of them have been schooled at Eton and Harrow —Shaw) and in the sense of teach or instruct (as Schooled by my guide it was not difficult to realise the scene —S C Hall) is now chiefly used in the sense of train or discipline often however with the added implication of enduring that which is hard to bear That I can bear I can school myself to worse than that (Wilde) He had to school himself into keeping quiet when Miss Youghal went out riding with some man who tried to flirt with her (Kipling)

Ana Impart *communicate *practice drill exercise inculcate instill *implant.

tear, v Tear, rip, rend, split, cleave rive agree in meaning to separate forcibly one part of a continuous material or substance from another or one object from another with which it is closely and firmly associated Tear implies pulling apart as by main force it often suggests jagged rough edges or literally or figuratively laceration as to tear one's coat to tear a piece of paper lengthwise to tear one's skin on a nail he took hold of it [a bush] with his powerful hands and tore it out by the roots" (S Anderson) so furious that he could tear the hair from his head to tear oneself away from one's home the grief tears her heart Rip usually implies a forcible pulling or breaking or cutting apart, sometimes but not always along a line or juncture (such as a seam, a joint, a connection) as Macduff was from his mother's womb Untimely ripp'd (Shak) to rip one's

Ana Irksomeness tediousness tiresomeness weari plies a breaking apart or fracture through the entire length or less commonly width or depth especially in amount usually it stresses profusion Distant forests aglow with tropical colours and abounding with strange forms of life (Jefferies) It is often used w th reference dance Waste unreason moral confl ct everywhere abound (J A Hobson) This is especially true of its particip al adjective abounding The life of ultimate

Ana Slit slash *cut *pull drag damage *injure impair tease Tantalize pester plague harass harry *worry annoy

Ana *Bait badger hector chevy importune adjure *beg fret chafe gall (see ABRADE) techy or tetchy *Irascible choleric splenetic testy touchy cranky cross ceeding capacity as he overflows with good nature sometimes it suggests glutting as, the market overflows with goods

Ana *Bear produce yield turn out *generate engender breed propagate multiply augment *increase del berate

Ant Exciting

teeny, Tiny little diminutive *small petite wee weeny minute microscopic miniature *reveal disclose betray bewray ... licate *relate rehearse recite ... unt apprise ... gent sound *val d ... *powerful potent *effective ... *conclus ve decisive determina

... kless foolhardy daredevil dar ... *precipitate of l stlessness dreariness and unrest result ng eitl er temerity Temerity, audacity, hardihood, effrontery nerve cheek gall are here compared only as mean ng failure to estimate one's chances of success, as such temerity in attack could be expected only of young and speech, 'he had committed the supreme audacity of looking into her soul' (V. Sackville-West) "'Lew ..

employed as a term of contempt almost equivalent to Ana Rashness recklessness foolhardiness, daring venturesomeness (see corresponding adjectives at ADVENTUROUS) precipitateness impetuosity abruptness ... imperti ... sponding caution.

temper, v 1 *Moderate qualify attemper

Ana *Adjust regulate, fix mitigate alleviate lighten assuage, allay, *relieve mollify *pacify appease

Ant Intensify

one tempers hardened steel intended for razors by reheating it to 450°, and that intended for swords or springs to 570° Anneal stresses the intent to toughen or make less brittle, it implies a subjection to high heat and either a gradual cooling as in the case of glass or steel or a sudden quenching as in the case of copper or brass. Anneal in reference to glass usually implies a reduction of brittleness that has resulted from a prior treatment temper, n 1 *Mood, humor, vein.

Ana Mettle, spirit (see COURAGE) emotion *feeling affection, passion attitude, *position stand

2 *Disposition, temperament, complexion, character personality individuality on composition (see corresponding verbs *state, condition, posture situation ty, attribute

*Disposition, temper complexion chary, individuality.

Ana. Composition, constitution (see corresponding verbs of ostentation, as, sobriety of demeanor, sobriety in dress Abstinence usually implies voluntary deprivation. 'Their poor ancestors, whose life was passed in melancholy abstinence from the joys of this beautiful earth (Arnold) 'The Cynic preached abstinence from all common ambitions rank, possessions power, the things which clog man's feet' (Buchan) Abstemiousness now suggests

(Dryden) In its specific sense it stresses self restraint in (Jer Taylor)

Ana Forgoing forbearing or forbearance sacrificing or chewal (see corresponding verbs at FORGO) paringness, thriftiness (see corresponding adj- SPARING) restrained curbed, checked (see

*Moderate gentle, lenient, *soft *steady, even tant restrained curbed, checked (see rate inordinate tinent unimpassioned ring, frugal economical abstaining refraining (see REFRAIN) dispassionate just *fair temporal 1 *Temporary Ana *Earthly mundane worldly mortal transitory *transient ephemeral passing Ant Eternal

2 *Profane secular lay Ana *Material objective physical corporeal Ant Spiritual

temporary 1 Temporary, temporal are sometimes confused in the sense of existing or enduring for a limited time only. Temporary (see also TEMPORARY 2) is the commoner of these terms. It is opposed in meaning to permanent and lasting and applies equally well to that which serves only an immediate need and to that which endures over a very long space of time but is bound to come to an end, as a scaffolding is a temporary structure. "Like the planet Mercury surrounded by the lustre of sunset her permanent brilliancy passed without much notice in the temporary glory of the situation" (Hardy). "But unfortunately owing to a recent though quite temporary coldness between the Chaplain General and the Potter press, Mr Potter's wire-pulling was ineffectual" (R Macaulay). "Where such deep rooted tendencies as fetishism are concerned all that reformers can hope to abolish is the temporary form, not the abiding substance" (A Huxley). Temporal in its stricter use implies an opposition to eternal; it is chiefly used when there is a reference to the difference between things of this life and things of eternity, and is found chiefly in idiomatic expressions thus temporal matters refer to those which are related to life on earth as opposed to those which are related to the future life; the temporal punishment due to sin usually refers to the punishment for sin endured in one's life and, in Roman Catholic use, also in Purgatory as opposed to the eternal punishment suffered in Hell. Consequently temporal often implies an opposition to immaterial or spiritual as well as to eternal "as we may therefore whenever we wish treat the temporal as if it were potentially the eternal" (W James). "it is the only way in which I can think of the relation of the world of becoming to the world of being, of the temporal to the eternal" (Inge). Often temporal (for this sense see PROFANE 1) is used in the sense of being concerned with temporal or worldly as opposed to spiritual or eternal affairs, matters, or concerns, and is applied to sovereigns, rulers, or others who deal with these affairs in opposition to those whose concerns are mostly spiritual, as temporal lords (or lords temporal). "His sceptre shows the force of temporal power, The attribute to awe and majesty" (Shak). Consequently temporal is often used in the sense of secular, lay, or civil as distinguished from clerical or ecclesiastical, sometimes with little reference to the time element. "If such temporal pride is ridiculous, surely the spiritual is odious and detestable" (Fielding). "The court of Madrid, unlike that of Vienna, would have thought more of temporal aims than of ecclesiastical" (Belloc).
Ana Transitory *transient ephemeral passing *brief short Ant Permanent lasting 2 Temporary, provisional, ad interim, acting, supply are here compared as applied to a person holding a post for a limited time, to the post held by that person, or to his appointment. Temporary merely implies that the post is not held on tenure but may be terminated at the will of those having the appointive power. It is interchangeable with many of the other words but is not so explicit, as a temporary position, temporary clerks, a temporary appointment. Provisional is applied chiefly to a government or to the head (or leading officials) of a government that is set up in a new state or after a revolution until a permanent government can be established, as following the revolution of September 1930 the provisional president of Argentina was José F Uriburu. Ad interim definitely suggests appointment for an intervening period as between the death or resignation of an incumbent and the appointment or election of his successor, as an ad interim pastor. In the United States it is also applied to an appointment made by the president when the Senate is not in session and confirmation is not possible until after the recess, as an ad interim appointment as ambassador. Acting is applied to the person who during a vacancy in an office or during the absence of the incumbent assumes temporarily by appointment or by fixed procedure the powers given the person regularly appointed or elected, as the president of the common council becomes acting mayor when the mayor is on vacation. Supply implies the performance of duties of another or service as a locum tenens, as a supply pastor, a supply teacher.
Ant Permanent

tempt Entice inveigle *lure decoy seduce Ana Allure *attract *invite solicit court woo *induce persuade prevail on or upon tenacious Tough stout *strong sturdy stalwart Ana Dogged pertinacious *obstinate stubborn resolute staunch steadfast leal true (see FAITHFUL) persevering persisting (see PERSEVERE) tenacity Resolution spirit mettle *courage Ana Pluck grit guts sand *fortitude backbone *decision determination hardihood audacity nerve (see TEMERITY) tend Tend, attend, mind, watch are here compared only as meaning to take charge of or look after someone or something especially as a duty or in return for a wage, fee, or other remuneration. In general tend is not only more colloquial than attend but it usually suggests a more menial employment and takes for its object something that requires routine or unskilled care as in looking out for accidents, mishaps, signs of danger, or the like, or merely mechanical operation; thus, one who tends a lock is employed to work the devices adjusting the level of the water in the canal when a boat approaches; a shepherd is one who tends a flock of sheep; a stoker is one who tends a furnace (especially on a ship) and supplies it with fuel when needed. "Standard roses tended by her hands" (Meredith). Tend is used in reference to the care of persons only when a menial or a ministering rather than a professional relationship is implied, as to employ a girl to tend to the children for a few hours each day; sacrificing her leisure to tend the sick and helpless poor in their homes. Attend, since it seldom loses its earliest implication of turning the mind to, is the appropriate word when the services given are of a professional character or are the prerogatives of a post that one holds as a mark of honor or merit, as Dr White attended the governor in his last illness; ladies in waiting are ladies of high degree who as members of the royal household attend a queen or princess. Attend to (tend to is dialectal in this sense) often carries not only the idea of looking after or taking charge of but also the idea either of disposing of the work that is entailed (as, he has attended to [not tended to] all the letters awaiting answer) or of giving one's full attention to the matter or person concerned, as, attend strictly to (not tend strictly to) business; he asked his assistant to attend to (not tend to) patients coming in between three and four. Mind is closer to tend than to attend but it usually implies more casual looking after or less close attention to duties, as, a kind neighbor minds the children when their mother is away. "The men were gone to dinner; I stayed to and the furnace' (Edgeworth) Watch (in its earliest elapse or change for the worse The term therefore he worked to destroy the tendency to dreams in him elf' —S Anderson) but even more often especially when used in reference to groups or communit es or their activ ties or the course or direction they take with or Lycurgus had endeavoured to repress by external regula tion reasserted themselves —G L Dickinson) Trend is throughout its entire course or with n given l mits of space or of time as to g ve a talk on the trend (or trends) of current fiction the general trend of democracy has been from decentralization of po ver to centralizat on he

The whole dr ft of their institut on is contrary to that of the w se legislators of all countries —Burke pro gramme music shows most clearly the drift of mus c along with the other arts to vard impressionism —Babbitt the whole drift of our law s to vard the absolute proh bition of all ideas that diverge in the slightest from the accepted platitudes —Mencken) but it also may apply to the direct on or course taken by something such as speech writing teaching and the like that has a mean ng a purpose or an objective which is not defi n tely stated or made clear but which is to be gathered or inferred by aud tors readers observers or the like documents and carries a much stronger impl cat on of course that is clearly defined though not necessar ly un alterable in its direction and that has the dist nct

*Offer proffer present prefer pose purpose des gn (see INTEND) *suggest

*Overture approach advance bid adj Tender, compassionate sympathetic, armhearted responsive are here compared in emotions with a delicacy and gentleness that are espe cially grateful to the person concerned as H s mother was very tender with him she saw the effort it was costing (D H Lawrence) there always rema ned with me long af er

Compassionate impl es a temperament or a d spos tion hat is e ther easily moved by the sufferings or hardships of another or is qu ck to show pity w th tenderness or mercy as He was quite incapable of any compass onate feel ng about the boy or about h s fate (Di kens) Out of the hardsh ps of h s boyhood he had p eserved a clean sense of honour and a compassionate heart (Cather) To vax compass onate over a b rd and remain hard as fl nt to a beast s poss ble only to human ty very sympathet c That was what made Tony l ke her so ab l ty to enter nto the l ves of others and share the r emot ons but a capac ty for apprais ng or treat ng men fervency it suggests less softness of f el ng or com tle from wa m n meaning but t usually carries a s ronger mpl cat o often compass on woman He s of Esau (G El ot)

Exper ence has nev ness (D ken) Respons ve d ffe s from the preced ng terms n usual y s ggest ng sens t eness to another s d s tenement *Rooms lodg ngs chambers quarters apartment flat d gg ngs d gs tenet *Doctrine dogma.

Ana Bel ef conv ct on persuas on view (see OPINION) *pr nc ple fundamental ax om *creed confess on tenor Dr ft current trend tendency* Ana Movement *motion move procedure proceed ng (see PROCESS) *mean ng s g ficance mport tense adj 1 *T ght taut Ana Strained (see corresponding noun at STRAIN) nervous unqu et uneasy j ttery (s e MPATIENT) 2 *Stiff rig d inflex b e s ark ooden tension 1 *Stress strain, pressure shear thrust tors on.

2 Equ l brium equipoise *balance poise. tentative *Provis onal Ana *Temporary ad nterim acting testing trying demonstrat ng prov ng (see PROVE) ph bol

2 *Word vocable
*V rago sco d shre v vixen barge amazon Final conclud ng *last latest eventual me ending terminating concluding (see terminate End *close conclude f nish complete Ana *Abol h ext ngu sh abate d ssolve pro ogue op ce se d scont nue *End end ng term nus issue outcome (see EFFECT) con lud ng completion clos ng or close (see corres at CLOSE) el on source terminus *End ter ninat on end ng art ng po nt 1 Embankment bank *mound dune tumu ow boul vard drive parkway *road roadway ghroad street thoroughfare byway lane ay

Also terrene *Earthly earthy mundane orld y mortal sublunary *fearful awful (see FRIG TEN) urb ng (see D S-CO IPOSE) horr ble

D SCOM POSE)
*F ghten f ght scare alarm terror ze startle aff ght
Ana Ag tate upset pertu b d squiet (see D SCO IPOSE) *d smay appall horr fy daunt co v * nt m date brow beat bulldoze territory 1 Colony dependency *possess on dom n ion protectorate mandate 2 Domain prov nce *f eld sphere ba l w ck Ana Reg on tract *area zone belt lim ts confines bounds (see s ngular nouns at LI IT) terror Pan c consternat on *fear dread fr ght alarm d smay horror trep dat on Ana Apprehens veness fearfulness (see correspond ng ad ect es at FEARFUL) ag tat on, d squiet perturbat on up ett ng or upset (see corre pond ng verbs at D SCOM-POSE) appall ng daunt ng d smay ng (see D S AY) terrorize Terr fy *frighten fright alarm scare startle affray aff ight * nt m date cow bulldoze browbeat coerce *force drive impel, *move agitate upset (see SE) *) nd cates p ace of treatment of each group terse *Concise, succinct laconic, summary pithy compendious.

Ana *Brief short *compact, close *expressive sententious, meaningful *incisive crisp clear-cut test, n Trial proof demonstration See under PROVE Ana Experiment *experience examination inspection scrutiny (see under SCRUTINIZE) verification substantiation corroboration, confirmation (see corresponding verbs at CONFIRM) test, v Try *prove demonstrate Ana. Assay essay (see ATTEMPT v) examine inspect *scrutinize experiment experience (see corresponding nouns at EXPERIENCE) verify substantiate *confirm testify *Swear affirm asseverate depose depone Ana *Certify attest witness vouch for testimony, *Evidence deposition affidavit Ana. Trial test proof demonstration (see under PROVE) witnessing or witness attesting or attestation certifying or certification vouching for (see corresponding verbs at CERTIFY) testy. *Irascible, choleric splenetic techy touchy cranky cross Ana *Irritable peevish snappish waspish hasty sudden, impetuous (see PRECIPITATE) captious carping caviling faultfinding (see CRITICAL) tetchy Variant of TECHY text Topic argument theme *subject matter subject matter motive leitmotiv thalassic. *Aquatic marine, oceanic neritic, pelagic abyssal bathysmal, bathybic.

thankful. *Grateful Ana Appreciating or appreciative valuing prizing cherishing treasuring (see corresponding verbs at APPRECIATE) satisfied content (see under SATISFY) Ant Thankless.

that. *Who which.

thaumaturgy. *Magic sorcery witchcraft witchery wizardry alchemy thaw, v Melt, dissolve *liquefy deliquesce fuse Ant Freeze

theatrical, adj *Dramatic dramaturgic melodramatic histrionic Ana *Artificial factitious formal conventional *ceremonial, ceremonious affecting pretending assuming simulating feigning (see ASSUME) *showy pretentious pompous ostentatious theft Theft, larceny robbery burglary come into comparison as meaning the act or crime of stealing especially as differentiated in legal use The same differences in implications and applications are observable in the agent nouns thief, larcener (now extremely rare) robber burglar, denoting one who steals Theft and thief are the most general and the least technical of these terms they imply the taking and removing of another's property usually by stealth or without his knowledge and always without his consent The terms are often so broad in current use (even in legal use) that they may include reference to any form of taking another's property without his consent such as pilfering purloining swindling embezzling or plagiarizing as the theft of a fellow-employee's purse the theft of the city's money by grafters a thief removed his watch from his pocket thefts of good plots from recent plays Larceny especially and larcener when now used are strict legal terms implying theft in the usual sense but excluding swindling embezzlement plagiarizing etc The terms always connote an unlawful or felonious act a removal of another's property from the place where it belongs and complete possession even for a moment by the thief, as she was seen shoplifting but was not apprehended until she had left the store so that there would be proof of larceny the servant was found guilty of larceny Grand larceny and petty or petit larceny though now rare in legal use are common in ordinary use as indicating respectively a theft of an appreciable (formerly a stated) amount, and a theft of a negligible amount Robbery and robber in their strict legal use imply the taking of another's property from his person or in his presence by means of violence or intimidation, as, highway robbery the paymaster was attacked and deprived of his payroll money by armed robbers Burglary and burglar in all legal use imply a breaking and entering with an intent to commit a felony, usually but not invariably (though almost always in popular use), that of larceny or robbery In the laws of different states and nations the other details vary such as the time of occurrence (nighttime often being stipulated) or the actual commission of the felony (the accomplishment of the intent usually being regarded as not relevant), as the burglary of their home was committed during their absence for the evening she lived in constant fear of burglars

the Lord's Day. See Lord's Day at SUNDAY

theme 1 Text topic argument *subject matter, subject matter motive, leitmotiv 2 Composition paper *essay article then *Therefore hence consequently accordingly, so theorem *Principle axiom fundamental law ☞ Do not confuse theorem with theory theoretical. Theoretical (or theoretic), speculative, academic are here compared as applied to minds types of reasoning or philosophizing branches of learning and the like and as meaning concerned principally with abstractions and theories, sometimes at the expense of their practical basis or application Theoretical (or less often, theoretic) in its most usual and nonderogatory sense applies to sciences or other branches of learning which deal with the inferences drawn from observed facts and from the results of experiments and with the laws or theories that explain them In this sense the term is often opposed to applied which describes sciences or branches of learning which have to do with the putting of these laws and theories into use as in mechanics in industry or in social reform, as, theoretical versus applied chemistry theoretical physics has contributed more to modern invention than human ingenuity applied ethics is grounded upon theoretical ethics A purely theoretical definition would be that a person is emotionally sensitive when many stimuli produce emotions in him (B Russell) But theoretical often implies a divorce from actuality or reality that either makes one unable to see things as they are or to see them only in the terms of one's ideas or theories about them In this sense it is opposed to practical My theoretical and his practical knowledge together could not have failed He should have worked upon my plans (Austen) Life demands from us that we should be prepossessed in favour of goodness and her sisters But we must study these practical prepossessions without theoretical prepossession (S Alexander) Things that had seemed dreamily theoretical dry axiomatic platitudinal showed themselves to be great generalisations from a torrent of human effort and mortal endeavour (A C Benson) Speculative (as here considered see also THOUGHTFUL 1) goes further than theoretical in suggesting a deep interest in theorizing or in forming theories or hypotheses and often additionally implies a daring use of the imagination as He is too speculative a writer to awaken confidence in his results (Sir H Davy) Oftentimes however there is very little difference evident in the use of these terms He [the Roman] was a great inventor and

Academic (as here cons dered see also PEDANTIC) carries

Apart from its academic tendency to divorce form from matter I cannot believe that any such theory of poetry bu lt on a neuros s is admirable or adequate (Day Lewis)

Ana Conjectural hypothetical (see SUPPOSED) postulated premised presupposed (see PRESUPPOSE) theory *Hypothesis law

Ana Judgment conclusion deduction inference (see under INFER) postulate presumption assumption presuppos tion (see under PRESUPPOSE)

Ant Practice

☞ Do not confuse theory with theorem.

there *Thither

therefore Therefore, hence consequently, then accordingly, so are here compared as adverbs used as connectives to ind cate logical or causal sequence or both They vary in the degree of closeness of connection suggested as well as in the kind of sequence impl ed Therefore and hence are employed chiefly in strict reasoning to indicate that what follows is a necessary often used to introduce a deduction does not always imply necess ty in the inference Rather it suggests good

Then when used to ind cate logical sequence is employed chiefly in the consequent clause or conclusion in a cond tional sentence as if A is true then B is false Accordingly usually ind cates logical or causal sequence but connotes naturalness or usualness in that wh ch follows as a consequence rather than necess ty or inevitab l ty as he sa d he was hungry accord ngly they shared their meager lunch with him So is largely col writers

thesaurus 1 Treasury archives *museum l brary gallery

2 Treasury garland *anthology florileg um corpus chrestomathy chapbook

Thespian *Actor player impersonator tro[illegible] performer mummer m me thick 1 Thick thickset squat stocky chunk

A colon ( ) groups words discriminated in th dumpy vary widely in their range of appl cation but they reference to plane figures or to surfaces it may sometimes be used in place of deep or broad or wide when these terms refer to one of the three dimens ons of a more or less solid body substance or mass thus a thick board a thick layer a thick covering of snow suggest reference to the measurement from the top to the bottom or from the outs de to the ins de (but one says a deep [not though short is often added to th ckset in descriptions as, he was thick set of figure (Wilde) too thickset For jockeying (Masefield) Squat appl es more generally than thickset and is commonly depreciative it also definitely implies both extreme shortness and th ckness he was sshapen rming) fitted for hard work on the farms stocky young trees child) stubby a resemblance to a stub as of a tree cut f gure)

Ana *Broad wide deep

Ant Thin — Con Slender sl m sl ght tenuous rare (see THIN adj) *lean spare

2 Compact *close dense

Ana Condensed compressed contracted (see CONTRACT v) concentrated compacted (see COMPACT v)

3 Close confidential chummy *famil ar intimate thickset Stocky *thick squat chunky stubby dumpy

Ana Bulky *massive massy *fleshy, stout portly pl mp thief Robber burglar larcener See under THEFT thin, adj Thin, slender, slim, slight, tenuous, rare come into comparison as a group of adjectives of wide range of application (cf LEAN, MEAGER) that are in general referable not only to measure in width or amount but also to quantity or quality and that agree in meaning not broad, or thick or abundant or dense Thin basically implies comparatively little extension between two surfaces of a thing (as a thin layer of cement a thin stratum of rock, a thin coin) or the comparatively small diameter of a cylindrical or nearly cylindrical thing in proportion to its height or length (as a thin body a thin trunk of a tree, a thin wire) In its extended senses the term usually implies the lack of flesh or substance or something comparable to flesh and substance that fills out a thing to its normal or usual extent and gives it fullness richness substantiality compactness density or the like as, a thin face, thin wine, a thin argument a thin forest thin hair, thin pebbly earth which was merely the rock pulverized by weather (Cather) like the air of a mountain top—thin but pure and bracing (Inge) Would make a sound as thin and sweet As trees in country lanes (Millay) Slender in the earliest of its senses (and still its leading sense) applies to the bodies of men and of animals, implying leanness or spareness without however, a suggestion of gauntness or lankiness in fact in present usage it carries also a connotation of gracefulness and usually of good proportions as, a slender girl a slender dog Slender white hands (S Anderson) Slender is preferred to thin in describing things of narrow extension when the thinness is an element of beauty as a slender vase, the slender legs of a Sheraton chair the pure slender lines [in a painting] of water falling from the abrupt wooded crag (Binyon) In its extended use slender is often employed with little distinction from thin but it is often preferred by good writers when quantity or amount rather than quality is stressed as, A few attempts had been made with slender success (Macaulay), being a discreet woman when her pupils went [she] packed up her slender belongings and sought for employment afresh (Kipling) With slender forces he [Octavian] had to face the formidable Sextus (Buchan) such a vision [of life] as might come as the result of few or slender experiences (T S Eliot) Slim differs little or in some use not at all from slender when applied to the figures of persons or animals it tends however to suggest fragility or gauntness rather than grace and lack of flesh rather than excellent proportions as, their children are too slim In its extended senses however slim usually carries a clearer implication of meagerness or scantness than slender which though it suggests smallness in amount or quantity implies less commonly than slim a falling short of adequacy or sufficiency thus slim resources are by suggestion more meager than slender resources so he has a slim chance of recovery his hopes for success are slim there was a slim attendance at the meeting Slight through most of its variations in meaning carries a more obvious implication of smallness than of thinness when applied to persons it seldom suggests height or length as slender usually does or slim sometimes does (as slight in figure a slight middle-aged man) when applied to things it is often derogatory and usually implies mere appreciableness or a failure to come up to a level of that which is commensurate adequate or the like as Away slight man! (Shak) a slight and transient fancy (Arnold) a slight difference his success was slight There is ground to recognise a slight intellectual superiority in the upper social class (H Ellis) he liked the following because it was a slight thing born of immediate impulse (A Huxley) Tenuous basically implies extreme thinness or absence of perceptible thickness the term in its literal senses is applied to lines, cords, wires and other things of great length or height and of minute diameter (as, the most tenuous of threads, as tenuous as the filament of a spider's web) or to fabrics, textiles, and the like which are exceedingly sheer or gauzy (as a tenuous film covered the scalded milk, the tenuous web of a spider, tenuous fabrics such as tulle and chiffon) In its now more common extended senses, tenuous often describes something which covers an expanse but lacks density compactness solidity or the like (as "Some [stars] are extremely dense and compact others extremely tenuous"—Eddington "tenuous evening mists"—Karl K. Darrow), or something which is so finespun or so fine-drawn as to be exceedingly subtle abstruse visionary or the like (as "a tenuous idealism"—Binyon poetry ...so tenuous in thought and feeling that only the most exquisite diction can justify its perpetuation in cold print —Grandgent I did not despise the golden, tenuous imaginings starting in my own spirit —Galsworthy) Rare, in the sense here compared (see also INFREQUENT, CHOICE) is now uncommon except in reference to air and gases This is, however the earliest and basic sense of the term originally implying a loose arrangement or wide separation of the component particles or units As applied to air gases and the like it suggests tenuity, or lack of density or compactness, as he was unaccustomed to the rare atmosphere of the high mountains Nova Pictoris which brightened and faded several times may have encountered now a dense and now a rare mass of such dark matter as it plunged on (W Kaempffert)

Ana *Lean, spare lank lanky gaunt *meager, exiguous scanty cadaverous pinched wasted *haggard attenuated extenuated diluted (see THIN v)

Ant Thick.

thin, v Thin, attenuate, extenuate, dilute, rarefy Thin is the most inclusive of these terms and is interchangeable with any of the others though not without loss of precision or of specific connotations Literally it implies reduction in thickness or in density figuratively, it implies a diminution of strength depth intensity, or the like thus a diet of foods which are not flesh or fat builders thins the body one thins a forest by removing surplus trees one thins wine by adding water one's voice thins when one raises its pitch to thin paint constant use thins silver thinned ranks of soldiers. Attenuate in literal use implies thinning by mechanical chemical or other processes such as drawing out spinning fine culturing repeatedly (as a strain of bacteria) or the like or as the effect of conditions which emaciate such as disease or starvation, as, to attenuate wire by drawing it through successively smaller holes to hammer brass in order to attenuate it a wave of potential or current attenuates in magnitude and phase as it travels along a transmission line to attenuate a virus by heating it The powerful frame attenuated by spare living' (Dickens) In figurative use which is very common attenuate implies the loss of properties that are necessary to a thing's strength richness effectiveness, vitality or the like and it often connotes overrefining over subtilizing or overemphasis on the opposite We may reject and reject till we attenuate history into sapless meagerness (F Palgrave) If she had had a little more self-control she would have attenuated the emotion to nothing by sheer reasoning (Hardy) Illusions which science can attenuate or destroy but which it is powerless to enrich (J W Krutch) Extenuate, as here considered (see also PALLIATE) originally meant and still occasionally means to emaciate and exhaust. Peasants so extenuated by hunger that they could scarcely hold the thought opin on and manners is to extenuate the responsib lity of human nature not merely on the moral side but equally on the sp ritual s de " (C Mackenzie) Dilute both in l teral and in figurative use implies a thinning of that which is concentrated by the add tion usually an expans on in volume or a decrease in weight or flame that rarefies and expands her whole being (Hazlitt)

Ana Reduce lessen diminish *decrease *liquefy melt dissolve

Ant Thicken

thing

thing to be seen observed contemplated or the l ke tinction from thing when either word is used to denote something that can be seen or touched or less often tasted heard or smelled For object in this its ordinary chair is an article of furniture articles of apparel

*Item detail particular

1 Think, conceive, imagine fancy, realize en-brings it into being as It was among the ruins of the Capitol that I first conceived the idea of a work wh ch has amused and exercised near twenty years of my life ence of the powers of nature (G L Dickinson) Imagine carries a far stronger implication than conceive does of visual zat on or of definitely imaging a thing as one can conceive but scarcely imagine a world of four dimen but I ever rece ved any impulse to write t seems actual or true "As Father Vaillant remarked at Rome they did not seem to realize that it was no easy matter for two missionaries on horseback to keep up with the march of history (Cather) "People say that they cannot realize these big numbers. But that is the last thing anyone wants to do with big numbers [of miles in astronomical distances]—to realize them (Eddington) Envisage, and the much more recent envision, imply a conception or imagination actually or potentially so clear or so detailed that one does or can contemplate it as though it were before one as the radicals demanded changes which they did not clearly envisage (Buchan), envisaging the future without fear (Bennett), "His blackest hypochondria had never envisioned quite so miserable a catastrophe (L. Strachey) Ana *Consider, weigh revolve, study contemplate *understand comprehend appreciate surmise, *conjecture, guess.

2 Think, cogitate, reflect, reason, speculate, deliberate come into comparison chiefly as intransitive verbs meaning to use one's powers of conception judgment or inference in regard to any matter or subject which concerns one or interests one Think (as here considered) is the general term implying mental activity for the sake of forming ideas or of reaching conclusions the term may or may not suggest closeness of application clearness in the ideas formed or correctness in the conclusions reached though when used without qualification it often does suggest the attainment or approximation of these as, "When I was a child I spake as a child I understood as a child I thought as a child but when I became a man I put away childish things (I Corinthians xiii 11) colleges are places where at least some men learn to think (Lippmann) I am even prepared to be told that when you paid the price of this book you were paying me to think for you (Shaw) Cogitate places more stress on the process than upon the results of thinking it is often used somewhat humorously or ironically to suggest the appearance or the atmosphere of profound but not necessarily valid thinking Still cogitating and looking for an explanation in the fire (Dickens) Mrs Berry had not cogitated long ere she pronounced distinctly and without a shadow of dubiosity My opinion is (Meredith) Reflect usually implies a turning of one's thoughts back upon or back to something that exists has occurred is without explanation or the like it implies quiet and serious consideration or study as [he] stood reflecting on the circumstances of the preceding hours (Hardy) All the most important things in his life [he] sometimes reflected had been determined by chance (Cather) "When on a calm night I look up at the stars I reflect on the wonders of creation the unimportance of this planet and the possible existence of other worlds like ours (L P Smith) Reason implies consecutive logical thought beginning with a postulate or postulates a premise or premises or definite data or evidence and proceeding through inferences drawn from these to a conclusion or judgment as to reason about the nature of matter few can reason clearly or consecutively for any length of time since where all is uncertain we must reason from what is probable of human nature (Quiller-Couch), No man as near death as I was feeling could I reasoned be absorbed by such trifles (Lucas) Speculate implies the processes of reasoning but stresses either the uncertainty of the premises or the incompleteness of the data and therefore usually imputes a hypothetical or theoretical character to the conclusions reached [Tiberius's retirement] was a strange incident in a life of vigorous action and Rome speculated assiduously on the cause (Buchan) It is interesting to speculate whether it is not a misfortune that two of the greatest masters of diction in our language Milton and Dryden, triumph with a dazzling disregard of the soul" (T S Eliot) Deliberate suggests slow and careful thought or reasoning on the part of an individual or group, especially before announcing a conclusion or decision; as Please you deliberate a day or two (Shak), "The future relations of the two countries could now be deliberated on with a hope of settlement (Froude) Ana *Ponder meditate muse ruminate *infer, deduce, conclude judge thirst, v Hunger, pine yearn *long hanker Ana Covet crave, *desire wish want thither. Thither, there indicate a point or place away from the one where the speaker or writer is Thither was formerly in common use with verbs of motion (such as come bring send etc), there with verbs of rest (such as be live stay etc.) In modern usage there has displaced thither except in poetic or elevated style and is now employed after verbs of motion as well as of rest thoroughfare. Highway highroad *road roadway street avenue boulevard terrace, drive parkway byway lane alley alleyway though Though, although, albeit introduce subordinate clauses stating something that is or may be true in spite of what is asserted in the main clause Though the most widely used of these words is less formal than although which comes close to it in meaning the clause it introduces may state an established fact or a supposition (either a hypothesis or an admission of possibility or probability), in the former case the conjunction is usually followed by a verb in the indicative mood in the latter by one in the subjunctive mood as though the work has many good points, it is open to severe criticism let us not defer our trip though it rain tomorrow Though he slay me yet will I trust in him" (Job xiii 15) In modern formal writing although is usually preferred to though when it introduces an assertion of fact when the subordinate clause precedes the main clause, and when there is no ellipsis, as, although his policy has not yet been fully declared, we have reason to believe that it will be acceptable to all Although the necessity of renunciation is evidence of the existence of evil yet Christianity in preaching it has shown wisdom The belief that what must be renounced is bad though sometimes false is far less often false than untamed passion supposes (B Russell) Albeit, though widely regarded as archaic, is often used in good modern prose when the idea of admission of that which seems a contradiction is expressed A worthy fellow Albeit he comes on angry purpose now (Shak) thought. *Idea concept, conception notion, impression Ana *Opinion view, sentiment, belief conviction persuasion thoughtful 1 Thoughtful, reflective, speculative, contemplative meditative pensive are here compared as applied to persons, their moods attitudes expressions utterances and the like and as meaning characterized by or manifesting the power to engage in thought especially in concentrated thinking Thoughtful may imply either the act of thinking concentratedly or the disposition to apply oneself to the careful and serious consideration of problems or questions at issue as he has a shrewd rather than a thoughtful face Marlowe—not excepting Shakespeare or Chapman the most thoughtful and philosophical mind though immature among the Elizabethan dramatists (T S Eliot) So now you know why it [social sm] is advocated so widely by thoughtf il and experienced people in all classes (Shaw) Reflective d ffers from thoughtful in its stronger implica tion of orderly processes of thought such as analysis logical reasoning or the like and in its suggestion of a definite aim such as the understanding of a thing s nature or of its relation to other things or the reaching of a definite conclusion Men of reflective and analytical habit eager to rationalize its [plutocracy s] instincts and to bring it into some sort of relationship to the main streams of human thought (Mencken) Speculative (etymolog cally spying out) implies a tendency or in clination to think about things d rect knowledge of which is either impossible or so extremely l mited that any conclusions are bound to be uncertain as economics is regarded by many persons as a speculative sc ence speculat ve writing about the state (Frankfurter) Hence the term often impl es theorizing or conjecturing without cons deration of the evidence or with l ttle attention to the evidence as About a thousand prac tical and positive top cs the Frenchman who speaks from experience and examination finds our views specu lative and immature (Brownell) The philosophical background of Ch nese culture has always tended to know or comprehend (such as God the Absolute the future l fe) as The women were the crown ng joy of h s contemplati e mind Dear demonstrative crea tures! (Meredith) Practical curiosity becomes con templative and exam nes things for their own sake when purpose such as understand ng a th ng or reach ng a con clusion regarding it The term therefore often comes close to thoughtful though it usually impl es some con secutive reason ng and sometimes suggests pleasure rather than seriousness in the exe indulge

ment

mind is not though es s g suggestion of dreaminess of wistfulness, or of melancholy as For oft when on my couch I l e In vacant or in pensive

Ana *Serious earnest grave sober engrossed absorbed *intent *abstracted preoccupied

2 Thoughtful, considerate, attentive, as here compared are applied to persons and their acts in the sense of mind ful of the comfort or happiness of another or of o hers Thoughtful usually implies unselfish concern for others concern for the feel ng of others or thoughtfulness in preventing or in rel eving pain suffering or the l ke social only gregarious not considerate only pol te (Shaw) Attentive emphasizes continuous thoughtfulness, or impl es repeated acts of kindness or courtesy I as never more surprized than by his behaviour to us It was more than civil it was really attentive (Austen) There was a very tender feeling between David and Aunt Marian as he called her He was almost more attentive to her than her own children (M Austin) us concerned careful anxious (see under cous polite gallant chivalrous (see CIVIL) tless

*Careless heedless inadvertent reckless foolhardy (see ADVENTUROUS) inconcerned incurious aloof lax remiss tful

thrall *Serf villein vassal slave bondslave bonds man bondman peon Helot thrash, v 1 Thresh *beat pound pummel buffet baste belabor

Ana *Strike smite slug slap winnow (see SIFT) brandish *swing wave manipulate swing ply *handle

Shopworn *trite hackneyed stereotyped lated obsolete archaic (see OLD) exhausted ined impoverished (see DEPLETE)

Threaten menace agree in meaning to fore-ord look or other means an evil an injury fliction likely to be visited upon one Threaten mplies an attempt to d ssuade or influence by punishments you do not mean to inflict ll) However the term has been so extended in its meaning that it is now often used without reference to persons who issue such warnings or who promise such penalties and with reference to things such as events conditions or symptoms which presage or otherw se in d cate something often but not necessarily something d re or d sturb ng to happen as overcast skies that threaten rain disputes wh ch threaten a rupture The recollection of the forty tons of dynamite in the body of the Ferndale not the sort of cargo one thinks of with equanimity in connexion with a threatened coll s on (Conrad) Without invoking the rule of strict construc tion I think that so near as to obstruct means so near an alarming or a definitely hostile character or aspect, as, he did not actually threaten me but his tone was menacing; conditions that menace our liberty; "Is it not experience which renders a dog apprehensive of pain when you menace him?" (Locke); "Her subjects were incited to rebellion, her life was menaced" (Macaulay)

Ana *Intimidate, bulldoze, cow, browbeat: forebode, portend, presage, augur (see FORETELL): *warn, forewarn, caution.

thresh, v Thrash, *beat, pound, pummel, buffet, baste, belabor.

Ana Winnow (see SIFT): *strike, smite.

thrifty Economical, *sparing, frugal.

Ana Provident, prudent, foresighted (see under PRUDENCE): saving, preserving, conserving (see SAVE).

Ant Wasteful.

thrill, v Thrill, electrify, enthuse are here compared as meaning to fill a person with emotions that stir or excite one physically and mentally or, less often, to be stirred by such emotions. Thrill (etymologically, to pierce) suggests pervasion by emotions that set one's nerves tingling or quivering with pleasure, horror, or the like; commonly it implies an agreeable sensation even when the exciting cause is painful; as, a thrilling detective story; he thrilled his audience with his stirring appeal for action; I thrilled in response to his appeal; "Me mightier transports move and thrill" (Tennyson); "Why should not mind be able to pass on to mind its thrilled sense of a storm or a flower?" (C. E. Montague). Electrify differs from thrill in suggesting effects comparable to those produced by an electric current that shocks rather than stuns; it implies a sudden startling and violent stimulation of the nerves or by the mind by a power that for the time being holds one obedient to its will or under its sway; as, "Those heights of courage which electrify an army and ensure victory" (Burke); "She was not eating anything; she was using up all her vitality to electrify these heavy lads into speech" (Cather). Enthuse, a back formation from enthusiasm, has not been accepted by careful writers and speakers; it is often used carelessly or by undiscriminating writers and speakers to imply a stirring of or a being stirred by strong emotions such as ardor, fervor, zeal, and the like; as, to enthuse an audience with his suggestions for home defense; the people were not enthused over the prospect of war; he was always enthusing about the latest play he had seen.

Ana Excite, stimulate, galvanize, quicken (see PROVOKE): *stir, arouse, rouse, rally: penetrate, pierce, probe (see ENTER): quiver, tremble, shiver (see SHAKE).

throb, v Beat, *pulsate, pulse, palpitate.

throb, n Beat, pulsation, pulse, palpitation. See under PULSATE.

throe *Pain, ache, pang, twinge, stitch.

throng, n *Crowd, press, crush, mob, rout, horde.

Ana *Multitude, army, host, legion: assembly, congregation, gathering, collection (see under GATHER).

through *By, with.

throw, v Throw, cast, fling, hurl, pitch, toss, sling are synonymous terms when they mean to cause to move swiftly forward, sideways, upward, or downward by a propulsive movement, as of the arm, or by means of a propelling instrument or agency. Throw, now the general word, is often but not always followed by an adverb such as off, away, down, up, etc. to indicate not only the direction of that which is being propelled, but sometimes, especially in idiomatic phrases, its destination or disposal; as, "people who live in glass houses should not throw stones" (Proverb); "Throw physic to the dogs; I'll none of it" (Shak.); the fire engine throws a long stream of water; this gun throws a huge shell; to throw away food; to throw off one's coat; "The sceptic cannot throw his opponent if his own feet are in the air" (Inge). Cast is often interchangeable with throw but in current use it seems somewhat archaic unless that which is thrown is light (as, to cast a net; to cast dice) and is either directly aimed (as, to cast one's line in angling) or scattered more or less carefully (as, to cast seed) or is thrown only in a figurative sense (as, to cast a black look); "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her" (John viii. 7); "Every tree therefore which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire" (Luke iii. 9). Fling implies much more violence in throwing or propulsion than either of the preceding words; commonly it also implies a force gained from strong emotion such as anger, contempt, or enthusiasm; "I would sooner take Empedocles's leap and fling myself into Mount Etna" (Cowper); "Then he loathed his own beauty and, flinging the mirror on the floor, crushed it into silver splinters beneath his heel" (Wilde); "It's no use!" cried Constance, flinging away her work" (Bennett). Hurl stresses driving and impetuous force that makes for speed and distance; as, to hurl quoits; "Him the Almighty Power Hurled headlong flaming from the ethereal sky" (Milton). Pitch more than any of the preceding words implies a sense of direction and of a definite aim in throwing; it is the preferred term in some competitive games such as baseball where skill in determining what course the thrown thing will take is important and in some employments, such as farming, where things are thrown to a definite spot; as, to pitch a spear; to pitch a ball; to pitch hay. Toss implies light, careless, or more or less aimless throwing; as, "he . . . tossed me some pieces of money" (Dickens); she rested on a log and tossed the fresh chips (Frost); the angry bull tossed the boy over the wall; to toss a coin to decide which should go. The term often also suggests a throwing to and fro or up and down (as, an hour's play in tossing a ball; "They discussed a doubt and tost it to and fro" —Tennyson). Sling does not as often, as in earlier English, imply the use of a sling or an instrument for throwing or hurling missiles such as stones or shot. When it does not, however, it retains its implication of a sudden, violent propulsion and of directness of aim; as, to sling snowballs.

Ana Drive, impel (see MOVE v): propel, thrust, shove, *push: heave, raise, *lift, boost.

throwback *Reversion, atavism.

thrust, v *Push, shove, propel.

Ana *Throw, cast, fling: drive, impel, *move: *enter, penetrate, pierce.

thrust, n *Stress, strain, pressure, tension, shear, torsion.

thug *Ruffian, desperado, gangster, Mohock, apache.

thwart Foil, *frustrate, baffle, balk, circumvent, outwit.

Ana *Hinder, impede, obstruct, block, bar: defeat, overcome, surmount (see CONQUER): check, curb, *restrain: *prevent, forestall, anticipate.

tickle *Please, regale, arride, gratify, delight, rejoice, gladden.

Ana Divert, *amuse, entertain: *thrill, electrify.

tide, n 1 Time, *opportunity, occasion, chance, break, bent.

Ana *Juncture, emergency, exigency, contingency.

2 Flood, *flow, stream, current, flux.

tidings *News, intelligence, advice.

tidy *Neat, trim, trig, snug, shipshape, spick-and-span.

Ana *Orderly, methodical, systematic.

Ant Untidy. — Con. *Slipshod, slovenly, sloppy, unkempt.

tie, v Tie, bind agree in meaning to make fast or secure They are often used interchangeably without marked knotted and the attachment of one thing that may wander or move by that cord or rope to another that is stable I ll tie them [our horses] in the wood (Shak) Bind, on the other hand impl es the use of a band or attachment is not connoted or is very weak t e still im pl es knotting and bind the use of an encircling band (such as a bandage or bandeau) or a bond (such as a strength or mutual support (as the common danger bound all classes together And vows of faith each to the other bind —Shelley) or a be ng held down by a world (Shelley) Ana *Fasten attach *secure rivet anchor moor *jo n, connect link, Ant Untie

tie n *Bond band

tiff n *Quarrel bickering spat squabble wrangle altercation.
Ana Scrap rumpus row *brawl bro l var ance d s sens on contention *d scord tiff v Spat bicker quarrel squabble wrangle altercate See under QUARREL n Ana D spute argue (see DISCUSS) differ from *differ with *contend fight wh ch it is here chiefly considered but even in the latter tight the gra n w ll leak out almost a shoveled in —Grandgent) when appl ec

A colon ( ) groups words d scriminated it may imply either secretiveness (as 'and loose take refuge in gaps find themselves in a tight place when the gaps begin to close —Inge) When the empl as s is upon pull ng or stretching a cord a rope a fabric, or the l ke to the po nt where it can be stretched no more with closely and firmly or is stretched to the limit between than nautical or mechanical use taut often carries a sug gestion of strain especially of nervous strain as the full l ps thrust out and taut like the flesh of animals distended by fear or des re (Cather) in exchanging phys cal or more often nervous strain or that manifests

(W James) Just as a bicycle chain may be too tight so may one s carefulness and conscientiousness be so tense as to hinder the running of one s mind (W James)
Day after day I searched among the ruins and viewed with a tense anx ety the hundreds of corpses constantly being carried to the morgues (V Heiser) Ana Strict stringent (see RIGID) *close compact con str cted contracted compressed condensed shrunken (see CONTRACT v) snug shipshape (see NEAT) Ant Loose

2 Also tightfisted *Stingy close closefisted nig gardly parsimonious penurious, miserly curmudgeonly cheeseparing penny pinching Ana *Me n ignoble sord d abject ucated *drunk drunken inebriate in

*S lent uncommun cative taciturn pped closemouth ed ret cent reserved tilt, v *Tip cant careen heel l st chance break

exigency able pat r su table (see ntial.

no fear! 1 and (Cather) A timid person would rather remain miserable than do anything unusual (B Russell) Timorous on the other hand stresses domination by fears and apprehensions it implies a temporary or habitual frame of mind which causes one to shrink from any action or activity which requires independence decision, self assertiveness or the like it therefore suggests terror rather than extreme caution, as Murray, the most timorous as Byron called him of all God s booksellers (Scott) in another moment she seemed to have descended from her womanly eminence to helpless and timorous girlhood (E Wharton), timorous and fearful of challenge (Mencken)

Ana *Fearful apprehensive afraid *cautious circumspect calculating wary chary *cowardly pusillanimous

Ant Valiant.

timorous *Timid

Ana *Fearful, apprehensive afraid recoiling shrinking quailing blenching (see RECOIL) trembling quivering shivering shuddering (see SHAKE) tincture, n *Touch suggestion tinge suspicion, soupçon, shade smack spice dash vein strain, streak.

Ant Assured

tinge n 1 Tint shade hue, *color chroma

2 Tinge *touch suggestion shade suspicion, soupçon, smack spice dash vein strain streak tint, n Hue shade *color chroma tinge.

tiny, Minute miniature diminutive wee *small little teeny weeny tip, v Tip tilt cant careen heel list agree in meaning to cause something to incline from a vertical or horizontal position or to suffer such an inclination Tip now often depends on a succeeding adverb or adverbial phrase to indicate how far this inclination goes or what direction it takes as, to tip over a vase or a chair the boat is tipping over to tip dirt out of a cart to tip up a mattress to tip one s chair backward When used without such a word or phrase the term usually implies either any possible direction or the conventional direction as, you will tip the boat if you all stand on this side to tip one s hat in saluting Tilt etymologically carries a stronger implication of unsteadiness or of tottering than tip but it has lost this connotation in all but one of its senses when it suggests swaying or pitching as of a ship in rough seas The floating vessel with beaked prow Rode tilting o er the waves (Milton) Otherwise tilt suggests a distinct and often a permanent slope or slant for this reason although the terms are interchangeable careful writers and speakers show a preference for tip when the reference is to things that are not stationary and for tilt when the reference is to things that are fixed in position as the board tips slightly the tree tilts to the south "That tilted cobble street winding down a hill (Cather) Cant is also often used in place of tip or tilt but it is preferred to either when that which is tipped or tilted is inclined at or near an angle of 90° thus a tipped-over boat by implication overturns a canted (or canted-over) boat by implication (unless corrected by the context) lies on its side Cant sometimes carries so strong a suggestion of throwing or tossing that the term carries little or no implication of tipping or inclining "What if the wave ebbed with me? Whereas it cants you to another crest (Browning) Careen and heel as transitive verbs are chiefly used in reference to ships that are turned on one side especially for cleaning and repairing the parts below the waterline Consequently both verbs but especially careen often also imply cleaning caulking and the like Finding a convenient harbor he unloaded and careened his vessels (Irving) As intransitive verbs they are chiefly used in reference to ships, especially sailing vessels that cant obviously or dangerously because of a strong wind or unbalanced loading Careening as if never more to right (W Falconer) Eight hundred of the brave Had made the vessel heel And laid her on her side (Cowper) List, which is commonly but not exclusively an intransitive verb also is a nautical term It differs from careen and heel chiefly in suggesting a dangerous loss of balance owing to the shifting of the cargo to one side the entrance of water into the hold or the like as it was not until they noticed the listing of the ship that they discovered that the emergency bulkheads had not been closed

Ana Incline *slant slope lean.

tippler, *Drunkard, inebriate, alcoholic dipsomaniac sot, soak toper tosspot tipsy, Intoxicated, inebriate inebriated *drunk drunken, tight tire, v Tire weary fatigue, exhaust, jade, fag tucker agree in meaning to make or in some cases to become disinclined or unable to continue because of loss of strength or endurance Tire is the general and ordinary word and usually implies the draining of one s strength or patience it may suggest any of several causes such as overexertion long continuance at a task, boredom a sense of futility or the like, and usually it requires textual amplification to indicate the cause and the degree of the effect "It tires me to death to read how many ways the warrior is like the moon or the sun, or a rock or a lion, or the ocean (Walpole) Music that gentlier on the spirit lies Than tired eyelids upon tired eyes (Tennyson) Then to the visible embarrassment of his young associates he suddenly tired of it all [fashionable society] and joined the Anglo-Catholic persuasion (Day Lewis) "We shall not fail or falter we shall not weaken or tire (Winston S Churchill) Weary as often suggests an incapacity for enduring more of the same thing or an unwillingness to continue one s effort one s interest or the like as a depletion of that strength or that interest The others would never even raise their eyes when this happened as men too well aware of the futility of their fellows attempts and wearied with their useless repetition (Kipling) "Ah I am worn out—I am wearied out— It is too much—I am but flesh and blood And I must sleep (Millay) "The Muses are vindictive virgins, and avenge themselves without mercy on those who weary of their charms" (L P Smith) It did not last the Crofts marriage In the spring of '95 Stanley wearied of her husband s infidelities, and could not bear them any more (R Macaulay) Fatigue is stronger than tire and implies great lassitude brought on by overstrain or undue effort It usually implies an incapacity for further strain or effort without untoward effects as his physician ordered him to avoid fatiguing himself until he had regained his strength [My head] is so fatigued by breakfast time I am utterly incapable of sitting down to my desk again" (Cowper) She flung herself upon a sofa, protesting that she was fatigued to death (Burney) Exhaust (as here considered see also DEPLETE) heightens fatigue s implications of drained strength or a worn-out condition of mind or of body as, she is too exhausted to sleep "I am so exhausted as not to be able to write (Cowper) Jade (etymologically from jade a worn out horse) implies weariness or fatigue that makes a person (sometimes a thing) lose all freshness and spirit and become dull and languid The term seldom carries as clear a suggestion of physical or mental overexertion as fatigue and often implies even more satiety than weary it is especially useful when the implication of overindul gence in someth ng or the overworking of some power is weariness or fatigue I worked at correcting manu script which fags me excessively (Scott) And man to man with a gasp for breath Said Lord what a run I m fagged to death (Masefield) Tucker usually with impoverish bankrupt tire, v Attire *clothe dress apparel array, robe vest invest

Ana, Ant, & Con See those at ATTIRE tire, n Attire *clothes clothing dress apparel raiment vesture array tireless *Indefatigable weariless untiring unwea tiguing exhausting jad ng fagging (see TIRE v) arduous *hard d fficult tiro Variant of TYRO titanic *Enormous immense huge vast g gantic giant gigantean colossal mammoth elephantine herculean Cyclopean Antaean Gargantuan Brob d ngnag an tithe, n *Tax levy assessment rate excise impost customs duty toll tariff tribute teind cess title, n 1 *Cla m pretens on pretense

Ana *Right priv lege prerogative b rthr ght *reason ground argument proof *due desert merit

2 *Name designation denomination appellation style tittle *Particle bit mite smitch smidgen whit atom iota jot toady, n *Parasite sycophant favorite lickspit hanger-on leech sponge toady, v *Fawn truckle cringe cower

Ana Ingratiate insinuate (see correspond ng adjectives at DISARMING) *follow tag trail tail blandish cajole wheedle (see COAX) toboggan, v Coast *slide slip glide skid gl ssade slither tocsin, *Alarm alarum alert

Ana Signal *sign

toff *Fop dandy beau coxcomb exquisite élegant dude macaroni buck spark swell nob toffish or toffy *Styl sh fashionable mod sh smart chic dapper dashing spruce brave braw natty nifty nobby posh toil, n Labor *work trava l swink drudgery grind

t

2 *Pledge earnest pawn hostage gage

Ana *Guarantee guaranty security surety tolerance Forbearance leniency indulgence clemency ness See under FORBEARING lercy charity grace, lenity *patience long longanimity lerance loathing

*Forbearing lenient indulgent clement, haritable benevolent humane forgiving ex cusing condoning (see EXCUSE v)

Ant Intolerant severe tolerate Endure abide *bear suffer stand brook

Ana Accept *receive submit *yield bow succumb

*Tax levy assessment rate excise impost cus-property character tongue *Language dialect speech idiom tonguelash, v Upbraid rate berate *scold jaw bawl out wig rail revile vituperate tonic *Restorative alterative jaws or in some cases on the wall of the mouth or of the pharynx of vertebrates and used cl efly in the grasping the b ting and the mastication of food Tooth is the general term but it is used so frequently with reference to the appendages on the jaws of human beings and many of the higher vertebrates that it is rarely employed in such as the elephant the walrus, the narwhal and the wild boar and which typically projects from the mouth even when the mouth is closed and serves as a means of digging up food or as a weapon or the like Fang is a long sharp tooth characteristic of carnivorous animals suggests a thing which eats or destroys (as the tooth of time Fell sorrow s tooth —Shak) or denotes a taste or appetite for food such as is described (as a sweet tooth) t sk is used contemptuously of abnormally large project ing human teeth (as when he opened h s mouth he

—G Eliot

ry sap d somaniac.

nent text

torment, v Torture rack grill *afflict try

Ana *Worry annoy harry harass plague pester d stress *trouble *bait badger hector agonize *writhe tornado passive stolid Ant Agile

torpidity Torpor stupor *lethargy languor lassitude Ana Inertness inact v ty idleness passiveness (see cor respond ng adject ves at INACTIVE) torpor Torp d ty stupor *lethargy languor lass tude Ana Apathy phlegm mpass v ty stolid ty (see under IMPASSIVE) inertness or inert a pass veness inactiv ty (see correspond ng adjectives at INACTIVE) Ant Animat on. torsion *Stress stra n pressure tens on shear thrust tort Injury wrong gr evance * n ustice tortuous *Winding anfractuous s nuous serpent ne flexuous.
Ana *Crooked devious labyrinth ne mazy (see corre-spond ng nouns at LABYRINTH) roundabout circuitous *indirect ☞ Do not confuse tortuous w th torturous torture v Rack torment gr ll *afflict try Ana. *Writhe agonize persecute oppress * vrong *d stress, trouble *worry annoy harry harass *maim mutilate mangle toss v P tch sl ng *throw cast fl ng hurl Ana Impel drive (see MOVE v) thrust propel (see PUSH v) tosspot *Drunkard nebriate alcoholic d psomaniac sot soak toper t ppler total adj *Whole entire all gross Ana Complete *full plenary nclud ng or inclus ve comprehend ng or comprehens ve (see correspond ng verbs at INCLUDE) total n *Sum aggregate whole amount number quantity total v *Add sum figure cast foot totalitarian adj Totalitarian authoritarian as appl ed to a government or state requ re d scriminat on for author ta an state is so organized that the final and Chancellor in 1933 became a total ta ian state. totter *Shake tremble quake quaver qu ver shiver shudder wobble teeter shimmy d dder d ther

Ana Rock agitate *shake convulse sway *swing fluctuate osc llate waver

1 *Affect influence impress strike sway ouse *st r exc te st mulate qu cken (see) * n ure harm damage hurt impa r ach rival *match equal touch n Touch suggestion suspicion, soupçon tincture tinge shade smack spice dash, vein strain

Touch often suggests an impress on left on someone or (Altered t) a subject ve t nge entered nto the n ne-teenth-century descr pt on of natu e (Jeans) Imag st ol p a s, w th the pleasant wholesome sma k of the so l n them (Arnold) Not only sp ce but also dash suggests a sl ght admixture or nfus on especially such as

He had (M W lk

a strain of eccentricity amounting in some cases almost to insanity (L P Smith) Streak, like strain is applied chiefly to one s character but it less often implies

Ana *Trace vestige contamination pollution defilement tainting (see corresponding verbs at CONTAMINATE) *impression impress imprint stamp print touching Affecting *moving impressive poignant pathetic

Ana *Tender responsive sympathetic, compassionate *pitiful piteous pitiable touchstone Criterion *standard gauge yardstick

Ana Test proof trial demonstration (see under PROVE) touchy *Irascible choleric splenetic testy techy cranky cross

Ana *Irr table fractious snappish waspish peevish table refractory recalcitrant headstrong (see UNRULY) dogged pertinacious *obstinate stubborn

Ant Frag le tour, n *Journey voyage trip cru se expedition jaunt excursion pilgrimage tow, v Tug haul hale *pull draw drag tower, v Mount ascend soar rocket *rise arise levitate surge toxic or toxical *Po sonous venomous virulent mephitic, pestilent pestilent al miasmatic miasmic miasmal toxin *Poison venom virus bane toy, v *Trifle dally flirt coquet

Ana *Play sport disport frol c fondle *caress pet cuddle dandle trace n Trace vest ge t ack rack ...

winter s traces (Swinburne) it was the Indian s way to pass through a country and leave no trace (Cather) the trace Of higher tides along the beach (Millay) But the term is more often used w thout reference to a line to suggest any mark material or the sense of a l ne of perceptible marks especially in the marks made by the little feet on the virgin snow and he followed their track to the furze bushes (G Eliot) sense of a driving mist or in the dialectal sense of a track or in the sense of wreckage (as in rack and ruin) has not been definitely established but the term still occurs in trace, v *Sketch outline d agram delineate draft plot blueprint

Ana Copy duplicate reproduce (see corresponding nouns at REPRODUCTION) map *chart graph tracing, n Sketch outl ne d agram delineation draft plot blueprint See under SKETCH v

Ana *Reproduction copy dupl cate *plan project scheme plot design track, n *Trace vest ge rack

Ana Print stamp imprint (see IMPRESSION) *s gn, mark token.

tract *Area region zone belt

Ana *Expanse stretch spread amplitude *locality d str ct v c n ty sect on sector *part portion.

docile *obed ent submissive subdued (see

Con Ungovernable re- headstrong willful (see UNRULY) stubborn te

1 Trade craft handicraft art profession are here compared as general terms which des gnate a type ss agriculture and s applied chiefly to r mechanical labor the trade lve not only manual or less freedom for and the like many ll carried on inde- ent of each group machine work, it not only implies handwork but usually consistently used of these words, it is found in such phrases as the manual arts, the industrial arts; the mechanic arts; the household arts, the decorative arts; the hieved and the exercise of personal judgment or taste, is often difficult, however, apart from the con termine whether the word denotes a pursuit or que, as, the art of navigation, the art of XCHANGE).

Commerce, *business, industry rade, v Barter, *sell, vend, auction.

*Malign, asperse, vilify, calumniate, defame bel.

ecry, detract from, derogate from depreciate, : revile, vituperate (see SCOLD, v)

1 *Business, commerce, trade industry insportation, conveyance, carrying (see corre- verbs at CARRY).

ess, trade

lling, vending, bartering, trading (see SELL) urchasing (see BUY) course, commerce, dealings communication on, commune, conversation, converse, correspondence hain, string

*Teach discipline, school instruct, educate tice, exercise, drill. *habituate, accustom, *harden inure, season.

ect, point, level, lay

i, divert, deflect

*Wander, stray, roam, ramble, rove, range, gallivant, meander

Treacherous, perfidious, *faithless false, ant, renegade, apostate (see corresponding ENEGADE) seditious, mutinous rebellious RDINATE): disaffected, estranged, alienated GE).

*Hamper, fetter, shackle, clog manacle, der, impede, obstruct, block, bar *restrain, c, inhibit *limit, restrict, circumscribe tramp, tramper. *Vagabond, vagrant, hobo, truant, bum, stiff swagman, sundowner.

tranquil Serene, placid *calm, peaceful halcyon.

ill, silent, noiseless *soft gentle, mild ful, *comfortable *cool composed, rpass *exceed excel outdo outstrip , overcome (see CONQUER)

1 Surpassing, superlative, *supreme, inent, incomparable, banner mate, finished accomplished *perfect, itact tal ideal *abstract.

*ultimate, categorical *infinite bound-al. Transcendent, ideal, *abstract.

itural, supranatural categorical, *ulti-opy, carbon copy, duplicate, *reproduc- replica.

transfer, v 1 *Move, remove, shift.

Ana. *Carry, convey, transport, transmit *commit, consign

2 Transfer, convey, alienate, alien, deed are here compared chiefly as legal terms meaning to make over property from one owner to another Transfer is the general term, it is applicable when the property is real or personal and when it is passed from one owner to another by sale gift, foreclosure, or the like Convey stresses the legalistic aspects of the transfer, it is the precise term when a sealed writing or deed, plays an essential part in the transfer It is therefore used chiefly of the transfer of real property and of ships Alienate and the less used alien are not always clearly distinguished from transfer or convey, in strict legal use however, they imply the passing of a title by the act of the owner as distinguished from its passing by the operation of the law, as in the case of inheritance by descent, thus entailed property cannot be alienated Alienate however may be used when the sale of property is not voluntary but is ordered or enforced by a court as in foreclosure or in condemnation proceedings In nonlegal use, alienate often implies diversion as by force or by a sovereign power an imperative need or the like 'He pleaded for the resumption by clerics of Church revenues alienated into lay hands' (Belloc) Deed is a popular rather than a legal term but it is equivalent to convey transfiguration. Transformation metamorphosis, transmutation conversion, transmogrification See under TRANSFORM

Ana Exaltation magnification (see corresponding verbs at EXALT) enhancing, heightening intensifying (see INTENSIFY) transfigure *Transform, metamorphose, transmute convert transmogrify transformation, metamorphosis, transmutation, conversion, transmogrification, transfiguration (or, rarely transfigurement) Transform etymologically implies a change in outward form or shape but in its extended transformed in a moment into imperious angry fire (Pater), the task of transforming a heterogeneous selection of mankind into a homogeneous nation (B Russell) Every phenomenon of nature night and rosy fingered dawn, earth and sun winds rivers and seas sleep and death—all have been transformed [by ancient Greek religion] into Divine and conscious agents' (G L Dickinson) Metamorphose is etymologically akin in meaning to transform Actually however it carries im swine) or of a change in structure and habits that marks startling, or violent change, as "this kind of passive, plastic nature, where the whole man is metamorphosed struments subsequently metamorphose into messages of sound, television, etc." (Jeans). Transmute, originally not clearly distinguishable from transform, was early of Mrs Struthers's easy Sunday hospitality they were Lewis) Transmogrify implies a thoroughgoing metamorphosis, often, a grotesque bewildering or sometimes preposterous one the term is often used humorously but already the most diffused throughout Shakespeare's world (T S Eliot) 'The classical heroes and heroines were transmogrified into mediaeval knights and ladies' (Lowes) Transfigure, which is strongly influenced by

Metamorphosis, transmutation conversion transmogrification transfiguration See un responding verbs at TRESPASS) slip lapse *error *offense s n vice crime transient, adj Transient, transitory passing ephemeral, momentary, fugitive, fleeting evanescent short lived trans tory modes in which they appear' —Burke a pass ing fancy The confounding of the Passing with the Permanent —A Austin) Ephemeral etymologically implies existence for a day in this strict sense it is applied to certain l ving things as ephemeral insects ephemeral flowers In extended use it implies marked shortness of life or duration as of influence or appeal ng ve l eeti g evanescent s ort lived

Ant Everlasting perpetual translation. Translation, version, paraphrase, metaphrase construe are here compared only as denoting a rendering in intell g ble language the meaning or sense have taken [in a translation of the Aene d] is not so straight as metaphrase nor so loose as paraphrase (Dryden) Construe is chiefly an academic term for an exercise in translation which emphasizes close adherence to he gramma ical ... al and its limpid

*bright

nunicate orphos s ee under ansmute

Transformation metamorphos s con grification transfiguration See under

*Transform metamorphose convert nsfigure nt *Clear luc d pellucid diaphanous transpid que — Con *Turbid muddy ro led ro ly

*Happen, hap occur chance befall betide v I *Carry bear convey transmit ve remove shift transfer *br ng fetch take *banish exile expatriate ostracize extradite el *eject, oust transport, n *Ecstasy rapture.

Ana Enthusiasm *passion fervor ardor *inspiration fury frenzy bliss beatitude blessedness fel city *happiness

*Reverse invert hange interchange swap transfer shift (see ure bait decoy snare agem ruse *trick maneuver artifice wile nbush, ambuscade intrigue machinat on piracy ntrap snare ensnare bag *catch capture

Ana Seize *take clutch grasp betray beguile delude (see DECEIVE) travail 1 Labor *work swink toil drudgery grind Ana *Effort exertion pains trouble 2 Labor, *childbirth parturition, delivery accouchement traverse *Deny gainsay contradict negative impugn contravene Ana Controvert confute refute *disprove rebut Ant Allege

travesty, n *Caricature parody burlesque travesty, v Caricature parody burlesque See under CARICATURE n Ana *Copy mimic ape mock imitate treacherous Perfidious traitorous *faithless false disloyal Ana Betraying deceiving misleading double-crossing (see DECEIVE) recreant dastardly (see COWARDLY) seditious mutinous rebellious (see INSUBORDINATE) *dangerous perilous jeopardous treason *Sedition

Ana Revolution revolt *rebellion uprising insurrection betrayal deceiving or deception double-crossing (see corresponding verbs at DECEIVE) overthrowing or overthrow subverting or subversion (see corresponding verbs at OVERTURN) Ant Allegiance (sense 2) treasure, v Prize value *appreciate cherish Ana Esteem respect regard admire (see under REGARD n) *revere reverence venerate *save preserve conserve treasury. 1 Thesaurus *museum library gallery archives 2 *Anthology garland florilegium thesaurus corpus chrestomathy chapbook treat, v Parley negotiate *confer commune consult advise Ana *Discuss dispute argue debate *consider weigh revolve study *think reason deliberate treaty *Contract bargain compact pact entente con

. .

qua l shrink wince (see RECOIL) tremendous Stupendous monumental prodigious *monstrous Ana *Enormous immense huge vast gigantic colossal astounding amazing flabbergasting (see SURPRISE) terrifying alarming startling frightening (see FRIGHTEN) trench, v Entrench encroach invade *trespass infringe Ana See those at ENTRENCH trenchant *Incisive clear-cut cutting biting crisp Ana Piercing penetrating probing (see ENTER) *sharp keen acute *sarcastic satirical ironical sardonic *caustic mordant acrid scathing poignant *pungent piquant trend *Tendency drift tenor current Ana Movement *motion move inclination disposition predisposition (see corresponding verbs at INCLINE) progression *progress trepidation Horror terror panic consternation *fear dread fright alarm dismay Ana Apprehensiveness fearfulness (see corresponding adjectives at FEARFUL) anxiety worry concern solicitude *care awe *reverence fear trespass, v Trespass encroach, trench entrench (or intrench), infringe, invade are not close synonyms for some are intransitive and usually require a preposition such as on or upon whereas the others may be used both transitively and intransitively Nevertheless they come into comparison because they all mean to make inroads upon the property territory or rights of another Trespass, which is now almost always an intransitive verb implies an intrusion often one that is either an unwarranted and unpardonable or an unlawful and offensive intrusion it is usually but not necessarily followed by on or upon as to warn hunters against trespassing on his land shall probably trespass on your hospitality till the Saturday se nnight following (Austen) what is the difference between the legitimate music of verse and the implies gradual or stealthy entrance upon another s territory or assumption of another s rights or possessions the term may imply either the act of persons or excessive demands upon certain incomes or forms of property a State may injuriously encroach upon the true costs of pecuniary incentives necessary to make capital ability or labour function with full efficiency (J A Hobson) The once more common trench and the currently more commonly entrench throw less emphasis upon unlawful intrusion and more upon cutting into or digging one s way into what belongs to another or should be used in another way or is outside one s sphere than do the preceding words as demands that entrench too much upon one s time questions trenching on rudeness It does not appear that he entrenched upon his own or mental principles as they have been understood by the traditions of our people and our law (Justice Holmes) Invade which is more often a transitive than an intransitive verb implies a definite entrance into the territory or rights of another usually (but not now always) with hostile intent and with injurious effect as, to invade the enemy s country the gangrene has invaded healthy tissues where there is a legal right there is also a legal remedy by suit or action at law whenever that right is invaded (Blackstone) a crowd of tourists invade the town each week end Ana *Intrude obtrude interlope butt in interfere intervene *interpose trespass, n Transgression violation infraction *breach infringement contravention Ana Invading or invasion entrenchment encroachment (see corresponding verbs at TRESPASS) intrusion obtrusion (see corresponding verbs at INTRUDE) *offense sin vice crime trial 1 Test proof demonstration See under PROVE

(

Ana Experiment *experience inspection examination scanning, scrutiny (see under SCRUTINIZE) *process proceeding procedure

2 Trial tribulation ...

heightens the emphasis on the suffering or anguish involved in trial; even more often than the latter it connotes divinely ...

tribe, n Tribe, sib, clan, horde, sept are here compared Israel each of which was believed to have been descended from one of the twelve sons of Jacob or as the ...

in the female line only) from a real or supposed ancestor Both the tribe as a whole and each of the sibs may have a distinct and characteristic form of worship Clan was originally and still is most commonly applied to any of ...

g verbs at WRONG) *sorrow grief, anguish, ss suffering misery, agony tribute, n 1 *Tax levy, assessment, rate excise ...

direction and ingenuity and, often by cunning Trick originally ...

not be entirely sure that he was not after all merely using a trick ...

admire" (Hudson) Ruse always implies an attempt to give a false impression as by diverting others' attention doorstep' (Bennett) "A favorite ruse of the opium smugglers was to insert a hypodermic needle into an egg applied to a r se by h ch an display his pow rs place comply. Conceal his force nay seem sometimes to fly accomplishment of definite ends (as peacetime maneuvers, or exercises) rather than strategy, the employment of military or naval forces in such a way as to get an advantage over the enemy In extended use it commonly quarter of an hour after everybody else was gone

Artifice suggests the employment of invented manufactured or mechanical devices or contrivances it usually connotes

He was no longer a mild old man to be worked on by the use, the term commonly implies the employment of a stratagem or m enemy's forces from B—— where the successful attack was launched cumvent (see FRUSTRATE) cajole, wheedle blandish *coax

*Deception, double-dealing, chicanery, chicane, subterfuge, fraud deceit, dissimulation, guile, cunning, duplicity re, cheat, fraud, sham, fake, humbug, counternstrated, tested (see PROVE) trifle, v Trifle, toy, dally, flirt, coquet come into comparison as meaning to deal with a person or thing without seriousness earnestness close attention or purpose Trifle is the most comprehensive term of the group, for it may be used interchangeably with any of the others, implying any of several attitudes such as

"You see what s to be done and you hear what I say and you know I m not going to be trifled with any longer" (Hard with his watch chain, he was not hungry and only toyed with his food There is evidence that Augustus like Julius toyed with the idea of giving the Assemblies of the interpose a little ease. Let our frail thoughts dally with false surmise" (Milton), I dally with my subject because to myself the remembrance of these times is League called that of Hebron. Richelieu was coquetting with it" (Belloc). "Some of the Modernists have coquetted with this philosophy [pragmatism]" (Inge).

Ana Palter, fib, equivocate, prevaricate, *lie: waver, vacillate, falter, *hesitate: dawdle, dillydally (see DELAY).

trifling Trivial, *petty, puny, paltry, measly, picayunish, picayune.
Ana Inane, wishy-washy, banal, jejune, vapid, *insipid: *vain, idle, otiose, nugatory, empty, hollow: *venial, pardonable.

trig Trim, *neat, tidy, spick-and-span, snug, shipshape.
Ana *Orderly, methodical: spruce, dapper (see STYLISH): *debonair, jaunty.

trigger man Gunman, assassin, finger man, cutthroat, bravo.

trim v *Stabilize, steady, poise, balance, ballast.
Ana *Adjust, regulate, fix: counterbalance, counterpoise, offset, *compensate.

trim adj *Neat, tidy, trig, snug, shipshape, spick-and-span.
Ana *Clean, cleanly: compact, *close: *debonair, jaunty, perky, chipper.
Ant Frowzy.

trip n *Journey, voyage, tour, excursion, cruise, expedition, jaunt, pilgrimage.

trite Trite, hackneyed, stereotyped, threadbare, shopworn come into comparison when they mean being without freshness or power to evoke attention and interest. That is trite (literally, worn by rubbing) which has been spoiled for use by one's long familiarity with it; the term therefore imputes lack of novelty, commonplaceness, and often loss of vital force or power to impress us. "It is a trite but true observation, that examples work more forcibly on the mind than precepts" (Fielding). "a dreary expanse of trite sentiments and languid words" (Sydney Smith). "our most permanent aesthetic satisfactions arise as a rule from things familiar enough to give the pleasure of recognition, yet not so trite as to rob us of the other pleasure of surprise" (Lowes). That is hackneyed (literally, worn out in service as an overworked horse) which has been used so much and so constantly that all its significance has been dulled or all its spirit has been taken out of it. Hackneyed is applied especially to words and phrases that once were impressive and full of meaning but have become vulgarized and almost meaningless in the service of ordinary writers and speakers (cf. cliché under COMMONPLACE): as, hackneyed expressions such as "the cruel waves," "a clinging vine" (as applied to a woman), "honeyed kisses." "the hackneyed comparison betwixt blank verse and rhyme" (Smollett). "language ... worn and hackneyed out of all sense and meaning" (Austen). "the hackneyed melancholy of street music" (L. P. Smith). That is stereotyped (literally, produced from a stereotype) which falls invariably into the same pattern or form as though made by a mechanical impression rather than invented or contrived for the occasion. The word suggests lack of originality in attitude or creativeness: as, "the use of old stereotyped phrases ... to save the trouble of making a new living phrase to suit our meaning" (H. Ellis). "The contemporary thriller is in danger of becoming stereotyped" (T. S. Eliot). "Their [spiders'] cold intelligence, their stereotyped unremitting industry repel me" (L. P. Smith). That is threadbare (literally, worn as the fabric of much used garments, rugs, etc., until the nap or pile is wholly or partly removed) which has been so frequently used or dealt with that all its possibilities have been exhausted and there is no likelihood of awakening further interest in it: as, threadbare plots; a threadbare theme or subject. That is shopworn which is worn and marred by constant handling, as goods in a shop or as things comparable to them: the term suggests a loss of qualities that are necessary to make an appeal to those who can be stimulated only by what is bright, fresh, and new: as, shopworn methods of advertising; shopworn ideas of decoration.
Ana *Old, antiquated, archaic, obsolete: banal, flat, jejune, *insipid, vapid: depleted, exhausted, drained, impoverished (see DEPLETE).
Ant Original: fresh.

triumph n *Victory, conquest.
Ana Vanquishing, subjugation, surmounting, overthrowing, routing (see corresponding verbs at CONQUER).

trivial Trifling, *petty, puny, paltry, measly, picayunish, picayune.
Ana *Small, little, diminutive: *futile, vain, fruitless, bootless: slight, slim, slender, *thin, tenuous.
Ant Weighty: momentous.

troop n Band, troupe, *company, party.
Ana *Crowd, throng, press: assembly, gathering, collection (see under GATHER): legion, host, army, *multitude.

trot v Pace, single-foot, walk, gallop, run, canter, lope, rack, amble. See under TROT n.

trot, n Trot, pace, single-foot, walk, gallop, run, canter, lope, rack, amble all denote gaits, especially or only of the horse, and are used as nouns or verbs. In the trot the legs move in diagonal pairs and the feet are typically on the ground in the following order: right fore; right fore, left hind; left hind; all feet off ground; left fore; left fore, right hind; right hind; all feet off ground. In the pace the legs move in lateral pairs, and the feet are typically on the ground in the following order: right hind; right hind, right fore; all feet off ground; left hind; left hind, left fore; all feet off ground. In the single-foot each foot strikes singly, and there are alternately two feet and one foot on the ground, thus: right hind, right fore; right fore; right fore, left hind; left hind; left hind, left fore; left fore; left fore, right hind; right hind. In the walk there are alternately three and two feet on the ground, thus: left hind, left fore, right hind; left fore, right hind; left fore, right hind, right fore; right hind, right fore; right hind, right fore, left hind; right fore, left hind; right fore, left hind, left fore; left hind, left fore. The gallop is a rapid, springing gait in which the feet are typically on the ground in the following order: left hind; left hind, right hind; right hind; right hind, left fore; left fore; left fore, right fore; right fore; all feet off ground. The run is a much-quickened gallop. The canter is a gallop-like gait in which the bounds or leaps are moderate and easy. The feet are typically on the ground in the following order: right hind; right hind, right fore; right hind, right fore, left hind; right fore, left hind; right fore, left hind, left fore; left hind, left fore; left fore; all feet off ground. The lope is an easy canter. The terms rack and amble are sometimes used interchangeably with single-foot, sometimes with pace.

troubadour Trouvère, *poet, versifier, rhymer, rhymester, poetaster, bard, minstrel, scop, gleeman, jongleur, minnesinger, scald.

trouble v 1 Trouble, distress, ail come into comparison when they mean to cause one to be uneasy or upset. Trouble suggests loss of tranquillity or serenity and implies disturbance of any sort that interferes with one's convenience, comfort, health of body, or peace of mind: as, I shall not trouble you to move; the silence troubled him. "'Tis not my speeches that you do mislike, But 'tis my presence that doth trouble ye" (Shak.). Let not your heart be troubled ye believe in God believe also in me (John xiv 1) Distress implies subjection to strain anxiety distracts or crushes one a person is financially or set

ag tate vex irk *annoy bother rry oil troupe Troop band *company party trouper *Actor player performer mummer mime Thespian impersonator trouvere Troubadour *poet versifier rhymer rhymester poetaster bard minstrel scop gleeman jongleur minnesinger scald truant, n *Vagabond vagrant tramp hobo bum stiff swagman sundowner truce, n Truce, armistice agree in meaning a suspension of hostil ties or an agreement to suspend hostilities Truce is more widely applicable than armistice, which definitely suggests laying down of arms and therefore is

[the fight against Philistinism] was vain if we say that and permits resumption of activities at any time provided the enemy is given warning prescribed by the terms of the agreement thus four armistices were signed by belligerents in the World War in 1918 (one each with Bulgaria Turkey Austria and Germany) thereby pav ing the way for the Versailles Treaty which became effective in 1920 truckle *Fawn toady cringe cower

Ana Defer succumb bow cave in *yield submit *follow tag tra l tail truculent *Fierce ferocious barbarous savage in human cruel fell

Ana Intimidating cowing bulldozing browbeat ng bullying (see INTIMIDATE) terroriz ng terr fy ng frightening (see FRIGHTEN) threatening menacing (see THREATEN) true 1 *Faithful loyal leal constant stanch stead fast resolute

Ana *Reliable dependable trustworthy, tried persevering persisting (see PERSEVERE) *sincere wholehearted whole-souled unfeigned Ant False (sense 2) fickle.

2 *Real actual

Ana Genuine *authentic veritable bona fide exact precise *correct right typical natural *regular

Ant False

*Commonplace platitude bromide cl ché riteness threadbareness (see correspond ng ad at TRITE) banality jejuneness inanity (see an absolute and assured resting on that wh ch is its object it often suggests a basis upon other (not neces sar ly weaker) grounds than experience or sens ble

Confidence may or may not imply defin te grounds for one s assurances such as the support of experience or of convincing evidence when it does it carries less sugges tion of emotional factors than trust and a stronger implication of an assurance based upon the evidence of one s senses as those in whom we had no confidence compared for most common sense see BELIEF 1) in pl es confidence but it often suggests a degree of credul ty or the acceptance of something capable of it was a long time before he lost faith in his doctor s powers

Ana Assurance conviction certitude *certainty *belief fa th credence cred t Ant Mistrust.

2 *Monopoly corner pool syndicate cartel trust, v *Rely depend count reckon bank.

Ana Confide entrust, *commit, consign hope *expect look trustworthy *Reliable dependable trusty tried

Ana. *Safe secure veracious truthful (see corresponding nouns at TRUTH) stanch constant steadfast *faithful honest, *upright, scrupulous.

Ant Deceitful dubious trusty. Trustworthy tried *reliable dependable

Ana *Faithful stanch steadfast constant *reliant self reliant truth. Truth, veracity, verity, verisimilitude come into comparison as terms denoting an abstraction often a quality or property of a person or thing that keeps close to the facts or to things as they are and avoids lies fictions, misrepresentation and the like Truth is in general such conformity to facts or reality It may however denote an abstraction that is purely an ideal construction (as to seek the truth to implant the love of truth) or is regarded as the final goal of the individual s intellectual endeavor (as, ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free —John vi 8 32) or it may denote utterances statements acts or feelings (either singly or collectively) that manifest thus conformity (as he always tells the truth since his actions belied his words they said there was no truth in him, every heart that loves with truth is equal to endure —Tennyson) Veracity denotes a quality of persons as manifested chiefly in their utterances or of the utterances themselves the term implies a rigid respect for truth and accuracy and also either habitual adherence to truth or a willingness to face the truth whatever the cost as to vindicate [Geoffrey s] veracity as an historian (Pope) a man of perfect veracity in thought word and deed (Carlyle) It [Tennyson s charm] lay in a great veracity of soul (Watts Dunton) ' But his passion for veracity always kept him from taking any unfair rhetorical advantages of an opponent (A Huxley) Verity as here considered denotes the quality of a thing that is truly what it purports to be or is in full accordance with the facts as I could almost as soon doubt the Gospel verity as his veracity' (Coleridge) the great seal attests the verity of the presidential signature (Ch Just Marshall) Verisimilitude denotes a quality of representations as in art or in literature that convince one of their truth to life either in detail or in their suggestion of universal conditions often the term implies a conformity not to things as they are actually or momentarily but to things as they are universally and eternally as There is no verisimilitude in the characters but there is verisimilitude in the thoughts they are true to life and are always passing through our minds (Jowett) Scott satisfied himself with seeking verisimilitude rather than antiquarian accuracy (Sir W Raleigh [d 1922]) the mathematical picture [of nature] shows a distinct preeminence over the others in that so far as we know it depicts the phenomena of nature with complete verisimilitude (Jeans) the more one knows of seventeenth-century England the more one marvels at its [Pilgrim s Progress's] verisimilitude (Lowes)

Ana Exactness precision correctness rightness (see corresponding adjectives at CORRECT) authenticity genuineness veritableness (see corresponding adjectives at AUTHENTIC)

Ant Untruth lie falsehood try, v 1 Test *prove demonstrate

Ana *Judge adjudge adjudicate inspect examine *scrutinize

2 *Afflict torment torture, rack grill

Ana *Worry, harass harry plague pester *trouble distress irk, vex bother, *annoy

3 *Attempt endeavor essay assay strive struggle

Ana. *Aim, aspire. *intend, mean, propose, purpose design try, n Attempt endeavor essay, assay striving struggle See under ATTEMPT v

Ana. *Effort exertion trouble pains test trial proof (see under PROVE) tryst. Rendezvous assignation *engagement appointment date tucker Fatigue exhaust jade fag *tire weary

Ana *Deplete drain exhaust impoverish, bankrupt tug, v Tow hale haul, drag *pull draw tumid. *Inflated flatulent, turgid

Ana *Expanded distended swollen dilated pompous pretentious *showy ostentatious bombastic, grandiloquent, magniloquent, *rhetorical.

tumor Tumor, cancer Tumor and cancer are mutually exclusive terms only in strict medical use Tumor often designates any morbid swelling or mass of tissue of which there are two kinds benign (popularly designated simply as a tumor) and malignant (formerly designated simply as a cancer) In the strict medical sense a tumor is an abnormal growth of tissue that serves no useful purpose in the body It does not spread to other parts and usually causes difficulty only by pressure or obstruction. Common forms of benign tumors are adenoma (of glandlike structure or of glandular origin) fibroma (consisting of fibrous tissue) chondroma (consisting of cartilage) lipoma (consisting of fatty tissue) myoma (consisting of muscular tissue) osteoma (consisting of bone) A cancer is a malignant growth of tissue usually ulcerating tending to spread to other parts of the body and associated with general ill health and progressive emaciation. The term cancer is often applied to either of the two forms of malignant growth more specifically denoted by carcinoma (a malignant growth originating in epithelial tissue as in the skin or in the lining of the stomach) or sarcoma (a malignant growth derived from nonepithelial tissue as lymphoid tissue cartilage bone etc) tumulus *Mound bank, dune embankment terrace barrow tune, n *Melody air tune, v *Harmonize attune

Ana *Adjust regulate fix *adapt accommodate reconcile conform turbid Turbid, muddy, roiled (or riled), roily (or riley, rily) agree in meaning not clear or translucent but clouded with sediment or with something like sediment That is turbid either literally or figuratively which is stirred up and disturbed so that it is darkened obscured confused or the like as the turbid water of a river on a stormy day, careless handling of a bottle makes wine turbid ' the turbid ebb and flow of human misery (Arnold), the air without had the turbid yellow light of sand-storms (Cather), for already the phrases at least of Nietzsche were trickling into the turbid current of British thought ' (H G Wells) That is muddy which is turbid or opaque as a result of being mixed with mud or with something similarly slimy or heavy or which is merely mud-colored (as muddy coffee a muddy pond) In figurative use the term carries a stronger suggestion than turbid of a dull heavy or muddled character as a muddy complexion a muddy style Dost think I am so muddy so unsettled? (Shak) Turbid ecstasy' is surely not good Turbid rather suits the muddy kind of inspiration which London porter confers

(Lamb) That is roiled or roily (or in colloquial use in the Un ted States riled or riley) wh ch is turb d and ag tated as that wh ch bubbles from a roiled mind (J Beaumont) the motorboat left behind it a wake of roily water

Ana Obscure *dark murky opaque *dirty foul nasty

Ant Clear limpid

turgid Tumid *inflated flatulent

Ana Expanded distended ampl fied swollen (see EXPAND) magniloquent grand loquent *rhetorical bombast c turn v 1 Turn, revolve rotate gyrate circle spin whirl twirl wheel eddy swirl pirouette come into com par son when they mean to go or move or less often cause to go or move n a circle or circles Turn the most general of these words may imply movement in circle after circle or merely in a complete circle or part of a c rcle like many other of the verbs in Engl sh which speed to turn a sp nn ng wheel he turned when he heard his name the dressmaker asked her to turn slowly so that she could see if the hem was even the door turns on its hinges Revolve always impl es a turning either round and round someth ng as a center or upon a p vot as the planets revolve around the sun at the entrance is a revolving door Both turn and revolve may also imply used trans tively as well as intrans tively and are com monly the preferred terms when the mot on is induced by a human agent as to spin a top to whirl one s arms to whirl a st ck For bod es wh ch revolve or whirl or or turns or twists through many gyrat ons often in flared or vagrant star dust swirled (Kipling) Pirouette

Gould)

Ana *Swing oscillate vibrate fluctuate pendulate undulate

Divert in d scriminating use is preferred to world came to him" (V Heiser) When used in reference to a person's thoughts interests attention intentions, and the like it often presupposes mental concentration, fixity of attention or resoluteness of purpose therefore when an attempt to distract to dissuade to sidetrack or the like is to be suggested divert is the appropriate word as, it is hard to divert his attention when he is engrossed in study Had I spoke with her I could have well diverted her intents (Shak) Could France or Rome divert our brave designs, With all their brandies or with all their wines? (Pope) Deflect in contrast to divert implies a turning from a straight course or a fixed direction it is therefore the preferred word when that which turns or is turned normally or rightly follows such a course or keeps such a direction as to deflect a ray of light by passing it through a prism to deflect a magnetic needle In its extended use it is chiefly referred to thoughts purposes, interests, that pursue a rigid or clearly defined course or direction consequently the word sometimes connotes deviation, aberration or the like He underwent all those things—but none of them deflected his purpose (Belloc) After all she had perhaps purposely deflected the conversation on from her own affairs (E Wharton) Avert implies a turning away from that which is before one physically or mentally it is used chiefly in reference to something at which one has been looking or of which one has been thinking and carries commonly a strong implication of avoidance and often a further suggestion of repugnance as to avert one's glance from the sight before one She avoided looking that way as much as possible but it was hardly in human nature to keep the eyes averted when the door slammed (Hardy) The last drop of her magnanimity had been spent and she tried to avert her shuddering mind from Charlotte (E Wharton) Sheer was originally and still is used in reference to the turning of a boat or ship from its course especially under the guidance of the helm and in an emergency It is usually followed by an adverb such as to off away alongside and up which indicates the direction of the turn with reference to another vessel the shore or the like as the yachts sheered to so that their captains could speak to each other to sheer off the boat just in time to avoid collision with a rock In its extended use the word commonly implies a sudden or conspicuous divergence from a path or course that has been followed. An age when the interests of popular liberty and of intellectual freedom had sheered off from the church (J R Green) They [men] often were interested in me but I was never in the least conscious of what drew them or caused them to sheer away' (M Austin)

Ana *Swerve veer deviate diverge, digress depart *move shift

3 *Curve bend, twist

Ana *Swerve veer incline *slant slope lean *reverse invert transpose

4 *Resort refer apply go

5 In form turn out *Bear produce yield

Ana *Make form fashion shape manufacture fabricate propagate breed, *generate engender turn n *Gift bent faculty aptitude genius talent knack

Ana *Inclination disposition predisposition bias propensity proclivity penchant *leaning flair turncoat *Renegade apostate recreant backslider pervert

Ana Deserter forsaker abandoner (see corresponding verbs at ABANDON) tusk *Tooth fang twinge n *Pain ache pang throe stitch twinkle, v *Flash gleam glance glint sparkle glitter glisten, scintillate coruscate glimmer shimmer, glister spark twinkling, twinkle *Instant moment minute second flash trice jiffy split second twirl, v *Turn revolve rotate, gyrate circle spin whirl, wheel eddy, swirl pirouette twist, v Turn bend *curve

Ana Spin twirl whirl (see TURN v) contort distort gnarl (see DEFORM) twister *Wind breeze gale hurricane whirlwind cyclone typhoon tornado waterspout gust blast flaw zephyr twit, v *Ridicule deride mock taunt rally

Ana Reproach chide *reprove reprehend blame censure (see CRITICIZE) *scoff jeer gibe type, n 1 *Symbol emblem attribute Ana *Sign mark, token intimation suggestion (see corresponding verbs at SUGGEST 1) adumbration shadowing (see corresponding verbs at SUGGEST 2)

Ant Antitype

2 Type, kind, sort, nature, description character, stripe kidney ilk come into comparison when they denote a number or group of persons or of things thought of as a class or category because of the close resemblance of the individuals in some particular way or ways Type is usually the preferred term for such a group when the resemblances are so strong clearly marked or obvious that the distinction between that group and related groups cannot be questioned as there are at least four types of literary prose—narration description exposition and argument the seedless type of orange the disappearance of the type of poem now known as the popular ballad that most dangerous type of critic (T S Eliot) Kind may be very explicit or very vague in its reference When explicit the term usually implies likenesses that are the result of the fact that all the individuals belong to the same genus or species often the same biological species (as, He knew no class in flesh and blood He loved his kind [i e all men] —Masefield the dog shunned all save his master and his own kind [i e either other dogs or dogs of the same species]) sometimes merely the same scientific genus or species (as, rubies, emeralds, sapphires are all minerals of the same kind [i e corundum] a rock of this kind is rare in this part of the world) sometimes the same logical or other classification (as the Auden Garrett anthology is outstanding of its kind —Day Lewis logic works by predicating of the single instance what is true of all its kind —W James) Sort is probably more often used than kind when the reference is vague but frequently the two words are coupled or interchanged as if indistinguishable in meaning as men of all sorts and kinds what sort (or kind) of mind has he? I do not like books of this kind (or sort) Sort however is preferred when there is a distinct suggestion of disparagement or contempt as Lewd fellows of the baser sort (Acts xvii 5) one does not enjoy that sort of person The other words in this group are all more or less loosely used in place of kind and sort In discriminating use however nature implies inherent or innate rather than superficial likenesses (as adventures of this nature sins of the same nature) description implies agreement in all details that may be regarded as part of the description or definition of the type (as all embargoes are not of this description —Ch Just Marshall any class or description of persons —Ch Just Taney) and character suggests likenesses in peculiar or distinctive features or qualities (as few books of this character have come to my attention) Stripe and kidney are somewhat colloquial and usually humorous substitutes for kind or sort stripe often carry waterspout twister breeze gust blast flaw

*Regular natural normal eneric general *universal common specific (see al distinctive nographer *secretary amanuensis scribe

Also tyrannous Despotic arb trary utocratic itorial authoritarian magisterial *total tar tarian domineering imperious *masterful

Ana Exemplar example *model pattern typhoon *Wind gale hurricane whirlwind cyclone tyro or tiro *Amateur dilettante dabbler Ana *Novice apprentice probationer neophyte

U ubiquitous Less often ubiquitary *Omnipresent uitlander Variant of OUTLANDER ulcer *Abscess canker canker sore ultimate 1 Extreme *last latest final terminal concluding eventual

2 Ultimate absolute categorical are here compared mainly in their philosophical senses where despite great differences in implications they have in common absolute touchstone in matters religious (Babbitt) That is categorical more general conceptions can be found to include them umbra Pen mbra *Shade shadow mbrage ad m bration umbrage adumbra

A colon

2 *Offense resentment pique dudgeon huff Ana Annoyance vexation irking (see corresponding verbs at ANNOY) irr tation exasperation provocation nettling (see corresponding verbs at IRRITATE) indignation rage fury wrath *anger ire umpire, n Referee *judge arbiter arbitrator un Un in, non, a are the common negative prefixes in English Un is not only the most frequent but it is also the freest in use because it may be prefixed to any English noun adjective or adverb capable of having a negative As a rule but not without a multitude of exceptions un suggests mere negation and the compound of which it is a part means nothing more than not that which is expressed by the second element as *un*sweetened equals not sweetened *un*ladylike equals not ladylike In (or one of its phonetic variations il before l im before b p m ir before r) is akin to un ment A very large (if not the larger) number imply diametrical opposition or contrariness as well thus *in*cautious is far more restricted and pointed in meaning than *un*cautious (or not cautious) for the latter implies merely the failure to use caution and the former implies the presence of caution s extreme opposite—recklessness Oftentimes the in compound is the contrary of the second element in a restricted and meaningful sense the mere negative of the word in any sense being expressed by an un compound as *in*artistic (tasteless banal) *un*artistic (not artistic) *ir*religious (ungodly profane) *un*religious (not religious) There are times when both the in and the un compounds have acquired a specific

Christian was formed to distinguish persons and activities that cannot be designated as Christian in its most inclusive sense Non is also used in forming nouns naming all not included under the second element as non sionally used to form new general words when there is a feeling that the existent un-, in-, and non- forms are too specific in meaning and do not strongly enough indicate privation or the absence of all the characters or qualities implied by the affirmative element. Amoral (see IMMORAL) was coined when it was discovered that *im*moral, *un*moral, and *non*moral did not explicitly deny the presence of all characteristics that would make a person or thing describable as moral. Asocial suggests in contrast with *un*social and *non*social the privation of all those qualities included under the meaning of social.

unalienable Variant of INALIENABLE.

unassailable Impregnable, inexpugnable, invulnerable, *invincible, unconquerable, indomitable.

Ana. Stout, sturdy, tenacious, tough, *strong, stalwart.

unavoidable *Inevitable, ineluctable, inescapable.

Ana. Certain, positive, *sure.

unbecoming *Indecorous, improper, unseemly, indecent, indelicate.

Ana. Unfitting, inappropriate, unmeet, unsuitable (see UNFIT): inept, *awkward, maladroit, gauche, clumsy.

unbelief Unbelief, disbelief, incredulity come into comparison as meaning the attitude or state of mind of one who does not believe. Unbelief stresses the lack or absence of belief especially, but not always, in religion or in revelation; as, "he . . . upbraided them with their unbelief" (Mark xvi. 14); "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth. And straightway the father of the child cried out. . . . Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief" (Mark ix. 23-24); "The second of these books would be condemned for heresy, and the first for unbelief" (J. Martineau). Disbelief implies a positive rejection of what is stated or asserted; as, an attitude of general unbelief with reference to a given rumor may be changed by evidence to one of absolute disbelief; "A disbelief in ghosts and witches was one of the most prominent characteristics of scepticism in the seventeenth century" (Lecky); "Although the latter [Rousseau] was a disbeliever in aristocracy, he never perceived the implications of his disbelief where education was concerned" (B. Russell). Incredulity implies indisposition to believe or, more often, a skeptical frame of mind; as, "the stare of petulant incredulity" (Johnson); "there is a vulgar incredulity which . . . finds it easier to doubt than to examine" (Scott).

Ana. *Uncertainty, doubt, dubiety, dubiosity: skepticism, agnosticism (see under SKEPTIC).

Ant. Belief.

unbeliever Freethinker, *atheist, agnostic, infidel, deist.

Ana. *Skeptic, agnostic: *pagan, heathen.

unbiased Impartial, dispassionate, *fair, just, equitable, uncolored, objective.

Ana. *Disinterested, uninterested: detached, aloof (see INDIFFERENT).

Ant. Biased.

uncalled-for Gratuitous, wanton, *supererogatory.

Ana. *Impertinent, intrusive, officious: *foolish, silly, absurd, preposterous.

uncanny *Weird, eerie.

Ana. *Strange, singular, erratic, eccentric, odd, queer: *mysterious, inscrutable.

unceasing *Everlasting, endless, interminable, never-ending.

uncertainty Uncertainty, doubt, dubiety, dubiosity, skepticism (or scepticism), suspicion, mistrust are synonymous terms only when they mean a feeling or a state of mind governed by the feeling that one is not sure about someone or something. Uncertainty stresses the lack of certainty or certitude and may, on the one hand, imply a mere falling short of these or it may, on the other hand, imply so far a removal from them that one is aware that one has grounds only for guessing or surmising; it may imply that one has no conviction regarding the reality, truth, or rightness of something or that one cannot predict the act, on the course, or the outcome of someone or something; as, to suffer from uncertainty concerning his son's fate; "she drove without any uncertainty or hesitation as to her route" (Deland); "Unsuccessful propaganda verse . . . is the result of the poet trying to convince others without having experienced either uncertainty or conviction himself" (Day Lewis); "Man's uncertainties in regard to all the major issues of life" (A. Huxley). Doubt implies both an uncertainty about the truth or reality of something and an inability to make a decision, often even after study or investigation; frequently, the term implies such a feeling or state of mind in respect to religious beliefs or doctrines formerly accepted without question; as, "he never felt a doubt of God's existence"; "Ten thousand difficulties do not make one doubt" (Newman); "There lives more faith in honest doubt, Believe me, than in half the creeds" (Tennyson); "No man likes to have his intelligence or good faith questioned, especially if he has doubts about it himself" (H. Adams). Dubiety comes closer to uncertainty than to doubt for it stresses a lack of sureness rather than an inability to reach a decision as to where the truth lies. But it regularly carries, as uncertainty does not, a strong implication of wavering or of fluctuations between one conclusion and another; as, faith free from all dubiety; "The twilight of dubiety never falls upon him" (Lamb); "Chilled Martini. Transfixing all dubiety within" (W. R. Benét). Dubiosity is not always clearly distinguishable from dubiety; sometimes, however, it suggests not uncertainty but vagueness, indistinctness, or mental confusion; "Mrs. Berry had not cogitated long ere she pronounced distinctly and without a shadow of dubiosity 'My opinion is . . .'" (Meredith). Skepticism suggests in this its general sense (see also under SKEPTIC) an unwillingness to believe without demonstration or an incredulity while any plausible evidence to the contrary exists; it usually refers to a habitual or temperamental state of mind or to a customary reaction to something proposed for belief; "St. Thomas was perhaps of all the apostles the one most easily imaginable in the present, and his sturdy skepticism must have been the consolation of many Christian souls" (C. Mackenzie); "An easy and elegant scepticism was the attitude expected of an educated adult: anything might be discussed, but it was a trifle vulgar to reach very positive conclusions" (B. Russell); "[The scientist's] boasted power to foretell and control upon the basis of his hypotheses has been too often vindicated to permit a skepticism" (J. W. Krutch). Suspicion stresses conjecture or apprehension that someone or something is not true, real, or right in any one of the senses of those words or that he or it has worked or is working evil or injury; however, since the term also implies that the conjecture or apprehension is accompanied by uncertainty or doubt, it comes into comparison with the other words of this group. In fact, when it implies a lack of faith in the truth, reality, or rightness of someone or something, it often comes close to doubt; as, "seized with unwonted suspicion of his own wisdom" (Meredith); "if the spiritual faculty is given fair play and suffered to develop normally, suspicion . . . of it must disappear" (Inge); "a stranger . . . regarded with suspicion if not actual hostility" (Hudson). When, on the other hand, it implies a possible but not as yet well-grounded charge or accusation of wrongdoing, the terms have little in com-

ion, assur

*infinite

iscourte

ungracious

Ana Boorish loutish churlish (see under BO brusque blunt gruff crusty (see BLUFF)

Ant Civil

uncolored 1 *Colorless achromatic

2 Dispassionate impartial objective unbiased just equitable uncommon *Infrequent scarce rare occas sporadic

Ana *Strange singular unique *exceptional *choice exquisite

Ant Common

uncommunicative *Silent taciturn reticent reserved secretive close, close-lipped closemouthed tight lipped

Ant Communicative

unconcerned *Indifferent incurious aloof detached disinterested apathetic worried

erative

*social pleasing *pleasant agreeable unconquerable *Invincible indomitable impregnable inexpugnable unassailable invulnerable

Ant Conquerable

unconstraint Unconstraint, abandon, spontaneity come into comparison when they denote the free and un ghts or feelings or the adjectives at SPONTANEOUS) n ingenuousness

t NATURAL)

ory

s sleek soapy bland ous (see

Ant Brusque

*brave courageous hty

see FAITHFUL)

iensive cowed

g covert stealthy

y backstairs

devious oblique

Ant tforward forth

right open plain, *frank candid underlying Basic *fundamental basal substratal substrative radical

Ana *Essential cardinal vital fundamental requisite indispensable necessary, *needful undermine. *Weaken enfeeble debilitate sap cripple disable

Ana *Ruin wreck *injure damage impair thwart foil *frustrate

Ant Reinforce

underneath *Below under beneath

Understand comprehend, appreciate are a clear and true idea wledge of something are often used inter changeably and ut loss nevertheless fine sharp differences in d that ess or knowl

ing at person ng his ible to under prehend

Yes—I ies the mental

erstand

rue im

in love

that ye what is the d to know

Ephesians

of dollars

minds are

And the shall keep

(Philip

e must be go Under

e as here

just judg

ach group-

ment or the estimation of a thing s true or exact value therefore the word is used in reference to persons or things which may be m sjudged, as by underestimating or overest mat ng or by undervalu ng or overvaluing "You are of an age now to appreciate h s character (Meredith) "We do not reproach h m [Gilbert Murray] for preferring apparently Eur p des to Aeschylus But he should at least appreciate Eur p des (T S Eliot) "The publ c opinion wh ch thus magn fies patriot sm into a relig on is a force of which it is difficult to appreciate the strength (Boswell) To appreciate the gulf between the ideal and the fact we have only to contrast such a scheme as that set forth in the Republ c of Plato with the following description of the state of Greece during the Peloponnes an War (G L Dick nson) Ana Conceive realize envision envisage (see THINK) interpret elucidate construe (see EXPLAIN) penetrate pierce probe (see ENTER) understanding 1 *Reason intu tion Ana Comprehens on apprehension (see under APPREHEND) *d scernment d scrim nat on insight penetration *un versal general generic.

2 *Agreement accord understudy n *Subst tute supply locum tenens alte nate p nch h tter double stand n undulate Waver *swing sway oscillate vibrate fluctuate pendulate.

Ana *Pulsate pulse beat throb palpitate undulation *Wave r pple b llow roller breaker comber beachcomber surge undying *Immortal deathless unfad ng fadeless amaranth ne.

Ana *Everlasting endless unceas ng never-ending interm nable.

unearth *D scover ascertain, determ ne learn.
Ana Exhume d s nter *d g delve expose, exhib t *show *reveal d sclose discover uneasy *Impatient nervous unquiet restless rest ve fidgety skitt sh fever sh hect c jumpy j ttery Ana Anx ous worr ed sol c tous, concerned careful (see under CARE) d sturbed perturbed ag tated, d s qu eted (see DISCOMPOSE) uneducated *Ignorant ill terate unlettered untaught untutored unlearned nescient.

Ana *Rude crude rough raw callow green.
Ant Educated

unerring *Infall ble nerrable nerrant Ana *Rel able dependable, trustworthy *exact accurate prec se *correct unescapable Variant of INESCAPABLE.

uneven *Rough harsh rugged scabrous.
Ant Even — Con *Level flat, plane smooth equable even uniform *steady constant unfading *Immortal deathless, undying fadeless amaranth ne Ana *Everlast ng never-end ng endless *lasting perdurable perpetual unfeigned *S ncere wholehearted whole-souled heartfelt hearty Ana Genu ne *ver table bona fide *authentic *natural, simple naïve *spontaneous, impulsive.

unfit, adj Unfit, unsuitable unmeet improper inappropriate unfitting inapt unhappy infelicitous come into comparison when they mean not right w th respect to what s requ red or expected under the circumstances or is demanded by the th ng s end use or funct on Except for th s den al of r ghtness the terms otherwise correspond in applicat ons and in mpl cations to the affirmative adject ves as d scr m nated at FIT Ant Fit. — Con Adaptable pliable malleable (see PLASTIC) *able capable competent qual fied unfitting Inappropriate improper unmeet unsuitable *unfit inapt unhappy infelicitous Ana Unbecoming unseemly *indecorous Ant Fitting.

unflagging Unwearied unwearying tireless untiring *indefatigable wearlless.
Ana. Persevering pers sting or persistent (see corresponding verbs at PERSEVERE) *steady constant Con Indolent fainéant slothful *lazy unfledged *Immature unmatured unripe unmellow Ana Crude callow raw green *rude.

Ant Full-fledged

unformed *Formless shapeless chaotic amorphous inchoate Ant Formed — Con *Definite definitive developed matured (see MATURE) fashioned fabricated manufactured made (see MAKE) unfruitful Barren *sterile infertile impotent Ant Fru tful, prol fic — Con *Fertile fecund ungodly *Irrel gious godless unreligious nonrel gious Ana Wicked evil ill *bad reprobate *abandoned profl gate *impious blasphemous profane ungovernable *Unruly intractable refractory recalc trant w llful headstrong Ana *Contrary perverse froward wayward contumacious, *insubord nate rebell ous fact ous Ant Governable doc le — Con Submissive subdued *tame tractable amenable *obed ent ungracious *Rude ill mannered impol te d scourteous, uncivil.

Ana Churl sh boor sh (see under BOOR) brusque gruff blunt curt (see BLUFF) Ant Gracious.

unhappy Infelicitous inapt unsuitable unmeet improper inappropr ate unfitt ng *unfit Ana Inept maladroit gauche *awkward Ant Happy

uniform adj 1 Parallel homogeneous *s milar like al ke ident cal ak n analogous comparable Ana *Same equ valent equal Ant Various
2 *Steady constant, even equable Ana Cons stent *consonant compatible regular *o derly Ant Mult form

unify Consolidate concentrate *compact Ana *Integrate art culate concatenate organize systematize (see ORDER v) *unite, comb ne conjo n unimpassioned *Sober temperate continent Ana *Cool composed collected imperturbable *calm serene placid tranquil *impass ve stolid sto c phlegmat c Ant Impass oned

uninterested *D s nterested Ana *Indifferent unconcerned incurious *forgetful unm ndful, obl vious Ant Interested curious union *Un ty sol darity ntegrity Ana Integration articulation concatenat on (see under INTEGRATE) *harmony consonance accord concord unique 1 *S ngle sole lone sol tary separate part cular Ana *Only alone

2 S ngular *strange, peculiar eccentric errat c odd queer qua nt outland sh cur ous.
Ana *Except onal uncommon rare *infrequent unite 1 Comb ne *jo n connect link, associate relate Ana *Mix blend merge amalgamate *weave knit *integrate concatenate articulate.

Ant Divide alienate
2 Unite, combine, conjoin, co-operate, concur come into comparison when they mean to jo n forces so as to commonly suggests the formation of a new or larger unit as by merging (as the three churches united) or by blend ng or coalescence (as Rise various wreaths [of smoke] that into one unite —Wordsworth) or by gro ving together (as the inserted bud and the stock unite to form a plant which produces a beautiful and hardy rose) or by adhesion or sol dification (as the mixed sand gravel and mortar unite to form a substance resembling stone) Combine is often used interchangeably with unite but it is usually the preferred term when a somewhat looser or more temporary association is to be suggested or when the distinctness of the parts or their harmonious relations are connoted, as So sweet did harp and voice combine (Dryden) several c tizens other terms of th s group differs from them either in implying a uniting or comb ning at a g ven po nt in space or time or in being used especially of things that have come together at a particular point or moment as streams which conjoin in the valley to form a river He may trace the course of these many causes until they conjoin in the great revolt of to-day (Manchester recogn z ng each other s existence (Times Lit Sup) Concur, as here considered is used chiefly of things that combine or co-operate by their convergence or coinci dence rather than by intention as All th ngs concur to give it a perfection (Herbert) Two oppos te forces concurred in bringing about the Council of Nicaea (Dean Stanley) all these powerful influences concur in warning us (T H Huxley) Ana Mingle commingle coalesce fuse (see MIX) adhere cohere *stick, cling cleave Ant Part

unity Unity solidarity integrity union are synonyms only when they denote a combining of all the parts elements, or individuals into an effective whole or the property or character of the whole achieved by such a blending Unity is the comprehensive term applicable to wholes formed either of persons or of things it may for example characterize a people a nation a church or any association or any natural or artificial structure such as the human body or a cathedral or any work of art such as a drama an epic a painting or a bas-relief In every case it implies oneness (especially a oneness of that which is varied or diverse rather than uniform in its elements) that is gained by the interdependence of parts or individuals and by the co-operation of all so that each with n its proper l m ts helps in effecting the end of the whole as, the indispensable unity of a beautiful design (S Alexander) [In Korin s] famous picture of the

that results in a group of persons when there is harmony and concord as how good it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! (Psalms cxxxiii 1), What he strength express its opinion or exert its influence both chiefly in reference to wholes that have been built up so that each stands as a thing marked by completeness and a unity dependent on the perfection of its parts and their mutual interdependence the term usually stresses soundness undividedness or freedom from impairment of any sort as to preserve the integrity of the British from such a uniting (as the union of thirteen states to form the United States the American Civil War was fought to preserve the Union) However the term does

Ana Identification incorporation embodiment as simil t on (see correspond ng verbs at IDENTIFY) co-operation concurrence uniting combining (see correspond ng verbs at UNITE) integration concatenation articulation (see under INTEGRATE) universal 1 Universal ecumenical (or oecumenical), catholic cosmopolitan cosmic come into comparison when they mean world wide or in looser use extremely widespread in extent range influence appeal use or the like Universal etymologically implies reference to the

Milton universal as the air —S Rogers Science has become too complex to affirm the existence of universal truths —H Adams) or more narrowly and far more frequently as the world whether that be the earth as a whole or the totality of men especially civil zed men (as this universal human art —H Ellis a universal language The qualit es which produce a man of great eminence in some one d rection are often such as might be undesirable if they were universal —B Russell) or merely that portion of either wh ch may loosely be described as the world which the speaker or writer knows or has in mind (as no other theory has won etymologically implies a relationship to the inhabited world, it is therefore sometimes used in place of universal as more definite and more fixed in its implications as our oecumenical commerce (W H Mallock) Augustus imposed an ecumenical tax. However ecumenical has been used chiefly as a descriptive title of councils which have been convoked from the entire church, thus, of the twenty councils from 325–1870 which are called ecumenical councils by the Roman Catholic Church only the first seven are accepted as ecumenical by the Orthodox Church and the first four (without hesitation) by the Anglican Church. The term is used not only by Roman Catholics but by others with reference to persons councils and the like that represent or govern the entire church as the patriarch of Constantinople is the ecumenical patriarch of all Orthodox churches. Catholic, like universal implies a relation to a whole but unlike the latter term it has consistently implied a relationship to all men especially to those who belong to the body of civilized men, or often, of cultivated men More often in the past than at present it has stressed universal prevalence (as a catholic law) or universal applicability or usefulness (as a catholic remedy) Its chief implication in current use is lack of exclusiveness as shown in a true comprehensiveness, as in interests tastes sympathies, and the like Those writers who in every nation go by the name of Classics have [so far] a catholic and ecumenical character that what they express is common to the whole race of man (Newman) [The] tastes and fashions [of the nineteenth century] had no place for Dryden yet Dryden is one of the tests of a catholic appreciation of poetry (T S Eliot) Cosmopolitan (etymologically, being a citizen of the world) stresses a lack of provincialism with reference not only to locality section nation or the like but to profession or other sphere of activity When applied to individuals, their acts utterances, and the like, it usually connotes opportunities for travel far and wide over the world and often more or less familiarity with many places many peoples, and many cultures "The softened cosmopolitan teaching of the prophets of the captivity and the rigid national teaching of the instructors of Israel's youth (Arnold) When used however in reference to groups, it commonly suggests a mixture of all or of a wide variety of races and carries few suggestions of cultivation, breadth of mind or the like That queer cosmopolitan rather sinister crowd that is to be found around the Marseilles docks (R Macaulay) Cosmic now usually takes the place of universal when the reference is to the universe as opposed to or distinguished from the earth as cosmic order of what astral periods and cosmic processes am I not the crown the wonder? (L P Smith) Natural cosmic time as it is measured out by sun and moon (A Huxley)

In ecclesiastical usage both Catholic (usually capitalized) and universal (as the Catholic Church the universal church) refer to a church conceived of as the church founded by Jesus Christ and established by his apostles and as having for its mission the Christianization of all nations In general Protestant usage this church consists of all Christian denominations in some Anglican and in Orthodox usage it consists of all churches guided by an episcopate that traces its succession from the Apostles Catholic is the official designation of the church commonly called the Roman Catholic Church in England and in America which holds itself to be the ancient undivided church Because of these differences in the application of Catholic universal is often used in its place by those who wish to describe the whole body of Christians, or by those who wish to affirm the world-wide spread of their teachings

Ana *Earthly terrestrial worldly, mundane *whole entire, all, total

2 Universal, general, generic, common are here compared as meaning characteristic of belonging or relating to comprehending or affecting all or the whole Because the implication of what constitutes all or the whole varies in each word, these terms are seldom used interchangeably by very precise writers and speakers Universal, as here compared is used chiefly in logic and philosophy it implies reference to each one of a whole (such as a class a category a genus or the like) without exception thus, All men are animals is a universal affirmative proposition and no man is omniscient is a universal negative proposition, color is a universal attribute of visible objects, but chroma (that is, hue and degree of saturation) is not the great dramatist deals with particular men in particular situations but in such a way as to suggest universal truth if we [writers] want to get at the permanent and universal we tend to express ourselves in verse (T S Eliot) General also implies reference to all, not only of a class category type or species, but of a group section division or other more or less loosely combined or associated number of persons or things Universal tends to be used with great strictness in the particular sense here considered (see however UNIVERSAL 1) but general often is used to imply reference to nearly all or to most of the group, even though it may be applied more strictly as ethylene has come into general but not yet universal favor with surgeons (A C Morrison) "the ideal of general cultivation has been one of the standards in education (C W Eliot) As applied to words or terms general strictly implies the word's or term's inclusiveness of every member of the class or group indicated thus man is a general term 'Under the general name of Egdon Heath [in The Return of the Native] are united or typified heaths of various real names (Hardy) Oftentimes however general is more loosely applied to words language ideas notions and the like and suggests lack of precision in significance more or less loose generalization or a vague range of application as [Swinburne] uses the most general word because his emotion is never particular (T S Eliot) Nothing could change Sophia. And at the back of that notion was a more general notion Nothing could change a Baines (Bennett) some rather weak cases must fall within any law which is couched in general words (Justice Holmes) Generic is now used with increasing frequency in place of general when a term implying reference to every member of a genus (sometimes in looser use of any other scientific or logical category) and the exclusion of all individuating characteristics is needed thus a general likeness between certain insects may be a likeness that is observable but not clearly distinguished whereas a generic likeness is one that offers proof that they belong to the same genus or that enables a student to assign a hitherto unknown insect to its proper genus so absolute generic unity would obtain if there were one summum genus under which all things without exception could be eventually subsumed (W James) only that is good which pleases the typical or normal or generic man (S Alexander) The women were the crowning joy of his contemplative mind Dyspepsia would not weaken their poignant outcries or self interest check their fainting fits On the generic woman one could calculate (Meredith) Common, as here compared (see also COMMON 3 RECIPROCAL 1) differs from general in implying participation, use a sharing or the like by all members of the class, group, or community of persons (rarely of things) under consideration as, a thing practiced for two hundred years by common consent (Justice Holmes) crowds swept along by a common animating impulse (B nyon) our common tongue (Lowes) Ant Particular

universe Cosmos macrocosm *earth world unkempt Slovenly sloppy *slipshod Ana Frowzy *slatternly blowzy dowdy *negligent neglectful lax slack remiss unlearned *Ignorant illiterate unlettered uneducated untaught untutored nescient Ana Crude *rude rough raw callow green unlettered Illiterate *ignorant uneducated untaught untutored unlearned nescient unlikeness *Dissimilarity difference divergence distinction Ana Diversity *variety disparity variousness (see corresponding adjectives at DIFFERENT) discrepancy discordance incongruousness incompatibility inconsistency inconsonance (see corresponding adjectives at INCONSONANT) Ant Likeness

unman *Unnerve emasculate enervate Ana Sap undermine *weaken enfeeble debilitate *abase degrade *deplete drain exhaust, impoverish, bankrupt unmatured *Immature unripe unmellow unfledged Ant Matured — Con *Mature adult grown up unmeet Unsuitable *unfit improper inappropriate unfitting inapt unhappy infelicitous Ana Unbecoming unseemly *indecorous.

Ant Meet

unmellow unmellowed *Immature unmatured unripe unfledged Ant Mellow mellowed — Con Developed ripened matured (see MATURE v) unmindful *Forgetful oblivious.

Ana Heedless thoughtless, *careless, inadvertent *negligent neglectful remiss Ant Mindful solicitous. — Con Careful concerned anxious worried (see under CARE) *thoughtful considerate attentive unmitigated *Outright out-and-out arrant unmoral *Immoral, amoral nonmoral.

unmovable Variant of IMMOVABLE unnatural Anomalous *irregular Ana *Abnormal aberrant atypic *monstrous prodigious *fantastic, grotesque bizarre.

Ant Natural

unnerve Unnerve enervate unman emasculate come into comparison when they mean to deprive of strength or vigor and of the capacity for endurance overcoming difficulties or making progress Unnerve implies marked loss of courage steadiness self-control or of power to act or fight usually but far from invariably as a result of some calamity or sudden shock as Government was unnerved, confounded and in a manner suspended (Burke) That beloved name unnerved my arm (Arnold) he was completely unnerved by the accident The narcotic and unnerving property of these stimulants has been thoroughly established (Day Lewis) Enervate implies a much more gradual weakening or dissipation of one's strength until one is too feeble to make effort usually but not without exceptions, the term implies relaxation especially of moral fiber under the influence of luxury indolence effeminacy and the like as, those unhappy people whose tender minds a long course of felicity has enervated (Bolingbroke) The people sink into sloth and luxury and prostitution [the kingdom] is enervated at home—becomes contemptible abroad (Fielding) Plato asserts that a life of drudgery disfigures the body and enervates the soul (G L Dickinson) Unman implies loss of manly fortitude or spirit it often suggests a shameful reduction to tears tremors extreme timidity or other state regarded as womanish as, What quite unmanned in folly? Fie for shame! (Shak) For a moment the overwhelming conviction of it unmanned him (Prescott) Emasculate (see also STERILIZE 1) implies a loss of essential or effective power especially by the removal of something such as a factor or a condition which has made for the strength of a person a group or the like Hellenism was not destroyed though it was emasculated by the loss of political freedom (Inge) Ana Upset agitate perturb (see DISCOMPOSE) bewilder distract confound (see PUZZLE v) *weaken enfeeble sap undermine unpremeditated *Extemporaneous, extempore extemporary improvised impromptu offhand Ant Premeditated — Con *Deliberate considered designed studied unpropitious *Ominous, portentous, fateful inauspicious.

Ana *Sinister baleful malign malefic threatening menacing (see THREATEN) *adverse antagonistic counter Ant Propitious

unqualified Incompetent *incapable Ana Disabled crippled weakened debilitated (see WEAKEN) *unfit unsuitable Ant Qualified — Con *Able capable competent unquiet *Impatient nervous restless, restive uneasy fidgety skittish feverish hectic jumpy jittery Ana Agitated upset perturbed disquieted disturbed (see DISCOMPOSE) worried anxious solicitous concerned careful (see under CARE) Ant Quiet

unreasonable *Irrational Ana Absurd preposterous, *foolish silly *simple, fatuous asinine *excessive immoderate inordinate Ant Reasonable

unrelenting *Grim implacable relentless merciless.
Ana Inexorable obdurate *inflexible adamant *stiff rigid *severe stern Ant Forbearing

unreligious *Irreligious, ungodly godless nonreligious.

unripe *Immature unmatured unmellow unfledged Ana Crude raw green callow *rude *premature untimely forward precocious Ant Ripe. — Con Matured ripened developed (see MATURE v) unruffled Imperturbable nonchalant *cool composed collected Ana *Calm placid peaceful serene tranquil poised balanced (see STABILIZE) Ant Ruffled excited unruly Unruly ungovernable intractable refractory recalcitrant, willful (or wilful) headstrong come into comparison as meaning not submissive to government or control Unruly stresses a lack of discipline or an incapacity for discipline in addition it often connotes turbulence disorderliness, waywardness obstreperousness or the like as, unruly children Whatever my unruly tongue may say (J R Green) the unruly passions (T S Eliot) Ungovernable implies either an incapacity for or an escape from guidance or control When applied directly or indirectly to persons it usually suggests either no previous subjection to restrictions or a state of being unsubdued (as The fiercest and most ungovernable part of the . population —Macaulay) or the loss of all power to control oneself or to be controlled by others (as he fell into an ungovernable rage he knew that if he gave rein to his passion, it would become ungovernable) When used in reference to things it usually suggests their incapacity for human direction or control, as, "That ungovernable wonder the wind" (N Hawthorne) "We palpitate between relief when our ungovernable vehicle blunders into a happy valley and despair when we hear the growl of the waves at the foot of the cliffs (Shaw) Intractable and refractory both imply resistance to all attempts to bring under one s control, management or direction When applied to persons intractable suggests an indisposition to guidance or a disposition to resist (as, an intractable child an intractable temper, his rough intractable spirit" —J Wesley "We were now dealing with the intractable Sinhalese rather than the stupid but amenable Tamils —V Heiser) when applied to things it suggests a more or less marked incapacity for working manipulation, treatment or the like (as, intractable soil an intractable metal Shakespeare was unable to impose this motive successfully upon the 'intractable material of the old play —T S Eliot) Refractory on the other hand often implies active resistance as indicated by manifest disobedience open protest, or rebelliousness (as It becomes my duty to struggle against my refractory feelings —Burney There is no use in making the refractory child feel guilty it is much more to the purpose to make him feel that he is missing pleasures which the others are enjoying' —B Russell) or when the reference is to an inanimate thing a degree of intractability that offers especially great resistance or presents unusual difficulties (as bricks and other refractory [i e heat resistant] substances are used to line furnaces Cheerfulness is in ethics what fluorspar is in metallurgy It is a flux absolutely necessary in dealing with refractory moral elements —S M Crothers) Recalcitrant (etymologically kicking back) carries an even stronger implication of active and violent resistance or of obstinate rebellion it usually suggests defiance of another s will order authority or the like as his father became recalcitrant and cut off the supplies (Stevenson) In Russia a minority of devoted Marxists maintain by sheer force such government as is possible in the teeth of an intensely recalcitrant peasantry (Shaw) The term is less often applied to things (other than personal traits, feelings dispositions, etc) than intractable and refractory but there is some use when seemingly insuperable difficulties are implied as The atomicity of nature supposed to be as yet recalcitrant to mind (S Alexander) He discovers poetry in the most unlikely places and wrings it out of the most recalcitrant material (Day Lewis) Willful usually implies intractability because of an overweening desire or an obstinate determination to have one s own way and an unwillingness to be guided by those who are wise or experienced as, "To willful men the injuries that they themselves procure must be their schoolmasters (Shak) to confound [will] with its irritable and purposeless counterfeit willfulness (J R Lowell) "her bright audacity her ardor and her willfulness (Hewlett) We know we haven t finality and so we are open and receptive rather than wilful (H G Wells) Headstrong implies violent self-will that makes for refractoriness or recalcitrance as a headstrong mood) murmuring race (Dryden) the headstrong passions of Benvenuto Cellini (Gibbon) They are testy and headstrong through an excess of will and bias (Emerson)

Ana *Insubordinate rebellious contumacious obstreperous, boisterous, strident (see VOCIFEROUS) *contrary, perverse froward, wayward fractious *irritable snappish waspish

Ant. Tractable docile

unseemly. *Indecorous improper, unbecoming indecent, indelicate

Ana Unfitting unsuitable inappropriate unmeet (see UNFIT): incongruous, incompatible inconsistent, *inconsonant

Ant Seemly

unsettle. *Disorder, derange disarrange, disorganize disturb

Ana Discommode incommode, trouble, molest (see INCONVENIENCE) upset agitate perturb, *discompose, disquiet

Ant Settle

unsocial Unsocial, asocial, antisocial, nonsocial agree in meaning not social and therefore, in a sense opposed to that which is social Unsocial is applied chiefly to persons, their temperaments, acts, motives etc., and implies a distaste for the society of others or an aversion to companionship or fraternization as, he is a most unsocial person, an unsocial disposition. Asocial is also applied to persons but especially to their behavior, their thoughts their acts, and the like regarded objectively as from the psychologist s point of view, it implies a lack of all the qualities which are suggested by the word social especially as opposed to individual In its most frequent sense that which is asocial has no reference to or significance for others and is therefore by implication individualistic self-centered egocentric egoistic or the like, as asocial types of persons asocial interests, dreaming is an asocial act Antisocial is applied chiefly to ideas, movements, acts, books and the like which are regarded as harmful to or destructive of society or the social order or institutions such as the state and church, as anarchists are both asocial in their thinking and antisocial in their propaganda antisocial theories, antisocial conduct Nonsocial is applied only to things which cannot be described as social in any sense of the word, as, nonsocial questions nonsocial activities a nonsocial club, nonsocial diseases

Ant. Social

unsophisticated. *Natural simple ingenuous, naïve, artless

Ana Candid *frank, open, plain genuine bona fide *authentic crude callow, green (see RUDE)

Ant Sophisticated

unspeakable *Unutterable inexpressible ineffable inenarrable indescribable

Ana *Offensive loathsome repulsive revolting *repugnant repellent obnoxious distasteful abominable odious *hateful detestable unstable *Inconstant fickle capricious mercurial

Ana *Changeable variable mutable protean volatile effervescent buoyant resilient *elastic.

Ant Stable

unsuitable *Unfit unmeet improper inappropriate unfitting inapt unhappy infelicitous

Ana Unbecoming unseemly *indecorous indecent inept maladroit *awkward clumsy gauche unsympathetic. 1 Uncongenial discordant incongruous incompatible *inconsonant inconsistent discrepant.

Ant Suitable

Ant Sympathetic. — Con Harmonizing or harmonious accordant correspondent (see verbs at AGREE)

2 *Antipathetic, averse

Ana *Indifferent, unconcerned incurious, aloof *hardened callous indurated

Ant. Sympathetic

untangle Disentangle *extricate disencumber disembarrass.
Ana *Free release liberate Con *Hamper fetter manacle shackle trammel untaught *Ignorant illiterate unlettered uneducated untutored unlearned nescient.

Ant Taught

untimely *Premature forward advanced precocious Ana *Immature unmatured unripe unmellow unfledged Ant Timely — Con *Seasonable opportune well timed pat.

untiring *Indefatigable tireless weariless, unwearying unwearied unflagging Ana Unceasing never-ending interminable *everlasting assiduous sedulous, diligent (see BUSY) persevering persisting (see PERSEVERE) untruth *Lie falsehood fib misrepresentation story Ana Mendaciousness or mendacity dishonesty deceitfulness (see corresponding adjectives at DISHONEST) equivocation tergiversation (see AMBIGUITY) Ant Truth — Con Veracity verity (see TRUTH) *honesty integrity probity honor untruthful Lying mendacious *dishonest deceitful Ana *False wrong *misleading deceptive, delusive delusory Ant Truthful — Con Honest *upright scrupulous veracious (see corresponding noun at TRUTH) untutored *Ignorant illiterate unlettered uneducated untaught unlearned nescient Ant Tutored

unutterable Unutterable inexpressible unspeakable, ineffable inenarrable indescribable agree in meaning incapable of being told or described All with the possible exception of inenarrable are often nothing more than intensives implying an extreme that goes beyond the power of words to express In their more explicit denotations unutterable implies any of various reasons why the thing so qualified cannot be voiced or spoken such as the greatness of one's awe (as, My tongue Attempts th' unutterable Name But faints —I Watts) or one's inability to pronounce correctly (as to find the French word roi unutterable) or one's aversion to that which is immodest or obscene (as I cannot repeat what he said for his language was unutterable) Inexpressible on the other hand usually applies to that which is so delicate so immaterial so subtle or the like that there are no words to reveal its true or exact nature as speech able to express subtleties that before seemed inexpressible (H Ellis) Unspeakable differs little from unutterable in its etymological and explicit meaning as joy unspeakable and full of glory (I Peter i 8) a thousand memories Unspeakable for sadness (Tennyson) the bawdy thoughts that come into one's head —the unspeakable words (L P Smith) More often however especially in current use unspeakable means too unpleasant disgusting horrible or the like to describe in detail as My nights were unspeakable (Jane W Carlyle) twisted shapes of lust unspeakable Abominable (Tennyson) Twice in my public transferences from one prison to another have I been shown under conditions of unspeakable humiliation to the gaze and mockery of men (Wilde) Ineffable, although it is etymologically closer in meaning to unutterable than to inexpressible in actual use is a near synonym of the latter word It carries however a stronger suggestion of a character that transcends expression because of its etherealness its spirituality its ideality or other similarly elusive quality as ineffable tenderness (Meredith) the eyes remained distant and serious as if bent on some ineffable vision (E Wharton) The mystic sees the ineffable and the psycho-pathologist the unspeakable (Maugham) Who shall say that in this silence in this hovering wan light in this air bereft of wings, and of all scent save freshness there is less of the ineffable less of that before which words are dumb?" (Galsworthy) Inenarrable (now practically obsolete) and indescribable strongly suggest the inability of the writer or speaker to narrate or describe or explain the thing so qualified, they therefore usually fail to ascribe a definite quality to the thing itself and are by comparison with the other terms, vaguer and less effective as, That sacred mystery of the Holy Trinity is inenarrable by any creature (M Davies), Various sacred indescribable articles were scattered around (H Martineau) unwearied *Indefatigable tireless weariless untiring unwearying unflagging Ana Persevering persisting or persistent (see corresponding verbs at PERSEVERE) unceasing never-ending interminable (see EVERLASTING) constant *steady unwearying *Indefatigable tireless weariless, untiring unwearied unflagging Ana See those at UNTIRING upbraid *Scold rate berate tonguelash revile vituperate jaw bawl out wig rail Ana Reprehend reprobate blame censure denounce (see CRITICIZE) reproach reprimand rebuke *reprove uphold *Support advocate back champion Ana *Help aid assist defend vindicate justify *maintain sanction *approve endorse Ant Contravene subvert upholder Supporter advocate backer champion See under SUPPORT v upright, adj Upright, honest, just, conscientious scrupulous, honorable (or honourable) come into comparison when they are applied to men their acts, and words and mean having or exhibiting a strict regard for what is morally right Upright implies manifest rectitude and an uncompromising adherence to high moral principles 'So upright Quakers please both man and God (Pope) We shall exult if they who rule the land Be men Wise upright valiant not a servile band (Wordsworth) Honest in its current prevailing sense implies a recognition of and strict adherence to virtues such as truthfulness candor respect for others' possessions, sincerity fairness and the like it is far more widely applicable than upright which often implies independence of spirit and self mastery and which is therefore referable chiefly to thoughtful and highly disciplined men Honest on the other hand may be used in reference to the ignorant as well as the learned and to the simple as well as the wise The honest heart that's free frae a' Intended fraud or guile (Burns) If we be honest with ourselves we shall be honest with each other (G Macdonald) Just, in early English use described the man who by his faith and works justified himself in the sight of God or by his strict adherence to moral principles won the admiration of men the word now occurs in this sense chiefly as a Biblical archaism "For he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust (Matthew v 45) Cornelius the centurion a just man and one that feareth God and of good report among all the nation of the Jews (Acts x. 22) Some lead a life unblamable and just (Cowper) Conscientious and scrupulous both imply an active moral sense which governs all one's actions Conscientious, however stresses painstaking efforts to follow that guide at all costs, especially in one's observance of the moral law or in the performance of one s duty "His [Ben Jonson s] whole character was far too sturdily conscientious to allow of any suspicion be ng cast upon his rectitude" (A. W. Ward) The skillful conscientious schoolmistresses whose lives were spent in trying to inculcate real knowl edge (Grandgent) Scrupulous (see also CAREFUL, 2) on the other hand implies either anxiety lest one should not but to the demands made upon one by one s social posi uprising *Rebellion revolution, revolt insurrection mutiny Putsch.

Ana Fight combat conflict fray (see CONTEST) strife contention dissension (see DISCORD) aggression *attack.

uproar *Din pandemonium hullabaloo, babel hubbub racket.
Ana Strife contention dissens on *d scord conflict variance *confus on disorder chaos fracas *brawl brol melee.

uproot Eradicate deracinate extirpate *exterminate wipe out Ana *Abolish extinguish annihilate abate supplant displace, *replace supersede subvert overthrow *overturn *destroy demolish Ant Establish inseminate upset, v 1 *Overturn overset capsize overthrow subvert Ana Invert *reverse *tip t lt cant careen turn bend (see CURVE v) 2 Ag tate perturb disturb disquiet *discompose fluster flurry Ana Bewilder d stract confound (see PUZZLE, v) d scomfit rattle faze *embarrass *unnerve unman upshot Outcome issue result consequence *effect aftereffect event aftermath sequel Ana *End terminat on ending climax culmination (see SUMMIT) concluding or conclus on fin shing or

Ana *Motive spring spur goad incentive longing yearning pining (see LONG) craving coveting des ring (see DESIRE v) usage 1 Practice custom consuetude use, *hab t hab tude wont Ana *Method mode manner way fash on procedure proceeding *process gu d ng or guidance lead (see correspond ng verbs at GUIDE) preference

2 *Form convention convenance.
Ana Formality ceremony *form use, v Use, employ, utilize, apply, avail oneself of a

His sense of being used rose suddenly above the book that came in her way (Shaw) the student instrument is uppermost use is the preferred term ones he should employ in a g ven context a teacher often uses his pupils as mon tors when he should keep them employed in study One utilizes something when one that express his exact meaning no more and no less word which we so translate should properly be rendered excellence and includes a reference to the body as well concrete for some practical purpose such as identification (as we can discover if this fabric is woolen by applying certain tests such as burning a portion to see if it has a peculiar odor) or clarification of a problem (as before forming an opinion the judges must know what laws apply to the particular case) or invention (as

Ana *Handle manipulate ply wield *practice exercise use, n 1 Use, service, advantage, profit account avail are synonymous when they agree in meaning a useful or valuable end result or purpose Only the first four are used freely but even they often as the last two invariably occur in idiomatic phrases such as to put or turn to use service advantage etc of no use advantage account avail Use stresses either employment for some purpose or end of practical value (as to turn every scrap of material to use) or the practical value of the end promoted or attained (as the findings in the investigation were of little use) The vehicles [balloons] can serve no use till we can guide them (Johnson) Sweet are the uses of adversity (Shak) Service though often inter or works is beneficial I have done the state some service and they know it (Shak) To fret myself would have done me no service (Smollett) Advantage adds to use the implication of improvement or enhancement as in value position or the like as he uses every penny to advantage her beauty proved to be of great advantage to her in her stage career Constance had never before seen him to such heroic advantage (Bennett) True Wit is Nature to advantage dress'd (Pope) Profit distinctively implies reward or the rewarding character of that which is attained only in its extended use does it imply pecuniary gain as to work hard but to no profit He found moral profit also in this self study for how he asked can we correct our vices if we do not know them (L P Smith) Account is used chiefly in phrases as to turn to account of much little or no account In loose use it is interchangeable with use advantage or profit in discriminating use however it effectualness or effectiveness in the end attained that the Ana Benefit profit (see corresponding verbs at BENEFIT) value *worth *function office duty purpose *intention object

2 Use, usefulness, utility come into comparison when more than suitability for employment sometimes for an implied or stated purpose but often merely for any employed chiefly with reference to definite concrete things that serve or are capable of serving a practical or writing It is therefore often regarded as a property or quality that can be measured decreased and increased or the like or that can be viewed as an abstraction Does any sound measure either of the utility or the needs of various classes of wage-earners determine that a compositor or a plasterer shall receive [a weekly wage] three times that of a skilled farm labourer? (J A Hobson) Universities exist for two purposes on the one hand to train men and women for certain professions on the other hand to pursue learning and research without regard to immediate utility (B Russell)

Ana Applicability relevance pertinence (see corresponding adjectives at RELEVANT) suitability fitness appropriateness (see corresponding adjectives at FIT)

3 Wont practice usage custom consuetude *habit habitude

Ana *Form usage rite, ceremony formality (see FORM n 1)

*Use utility *worth *excellence merit al, customary, habitual wonted accustomed are synonymous when they mean familiar through frequent or regular repetition Usual stresses the absence of strangeness and is applied to whatever is normally

(M Austin) Customary often implies characteristic or distinguishing quality and is applied to that which is according to the usual or prevailing practices conventions usages and the like of a particular individual or especially of a particular community The customary rule on most lines was dinner jackets in the evening (V Heiser) We had no idea how men behave when their customary way of life is disrupted (Lippmann) Sometimes invariable or fixed quality is implied The e.

corre-

, wield broach air ventilate *pronounce *reveal, d s *declare, announce, publish

V

vacant. *Empty blank void vacuous.
Ana *Bare barren destitute void *devoid idiot c imbecilic foolish (see corresponding nouns at FOOL) Con *Full complete replete vacate. *Annul abrogate void avoid quash vacillate. *Hesitate waver falter Ana Fluctuate sway oscillate (see SWING) *demur, scruple boggle vacuous. *Empty vacant blank vo d Ana Barren *bare inane wishy washy *insipid Con *Full replete vacuum, n Void cavity *hole hollow pocket vagabond, n Vagabond, vagrant, truant, tramp, tramper, hobo, bum, stiff swagman (or swagsman), sundowner are here considered as mean ng one given to wandering at will or as a hab t Vagabond and vagrant came into use in English in the 15th century as terms denoting a person without fixed home or settled occupa tion who wandered from place to place depending for a livelihood on begg ng or other disreputable and even dishonest practices Both were derogatory sometimes abusive terms Vagabond the far commoner term in current li erary and general use though still usually derog tory now often, because of its emphasis (even stronger in the verb than in the noun) on the mere fact the world From the first vagrant appears to have been the preferred inclusive legal term as If it shall appear general use it is now chiefly a legal term esp Great Britain and various states of the Unit applying to a person without fixed or known whose habits or acts are such that he or she n become a public menace or a publ c charge arrested as a vagrant the jail is the winter hom vagrants Even in general use the term no much stronger implications of disreputable waywardness than vagabond Truant, an older word than the preceding terms originally carried a weaker sugges tion of vagabondage or roving but as strong an impl cation of laziness idleness and beggary In later times, t came to carry as its strongest implication the habit of wander ng away from where one ought to be or of loitering when one ought to be elsewhere especially and now almost exclusivel) at school as an officer detailed to capture boys who are truants from school The village master A man severe he was I knew him well and every truant knew (Goldsmith) Tramp (or the now rare tramper) is the ord nary col loquial term for vagabond or vagrant in the early sense of either word in general use it applies to any such person whether he moves about in search of work especially seasonal work or whether he l ves by beggary and thievery Whoever not being under seventeen a blind person or a person asking charity within his own town about following seasonal occupations such as harvesting and crop picking The following quotations illustrate the lack of general agreement The difference between word hobo in its more general sense is the name now given to all the human flotsam and jetsam that floats on the outer fringes of society (American Mercury) In Western parlance a hobo is not a tramp A hobo is a migratory laborer who carries his blankets on his back looking for work A picturesque Western synonym more accurately describes him—he is often known as a blanket stiff (World's Work) The slang term stiff, used generically to denote a person especially a man has sometimes the implications of bum (as there are a large number of stiffs in this town getting help from all sorts of charities who should be made to work —Rand Daily Mail) but as here considered applies chiefly to migratory workers and to roustabouts espe-

Swagsmen too genuine or only sundowners —men who loaf about till sunset and then come in with the demand for the unrefusable rations (F W L Adams)

Ana Wanderer roamer rover (see corresponding verbs at WANDER)

vagary *Caprice freak whim whimsey crotchet

Ana *Mood humor temper vein *fancy fantasy dream daydream notion *idea vagrant, n *Vagabond truant tramp hobo bum stiff swagman sundowner

Ana Wanderer roamer rover (see corresponding verbs at WANDER)

v

v

Ana *Formless unformed inchoate amorphous *doubtful dubious abstruse *recondite

Ant Definite specific lucid — Con *Clear perspicuous express *explicit vain 1 Vain nugatory otiose idle empty hollow come into comparison when they mean devoid of worth or significance That is vain (see also FUTILE) which is Supplement) That is otiose which has no excuse for being or serves no purpose and which therefore is usually an encumbrance or a superfluity as mummified customs that have long outlasted their usefulness therefore only apparently or deceivingly sound real worthwhile genuine sincere or the like as empty pleasures empty threats empty promises a hollow victory hollow reasoning a hollow friend

Ana Worthless valueless (see affirmative nouns at WORTH) ineffectual *ineffective inefficacious fruitless bootless *futile abortive

Con Effectual *effective efficacious

2 *Futile fruitless bootless abortive

Ana *Ineffective ineffectual inefficacious trivial trifling puny *petty paltry delusive delusory *misleading

3 Proud vainglorious See under PRIDE n

Ana Self satisfied self-complacent *complacent priggish smug conceited egoistic egotistic (see corresponding nouns at CONCEIT)

Con *Humble meek modest diffident *shy bashful vainglorious Proud vain See under PRIDE n

Ana Arrogant haughty supercilious disdainful in ing a farewell especially a formal farewell Valediction has always been a learned word as Their last valediction thrice uttered by the attendants was also very solemn (Browne) A Valediction forbidding Mourning" (Donne) Valedictory also a learned term has come into common use in the United States where it is ordinarily applied to a commencement farewell oration usually against which no objections can be maintained because it conforms strictly to the law or regulations as of the state or the church (as, to hold a valid title to a piece of property a valid ordination a valid marriage) or because it is supported or justified by facts and correct reasoning (as, a valid argument valid evidence, universally valid principles —Inge "You might have had to decline that berth for some very valid reason From sheer necessity perhaps —Conrad) or less often because it is fully in accordance with claims or promises made for it and is entirely effectual or efficacious (as a valid method of testing intelligence, art for art's sake is still valid in so far as it can be taken as an exhortation to the artist to stick to his job it never was and never can be valid for the spectator reader or auditor —T S Eliot) A person or a thing is sound that is free from error or fault in his or its processes of thought and that avoids fallacies insufficient evidence hasty conclusions superficiality or the like The term not only suggests flawlessness in reasoning but solidity in the grounds upon which it is based as a sound thinker his assurance that he had never used an argument which he did not believe to be sound (Inge) To admit that reason cannot extend into the religious sphere is absolutely sound so long as we realise that reason has a coördinate right to lay down the rules in its own sphere of intelligence (H Ellis) That is cogent or convincing which compels mental assent. But cogent stresses a power or force resident in the argument reasoning or the like such as validity or soundness, that makes it conclusive (cf CONCLUSIVE) and convincing suggests a power to overcome doubt opposition, reluctance to accept, or the like as the remarks of Gibbon [on universities and their degrees] are still cogent" (R. Aldington) there are other ways of making a thing convincing besides merely appealing to one's logic and sense of fact (Babbitt) So expressed the argument does not sound strongly convincing but it is really cogent and the conclusion is sound' (Karl K Darrow) That is telling which produces at once the desired effect frequently the term implies the compelling of assent but it seldom suggests soundness or cogency though in general it does not deny the existence of these qualities (as the first speaker for the affirmative used far more telling arguments than the second speaker every point made by the prosecuting attorney was telling) as often, however the term is applied to words phrases tones of expression methods and the like which convince persuade win admiration, or the like because of their pertinency their suitability or their forcibleness (as, a telling illustration of what Darwin unintentionally did to the minds of his disciples' —Shaw such telling effects of contrast as the Japanese [artists] produced by an empty space —Binyon)

Ana *Conclusive determinative definitive decisive *effective effectual legal *lawful licit *logical analytical subtle

Ant Fallacious sophistical validate *Confirm authenticate substantiate verify corroborate

Ana *Certify attest witness vouch for Ant Invalidate.

valor or valour *Heroism prowess gallantry

Ana *Courage mettle tenacity spunk resolution indomitableness unconquerableness invincibility (see corresponding adjectives at INVINCIBLE) *fortitude guts sand backbone valorous Valiant intrepid *brave courageous dauntless, undaunted bold audacious doughty

Ana Venturous venturesome daring (see ADVENTUROUS) stout sturdy tenacious stalwart tough *strong valuable, adj Precious invaluable priceless *costly expensive dear

Ana Estimated appraised evaluated (see ESTIMATE) valued appreciated prized treasured (see APPRECIATE) esteemed admired respected (see corresponding verbs under REGARD n)

value, n *Worth

Ana *Price charge cost expense *importance consequence significance weight *use usefulness utility value, v 1 *Estimate appraise evaluate rate assess assay

Ana *Calculate compute reckon *judge adjudge adjudicate.

2 Prize treasure *appreciate cherish

Ana Esteem respect admire (see under REGARD n) love enjoy (see LIKE) *revere reverence venerate vanity *Pride vainglory

Ana Self-esteem self love *conceit egotism, egoism amour propre complacency self-complacency self satisfaction smuggishness priggishness (see corresponding adjectives at COMPLACENT) show ostentation pomp pretense (see corresponding adjectives at SHOWY) vanquish *Conquer defeat beat lick subdue subjugate reduce overcome surmount overthrow rout

Ana *Frustrate foil outwit circumvent *overturn subvert

Con Surrender submit capitulate (see corresponding nouns at SURRENDER) *yield succumb vanquisher *Victor conqueror winner champion vapid *Insipid flat jejune banal, wishy washy inane

Ana *Soft bland gentle mild *tame subdued submissive mawkish maudlin soppy slushy mushy *sentimental

Con Racy spicy *pungent piquant trenchant, crisp *incisive *expressive significant pregnant meaningful vapors or vapours. *Sadness depression melancholy melancholia dejection gloom blues dumps variable, adj *Changeable protean changeful mutable

Ana *Fitful spasmodic fickle, mercurial unstable *inconstant, capricious mobile *movable

Ant Constant equable variance *Discord contention dissension strife conflict

Ana. Difference diversity divergency disparateness (see corresponding adjectives at DIFFERENT) separation division severing sundering (see corresponding verbs at SEPARATE) incongruousness uncongeniality incompatibility discordance discrepancy (see corresponding adjectives at INCONSONANT) variation 1 Change alteration, modification See under CHANGE v

Ana *Variety diversity difference divergence *dissimilarity *deviation deflection aberration

2 Variation adaptation mutation modification as used in biology are terms of overlapping meanings and are therefore frequently confused in their applications Variation, the most inclusive of these terms, denotes any divergence in structural or physiological features or peculiarities from those typical of individuals of the same species or from those of parents Adaptation is applied to the process whereby a change or changes in structural or physiological features or peculiarities occur in an organism fitting it for existence under the conditions of its environment The term suggests both fitness for making and ability to make adjustments Thus the thick epidermis and waxy coating of desert plants diminish transpiration and are therefore the results of adaptation to a dry environment the tanning of the skin in human beings is the result of adaptation to bright sunlight Mutation designates a sudden variation in which the offspring differs from its parents in some well marked feature or features that it may in turn transmit to offspring The cause of such a variation is usually obscure. Modification in strict use applies only to a noninheritable variation in an organism that is caused by the influence of its environment such as the highly developed muscles of an athlete fundamentally alike and belong to the same class or category their differences representing distinctions in individuals or kinds (as in that family there is great variety as well as great similarity in the individuals there is more variety in some species of plants than in others) but it may imply that the things which differ are very far apart in form character location and the like yet are related because they contribute to the same end or play a part in the formation of the same whole (as as the world Where order in variety we see And of the individuals, parts or elements and seldom suggests even a class or categorical likeness as the great diversity among human beings Montaigne has said that the most universal quality is diversity when Babel was confounded and the great confederacy was split into diversity of tongues (Cowper)

Ana *Dissimilarity unlikeness difference divergence multifariousness variousness (see corresponding adjectives at MANY) miscellaneousness or miscellany heterogeneousness or heterogeneity assortedness or assortment (see corresponding adjectives at MISCELLANEOUS) various 1 *Different diverse divergent disparate Ana *Distinct separate distinctive peculiar individual (see CHARACTERISTIC) varying changing (see CHANGE v) Ant Uniform cognate alike like vary *Change alter modify Ana Deviate diverge digress depart (see SWERVE) differ with differ from (see DIFFER) *transform metamorphose convert vassal Thrall *serf villein, slave bondslave bondsman bondman peon Helot.

vast Immense *enormous huge gigantic giant gigantean colossal mammoth elephantine titanic herculean Cyclopean Antaean Gargantuan Brobdingnagian Ana Stupendous tremendous prodigious *monstrous *large big great *spacious capacious vaunt v *Boast brag crow gasconade Ana Parade flaunt exhibit display *show magnify aggrandize *exalt.

veer *Swerve deviate depart digress diverge.
Ana Shift transfe sheer vehement *Intens

A colon ( ) groups

Ana *Fierce truculent ferocious furious frenzied (see corresponding nouns at INSPIRATION) fervid perfervid fervent ardent *impassioned passionate forcible forceful *powerful potent.

vehicle *Means instrument instrumentality agent, agency medium organ channel vein 1 *Mood humor temper Ana *Disposition temper complexion temperament.

2 Strain streak *touch suggestion suspicion soupçon tincture tinge shade, smack spice dash d momentum impetus pace headway , legerity, alacrity *haste hurry, tch

Silken satiny glossy, slick, *sleek vend *Sell barter trade auction.

vendible. Vendible, purchasable, salable, marketable come into comparison as meaning such as may be bought or sold Vendible, though the least common is the most comprehensive of these terms for it may apply not only to commodities but also to persons their talents, their vendible women such as prostitutes) or a being put up for sale (often venally or underhandedly) to the highest bidder (as vendible titles vendible honors) Purchasable applies only to that which may be bought or purchased it is often used in reference to things which are rarely offered for sale or of whose existence one is not certain (as he found to his delight that a first folio of Shakespeare s dramas was purchasable defense needs will soon make some now common articles unpurchasable such a tool as you describe is no longer purchasable) In another sense it applies to things which are not offered for sale yet may be bought (as all goods on exhibition are purchasable he admired the duke s pictures and guessed that some might be purchasable In this sense ruption or venality Both stress fitness for the market or the satisfaction of the conditions that will render the thing so described as ready for sale or as ready to find a buyer as each night the fruit dealer discarded all fruits which were not salable marketable securities a salable house a useful and marketable product

Ana *Mercenary hireling hack hackney venal venerable *Old ancient antique antiquated archaic, obsolete antediluvian Ana Venerated revered reverenced (see REVERE) *aged old *secular agelong centuried venerate *Revere reverence worship adore.

Ana Esteem respect admire regard (see under REGARD n) cherish prize treasure value *appreciate veneration. Reverence worship adoration See under REVERE v Ana Deference homage obeisance *honor ing (see AVENGE) requital recompensing or recompense repayment (see corresponding verbs at PAY) vengeful *Vindictive revengeful

Ana Rancorous inimical hostile antagonistic (see corresponding nouns at ENMITY) malevolent spiteful despiteful *malicious malignant venial Venial pardonable come into comparison when applied to faults sins errors and the like and mean of such a character as not to warrant punishment or the imposition of a penalty Venial which etymologically comes close to forgivable in most use implies an opposition to grave serious grievous and in theological use to mortal (see mortal under DEADLY) consequently it often means trifling or not willful or harmless as "those who imagine that the sins of which a deep sense was upon his mind, were merely such little venial trifles as pouring milk into his tea on Good Friday" (Boswell) "the venial indiscretions of youth" (Southey) "because what is therefore venial with them is sometimes grave with us and vice versâ it by no means follows that the French notion of what is right and what is wrong is any the less strict precise and universally binding than our own" (Brownell) Pardonable implies that such excuse or justification may be offered for the fault or error that it is not worthy of consideration as it is a pardonable error in a foreigner but not in a native pardonable pride in his son "her heart innocent of the most pardonable guile" (Conrad)

Ant. Heinous mortal (in Roman Catholic theology) venom. *Poison toxin virus bane venomous. *Poisonous, virulent toxic mephitic pestilent pestilential miasmatic, miasmic miasmal

Ana Malignant malign malevolent (see MALICIOUS) baleful malefic (see SINISTER) *pernicious baneful, noxious deleterious detrimental vent, v *Express utter voice broach air ventilate

Ana *Reveal disclose discover divulge *assert declare aver avow

Ant Bridle (sense 1) — Con *Restrain, inhibit check, curb *suppress repress ventilate 1 *Aerate oxygenate carbonate

2 *Express vent air utter voice broach

Ana Expose exhibit display *show disclose divulge discover *reveal publish advertise broadcast (see DECLARE) ventral *Abdominal anterior venturesome *Adventurous venturous daring daredevil rash reckless temerarious foolhardy

Ana Bold audacious intrepid *brave stout sturdy stalwart (see STRONG)

Con *Timid timorous *cowardly pusillanimous *fearful apprehensive afraid venturous *Adventurous venturesome daring daredevil, rash reckless temerarious foolhardy

Ana & Con See those at VENTURESOME veracity *Truth verity verisimilitude

Ana Integrity probity *honesty honor veranda or verandah Porch piazza portico stoop *balcony gallery loggia verbal *Oral

verbiage Verbiage redundancy tautology pleonasm circumlocution periphrasis are here considered chiefly as technical terms of rhetoric denoting a fault of style or a form or mode of expression involving the use of too many words Verbiage may imply delight in words for their own sake as for their sound their color their suggestions and overindulgence in their use for these reasons the term however more often suggests nothing more than a wordiness that tends to make what is written pointless meaningless obscure or unduly heavy reading as "A whole poem of that quality Burns cannot make the test in the Farewell to Nancy is verbiage" (Arnold) "the almost luscious richness of Aunt Phoebe's imagination her florid verbiage her note of sensuous defiance" (H G Wells) Redundancy does not in general carry the implications of expansiveness floridity or heaviness so often apparent in verbiage because the term strictly implies merely the use of more words than are strictly needed and therefore usually suggests a fault of style rather than a mode of expression "You cannot call them [some lines of Jonson's] verbiage they do not exhibit prolixity or redundancy or the other vices in the rhetoric books" (T S Eliot) "passages in which you might accuse them of almost infantine redundancy" (C E Montague) All the other terms name particular forms of redundancy or an example illustrative of the particular fault Tautology is needless or useless repetition of the same idea in different words as, "Boldly dare" is tautology (Gray) "he cautioned his students to beware of such tautologies as 'visible to the eye' or 'audible to the ear'" Pleonasm denotes a mode of expression in which syntactically unnecessary words are employed (such as "I saw it with my own eyes") omission of which would leave one's meaning intact such expressions are sometimes regarded as pardonable from the point of view of emphasis and are often thought of as figures of speech as "It is a pleonasm a figure usual in Scripture by a multiplicity of expressions to signify one notable thing" (South) Circumlocution and periphrasis (the more bookish term) denote a roundabout or indirect way of saying a thing as, "Somehow I can't relish that word Hockey Can't you supply it by a circumlocution?" (Lamb) "This was not however a question to be asked point blank and I could not think of any effective circumlocution" (Conrad) "He was one of those anomalous practitioners in lower departments of the law who on prudential reasons deny themselves all indulgence in the luxury of too delicate a conscience (a periphrasis which might be abridged considerably)" (De Quincey)

Ana Wordiness verboseness prolixity diffuseness (see corresponding adjectives at WORDY) verbose *Wordy prolix diffuse redundant

Ana Grandiloquent magniloquent flowery bombastic (see RHETORICAL) loquacious voluble garrulous *talkative

Ant Laconic — Con *Concise terse succinct compact *close verge, n Edge rim brim brink *border margin

Ana Bound *limit end confine *circumference perimeter compass verify Corroborate substantiate *confirm authenticate validate Ana *Prove test try demonstrate *certify attest witness vouch for establish settle (see SET v) verisimilitude *Truth veracity verity

Ana Agreement accordance harmonizing or harmony correspondence (see corresponding verbs at AGREE) *likeness similitude resemblance veritable *Authentic genuine bona fide

Ana Actual *real true

Ant Factitious

verity *Truth veracity verisimilitude vernacular *Dialect patois lingo jargon, cant argot patter slang versatile Versatile many-sided all-round (or all-around) are synonymous when they mean manifesting skill and ability in many different directions Versatile stresses not only aptitude for many employments but facility in each or in turning from one to another it therefore usually implies a wide variety of interests or of skills. Stevenson's spiritual and intellectual virtues have been partly frustrated by one additional virtue—speare All round implies completeness and symmetry of development as a human being and as an individual it in one branch of their chosen trade profession or the like as an all-round athlete

Ana Gifted talented (see corresponding nouns at GIFT) accomplished finished *consummate ready apt *quick prompt verse, n 1 Verse, stanza are frequently used inter often decried not only because the term's earliest meaning in English is one of the metrical or rhythmical lines that comprise a stanza or an otherwise undivided poem but also because the confusion of terms often makes for ambiguity In careful technical use verse is invariably employed in the sense of line as a stanza of eight verses there are fourteen verses in a sonnet the iambic pentameconstruction of a poetic work is under consideration or prosody is the subject of discussion the technical sense of verse is not only preferable but is practically obligatory formed ac aster bard minstrel scop gleeman jongleur troubadour trouvère minnesinger scald version 1 *Translation paraphrase metaphrase construe

2 *Account report story chronicle versus *Against con vertebrae *Spine backbone chine vertex *Apex

vertical Vertical perpendicular plumb agree in meaning situated at right angles to the plane of the horizon or extending from that plane at such an angle Vertical is plane of the horizon or from its base or support in such a direction that if applied to abstractions and the most common in figurative use as vertical motion vertical structure (i e in music the structure of a composition in which two or more voices are viewed in respect to their harmonic relations rather than as independent melodies) Perpendicular (etymologically hanging exactly straight like a plumb line [Lat perpendiculum]) is used as often if not more often of lines or planes that are at right angles to a plane that may be described as horizontal in this sense it is often the preferred term in geometry where horizontal or both upward and downward thus one looks up or down the perpendicular face of a cliff a perpendicular fall of water Consequently perpendicular is more often used loosely than vertical to suggest little more than precipitousness or extreme steepness or humorously in the case of human beings stiffness and straightness of the line of one's back as a perpendicular ascent or descent a stiff perpendicular old maid (M R. Mitford) Plumb is largely an artisan's (especially a carpenter's or mason's) term used particularly in judging the exact verticality or perpendicularity of something by its conformity to the direction of a plumb line as they found no indication that the wall was not plumb (more often colloquially out of plumb)

Ant Horizontal

very. Selfsame *same identical identic equivalent equal tantamount ip *boat craft argosy

)be invest array apparel *clothe attire tire st

*Entry entryway hall narthex foyer eroom antechamber

*Trace track rack at imprint *impression stamp vesture Apparel raiment array *clothes clothing dress attire tire vex Irk *annoy bother

Ana Chafe fret gall (see ABRADE) *irritate exasperate nettle provoke

Ant Please regale — Con *Pacify appease mollify propitiate viands Provisions comestibles *food victuals provender fodder forage grub eats chow vibrate. *Swing sway oscillate fluctuate pendulate waver undulate

Ana *Pulsate pulse beat throb palpitate quiver quaver tremble *shake vice 1 *Fault failing frailty foible

Ana Defect flaw *blemish infirmity weakness (see corresponding adjectives at WEAK)

2 *Offense sin crime scandal

Ana Transgression trespass violation *breach infraction immorality (see corresponding adjective at IMMORAL) *evil ill district *locality region *area district *locality (see PART n) vicious Vicious villainous iniquitous, nefarious connection with vice or immorality usually it suggests moral depravity and is the diametrical opposite of virtuous as, to form vicious habits a set of vicious women "We cannot afford to have poor people anyhow whether they be lazy or busy drunken or sober virtuous or vicious (Shaw) Often however the word implies a particular highly reprehensible quality such as ugliness or violence of temper or deliberate cruelty (as, The horseman delivered one last vicious cut with his whip —Kipling He looked at the piece of meat and crust and suddenly in a vicious spurt of temper flung it into the fire —D H Lawrence), or a debasing (as "the multiplication of critical books and essays may create a vicious taste for reading about works of art instead of reading the works themselves"—T S Eliot) or complete vitiation by faults defects irremediable conditions, or the like (as, a vicious system of financing a vicious style of writing a vicious circle [i e a chain of circumstances or of arguments or of processes in an illness in which one thing is logically or necessarily succeeded by a worse or equally bad thing either in a continuous unending process or with the result of getting back to the point where the succession began and must start again]) Villainous is a more condemnatory term than vicious it may suggest any of a number of qualities which can be associated with a villain, a rascal or a knave but usually it is little more than an intensive of vicious as a villainous assault a villainous practice a villainous temper Iniquitous is more fixed in its meaning than the preceding terms for in discriminating use it commonly implies the absence of all signs of justice or fairness or a complete indifference to the standards or principles which govern the conduct of civilized or law abiding men as, the iniquitous disregard of the rights of small nations the iniquitous practices of slave traders These precedents, they produce as authorities to justify the most iniquitous opinions' (Swift) Nefarious is often used in place of iniquitous when one wishes an even more censorious form of expression In very strict use the word implies impiety in its deepest sense, or a breach of laws and traditions which have immemorially been honored but in ordinary use it commonly means inconceivably wicked as the nefarious neglect of their aged parents It [love for children] is still far too weak, or our politicians would not dare to sacrifice the life and happiness of innumerable children to their nefarious schemes (B Russell) Flagitious and infamous both imply shameful and scandalous badness or wickedness but the former is somewhat less rhetorical and more closely descriptive than the latter as, Most people sell their souls and live with a good conscience on the proceeds To sell one's soul and not be paid for it is perhaps in Heaven's eyes a less flagitious bargain (L P Smith) forced and flagitious bombast (T S Eliot) else, perhaps I might have been entangled among deeds, Which now as infamous I should abhor (Wordsworth) Alice would have scouted as infamous any suggestion that her parent was more selfish than saintly (Shaw) Corrupt (as here considered see also DEBASE 1) is applied chiefly to persons in an official capacity or to their acts then implying a loss or lack of moral integrity or probity that makes one accessible to bribes or other inducements to go contrary to their sworn duties or obligations as, corrupt judges a corrupt government bent only on turning each to his own personal advantage the now corrupt machinery of administration and law (G L Dickinson) Frequently however the term is more generally applied and suggests degradation or depravity as Charles II came back with tastes as corrupt as his morals (H Reed) "humanity they knew to be corrupt and incompetent (H Adams) Degenerate stresses a descent and deterioration from an original or earlier high type or condition to one that is very low in the scale morally intellectually physically artistically or the like However it additionally carries so strong an implication of corruption, and so often suggests extreme viciousness that it is generally used to describe that which is especially reprehensible and offensive from the historical point of view or in comparison to other members of its class or other instances of the type as, a family stock degenerate through generations of inbreeding 'What wise and valiant man would seek to free These thus degenerate by themselves enslaved ' (Milton) "What he has to say is inspired by revolt against the degenerate practice of his times (Binyon) we are solemnly warned that in the hands of modern writers language has fallen into a morbid state It has become degenerate (H Ellis)

Ana Debased depraved debauched perverted (see DEBASE) dissolute profligate abandoned reprobate lewd lascivious, wanton, lecherous libidinous (see LICENTIOUS)

Ant Virtuous.

vicissitude. 1 *Change alternation, mutation permutation.

Ana Turning rotation revolving or revolution (see corresponding verbs at TURN) reversal, transposition (see corresponding verbs at REVERSE) *succession, progression sequence series *variety diversity

2 *Difficulty hardship rigor

Ana *Misfortune mischance adversity *trial, tribulation affliction victim Victim, prey, quarry ravin (or raven or ravine) come into comparison when they denote a person or animal killed or injured for the ends of the one who kills or injures. Victim in its earliest sense (which is still found in religious and historical use) applies to a living creature usually an animal sometimes a man, that is killed and offered as a sacrifice to God or a god as, And thou shalt offer a calf for sin every day for expiation And thou shalt cleanse the altar when thou hast offered the victim of expiation (Exodus xxix 36 [Douay Version]) Unto the Paschal Victim [i e Christ] bring Christians, your thankful offering' (transl of Easter Sequence at Mass Manual of Prayers) In general use it applies to one who has been destroyed ruined seriously injured or the like by some ruthless person or power before which he has been helpless as, the victims of war the victims of a pestilence by persistently attacking an institution authors hope to persuade either its supporters or its victims to reform it (A Huxley) 'Was the girl born to be a victim to be always disliked and crushed as if she were too fine for this world? (Conrad) All are victims of circumstances all have had characters warped in infancy and intelligence stunted at school (B Russell) Prey was originally applied to the spoils or booty taken in war or by violence in current literal use it applies only to animals hunted and killed for food by more powerful carnivorous animals (the beasts of prey include lions tigers, wolves, etc , birds of prey include eagles hawks vultures, etc) as, 'The hungry family flew like vultures on their prey (Johnson) In its extended sense prey applies to a victim of something that seizes or captures or fells in a manner suggestive of the action of a beast or bird of prey as, she was a prey to shoddy facile emotions and moods, none of which had power to impel her to any action (R Macaulay) people who make solemn talk about art and are the natural prey of the artists o Punch (C E Montague) Quarry in its most common current sense is a hunting term referable to the victim of a chase especially but not exclus vely by hounds or hawks and may be applied to the animal as pursued ha n nd ha

victor Victor, winner conqueror, champion, vanquisher agree in denoting a person who gains the mastery in a contest conflict or competition Victor, the more formal term and winner, the ordinary term usually stress the pared see also under SUPPORT v) applies to the one who gains acknowledged supremacy through a contest or in a field of competition as in an athletic contest or in a given sport The term does not apply to a winner of any test but only of a test in wh ch one meets all of those of highest rank in the field or meets the one who holds

But I shall rise victorious and subdue My vanquisher (Milton) victory Victory conquest triumph come into compari son as meaning the result ach eved by one who gains the mastery ponents as that d shonest

A colon ( ) groups words dis

(Milton) "'Victory' said Nelson is not a name strong enough for such a scene, he called it a conquest premacy control sway, dominion command *power it

*Food viands provis ons comestibles prov ler forage grub eats chow

*Look s ght glance glimpse peep peek tiny scanning inspection examination (see TINIZE) belief conviction persuasion sentiment a thought concept conception inference ded on concl s on j dgment (see under INFER) bserve note remark no- hold descry espy examine *consider reemulate

rive struggle essay en indpoint angle slant ground *reason vigilant Alert wide-awake *watchful

Ana Anxious agog keen avid *eager circumspect, wary chary *cautious *quick ready prompt *sharp keen, acute

Con *Negl gent neglectful lax slack rem ss *forget ful unmindful obl vious

Vigorous energetic strenuous lusty, nervous comparison when they mean having or mani eat vitality and force A person or thing is n exert on of effort or a pus assistants very energetic and rapid (Bennett) "a less energetic expulsion of air from the lungs" (Grandgent) A person is strenuous that is continuously and zealously energetic a thing is strenuous that makes constant demands on one's vigor energy and zeal In both cases the term implies no flagging of ardor or no avoidance of the arduous as Theodore Roosevelt the exponent of the strenuous life was himself strenuous both in work and play "to love bondage more than liberty— Bondage with ease than strenuous liberty" (Milton) "the spirit of our religion calls for strenuous opposition to the current principles and practice of the world" (Inge) A person or thing is lusty that exhibits exuberant vigor or energy as "Therefore my age is as a lusty winter Frosty but kindly" (Shak.), "Pete Gurney was a lusty cock Turned sixty three but bright and hale" (Masefield) a lusty appetite lusty disputation (Caine) A person or a thing (such as style or utterance) is nervous (in the sense here considered) that displays forcibleness, compactness and strength that are the results of mental vigor and energy as "Miss Brontë? A good and nervous the coarse describer of a narrow landscape" (H Kingsley) "Nervous idiomatic English" (W D Whitney) "Tyndale's own diction was singularly simple energetic nervous and yet restrained" (Lowes)

Ana Virile manly manful (see MALE) *muscular athletic, sinewy, husky stout sturdy stalwart, *strong tough.

Ant Languorous lethargic.

vile *Base low

Ana Depraved corrupted perverted debased debauched (see DEBASE) *coarse vulgar obscene gross foul filthy nasty *dirty *mean abject sordid *offensive repulsive revolting loathsome vilify *Malign, traduce asperse calumniate defame slander libel

Ana *Abuse outrage mistreat misuse assail *attack revile vituperate berate (see SCOLD)

Ant Eulogize

villainous *Vicious, iniquitous nefarious flagitious infamous corrupt degenerate

Ana Debased depraved perverted (see DEBASE) atrocious *outrageous heinous dissolute profligate *abandoned villein *Serf thrall vassal slave bondslave bondsman bondman peon Helot vindicate 1 Justify defend *maintain, assert

Ana *Support uphold advocate *avenge revenge resist *oppose combat

2 Exonerate *exculpate absolve acquit

Ana *Disprove refute confute *defend protect shield guard vindictive Vindictive revengeful, vengeful are often used interchangeably for they are close synonyms meaning having or manifesting a disposition to pay one back for a real or fancied wrong Vindictive however in good use commonly places more stress upon the unforgiving nature or temper of the persons involved than upon their actions, and may therefore be applied to those who have not at the moment any cause for revenge occasionally it is little more than an intensive of spiteful malicious malevolent and the like as "You have vindictive people to deal with and you have gone too far to be forgiven" (Burke) "There was nothing vindictive in his nature but if revenge came his way it might as well be good" (Stevenson) "The Muses are vindictive virgins and avenge themselves without mercy on those who weary of their charms" (L P Smith) Revengeful and vengeful though applicable to a man's nature carry a far stronger reference to him as provoked to action or as about to act vengeful especially may apply to his hand or arm his sword or any agent or weapon used in inflicting vengeance, as "You know his nature That he's revengeful and I know his sword Hath a sharp edge" (Shak.) "the downcast look of dark and revengeful resolve" (Coleridge) "The queen incensed his services forgot Leaves him a victim to the vengeful Scot" (Swift) "The proud oppressors fly the vengeful sword" (Pope).

Ant Calumniate

Ana Implacable unrelenting relentless merciless *grim spiteful despiteful *malicious malignant malign violation *Breach infraction transgression, trespass, infringement, contravention.

Ana *Offense sin vice crime, scandal desecration *profanation sacrilege blasphemy invading or invasion encroachment, entrenchment (see corresponding verbs at TRESPASS) violence *Force compulsion, coercion duress, constraint restraint

Ana Vehemence intensity (see corresponding adjectives at INTENSE) *effort exertion, pains trouble *attack assault, onslaught onset virago Virago amazon termagant, scold shrew, vixen barge agree in meaning a woman of pugnacious temperament Virago and amazon both suggest masculine or heroic stature and vigor in earlier use both designated a female warrior At present virago seldom implies heroic qualities, but rather fierceness of temper and a domineering nature "To arms to arms! the fierce Virago cries And swift as lightning to the combat flies" (Pope) "The lust of power turned some of them into unsexed viragos like Antony's wife Fulvia" (Buchan) Amazon, though still applied to one of a mythical race of women warriors also designates an abnormally large and virile woman it rarely suggests violence of temper Termagant, though now seldom applied to any but a woman carries over from its original application to a stock character of the medieval drama a brawling violent Saracen deity the implications of turbulence boisterousness and an uncontrollable temper

The last four words are all designations of women who inflict their bad temper on others Scold usually implies vulgarity and habitual abusiveness as "I know she is an irksome brawling scold" (Shak.) shrew, a bitter tongue and a nagging disposition as "those men who are under the discipline of shrews at home" (Irving) vixen, a quick fiery temper and snappishness or considerable asperity as "A woman tropical intense She blended in a like degree The vixen and the devotee" (Whittier) barge (an Anglo-Irish word) frequent indulgence in scolding or faultfinding virgin, virginal Maiden boyish *youthful juvenile puerile

Ana *Chaste pure modest, decent fresh *new

Ant Anile senile

virile Manful, manly *male masculine manlike mannish.

Ant Effeminate impotent (sense 2) virtual *Implicit constructive

Ant Actual

virtually Virtually practically, morally are very close synonyms meaning not absolutely or actually yet so nearly so that the difference is negligible. So close are these words in meaning that they (especially the first two) are often interchanged in ordinary use discriminating writers however retain their historical implications and employ them therefore with better effect Virtually implies that the difference is merely that between what a thing is in name or outward seeming and what it is in is enough for practical purposes or from the point of view of use value effectiveness and the like and what satisfies the requirements formally or absolutely as badly spotted fruit is practically worthless the Democratic nomination to a senatorship in some southern states is practically an election a road is practically finished when traffic can pass over it freely and without interruptions Morally although it is less often used than virtually and practically in phrases such as morally (virtually or practically) certain and morally (virtually or practically) impossible is the best selection in such collocations For morally implies a difference between it occurs in a statement of a conviction and is slightly less positive than absolutely as it is morally ness (see corresponding adjectives at MORAL) Ant Vice

virtuoso 1 Connoisseur *aesthete dilettante 2 *Expert adept artist dab dabster artiste wizard virtuous *Moral ethical righteous noble Ana Pure *chaste modest decent *upright just honorable Ant Vicious
virulent *Poisonous venomous toxic mephitic pestilent pestilential miasmatic miasmic miasmal Ana *Deadly mortal fatal lethal *pernicious noxious baneful deleterious malignant malign (see MALICIOUS) virus 1 *Poison venom toxin bane 2 *Germ microbe bacterium bacillus pathogen visage *Face countenance physiognomy mug puss vision 1 *Revelation prophecy apocalypse 2 *Fancy fantasy phantasy phastasm dream day dream nightmare Ana Illusion *delusion hallucination mirage *imagination fancy fantasy visionary, adj *Imaginary fanciful fantastic chimerical quixotic Ana Romantic *sentimental maudlin utopian *ambitious pretentious ideal transcendent transcendental (see ABSTRACT) illusory seeming *apparent also to a more prolonged stay as a house guest or in a place where one goes for purposes of rest tion (as here compared see also TRIAL 2) is now chiefly in formal and official use where it is employed in reference to a visit such as to a church a college or a ship

Consequently the term may also be applied to anything that visits one often by or as by the will of a superior power (as Ye gentle visitations of calm thought — such as is made upon a person who is not a friend but with whom one has social or official relations (as a society woman must give a portion of her time to formal calls) or by a person in quest of business or of a business order (as the morning call of the grocer s boy a baker s call) The term however may be used in place of visit for a short social visit visitant. *Visitor guest caller rsity calamity vicissitude (see DIFFICULTY) visitor Visitor, visitant, guest, caller come into comparison as meaning one who visits another or comes to pay a visit Visitor is the general word applicable to anyone who comes under this description (as there are visitors in the drawing room summer visitors) It is however specifically applied to one who makes a friendly visit or one who comes in the cause of charity social service investigation and the like as to entertain visitors a frequent visitor at his friend s house the visitor from the charitable organization found no one at home Visitant now rarely applies to a human visitor Some ornithologists and others use it in preference to visitor which is also employed in this sense of a migratory bird that comes only for a short stay in a given region as certain warblers are rare visitants in this locality In general however the term is applied to a visitor who is or guest emphasizes the idea of hospitable entertainment term paying guest or even guest alone is now often used euphemistically in place of lodger or boarder especially when social equality social relations or the like is implied as the guests at a summer hotel. Caller is applicable not only to one who comes for a social or business call (see under VISIT) but to anyone regardless of his intentions who seeks entrance to one s home office or the like as she told her maid that she would not be at home to callers that day vital 1 *Living alive quick animate animated style

stopping the current in the coil Activate stresses the healing spir t of the Soc ety (H Cusl ing)

Ana An mate *quicken enliven vivify stimulate galvanize exc te *provoke

Ant Atrophy

vitiate *Debase deprave corrupt pervert debauch

Ana Pollute defile taint, *contaminate degrade demean *abase impair spo l *injure damage annul invalidate *nullify vitiated Debased depraved, corrupted debauched perverted See under DEBASE

Ana Defiled polluted contaminated taint (see CONTAMINATE) impa red spoiled injured (see INJURE) invalidated annulled (see NULLIFY) vituperate Rev le berate rate upbraid *scold eulogize

vituperation *Abuse invective obloquy scurril ty billingsgate

Ana *An madversion aspersion stricture reflection *attack assault onslaught onset condemnation denunciat on censur ng or censure (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE) vil fying or vilificat on maligning calum niation (see orresponding verbs at MALIGN)

Ant Acclaim praise

vituperative *Abusive opprobrious contumelious, scurrilous scurrile scurril

Ana *Coarse vulgar gross obscene insulting offending outraging (see OFFEND) condemn ng or condemnatory denounc ng or denunciatory (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE) vivacious *L vely an mated gay sprightly

Ana Buoyant effervescent volatile (see ELASTIC) *merry bl the jocund frolicsome sportive *playful

Ant Langu d

vivid *Graphic p cturesque p ctorial

Ana *Sharp keen acute *dramatic dramaturgic theatrical *expressive eloquent meaningful nervous lusty *vigorous *clear luci l perspicuous

Vocal usually impl es responsiveness to a stimulus to ex pression or freedom and spontaneity in voicing one s ideas or feelings Earth s millions daily fed a world employed In gathering plenty yet to be enjoyed Till writing and copiousness in the flow of words unl ke vocal fluency but it also suggests the stimulus of powerful emotion and its express on in fervent and moving lan guage it is rightly applied not only to speakers but to writers poets and even by extens on to things as to be eloquent in one s own behalf Of all the attempts to describe such [mystical] experiences these barely articu rogatory in its connotations as it is now In earlier use it not so melod ous and voluble as that of Dryden s enchant ing prose (J Warton) In current use voluble and glib both imply loquacity Voluble suggests a flow of language that is not eas ly stemmed as to indulge in voluble ex planations he grew voluble when he saw that he was not in danger of arrest Glib impl es such facility in utterance

Ana Express ng voicing venting (see EXPRESS, v) *expressive sententious eloquent vocation Vocat on avocation are often confused Vocation denotes one s occupation or the work in which one is regularly employed or engaged as a business a profes s on or a trade as to make an early cho ce of one s vocation An avocation is an occupation in which one en gages in one s leisure time or as subsid ary to one s vocation as he is a lawyer by vocation but he has found time for avocations such as farming and lecturing In its str ct etymological meaning an avocation is someth ng which calls one away from one s ordinary pursuits as interrupted eternally with these petty avocations vehement cries or shouts it often also suggests a deafen ing qual ty as watermen fishwomen oysterwomen and all the vociferous inhabitants of both shores (Fielding) vociferous vindications of their innocence (Irving) vociferous protests Clamorous implies insist ency as well as vociferousness it usually suggests a disturbing to the auditory nerves it has however so long been applied especially to loud harsh voices or vocal fault finding (Deland) Boisterous in its common current vociferous and clamorous than to boisterous which is now frequently its nearer synonym Its chief d stinctive im play, obstreperous in her praise (Millay)

Ana Noisy sounding (see correspond ng nouns at SOUND) vehement *intense bewildering d stracting (see PUZZLE v) vogue Mode *fashion style fad rage craze dernier cri cry tilate *com

PLETE)

*bare barren hollow empty nugatory, *vain

2 *Devoid destitute void, n Vacuum *hole hollow cavity pocket

Ana Emptiness vacancy, vacuity (see corresponding adjectives at EMPTY) abyss *gulf abysm void, v Avoid vacate *annul abrogate quash volatile Effervescent buoyant expansive res lient *elastic

Ana Unstable mercurial *inconstant fickle capri cious l ght minded frivolous flippant flighty (see corresponding nouns at LIGHTNESS) variable *changeable protean volatility, *Lightness l ght mindedness levity frivol at CHANGEABLE)

volcano *Mountain mount peak alp mesa volition *Will conation

Ana *Choice election option *decis on determi nation oercion compulsion duress rrulity loquacity talkativeness See ur articulateness (see cal articulate *easy facile th

g stammering

xquacious *talkative ignitude *size extent dimensions area voluntary Voluntary, intentional, deliberate willful (or wilful), willing are here compared as meaning done prompt or incite action it does not necessarily imply that these influences have not been operative but it usually suggests that the decision is the result of one s free cho ce as a voluntary renunciation of one s inheritance a voluntary confession Often the term carries another sometimes a different, implication such as that of spontaneity (as voluntary contributions our voluntary service he requires not —Milton) or espec ally when the oppos tion is to involuntary that of subjection to or regulation by the will (as voluntary movements voluntary muscles) or that of prior cons deration and clear choice (as voluntary manslaughter) or in law that of absence of any legal obl gation or compulsion to do make etc (as voluntary bankruptcy) or of any valuable consideration in return for doing making etc. (as a voluntary conveyance of property) Intentional applies chiefly to acts or processes entered into in order to achieve a desired end or purpose or to the end or purpose so willed or effected the use of the word eliminates every suggestion of the possibil ty of accident or inadvertence as, an intentional insult a characteristic such as a keen scent evolved in a dog by intentional selection and breed ng Not one in a thousand perpetrates any intentional damage to fish fowl, or flowers (Jefferies) Deliberate (as here considered see also DELIBERATE 2 SLOW) adds the implication of full knowledge or full consciousness of the nature of one s intended act and a decision to go ahead in spite of such knowledge or consciousness as, a deliberate falsehood a deliberate sin deliberate murder a deliberate attempt to ruin a person s good name Willful (as here considered see also UNRULY) adds to deliberate the impl cations of a refusal to be taught counseled or commanded and of an obstinate determ nation to follow one s own will or choice in full consc ousness of the influences or arguments opposed to the attitude adopted or the action or deed contemplated as a willful murder willful ignorance his willful abuse of his children a sin committed willfully To such perseverance in wilful self-deception Elizabeth would make no reply (Austen) wilful bl ndness to ascertained truth (Inge) Willing carries on the other hand an impl cation of one or more characteristics such as agreeableness openness of m nd absence of reluctance or the like that makes one ready or eager without suggestion or w thout coercion to accede to the wishes or instructions of others or to do something or effect some end pleasing to them as How curious is that instinct which makes each sex, n different ways the willing slave of the other! (Jefferies) willing service a willing servant Where ears are willing talk tends to be loud and long (A Huxley)

Ana Chosen elected opted (see CHOOSE) *free independent autonomous

Ant Involuntary nst nctive (sense 2) — Con Compelled coerced forced (see FORCE v) voluptuous Luxur ous sybarit c epicurean *sensuous sensual

Ana Indulg ng, *indulgent pamper ng (see corresponding verbs at INDULGE) *luxurious, opulent sumptuous.

Ant Ascetic.

voracious Voracious, gluttonous ravenous ravening, rapacious agree in meaning excessively greedy Voracious impl es the habit of gorging oneself with food or drink or with anyth ng that satisfies an excessive appetite of any sort as a voracious eater the shark is one of the most voracious of fishes a voracious reader, " voracious birds that hotly bill and breed, and largely drink (Dryden) Gluttonous differs from voracious ch efly in its emphasis on greediness in eating and in its common suggestions of del ght in food and of eating past need to the point of satiety as gluttonous persons often are obese Though a Norman was not gluttonous he was epicurean (Lytton) Ravenous implies excessive hunger and suggests violent or grasping methods of dealing w th food or with whatever satisfies one s appetite as He [Dr Johnson] contracted a habit of eating with ravenous greed ness The s ght of food affected him as it affects wild beasts and birds of prey (Macaulay) He had mad hungers that grew more ravenous as he fed th em (Wylde) Ravening though sometimes employed in place of ravenous often comes closer to rapacious in suggesting a violent tendency to seize or appropriate to oneself in the manner of a b rd of prey or a predatory an mal as Beware of false prophets which come to you in sheep s clothing but inwardly they are ravening wolves (Matthew vii 15) Rapacious may imply the seizure of food (as Rapacious animals we hate Kites hawks, and wolves deserve the r fate —Gay) but more often it suggests excess ve and utterly selfish acqu s tiveness or cupidity as the Indians who though often rapacious are devoid of avar ce (Parkman) the European nat ons arrogant domineering and rapacious have done l ttle to recommend the name of Christianity in As a and Afr ca (Inge)

Ana Greedy grasping acquisitive *covetous satiating sating surfeiting gorg ng (see SATIATE) votary *Addict devotee habitué fiend fan

Ana *Enthusiast fanatic zealot bigot vote, n *Suffrage franchise ballot vouch for *Cert fy attest witness

Ana *Support uphold *confirm substantiate verify corroborate vouchsafe *Grant accord concede award

Ana *Give bestow confer present condescend deign *stoop *oblige accommodate favor voyage n *Journey tour trip excursion cruise expedition jaunt pilgrimage vulgar 1 *Common ord nary familiar popular

Ana *Un versal general *preva l ng prevalent current r fe *usual customary crude *rude rough sordid ignoble *mean

2 *Coarse gross, obscene ribald

Ana Low *base v le *offensive loathsome repulsive revolting indelicate indecent *indecorous

W

wabble. Variant of WOBBLE training or ab l ty in general stipend is less common in the Un ted States tl an salary (as teachers salaries the salary of a bank pres dent) but it is the usual term in England (as a teacher s stipend Many a parson has brought up a family on a stipend of seventy pounds a year —Shaw) Stipend however is sometimes used in the United States in place of salary for the remuneration of a teacher especially in a college of a clergyman, or a mag strate in Scotland it is used only of the salary of a clergyman Fee appl es to the price asl ed or paid for the services of a physician lawyer mus cian art st or tl e like when such services are requested or required as to pay the surgeon s fee for a major operation a lawyer s retaining fee a p anist s fee Pay, which is often general in its sense may be equivalent especially to wages (as in payday pay roll etc) more specifically it is used with reference to soldiers as an officer on half pay Hire is

Ana ... corresponding verbs at PAY) wager *Bet stake pot ante bl nd waggish Sportive frol csome *playful impish mis chievous roguish wanton

Ana Facetious jocose jocular humorous *w tty jovial jolly (see MERRY) comic comical *laughable droll ludicrous funny

Con *Serious earnest sober grave sedate staid wail v Weep *cry wl imper blubber keen Ana Mourn *grieve lament bewail bemoan, *deplore moan sob *s gh groan wait *Stay remain abide tarry l nger

Ana *D lay loiter

Con Depart leave *go withdraw retire.

waive Cede yield resign abandon surrender *relin qu sh leave

Ana *Forgo forbear sacrifice concede *grant allow Con *Demand claim require exact assert *mainta n defend wake, v Wake awake waken, awaken cause d fficulty because the pr nciples of choice as ind cated by current good use are not w d ly kno vn or in all cases defin tely accepted All four are both trans tive and intrans tive verbs mean ng to come out of or to cause to come out of sleep or by extension a condition resembling sleep The tendency at present is to prefer wake and awake for the literal sense in intrans tive use especially in speech and in ord nary prose (as he awoke this morning at three he wakes each morning at six o clock) and waken and awaken or sometimes wake up in transitive use (as the porter went through the car awakening the sleepers no ses loud enough to waken or wake up the soundest sleeper) In poetry and literary prose where the cho ce is often determined by the rhythm more freedom is exer cised In both the l teral and extended use awake often emphas zes the fact of coming to full consciousness wake the process of throwing off sleep or lethargy thus one finds it difficult to wake (better than awake) when one is unduly fatigued she awoke (better than woke) suddenly when her mind awakes to the true situation she will be crushed, the nat onal spirit woke slowly but surely In both literal and extended use when a rousing or stirring rather than a reviving is impl ed awaken and waken are definitely preferred by good writers (see treatment of these words under STIR)

Ana Rouse arouse *stir

waken 1 *Wake awake awaken.

Ana Rouse arouse *stir

2 Awaken arouse rouse *stir rally

Ana Excite stimulate quicken galvanize *provoke inflame enkindle fire k ndle (see LIGHT) impel *move actuate drive

Ant Subdue — Con *Pacify moll fy placate

*Trot pace single-foot rack amble canter llop run

Trot pace s ngle-foot rack amble canter

(V Heiser) the boat pitched and rolled and wallowed as she slowly made her way In extended use the term often impl es sensual enjoyment and ind fference to the

is out of one s element as a fi h out of water a horse in the m re or when one does not know the road or the way as they mashed their way through the thick mud, floundering and stumbling" (Dickens), "they floundered on foot some eight miles to a squatter's cabin rented horses and completed their journey by starlight" (Cather). In its extended use flounder usually implies the confusion of mind and the uncertainty of one who is completely muddled or at a loss but nevertheless proceeds as he floundered through his speech "Nature has been floundering along for a great many millions of years to get things as they are" (C C Furnas). Grovel (etymologically to be flat on one's face) now implies a crawling or wriggling with face close to the ground as in abject fear awe or self abasement, or as a sign of one's complete humiliation or degradation as the terrified slaves groveled before their master "Upon thy belly grovelling thou shalt go And dust shalt eat all the days of thy life" (Milton) "Am I to grovel in the dust for him to walk over?" (Dickens)

Ana Crawl *creep defile pollute *contaminate taint *debase debauch corrupt deprave, pervert.

Con Soar mount ascend *rise wan. Pallid *pale ashen ashy livid

Ana Blanched whitened decolorized (see WHITEN) *languid languishing languorous *haggard cadaverous worn wander. Wander, stray, roam, ramble, rove range prowl, gad, gallivant traipse, meander come into comparison as meaning to move about more or less aimlessly or without a plan from place to place or from point to point Most of these verbs may imply walking but very few of them are restricted in their reference to human beings or to any particular means of locomotion Wander implies the absence of a fixed course or more or less indifference to a course that has been fixed or otherwise indicated the term may imply the movement of a walker (either a human being or an animal) or of any traveler but it may be used of anythingding ble which is permitted to move aimlessly as "wandring thoughtful in the silent wood" (Pope), "two months spent wandering in Europe" "his eyes wandered over the landscape" "his thoughts wander, she wandered frequently from her subject" Stray carries an even stronger suggestion of deviation from a fixed true or proper course it therefore often connotes a being lost or a danger of being lost, as "fallows grey Where the nibbling flocks do stray" (Milton), "We have erred and strayed from thy ways like lost sheep" (Bk of Com Prayer) "Though we stumbled and we strayed, We were led by evil counsellors—the Lord shall deal with them!" (Kipling) Roam carries a stronger suggestion of freedom and of scope than wander it usually carries no implication of a definite object or goal but it seldom, if ever suggests futility or fruitlessness and it often connotes delight or enjoyment as, "Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam Be it ever so humble there's no place like home" (J H Payne) "Like us the Libyan wind delights to roam at large" (Arnold) "Let the winged Fancy roam" (Keats) "type of the wise who soar but never roam" (Wordsworth), "the charm of a quiet watch on deck when one may let one's thoughts roam in space and time" (Conrad) Ramble, in contrast suggests carelessness in wandering and more or less indifference to one's path or goal therefore it often specifically implies a straying beyond bounds or an inattention to details that ought to serve as guides or especially in extended use an inability to proceed directly or under proper restrictions as children so uncared for that they were allowed to ramble through the city's streets for hours at a time "A vine remarkable for its tendency not to spread and ramble but to mass and mount" (Cather) speakers who ramble are almost inevitably bores Rove comes close to roam in its implication of wandering over extensive territory, but it usually carries a suggestion of zest in the activity and does not preclude the possibility of a definite end or purpose as, the invaders roved through the country burning and pillaging homes in their pathway, "ravenous beasts freely roving up and down the country" (Fuller) "To seek thee did I often rove Through woods and on the green And thou wert still a hope a love, Still longed for never seen" (Wordsworth) Range is often used in place of rove without loss it is however the preferred term when literal wandering is not implied or when the stress is on the sweep of territory covered rather than on the form of locomotion involved as "cattle ranging the western plains" "Through Nature and through Art she ranged" (Swift). "Talk ranging the widest horizons" (Mrs H Ward) "his thoughts always ranged far afield" (Mencken) Prowl implies a stealthy or furtive roving, especially in search of prey or booty It is used not only of animals but often also of human beings intent on marauding (as "Now goes the nightly thief prowling abroad"—Cowper "Jackals prowl around his campfire."—Mrs H Ward) but it is also applied usually humorously and with little or no connotation of an evil intention to persons especially those of a restless or vagabond temperament who rove often singly through the streets or the fields in a quiet and leisurely manner (as "If I should prowl about the streets a long time don't be uneasy"—Dickens) Gad gallivant, traipse all colloquial or dialectal terms imply a wandering or roving by those who ought to be under restrictions, such as servants boys and girls, persons who have not much strength or money or the like Gad implies little more than this as "her upper house-maid and laundry maid instead of being in their business, are gadding about the village all day long" (Austen) "He disapproved of her gadding about by herself" (Galsworthy) Gallivant adds to gad the implication of a search for pleasure or amusement or the use of an opportunity to display one's finery as her father refused to allow her to go gallivanting around with any of her suitors young girls dressed in their Sunday best gallivanting along the highways Traipse often adds to gad the implication of a fatiguing or tiresome or wearing experience as a desire for antiques that gives one an excuse for traipsing over the country "sleeping in the kitchen so as not to have to traipse downstairs when the raid warning goes" (Jan Struther) Meander (etymologically from the name of a Phrygian river famous for its windings) may be used in reference to persons and animals but it is even more often used in reference to things such as streams paths roads and the like that follow a course (usually a winding or intricate course) in such a way as to suggest aimless or listless wandering, as, "Rivers that meandered across the vast plains" (Haggard) "Across the ceiling meandered a long crack" (Galsworthy) "the gray gelding meandered along through the hills" (S Anderson)

wane *Abate subside ebb

Ana *Decrease dwindle lessen diminish

Ant Wax — Con *Increase augment mount, soar, tower surge, *rise want, v 1 *Lack need require

Ana *Demand claim exact

Con *Have hold own possess enjoy 2 *Desire wish crave covet

Ana *Long yearn hanker pine hunger thirst aspire pant *aim Con Refuse *decline reject repudiate spurn.

want, n 1 *Lack absence privation defect

Ana *Need necessity exigency deficiency (see corresponding adjective at DEFICIENT)

Ana Pinch stra t or stra ts pass exigency (see JUNCTURE) meage ness scantiness exiguousness (see corresponding adjectives at MEAGER) Con Affluence opulence riches wealth (see corresponding adjectives at RICH) wanton 1 Sportive impish mischievous *playful roguish waggish frol csome Ana *Unruly ungovernable intractable daring reckless, foolhardy (see ADVENTUROUS) gay *lively an mated vivac ous sprightly Con Restra ned checked bridled inhibited (see RESTRAIN) *ser ous, grave sober 2 *Licent ous l bertine lewd lustful lascivious l bidinous, lecherous Ana *Immoral unmoral amoral *abandoned profligate d ssolute reprobate Ant Chaste — Con Pure modest decent (see CHASTE) virtuous *moral 3 *Supererogatory uncalled for gratuitous Ana *Malicious, malevolent spiteful wayward *contrary perverse war, v Battle *contend cope fight Ana Res st withstand combat *oppose strive struggle endeavor essay *attempt ward off Avert *prevent preclude obviate Ana Block bar obstruct impede *hinder forestall antic pate (see PREVENT) *frustrate balk thwart fo l Ant Conduce to

wariness Chariness caut on circumspection calculation See under CAUTIOUS.
Ana Alertness watchfulness (see corresponding adjectives at WATCHFUL) *prudence discretion fores ght forethought providence Ant Foolhard ness brashness (of persons) — Con Carelessness heedlessness thoughtlessness inadvertence (see corresponding adjectives at CARELESS) recklessness rashness (see corresponding adjectives at ADVENTUROUS) warlike *Martial military Ana Bell cose *belligerent pugnacious contentious fighting warr ng contend ng battling (see CONTEND) Con *Pacific peaceable peaceful warm adj Warmhearted sympathetic, *tender compass onate respons ve Ana *Loving affect onate cord al *gracious affable ardent fervent passionate (see IMPASSIONED) *sincere heartfelt hearty wholehearted Ant Cool austere

warmhearted Warm sympathetic *tender compassionate responsive Ana *Loving affectionate *kind kindly benign benignant heartfelt hearty wholehearted *sincere Ant Coldhearted — Con Austere *severe stern *cold cool frosty frigid warn v Warn forewarn ...

advanced ... Nevertheless, the word often carries in add tion at least one other implicat on such as of admonition (as, to warn one of the consequences of his folly), or of exhortation (as The priestly brotherhood Prompt to persuade expostulate and warn — Cowper) or of threats of punishment reprisal or the like (as I shall not take him at his word about fishing as he might change his mind another day and warn me off h s grounds —Austen) Forewarn carries a far stronger implication of advance notification than warn commonly also it suggests impend ng although not imminent danger or peril I will arm me being thus forewarn d' (Shak) He knew not one forewarning pain (Wordsworth) Caution commonly emphasizes advice that warp v Distort contort *deform gnarl.

Ana Twist bend turn (see CURVE v) *injure damage impair mar *stunt stultify atrophy warrant, v 1 *Assert declare affirm aver protest avouch avow pred cate Ana State (see RELATE) *maintain assert assure *ensure insure 2 *Justify Ana Vindicate justify (see MAINTAIN) sanction *approve endorse *authorize wary Chary *cautious circumspect calculating Ana Alert *watchful prudent d screet foresighted forethoughted provident (see under PRUDENCE) Ant Foolhardy brash (of persons) — Con *Careless heedless thoughtless inadvertent reckless rash ven constituent particles may vary in size from particles of because the material was supposed to have been transported by the waters of a deluge Alluvium usually denotes finer material than wash includ ng soil and often s gnifies the depos t left by the flooding of land that is not permanently submerged as on flood plains and deltas. Alluvium is deposited also where streams issue

h, petu

*impa

waste, v Devastate *ravage sack p llage despo l spoliate

Ana Plunder loot *rob rifle *destroy demolish *ruin, wreck.
Ant Conserve save darkness the great and particular glory of the Egdon waste began (Hardy) Wastes of sand and thorns (C E Montague) Desert, etymologically a deserted Miller) the arid region of the southwestern United States is often described as a desert Badlands (a plural noun) applies to any barren waste where soft rocks that suffer from continual erosion prevail and hills are steep furrowed and often fantastic in form drainage is laby rinthine and watercourses are normally dry as extensive wasted Pinched cadaverous *haggard worn careworn Ana Gaunt scrawny skinny angular rawboned (see LEAN adj) Con Sturdy *strong stout stalwart robust *healthy watch v 1 *Tend mind attend Ana Guard protect shield safeguard (see DEFEND) 2 Look *see Ana *Gaze gape stare glare *scrutinize scan inspect examine watchful Watchful vigilant wide awake alert agree

Vigilant implies keen courageous often wary watchfulness especially in the cause of the right Be sober be vigilant because your adversary the devil as a roaring lion walketh about seeking whom he may devour (I Peter v 8) We should be eternally vigilant against attempts to check the expression of opinions that we loathe (Justice Holmes) Wide-awake stresses aware-or promptness in apprehending and meeting a danger an opportunity or an emergency Not only watchful in the night but alert in the drowsy afternoon (Pater) Our wits are much more alert when engaged in wrong-doing than in a righteous occupation (Conrad) Ana *Cautious wary chary circumspect *quick, ready prompt Con *Careless heedless thoughtless inadvertent.

waterlog *Soak drench saturate steep impregnate sog sop ret waterspout *Wind gale hurricane gust blast whirl ... cyclone typhoon, tornado twister flaw breeze

...ndulate

... roller
... to com...
...lls that
...f water

the lake the wind whipped up the surface into high waves her hair rises and falls in natural waves The term formation wherever found the term however carries a less vivid picture than wave for it either denotes an abstraction or tends to suggest a more or less conventionalized pattern as They roamed at large on the undulations of Egdon [Heath] (Hardy) The stream arranges the sand in the shallow in minute fixed undulations (Jefferies) Ripple applies to a small wave such as one of those which cover the surface of water passing over shallows or disturbed by a light wind A breeze stirred about them and the bay broke up into long oily undulations then into ripples tipped with spray (E Wharton) Billow is sometimes used poetically for wave but in careful nonrhetorical use it applies chiefly to a high canisms) apply to a long curling wave or especially v 1 Fluctuate oscillate pendulate vibrate sway undulate Ana Flicker flutter hover *flit flitter quiver quaver tremble *shake 2 Falter *hesitate vacillate Ana Balk boggle stickle scruple *demur shy fluctuate oscillate (see SWING) wax, n *Oil fat grease way, n 1 Way route course passage pass artery agree in meaning the track or path traversed in going from one place to another Way was originally applied to a road especially one for riders or conveyances as well design usage

balky refrac *unruly mpliant

a way often a circuitous way covering many roads

The term may imply straightness and directness (as, to keep to one s course) but it does not necessar ly imply unchangeableness (as to turn or bend one s course) it may suggest a beginning and end (as he must run h s course the course of a missile) but sometimes it connotes circular or unend ng progress, especially in figurative use (as the course of the seasons) it nearly always espe cially in its extended senses impl es progress from point to poi t (as a course of study the course of a plot) As a modern designation course is appl ed ch efly to a track for racing by men, horses, automobiles etc (a race-course) to the natural or artificial channel of a stream her as long as there is a passage in my throat and drink in Illyria (Shak) A bridge a passage broad Smooth easy inoffensive down to Hell (Milton) from the heart to the various parts or organs of the body is now also app l ed to one of the great continuous chan nels of traff c from wh ch branch off many smaller or shorter channels it is ap l ed sometimes to a great ra l road which traverses a continent or goes d rectly from one large c ty to another that is far d tant as from New York to Ch cago or Ch cago to San F rancisco it is also appl ed to a through highway from which branch other routes (or roads connecting w th them) and which per mits swift and unimpeded passage over a great distance, as the northern artery out of Boston weak Weak feeble, frail, fragile, infirm, decrepit agree in meaning not strong enough to bear resist or endure strain pressure or the like Weak is by far the widest army a weak plant a weak character the weaker brethren The spirit indeed is willing but the flesh is weak (Matthew xxvi 41) Thou though strong in love art all too weak In reason (Wordsworth) Often it im pl es a lack of power skill efficiency ability to control or the l ke as a weak government a weak team a weak governor weak nerves a weak influence It may also suggest a defect a fault a dilution or other s gn of impairment of a thing s strength as weak spots in a mechanism a weak tread in a stairway weak tea weak weapons a weak argument Feeble is not only more restricted than weak in its range of application but it also carries a stronger implication of lamentableness or p tiableness in that weakness It is chiefly though far the enemy s advance Rigid principles often do for feeble minds what stays do for feeble bodies (Macaulay) powers opposed to it or tending to destroy it (as Beauty frail flow r that ev ry season fears —Pope) When frail is applied to the will the conscience the is frequently used in place of frail but it usually carries even a stronger s ggestion of certainty or assurance of destruction or of the strength of the powers or forces opposing "Shaftesbury was moreover a man of frag le

A colon ( ) groups words discriminated in this book An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group physical constitution as Kant was, but, unlike Kant, he was a man in the world, heroically seeking to live a complete and harmonious life" (H Ellis) 'She was impuissant

Ant. Strong — Con Stout, sturdy, tough, stalwart, tenacious (see STRONG) weaken. Weaken, enfeeble, debilitate, undermine, sap, cripple, disable come into comparison when they mean to lose or, commonly, cause to lose strength, vigor, or energy Weaken, the most general term of this group most frequently implies loss of the physical strength characteristic of a healthy living thing or any of its organs or the loss of the soundness or stability character in anything material or immaterial as by a natural or forced reduction in resources numbers, means of sup port and the like (as, the regiment was greatly weakened by heavy casualties in battle, the growing power of weaken it suggests the state of a person greatly weakened by old age or severe or prolonged illness or a state comparable to it and therefore usually implies helpless for success ' Some of the new philosophies undermine the authority of science, as some of the older systems under compared it suggests a deprivation of something com parable to a limb organ or other part essential to the

Ana. Enervate, emasculate *unnerve unman impair, *injure, damage dilute, *thin attenuate extenuate

Ant. Strengthen — Con Energize *vitalize, activate *improve, better wealthy. *Rich, affluent opulent

Ant. Indigent

wean. *Estrange, alienate disaffect

Ana. *Separate part divide sunder, sever, divorce

Ant. Addict

weapon. Weapon, arm agree in denoting something used in combat as an instrument of attack or defense Weapon is very general in application for it is applicable to anything that may be used in injuring destroying or defeating an enemy or opponent it may be used in daggers, bayonets and sometimes revolvers and pistols weave, v Weave knit crochet, braid, plait (or pleat, plat), tat are here compared as used in reference to the interlace warp and weft yarns by means of a loom into a textile fabric the yarns being passed over and under each other according to a predetermined pattern Knit fers from knit (which covers it as a general term) by cloth strips by passing one strand over another in such a manner that each strand winds a sinuous course through the ribbonlike or ropelike contexture that is ousal

ousal

espousals wedding

wee Diminutive tiny teeny weeny *small little minute microscopic miniature petite weeny Tiny teeny wee diminutive minute microscopic miniature little *small weep *Cry wail keen whimper blubber

Ana Bewail bemoan lament *deplore sob moan *sigh groan weigh 1 *Consider study contemplate revolve excogitate

Ana *Ponder meditate ruminate muse *think reflect cogitate reason speculate

2 In form weigh down, on, or upon *Depress, oppress

Ana *Worry annoy harass harry torment *afflict try rack

Con Lighten *relieve alleviate assuage allay weight, n 1 Significance *importance moment consequence import

Ana *Worth value magnitude *size extent seriousness gravity (see corresponding adjectives at SERIOUS)

2 *Influence authority prestige credit

Ana Effectiveness, efficacy (see corresponding adjectives at EFFECTIVE) *emphasis stress powerfulness potency forcefulness, forcibleness (see corresponding adjectives at POWERFUL) weight, v Load *adulterate sophisticate doctor deacon weighty *Heavy ponderous cumbrous cumbersome hefty justifiable or explainable fear but rather a vague consciousness that unearthly or mysterious and often careless or unreliable has developed in general use an implication of uncomfortable strangeness or of unpleasant mysteriousness that makes it applicable not only to persons or concrete things but to sensations feelings thoughts and the like as to give you the same uncanny

Heart and The Cask of Amontillado have had a psychological basis in the perversities of a disturbed ial

int

k.

(see FIT adj)

Con *Premature untimely *late tardy behindhand welter *Wallow flounder grovel

Ana Struggle strive (see ATTEMPT v) wench, n Wench, hussy (or huzzy), minx, baggage come into comparison when they are used in place of girl or young woman and with playful or derogatory insinuations Wench is now dialectal in naive use or archaic in sophisticated use It is sometimes employed in endearment and sometimes contemptuously (then often implying harlotry) but commonly in current use and sometimes in historical use, it suggests the vulgarity and low station of the speaker or imputes them to the person who is so designated "I am a gentil womman and no wenche" (Chaucer) "She was both illiterate and vulgar, but more commonly suggests artfulness under the guise of artlessness. "A little saucy rose-bud minx can strike ness than that which is commonly suggeste adjective wet, as give me a damp sponge, shee be damp when they are ironed Dank unequivo plies only to that which is disagreeably, pene or, from the point of view of health or comfort ously wet, as, a cold dank mist, dank fore marshes, a dank bed, a dank cellar Moist ofter

Ana Soaked, saturated, drenched, waterlo SOAK v)

Ant. Dry.

wheedle. Blandish, cajole, *coax.

Ana. Entice, inveigle, *lure, seduce, decoy ingratiate, insinuate (see corresponding adjectives at DISARMING) ow, *intimidate

, gyrate, circle, spin, t come into compari-

Ana. Divert, *amuse, entertain.

whim. Freak, *caprice whimsey, vagary, crotchet Ana. Inclination disposition (see corresponding verbs fantasy, vision, dream notion, ry, blubber, wail, keen

*Caprice, freak, whim, vagary, wheel, swirl, *turn, revolve irouette eddy.

M

ale, hurricane, cyclone, typhoon wister, breeze gust, blast, flaw, ot, iota, bit, *particle, smidgen , blanch, bleach, decolorize (or

Ant Blacken
2 Whitewash gloze gloss *palliate extenuate Ana See those at WHITEWASH whitewash, v Whiten gloze gloss *palliate extenuate Ana *Disguise cloak mask dissemble condone *excuse whither Whither, where come into comparison only when they mean the point to which one is moving Whither was formerly the correct adverb to use in this sense where being used with verbs of rest as whither are you going? where are you staying? Where is now used preferably after verbs of motion except in poetical elevated or archaic style who Who which, that are here compared as relative pronouns In modern usage who refers to persons (less commonly to animals) which to animals or things but not (in educated use) to persons that may be used of persons animals or things If a relative clause merely conveys an additional or parenthetic idea who or which (preceded by a comma) is usually employed if the relative clause is restrictive or defining, who or which or that may be used without a preceding comma as this gentleman, who (not that) was here yesterday desires to see you the gentleman who (or that) was here yesterday except when the relative pronoun follows immediately the demonstrative that or is object of a preposition or in the possessive case but among contemporary writers consistent discrimination between the restrictive that and the nonrestrictive which or who is not common The preference of some grammatical authorities for that instead of who for present usage mostl tendency to use who whole adj 1 Ent

Ana Sound well *healthy robust wholesome com plete plenary *full.
Co
ma 2 me vid imi
or the like as he devoted his whole energy to the task the whole congregation approved the pastor's policy the whole army will be mobilized the whole country was affected Entire may be used in place of whole in any of these illustrations it however can as whole cannot imply actual completeness or perfection from which not total amount gathered in a community-chest campaign the total output of a times est incomple

or a possessive pronoun Sometimes it equals whole as all the city (the whole city) was in an uproar sometimes it comes closer to entire as all their affection (or their entire affection) was centered on their children some times it equals total as all their earnings (the r total or combined earnings) were insufficient for their needs Gross is used especially in financial statements in place of total to indicate that deductions as for costs or expenses have not yet been made as gross earnings gross receipts Ant Partial whole, n Total aggregate *sum amount number quantity Ant Part constituent particular — Con Portion piece detail (see PART, n) *item detail component *element integrant wholehearted Whole souled heartfelt hearty un feigned *sincere Ana Ardent fervent *impassioned passionate genu ine bona fide *authentic earnest *serious wholesale *Indiscriminate sweeping wholesome 1 *Healthful healthy salubrious salu tary hygienic sanitary Ant Noxious — Con Deleterious detrimental *per nicious 2 Sound *healthy robust hale well Ana *Strong sturdy stalwart stout whole-souled Wholehearted heartfelt hearty un feigned *sincere Ana See those at WHOLEHEARTED Evil *bad ill naughty *Immoral unmoral amoral iniquitous *vicious is *abandoned reprobate profligate dissolute *Moral virtuous righteous ethical, noble wide *Broad deep Ana *Spacious capacious ample extended or exten sive (see corresponding verb at EXTEND) Ant Strait — Con *Narrow limited restricted confined (see LIMIT v) l direct wig v Tongueclash jaw bawl out berate *scold upguile.

wile, v *While beguile fleet Ana See those at WHILE v will, n Will, volition conation are not often inter changeable because they vary greatly in their range of application and because the last two terms are frequently only to this power or act but also to a psychological entity (once but now less frequently called a faculty) that is the agent of this power and to the process by accidental ext nct on he had felt no w ll to res st —Cather) or it may denote a power that derives from one s conception of hat s good or right and that tests and accepts or rejects one s desires or ncl nations (as appe- t te is the will s sol c tor and the w ll is appet te s and mo t sharply d st nguished sense t des gnates merely the act of making a cho ce or dec s on it usually carr es an impl cat on of del berat on but it rarely sug willed The term may or may not mply a conscious goal t may suggest clearly d rected striv ng or t may connote the restless a mless str vings wh ch the m nd cannot interpret or expla n but t always mplies effort rather than cho ce Rel g on or the desire for the salvat on of our souls Art or the des re for beautificat on Science or the search for the reasons of th ngs—these cona ons of the mind are really three aspects of the same p o- found impulse (H Ell s)

Ana Determinat on *dec s on * ntention intent purpose des gn *cho ce elect on preference charac- ter *d spos t on temper temperament willful or wilful 1 Deliberate intent onal *voluntary willing

Ana Determ ned decided resolved (see DECIDE) ntended pu posed (see INTEND) *ob t nate stubborn dogged pert nac ous

Con Acquiescent *compl ant subm ss ve *tame

2 Headstrong nt actable refractory recalcitrant *unruly ungovernable

Ana Rebellious contumacious fact ous * nsubordi nate *obst nate mul sh bullheaded p gheaded

Ant B ddable — Con Tractable docile amenable *obed ent willing *Voluntary ntentional del berate, willful

Ana Prone open (see LIABLE) incl ned p ed sposed d sposed (see INCLINE v)

Ant Un illing

indisposed avers wily *Sly cunni

Ana Astute sc

Ana analogous

dece tful cunning (see corresponding nouns at DECEIT) win Gain earn acquire *get obta n procure secure.

Ana Ach eve accompl sh effect (see PERFORM) atta n *reach compass * nduce persuade preva l on or upon ose

*Reco l fl nch shrink blench quail Cringe co er (see FAWN) balk sl y stick stickle MUR) squ rm *wr the n Wind breeze gale hurricane gust blast zephyr whirlwind cyclone typhoon tornado techn cally the term s somet mes used to cover a strong or stiff breeze, but t is more specifically appl ed to a nd between 39 and 75 miles an hour A whole gale s described as one hav ng a velocity of 55 to 75 miles an hour Hurricane is popularly appl ed to any exceedingly durat on Gust and blast however may also be appl ed to one of the bursts or rushes which in alternat on w th lash w th storm the streaming pane (Tennyson) Flaw which s now rarely used s appl ed cl efly to a sudden and qu ckly pass ng w ndstorm unlike gust and b ast t appl ed by some meteorolog sts to any such w nd by others however t s restr cted n ts appl cat on to one of l m ted extent wh ch begins with an nwa d and up- ward spiral mot on of the lower a r and is fol owed by an out ard and upward sp ral motion until usually there

Hem sphere) about a center of low barometr c pressure and which has in trop cal countr es a d ameter of from 90 to 500 m les and in the temperate zones a diameter that cyclones are usually accompan ed by rain thunder and over a stretch of territory often sweeping away every thing before it A waterspout is a rap dly rotating funnel shaped or tubular column of wind enclosing fresh water which extends from the under side of an ordinary cumu lus or cumulo-nimbus cloud down to a cloud of spray torn up from the surface of the sea or of a large lake Twister is a colloquial term often applied to a tornado waterspout or similar windstorm winding Winding, sinuous serpentine, tortuous, flexuhorizontal plane it implies little more than weaving from side to s de or in and out through some length mains strong but in literal use the word tends to stress the presence of curves in every line bend and move- ment and the absence of angularity awkwardness and the l ke as the stealthy terror of the sinuous pard ward and outward curves Up the heathy waste [the Ana Curving bend ng turning twisting (see CURVE v) circu tous * ndirect roundabout *crooked devious

Ant Straight

window, n Window casement, dormer, oriel agree in meaning an open ng in the wall of a build ng that is usually covered with glass and serves to admit light and air Window is the ordinary general term for the entire structure including both its framework and the glass or the movable sashes which that framework encloses Come to the window sweet is the night air (Arnold) Casement properly denotes a window sash attached to one of the upright sides of the frame by hinges in ordi nary use however the term is applied to a window or a series of windows (sometimes called casement window)

(or dormer window) denotes a window or a series of rapidly and usually involuntarily (as houses so white that it makes one wink to look at them —Dickens) or to close one eye part way as a hint or a command (as Asiatics do not wink when they have out manoeuvred the enemy but Mahbub Ali came very near it —Kipling) To blink is to wink involuntarily and with eyes

*Victor conqueror champion vanquisher

*Sift sieve riddle screen bolt sort sort classify *separate divide select ingle out

*Exterminate extirpate eradicate uproot literate *erase efface expunge blot out extinguish ann hilate *destroy demol sh

Judgment *sense gumption cretion *prudence foresight jud ciousness saneness sap ence (see corresponding adjec so discerning in his understanding of persons conditions or situations that he knows how to deal w th them so as to correct what is wrong in them how to get the best out of them considering their limitations or difficulties or how to est mate them fairly and accurately often also the term implies a wide range of experience or of knowledge or learn ng but these implications are found less often in colloquial than in literary English as, a wise teacher never pushes l ttle children too far men temperate calm and wise (Pope) knowing himself wise in a mad world' (Meredith); "it is wise to be cautious in condemning views and systems which are now out of fashion" (Inge), "a wiser and more generous-hearted way to improve the shining hours' (L. P Smith) One is sage who is eminently wise being a themselves to the conditions of every civilization (H Ellis), Thankful in his heart and soul that he had his mother, so sane and wholesome' (D H Lawrence)

Ana. Discreet, prudent, foresighted (see under PRUDENCE). *cautious, circumspect, calculating sagacious, perspicacious, *shrewd, astute knowing *intelligent, alert, bright, smart

Ant. Simple

the talent for expressing one's ideas in a sparkling effective manner In this sense wit may or may not imply cation of a power to evoke laughter or smiles became definitely associated with the term without any loss of its earlier suggestions of mental acuteness of swift perception especially of the incongruous of verbal felicity, especially as shown in the expression's unexpectedness eighteenth century has been contrasted with wit, especially as one of two similar yet strikingly different modes of expression manifest in literature Etymologically humor denotes a fluid, in earliest English use the term specifically applied to one of the fluids of the body (blood bile, black bile phlegm) which in medieval physiology were held to determine by their relative proportions the individual's temperament (as sanguine, choleric melancholic, or phlegmatic), in later and still current use, humor denotes a particular disposition or inclination especially one marked by eccentricity, oddity, whimsicalness capriciousness or the like It is from this sense that the one here considered derives, for humor as a quality expressed in one's written or spoken words seems originally to have been associated with a peculiar disposition that leads one to perceive the ludicrous the comical, the ridiculous and to express one's perceptions so as to make others see or feel the same thing This meaning still prevails; as he has the gift of humor she was always saved by her crisp sense of humour her shrewd and mischievous wit (H Ellis) Partly as a result of a revolt against the brittle unfeeling often affected wit of the eighteenth century but even more as a result of the frequent eighteenth and nineteenth-century contrasts of the two qualities wit and humor, especially as evidenced in literary works humor came to imply more human sympathy more tolerance more kindliness than wit a deeper sense of the inherent incongruities in human nature and human life a feeling for the not readily perceived pathos as well as for the not readily perceived absurdness of characters, of situations of consequences and the like hence writers distinguished the humor of Chaucer and Shakespeare from the wit of Dryden and Pope, the wit of Molière s comedies from the humor of Don Quixote You expect wit from every man of any eminence in the eighteenth century But of that sympathetic enjoyment of all the manifold contrasts and incongruities of life which we call humor, I think Wesley had very little (C T. Winchester) Irony (etymologically dissimulation) applies chiefly to a way of speaking or writing in which the meaning intended is contrary to that seemingly expressed as Of course Constance is always right observed Sophia with irony (Bennett) She was assisted by an impetuous girl called Caroline who by the irony of language waited at table (C Mackenzie) In a more profound use irony applies both to the quality of mind of a person such as a poet dramatist or philosopher who perceives discrepancies in life and in character (as between the appearance and the reality or between what is promised and what is fulfilled or between what is attempted and what is accomplished) and to the form of humor or wit which has for its aim that person s revelation of the mockery implicit in these contradictions as There must be some meaning beneath all this terrible irony (Shaw) The second type [of memorable lines from the poetry of Wilfrid Owen] is often witty in the seventeenth-century sense always ironical it works through a kind of understatement which recalls to us at once the grim and conscious irony of those who knew that their feet had come to the end of the world (Day Lewis) Sarcasm (derived from a Greek verb meaning to tear flesh like dogs) applies chiefly to a savage bitter form of humor intended to cut or wound Sarcasm may or may not imply the use of verbal irony (sometimes in fact it suggests plain speaking) but it always implies as its aim the intent to make the victim an object of ridicule as In the intercourse of familiar life he [Swift] indulged his disposition to petulance and sarcasm (Johnson) The arrows of sarcasm are barbed with contempt (W Gladden) Satire primarily designates a type of writing the object of which is to hold up vices or follies (especially those of a people an age or the like) for ridicule and reprobation Jonson s drama is only incidentally satire because it is only incidentally a criticism upon the actual world It is not satire in the way in which the work of Swift or the work of Molière may be called satire that is it does not find its source in any precise emotional attitude or precise intellectual criticism of the actual world (T S Eliot) Only secondarily does the term apply to a quality of mind or a way of looking at men and conditions Summerndores Remson because he [Remson] has no satire at all You have no conception of the terror of such souls in the presence of the barbed glance and the hyena laughter of the humorist (Wm McFee) Repartee, once applied to a witty or clever retort now applies chiefly to the power or art of answering quickly pointedly skillfully and with wit or humor or less often irony or sarcasm As for repartee in particular as it is the very soul of conversation so it is the greatest grace of comedy ' (Dryden) I hadn t known Jane spoke so well She has a clever coherent way of making her points and is concise in reply if questioned quick at repartee if heckled (R Macaulay)

Ana Quick wittedness alertness brightness brilliancy cleverness smartness, intelligence (see corresponding adjectives at INTELLIGENT) raillery, *badinage persiflage pungency piquancy, poignancy (see corresponding adjectives at PUNGENT)

witchcraft Wizardry witchery, sorcery *magic alchemy thaumaturgy witchery. *Magic sorcery, witchcraft, wizardry alchemy thaumaturgy with *By through withdraw. 1 *Remove draw

Ana *Separate part sever sunder

Ant Introduce bring.

2 *Go leave depart quit withdraw retire scram, clear out

Ana Abscond decamp *escape, flee fly retreat *recede

Con Arrive *come

wither. Wither, shrivel, rivel, wizen come into comparison as meaning to lose or cause to lose freshness and smoothness of appearance Wither implies a loss of vital moisture such as sap or body fluids with consequent fading or drying up and ultimate decay or death (as withered leaves flowers, [blossoms] which fall before they wither' —Binyon) the term is often used in an extended sense implying a similar loss of vitality vigor animation or the like, as a man old wrinkled faded wither d (Shak), ' Age cannot wither her nor custom stale Her infinite variety (Shak), ' Art he [D H Lawrence] thought should flower from an immediate impulse towards self-expression or communication and should wither with the passing of the impulse (A Huxley) Shrivel carries a stronger implication of becoming wrinkled or crinkled or shrunken in size than wither usually also it implies a cause such as a blasting or blighting by or as if by intense heat or a lack of invigorating influences such as rain or in extended use lack of encouragement stimulation variety of employments or the like as the leaves shrivel in the hot sun age has shriveled her skin [The cow's] udder shrivels and the milk goes dry (Frost) When the soul of a youth can be heated above common heat the vices of passion shrivel up (Meredith) The man whose practical life [is] shrivelled to an insignificant routine' (H Ellis) Rivel (which is now rare) like shrivel implies a wrinkling shrinking and a blighting especially by age as the peaches are riveling a riveled skin Wizen especially in the past participle is often preferred to wither or shrivel when the ideas of shrinking in size and the wrinkling of the face or other surface especially through age lack of nourishment or the like are especially stressed as a wizened old man the wizened face of a poorly nourished boy Was there a wizened shrub a starveling bough (Browning)

Ana *Dry parch desiccate shrink *contract constrict withhold Detain keep back retain hold back reserve *keep

Ana. *Restrain curb check bridle inhibit refuse, *decline

Con Accord *grant concede award vouchsafe withstand Res st *oppose combat antagonize Ana *Bear endure stand tolerate suffer thwart, baffle balk fo l *frustrate assail *attack assault

ASSENT)
wits Wit, intell gence brain bra ns *mind intellect soul, psyche Ana. See those at WIT n 1 witticism *Jest joke jape qu p wisecrack crack gag Ana *Wit humor sarcasm satire irony repartee witty adj Witty humorous facetious jocular jocose often described as a witty Burns as a humorous poet Whose humorous vein strong sense and s mple style sparkling scintillating (see FLASH v) *caustic mordant acrid scathing penetrating p ercing probing (see ENTER) wizard *Expert adept artist artiste virtuoso dab dabster wizardry. Witchcraft witchery sorcery *magic, al diminish reduce shimmy qu ver shiver shudder quaver quake *shake tremble d dder d ther womanly ladylike feminine womanish ladylike feminine ladylike womanish feminine Wonder, wonderment, amaze, are synonymous when they tion aroused by that which is rehensible and often awe- wonderment commonly suggest that which excites the emot on plexity in the person affected ew That one small head could smith) In its richest use as in wonder often implies rapturous ve or under Ever made us mute with wonder (Sh lley) Amaze (ch efly in poetry) and amazement stress bewilderment or loss of po ver to col illy close to wonder usually adds the implication bed or ecstat c attention as they were lost in on A Kioto painter who burnt a hole in his dmire a mooni ght effect and in l is rapt ad n ra tted to notice that he had set a whole quarter of on fire (B iyon) ve *reverence fear astonishment amazement respond ng verbs at SURPRISE) perplexity ent bewilderment (see correspond ng verbs at

*Habit hab tude practice usage custom de use ay manner fash on (see METHOD) Accustomed customary hab tual *usual imil ar *common ordinary natural *regular typ cal Court sol cit *invite bid lure *attract *lure entice seduce bland sh ajole wheedle pursue chase *follow trail dj *Insane mad crazy crazed demented l lunatic man ac non compos mentis *Stiff rigid inflexible tense stark irm hard solid *heavy weighty ponderous clumsy *awkward Con Pliant pliable *plastic *supple limber word n Word, vocable term agree in meaning any combination of letters capable of being pronounced or written to express the single idea that is by tradition or common consent associated with that combination Word is not only the most commonly used but is the

the ultimate units of language Otherwise it may suggest a concept designate a person or thing assert being mode of being or a specific action express a relation or connection or the like as the law of the land is a phrase of five words he knew no words to express so subtle an idea purity of style depends on the cho ce of words Vocable denotes a word but it throws the empha s s upon the word as pronounced or spelled rather than upon its denotation or meaning The word star there-fore has in our r-slighting speech two pronunciations stah and star according to what comes after it So it is, potentially with every r tailed vocable (Grandgent) A flat denial of poetic possibilities, in the case of any of the units of express on as legal terms such as right of way or cease and desist Term further differs from word in applying only to such words and phrases as have a precisely limited often technical use or meaning It therefore usually implies need of clear definition and of strict adherence to this definition As adopted by (H Ellis) The outlook domestic and international was still what those who think in terms of colour call black. The Irish question the Russ an question the Ital an Adriat c question all the Asiatic questions gazetteer syn nymicon.

wordy Wordy, verbose prolix, diffuse, redundant come into comparison when they are appl ed to a person s style in writing or speaking or to a discourse or part of a d scourse and mean using or manifesting the use of more words than are necessary to express the thought Wordy often carries no further implications though it may suggest garrulousness or loquacity when the reference is to that which is spoken as wordy arguments a wordy d scussion about nothing important a wordy essay The term is also applicable directly or ind rectly to persons as well as to their utterances as a wordy prolegomenous babbler (Stevenson) Verbose suggests over-abundance of words as a literary fault characteristic especially of a wr ter or publ c speaker or of an entire interesting deta ls but they are never verbose Prolix told not in Nuño s manner which was infinitely prolix (Hudson) Diffuse usually impl es verbosity but it because repetitious or unnecessary (as to cut out all redundant words in a poem) or to writers, speakers and utterances that manifest a tendency to indulge in redundancies (see redundancy under VERBIAGE) The naturally copious and flowing style of the author is generally redundant (J Mackintosh) She had been like nearly all very young writers superfluous of phrase redundant (R Macaulay)

Ana *Inflated turg d tumid flatulent bombastic cal loquacious garrulous voluble *talkative aconic *concise terse succinct summary ompendious these terms for it may imply activity of body or of mind or of a machine or in its largest sense of any differs from work not so much in its specific denotations as in its impl cations as a rule it implies human work and therefore suggests physical or intellectual exertion only it may suggest more strenuousness than work but this d fference is not as common as generally believed as, structing expunging correcting testing (T S Eliot), Sir William Meredith anticipating the labors of Romilly protested against the barbarity and the ineffi cacy of a criminal code (G O Trevelyan) Travail (see term now archa c or dialectal is used chiefly when the idea of heavy physical labor is to be suggested It is now replaced largely by toil, when labor that is prolonged nor heed— Ye set your leisure before their toil and your lusts above their need ' (Kipling), ' For years he led a (Boswell) [cf Johnson's definition of a lexicographer as ".. a harmless drudge'], ' labor of the hands . pursued to the verge of drudgery (Thoreau) Grind applies to labor that one finds toil or drudgery and also trying to the nerves or exhausting to mind or body as ' The long grind of teaching the promiscuous and preoccupied young ' (H. James).

Ana. Exertion, *effort, pains trouble *task duty, job, chore Ant. Play.
2 Work, employment, occupation, calling, pursuit, compensated for by an employer or out of one s fees for (or an editor, or an architect or a motorman or a bookbinder, or a shoemaker), she is a stenographer by received that luckiest of fairy gifts a calling something that she loved to do (L P Smith) Pursuit may also be used in place of occupation, but it is still more a French term for trade or craft, or, more generally,

Ana *Trade, craft, handicraft, art, profession 3 Work, product, production, opus, artifact (or artefact) structed or built, only when used without reference to a particular concrete thing (as, the work reveals the work works, the new history of literature promises to be a materials impart their special properties to perfumes and flavors and when properly used increase rather than of its age and be silent as to the spirit of its author! ' (G Matheson) Production is sometimes used where work or group of compositions it is commonly followed by a number designating the order of its publication or weapons and implements as well as works of art as flints arrowheads and other artifacts of stone

Ana Article object *thing accomplishment achievement performance (see corresponding verbs at PERFORM) work, v Operate function *act behave react worked Worked, wrought come into comparison as past participles of the verb work They are especially distinguished when used adjectivally in the sense of subjected to some treatment or process Worked now applies chiefly to fabrics or materials which are embellished with needlework engraving or the like or to things made from such fabrics or materials in this sense the term is often equivalent to embroidered chased engraved etc as worked canvas for chair seats worked napkins worked initials on a handkerchief the worked case of a watch Wrought is preferred to worked when molding or fashioning into shape is implied though it is often used when any more or less laborious method of refining polishing decorating carving or the like is implied as cups of wrought gold (Shelley) The screen of gilt Spanish leather stamped and wrought with a rather florid Louis Quatorze pattern (Wilde) first drafts [of poems] wrought down by long labour into their final structure (J W Mackail) Wrought is also used in opposition to raw or unprocessed and implies that the material so described has been subjected to some process that fits it for industrial or other use thus wrought silk is silk that has been spun wrought iron (usually contrasted with cast iron) is iron that has been so processed that it is tough yet relatively soft and therefore malleable worker Worker workman workingman, laborer navvy craftsman handicraftsman mechanic artisan, hand operative, roustabout come into comparison because they mean or have meant or have come to mean one who earns his living by labor especially by manual labor Worker by far the most comprehensive and least specific of these terms applies to anyone who earns his living by work of hand or brain as office workers factory workers unions for all types of workers Workman does not in any of its senses imply any specific kind of work but in all but its extended senses it commonly implies manual labor It may be applied to one engaged to do a specified piece of work or to help in the construction of something requiring many workers It may also be applied to a skilled or to an unskilled worker Usually it has implied opposition to employer or manager or foreman or the like as there were 50 workmen on the job he is the most competent workman in our employ they are about to add 200 workmen to their force In extended use the term is applicable to a worker in any field whether he works with his hands or with his mind provided he makes constructs invents, or creates something High minded and untiring workmen they have spared no pains to produce a poetry finer than that of any other country in our time (Amy Lowell) Workingman is far more restricted in its range of application than workman and is in spite of varying legal definitions, applied commonly to a wage-earner such as one who at an hourly daily or weekly rate pursues a trade (carpentry masonry plumbing etc) or is employed in a mercantile manufacturing or industrial establishment Consequently the plural of the term usually applies to a class as distinguished from industrialists merchants professional men and the like Laborer and its British synonym navvy like the preceding terms are not always fixed in their application but they commonly designate one on a construction or excavation job whose work demands strength and physical exertion rather than skill thus, a bricklayer s laborer (usually called helper in the United States) carries bricks and mortar and mixes mortar, the wages of the navvy who swings a sledgehammer (Shaw) In general in American use loaders carriers wheelers cleaners, diggers and the like are classified as laborers as day laborers farm laborers Craftsman and handicraftsman strictly apply to one who is a skilled workman in a craft or handicraft (for these terms see TRADE 1) The terms are now as common in general as in technical use Craftsman in current use often applies to a worker who is a competent technician or who is versed in the technique of his art profession trade or the like It is especially used of artists writers playwrights skilled artificers and the like as Pope one of the most consummate craftsmen who ever dealt in words (Lowes) The good craftsman constructs his product as perfectly as he can He becomes an artist in so far as he treats his materials also for themselves (S Alexander) Mechanic and artisan in their earliest English senses applied to one of a class of workmen Mechanic, in its older sense, usually applied to one of the class now called workingmen but first suggested employment in manual work and later in a factory or industry requiring operation of machines as An English mechanic instead of slaving like a native of Bengal for a piece of copper exacted a shilling a day (Macaulay) In current use mechanic applies specifically to a workman skilled in the repair or adjustment of machines or engines as an automobile mechanic an aviator s mechanic Artisan is now more often opposed to artist (for this sense see under ARTIST 1) than employed as a designation of a particular type of workman When the term is used in the latter sense however it commonly applies to one who is skilled in his trade such as a carpenter a weaver a bootmaker or the like as, We pass from the weavers of cloth to a different class of artisans (Macaulay) Hand is a colloquial term usually applied to one of a crew a force a gang or the like of workmen but sometimes to an owner s or proprietor s helper or assistant as a deck hand a farm hand mill hands My son has lately lost his principal hand by death (Franklin) Operative a general term suggestive of modern industrial conditions applies to any workman employed in a mill a manufactory or any industry utilizing machines it has now nearly displaced the older terms mill hand factory hand etc as the steel works employ as many as 2000 operatives Roustabout (chiefly United States) is often merely another term for laborer but it carries distinguishing implications such as muscular fitness or exceedingly heavy work roughness and often migratory habits as longshoremen and other roustabouts

Ant Idler

workingman Workman laborer *worker navvy craftsman handicraftsman mechanic artisan operative hand roustabout workman *Worker workingman laborer navvy craftsman, handicraftsman mechanic artisan operative hand roustabout world Universe *earth cosmos macrocosm worldly Mundane *earthly terrestrial terrene earthly mortal sublunary

Ana Temporal *profane secular *material physical corporeal *carnal fleshly sensual

Con *Celestial heavenly empyrean sacred *holy spiritual divine religious worn *Haggard careworn pinched wasted cadaverous

Ana Exhausted *tired wearied fatigued fagged jaded (see TIRE v) gaunt scrawny skinny *lean

Con Refreshed restored rejuvenated (see RENEW) *vigorous lusty energetic strenuous vorried Anxious concerned careful solicitous See under CARE n Ana \pprehens ve afra d *fearful troubled d s tressed (see TROUBLE v) harassed harr ed (see WORRY v) Con Comforted solaced consoled (see COMFORT v) vorry v Worry annoy harass harry plague pester tease tantalize come nto compar son when they mean one to d stract on or exhaust one s nervous or mental harr ed life that brought tranqu llity and peace to its vict ms (V He ser) Ho v on earth can you rack and mpl es the po ver to annoy past endurance as by numbers or by repet t on of attacks sugges ve of the attempts to break do vn one s res stance by tormenting t der ves ts mpl cations from t scratch ng the surface of cloth by a teasel to ra

Not soon provoked l owever stung and teased And if perhaps made angry soon appeased (Cowper) Tantalize up et torm nt try to t re (ee AFFLICT) onn e nce e under d da n regard ore than Anglo-Saxon ord) and value (der ved from Latin through Old Frenc) in tl eir earliest and st ll current senses denote the equ valent especially n money but also n goods serv ces or the l ke that is or may be g ven o asked in exchange for another th ng such as goods serv ces money or the l ke as to determ ne the worth or val e of a d amond bracelet (or of a tract of land a build n a stand of timber or one s services) the val e or worth of these gold co ns w th reference to the r pur chasing power is greater than the r value or worth as bullion tl e present value or wo th of the dollar n therefore is in current use applied as worth is not to something such as a principle a quality a condition a substance or the like which is regarded as important useful desirable or of value in any way sometimes in its relation to other things sometimes in the degree which

Ana *Excellence merit virtue perfection * usefulness utility wrack or rack, v *Ruin wreck dilapidate Ana *Destroy demolish raze *abolish extingu annihilate Con *Save preserve conserve wraith *Apparition phantasm phantom fetch ghost spirit specter shade revenant spook haunt wrangle, v Quarrel altercate squabble bicker spat tiff See under QUARREL n Ana Argue dispute debate (see DISCUSS) fight cope *contend Con *Agree concur coincide wrangle, n *Quarrel altercation squabble bickering spat tiff Ana *Argument dispute controversy *discord contention dissension conflict wrath Rage indignation ire fury *anger Ana Resentment dudgeon *offense *acrimony acerbity asperity wrathful Irate indignant *angry mad acrimonious Ana Infuriated incensed enraged (see ANGER v) Con *Forbearing tolerant clement lenient indulgent merciful wreck, v *Ruin wrack dilapidate Ana *Destroy demolish raze *injure damage impair Con *Save preserve conserve wretched *Miserable Ana *Despondent forlorn hopeless despairing doleful dolorous *melancholy abject sordid *mean pitiable piteous *pitiful writer Writer author composer come into comparison the like as a free-lance writer news writers a writers club Author in its comprehensive sense (see MAKER) may be applied to anyone who is known as the producer some well known books such as David Harum were not generally and specifically But because it emphasizes the bringing together of a number of things so as to form a whole (a composition) it is applied most frequently to those expressions of ideas or feelings achieved by bringing together musical tones words colors etc so as to form an artistic pattern It is the specific term for the author of a musical composition (as the composer of the Peer Gynt suite) but although this is its commonest application it is also applicable to poets painters designers, and others when composition rather than creation or representation is the end as Shakespeare paroxysm in an instrument of torture or in a trap and every march the hidden enemy became bolder and the regiment writhed under attacks it could not avenge (Kipling) Agonize a word derived from two sources children were prayed for and agonized over (Deland) As a rule however no matter which implication is the stronger that of anguish or of straining the one not human beings therefore it usually does not imply profound distress but great unease as in aversion to restraint or discipline or a shrinking or wincing as under sarcasm criticism or the like Sleek haired subalterns who squirmed painfully in their chairs when they came to ontort

LACY)

recise

Ana Improper *unfit inappropriate unmeet unfitting unsuitable inapt unhappy infelicitous Con Proper *fit appropriate suitable fitting *awry

'Forgive! forgive! much wrong d Montrose! (Burns) One oppresses another who inhumanely lays upon him burdens too heavy to be endured or exacts of l m more than he can poss bly perform How reviving To the comb ned with poor physique and great nervousness may be so persecuted [by normal boys] as to be driven mad (B Russell) One aggrieves another or more often causes him to be (or to feel) aggrieved who by wrong ng oppressing or persecuting l m gives h m ground for remonstrance as several nat ons were aggrieved by the terms of the Treaty of Versailles So the bargain stood They broke it and he felt himself aggrieved (Browning)

Ana *Abuse mistreat maltreat ill treat outrage *injure harm hurt wrought *Worked

Y

yardstick *Standard criterion gauge touchstone yarn Tale *story narrative anecdote yearly *Annual ann versary yearn *Long p ne hanker hunger th rst Ana Crave *des re wish want covet aspire pant *aim yeast *Foam froth spume scum lather suds yen Urge *desire appet te appetence pass on lust concup scence yet *But however still nevertheless yield, v 1 Produce turn out *bear Ana *Generate engender breed propagate create *invent form shape *make fabr cate fashion 2 *Relinqu sh surrender cede abandon leave res gn wa ve Ana *Forgo forbear abnegate eschew sacrifice *abd cate renounce res gn demit Con *Keep retain withhold appropriate *arrogate confiscate 3 Yield submit capitulate succumb relent defer bow cave in are synonyms only when they mean to implies being overcome by force by argument by do n h p p n h h fe ence s o a of en sed nd ho t enfo n that ca s s the m ng The t mes a close synonym of defer and at other t mes of nder cede waive (see RELINQUISH) concede ird *grant yoke *Couple pair brace youth Youth adolescence puberty pubescence are inexper ence or impetuos ty character st c of the young Adolescence de gnates the same per od as you l in the restricted sense but t carries a stronger connotat on of immatur ty Adolescence suggests the a vk ardness result ng from the rap d growth dur ng th s per od and also the mental and emot onal instab l ty result ng from the phys olog cal changes In education adole cence de notes the per od from the end of the elementary course to the end of the high-school course In legal use adoles

h ch the symptoms of the maturing of the sexual organs appear suc as the beard and changed vo ce n boys and the development of the breasts n g rls In law th s age is commonly fixed at fourteen for boys and t velve for girls In looser use puberty often des gna es the per od co e ng the earl er years of adolescence Pubescence is somet mes used as equ valent to puberty but t s appl ed only to boys

Ant Age (sense 1)

youthful Youthful juvenile puerile boyish virgin virginal ma den come n o comparison only when they mean of perta n ng to or character st c of one who s bet een ch ldhood and adult ood They are ho ever not synonyms fo although the r bas c meaning s the same they are seldom nterchangeable becau e of v dely d ffer ng impl cat ons and appl cat ons Youthful sug gests the possession or the appearance of youth or of a youngness appropriate to youth it is commonly em ployed e ther in a good sense or in extenuat on as yout ful asp rat ons youthful ind scret ons Juvenile often suggests immaturity of mind or body or lack of exper ence it s therefore appl ed especially (but not ex clusively) to that wh ch perta ns to or is su ted to o des gned for boys and g rls in their teens as juven e dances juven le fict on a juven le performance Puerile

The

spir t Virgin and virginal though referable usually to full fledged

Z

zany *Fool jester clown antic buffoon merry andrew pantaloon harlequ n comed an com c stooge zeal Enthus asm fervor ardor *pass on

Ana Energy force (see POWER) zest gusto (s e TASTE) earnestness ser ousness (see correspond ng adject ves at SER OUS) ntens ty vehemence (see co respond ng adject ves at INTENSE)

Ant Apathy — Con Impass v ty pl legm stol d ty (see correspond ng adject ves at I PASSIVE) zealot *Enthus ast fanatic bigot

Ana Part san sectary adherent d sciple *follower devotee votary (see ADD CT) zenith Apogee culm nat on me ld an *summ t peak p nnacle cl max ap x acme

Ant Nad r

zephyr *W nd breeze gust blast fla v gale hurricane wh rl v nd cyclone typhoon tornado waterspout tw ster zeppelin *Aerostat balloon airship d rig ble bl mp zero *C pher naught nought aught ougl t zest Rel sh gusto *taste palate

Ana Enthus asm fervor ardor zeal *pass on spirited ness or sp r t hig sp r tedness (see correspond ng ad ect es at SPIRITED) en oyment del ght delecta t on *pleasu e zone Belt *area tract reg on

Ana *Local ty d str ct sect on sector segment (see PART n)

A co on ( ) g oups wo ds d scrim nated n t is book An as er sk (*) ind cates p ace of treatment of each group

LIST OF AUTHORS QUOTED

The entries n ital c type in the left hand column are the actual forms used in c tat ons in the Vocabulary of th s t onary These entries are arranged n the alphabet cal order of surnames or t tles The right hand column supplies ll dent ficat on of each author or source c ted Only readily understood abbrev at ons (such as Amer for Amer can ed from

Barnes 3 4-194

		Baron Ashbu ton See Alexan der BAR NG be ow	Barrow Isaac Barrow (1630-77) Eng th o gian, mathematic an and class t Eng l terary and artist weekly found d 1828 by ms	Joseph Qu ncy Adam 188 1946) Ame Shak peare n schola Allan to Month y
Atterbu y	Joseph Add son (1672 1719) Eng essayi t talist.	Mary Hun e Aus n 1868-1934) Ame no h t.	J Beaumont Joseph Beaumont (1616-99) Eng heo g an and poet.
		(793-186	William Beckford (1759-1844) Eng autho Henry Ward Beecher (1813-1887) Am preach M s. Aph a Behn (640-89 Eng drama st and n ve oseph H ary P erre Be loc 8 0-19 B t au hor W am Rose Bené (886-1950 Am r author and poet.
			Juda Ph p B n amin (8 1884 Lawyer in U S and England. llen	Alexander V s G wo d Allen (841 1908 Am cl gy m n and au be	Bag hot Walte Bageh t (1826-77 Eng econ m st and autho
J Baillie		Joanna Ba lle 176 18 1 S ot. poet.	Bennett (Enoch) Arno d Benn tt 867 19 1 Eng no elist and p aywright.
en	G ant All n (18 8-99 Cana d n man of tters.
Baker's Biog Dict. of Musicians		Baker s B ographical Dic onary f Musi ians 19 9 ed ised by Alf ed Rem	W C Bennett William Cox Benne t (820-189 Eng song wri llen	(W am H y All n (889-1949 Amer au h

Besant
Binyon
Birrell
Bk of Prayer
W Black

Book of Common Prayer The service book of the Anglican Communion (Church of England edition) Borrow George (Henry) Borrow (1803–1881) Eng novelist Bosanquet Bernard Bosanquet (1848–1923) Eng philosopher

M K Bradby
M E Braddon
G Bradford
R. Bradford story writer Bradley Andrew Cecil Bradley (1851–1935) Eng educator and literary critic.
Sir W H Bragg Sir William Henry Bragg Bridges
J Bright
C Brontë
Eng novelist.
R. Brooke Rupert Brooke (1887–1915) Eng poet.
S Brooke Stopford Augustus Brooke (1832–1916) Irish clergyman and author Van W Brooks Van Wyck Brooks (1886–1963) Amer author Broome
Brougham
Dr J Br
T Brown
T E Brown Thomas Edward Brown (1830– Eng poet wife of preceding.

William Cullen Bryant (1794–1878) Amer poet.
James Bryce (1838–1922) Viscount Bryce Brit. jurist,

Alfred Bunn (1796? 1860) Eng theater manager and song writer

...shop Joseph Butler (1692

J B Cabell James Branch Cabell (1879–1958) Amer author G W Cable George Washington Cable (1844–1925) Amer novelist.
Caine Sir (Thomas Henry) Hall Caine (1853–1931) Anglo-Manx author

Campbell Thomas Campbell (1777–1844) Scot. poet.
D Canfield Dorothy (properly Dorothea Frances) Canfield (1879–1958) Mrs. John Redwood Fisher Amer novelist George Canning (1770–1827) Brit. statesman Thomas Carew (1595? ?1645) Eng poet.
William (McKendree) Carleton (1845–1912) Amer poet.
Thomas Carlyle (1795–1881)
...lyle

E. Chambers

W E Channing William Ellery Channing (1780–1842) Amer clergyman and author Chatham William Pitt (1708–78) 1st Earl of Chatham Eng statesman Thomas Chatterton (1752–70) Eng poet.
Geoffrey Chaucer (1340?–1400) Eng poet.
Philip Dormer Stanhope (1694–1773), 4th Earl of Chesterfield Eng statesman diplomat, and letter writer Chesterton Gilbert Keith Chesterton (1874–1936) Eng essayist and critic

Clarendon Edward Hyde (1609–74), 1st Earl of Clarendon Eng statesman and historian John Smith Clarke (1885–) Scot author Samuel Langhorne Clemens See Mark Twain below (Stephen) Grover Cleveland (1837–1908) 22d and 24th President of the United States Cleveland Plain Dealer Cleveland (Ohio) daily newspaper (est 1841)
S Cloete (Edward Fairly) Stuart (Graham) Cloete (1897–) S. African novelist Clough Arthur Hugh Clough (1819–1861) Eng poet.

...pher
Coke Sir Edward Coke (1552–1634) Eng jurist Coleridge Samuel Taylor Coleridge (1772–1834) Eng poet.
J Collier Jeremy Collier (1650–1726) Eng theologian.
Collins William Collins (1721–59) Eng poet W Wilkie Collins (William) Wilkie Collins (1824–1889) Eng novelist P Colum Padraic Colum (1881–) Irish author
...dney Colvin (1845–1927) ...g man of letters
...r weekly review of current events literature and art ...(1921)
...Doyle, below
...am Congreve (1670–1729) ...g dramatist
... Conington (1825–69) ...g translator
...h Conrad (1857–1924) ...t novelist.
Contemporary Review Brit. ...nthly (founded 1865 by Percy Bunting)

Capt. Cook . . Captain James Cook (1728–1779) Eng navigator and Deland . . . (Mrs) Margaretta, or Margaret, Wade Deland (1857-

C. A. Elton . . Sir Charles Abraham Elton (1778–1853). Eng author ported author of Kathleen

Disraeli Benjamin Disraeli (1804–81)

Amer novelist.

tist.

Sir John Davies (1569–1626)

Einstein & In- Albert Einstein (1879–1955) physt

with

),

1834-into Current History and Forum 1940)

H W Fowler Henry Watson Fowler (1858–1933) Eng lexicographer

John Fox, jr John William Fox (1863–1919) Amer story writer

Foxe . John Foxe (1516–87) Eng martyrologist.

er Thomas Dekker (1572?–?1632) Eng playwright.

ruif Paul de Kruif (1890–) Amer bacteriologist, author Mare Walter de la Mare (1873–1956) Eng poet and novelist.

Authors Quoted

Fraser s Mag Fraser s Magazine, founded by William Maginn and Hugh Fraser pub (1830–82) in London Eng

J G Frazer Sir James George Frazer (1854 1941) Scot. anthropologist

Freeman Edward Augustus Freeman (1823–92) Eng historian

J Freeman John Freeman (1880–1929) Eng poet

[M Freeman] Mary Eleanor Wilkins Freeman See Mary Eleanor Wilkins, below

C Frohman

Frost

Froude

Fuller

T Fuller

C C Furnas

Galsworthy

Galt author

H Garland Hamlin Garland (1860–1940) Amer novelist

Gascoigne George Gascoigne (1525? 77) Eng poet.

Gaskell (Mrs) Elizabeth

W W Gibson Wilfrid Wilson Gibson (1878–1962) Eng poet

H Gifford Humphrey Gifford (fl 1580) Eng poet

J Gilbert Joseph Gilbert (1779–1852)

W S Gilbert

C P Gilman

W Gilpin

G Gissing George (Robert) Gissing (1857 1903) Eng novelist

W Gladden Washington Gladden (1836 1918) Amer clergyman

Gladstone William Ewart Gladstone (1809–98) Eng statesman

Glanvill Joseph Glanvill (1636–80) Eng cleric and philosopher

E L Godkin Edwin Lawrence Godkin (1831 1902) Ir Eng editor

Godwin William Godwin the elder (1756–1836) Eng novelist and philosopher

Goldsmith Oliver Goldsmith (1728 74) Irish novelist, poet, and dramatist

J M Good John Mason Good (1764 1827) Eng physician and scholar

Gosse Sir Edmund William Gosse (1849–1928) Eng poet and critic

P Gosse

Jay Gould

Grandgent

R Grant Robert Grant (1852 1940) Amer novelist

U S Grant Ulysses Simpson Grant (1822 1885) Amer general 18th President of the United States

G Granville George Granville or Grenville (1667–1735) Baron Lansdowne Eng poet and dramatist

Gray Thomas Gray (1716–71) Eng poet

Asa Gray

Grote

A T Ha

Richard Hakluyt (1552? 1616) Eng cleric and writer on exploration

Edward Everett Hale (1822 1909) Amer clergyman

Sir Matthew Hale (1609–76) Eng jurist and legal writer

T C Haliburton Thomas Chandler Haliburton (1796 1865) Canadian humorist

F Hall Fitzedward Hall (1825–1901) Amer philologist

Bishop Joseph Hall (1574 1656) Eng theologian

Samuel Carter Hall (1800–89) Eng editor

Henry Hallam (1777 1859) Eng historian

Richard Matthews Hallet (1887–) Amer author

Philip Gilbert Hamerton (1834–1894) Brit. artist and essayist.

A Hamilton Alexander Hamilton (1757 1804) Amer lawyer and statesman

James Hamilton James Hamilton (1814–67) Scot clergyman hymn writer

Sir W Hamilton Sir William Hamilton (1788 1856) Scot philosopher

H Hammond Henry Hammond (1605–60) Eng divine

Hardy Thomas Hardy (1840–1928) Eng novelist and poet.

Harper s Mag Harper s Magazine Amer monthly (est. 1850 by Harper & Bros New York)

J C Harris Joel Chandler Harris (1848–1908) Amer story writer

F Harrison Frederic Harrison (1831 1923) Eng author

H H Hart Henry Hersch Hart (1886–) Amer Sinologist

J Hawthorne Julian Hawthorne (1846–1934) Amer author son of next.

N Hawthorne Nathaniel Hawthorne (1804–1864) Amer novelist.

J Hayward Sir John Hayward (1564?–1627) Eng historian

C Hazard Caroline Hazard (1856–1945) Amer educator

Hazlitt William Hazlitt (1778–1830) Eng miscellaneous writer

Hearn Lafcadio Hearn (1850–1904) Author of British parentage journalist in United States teacher in Japan where he became naturalized.

Reginald Heber (1783–1826) Eng bishop, hymn writer

Frederic Henry Hedge (1805–1890) Amer clergyman and hymn writer

Werner Heisenberg (1901–) German physicist.

Victor George Heiser (1873–) Amer physician

Arthur Helps (1813 75) Eng essayist and historian

Felicia Dorothea Hemans (1793–1835) Eng poet

Ernest Hemingway (1899–) Amer novelist

Hendrick (1871) Amer biographer

William Ernest Henley (1849–1903) Eng poet and man of letters (1736–99) Amer and orator

Herbert (1593–1633)

Joseph Hergesheimer (1880–) Amer novelist

Herrick (1591 1674) Eng poet.

Hewlett Maurice Henry Hewlett (1861 1923) Eng novelist.

J Heywood John Heywood (1497? ?1580) Eng epigrammatist and author of interludes

T Heywood Thomas Heywood (1574? 1641) Eng dramatist

T W Higginson Thomas Wentworth Storrow Higginson (1823–1911) Amer clergyman and author

Aaron Hill Aaron Hill (1685–1750) Eng dramatist

Hippocrates Hippocrates (c. 460–c 357 B C) Greek physician

Hobbes Thomas Hobbes (1588–1679) Eng philosopher

J C Hobhouse John Cam Hobhouse (1786–1869) Baron Broughton de Gyfford Eng statesman

J A Hobson John Atkinson Hobson (1858–1940) Eng economist.

R Hodgson Ralph Hodgson (1871–1962) Eng poet

M Hoffman Malvina Hoffman (1887–) Amer sculptor

J G Holland Josiah Gilbert Holland (1819–1881) Amer author editor

Holmes Oliver Wendell Holmes, sr (1809–94) Amer physician and man of letters.

Justice Holmes Oliver Wendell Holmes, jr (1841 1935) Associate justice U S Supreme Court

Holt & Chilton Lucius Hudson Holt (1881 1953), Amer educator and lexicographer and Alexander Wheeler Chilton (1880–) Amer army officer and editor

Hood Thomas Hood (1799–1845) Eng poet

T Hook Theodore Edward Hook (1788–1841) Eng novelist

Richard Hooker (1554? 1600) Eng theologian

Edward Hooker (fl 1693) Eng editor

Thomas Hope (1770? 1831) Brit connoisseur and author

Alfred Edward Housman (1859–1936) Eng classical scholar and poet.

Howells William Dean Howells (1837–1920) Amer novelist and critic.

Dav d Hume (1711 76) historian and pl losopl

(James Henry) Leigh

and essayist.

(M ss) Jean Ingelow (1820–97) Eng poet.

novel st

ames George Payne Ra 1 (1799–1860) Lr

Henry James Amer no elist

William James

Francis Je frey (1773– Lord Jeffrey Scot. judg literary cr c.

Joseph Jekyll (d 1837) Eng wit and pol t c an 78 James Jennings (fl. 1825) Eng philolog st.

Will am Stanley Jevons (1835–1882) Eng logician and pol t cal econom st.

Jewett Sarah Orne Jewett (1849–1909) Amer story writer

Samuel Johnson (1709–84) Eng lexicographer hnson James Weldon Johnson (1871–1938) Am r poet.

Dan el Jones (1881

ones

n

Kaempffert Waldemar Bernhard Kaempffert (1877–1957) writer on science.

Rafael Karsten (1879– Finn sh anthropol gist

Maurice Bagenal St. Keating (d. 1835) Br thor

John Keats (1795–1821) Eng poet.

Jo n Keble (1792 1866) Eng

Kipling

mat on

G P Lathrop George Parsons Lathrop (1851–1898) Amer author and poet.

mer) Lardner (1885–1933) Amer short story wr ter

Lat mer Hugh Lat mer (1485? 155)

Day Lewis Cec l Day Lew s (1904–) Eng poet and author writer

(1804–55) German poet and ep grammatist.

Lyly John Lyly (1554? 1606) Eng d amat t and author

Lytton Edward Geo ge Earle Lytton Bulwer-Lytton (1803–73), 1st Baron Lytton Eng au thor and statesman ll- (Samuel) Ward McAll ster (1827–95) Amer soci ty leader who originated phrase "the 400

Thomas Babington Macaulay (1800–59) 1st Baron Ma caulay Eng historian and

Wm. McFee William McFee (1881–), Eng. marine engineer and novelist in U.S.
J W Mackail John W ...
C Mackay Ch...
C Mackenzie Co...), Eng. novelist.
H Mackenzie Henry Mackenzie (1745–1831), Scot. novelist.
J Mackintosh Sir James Mackintosh (1765–1832) Scot. philosopher J A Macy John Albert Macy (1877–1932) Amer. author J Madison James Madison (1751–1836) Fourth President of the United States.
Maine Sir Henry James Sumner Maine (1822–88), Brit. jurist.
W H Mallock William Hurrell Mallock (1849–1923), Eng. philosophical writer Kemp Malone Kemp Malone (1889–) Amer. philologist.
Malory Sir Thomas Malory (fl. 1470) Eng. translator and comp...
M
M
B
Ma
B Ma
Mar
Mar
J P
Mar
...ucer and novelist.
H Marryat Horace Marryat (fl. 1860) Eng. author G P Marsh
Alfred Marshall
Arch. Marshall
Ch. Just. Marshall ...–1835) Chief Justice of U.S.
Marston John Marston (1575?–1634) Eng. dramatist.
H Martineau
J Mart
Marvell
Masefield
Massinger
E L M ... Masters (1869–1950) Amer. poet Cotton Mather Cotton Mather (1663–1728) Amer. theologian.
F J Mather Frank Jewett Mather (1868–1953) Amer. art critic and educator G Matheson George Matheson ...
C Mathews
B Mathe...

Maugham (William) Somerset Maugham (1874–1965) Eng. novelist ... Denison ... 2), Eng.
... Maurice (1841 1912) Eng. military writer T Maurice Thomas Maurice ...
M F Mau...
Max Müller ... Max Müller (1823–1900) Brit. philologist.
Melville Herman Melville (1819–91) Amer. novelist.
Mencken Henry Louis Mencken (1880–1956) Amer. editor, critic.
Meredith George Meredith (1828–1909) Eng. novelist and poet.
C Merivale Charles Merivale ...
J Merrick
... (1841–1913) Amer. poet.
Milman Henry Hart Milman (1791–1868) ...
... dramatist.
Modern Language Notes Amer. scholarly monthly (est. 1886), pub. Baltimore, Md.
J H Monk James Henry Monk (1784–1856) Eng. bishop and classicist.
Lady Mary Wortley Montagu (1689–1762) Eng. letter writer Charles Edward Montague (1867–1928) Eng. author James Graham (1612–50), 1st Marquis of Montrose, Scot. soldier and verse writer William Vaughn Moody (1869–1910) Amer. poet and dramatist.
G Moore George Moore (1852–1933) Irish novelist.
J Moore John Moore (1729–1802) Scot. physician and writer T Moore Thomas Moore (1779–18...

Lady S Morgan Lady Sydney Morgan (1783?–1859) Irish novelist.
C Morley Christopher Darlington Morley (1890–1957) Amer. novelist.
J Morley John Morley (1838–1923) Viscount Morley of Blackburn, Eng. author and statesman William Morris (1834–1896) Eng. poet and artist.
A(braham) Cressy Morrison (1864 1951) Amer. chemist and author Motley John Lothrop Motley (1814–1877) Amer. historian.
J B Mozley James Bowling Mozley (1813–1878) Eng. theologian.
Müller, Max See MAX MÜLLER, above.
Mulock (Mrs.) Dinah Maria Craik, nee Mulock (1826–87) Eng. novelist.
... ers ... and
...Newton Sir Isaac Newton (1642 1727) Eng. mathematician and physicist.
J Newton John Newton (1725–1807) Eng. clergyman and hymn writer N Nicholls Norton Nicholls (1742? 1809) Eng. clergyman and letter writer M Nicholson Meredith Nicholson (1866–1947) Amer. author and diplomat.
Nineteenth Century Brit. monthly review (founded 1877 by Sir J. T. Knowles; from 1900 called The Nineteenth Century and After) R North Roger North (1653–1734) Eng. lawyer and historian.
North American Review Amer. quarterly review (est. 1815) C E Norton Charles Eliot Norton (1827–1908) Amer. author and educator A Noyes Alfred Noyes (1880–1958) Eng. poet.
N Y Herald Tribune New York daily newspaper (est. 1924 by Ogden Reid by merger of N. Y. Herald founded in 1835 by James Gordon Bennett, and N. Y. Tribune, founded in 1841 by Horace Greeley) N Y Sun New Y...

Alexander Robertson (fl. 1903) Brit. author

Ouida Pen name of Marie Louise de la Ramée (1839–1908) Eng novelist.

J C Powys Eng bishop

John Cowper Powys (1872–1963) Eng author

Scot. historian

Crabb Robinson Henry Crabb Robinson (1775–1867) Eng lawyer and di

Dante Gabriel Rossetti (18 –1882) Eng painter and poet.

Constance Mayfield Rourke (188–1941) Amer author

Nicholas Rowe (1674–1718) Eng poet and dramatist.

John Ruskin (1819–1900) Eng

G Parker

Parkman

Pater

st and poet.

a Mary Sackville West 196?) Eng novelist.

(Edward Bateman) tsbury (1845–1933) Eng

Sandburg (1878–) r poet.

n Edwin Sandys (1844–) Brit Hellenist.

Santayana (1863–1952) r philosopher poet, and list.

argent (1819–80) Amer writer y Review Eng weekly as a Liberal organ 1855 amalgamated with The Spec-

Revised Version Revised Version (1885) of the Scott Sir Walter Scott (1771–1832) Scot. novelist and poet

G G Scott Sir George Gilbert Scott (1811–1878) Brit architect.

H S Scott Hugh Stowell Scott (1862–1903) pseudonym H(enry) Seton Merriman Eng novelist.

Scribner's Scribner's Magazine, monthly (1887 1939)

E W Scripture Edward Wheeler Scr (1864 1945) Amer ph

H E Scu

T Seccom

T Secker Eng archbishop

A D Sedgwick Anne Douglas Sedgwick (1935) Mrs Basil de Selincourt, Amer novelist in England

A Seeger Alan Seeger (1888–1916) Amer poet

J R Seele

Shaftesbury

Shak

J Sharp Eng archbishop.

Shaw George Bernard Shaw (1856–1950) Brit playwright, critic and author

J Sheffield John Sheffield (1648–1721) 1st Duke of Buckingham Eng miscellaneous writer poet

Shelley Percy Bysshe Shelley (1792–1822) Eng poet

Shenstone William Shenstone (1714–63) Eng poet.

Sheridan Richard Brinsley Sheridan (1751–1816) Irish playwright and politician

S P Sherman Stuart Pratt Sherman (1881–1926) Amer educator and literary critic.

Shirley James Shirley (1596–1666) Eng dramatist and poet

J H Shorthouse Joseph Henry Shorthouse (1834–1903) Eng novelist

Sidney Sir Philip Sidney (1554–86) Eng poet, soldier and statesman

E R Sill Edward Rowland Sill (1841–1887) Amer poet.

M Sinclair May Sinclair (18?? 1946) Eng novelist

Adam Smith Adam Smith (1723–90) Scot. economist

Alfred E Sm

G Smith

H Smith

J R Smith Josiah Renick Smith (1851–1914) Amer educator

L P Smith Logan Pearsall Smith (1865–1946) Amer miscellaneous writer in England

Preserved Smith Preserved Smith (1880–1941) Amer historian

S F Smith Samuel Francis Smith (1808–1895) Amer hymn writer and poet

Sydney Smith Sydney Smith (1771 1845) Eng clergyman and wit.

Smollett Tobias (George) Smollett (1721–71) Scot novelist

J C Snaith John Collis Snaith (1876?–1936) Eng novelist

Social Science Abstracts Amer sociological (1929–32)

South Robert South (1 Eng court preach thor

Southey Robert Southey (1774–1843) Eng poet laureate and miscellaneous writer

J M Spearman James Morton Spearman (fl. 1828) Brit artillerist

Spectator The Spectator Eng literary daily conducted by Richard Steele and Joseph Addison (Mar 1 1711 Dec 6 1712) and by Addison alone (for 80 issues 1714)

Spenser Edmund Spenser (1552? 99) Eng poet.

Springfield (Mass) Re Springfield (Mass) daily newspaper (est 1824)

Statesman's Year Book Brit statistical and historical annual of the states of the world" pub London Eng (since 1863)

Steele

L Stephen

J Stephens

Sterne

Stevenson

Stewart

D Stewart Dugald Stewart (1753–1828) Scot philosopher

Stirling Sir William Alexander (15?? 1640) Earl of Stirling Scot poet and politician

J C Stobart John Clarke Stobart (1878 1933) Brit archaeologist

H B Stowe Harriet Beecher Stowe nee Harriet Elizabeth Beecher (1811 96) Amer novelist

L Strachey (Giles) Lytton Strachey (1880–1932) Eng biographer

A Stringer Arthur (John Arbuthnott) Stringer (1874 1950) Canadian novelist and poet

Pen name of Joyce Maxtone Graham, nee Anstruther (1901–53) Eng author

Jacob George Strutt (fl. 1820–1850) Brit painter and engraver

Stubbs William Stubbs (1825–1901) Eng bishop and historian

Surtees Robert Smith Surtees (1803–1864) Eng novelist

Survey Graphic Amer monthly magazine of opinion (successor in 1912 to The Survey est 1897)

H Suzzallo Henry Suzzallo (1875 1933) Amer educator

Swift Jonathan Swift (1667 1745) Eng satirist dean of St Patrick's, Dublin Swinburne Algernon Charles Swinburne (1837–1909) Eng poet.

Symonds John Addington Symonds ur Stewart (1823–87) Brit scientists, coauthors of The Unseen Universe (1875)

Ch Just Taney Roger Brooke Taney (1777–1864) Chief justice of U S.

Tarkington (Newton) Booth Tarkington (1869–1946) Amer novelist.

A Tate (John Orley) Allen Tate (1899–) Amer author

Tatler Eng periodical founded by Richard Steele and conducted by Steele and Joseph Addison (3 times a week 1709–11)

(James) Bayard Taylor (1825–1878) Amer author and poet

Sir Henry Taylor (1800–86) Eng poet

Isaac Taylor (1787 1865) Eng author inventor and artist.

aylor Jane Taylor (1783–1824) and her sister Ann (1782 1866) Eng nursery rhyme writers

Jer Taylor Jeremy Taylor (1613–67) Eng bishop and author

Temple

author son of preceding

Thackeray William Makepeace Thackeray (1811–63) Eng novelist

Thirlwall Connop Thirlwall (1797 1875) Eng bishop and historian

Dorothy Thompson (1894 1961) Amer journalist.

Francis Thompson (1859–1907) Eng poet and author

James Thomson (1700–48) Scot poet

(John) Arthur Thomson (1861 1933) Scot biologist

Henry David Thoreau (1817 1862) Amer author er weekly newsmagazine summarizing current news (founded 1923 by Briton Hadden and Henry R. Luce)

The Times London (Eng) daily newspaper (founded 1785 by John Walter as The Daily Universal Register renamed The Times 1788)

Times Lit Sup Times Literary Supplement London (Eng) literary weekly (est 1902)

R B Todd Robert Bentley Todd (1809–1860) Irish physician

John Todhunter John Todhunter (1839–1916) Brit dramatist and poet

Toplady Augustus Montague Toplady (1740–78) Eng clergyman and hymn writer Tourneur Cyril Tourneur (1575? 1626) Eng dramatist.

Trench Richard Chenevix Trench (1807 86) Eng philologist,

G M Trevelyan George Macaulay Trevelyan (1876–1962) Eng historian

G O Trevelyan Sir George Otto Trevelyan (1838–1928) Eng biographer and historian father of preceding Trollope Anthony Trollope (1815 82) Eng novelist.

A Tucker Abraham Tucker (1705–74) Eng philosopher

Twain Mark Twain pseudonym of Samuel Langhorne Clemens (1835 1910) Amer novelist and humorist

(Tweedsmuir) Baron Tweedsmuir See John Buchan above

Tylor Sir Edward Burnett Tylor (1832 1917) Eng anthropologist ynan Katharine Tynan (1861 1931) Mrs H A Hinkson Irish poet and novelist

J Tyndall John Tyndall (1820–93) Brit physicist.

Thornton Niven Wilder (1897–) Amer novel st.
Mary Eleanor W lkins (1852–1930) Mrs. Charles M Freeman Amer novelist.
Nathan el Parker Willis (1806–1867) Amer poet and jour

Urquhart . S r Thomas Urquhart, or Urchard (1611–60) Scot. | Well ngton

H W van Loon

Van Nostrand's Scientific En cycloped a Van Vechten

R. A Vaughan

Vaux

Lady F P Verney Viollet-le Duc arch (

Watts-Dunton Wa ter Theodore Watts-Dunton (18 2 1914) Eng poet, no el t, and crit c.
B Waugh Ben am n Waugh (183) Eng clergyman.

Bp S Wilber force
Wilde

Stark Young (1881 1963) Amer novelist, poet, and playwright.

OTHER FINE DICTIONARIES

PREPARED BY

The Merriam-Webster Editorial Staff

WEBSTER'S THIRD NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY UNABRIDGED

From the first word to the last—in contents size shape and design—this is a completely new unabridged dictionary It presents the English language in a new modern way to give you the most useful understandable and enjoyable fund of word information ever available and covering every area of human thought A masterpiece of modern defining every definition is given in a single phrase of precise meaning Thousands of quotations from well known writers demonstrate word usage to make meanings clearly understandable 450 000 entries including 100 000 new words or meanings never before covered in the unabridged Merriam Webster 3 000 terms newly illustrated with twenty true to-life plates in glorious color Simplified pronunciation key clear and informative etymologies 1 000 synonym articles This is one of the most remarkable literary achievements of all time 2 728 pages

WEBSTER'S SEVENTH NEW COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY

This new desk dictionary is the latest in the famous Merriam Webster Collegiate series the outstanding favorite in schools homes and offices 130 000 entries include 20 000 new words and new meanings for more complete coverage than any other desk dic tionary Precise clear definitions with 10 000 usage examples assure full understanding and accurate use of words 1 244 pages

WEBSTER'S NEW PRACTICAL SCHOOL DICTIONARY

This dictionary has been specifically written for teen age needs in junior high school and higher grades 45 000 entries and 800 new illustrations A special 50 page intro duction teaches each student how to use the dictionary An everyday aid to better understanding and improved grades

WEBSTER'S ELEMENTARY DICTIONARY

The only dictionary specifically written for boys and girls in the fourth fifth sixth and seventh grades 18 000 vocabulary entries selected for elementary school needs 1 600 pictures to increase understanding and interest Large clear easily readable type with simplified pronunciation Sturdily bound

CAUTION The Merriam series of Webster's Dictionaries can be identified by a circular trademark on the cover and also by the trademark A Merriam-Webster on the title page Only in this series are to be found the most authoritative dictionaries based on the experience of more than a century of dictionary making These trademarks insure accuracy reliability and up to-dateness To be sure you're right insist on a Merriam Webster

G & C. MERRIAM COMPANY, Publishers, Springfield, Mass